An Indispensible Favorite OR Wealth and Beauty at Stake!

CHAPTER XXV.
"There is no use now in blaming me for what my trustees did, Lady Nora," her daughter-in-law responds, with the cold dignity that is so impressive in the young and gentle. "I thought Captain Glynn was satisfied. He never said a word to the contrary. But then, of course, I was not in his confidence. How have I treated him cruelly?"
"How?" Lady Nora repeats, in a high sharp tone, but feeling by no means sure of her ground. "My dear, how can you ask me? The first duty of a woman is to live peaceably with her husband—is it not well, what have you done? Of course you were jealous—we will grant that, my dear. Do you think all women aren't jealous, or haven't cause to be, more or less, of their husbands? Such folly to give way to one's feelings and let everybody see them! You got no pity from any one—only blame and suspicion. A woman who leaves her husband is always counted in fault."
"I did not leave my husband," Yolande rejoins, thinking not of her hurried, passionate deed, but of the yearnings of her heart, too fond and faithful toward him who cares not for it.
"You did not leave your husband at Featherth Place, against his wishes and without his knowledge, because you were jealous of his friendship with Joyce Murray?" Lady Nora demands, with judicial severity and haughtiness.
"I don't think it was against his wishes," Yolande answers, coldly. "My presence prevented Captain Glynn from continuing to devote all his time to Miss Murray, whom he loved, and obliged him to pay some attention to a wife whom he disliked."
"How can you talk such nonsense, my dear?" Lady Nora says, reprovingly.

Building a Baby

Mother—your baby's body is being built now for life. To-day you can influence his future health, in a way you can never do when once the muscle and nerve tissues are developed and the bones are set. The material out of which the body is built is food and food only, but it must be suitable to the infant's power of assimilation.
Virol is a food that has been especially designed by Medical Experts and Food Specialists to meet the particular requirements of growth. It contains just those vital principles which play so mysterious a part in transforming food into living tissue.
Virol with milk supplies in correct proportions all the elements necessary for healthy development, and also increases baby's power of resistance to disease.

She wheels forward an easy-chair for her, brings her her own freshest and prettiest tea-gown of pale blue cashmere and creamy lace, and then sends her up a dainty tray of tea and pound-cake; and Lady Nora, whose worldly heart is just now a little sore and sensitive from the chaffing of debts and worries, glances over the girl's attention in sweetest words of gratitude.
"Oh, you darling, thoughtful girl!" she exclaims. "How I wish I could have you always with me!"
And in this speech are the pith and marrow of Lady Nora's purpose in visiting his son's wife. She has come, feeling very uncertain about her reception, but determined to risk the chance of coldness and rebuffs; the opinion or the displeasure of insignificant people like the Dormers is not of the least account with Lady Nora, except so far as they affect herself materially. And she has come, not so much to break the news of Dallas's departure to Yolande and console with her, as to borrow money from her. For poor little Lady Nora is, as she herself has plaintively said, "dreadfully hard up." Indeed, creditors have begun to grow malevolent, dunning letters omnipresent, debts to be represented only by a sign expressing an unknown quantity; and, though Lady Nora still possesses wardrobe trunks full of exquisite dresses, and enough jewelry to make her pretty hands and ears sparkle, though she still owns a waiting-woman, and a fine fox terrier, of coin of the realm she really possesses but a very inadequate sum—some four or five sovereigns and a handful of loose silver—wherewith to support herself, her maid, and her dog in fashionable apartments for an indefinite length of time. Things are about as bad with Lady Nora as they can well be; and it is quite possible that, if Yolande had been inclined to be hard and imperious with Lady Nora, she would have found her surprisingly meek and yielding. But, as it is, her ladyship thinks she sees her path smooth before her.
"A pretty little place, Moodie," she remarks to her maid, as she signs her tea, "but rather lonely for my poor little daughter-in-law now that Captain Glynn has gone abroad. I must try to persuade her to run down to Eastbourne, or better still, across to Trouville or Biarritz with me for a little change."
"Yes, my lady," the young woman, who is Moodie by name and disposition, agrees with spiky deference. "But—beggin' your pardon, my lady I must keep to what I said last evening. It isn't so much that I'm in need of anything; but I really can't do without some wages."
"I think you're very unreasonable!" Lady Nora says, sharply. "I gave you two pounds for pocket-money some little time since, and you have heaps of clothes. I am obliged to do without a thousand things until my income is due."
For Lady Nora has a small income, the source of which nobody knows—not even her son—and the existence of which she affirms or denies as it best suits her at the time. This income she regularly overdraws, and spends the check that she receives to the last shilling within a week.
"However, I will see what I can do for you when Mrs. Glynn and I make our arrangements this evening," Lady Nora adds, conciliatingly. "I should be very sorry to part with you, Moodie."
And, when her ladyship comes upstairs to bed the same night, Moodie feels sure the "arrangements" have been eminently satisfactory. Her mistress is in the best possible spirits, and, opening her desk to write some letters, she hands Moodie a crisp ten-pound note.

How Great Liners Race.

THE BRITISH COMPANIES SET THEIR FACES AGAINST THE PRACTICE.
Anxious to prove that the Leviathan is the fastest as well as the biggest ship in the world, certain Americans are trying to arrange a race right across the Atlantic against the White Star liner Majestic.
Whether this event will come off or not is another matter. For one thing, it is the Mauretania and not the Majestic which holds the Atlantic record, and even if the Leviathan succeeded in beating the latter it would not settle the dispute. Another very great factor is that although the British companies are all anxious to hold the record, they are inclined to set their faces against actual neck-and-neck racing.
The public has always a sneaking suspicion that ship-racing cannot take place without danger, and although the seaman knows this to be incorrect, popular favor is not worth while risking.
As a matter of fact there is really no danger in a race between sportsmen when there is plenty of sea-room, although on a river or in confined waters it is, of course, a very different matter. The previous Majestic of the White Star Line race—and won—a wonderful series of races with the American New York, and no harm was done to anybody.
On the other hand, racing between steamers was stopped on the American rivers some years ago on account of the appalling number of accidents. Many of these were due to boiler explosions, but it must be remembered that in those days the safety valve was easily accessible to anyone wishing to meddle with it. Every now and again the passengers would jamper with it, while it was quite a regular thing to raise more steam by keeping the safety valve down. A sack of coal or passenger's luggage would often do the trick quite well.
Under such conditions it is not surprising the boilers blew up. Nowadays, however, boilers are thoroughly tested, and blow off steam at about half the pressure that they can safely stand, while nobody can get at the safety valve to alter its adjustment.
Collisions are also likely to occur in narrow waters.
The most extraordinary incident of this sort occurred on the Ohio River, when two steamers were racing down for the championship of the route. In rounding a bend one just touched the other, not doing the slightest damage to the boat, but enraging the skipper so much that he put his helm hard up and rammed his rival amidships, sinking her with the loss of several lives.

Apart from the fact that the quality of modern material and the regulations which must be observed practically prevent any accident at sea, as far as personnel is concerned, there is far less chance of an accident when racing than when everything is jogging along in the ordinary way.
The British merchant seaman is second to none for efficiency, but when he has been doing the same job year in and year out it is only natural that he should become bored with it.
But when there is a rival to be beaten every nerve is on the alert and there is not the least chance of anything going wrong on account of the crew. In deference to public opinion, however, the companies prefer to establish records from port to port and let their rivals do their best to lower them.

eruptions by Time-Table

Do periods of volcanic activity to fit in with definite time-cycles? The records show that at any particular place earthquakes have a maximum once every four years, and it is now contended that the same holds good of eruptions.
There seems to be a certain amount of evidence supporting this theory. For instance, 1923, 1911 and 1907, which were years of Etna eruptions, would fit a four-year cycle.
Persons lost their lives as the result of an "explosion" of lava, also, within the cycle.

Disastrous Earthquake and Fire in Japan

100,000 Dead—Tokio and Yokohama in Flames—Sole Survivor of Crawford Expedition is Esquimo Woman—Balkan Situation Grave—Greek Forces Said to have Murdered Italian Mission.

YOKOHAMA ON FIRE.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2. Practically the entire city of Yokohama is afire and numerous casualties have occurred as a result of the conflagration which broke out after a severe earthquake shock.

A TERRIBLE CATASTROPHE.
SHANGHAI, Sept. 2. One hundred thousand Japanese persons perished in the Yokohama fire and earthquake.

TOKIO ON FIRE.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2. Tokio is afire, and many buildings of the city have collapsed, the water system is destroyed, loss of life heavy and all traffic has been suspended. Flames are spreading to the surrounding towns, according to a message tonight from the Radio Corporation's Superintendent stationed at Tomioka, who said he obtained the information from the newspaper at Sendai, a large sea coast town, one hundred miles north of Tokio. Refugees are running in all directions, the city presents a scene like Hell and many disastrous accidents are reported. A number of trains running to Tokio have been wrecked during the quake and it is reported that a tidal wave struck the Yokohama Coast.

10,000 CASUALTIES.
OSAKA, Japan, Sept. 2. In Yokohama alone there have been ten thousand casualties from Saturday's earthquake and fire, according to a radio message from the Governor of Yokohama. Tidal waves also did great damage. Direct communication with Tokio is still cut off but it is reported enormous damage was done there. The Prince Regent is reported to be safe. Yokohama was still burning at 8.30 o'clock Saturday night.

CENTRAL JAPAN IN RUINS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.
Earthquake death and destruction were spread over an area roughly comprised within a radius of fifty miles of Tokio, and the extensive casualties and the material damage outside that zone has not been determined, as all communication with Japan is still interrupted, except for brief connections by radio with Tomioka, and occasional despatches from Japan to Shanghai. With railway lines, telephone wires, and all other means of communication and travel destroyed, Tokio and the remainder of Japan and the outside world are cut off. Tokio, and the other cities on the central eastern neck of the Island of Dondo are isolated in their desolation; the cities of Tokio and Yokohama were described by the superintendent of the Japanese Government wireless station at Tomioka, which operates via radio corporation "Like Hell." Buildings were falling, fire was spreading everywhere, dead and dying were on all sides; there were explosions and cries of horror and fear by the panic stricken populace. What quake and fire did not destroy on land, tidal waves were reported to have crushed or sunk at sea, the fate of ships in Yokohama Harbour and what ships were there, remains to be determined.

ESTIMATED 100,000 DEAD.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2. Death and destruction were carried to thousands of people and much of Central Japan laid waste Saturday, by an earthquake and tidal wave. Tokio and Yokohama being the largest cities to suffer. It is believed one hundred thousand dead is believed to be conservative. Meagre details available owing to conflagration that followed earth shock and tidal wave that practically isolated that section of the islands affected. Scattered reports described the streets filled with dead and of whole communities wiped out or buried under water. In some localities despatches say it is easier to find dead than living. Many large buildings in Tokio destroyed in flames and Yokohama is believed to have suffered greatly, although it is not yet known what ships were there. Relief expeditions are already being organized to assist the hosts of homeless and starving in the destroyed localities and airplanes have been sent to the scene to report.

THE BOMBARDMENT OF CORFU.

ATHENS, Sept. 1.
The police station and school on the island of Corfu were bombarded by the Italian fleet yesterday and a contingent of occupying troops were landed. Several refugees in the station are reported to have been killed by gun fire. A despatch from Corfu last evening said fifteen Greek civilians were killed and many wounded by the bombardment. The war vessels fired upon the old fort and it was in this building many of the casualties occurred. News of the occupation caused great consternation in Athens and when special editions of the newspapers were read there was indignation on the part of the population. It is reported here that the Italians' bombardment of Corfu which in accordance with the Florence convention had been demanded of guns and despite the fact that Italy has been informed that the fortifications were inhabited by refugees. Premier Gonatas declared "We have referred the matter to the League of Nations and shall await its decision, with which we shall comply. No reply will be given to the second Italian note."

GERMAN STEAMER WRECKED.

YMIDEN, Sept. 1.
The German steamship Klippel was wrecked in a storm Thursday night north of Borkum Island off the German coast, and her crew of forty drowned. The Captain of the ship was the sole survivor picked up by a Dutch trawler.

ITALY UNITED.

ROME, Sept. 2.
Mussolini is being showered with messages of approbation for his stand in Greek controversy and for the first time in years all newspapers are as one in upholding independent action of Italy in the ultimatum to Greece. The newspapers declared that the whole details of the murders known and the evidence proves that the Italian members of the frontier commission were shot down by Greek soldiers under Greek officer not more than four hundred and fifty yards from a Greek military post. The Greeks declared that no armed force was nearer than ten kilometers at the time of murders.

GREECE APPLIES TO LEAGUE FOR INTERVENTION.

ATHENS, Sept. 2.
With an application in the hands of the League of Nations asking for intervention in the Italian attack upon Corfu and other Greek possessions and killing refugees at Corfu by bombardment, Greece waited patiently today for developments in the meantime taking care that no untoward act of this country might aggravate the situation which is given more dread significance by declaration of Italian Government to allow no intervention by the League of Nations.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT DID NOT AUTHORISE CRAWFORD EXPEDITION.

OTTAWA, Sept. 2.
O. S. Finnie, director of the north-west territories branch, stated this morning that Crawford expedition to Wrangel Island had nothing to do with the Canadian Government and that the island was not British possession. It was stated the entire responsibility for sending Crawford and ESQUIMO WOMAN GIVES DETAILS OF WRANGEL I. DISASTER.

NOME, Sept. 2.
News of disaster to the Crawford expedition was supplied by the sole survivor, Ada, an Eskimo woman. She said Allan Crawford of Toronto, leader of the expedition, Fred Maurer and Millen Galle went over ice last winter seeking the mainland and were never seen afterwards. The party was then comprised of only two, Lorna Eklight and Ada. Eklight died of scurvy June 30th, 1922. The notice party found a bottle upon landing which contained the names of the party which declared they claimed Wrangel Island in the name of King of Great Britain. When Notice found Ada on the Island, she was down to the last package of pilot bread, all that was left of the food stores taken to the Island by the schooner Wildways in the fall of 1921 when Crawford party landed.

ROYAL COMMISSION WILL INVESTIGATE SYDNEY TROUBLES.

OTTAWA, Sept. 1.
Official announcement was made to-night that a royal commission will be appointed to investigate recent industrial trouble at Sydney. C. B. Personnel will not be announced for some time.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS HOPES TO SETTLE GREEK-ITALIAN QUARREL.

GENOVA, Sept. 1.
The League of Nations is at crisis of its career. This was the feeling of all delegates to the fourth assembly and council members when they heard this morning that Greece had decided to appeal to the League to settle differences with Italy. The general opinion is that the league is on trial, but everyone is confident that it will be able to effect a peaceful and just settlement notwithstanding the precipitate action of Italy in occupying Corfu.

ITALIAN RESERVISTS IN LONDON WARNED TO HOLD THEMSELVES IN READINESS.

LONDON, Sept. 1.
Italian Reservists residing in London have been notified to hold themselves in readiness for a call to the colors in the event of the necessity arising.

STILL HOPES OF SETTLEMENT OF ANTHRACITE DISPUTE.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.
There was optimistic feeling through anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania that the suspension of mining which became effective to-day would not be continued long. For the second time in a year and a half production of anthracite is suspended, while the leaders of union miners and representatives of the coal companies struggle at Harrisburg to reach a new wage agreement. Reports from anthracite fields indicated total suspension.

MRS. PARKER AGAIN ARRESTED ON SERIOUS CHARGE.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 1.
Mrs. Beattie Parker who was arrested some time ago on a charge of murder in connection with the death of a girl upon whom she was thought to have performed illegal operation and given her liberty when the jury disagreed, was again arrested this afternoon on the charge of having performed illegal operation.

MUSSOLINI CONSIDERS GREECE'S ATTITUDE MEANS REJECTION OF ULTIMATUM.

ROME, Sept. 1.
Premier Mussolini yesterday informed representatives of the Italy abroad that Greece's answer to the Italian ultimatum was equivalent to a complete rejection, and that therefore in order to bring Greece to a realization of her responsibilities, temporary landing of Italian forces at Corfu had been ordered.

IRISH ELECTION RETURNS.

DUBLIN, Sept. 1.
Fifty three Government candidates and thirty seven Republicans were elected to Dail in Monday's election according to official returns given out at 11.30 last night. It is now expected that Government will win sixty seats while Republicans may get 42. When final results are known up to last night, Independents had secured sixteen seats, Labor fourteen, and Farmers twelve.

A Colossal Undertaking.

The announcement of the nomination of an English Barrister by the Secretary of State for the Colonies to conduct the investigation into the irregularities which led to the downfall of the Squires Administration again diverts the attention of all to our public affairs.

Beyond the fact that a thorough investigation has been promised, little is known either with regard to the constitution of the Committee of Investigation, the nature of the charges with which it will have to deal, or against whom they are made. There is no purpose served, so far as we can see, in withholding this information from the public, particularly in view of the fact that as the Imperial Conference takes place in October, the Prime Minister will be absent in all probability during the early stages of the enquiry.

It is generally agreed that such an undertaking is beyond the capacity of one man who has no knowledge of the intricacies of our cumbersome departmental machinery, and that it would be asking too much of anyone, however brilliant his qualifications, to expect him to become familiar with them in the short time at his disposal. The appointment of two local men to the Commission would help materially to make the enquiry thorough, and would assist the nominee of the Home Government in arriving at a just and satisfactory decision. Surely it will not be confessed that we cannot produce two men sans peur et sans reproche.

There are many Departments from which reports of leakages, irregularities, or culpable blunders have emanated, and from revelations during the past week it would appear that the warning, which should have been sufficient to ensure a rigid supervision in the public offices, has not been seriously taken to heart.

In the past there has been great laxity in dealing summarily with civil servants who have been found guilty of malpractice. The law should be allowed to take its course, and dismissal from office should be the inexorable rule of the service. If respect for public funds is not observed by some, then they must be made examples of promptly, in order that others may see that such conduct will not be tolerated.

There is a wide field for the investigators to cover, and every facility must be given them, even though it result in their condemning our whole Departmental system.

Economy the Foreword.

We call attention to another article in this issue under the heading "What is Wrong?" It may be that there is a feeling of uneasiness generally regarding public matters owing to the recent disturbances in Departmental affairs, and in order to restore confidence, the Government will find it necessary to place all their cards on the table. Secrecy is a breeder of suspicion, and in view of the fact that it was announced last week that the Tender for coal for Government Institutions had been accepted, we would suggest that the figures at which the various tenders were made should be published.

The Disaster in Japan.

Once again have the internal disturbances of the earth wrought havoc and death and to-day Tokio, the capital of Japan, Yokohama, the chief seaport and several other towns have been suddenly devastated, and according to the cabled message, 100,000 dead have been so far accounted for. Owing to the fact that most of the centres of the disturbances have had all communication cut off, it will be some time before full particulars are known, but it would appear to be one of the most appalling disasters of recent times.

The last disaster of similar dimensions occurred in Messina in Sicily, in 1908, when 100,000 are supposed to have perished.

Stork Visits Portia.

On Wednesday when the Portia was coming South a passenger named Mrs. Clements of the Gray Islands, gave birth to twins (boy and girl). The infants, however, only lived a few hours. The mother who was coming to St. John's, is doing well, and received every care and attention from the stewardess and the ship's company in general.

Majestic Re-Opening.

After being closed for two months during the summer season the Majestic opens to-night for the fall and winter business with a line of pleasures which have been recognized as outstanding successes wherever they have been screened.

Among other features, the management have contracted for twenty-five giant specials such as Robin Hood, Monte Cristo, Nero, Tess of the Storm Country, Face on the Barron Floor, etc.

The opening bill is Robin Hood, which is enjoyed by both the British and American press and which has delighted the theatre goers of both continents.

A staff of painters have been occupied for the past week in renovating the theatre and no effort has been spared to furnish patrons with a first class show together with every available surrounding comfort.

Personal.

Mrs. Alfred Brotherton was a passenger by S.S. Rosalind on Saturday for her home in Seattle, Wash., U.S.A. After her four weeks visit to her native city, which she enjoyed so much, she wishes to say to the kind friends, old and new, "Thank you," and "Good-bye." There was not time to personally do so, kindly accept thanks this way.

What is Wrong?

It is currently reported on the street that all is not as it should be with the Contracts for the supply of North Sydney and Antracite Coal for the Government Institutions. Tenders were asked to be deposited at the office of the Board of Works on Saturday, August 18th at Noon for a definite quantity of North Sydney Screen Coal and a quantity of the best American Lehigh Valley Anthracite Coal. The tenders were in the hands of the Department from that day until Wednesday last—a matter of nearly two weeks—before any pronouncement was made as to the parties to whom the contracts had been given. The fortunate firms are Messrs. A. E. Hickman & Co. and A. H. Murray & Co., and no one would have anything but good wishes for their success were it not for the feeling that prevails that something must have been amiss to cause the delay in arriving at the decision as to the firms entitled to the Contracts. Presumably the intention of the Department in asking for tenders is to ascertain where and from whom the coal can be obtained at the lowest price and that the parties making the lowest offers would secure the contracts. This, it is said, has not been the practice adopted on this occasion, but on the contrary, the lowest tenders have been ignored and the contracts awarded for entirely different reasons. If this is so, surely it is a gross misapplication of the Public Funds and should call for immediate investigation by the Premier, and if correct, the resignation of the entire Board, including the Minister. We have heard a great deal recently about the alleged irregularities practised in certain directions and have listened to promises and avowals of straightforward legislation and administration of public funds. Is this the first illustration of the good faith of the new Government? Have their good principles departed already? It may be that everything is in order, if so, then let the public be informed what the various tenders are, why it took so long to decide which were to be accepted. The public are entitled to know what is being paid for the coal required for Government Institutions, and who are the firms prepared to supply the coal at the lowest price. Publicity will do no harm and it may do a great deal of good. If everything is above board, let the Department prove it by publishing the tenders and it will help to restore that confidence which is entirely absent at the present time.

A Matter for Enquiry.

We have communicated to us an account of a drowning accident in Bay of Islands about which there appears to be considerable mystery, and if the facts are as reported would call for a thorough investigation by the authorities. The unfortunate occurrence has been reported to us as follows: On July 31st last a yacht dropped anchor off Crabbe's Bay of Islands, and a resident named Edward White put off from the shore in his dory to collect a debt of two dollars from an individual who he believed was on board. Having spent about two hours on the vessel he started ashore and passed on his way another resident, who believing White was under the influence of liquor, advised him to go ashore as quickly as possible. Within a few yards of the shore, White was seen to stumble and fall overboard from the dory. Those on board the yacht, it is stated, were not more than five minutes in going to his aid, but although the water was not more than five feet deep, he was found lying on the bottom and all attempts to revive him failed. The body was removed to a tent near his house, and next day, having been rudely coffined, it was taken by the yacht to Cox's Cove, Middle Arm, and there buried by the incumbent. So far as we can learn there was no post mortem examination held to ascertain the cause of death, nor to meet the requirements of the law, although there appeared to be an injury to the right forehead.

At the Dry Dock.

The steamers Seal, Daisy and Tug Hugh D. which have been out dock the past week undergoing repairs, came off the stocks at 2 p.m. The Portuguese Cruiser, Carvalhoe Arango which went ashore near LeManche on Friday afternoon last hauled up from Shea's premises to the dock pier at noon to-day. She will enter the slip this afternoon when a full survey of her damages will be made. The Portia which was supposed to go in the dry dock after the other ships came off will now wait until the cruisers repairs are effected.

Sailors Had Legs Amputated.

The six men of the Portuguese cruiser Carvalhoe Arango who have their legs broken by the hammer which parted whilst the ship was being warped off the rocks at LeManche are doing as well as can be expected according to information received from the General Hospital this forenoon. Yesterday one of the unfortunate sailors had both his legs amputated and another had one taken off.

Has Splendid Winter Wheat.

A sample sowed from a crop of winter wheat grown by Mr. Leonard Earle at his farm "Aldfield," Outer Cove Road, is on exhibition at the Board of Trade Rooms. The seed from which the wheat was grown was imported by Mr. Earle last year from Agass, B.C., and set August 24th. It came through the winter in excellent condition, except for a small patch on which water lodged and froze. This wheat has been awarded many prizes in British Columbia, where it is extensively grown. It is said to yield 60 bushels to the acre. Mr. Earle is at present not knowing the exact yield as yet as he has not had his crop thrashed. It is well pleased with his experiment.

"Broken Links."

A STORY BY A TALENTED NEWLY-AUTHOR.

We have received an advance copy of a novel called "Broken Links" (published by Arthur H. Storkwell, London) which is the work of a native of Newfoundland, Miss Gertrude Parsons. The story begins with the friendship of two young people who live in a remote English village called Wayburn, and the course of their lives is described, with all the cross currents which caused a touching romance of early life to be ruined, in language that makes the whole a story full of interest and thrilling scenes. The plot is a good one. The method of expression could be a little easier perhaps and the writer—who does not find fault with her author on that account—did not see fit to bring it to a conclusion in a way that the reader is led to anticipate. We generally expect to find the misadventures having been made up, they lived happily ever afterwards ending, but in "Broken Links" the end has in store a surprise as it has in every other chapter. Miss Parsons gives every evidence of that talent which one would expect to find in the daughter of Mr. A. A. Parsons, with whose gifted pen everyone is familiar. We bespeak for "Broken Links" a great demand and further works of its kind will be awaited with interest.

LADS OF CATHOLIC CADET CORPS HOLDING SHAM BATTLE.

Yesterday morning after Last Mass a meeting of the W. and N.O.C.'s of the C.C.C. was held at the Armory for the purpose of holding another field day. A large and enthusiastic attendance was present, and it was decided to hold the big day on Wednesday next. The matter of financing the outing and other arrangements were taken up and completed. The friends of the Corps being by no means backward in their donations. The members of the Band voluntarily offered their services for the day. An advance party will go out on Tuesday to erect tents, etc., and other important matters in connection with the manoeuvres will be attended to. All other arrangements will be made known at the Battalion parade on Tuesday night, when a large attendance of members is expected. All that is required is a fine day, and a successful outing is assured those who attend.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
A CROSS STANDS AS A MEMENTO.

Visitors passing along Dorchester or Guy Streets will see a large red wooden cross in the Grey Nuns property at the corner of these streets.
Probably out of the hundreds who pass up and down that way every day, not ten of them could tell you the significance of the cross. The story of the affair is as follows:—Many years ago, when the present site occupied by the Grey Nuns, was then a vast wilderness, an awful and double murder was committed where the cross stands. It appears that an orphan boy, who was taken and adopted by a family of French-Canadians, knowing that his adopted parents had some money, the young man became possessed with the desire to get it at any cost. At night, as he was returning home with them, he murdered the couple and robbed them of the money they had with them. Justice was not slow in apprehending the culprit. In punishment of his awful crime, he was condemned to be torn to pieces by two wild horses. His body was torn into shreds, and the dismembered parts cremated. Many think that his remains lie buried under the cross, but such is not the case. When the Grey Nuns acquired the property,
one of the most valuable sites in Montreal to-day, with its beautiful and imposing structure, the Nunnery built on it, the Sisters had the cross erected to mark the awful tragedy committed in the early days of the history of Ville Marie.

An American Senator at the Windsor Hotel in discussing the question of Prohibition with a friend there said:
"In five years, the whole of North America will be bone dry. Prohibition-ists are working secretly, but none
the less effectively in Montreal."
His friend said to him: "Do you think that the French Canadians will allow themselves to be pulled by the nose as you are in the States. Don't believe it, you'll never see such a thing." If the American Senator's views are true, then be prepared to see crimes of many kinds increase, and the jails and insane asylums throughout the land ought to be enlarged. If that day ever comes to pass we can all sing, "The Ontario Song":— Whatever else may happen since our province has gone dry,
The sailor still will have his part
and the farmer have his ry;
The cotton man will have his gin, and
the sea coast have its bar,
And each of us will have a bier no matter where we are.

ALL RECORDS BROKEN.
All records have been broken so far as the influx of visitors coming to Montreal is concerned. Speaking to the night manager of the Windsor Hotel, who has been connected with hotels for years, said: "It is the history of the hotel business in Montreal all records have been broken. I thought that when we were accommodating also hundred guests a night, we were at high water mark, but now, night after night we have to provide for eleven hundred guests, and turn many more away. The same applies to Mount Royal, the Ritz Carlton, the Queens, the St. Lawrence Hall, the Corona, and the Place Viger." When asked what he attributed the great influx of tourists to this city this year, he could give no reason. Many of them, no doubt, coming from "bone dry" places, require something to wet their whistles and judging from the crowds you'll see visiting the Quebec Liquor Commission Stores, and coming out with parcels, this is true.
A VISIT TO A FAMOUS INSTItution. The Grey Nunnery is the largest of its kind in Canada. It covers two blocks, is divided into several apartments, and has nearly one thousand person within its walls, including babies, working girls, old men and women, about three hundred Sisters, and several lady boarders. The immense chapel, larger than some parochial churches, is in the centre of the building, and divides the Sisters' part from the other portion of the building. The new wing, which replaced the one destroyed by fire a few years ago when there was a holocaust of foundlings, is occupied by the Creche, the home for the aged,

the working girls and the lady boarders. At the invitation of Rev. Sister Donlin, a nun who has done yeoman service for her order in several parts of the States and Canada in hospitals, in the classroom, in homes for the aged and in the Creche, a gentleman friend and your correspondent was shown through the main portion of the large institution. Our first visit was to the Creche where 300 foundlings were. The Sister explained that some of the tiny ones were found in garbage barrels and others found in newspapers near the mail box, when the collector would visit the box to collect the mail, others again were found on the doorstep or in churches.
But to show the tricks practised by some unnatural mothers, she cited two cases which had occurred a few days previous to our visit. A lady rang the bell, was admitted with a parcel under her arm, and asked to see some one in the institution. While the Sister was gone to get the person, the lady left the parcel on one of the steps of a stairs which led to another part of the house. When the Sister returned, the visitor had vanished. Fortunately, one of the Sisters happened to notice the parcel before she was about to step on it. On opening it a baby was found inside. Another lady called to see an old man, one who had no friends or relatives in the city, and a man that probably had never seen the parlor since he was in the institution, and while waiting left a bundle on a chair near her. The old man was brought to see her, a plausible story was given by the lady, and after conversing for some time she left. The Sister thinking that the new friend had brought some clothing for the old man, reminded him of the parcel. She went to give it to him, when to her surprise, she saw a portion of the baby's face uncovered in the paper.
Many of them they get are in very bad condition covered with dirt and with and diseased. Entering the Creche, which is divided into several departments on both sides of the long passage, a scene of beauty met our gaze.
Three hundred little ones amusing themselves in different ways in their beautiful cots. They were dressed in fine and costly garments, including woolen socks of various colors, while many of them had slippers. The nurses and their attendants were busy tending on them in various ways. A few of the older ones were amusing themselves in rocking horses. We witnessed the preparation of the food to be given for the evening meal. The Sister explained every detail of the work to us, and at times would speak in both languages. She spoke French fluently, and it was a pleasure to hear her speak it. A few of the babies were being treated in the infirmary. Out of the 300, only one was found whose life was slowly but surely ebbing away. He was suffering from gastritis.
He was seated on a little rocking horse, his little feet covered with green and white woolen socks mired up and down, while he lay partly bent over. The Sister said: "He's finished, a week or two and he'll be with the Angels." While a large number of them die every year, not for the want of care and attention, for the institution has won the highest praise and honors even from Protestant matrons and doctors of other similar institutions, but from various other causes, which are known only to medical men. From the Creche we visited the home for the aged, many of them imbeciles, who were brought up as foundlings there, but on account of some infirmity, the Sisters would never allow them in their younger days to go out into service in case they would be ill-treated. Then we were brought to the Cemetery in the basement, where nearly 500 Sisters and four priests are buried. A black cross with the name of the deceased
on it stands at the head of each grave.
The foundress of the Order, Sister Mary Margaret Dufrost de la Jemmerri, a widow lady, is buried in a corner of the cemetery. Her body is still intact. Two rooms, containing all her small trunk, her bed, candlestick, desk, chair, crucifix, and stove are all to be seen. The rooms are situated at the head of the cemetery. The process of her canonization will be taken up shortly at Rome. Her two sons, who became priests, are buried also in the cemetery. The first Chaplain of the Order, a Sulpician Father, who helped the Superior to draw up the rules and regulations for the new order,

and guided its destinies in many ways,
has a monument erected to his name
at the head of the cemetery, and behind it, his heart preserved in alcohol in a large glass bowl can be seen. In 1784 the Foundress found a baby lying in the street near Bronsecours market, with a dagger in its throat. She picked it up and brought it into the Convent, and promised God that if the child would recover, her Sisters would devote their work to care for foundlings. Hence the origin of the Creche. A beautiful oil painting, showing the Foundress and the baby
with the dagger in its throat, hangs on the wall in the first ward of La Creche. We had seen during the afternoon life, youth, old age and death.
We had witnessed scenes that would take the pen of an historian to describe. We were brought face to face with heroic work, true sacrifice and devotion, a work which shows the brave heart, the strong will, and that great faith in Divine Providence, all done for suffering humanity, which

ENVY.
Time was that a King of the olden days,
Disturbed by his fretful clan,
Sent ministers forth, both south and north,
In search of a happy man.
"Go find me a man with his heart content,
Who maketh no wish for more;
Let the search be had till you find one glad,
One glad with his present store."
"You have wealth," said they, to a woodman tanned.
"And so have your children three;
You are blessed, for that gift is best."
"I would I were rich," said he.
"You have gold," they said, to a man wealth,
"You can buy what is ever sold."
"Yes," said he, "but I'd happier be
With the strength of the woodman
bold."
Then they found them a man with a well filled purse,
And sturdy and strong was he,
But he said with a sigh: "No child
have I,
But the woodman there has three."
They searched them high and they searched them low,
And back to the King they went,
And they said: "No man in this royal clan Sits down by his fire content."
"The woodman sighs for the rich
king,
And the rich man vows that he Would give his wealth for the woodman's health,
Or even his children three."
"None thinketh himself by the good Lord blessed,
But spurneth his neighbor glad,
And is sure that he would happier be
If the neighbor's joy he had."
"Oh, tell me, then," said the sorrowing
king,
"You have traveled the world around,
Did you pass no door of rich or poor
Where envy was not found?"
There is none who knoweth life's joys complete,
For so do God's blessings fall
That all are blessed as He deemeth
best,
But none may have them all.

Cure Yourself.

The human body is subject to many ills, and there are times, of course, when expert medical advice should be sought. But the following quick cures are not of the "quick" variety,
and would be approved by doctors.
For indigestion eat less, and slowly.
Masticate and re-masticate each mouthful of food.
For stoutness, drink less; eat much less; and walk six miles per day.
For thinness, eat fattening (fatti-guous) foods; go to bed early and get up late; indulge, if possible, in an afternoon nap; and take a spoonful of olive oil after each meal.
For "nerves" eat prunes; don't smoke; reduce your consumption of tea; go for a quiet half-mile walk before breakfast, and using your willpower.
For a weak chest or tendency to colds, breathe deeply always.
For threatened baldness wear a light hat; brush your hair frequently; and rub in a little olive oil nightly.
For neuralgia, eat (because of its strong content of iron) spinach on every possible occasion.
For a flushed or pimply face, avoid all pastry; eat little meat, but much fruit and green vegetables; and drink
no alcohol.
Finally, to keep good general health, use cold water—three large glasses daily internally, and a gallon
or so externally.

Portia Arrives.

PLEASING REPORTS FROM FISHERMEN ALONG FRENCH SHORE.

S.S. Portia, Capt. J. Field, arrived from the Northern Coastal Service early yesterday morning after a splendid passage of ten days. Capt. Field reports the fishery along the French Shore has improved considerably during the past few weeks. The fishermen operating between Whoooping Hr., and Cook's Hr., report for record catches, while the catch at Gray Islands is a record one. Messrs. J. & F. Moore's crews have about 30,000 quintals landed, while Skipper Sam Elliott, with a crew of 12, has 3,000 ashore. Geo. Field at Cook's Harbor, with a crew of eight, has done well, having 1,600 on board. Strong's vessels are loaded and on their way home. A scarcity of salt is reported along the coast, but it is understood supplies are being forwarded. The Portia brought a part cargo, and the following passengers:—L. Osmund, R. Tulley, F. Moore, R. Sparkes, Sergt. T. Ricketts, V.C., Fr. Hearn, Dr. Rosen, Miley (3), Verge, Manuel, Hubley, Gabriel, Gosse, J. Perry, W. Gill, Bailly, Scammel, Coombs, Bishop, King, Parsons, Madimet, Mews, Carter, D. A. Ryan; Messdames Pilgrim, Roberts, Plooch, Hayward and boy, Whitten, Gense, Parwell, Kean, Winsor, Jones, Cloutier and girl, Snelgrove, Courage, Phillips, Fitzgerald, Bartlett, Day, Parsons, Mews, Carter, Clouston; Misses Sparks, Northon, Griffin, Boyles, Roberts, Taylor, Peckford, Colton, Stimms, Payne, Torrville, Baker, Hyde (2); Penny, Scott, Green, Harding, Winsor, White, Marcor, Gooding, Penny, Johnston, Moore, Grimes, Bailey (3), Rabbits, Fletcher, Fowlow, Paek, Clouston, Blunden and 40 second class. Capt. Field and crew will transfer to the Prospero, which ship resumes the service, sailing from here on Wednesday next.

Dies on Steamer Portia.

PATIENT FOR ST. ANTHONY DROPS DEAD ON DECK OF SHIP.

While the Portia was at Whoooping Harbor on her way North Sunday last, a resident of that place named Elisha Castle, boarded the ship to proceed to the Hospital at St. Anthony to undergo treatment. Some minutes after he had been on board he was taken suddenly ill, and drooping to the deck, soon expired. Elisha Castle was a man of 40 years. The body was removed from the ship to his late home, from whence internment took place on the following day.

AVERTED BY AN ACT OF HEROISM.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly give me space in your valuable paper to publish the following facts relating to a trip I made to St. Pierre recently with my father Alexander Slaney, accompanied by a passenger, Aubrey Farrell, also of St. Lawrence. We had purchased some empty oil casks for cod oil containers, and left St. Pierre on the morning of August 21st in a motor trap boat. A stiff northwest wind was blowing with a heavy swell on. We were about 3 miles from St. Pierre when we sighted a large cask to windward. We altered our course and ran up alongside it to get it aboard. The writer grabbed it, but unfortunately the boat rising on the top of a heavy surge, caused me to lose my balance and I went over head first. We had a sail rigged over the cask, the wind being fair to help the boat along, and this caught aback and caused the boat to fall quickly to leeward. Our passenger, although not acquainted with the engine we were using, quickly had it under control and backed the boat towards me, but she began to ship water heavily over her stern and with the sail full could make no progress. My father quickly saw this and ordered the boat ahead by a foot, as before they could reach me again a wide circle had to be made and I was fast becoming exhausted. However, they succeeded in reaching me again, and this time my father reached me with a boat hook which I grabbed but was too weak to hold. The same manoeuvre had to be repeated with the sail again a hindrance. This third time, Mr. Farrell after shutting off the engine ran forward and threw a coil of rope over my shoulders but I was too unconscious to notice it, although they tell me I was still fighting to keep afloat. My father seeing my exhausted condition grasped another rope and sprang after me and succeeded in reaching me though with difficulty, as I was about three feet under water when he grasped me. The boat meanwhile had veered away before the wind owing to the sail, and by the time Mr. Farrell reached aft over the casks, my father, a man of 64 years of age, and I were fully twenty fathoms apart. I was held by him with one hand, an unconscious burden, and with the other he grasped the rope attached to the boat. Mr. Farrell, with great presence of mind, began the hard task of hauling us both aboard and succeeded. When I was taken aboard I was apparently lifeless, but they immediately began working on me. At first it did not seem to have any effect, but after some time I began to show signs of animation and this encouraged them. We were then drifting by two men in a fishing dory, who in answer to my father's call for help came on ally after over two hours of working and using every means known to them of artificial respiration, they succeeded in getting me in a semi-conscious condition. We had now drifted down off Lord's Cove, so my father decided to go in there, and if it is principally to thank those kind people that this article is written. As soon as my condition was known, I was taken to Mr. James Walsh's home and given a hot bath, then wrapped in warm blankets and put to bed, with the result that I was able, after such good treatment, to resume the trip homeward the next day. I wish especially, Mr. Editor, to publish my grateful thanks to my dear father to whom I owe my life, the good people of Lord's Cove, especially James Walsh and daughter, James Harnett (Tidewater), Prosper Walsh, Mrs. Philip Slaney, Mrs. Jane Isaacs and all others who helped me in my weak and exhausted condition, and with thanks to you for publication. I am, yours respectfully, BENEDICT J. SLANEY. St. Lawrence, Aug. 27th, 1923.

Bishop Feild College.

We understand that the Directors of Bishop Feild College have filled the vacancies on their staff caused by the resignation of Mr. C. E. A. Jeffrey and Miss Joyner by the appointment of Mr. S. S. Horsley, M.A. and Miss E. Dawe. Mr. Horsley is a scholar of Merton College, Oxford, where he took a 2nd Class Honors in Classical Moderations in 1912. Since that date he has been engaged in the teaching profession in England, except during the war period when he held a commission as Captain in the East Surrey Regiment. He is a keen athlete and has a fair knowledge of music. Miss Dawe, a daughter of Hon. E. Dawe, M.L.C., is a woman of high academic qualifications, being a member of London University. She is also a well tried teacher, having had considerable experience in this country and in Canada. The Directors of the college are to be congratulated on having secured the services of two such competent teachers for their school.

Star Movie To-Night.

DRIVE SLOWLY—MANSLAUGHTER.

This big production, which has in its advertising caused such a sensation in the city, and got so many people "goat," is booked for exhibition at the Star Movie to-night, and to-day all indications point to a record breaking attendance at this popular theatre. The picture itself from what we can learn is such as to be followed with the keenest of interest from the very opening, and the story is so well told that at once it can be grasped, consequently you are held in suspense till the next, and all leading up to a most astounding climax. As was stated in this paper a few days ago, it holds a big attraction for every person in this city, as it goes to show many things. First, we see the speed demon of the road, he (she) who boasts they take "no man's dust" meaningly they are going to let no one pass them; secondly, it shows the pedestrian and his rights, those who cannot afford the luxury of a motor car, and in many cases are subjected to most insignificant sneers from those who do. Then it shows the duty of a police officer, who despite gruff refuses it and does his duty by his position, though that duty results in his death, verily he died at the post of duty. Then we see the picture, which is an education to the officers of the law, and all lawyers, for in the cross-examination of a prisoner, in the third degree, we see brought into court, and placed before the jury—to help them arrive at a verdict—a miniature motor cycle and motor car, as well as a dummy to represent the murdered traffic cop, and so cleverly and clearly is this done that the jury return with a verdict of MANSLAUGHTER.

Many other such episodes are told and demonstrated in this production. We say to our readers if you are a movie patron don't miss it, and to those who are not, we say for once SEE SOMETHING YOU COULD NOT IMAGINE BUT ONLY READ OF IN BOOKS. SEE MANSLAUGHTER TO-NIGHT.

Express Passengers.

The following passengers crossed over to Port aux Basques by S.S. Eyle and are now on the incoming express due this afternoon:—Mrs. S. Rutherford, Dr. R. H. Keer, G. H. Wambolt, R. N. Norris, Mrs. F. The Drug Traffic.

SHAWINGAN FALLS, P.Q. Sept. 1.—Speaking at the 23rd annual convention of the Union of Canada Municipalities in session here, Alex. B. J. Moore, head of the Department of Pharmacy at McGill University, delivered an address on narcotics for which he thought a suitable title would be "Dope and Its Cursee."

To arouse interest in the subject he displayed samples of all the various habit-forming drugs, tracing them to their geographical botanical sources, and giving the therapeutic properties of each. He drew attention to the "great error" in regarding drugs and dope as synonymous terms. Whilst all so-called dopes and narcotics were drugs, all drugs were not narcotics. Cocaine, Heroin and Morphine truly came under the category of habit-forming drugs, but their careful use in the hands of skilful physicians or dentists had proved to be a boon to mankind.

In dealing with the number of addicts the lecturer explained that it was an acknowledged fact that in the United States there are between one and two million people who are under the throes of habit-forming drugs. These addicts are not confined to the so-called Red Light districts but embrace those from professional privileges down to the slums of large cities. In dealing with another article which is increasing very much in use, namely, the well known hashish, Professor Moore displayed a splendid sample of the drug, explaining that it was in use 1400 years B.C. and is used both by smoking or chewing. The growth of the plant from which it is obtained, namely Cannabis Indica, although cultivated in some of the United States is prohibited except for medicinal purposes. Hashish produces a sexual tendency of mind, beautiful dreams and delirium, and it is claimed that some artists of the Cubist school have painted some of the most wonderful pictures while under its influence. As a rule, however, the percentage of Anglo-Saxons who are slaves to its use, is very small indeed. The habitual users are natives of India and neighboring countries. It is only recently that it has come into use in the form of cigarettes, produced in Mexico and smuggled across the border.

Professor Moore gave some statistics relative to the importation into Canada of opium, morphine and cocaine, showing that in 1919 these importations arrived at their pinnacle and since then have materially decreased until they are now about 25 per cent. of what they were in that year. These statistics did not include amounts of the drugs smuggled into the Dominion, a quantity of which would be impossible to estimate.

After praising the efforts of the Dominion government and the Montreal police to control the drug traffic, Professor Moore took up the ways and means which should be adopted for the elimination of illegitimate supplies; the necessity of enforcing more stringent laws relative to the use of narcotics; and the very serious problems involved in the eradication of dope fiends. Many drug addicts are criminally inclined, he said, but statistics proved that these were in a minority. He stated it was a recognized fact that ninety per cent. of addicts were curable, but the question had not been taken up seriously in Canada. In the United States more thorough steps were taken, addicts being specifically treated both physically and spiritually.

To strike at the root of the evil presented great difficulties, the various narcotic producing plants being cultivated all over the earth, and unless something in the nature of a league of nations be formed among countries growing the opium poppy, the coca leaf, and Indian hemp, so as to lead to prevention of their cultivation, the problem will be well nigh insolvable. The present unfortunate condition of affairs will, he concluded, be likely to continue with the enormous pecuniary profit arising from out of cultivation of above plants, exists.

Medals for Money.

Do you want a medal? If so, you may secure one without having to perform any act of heroism, or to possess a record of long army service. All you have to do will be to take out your purse and pay a few shillings. For time has wrought its changes, and whereas, during the Great War, medals were awarded for glory, they are now obtainable for hard cash, though not, he said, with the new owner's name inscribed on them.

The following are the average prices asked for the various kinds of medals now on offer:

- Allied Victory Medal, 2s.; British Allied Victory Medal, 2s.; ditto, with oak branch for mention, 2s. 9d.; 1914 Star, named, 2s. 6d.; British War and Victory Medals, with ribbons, both to the same recipient, 6s.; French Medal for the Great War, 7s. 6d.; Belgian Reconnaissance, 15s.; Italian Medal for Military Valour, 15s.; Military Medal for bravery in the field, 31s. Palmy sums, surely, for the honors they covered. The story they tell is significant.

Monday for Luck.

WHICH IS THE BEST DAY OF THE WEEK TO START A HOLIDAY?

Assuming that the month in which you will take your holiday has been settled, there remains, if you have liberty of choice, the not-at-all important question as to what week day shall witness your departure.

A good beginning counts for much in a holiday. To arrive at the seaside when the skies are leaden and rain is falling, depresses even the most ardent holiday-maker. A bad beginning! Our spirits droop.

Are there good and bad days for starting a holiday? Yes.

Excluding Sunday, with its obvious disadvantages in the way of restricted train services, and early-closing day at the resort you intend to visit, should any other day be banned as likely to give a bad beginning?

Don't start your holiday on a Saturday. Many people end their holidays on Saturday, and landladies get hustled if they have to take in a fresh lot of visitors within an hour or so of the old ones going out. It gives no time for clearing or cleaning. Landladies are human, and when they are worried or tired they are apt to be cross.

It Suits the Landlady, Too! There is the further consideration, too, that Sunday follows Saturday, and your first dull day will have to be a quiet one. You would have to wait until Monday to plunge into holiday gaiety.

Monday? Quite a good day. Porters and the like have been spending during the week-end, and thus may give you more attention, with an eye to London's Fisherwoman.

At one period of its long history London could boast of quite a large population of fisherfolk, but to think of finding a fisherman or fisherwoman living in modern London sounds rather odd.

Nevertheless, the Blue Book of London, recently issued, revealed the fact that a solitary person, describing herself as a fisherwoman, lives at Wandsworth. In the City itself there is a single fisherman, thus making a total fishing population of two. London also possesses a woman blacksmith, who resides at Shorehithe, two women gasfitters, and a woman bricklayer. Can any other city best this record?

At the BLUE PUTTEE cleanliness and daintiness are invaluable. It's worth while to know that what you eat is absolutely clean—and to have it served in that appetizing manner which doubles your enjoyment. Come in to-night.—sept.11

STILL INVESTIGATING.—There are no further developments in connection with the alleged robberies at the Post Office. The police are making a thorough investigation and an arrest will probably follow soon.

Whether or not Newfoundland will be represented in the Canadian Championships at Halifax on the 15th inst. will depend to a great extent on just what support the public give the A.A.A. meet on Wednesday. In this connection the authorities have permitted the use of "wheels" for the purpose of acquiring additional funds and they will be in the very capable hands of Messrs. Peter O'Mara and Claude Hall and their aides.

The Mount Cashel Band will be in attendance at the sports, and with the quality and quantity of athletes entered all that is needed is a fine day to make them the most successful ever held in Newfoundland. The entry of the Bell Island athletes shows the awakened interest in good clean manly sport, and it is hoped to be the forerunner of the not far distant future when representatives from all centres in the Island will journey each September to St. John's to compete in the championships of Newfoundland.

COMPETITORS PLEASE NOTE.

Owing to the large number of entries in the above events it has been decided to run off preliminary heats at St. George's Field (through the courtesy of the Football League) tomorrow evening. All competitors listed in the above 10 events will have to report at the dressing room to Mr. McKenna at 6.30. The heats will start promptly at 7 o'clock, and anyone not on the line when the event is called will be scratched and will not be permitted to compete in the Championships on Wednesday afternoon. This is the only notice that can be given and competitors will please govern themselves accordingly. We are also asked to call attention to the following rule which will be strictly enforced:—

AN ERROR!

The A.A.A. advertisement in this morning's "News" stated that the preliminaries of mile (Junior and Senior) will be run to-morrow night. This is obviously a printer's error for the Quarter Mile. Contestants please take notice.

FORECAST TO-MORROW.

"Mintamps" has promised to furnish us with a forecast on the winners of the Hayward Trophy on Wednesday. His forecast last year was correct in the main until the collapse of Tom Butler through illness which upset all his hope. Last year's aggregate of points was as follows:—

PINKERTON'S REJOINDER.

Editor Sportographs

Dear Sir—In reply to Mr. S. P. Cullen's letter in your Saturday's issue, I beg to state that I am prepared to stand pat as regards the time in which O'Toole covered the distance on Thursday. The correct time is known only to those he chooses to term "two Pinkertons," and of course Mr. Cullen himself. I am not concerned a little bit as to how long O'Toole stopped on the road. I simply assure Mr. Cullen as follows:—He was clicked at the start and also at the finish over the full "Telegraph" course. If, as stated by his manager, he actually did stop a full minute to adjust his clothing, we can only come to the conclusion (Mr. Cullen's protest to the contrary notwithstanding) that we certainly have in O'Toole an Alfred Shrubb in St. John's—thanks to his worthy manager's sage advice, vast experience in long distance running, and guiding spirit. VICE REGAL PATRONAGE.

The President announced that His Excellency the Governor had very graciously given his patronage to the meet, and will in all likelihood be present. Mr. C. J. Ellis will be in charge of the road race, and the course is being verified again this afternoon by Mr. W. Noel, First Surveyor of the Agriculture and Mines Department, with Mr. J. M. Tobin and Mr. Ralph Herder of the A.A.A. Mr. Bob Stick will be in control of the pilot car on the road, and the kindly co-operation of the members of the Motor Association is requested to give the runners the right of way on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. J. P. Mosher will act as official recorder for the A.A.A.

AT THE MAJESTIC TO-DAY.

that Mr. Fred Phalen is a "radio expert," but I do know he is a road expert, having finished third in a large entry list at Mount Cashel in the 1915 road race. But doubtless, this was before Mr. Cullen became interested whole-heartedly in the long distance events. On the afternoon of O'Toole's remarkable trial spin I was told by a friend of mine that Mr. Cullen had stated that the watch which I had in my possession was of no use after 58 minutes. I have been wondering since if he meant to convey the idea to me that O'Toole could really cover the distance in this time. I may say to Mr. Cullen that as to talking "times," I have never professed to be an expert, but this much I will say for his information that the A.A.A. must surely have some confidence in my ability in this respect when they appointed me one of the official time-keepers for the Championships Meet on Wednesday afternoon. As the Ingersoll he writes of has turned out to be such a good reliable one I am very much inclined to use it on that day, provided, of course, he himself does not need it, for if runner is correct, he finds himself to-day in the awkward position of having the watch which he used in O'Toole's trial spin chronometrically checked. Mr. Cullen's story is that the watch he used was checked by Mr. A. McManara. Now I have much pleasure in stating that the watch we used was checked by Messrs. Roper & Thompson, and the public may be interested to know that not only did they pronounce it to be an unusually good watch but that it was owned by none other than Mr. S. P. Cullen himself who, in his tirade, tells us to swap it for a real watch. Verb Sap! Thanking you for space,

Yours truly,
JOHN M. TOBIN,
(The "other" Pinkerton).

YOU SAID IT, BO!

It's a pity that a recently announced new arrival did not weigh a pound heavier or it would come up to the A.A.A. requirements for the weight events.

LEST WE FORGET!

Entrants in Wednesday's Championships are reminded of the offer made by Mr. Whitford McNelly to present a special gold medal for the one who lowers Joe Green's record of 2.13 for the half mile. Mr. P.C. Mars also has a medal for the one who can do the mile in the English standard time of 4.40.

SIDE TALK.

By Ruth Cameron.

A RUINED MEAL.

Don't you hate to be a guest at a home where the husband makes a point of finding fault with the food at the table? "Can't you teach Jennie to cook a roast of beef so that the inside won't be raw?" he demands of his wife, when after cutting several slices of perfectly cooked meat he comes upon the centre of the roast and finds it a little rarer than he likes it.

If she were like HILL. Or: "Are these the best tomatoes you can get? Hard to get good ones at this time of year? Then why do you have them at all? I'll bet you could get good ones if you knew how to go at the market, men—but you never know how to handle people. If I handled people the way you do, I guess our office would be in a pretty pickle of fish all the time. My wife," to the embarrassed guest, "is one of those people that the market men watch for to work off their poor stuff on." Or: "Raspberries again! Isn't this the third time we've had them this week? The second? I'd say the third. My wife has a good head for figures sometimes, but other times she's a great little forgetter."

Or, directly to the guest: "Perhaps you don't like French dressing. My wife thinks everyone ought to like French dressing and she never gives them a chance to have anything else. She rams it down their throats. I guess we've got some mayonnaise in the house if I can't get her to put it on the table."

Sometimes the husband adopts the sharply critical manner, the swaggering air of one who wants it known that he knows good food and that he is master in his own house. Again he adopts the pretend-to-be-foolish vein. But The Guest Isn't Pleased. And yet again he puts his criticisms in the form of an apology to the guest or a great show of attention to the guest's comfort at the expense of courtesy to his wife.

One wonders if one could manage to crawl under the table unobserved until they get the matter of raspberries or the tomatoes settled, and the flush sets out of the wife's face, and the constraint out of her manner. Of course a husband has a right to have some say as to what his guests shall be served. But he serves neither them nor himself when he keeps up a running fire of criticism of the food in their presence.

The Better Way. I once knew a man whose wife was naturally very incompetent as a housekeeper and hostess. At first he used to rag her in front of the guests, but he accidentally discovered that the embarrassment he caused was making entertaining a matter of actual terror to her and rendering her still more incompetent.

And being a man who knew how to handle people in business, he had the rare common sense to see that he ought to apply the same methods in his home. He would talk over her dinners with her afterwards, say what was specially good and make suggestions for improvement.

If it results a man wants, and not the gratification of working off his nervous irritability, that is certainly the better method.

The Problem of Valera.

Now that the Irish Free state has captured Abraham de Valera or whatever his given name happens to be, the problem is what are they to do with him. He is in the singular position of a man without a country, as much as an interloper in Ireland as the Russian Bolsheviks who under assumed names have been trying to destroy government on this continent. By birth Valera is an American citizen who has never taken out naturalization papers either as a British or an Irish subject, but the United States does not want him. He fled as an anonymous fugitive from that country after his efforts to disrupt the national conventions of both the Republican and Democratic parties had convinced the American authorities that he was an undesirable who had best be kept in close confinement.

Obviously Valera became an Irish "patriot" because he thought it a more fruitful source of graft than the humble but useful calling of teaching mathematics. When he was conducting his campaign for Irish "freedom" in the United States his expenditures of "patriotic funds" were so prodigious that they roused the antagonism even of quondam friends.

No gambler ever scattered illicit gains with so reckless a hand. And when he found that the re-constitution of Ireland would bring no profits to himself, he at once became a conspirator against his associates in the agitation for self-government in Ireland. There is no doubt that he conspired at the murder of Mike Collins, who had attained the dominating position to which he himself aspired, and that he would have compassed the assassination of William Cosgrave, the present head of the Irish Free State if he could have accomplished it without danger to his own skin.

Valera is clearly a man who would slay (by deputy of course) any man who stood in the way of his own greed for power and money. He is responsible for the deaths of countless men better than himself, but the world has gotten tired of the rope or the rifle, as a solvent of political problems. Because of this sentiment it is possible that Valera may be permitted to live to a ripe old age. It is typical of the utter yellowness of his character that he, who had instigated so much slaughter, should have fainted at the mere prospect of arrest.

THE LONELY ONE.

I walk through the streets of the village, and list to the voice of the throng; the farmer is talking of tillage and proves that the weather is wrong. The merchant is talking of taxes which rob him of all he can gain, and bitter and wrathful he waxes; it's grievous to hear him complain. The statesman is talking of dangers which threaten our lives and our rolls; to safety we're bound to be strangers until he wins out at the polls. And everyone's talk is devoted to him and his little concerns; no voice, in the clamor is noted, discounting of Shelley or Burns. I long for an earnest discussion, when tired, at the close of the day, of Tolstol, the thundering Russian, of Shakespeare or Bertha M. Clay. I'm tired of the things that are said, of men who get rich in a night; I'd like to hear merit accorded to Milton and Harold Bell Wright. There's no one to talk of the ages, of Hugo and A. Conan Doyle; but men, in their fatuous rages, are talking of wells shooting off. The lawyer is spitting of leases; the cooper is drooling of crooks, the uncle is cursing his niece, but no one is speaking of books. And so I am lonely and friendless. I'm bored by the twaddle I hear; the talk of the people is endless, but it is a grief to the ear.

The man and girl were discussing kissing, he declaring that a man could kiss a girl whether she willed it or not, and she maintaining that it couldn't be done. Finally they decided that the only way to prove their contentions was to try it. They did. The man won after a brief struggle and kissed the girl ardently for several minutes. Then he released her. "Oh, well," said the girl, "you really didn't win fair. My foot slipped. Let's try it again."

What's on your Sticker-Shell?

Every shop has a back shelf filled with "stickers" that is with goods which sold well for a time and then went flat. Every shopkeeper has a "sticker shelf," a museum for goods which he bought, but couldn't sell.

Sunlight Soap never goes back to the "sticker shelf." Sunlight sells well all the time and goes out as fast as it comes in.

Sunlight Soap is the one Soap which doesn't go flat—it goes fast, and always leaves a profit behind to pay for its keep.

Shopkeepers! Don't buy Soap you cannot sell. Buy Sunlight Soap, the Soap which sells itself. Sunlight is always best.

Stick to Sunlight and You Won't be Stuck

Is Lloyd George a Weak Man.

The cable despatches just now are full of references to the vanished influence of Hon. David Lloyd George. But the question arising is this: decline in prestige, his own fault, or due to moral infirmity of the public? Lloyd George was regarded as a great and far-seeing man when he took control of the affairs of the world, and whipped the wavering Allies, (especially France, who was ready to quit any time after 1915) into a resolution to win the war. It is generally known to all students of the official records that, despite mistakes in small things, his relentless pursuit of the main thing, Victory, and his moral terror in rousing all the people who opposed German ambitions, was a prime factor in winning the war.

Is it a sign of weakness, or of the evidence of a generous and far-seeing mind, that he should revolt against the policy of kicking and pounding a prostrate foe to death? It is in accordance with the code of honor for a nation, having signed a treaty of peace, to assume that that treaty was merely an excuse for carrying on aggression against a disarmed enemy. Lloyd George surely could not be accused of pro-Germanism at the time when Germany was powerful, and now why should he be spoken of as a traitor, now that Germany is weak? The plain facts of the matter are that those who are horrified by the idea that the industrial virtues of the Germans should again have an opportunity to take their just place in the world, are actuated by a covert spirit of cowardice. If Lloyd George's advice was good in time of peril it should be good in a period of comparative security.—Saturday Night.

Back to Bow and Arrow.

A new thrill has been given, or rather, an ancient thrill has been restored to big game hunting by Dr. Saxon T. Pope, an enthusiast for archery who found shooting at a target much too tame for his taste.

Dr. Pope, who is director of the Museum of Anthropology at San Francisco, found recently that he needed a specimen of a man who would slay (by deputy of course) any man who stood in the way of his own greed for power and money. He is responsible for the deaths of countless men better than himself, but the world has gotten tired of the rope or the rifle, as a solvent of political problems.

Five arrows were needed for this feat, but a magnificent bigon was killed with only one in a similar expedition in the Washington reserve.

So far British sportsmen have not followed the lead of these American archers, but some daring spirit may presently show the way. At the same time few men, however brave, would care to go after a rhinoceros, for example, with no better weapon than the bow and arrow of our ancestors.

Jury Find Verdict Against Jockey.

FOR KILLING A RACE.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Probably for the first time in the history of the turf a horse owner has sued a jockey for damages for the loss of a horse killed on a race track. Hence the case of H. J. Boam, of Hove, Brighton, against Michael Beary, the Irish Jockey, for £200 for the loss of the race horse Ironore, who had excited more than usual interest on the part of the public generally. The plaintiff claimed that Ironore, a mare, was killed in May last, while running in a selling plate at Kempton Park as a direct result of Beary's chowding Ironore's jockey F. Lane. Beary was riding Golly Eyes. Ironore was thrown against the rails and Lane was pitched several yards forward on the course. Lane escaped injury but Ironore was killed, her neck having been broken in the fall. The case was tried by a jury, with Justice Darling presiding, and a verdict was given for Plaintiff Boam for £200. In his evidence the plaintiff said that during the running of the race the defendant, on Golly Eyes, ran in front of his mare, Ironore, to secure a more favorable position near the rails, with the result that there was a collision between the defendant's horse and Ironore, whose neck was broken. He valued the mare at £700 or £800. She had won several races. Boam said he had been racing in England for two years. Previously he had raced his horses in South Africa. He admitted that he had never before heard of such an action as this against a jockey. Neither had he ever before known of a horse being killed in a race as the result of the carelessness of a jockey. Frederick Lane, the jockey on Ironore at the time of the accident, gave evidence, placing the blame on Jockey Beary. The horses all were racing for the bend, because if they lost their inside place they would have a poor chance of catching up afterwards. One horse was hoving in to another and Ironore was the ultimate sufferer. Beary testified that he was forced by other jockeys in the race to bump his horse Golly Eyes, into Lane's mount. Justice Darling, in summing up for the enlightenment of the jury, referred to the action being the first of the kind brought in the English courts. He mentioned that there was a bend at Kempton Park, and those jockeys who got their horses to the rails as a rule won, and that was what the Jockey wanted of course. But they must do it rightly, not wrongly, he said. "Racing," said the judge, "is not a bit like hunting or polo. It is only a question of sitting on a horse for two or three minutes at the outside. It does not look like horsemanship at all. It is essential that jockeys should only try to get in front of each other by legitimate and proper means, and not by foul means. Foul riding must be discouraged. The judge, referring to the fact that the Stewards of the Jockey Club had found Beary guilty of foul riding in connection with the killing of Ironore, warned the jury that this was not to affect their decision. It was for the plaintiff to prove his case in court, if he could do so. As to the question of damages, if the jury found for the plaintiff the judge reminded the jury that evidence had been given that the mare Ironore had been sold on one occasion for £364 and at another time for £200. The jury agreed that it was a case of foul riding and that £200 was enough for Ironore.
