The Heir of Bayneham

—AND—
Lady Hutton's Ward.

CHAPTER XXXVII

He was with a gentleman, but Lord Bayneham could not see the gentleman's face; it was hidden from him by the thick foliage of the trees.

The little boy's amusement consisted in gathering blades of grass and running with them to his guardian. He evidently considered this a great feat, and indulged in cries of delight. A bright yellow flower grew in the green grass close to where Lord Bayneham was sitting. The child saw it and ran eagerly to gather it, and the smile that broke over his charming face was so irresistible that Lord Bayneham stooped and raised him in his arms.

"You must not run away with me," said the child in his pretty little way. "I am mamma's own boy."

"I will not," said the earl gravely; "sit here on my knee and I will show you my watch."

The child was delighted with the glittering watch and chain.

"Will you give me these for my own?" he asked.

"We will see about that," said Lord Bayneham; "tell me what your name is."

"Lionel," replied the little one.

"Lionel—and what else?" asked the earl.

"Mamma's Lionel," said the little boy, raising his beautiful eyes to the sad face above him.

Lord Bayneham was strangely moved by that look; surely in some dream he had seen eyes like those. Then he bent down and kissed the little face, soothing the bright golden curls as he did so.

"I wish I had a little boy like you," he said to the child; "I have no little son."

"And I have no papa," replied the child quickly.

"Lionel," cried a voice familiar to Lord Bayneham, "where are you?"

"Your little boy is quite safe," said the earl courteously.

"I fear he is teasing you. Why, Lord Bayneham—is it possible?"

"Captain Massey!" cried the earl, rising in glad surprise. "I thought you were in India."

"I reached home last week," said Captain Massey.

"How long have you been away?" inquired Lord Bayneham.

"Three years," was the short reply; and the earl wondered at the changed, cool manner of his friend.

"I am delighted to see you," he continued, again holding out his hand;

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results, easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The nasal, throat, and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with clear strained sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get 16 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

your words; will you listen to me while I tell you—what few know—the story of my darling's loss?"

With the little golden head pillowed on his heart, Lord Bayneham told his story.

"I have spent a fortune," he said, "in advertisements. I believe all England has been searched, but in vain. Whether she be living or dead I know not. I know one thing—living or dead, I shall be true to her; no one shall ever take her place. I would freely, joyfully give all I have in the world to see her once again. It was all a mistake, Massey; a terrible mistake. I was jealous and impatient, and most bitterly have I suffered for it. Do you not see that I am old before my time—worn out with sorrow and suspense? God keep all from suffering as I have done."

"It is a strange story," said the captain musingly.

"No more strange than true," said Lord Bayneham. "Ah, Massey, I must reproach you. What have you ever seen in me that could lead you to believe me capable of sending my wife from me because her father was not all he should have been? I should but have loved her the more for it. I knew nothing of and cared nothing for her family when I married her. How could you think that in the hour of her trouble I should drive her from me?—I who have never ceased praying, with weeping eyes, that I might see her again."

The two friends then sat and talked, unconscious of the swift passing of time. Lord Bayneham thought his friend strangely reserved, even after his explanation. True, Captain Massey grasped his hand and begged his pardon for the suspicious so unjust and unfounded; but after that he was very quiet. He did not seem to enter into or sympathize with any of the earl's plans for the finding of his lost wife. He listened with a far off look on his face; and Lord Bayneham, whose heart was in his words, felt pained by his want of interest.

"We must go," said the captain at length, taking out his watch. "Come, Lionel; mamma will be frightened; we have been out three hours."

"You have not told me my little friend's name," said Lord Bayneham, as he unwillingly untwined the little arms from his neck. "I shall be pleased to see him again."

"He is called Lionel," said the captain earnestly. "His mother is a friend of my mother's. Come and dine with us to-morrow, Lord Bayneham; we are still living in the old house at Kew. My mother will be pleased to see you—you were always a great favorite of hers."

"No, I think not," replied Lord Bayneham. "I have no heart or spirit for visiting. Come and see me—that will be better. Lady Bayneham and Miss Earle will be delighted to welcome you home again."

"I shall hold little Lionel here as an inducement," said Captain Massey. "Come and dine with us to-morrow; then you shall be introduced to him in proper form, and perhaps be allowed the privilege of having him on a visit—a great favor, I assure you. What do you say, Lionel? Do you wish this gentleman to come and see me?"

"Oh, yes!" cried the child, clinging to Lord Bayneham's hand; "do come!"

MOTHER! BREAK CHILD'S COLD

Hurry! Move Little Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Whatever else you give your child to relieve a bad cold, croup, throat or congestion, be sure to first open the little one's bowels with "California Fig Syrup" to get rid of the poisons and waste which are causing the cold and congestion. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works the constipation, soothe your little one's throat, and even if you call your family physician he will praise you for having given "California Fig Syrup" as the laxative because it never fails, never cramps or overacts, and even sick children love its pleasant taste. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must give "California" as you may get an imitation fig syrup.

Fashion Plates

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Eastern Cuts. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

A SMART STYLE FOR THE GROWING GIRL.

4206. The girl who likes something different will be pleased with the style lines of this model. The long waist and side closing are youthful and becoming. Plaid suiting in brown tones, with bands of red broad cloth developed this style.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. A 15 year size requires 3½ yards of 44 inch material. One could have this in blue homespun with platings in henna or orange. Or in black panne velvet with pass stitchery in green or white.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

A SIMPLE COMFORTABLE SCHOOL DRESS.

4205. This style has a very new and desirable sleeve, with extensions that form yoke sections over the shoulders. This is a good model for homespun, tulle and serge. It is nice also for wash fabrics.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. A 10 year size requires 2½ yards of 40 inch material. Collar of contrasting material requires ¼ yard 32 inches wide.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freestone" on an itching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freestone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

TALKING SHOP.

When guests remove their bonnets and sit around my fire, I do not talk of anatomy, or of my super-lure. I know that one who twitters of "shop" make a people sad; I talk of Wahoo Bitters, of Shumway's Liver Pad; I talk about the weather, of hunters and their camps, discuss the price of leather, and bargain sales in stumps. I know how people bore me when they discuss their trade; they throw a shadow over me that takes a month to fade. The butcher seeks my shanty, what time the night wind moans, and tells me and my auntie long tales of blood and homes. The grocer to my dwelling has ambled once or thrice; he wearies me by telling of pedigreed rice. The doctor talks of curing a cancer or a cold, and notes that I'm enduring large agonies untold. The tinsmith is a sniffer whose theme is motor cars; the town alfalfa dealer discourses of cigars. And, by the glowing ember, I fain would talk of song, but always I remember that such a course is wrong; if people seek my palace to while nine hours away, I'd show a deadly malice by talking all day. Methinks there's nothing meaner than boring friends with "shop," and so I talk of wieners, and hay and jemon pop.

Fads and Fashions.

The all-black velvet gown finished only by jewels is one often chosen for dinner or later evening wear.

Dainty frocks for southern wear are of organdie with tucked bodices and long full, ruffled lace trimmed.

A youthful afternoon dress features self-trimmed panels, displaying flouncings of a light material beneath.

Box-plated panels, woven into a checker-board pattern make a simple frock into a charming creation.

Short jaunty jacket blouses of fur or fur fabrics are worn with straight or wrapped skirts of camel's hair.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

Under an Act representing the St. John's General Hospital (6 George V., Chap. XIX) and with the approval of the Governor-in-Council, the Board of Governors have fixed and prescribed the following scale of fees to be levied from and paid by all persons who occupy beds or undergo treatment at the Hospital:

SCALE OF FEES.

Every person receiving treatment in the St. John's General Hospital shall pay fees according to the following scales:

Persons admitted to the public wards, $1.00 per day.

Persons occupying private rooms, $10.00 per week in addition to the daily fee of $1.00.

To cover cost of dressings, anaesthetics, and for the use of the Operating Room, patients undergoing operations shall pay a fee of $10.00 in addition to the fees specified above.

Every applicant for admission to the Hospital must bring or forward to the Superintendent of the Hospital, certificate signed by a duly registered physician that such applicant is a proper subject for Hospital treatment.

Under the provisions of the General Hospital Act, 1915, all patients who are unable to pay fees shall be required to bring with them a certificate of their inability to pay, which shall be signed by the Resident Relieving Officer, or where there is no such Officer by a Justice of the Peace, a Clergyman or other responsible persons.

The fees of such patients thereupon payable by the Commissioner of Public Charity, by virtue of the said Act.

By order of the Board of Governors,
GEORGE SHEA, Chairman
W. H. RENNIE, Secretary.

A TURKISH OPINION

Near East Conference A Failure -- Occupation of Ruhr Not an Economic Success -- French Industries Cannot Get Furnace Fuel -- Free State Continues Execution of Rebels.

FAILURE OF CONFERENCE PREDICTED.
LAUSANNE, Jan. 26. Failure of the Near East Conference is certain, according to a statement by the Associated Press tonight by Risa Nur of the Turkish delegation. Notwithstanding the pessimism of Risa Nur, hope is expressed in other responsible quarters that things may arrange themselves at the last moment. The Russian delegation issued a statement tonight to the effect that Russia would not sign the Straits Treaty, while the Bulgarians threw bombs into Bulgarian Allied circles by officially informing all powers that Bulgaria flatly refuses to accept the outlet to the Aegean as arranged by the Allies. Bulgaria declares she must have complete sovereignty over her Aegean opening near Dekeasrah.

ECONOMIC SIDE OF RUHR OCCUPATION A FAILURE.
DUESSELDORF, Jan. 26. What practically amounts to martial law has been declared in the occupied area. All cafes, hotels, theatres and caravans were closed at 10 o'clock tonight. The French tonight are continuing to make arrests in connection with Thursday's rioting, about twenty Nationalists being imprisoned during the evening. Quiet prevailed throughout Ruhr to-day, but the temper of the population is more openly defiant. In the prevalent depressing atmosphere of hate new forces of troops came into Dusseldorf to meet any eventuality. The miners of Ruhr continue gradually to throw down their picks and workmen in other industries are leaving their jobs. Smokeless chimneys are now everywhere in evidence throughout the once prosperous Ruhr. Locomotives are cold and silent, stalled in shops or stations. Many pitsides from which formerly thousands of tons of coal were daily handled show no signs of activity. The muddy River Ruhr flows through a land of unemployment but not of despair on the part of the Germans. The economic side of the occupation apparently has proved a failure. It is understood, however, that France has decided upon a further use of force to bring Germany to terms. Two additional French Army Corps have arrived in Ruhr and it is reported military operations are projected of such magnitude that the mobilizing of several French classes will be required for its execution.

FRENCH INDUSTRIES HELD UP.
PARIS, Jan. 26. Blast furnaces in France have begun shutting down from lack of coke from which they have been largely dependent upon the German reparations deliveries, halted since the occupation of Ruhr. Fifteen furnaces in the principal metallurgical centres had their fires drawn Wednesday and Thursday and more are expected to cease operation. Five furnaces shut down in Luxembourg yesterday. Lack of coke has affected the biggest plants such as Dewendel in Lorraine, and those still working are operating at reduced capacity.

ANOTHER STORM IN CAPE BRETON.
SYDNEY, Jan. 26. Glace Bay and the southern colliery towns were almost completely tied up by the heavy storm of wind, rain and snow which started last night, as was Sydney in the big storm in December. Fortunately the electric light circuits did not suffer any damage, but telephone lines are out of order in all directions and at eight o'clock telegraphic communications had not been restored. In Sydney and North Cape Breton, the heavy snowfall melted under the driving rain which turned everything to slush, but did no further damage.

THE EX-KAISER AND HIS WIFE.
LONDON, Jan. 26. A correspondent of the Yorkshire Evening News writing to his paper from Doorn says "In spite of the elaborate efforts to hide the truth, I have discovered the second marriage of the former German Emperor has been a complete failure, and at present he is living at one of the castles which his wife and her children are living in another. Those near the ex-Kaiser have said he was affected very unfavorably by the operation for gland transference he underwent before his second marriage. His own children have not forgiven him for his second marriage and his step-children avoid him. His means are reduced, and he can command neither service, affection nor companionship." Reuters correspondent, however, denies any split between Wilhelm and his bride, and adds, the couple were seen together this morning when the Kaiser welcomed his brother, Prince Henry who motored down from Kiel. The former Crown Prince also arrived for his father's birthday tomorrow.

FURTHER EXECUTIONS.
DUBLIN, Jan. 26. Patrick Cunningham, William Conroy and Colm Kennedy all of Tuam, were executed last night, King's County, to-day, it was officially announced by the Free State authorities. They were condemned for possessing arms and ammunition, also for theft from residences.

BLAZING SCHOONER ABANDONED.
NEW YORK, Jan. 26. The schooner Clontarf of Lunenburg is afloat at sea and the crew has been rescued by the Empress of Scotland. A radio message from the steamer states the position as latitude 47° 30' north, longitude 53° west, which is dangerous to navigation as the position is due east of Sable Island.

HOPE FOR SETTLEMENT.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26. Members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to-day expressed the view that the exchanges now going on in London between Premier Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer Baldwin and United States Ambassador Harvey, are likely to result in an understanding over the funding of the British debt.

The Imperial Economic Conference.

A REVIEW OF PRESENT TRADE RELATIONS AND WHAT GREAT BRITAIN CAN DO TO STRENGTHEN THEM.

London, Jan. 24.—Reuters Agency has been asked to circulate the following statement to the press of the Empire for simultaneous publication.—In view of the forthcoming Imperial Economic Conference in London it is desirable that we review the present Imperial trade relations and consider what can be accomplished by Great Britain in the immediate future to strengthen them reciprocally. At the 1918 Conference a resolution advocating a preference as to Empire Trade was unanimously adopted by all the Empire representatives including Great Britain. That resolution is:—"That there has arrived upon all empires a common and urgent need for the development of the Imperial resources especially with a view to making the Empire independent of other countries in respect of food supplies, raw materials and essential industries. With these objects in view the Conference favours,—

"Firstly, the principle that each part of the Empire, having due regard to the interests of our Allies should give specially favourable treatment and facilities to the production and manufacture of the other parts of the Empire, and

"Secondly, that arrangements should be devised whereby intending emigrants from the United Kingdom may be induced to settle in countries under the British flag.

During the last twenty-five years the Dominions have generously given a substantial preference to many groups of United Kingdom products and manufacturers, a beginning having been made by the United Kingdom in giving practical effect to the policy embodied in these two Conference proposals—in respect of duties imposed now being given, firstly, on a schedule of duties imposed by Mr. Asquith's Government in 1915, secondly, on the duties included in the budget of 1919 and subsequent years, and, thirdly, in respect of the articles subject to the duty of 33 1/2 per cent under part 1 of the Safeguarding of Industries Act. A preference, though small, was thus given to many groups of articles and we can justly say that the measures actually adopted established the principle to which expression was given at successive Imperial Conferences, viz: that where duties were imposed a reduction should be made for countries within the Empire whether the articles affected are food, raw materials, or manufactures. Naturally the articles affected have not been selected with a view of giving a preference. They have been included in the British Tariff in accordance with the circumstances with which the British Parliament has had to deal at the time. The imposition of the preference thus given is somewhat haphazard from an Imperial viewpoint and not itself calculated to achieve the results which the advocates of the principle have always kept in view. These preferences, however, are sufficient to show that in principle the United Kingdom is now one with other parts of the Empire in regard to it. The Imperial Conference of 1918 made a number of recommendations regarding the development of Empire resources in raw materials. Practical steps have been taken in the same direction as, for example, by the non-ferrous Metals Act, in so far as it has been brought in to successful operation, viz:—in British West Africa by a preferential export duty and in Nigeria and Malaya by a preferential export duty. The same policy underlies the Dyesstuffs Act of 1920 and as regards the use of credits in developing Empire Trade. These recommendations were adopted in 1921 and in 1922, to assist in a revival of trade wherein Empire countries should have a predominant share and by the formation of the Overseas Settlement Committee (now the Empire Settlement Committee) in 1918 and by the Empire Settlement Act of 1921. All these efforts give good hope that much may be done on the Conference's other resolutions; indeed, we may confidently say that under all these different measures practical expression has been given to every principle necessary for carrying out the objects of the resolutions adopted in 1917 and 1918, and doubtless, it may be continued and it were possible to continue quietly and steadily experimenting on the lines laid down, a most extensive scheme for promoting trade within the Empire might ultimately result. But the measures actually adopted are inadequate to carry out the great purpose in view at these Imperial Conferences in time to cope successfully with the great economic crisis through which the world generally is passing at present, so it is therefore of the highest importance that at forthcoming Conference every method should be surveyed in the light of experience, with a view to the mutual adoption of an Imperial economic policy on a scale sufficient to lead to the most rapid development of the Empire and the solution of the grave difficulties with which we are confronted. An Empire development policy has been formed to promote this very object. It has considered the ways on which further progress may be made and the difficulties to be surmounted. The 1917 resolution contemplates preferential arrangements within the Empire in respect of food supplies, raw materials, and manufactures. Taking food supplies firstly it must be remembered that the position within the Empire has changed immensely during the last twenty years. Few people in Britain have been made already self-sufficient as far as production is concerned. The self-sufficiency with regard to wheat is so much a question of stimulating production but diverting to the British market a portion of the Empire wheat now exported to Foreign countries but if the Empire's productivity is increased, as it may be, we can not only supply its own needs but in the Empire have a large surplus to export to foreign countries. About half our meat supplies are home produced, and 25% of the remainder of our beef and 44% of our mutton comes from ex-Empire sources. Hence the question of arrangements for an adequate preference for these and similar productions ought to engage the Imperial Economic Conference's earnest attention as the very large figures involved would show markedly in any satisfactory plan of Empire development but the exact method whereby the Empire food supplies can be directed to the British market is bound up with the agricultural policy adopted for the United Kingdom. If that policy is to include the imposition of duties on imported produce and a preference for other parts of the Empire automatically, following out the agricultural policy of Britain, has been referred by the present Government to two Commissions which have not yet reported. With regard to raw materials the Trade Relations Committee of 1917 and 1918 reviewed the Empire resources and showed that practically every United Kingdom requirement could be satisfied, under proper measures of development, from within the Empire's confines. At the Imperial Conference and since then various schemes for developing these material resources have been considered by the Empire's Governments. Preferential arrangements as regards raw materials must clearly depend not so much upon the imposition of duties, which, generally speaking, is undesirable as regards raw materials but a favourable disposition on the Government's part to support private enterprise and stimulate the adoption of development measures by a proper use of the National credit. Progress, however, in the development of the Empire's raw material supplies must be slow, unless active energetic steps are taken to carry forward schemes of Empire Settlement so as to provide the necessary population, and also to improve communications within the Empire.

FOR THE KIDNEYS

WORLD'S BEST REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM AND BRUISES

The adoption of the Empire Settlement Act provides a legislative basis whereon schemes stimulating the former movement should be actively undertaken. The circumstances of different dominions differ and no cut and dried scheme is possible for all. It is eminently a question wherein the closest consultation and co-operation between Governments and private bodies should take place. As regards communications it should be found possible if the stores of information in Government offices are considered, to choose what we may call key-points within the Empire, as regards roads, railways, harbours, docks and steamship lines, where measures could be taken with the aid and countenance of the respective governments, to link up market centres and localities where the material resources are to be found, in such a way as greatly to stimulate the movement we all have at heart. Measures of this kind should be considered immediately. Every step taken in this direction now would fall into line with the larger schemes of preference which we are certain to see adopted within measurable time. Preferences are already given by Great Britain to numerous groups of manufacturers whereon duties are being imposed but these preferences have not proved any great value to the Empire hitherto, because for the most part, the industries they affected do not exist. If, when the country decides to extend its system of import duties to cover other manufacturers, then the preference in respect of these commodities should automatically follow to all parts of the Empire. In the past controversies the value and importance of this form of preference within the Empire if given by Britain, has been greatly underrated. A most valuable scheme could be adopted to great mutual advantage between the Dominions and Britain and enormously increase their trade. Successful action on these lines means that the people of the United Kingdom must realize that their first duty is the protection of the British market against unfair competition. There cannot be any solution of the Imperial problem unless the heart of the Empire is absolutely sound. The duties imposed heretofore would be a fit basis whereon to grant a manufacturing preference to the rest of the Empire. There would be no risk to British industry involved therein, while industrially there would be an inducement given to the other Empire states to reach their full stage of development. In the mutual growth of economic enterprises, bound together by reciprocal preferences, would be found a guarantee of a constantly extending market for our goods. If the present rate of preference on existing duties is increased and further schemes are worked out upon the lines suggested we shall find a speedy solution to the problem of unemployment which threatens such dangers to the whole community.

Waterfront Robbery.

SHIP'S STATEROOM ENTERED.

Some sneak thief or thieves committed a daring robbery on board S. S. Sable I. on Tuesday night while the ship was berthed at Harvey & Co.'s eastern premises, and before the alarm was raised the miscreant safety got away with everything movable in one of the staterooms. Bedspreads, curtains and other articles were included in the stolen property. The thief left very little clue to work on. and it is understood that this is the second occasion that the ship was visited in this way, the same person or persons evidently being responsible for both robberies. Capt. Murrely has reported the matter to the police, who are now working on the matter.

BUY SUNLIGHT SOAP.

Soaps Which Cost Less are Worth Less.

When you are asked to buy any Soap which is said to be as good as Sunlight Soap, consider—will it sell as good?

Unless you can sell it as easily as you can sell Sunlight, it is certainly not as good as Sunlight from a business point of view.

Soaps which cost less than Sunlight are worth less, otherwise you could buy them for less money. Isn't this so?

Sunlight Soap possibly doesn't show as much apparent profit as soaps which cost less, but Sunlight sells quickly and doesn't eat up interest, doesn't have to be sacrificed.

If you wish to sell some other soap, instead of Sunlight, which everybody knows to be the best, do so; this is a free country, but—if you are a business man you should figure the carrying charges on the other soap and you shouldn't overlook the loss you always make on the tail end of the lot of other soaps.

There is a reason why Sunlight sells best and it is this:—Everybody knows that Sunlight Soap, being ALL PURE SOAP, is therefore always worth its selling price.

Every bar of Sunlight Soap is guaranteed pure Soap. Sunlight never becomes bad, in fact it improves with age and is so pure that it won't injure even a baby's tender skin. Lever's £1000 guarantee of purity proves this assertion.

Every now and then some one buys some other soap, and finds it uncleanable, cuts the price, loses money and causes every other holder of such soap to lose money, but this cannot happen with Sunlight.

Selling Sunlight Soap is the easiest thing any shopkeeper has to do. Keen business men know this and they stick to Sunlight.

The best soap to buy is the soap which sells best. Don't increase your overhead expense by buying soap you cannot sell. Stick to Sunlight and you won't be stuck.

Supreme Court.

RETURN VERDICT "NOT GUILTY."
 The recess yesterday, Chief Justice Herwood continued his charge to the jury which he had begun at 10 a.m. He concluded shortly after 2 p.m. when the jury retired. After a deliberation of upwards of two hours the jury returned and announced that they had found the prisoner not guilty. When the verdict was announced there was applause in the court. The Chief Justice objected to the applause and commanded silence, following which the prisoner was released.

SERIAL AND VAUDEVILLE BILL.

It was the man who really had the handsome ne'er-do-well from the city, or the rough black who ruled his men with a hand? She gave her heart to him and shrank in terror from the But one of these giant uprisings of life that sometimes comes from the crest of a wave was soon the truth. "The Man From Nowhere" runs the gamut of human emotion. Love, hate, fear, covetousness, all enacted before your eyes in most magnificent forest setting of the world. House-Peters is the cast. He gives a dynamic performance in a role that suits his man personality to perfection. Frizelle Brunette is the girl. Forest is the other man. The second episode of "The Hope and Mystery" was both exciting and entertaining, and patrons are waiting to see the next chapter.

McNamara scored the triumph of their engagement their new act, which was one scream from agony to bliss. Clinton appears in black character, and his accent coupled with his appearance does the rest. How He Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Martial St. Laurent Wishes He had Started Taking Dodd's Kidney Pills Sooner.
 St. Anaclet, Que., Jan. 26th (Special).—Your Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me a great amount of good," so states Mr. Martial St. Laurent, who is well known and highly respected here. My headache has disappeared and I am able to carry on with my occupation. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only remedy that has done me so much good.
 Dodd's Kidney Pills are a kidney remedy. They strengthen the kidneys so they can do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills have been used for backaches, diabetes, rheumatism, dropsy, urinary troubles and heart disease. People who use them are satisfied.

Crimes and Criminals.

Their Punishment and Reformation.

(By OBSERVATOR.)
 Article VIII. and Last.

THE SECRET LANGUAGE OF CRIMINALS.

It is surprising how criminals manage to secretly communicate with each other, in spite of all the preventive measures the wardens are able to devise. I can recall instances in which the Prison Surgeon had been sent for on private business and every precaution taken to keep his presence a secret. Yet he had barely reached the Superintendent's office when every one in the building knew of his visit and the officials were deluged with requests for prescriptions, whether needed or not. Thieves, forgers and burglars pass important messages from one to another by means of a spoken and written language known only to themselves. In many details, both forms of communication as to-day have been handed down for centuries. As long as 800 years ago observing sycologists discovered and recorded fragments of strange hieroglyphics used as the written rogues' language. Some of their ancient messages are intelligible to those familiar with the rogues language to-day.

HOW THREE ROGUES WERE CAUGHT BY A MAGISTRATE.

About forty years ago a vagrant chalked a picture on the wall of a lonely chapel. First he drew the picture of a parrot—draw it in a single line without lifting his chalk from the wall. Next he made the picture of a church, then a key, a pyramid of three stones, and lastly a swaddled infant. The people who went to worship on the following Sunday saw the pictures and smiled indolently. Some mischievous schoolboy, they thought, had tried his artistic skill with results that were amusing, but hardly decorative. It so happened that the magistrate of the district, a keen observer of men and things, also passed that way and saw the pictures of parrot, church, key, stones and infant. He looked at them long and intently. When he returned to his desk he ordered the police to arrest any vagabond that might be found on Christmas Day—it was near the festive season—loitering about the chapel. On that day three notorious criminals were taken by the police near the chapel.

THEIR PLAN TO ROB FRUSTRATED.

Some one asked the magistrate referred to the following question: "Why have you ordered the arrest of those men?" "Because they had planned to rob the church on December 26, and had met on Christmas Day to make their plans." "How do you know?" "It is all written on the walls of the chapel. Go there and you will find a picture of a parrot, a church, a key, a heap of stones, and a swaddled infant." The bird, he explained, was the personal symbol of a notorious and very talkative thief, who was known on the road as the "Poll Parrot." The church was obviously a church. The key meant that it was to be "unlocked." The pyramid of three stones was copied from a popular Syrian farmer's almanac in which they were employed as the symbol of St. Stephen, who was stoned to death, and whose martyrdom is celebrated in some of the Christian Churches on December 26. The swaddled infant stood for the Saviour, or, rather, the day of his birth, December 25. Any passing ruffian of the day could read the picture message: "The Poll Parrot intends to break into a church on December 26. He wants help. You will find him near this place on December 25 ready to make all arrangements." Is it any wonder that the magistrate ordered the police to watch the place? That magistrate was a brilliant exception among magistrates!

THE POLICEMAN AND HIS QUALIFICATIONS.

I am an advocate of a high ideal of police service. It has always been my opinion that the police officer should be trained for the profession in much the same manner as physicians, attorneys and other professionals are prepared for their life work. There should be established in every university a chair of criminology, and no person should ever be appointed to do police duty until he has secured from such an institution the necessary degrees to qualify as an officer. As an ideal for the individual policeman this may not be attainable for some years, but it seems to be reasonable enough for commanding police officers, such, for instance, as Inspector General Hutchings or Superintendent O'Neill. Why should not college men volunteer and train themselves for such positions as they do for smaller ranks in the army and navy?

JUDGES AND THE OFFENDERS THEY DEAL WITH.

Let me say here that judges are pre-eminently the persons who should know well the offenders they deal with. We are slowly getting rid of the old doctrine that judges, lawyers and all others with power to affect the destinies of their fellowmen can shut their eyes to the whole department of life and give decisions based on theory and legal abstractions alone. We are breaking down the barriers that surround admissible evidence. The doors of the court room are being opened to the inmost secrets of human nature and we are gradually entering the sphere of what Judge Johnson would regard as "material" and "relevant." No judge to-day is justified in passing sentence until he knows enough about the delinquent before him to be able to predict the probable outcome of any contemplated course of treatment. This is the lesson of the new penology for jurists. It means, among other things, that the diagnosis of the offender should first be made by the court or its adjuncts. Judges should bear in mind that every wrongdoer is irresponsible, until proved responsible, and should spare no effort to determine the mental and environmental causes of delinquency.

WHAT TO EXPECT FROM THE REFORMED OFFENDER.

Of course, in the reformed criminal it would be unreasonable to expect, as I once before observed, impeccable piety or stoical fortitude; enough will have been effected to merit the title of reformation, when the once habitual offender exhibits an average standard of virtue, under an average pressure of temptation. However, as a Chaplain of the Penitentiary recently remarked to me, "before we can hope to understand criminals we must first understand the real meaning of crime." Webster tells us that "crime is the commission of an act which is contrary to public laws." A perfectly good definition, but does it convey its full meaning? I look upon crime as nothing more nor less than misapplied energy—man power gone to waste.

VENGEANCE A COMPELLING MOTIVE.

When a man's weaknesses have manifested themselves to such an extent that his energies become misapplied (and he is caught), we turn him a jaeger and send him away to prison. This procedure completed, we dismiss him from our minds. In so doing, do we not commit an equally grave fault? Do our actions not show that vengeance has been our impelling motive rather than a constructive spirit? Instead of dismissing him from our minds when his weakness become evident, here is where our interest in him should increase. We should start constructive efforts to help him overcome his weakness instead of "hurling him forever in the discard." I grant you that prisons are intended primarily for punishment—this idea as a preventive of crime is most important—but for the prisoners themselves of what avail is punishment, unless it also accomplishes reformation? Do our prisons of to-day reform or do they simply punish?

CHIEF CAUSES OF CRIME.

It is needless to say that idleness and an inordinate passion for amusement are the chief causes of crime here to-day. Quite a large percentage of our prison inmates are persons unwilling to work for a living, but determined to get all the pleasure they can out of life. It never concerns them to know that there are but three modes of earning a livelihood, namely: labor, begging, and theft! The first thing the Almighty said to Adam when he turned our first parent out of the Garden, was "Go to Work!" And from that day to this, the man who has usually kept out or serious trouble has been the man who found his work and stayed with it. Some persons, to be sure, have called this condition a curse. "Wage slavery"—I believe that's the term—has also been placed in the same category. But for just this "curse," however, humanity would still be wearing its leaves and subsisting upon a diet of bread fruit and bananas.

THE JUVENILE DELINQUENTS PROBLEM.

In spite of those spasmodic outbursts of zeal on the part of our "social and welfare workers," very little of a practical nature has yet been done to lessen the number of juvenile delinquents in the community. I have often thought that if as much effort was made to send boys who do not enjoy proper home training or advantages along the road to health, wealth and happiness as is made to arrest, convict and commit, there would be less need of granite walls and steel cages. Youthful offenders rescued and restored by law enforcement are few in comparison with those that the stigma of sentence and imprisonment placed outside the pale of conversion. The young should never be initiated into court procedure for a trivial cause. A kind, watchful observation and care is so much the better way that the inauguration of such a system should be made one of the highest functions of government—prevention is better than punishment.

WEEK-END NOTES.

The Water-front and Shipping of St. John's as I Saw Them Fifty Years Ago.

(I. C. MORRIS.)
 CHAPTER IV.

Besides the fleet of ships there was a flotilla of small boats and skiffs, which not only were useful and necessary to the trade of this time, but which added considerable to the activity and industry of the harbour. Amongst those small boats, the fleet of whale-boats were the prettiest; and as they beat up the harbour in the late August winds, they presented a sight that is now very seldom seen in any part of Newfoundland, and which is almost lost in some parts of the country. The nearest picture to the fleet of whale-boats which fished out of St. John's in the Victorian age, is now to be seen at Petty Harbour. But even at that place there is a change setting in, for although the fishermen still use the whale-boat, they have installed the motor engine; thus avoiding the necessity of sailing and heaving to windward, as was so often done in the past. There were several fleets of these boats in St. John's in its early days; but the largest fleet of the lot sailed from what was then known as Rattus' premises, while another fleet also sailed from Whitens' premises on the South Side; and from King's and Ingston's stages near the entry of the harbour. Howells at Holytown, which place at that time was locally known by the name of Maggoty Cove, had a fine fleet of whale-boats, and a very large business was done at the place. But Rattus' premises were the largest, and they extended from McLoughlin's wharf, almost to the Long Bridge; and they projected out upon the water-front, where the Municipal basin was afterwards built. There are still a few buildings of the Rattus property standing; but to see those buildings properly, one must go down near the freight shed. These houses now look old and are quite out of date, but sixty years ago they were the residence of the proprietors, and also of the master voyagers.

AQUATICS THE VOGUE.

Boat-sailing for pleasure was very much in vogue at that time; and there were scores of pleasure-boats on the harbour every evening; and the class of people who now devote their leisure to motor driving, at that time found similar, and equally enjoyable pastime, in boat-sailing. And then there was also a fleet of row boats, principally owned by clerks, and accountants, and all painted in the most attractive style. These row boats, and sail boats, presented a very pleasing picture as they passed up and down, and to and fro, on the harbour. And to add to the pleasure of the hour an occasional home's company would bring along some minor musical instrument, such as a ceterpina; or an accordion, or a violin, or a fute, and even sometimes the humble tin whistle would be in evidence. Music at all times bath its charms, but it seemed that the strains we heard upon the waters of the harbour, on a calm summer evening, or on a clear moonlight night, were in a class all to themselves, and not soon to be forgotten.

KNOWN AS JOB'S BRIDGE.

Before the ninth of June first, which took place in 1848, the bridge by which the harbour was crossed, was located much further west than the present bridge, and it was a very narrow structure, and as far as I can learn, its real location was where the gasworks are now built. The street known as Patrick Street was then called Gas House Fire Break. It was after that date that the Long Bridge was built, and it was first known as Job's Bridge. The bridge was thus named because it faced the homestead of Mr. Job, who at that time owned the property now occupied and owned by Dr. McLoughlin, and from which Job Street was also named. But Job Street at first was called Job's Lane. Mr. Job's principal business at that time was carried on at the South Side where the premises still stand, and the old home in which Mr. Job at first lived on the South Side premises, is also standing. With the erection of the Long Bridge, the first slice was taken off the harbour of St. John's, and from that date the length of the harbour was usually reckoned from the Bridge to Signal Hill. There was at that date a dredge-boat used on the harbour, and to the little boys she looked a ponderous piece of work and was called by them the mud-boat. After fulfilling her commission, the mud-boat was towed up to the Long Bridge, where, at low tide, she used to ground, and finally foundered, and disappeared bit by bit; and much of her machinery and wheels met the same fate. The dredge-boat was a very quaint sort of a ship. I have never seen a picture of her; but I am sure she would present a sorry sight, if placed by the side of one of our modern boats of the same class.

SOUVENIRS OF YOUTHFUL DAYS.

Amongst the many things which attracted my childish attention on the dredge-boat were her huge wooden blocks. These blocks seemed to me the largest I had ever seen. By a strange coincidence these same blocks came into my possession a quarter of a century ago, and because of their earlier associations, I prized them very much. But one day a good man from the North came into my premises and saw the blocks, and said they seemed to be the very thing he had been looking for, and so I parted with them; and they thus found a resting-place in a northern port, where they were, and no doubt are still used, for the purpose of heaving out schooners, in the place of being docked. Those blocks were very clumsy, and would be only in the way of modern business. The compact iron block has supplanted these huge purchases of the past.

Westinghouse
 For Every Part of the Home
 There is no part of the home where a Westinghouse Electrical Appliance may not be used with more convenience, comfort and satisfaction.
 There is the Cozy Glow for chilly weather; the Warming Pad to replace the inconvenient water bottle; the Curling Iron for the Boudoir, the Percolator, Toaster, Chafing Dish and Waffle Iron for the table; the Iron for the laundry.
 All these are made with the characteristic Westinghouse genius for dependable and economical operation.

Guards Defeat Feildians.

OVER THREE THOUSAND PEOPLE WITNESSED SLENDID EXHIBITION OF HOCKEY. GAME A THRILLER FROM BEGINNING TO END. SCORE 7 TO 4.

Fully three thousand five hundred fans and spectators wended their way to the Prince's Rink last night to witness the much talked of hockey game between the Guards and Feildians, and saw last year's "Champs" go down to defeat by a score of 7 goals to 4, in one of the best played games of hockey seen for some time.

His Excellency the Governor, Sir Wm. Allardice, Lady Allardice, Miss Allardice, and Suite were present. The teams appeared on the ice amidst loud applause, and from the very commencement of play until the final goal, excitement was at fever heat. Cheers after cheer went up, while at times the applause was so deafening that the referee's whistle could not be heard. The game was the fastest of the season, and good combination play was produced by both line-ups, which resulted in counters, hence, the large score recorded over the other teams had a large bearing on the championship, and as a result of the game, the Guards are now perched at the top of the ladder, in the first round.

THE GAME.

Excitement was intense when the puck was dropped into play. The Guards from the face-off worked the rubber into the Feildian territory, and Coultas paid a visit to Hunt. The disc was soon gobbled up by the college forwards who lost to Robertson, who made a good attempt to score. Rendell uncorked one of his famous runs, but he was soon brought to earth by the Guards defence, and did not get an opportunity to try Voisey. Munn made a very pretty dash by clever stick-handling, but could not get inside of the Feildian defence. Clouston availed of an opening a moment later, but was repulsed by Tait who was putting up a stellar game. The play was confined to mid rink for a brief period, when Munn broke away by his lonesome and successfully lodged the puck behind Hunt, scoring No. 1 for the Guards, amidst wild excitement. Six minutes after the goal had hardly passed when Tait collided with Herder in the Guards territory, and was compelled to leave the ice owing to a slight injury to his knee. Harold Rendell replaced him on the defence. The puck was soon brought into play, when Tommy Pays, by a clever piece of stick work dashed through the Guards defence and lodged the rubber up in the corner of the net behind Voisey, equalizing the score. The cheers that followed were loud for some minutes and the fastest kind of hockey was now being witnessed. Both forwards got in some very clever work, by good combination play, while two individual rushes by Munn and Robertson of the Guards almost resulted in counters. Hunt was playing to form, and found no trouble in casting the hot shots aside. Bert Tait appeared on the ice at this juncture and felt little the worse for the slight injury received. Tait happened to come to the Feildian's rescue just in time, because Winter and Pays found the race as set up very strenuous. Alderice and Jerrett replaced the regulars. The puck was travelling up and down the ice at a fast clip, with honors about evenly divided, while the roosters of both teams joined heartily in encouraging the players on. Both goal keepers were given a busy period. In one of the onslaughts, Alderice made a good attempt to score, but was frustrated by Herder, who was playing a good back checking game. Jerrett missed the goal by six minutes and a moment later, while Ewing had the same ill luck immediately after. Ralph Herder and Munn made a pretty run by a combined effort, only to fall down before the Feildian defence. Herder was sent to the penalty box to recuperate. The puck was being kept in the Feildian territory and a stinging shot from the left board all but beat "Nix" Rendell then broke away at a very fast clip, easily side-tracked the Guard forward line, and by a well directed shot from outside of the Guards defence, he sent a scorcher to Voisey, scoring No. 2 for the Feildians sixteen minutes after play. Play was of a give and take nature for the balance of the period. The bell sounded; Feildians 2 goals; Guards 1.

2ND PERIOD.

At the face-off a lively pace was set and Errol Munn, who was starring for the Guards made things lively for his opponents, stick-handling through Feildian players only to lose out to Hunt. Play was confined to mid-rink for a brief period, while at intervals the Feildian forwards broke away, only to lose to the Guards defence. The Feildian forwards by one of their brilliant attacks were rewarded five minutes after the puck had been dropped into play, when Bert Tait took control of the rubber in company with Tommy Pays, both players by clever stick-handling and pretty passes, swept the rink, and nearing the Guard danger zone, Pays, who had control of the puck, safely eluded the Guards defence, and on a well placed pass to Tait in front of the goal, the latter player safely lodged the rubber behind Voisey, recording No. 3 for the Feildians. The applause that followed was deafening for some minutes. The play was indeed the prettiest piece of work witnessed so far in the series, and both players were cheered by their supporters to the echo. The Guards, quite undaunted by the two goal lead against them stuck to their guns and were rewarded a half minute later when Errol Munn recovered the rubber near the north side of the rink, and making a good run down the left boards, sent Hunt a beauty from the side in the far off corner of the net, which proved too much for "Nixie," scoring No. 2 for the Guards. Excitement reigned supreme, and fast hockey was being played. Ewing, Pays, and Winter made a determined attack on their opponents goal, when Winter sent two stinging shots to Voisey, which he just barely saved, while Pays by a well directed shot grazed the post by inches. Robertson cleared the rubber out of danger, and passing the rubber to Munn near centre ice, the latter player sailed off by his lonesome down the boards, and taking a well directed shot at the opportune time, landed the puck behind Hunt, equalizing the score. Robertson was benching for 2 minutes. Rendell and Pays for the light and dark blue paid Voisey a visit, but the Guards goalie outgassed their shots this time. Clouston lost a splendid chance to score on Munn's rebound of "Nixie's" pads a moment later. Munn and Herder followed the play into the Feildian camp, but Hunt was unbeatable. The Feildian goalie was in excellent form, and saved several very difficult shots. At this juncture the Guards appeared to be getting the best of play. Paterson loomed up very prominently in a clever dash the length of the rink, 14 minutes after play opened, and in company with Clouston, a very fine piece of combination play was displayed. Paterson's head work resulted in the Guard's increasing their score to four goals, when he made a pretty pass to Clouston from inside of the Feildian defence, and the latter player, by a well directed shot, landed the puck in the net, scoring No. 4 for the Guards. The Feildians pressed hard, and Pays, on a pass from Ewing equalized the score three minutes later. The Feildians made several determined attacks on their opponents goal, but the back-checking by Coultas and Herder frustrated all attempts in their opponents doing any further scoring. In the last three minutes of the period the Guard backed up, when Paterson, Herder, and Coultas each had tries on Hunt, but without success. Ralph Herder again decorated the penalty box before the period closed. Score, Guards, 4 goals; Feildians 4.

3RD PERIOD.

The final half was hardly in progress when Ewing was ruled off for tripping. The Guards put new vigor into their play right from the very outset of play, and the Feildian defence was given a very busy time for a few minutes holding down their opponents furious attacks. Robertson made a pretty run, but was foiled in his attempt to score. Paterson also made an individual effort, the puck missing the goal by inches. Shortly after Clouston and Herder formed an attack, and a good run was made only to be stopped by Rendell and Tait. Hunt cleared the rubber in fine style. Tait from behind his own goal in company with Pays combined nicely down the tenth of the rink, when a mix-up occurred in front of the Guards goal, and Paterson cleared the rubber out of danger. Several dashing plays were made by both forward lines. The Guards increased their score after eleven minutes of play, when Herder, in a mix-up forty yards out from the Feildian goal, took the rubber, and with a well directed shot, caught Hunt fast asleep scoring No. 5 for the Guards. Pays tried to mix matters a little too freely a moment later, when he was given a breathing spell for two minutes. Duke Winter and Ewing made several attempts to score but without success. The Guards who were setting up a very fast pace, gave the Feildians all they could do to hold them from increasing their score. Winter, back-checked well, and was instrumental in stopping Munn and Clouston from getting in to close quarters. Jerrett now replaced Winter. Robertson and Clouston made the prettiest play of the evening by a combined effort, when they both swept the rink side by side, Robbie made a very neat pass to Clouston, who beat Hunt at very close range, giving the Guards a two goal lead. The Feildians with but a few minutes to go appeared to be a beaten team. The Guards kept the pace up to the very last. Munn was in his element and was playing a great game, and sent some hot shot to Hunt. Many bumps were exchanged and players were beginning to fall all over the ice. Pays and Herder met together in a head-on collision and were knocked out for a minute. When the game was continued Clouston lost a splendid chance to score, missing a beautiful pass in front of an open goal. Munn now took control, and after a splendid exhibition of hockey, uncorked one of his old time dashes, when he eluded every Feildian player and passed to Clouston who sent a beauty past Hunt recording No. 7 for his team. Game over. Guards 7 goals; Feildians 4.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

THEIR OWN MEDICINE. LONDON, Jan. 27. A clash between French troops and the inhabitants of Düsseldorf, yesterday, is described in a despatch. The inhabitants are said to have equipped with the soldiers, capturing several weapons. Reuter's Essen correspondent reports that the French notified the Burgomaster of Essen that as the outcome of Thursday's disorders, troops had been ordered to fire upon any assembly exceeding 200 persons.

VALUABLE PAINTING STOLEN. BOSTON, Jan. 27. Rare old paintings, valued at five hundred thousand dollars, including De Vinci's Madonna, and Two Children, were stolen from the home of Umberto Bellini, a Boston Artist, a few days ago, the police revealed yesterday, when they let it be known that a nation wide search for the thief is going on.

JIM LARKIN RELEASED. DUBLIN, Jan. 27. James Larkin, Irish Revolutionary Labor leader, pardoned from Sing Sing by Governor Smith on Jan. 17th, is leaving for home soon, according to a message received here by his wife. Political circles here are awaiting his return with great interest, believing he may change the entire aspect of the Irish Labor situation.

PERISHED IN FLAMES. TAMPIOO, Jan. 27. Ten members of the crew of the Mexican Eagle Oil Company's steamer San Leonardo are missing and nineteen others are suffering from burns, as a consequence of the fire which destroyed the tanker and burned the Company's wharf on the lower Pango River last night.

TO PREVENT WEEK-END MEETINGS. MUNICH, Jan. 27. Bavaria is under a modified form of martial law to-day, as a means of preventing week-end meetings of National Socialists and Fascists.

GIANT LINER. NEW YORK, Jan. 27. The Leviathan, largest ship flying the American flag, and the second largest in the service has been allocated to United States lines, and will go to the New York-Southampton run next June. She is now being conditioned at Newport News, at an approximate cost of six million dollars.

A BRUTAL SHIPMASTER. NEW YORK, Jan. 27. The trial opened yesterday of Capt. Charles H. Miles, of United States Shipping Board Steamer Van Buren, charged with having beaten to death H. G. Baxter, a ship's steward. Passengers testified against the Captain and a member of the crew swore he saw him strike the Steward several times, while the latter was chained to a stanchion after being taken from hospital and put in irons, charged with playing sick. That night the Steward died, and was thrown overboard next day. The trial adjourned until Monday.

STIFFENING UP. DUESSELDORF, Jan. 27. The strengthening of German resistance is expected by Franco as the aftermath of yesterday's convention of Ruhr Police Shifts, Burgomasters and State officials, at which it is reported, they discussed a means of parrying the occupation. The French, it is understood, are ready for any eventually, and have this city practically under martial law. Public places are all closed at ten o'clock, and French soldiers walk the beats of German police.

TURNED-OVER TO FRENCH. COBLENZ, Jan. 27. The Coblenz area of the occupation of Germany, held by United States troops since the establishment of the Allied watch on the Rhine, was turned over to the French at noon to-day.

Dance in C.C.C. Hall. The invitation dance, kindly arranged by Misses Noonan and Wiseman, will be held in the C.C.C. Hall next Monday evening, Jan. 29th. The ladies in charge are preparing a sumptuous repast, for the occasion, and everyone can feel assured that nothing will be left undone in this department by the lady workers. An excellent programme has been prepared, and with the Majestic Dance Orchestra in attendance the success of the affair can be readily realized. The proceeds go towards Beilvidere Orphanage.

Bunker on Fire. SEIGNEUR AGAIN IN TROUBLE. Last evening the coal in No. 3 bunker of S.S. Canadian Seigneur took fire, and the crew were obliged to use a hose to quench the blaze. The ship was lying at the Dock pier after receiving repairs and this morning was moved out in the stream opposite the Furness Wharf premises. The coal is still smouldering and it is expected that it will have to be discharged. There are about 2,000 tons of coal in the bunker.

Geo. Allan England And Newfoundland.

The appended has been clipped from the columns of the Boston Traveler, with a request for reproduction in the Telegram. The first letter is covered by Mr. England himself, who quite possibly has enlarged somewhat on the spelling and general construction. The second is more mild in terms, but none the less censorious, and quite obviously Mr. England has not made any comment upon it. Both communications should be read with rather more than ordinary interest, representing as they do the viewpoint of men absolutely different in makeup, but agreeing on the main points in defence of Newfoundland.

ABOUT ANNEXING NEWFOUNDLAND. To the Editor of the Boston Traveler. Dear Sir,—In regard to my modest proposal that Newfoundland should be annexed to the United States, I am in receipt of the following anonymous letter:

"Mr. England, or you ought to be called Ireland or Cork. In reading the Traveler this morning I saw what you are saying about Newfoundland. Now the first thing, you are a liar. Newfoundland does not want to be any part of the United States as she is very much English and will stay so for a while longer and Ireland will be under English rule as long as the world reigns, now don't forget it, and you better not show your Irish face down there again. England fought for you and the rest of the trash like you for four years and they don't want America to pay her debts. "Yes, Newfoundland is rich and has mines and other things the United States of America would like to have, but they can't get it, not by a darn sight, and about their schools. No, they don't want public schools. They have their own, so one sect can't mix with the other and the Bible is in the schools. "And about the English language, you don't even talk it in the U.S.A. The half is only slang such as you use for you and want for want and raver for raw. Any fool can talk that slang, and they don't eat founders or dogs, either. "Now there are lots of things I can say, but I have an important engagement and can't waste any more time talking to a jackass like you. HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland." I am sorry the scholarly gentleman who so elegantly expresses his sentiments omits to sign his name. It would be a pleasure to know to whom I owe the honor of so signal a proof that Newfoundland needs, above all things, a good, up-to-date public school system.

Yours sincerely, GEO. ALLAN ENGLAND. Brookline. NEWFOUNDLAND LOYAL TO EMPIRE. To the Editor of The Traveler: I regret that "Harbor Grace" resorted to personalities, but he really expresses the feelings of 99 per cent. of Newfoundlanders. They take great pride in the fact that theirs is the oldest British colony and are so proud of being self-governed that they declined the suggestion of federation with Canada, which, at that time, would have been to Newfoundland's advantage. I admit the problem of education is a serious one, but the fact that there are no large settlements along the coast makes it hard and it would be hardly feasible to establish schools in settlements containing four or five families. You will, undoubtedly, find similar conditions in the rural districts of this country. St. John's has excellent schools, all sectarian. It is to be regretted that education is not so advanced as in other parts of the world. I wrote Mr. Topp in regard to his article, which was misleading and gave a decidedly wrong impression of the attitude of Newfoundlanders toward annexation by this country, and I'm afraid that if Mr. England expressed sentiments derogatory to Great Britain in Newfoundland he would have a decidedly warm time. Newfoundland is perfectly contented to remain British; any sentiment in favor of annexation to the United States has to be looked for with a microscope. Having spent nearly five years on the east and west coasts of Newfoundland, I know whereof I speak. I may also add that I married a Newfoundland. Newfoundlanders are more British than the Canadians, which is saying a lot. Let me explain that I am not a Newfoundlandier but an American citizen and totally unbiased, but facts are facts. Yours truly, D. McD. MARTIN. Rockport, Mass.

Rosalind Outward.

S.S. Rosalind sailed to-day for Halifax and New York taking the following additional passengers:—I. F. Perrin, Ron. K. Kennedy, Miss W. Woodfine, Mrs. T. H. Carter, Miss Carter, W. E. White, Mrs. W. B. Comerford, Miss Mary Comerford, R. Howes, Rev. Fr. McGrath, H. Andrews and sixty second class including 42 laborers for Bermuda.

Kyle Due Monday.

TAKING MAILS AND PASSENGERS. S. S. Kyle is expected to arrive at Port aux Basques this evening, and is not due to arrive at St. John's until early Monday morning. The ship is scheduled to leave this port 3 p.m. on the 29th, taking mails and passengers for points in Canada and United States, as well as United Kingdom.

Rev. Canon Cody And The "Cop."

Here is a story they are telling in Canada of the Hon. and Rev. Canon H. J. Cody, D.D., D.C.L., Rector of St. Paul's, Toronto, great preacher, representative Canadian and Imperialist. Canon Cody's name and fame are well known in St. John's, and it was largely upon his recommendation that the Rev. E. C. Earp—who was at one time his Curate—was nominated Rector of St. Thomas's Church in this city. Some call Canon Cody Low Church; others Evangelical. One called him Father, and the laughter has not died down yet. It all happened during his visit recently to New York. The scene was Fifth Avenue. "As hard as you can," pleaded Dr. Cody, as he jumped into one of those battered yellow taxis, thinking only of the appointment for which he was late. There was a roar, wind whistling by as from an aeroplane propeller, eerie tilting at perilous angles, then a confused hubbub, shrill whistle, and a loud Irish voice—"Hi, there, you're pinched for speeding." Out of the window appeared Canon Cody's clean shaven face, suffused with one of his blindest smiles. The thunderstorm cleared from the big Irish face of the traffic cop. Graciousness appeared as if by a miracle. "I beg pardon, Father. Go ahead," he whispered, "but be careful; there's a Protestant cop at the next corner."

There Was no Frame-up.

Paris, January 15.—All those accused in connection with the alleged "frame-up" of the championship match between Battling Siki and Georges Carpentier are declared innocent in a report submitted to the French Boxing Federation yesterday, by a committee which has been investigating the charges. The committee is absolutely convinced that the match on September 24, 1922, was not preceded by an understanding, but was sincerely fought out. The report declared that practically all the talk of a "frame-up" between Carpentier and Siki could be traced to statements reported to have been made by a boxer named Gaillard, which Gaillard formerly denied in testifying. The committee laid stress on Siki's unwillingness to testify before it. It twice saw the films—once when two deaf mutes were present, and once when three deaf mutes who were expert readers of the lip. The few words the lip readers were able to decipher as having been spoken, after many projections of the film at varying speeds, confirmed that Francois Descamps, Carpentier's manager, at the ringside only encouraged Carpentier.

When Mfd. Shopkeepers Sell Sugar in Packages. They avoid the loss of weight which occurs when barrels are in transit from the Refinery. They get what they pay for and pay only for what they get. They avoid the loss which occurs when 8 pounds are sold for the price of seven. They have only to compare the price they buy at with the price they sell for, to figure their profit. They have the satisfaction of knowing that the probability of leaks is eliminated. They are following the example of Canadian and American shopkeepers who prefer to handle sugar in packages. They are operating with less work instead of guess work. They know what they're doing. They can utilize their clerks' spare time in safeguarding perishable goods and in moving empties out of the way. Last, but not least, they make more profit than when retailing sugar out of a barrel. Jan. 26, 23.

PLEASANT RECOLLECTIONS. thoughts often go back to Cape where, during my thirty-odd of residence, I thoroughly en- of the funny side of life; and in of the changes that have come of a sad and serious nature, still laugh heartily when I re- circumstances in which I often at myself. I particularly enjoy Gaelic friends, of whom I had. They had a decided sense of and their own deeply inter- way of expressing it. Just recall a beautiful summer day, I was visiting at the upper end parish. Some men were get- ready to paint a large island that spanned the Myra River, had finished painting another bridge further up the river, and were sitting on a log by the of the river having their dinner. Angus "came along" and an exchange of "Kemorachos" were being sung. "How are you well, as the funniest man that conversation would be. I went to, with their permission, I with them. Angus opened the session with the remark: "An was up to Grand Myra, boys." "ye" replied one of the men, was known as Donald. "We had time, too. Lots of music and gits up there." One of the other walked at Angus, and said to "Donald, tell Angus about the time in Rory's barn. A week 'Tea do," said Angus; and the little hesitation Donald be-

CRAMPS

Miss Marie Rasmussen of Nordlandet, Kristiansund, Norway, writes as follows: "I sometimes suffer terrible pain from cramps in the hands and feet, and have found nothing that gives me more relief than Sloan's Liniment. It is certainly a wonderful preparation. Every day brings added testimony praising the wonderful Sloan's Liniment."

SLOAN'S LINIMENT. SOLD BY T. MCMURDO, CO., LTD.

1. A sheet, a handful (Enter Bassiolo with servants with rushes). "Come, strew this room . . . lay me/ten thus, In fine, smooth thraves; look you, sir, thus in thraves." (Chapman, Gentleman Usher). "His belt was made of myrtle leaves Plaited in small curious thraves." (Sir J. Meunier-Arbers Enr. Garnor). Specifically 2. Twenty-four sheaves of grain set up in the field, forming two stocks, or shocks of twelve sheaves each. "As I have thought a thrave of this three piles, In what wode thei wozen and where that that grew." (Piers Plowman). "I doubt na, whyles, but thou may thieve; What then? poor beastie, thou maun live; A daimen icker in a thrave "Sa sma' request; (Burns—To a Mouse). 3. The number of two dozens hence an indefinite number; a considerable number. "He sends forth thraves of ballads to the sale." (Sp. Hall, Satire IV). "His jolly friends, who hither come in thraves to frolic with him, and make cheer." (B. Johnson—Sad Shepherd). The last meaning two dozen would seem to be the sense in which it is employed in Mr. Pittman's Arithmetic and evidently it was not used as we say "herd 'drove' flock" etc. Its synonyms in Icelandic or Norse are three; Danish, trave; Swedish, (dis- lect) trave; number of sheaves; compare few, train—a pile of wood; perhaps originally a handful; compare Latin, manipulus—a sheaf; literally 'a handful'.

MISSIONARY SERVICE AT ST. PAUL'S, TRINITY.

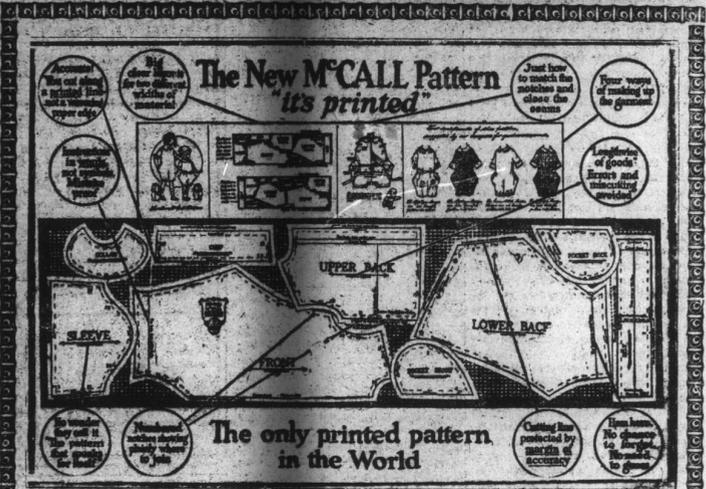

The service at St. Paul's, Trinity, on Sunday evening last, was deeply interesting to the large congregation and to the clergy who conducted it. It was a Special Missionary Service. The professional hymn: "Stand up! Stand up! for Jesus!" was heartily sung, as the three priests, three lay readers, and a chorister, all robed in Casock and Surplice, walked from the vestry down the south aisle and up the nave to their places in the Chancel. The rector then standing at the Chancel steps, called the newly elected officers for the year to come forward. They did so, and were installed into office by the rector.

THE TOWER CLOCK.

Day after day the clock in the tower strikes on its resonant bell the hour. Telling the throngs in the city. Once again its ten o'clock! Day after day, and the crowds pass. Till they and another hour have gone. I hear it first as an eager lad. The largest clock which the city had. And it rang the hour in the self-same way. That it rings it out for the town to-day. And many who heard it then have gone. Gone like the days that have journeyed on. Mightily and many the throngs have grown. Many the changes the town has known. But the old clock still in its tower stands. Telling the hour with its silent hands. And the great pass by and they come as of yore. But the bell still rings as it did of yore. And I think to-day as I hear it ring That the fame men-crave is a fleeting thing. Unchanged, unswayed by the pomp of men's praise. The old clock high in its tower stays, Sounding the hours for the great and the low. As it sounded them in the long ago. So when the throngs that are here pass by Lessons by Correspondence!

A number of teachers and private students are desirous of obtaining help in their studies and are unable to secure it near their homes. I have, therefore, organized courses of study (each course consisting of 20 lessons) in the subjects named below, the work being done by correspondence. Twenty notes of lessons are provided for each student, 20 tests are likewise provided and the students' answers are carefully reviewed and corrected. Each student has the privilege of asking for any information or help needed in connection with the course. The fee for each course is $12.00 and include text books, mathematical instruments (where required), blank exercise books for the answering of the tests; the fee is, in fact, inclusive. Each lesson is set for a week's work and will occupy about five hours a week of the time of the average student. Students cannot take Course 2 unless they are masters of Course 1, nor Course 3 unless they are masters of Course 2. COURSES: 1. Beginners' Latin. 2. Preliminary Grade Latin. 3. Intermediate Grade Latin. 4. Beginners' French. 5. Preliminary Grade French. 6. Intermediate Grade French. 7. Beginners' Geometry. 8. Preliminary Grade Geometry. 9. Intermediate Grade Geometry.

Any course can be begun at any time. Those who need help for the June examinations or for entering College in September should begin at once. Some of these courses may be helpful to busy teachers who have classes in them. Applicants should state precisely what their knowledge of their chosen subject is and forward the fee with the application, when the lessons will be begun at once. DR. HARD PIMPLES ALL OVER FACE

Itched and Burned, Lost Sleep, Cuticura Heals. "I had pimples and blackheads all over my face. The pimples were hard and quite large, and the itching and burning were so severe that I could not help scratching them. I was very restless and lost many nights' sleep. I tried different remedies without success. Seeing an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment I sent for a free sample which I used with success. I purchased more and after using three cakes of Soap and two boxes of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Sadie Dolan, 363 Admiral St., Providence, R. I., Aug. 11, 1921. Use Cuticura for all toilet purposes. Beware of cheap imitations. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are made in the U.S.A. by Cuticura Laboratories, Lowell, Mass.

The finely plaited yoke, gathered in at the neck and bound with self-material is an important note of the mode. An afternoon taffeur made of pink and gray velours de Spynne is trimmed elaborately with gray monkey.

Dainty dance frocks of changeable chiffon taffeta, have berthas of lace falling from their low cut shoulders. The turban worn at luncheon and tea has a plain metal crown and a brim of braided stuffed tubing of the metallic cloth.

It Takes a Doctor to Sell Fish.

You'll think this is a queer statement but nevertheless the doctor and the priest are the best salesmen the fish trade ever had. The latter has done his work to a degree that can hardly be improved upon in the various religious ordinances which decree that fish be the piece de resistance of a certain fast, feast and holy days; but the doctor is a salesman who is in the position to increase fish consumption by leaps and bounds if we have only the common sense enough to employ him.

They say that America is a nation of dyspeptics. We don't believe that is a fact, but we are people who nurse our favorite ailments, real or imaginary, and the most of these disabilities seem to center around the stomach. You can take a husky longshoreman with a digestion capable of assimilating wire nails and he will confide in you that his interior apparatus is not all that it should be and that he is in the habit of taking Danon's Remedy or Tanlac to straighten it up. We have been shipmates with sailors and fishermen, radiantly healthy humans, every man jack of whom packed a bottle of somebody's remedy or a box of pills to alleviate some pet ailment. And the American people as a whole patronize the drug store more than any people on earth.

This national trait is good for the medical profession. Our doctors know this falling, and the manufacturers of patent medicines know it, too. Any specific nostrum, or quick dope that is said to possess the virtue of toning up the system or stimulating the digestion will sell to American public with judicious advertising. And so firm is our belief in what the doctor tells us that if he prescribed that we eat a certain kind of imported mud for that sluggish liver, we would eat the mud with relish in the belief that it was doing us good.

Now we are not reflecting for one moment on the integrity of the medical profession. We are merely paying a tribute to them in the sublime faith we have in their advice: What they say goes. And in the matter of diet, an eminent medico need only recommend a certain food or drink as a muscle or nerve builder, and whether it is palatable or not, we will take the stuff gladly and devote ourselves that "day by day, in every way, we are getting better and better."

We have in mind the popularity of certain breakfast foods—cereals chock full of proteins and vitamins which taste like chopped alfalfa—but we throw them into us with gusto because our ailing systems will benefit thereby. We drink various nauseating mineral waters reeking with salt and sulphur because they are good for the kidneys, and coffee substitutes which malign the good name of coffee. We chew raisins for the iron they are said to contain and cakes of yeast for the swarms of pep-producing vitamins which will introduce into our physical make-up. Our women-folk will beautify their facial maps with massages of clay and mud—skin foods they call them—and all these things are done because the manufacturers are keen students of human nature and are selling and advertising their product on the "health appeal."

This "health appeal" is the national selling bunk nowadays. You can have the people eating pine sawdust and peanut shells if you loudly advertise the fact that they contain those proteins and other things that make for "red-blooded vitality and radiant health." The age of taste and palatability is gone. We choose our foods according to their protein and vitamin contents.

All of which brings us to the matter of ringing in the doctor as a star fish salesman. The experience of many years leads us to the conclusion that the sale and increased consumption of fish is not going to be made on the basis of palatability or economy. There are millions of people who do not like the taste of fish—they haven't acquired it, and there are millions of housewives who can't see fish as being cheaper than meat.

The average person could eat fish seven times a week to better physical advantage to themselves, but the trouble is that they don't know it. And we, the fish trade of America, are the ones responsible. We haven't advertised our product in the right way.

Let us begin and make use of the doctor as a salesman. Advertise his opinions and sell our product on the "health appeal." In fish we have a real health food—a product of clean cold water, uncontaminated, highly nutritious, easily digestible, rich in proteins, capable of being prepared in a hundred palatable forms and reasonable in price. Eat more fish for your health's sake! Shout it from the house-tops and watch the business grow.—N.Y. Fishing Gazette.

A Peace Precedent.

The years immediately succeeding a prolonged war, as to-day, teaches inevitably, are a season of unrest and unreason. So it was after 1815, when the triumph of the nation was succeeded by a reaction of internal discontent and distress. Just as now, trade languished from the exhaustion of the Continental peoples and their consequent inability to buy our wares: The effect of the Corn Laws on the price of food was an additional source of complaint, and the agitation for Parliamentary Reform, which was espoused as the panacea for all the national ills, began to assume threatening forms. Many clubs, called Hampden Clubs, sprang up all over the country, their demands including annual parliaments and universal suffrage, and their object, according to a report of a secret committee of the House of Commons, falling little short of revolution. In the December of 1816, indeed, dangerous riots had taken place in the Spa Fields, and political writers on the popular side became bold and scurrilous in their attacks upon authority. Moreover, the Prince Regent was most unpopular, and on January 28th, 1817, the windows of his State carriage were smashed by volleys of stones as he returned from the opening of Parliament. Sedition, it is true, became less rampant as trade became more active and employment more regular. But the demand for Reform persisted and constituted an ever-growing menace to internal tranquillity, until after the death of George IV. the agitation reached its height with the introduction of the Reform Bill and the subsequent riots at Bristol and elsewhere. However, with the ultimate passage of the Bill in 1831, a New World, it was supposed, came in. But, as we also know, New Worlds are apt to be disappointing.

Death of "Bluff" King Hal.

On January 25, 1847, died King Henry VIII.—"Bluff King Hal"—who had endeared himself to the majority of his subjects by the very virtues which alienated the minority. The extraordinary thing to be noted in the ascendancy which he had over the mind, the will, almost the conscience, of the best and greatest men. It must be remembered that he was cultivated and learned, many sided in his interests and accomplishments, and had thought deeply on the stirring questions of his day. He was, in fact, a man of exceptional abilities; abilities which were predominantly practical. He had a clear and fixed idea of what was the wisest policy to adopt; and this view he forced through to the end, often with violence and fraud, with greed or cruelty. The moralist, the religious biographer, the constitutional lawyer, will condemn him. Yet, in the general verdict of history it must be allowed that much that he did was necessary, much was good, and out of the evil itself came goodness in the final issue. He must be pronounced the strongest, ablest, and the most individual personality among all English Kings. Breaking completely away from Rome, Henry became "Protector and Supreme Head of the Church and Clergy of England," while during his reign Wales was incorporated with England, and Ireland raised from a lordship to a kingdom.

New South Wales Founded.

On the 27th January, 1788, the Colony of New South Wales was founded and "Botany Bay," so called by Sir Joseph Banks and Dr. Solander, was "settled" by 1080 persons, most of whom were convicts. The Blue Mountains proved an insurmountable obstacle to a penetration to the interior of New South Wales until the year 1813, when an exploration was made by Hamilton, Hall, Sturt and Mitchell. In 1861 gold was discovered and the population of New South Wales quickly doubled. The first nugget was discovered at Hargreaves, with a weight of little over 1 lb. Probably the largest mass of gold ever found was obtained at Hill End in 1872. The specimen was 4 ft. 9 in. high, 2 ft. 9 in. wide and about 4 in. thick. An offer of £13,000 was refused for the specimen. The total yield of gold from New South Wales from 1851 to 1913 was £2,548,187. In the office, responsible Government was granted to all the Colonies, and Victoria was separated from New South Wales in 1851, Tasmania, previously known as Van Diemens Land, and for 22 years a dependency of New South Wales, became independent in 1825. On January 1st, 1901, all the Colonies became united as the "Commonwealth of Australia," and the federal capital, which is now being built, is in New South Wales, and will be called "Canberra." The population of New South Wales on the 31st December, 1919, was 2,009,631, whereas in the year 1850 the total white population of the whole of Australia was only 5,317. Sydney, the capital of New South Wales, is one of the greatest ports of the world, the tonnage entered for 1919 being 5,614,968, compared with London's 9,448,892 tons.

The idea that New South Wales has a very hot climate is not correct. The mean temperature of Sydney is 71 degrees as against London's 61 degrees, Paris 63 degrees, New York 72 degrees. The highest record of heat in Sydney is 108 degrees, London 100 degrees. The lowest, Sydney 35 degrees, London 36 degrees, so really there is not much in it.

Newfoundland Schools.

(From the Sentinel, Toronto.) Of all the systems of education that have come under the observation of The Sentinel, that which prevails in Newfoundland is the least calculated to secure efficiency and national unity. We will probably offend some of our friends in the ancient colony by saying so. It is a system by which the moneys collected and paid out for education are distributed among five different denominations so that each may have its own schools. These are Anglican schools, Methodist schools, Presbyterian schools, Salvation Army schools and Roman Catholic schools. Five sets of schools for a quarter of a million people. Each denomination has its superintendent of education and the necessary staff of assistants instead of one administrative body, as would be the case if a Public School system existed.

There is no reason that we can think of why all the children in Newfoundland could not be educated together. Greater efficiency could be secured, by paying higher salaries to our teachers and improving the equipment of the schools. Substantial economies would be effected by having one administrative staff instead of five. Why a community of 250,000 people should split up in this fashion to educate their children is hard for anybody living in Canada to understand.

The late William Ashbourne, of Twillingate, was an energetic advocate of a united educational system for Newfoundland. His death will be a loss to the movement. It is to be hoped some other able and patriotic citizen of Newfoundland will take his place as the leader for educational reform and bring the ancient colony into harmony with modern ideas in the control and management of primary schools.

(We have also in addition a department of Education, with all its extra-expensive ramifications, which, however, does not improve matters one whit.—Editor Telegram.)

W.V.A. Annual Meeting

President's Address and Report of Secretary.

EMPLOYMENT.
The Association has not evaded the heavy burden resulting from unemployment. Through representation before the Government they have co-operated with us in a fair measure in securing relief work so that as many ex-Servicemen as possible may be employed. In this connection it should be stated that the Secretary of the Bureau, Mr. John's, has treated requests from the Government with the utmost consideration and while some men have not been eventually placed, it is well to state here, however, that the fact is, that there are few ex-Servicemen who do not make an effort to secure employment even when same is obtained in some cases, satisfactory services. This is the ex-Servicemen who have a "knock" on the Secretary's door on all occasions upon the introduction to applications in number of cases in securing employment. This has entailed a large amount of work. The difficulty in assisting out-of-work ex-Servicemen has not met with success due to the fact that work was in progress in their vicinity.

REWARD APPOINTMENTS.
Satisfaction existing among the men during the past year as to appointments to the positions called for in the most recent part of this Association. After careful consideration we are of opinion that the positions are not being considered which they should be. It is apparently a recommendation to Department to have political preferences have served one's country. The positions were appointed in the Assembly early last year and a statement covering the appointments to the Civil Service and also the number of ex-Servicemen appointed. This however, arrived when in the interest of the ex-Servicemen became imperative that the Government of a Civil Service Commission be made.

This Commission should have an equal representation of ex-Servicemen on its personnel. Positions vacant in the Civil Service should be announced and the positions awarded to the most competent, the ex-Servicemen to be placed in the order of merit above all applicants with equal qualifications. A procedure of this kind would only be just and right and ex-Servicemen would be within their province in asking for such a Commission. Dissatisfaction, rancours and patronage would then be eliminated and the promises redeemed that the men who gave their services to the Empire would be rewarded to the full extent of the Government's ability to do so.

GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS.
It has been brought to our notice that few ex-Servicemen business men's tenders for Government contracts have met with success. On the contrary the system of patronage has again been upheld and contractors in some cases, who have never contributed to the maintenance of our Empire during the war days have become rewarded by having those contracts awarded them while there have been ex-Servicemen applicants whose tenders have been courteously turned down. Some flagrant cases of this kind have been perpetrated during the past and it is time that such unparliamentary actions on the part of those responsible should cease and that a share of contracts be given bona fide ex-Servicemen contractors.

RELIEF.
It was clearly seen that there would be much distress amongst ex-Servicemen and their dependents during the winter. With this end in view it was deemed necessary that our efforts be secured adequate funds to alleviate this hardship had to be redoubled. It was consequently decided that Remembrance Day be extended to the out-port districts. The results attained were entirely satisfactory. During the Christmas season a raffle was also held. The personnel of the Relief Committee is drawn from the Dominion Executive, who in addition to their executive duties and in no small sacrifice are doing splendid work.

ADJUSTMENT SERVICE.
It would indeed be hard to give a detailed statement covering the work performed by the Association in effecting adjustments for ex-Servicemen and their dependents. The following will, however, show briefly, the various phases of this work.

Pensions adjustments, including Imperial and Canadian.
War Service Gratuity (Comparatively few as this work is practically completed).
Separation Allowances.
Pay and Allowances.
Prize Money Adjustments.
War Medals.
Legal Adjustments.
Civil Service.

It would be impossible to record the many classes of claims passed up as the ex-Servicemen's business agent for adjustment; it is, however, noteworthy that due to present economic stress the volume of such claims is increasing rather than decreasing.

REMEMBRANCE DAY.
Following the custom inaugurated last year by this Association Remembrance Day was again observed by the wearing of Poppies, the object of which fulfilled a three fold purpose, viz:—

Baby's Skin Troubles
Chafing, scalding, skin irritations and itching, burning eczema are quickly and thoroughly relieved and the skin kept soft, smooth and velvety by the use of
Dr. Chase's Ointment
Apply daily after the bath.

1. To inaugurate the custom of wearing a Poppy on Remembrance Day, November 11th, in memory of our Fallen Comrades.
2. To provide funds to assist distressed ex-Servicemen and their dependents all over the Dominion.
3. To aid the disabled ex-Servicemen in England by purchasing Poppies from them.

The results obtained from this campaign were splendid and exceeded our most sanguine expectations. To the organizers and contributors the G.W.V.A. and recipients from the Relief Fund owe a debt of gratitude.

AFFILIATION.
During the past year an affiliation was effected with the British Empire Service League, whose headquarters are situated in Eccleston Square, London, Eng. The League is affiliated with the Inter-Allied Federation of ex-Servicemen in which is the American Legion. The foundation membership of the League is composed of the British Legion representing the majority of ex-Servicemen in Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, ex-Servicemen's Organization and the G.W.V.A. of Canada. Comrade Earl Haig is at present the Grand President with the Prince of Wales as Patron. The British Empire Service League is neither Militant or Military Federation except that its membership its fundamental principle is expressed in one of its clauses as: "Ballet in the ideals of comradeship as opposed to Force as the arbiter between nations. A Moral Force is in existence which, by wise guidance, can and will ensure a peace of the World. It is therefore fitting and proper that the G.W.V.A. of Newfoundland should be one of the component part of this world wide organization. Capt. J. E. J. Fox, late of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, is the representative of the G.W.V.A., and we are indebted to him for the good work he has already done.

EDUCATION.
The W.P.A. Trust Fund Executive who undertook the responsible and onerous task of administering this fund have undertaken the education of children of deceased comrades (except in cases where the pension paid the dependent is sufficient to defray the cost of such education), and ex-Servicemen, whose circumstances do not permit them educating their children. The benefits to be derived from such a scheme cannot be fully estimated at present but the coming years will bring its own reward. Sufficient to say that many a dependent and ex-Servicemen's lot is made much happier by the knowledge that their children are not being denied education.

DISCIPLINE.
I like that word discipline.
I used to think of it as meaning punishment but that is only a derivative meaning. Its root word means "to teach" not "to punish," and its first meaning is "development of the faculties by instruction and exercise."
The reason I like the word is because I am coming to realize how valuable the discipline of life is.
Nobody wants to be disciplined.
Yet no one ever develops character without discipline.

The Poor Rich Man.
There are many kinds of discipline and just so surely as one is never disciplined in some direction one is weak in that direction.
Think of the men you know who have inherited enough money so that they have never had to make their way in the world. In 99 out of 100 of these there is not a weakness of character, an undeveloped sense of responsibility, an inability for concentrated effort, which they would not have had if they had had to forge their own way?
If I could leave a beloved child independent of the need to work I do not think I would do it because I believe that the discipline of work would be more valuable to him and that I should be doing a wrong thing to deprive him of it.
You Know Such People.
Then there is the discipline of sac-

rice. Think of the people you know who have never had it, the childless wives of indulgent husbands, the unmarried women who inherited incomes and nothing to think of but themselves, the middle aged bachelors, the wealthy mothers who turn over all the bringing up of their children to hired help. You who have come into contact with such as these well know how often their characters have grown hard and unlovely and narrow without the discipline of sacrifice which normal family life brings.
And then there is the discipline of grief or suffering. No one can welcome that. That is asking too much of human nature. But what wonders it works, if taken in the right spirit; it works the characters of those who pass through it. There is almost always a

No Use to Kick Against the Pricks.
Of course there are people who rebel against the efforts of life to discipline them, who sulk or fight or whine. As a result they get just as much discipline and none of the good. You've got to add self-discipline to life discipline, you've got to be willing to be taught and trained by life, instead of perpetually kicking against the pricks, if you are to get the good that comes wrapped up in grief or suffering or hard work or sacrifice.

Fads and Fashions.

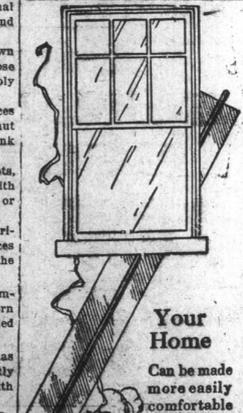

One smart suit features a Cossack coat, which flares from a normal waistline and is trimmed with fur and braiding.
Tinsel ribbon bands the soft crown of a large hat of black satin whose flaring brims turns back sharply from the face.
A charming use of circular flounces is rated on the skirt of a frock of nut brown chiffon trimmed with skunk fur.
Blouses of light colored velvets, silks and matelasse are worn with separate plumed skirts of white or checked materials.
One smart costume has an intriguing little cape made in two pieces so that it can be thrown around the neck as a scarf collar.
A midwinter dance frock is composed of a steel brocade tunic worn over a black velvet slip and girdled with steel and velvet flowers.
A graceful hat of black satin has a softly draped crown and a slightly drooping brim which is trimmed with uncurled ostrich.

FOOLISH TO LET HAIR FALL OUT

35c "Dandérine" Saves Your Hair—Ends Dandruff! Delightful Tonic

Quick! Don't wait! Every bald head started with just a few falling hairs and a little dandruff—but soon the hair appeared thin, scraggly, and then the dreaded bald spot. It seems a sin to let hair fall out or tolerate destructive dandruff when you can quickly correct all such hair troubles with a bottle of delightful Dandérine.
Millions of men and women know the magic of Dandérine; how it corrects oily, dandruff, itching scalps and helps the hair to grow long, thick, strong and luxuriant. Dandérine is not sticky or greasy. It is the largest selling hair corrective and tonic in the world because it is not a humbug! Get a bottle at any drugstore.

There Were Many Things Which I Could Not Eat

Mr. H. Robert W. Es, English Harbour, Trinidad, Bay, writes:
"I was troubled with nervous dyspepsia—so much so that there were a great many things I could not eat at all on account of the distressful feeling afterwards. I used many different remedies, but they did me no good. Finally I used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Knew-Liver Pills, and was surprised at the relief this combined treatment gave me in such a short time."
