EUROPEANS FLEEING FROM HIS

APPROACH. Egypt's Difficulty in Evacuating the Sou-

CAIRO, Jan. 11.—The ministry of war in a statement regarding the proposed evacuation of the Soudan shows that there are 21,000 men and 84 guns there. The removal to Khartoum of the ammunition stored at Kassala would require four thousand camels or six thousand if the material on the Abyssinian frontier should also be removed. The march from Berber to Wadyhalfa through the desert would be impossible. It would be necessary to make the journey by the river, which would take three months and require 1300 boats. Several Bedouin tribes along the Nile between Khartoum and Berber have declared for El Mahdi.

THE CELTIC AT SEA.

Four of Her Passengers Landed at Fal-

London, Jan. 11.-The steamer Argosy, from New York has arrived off the Lizard. She met the steamer Celtic 1250 miles out and took off several of her passengers, whom she transferred to a tug bound to Falmouth. The Celtic was perfectly seaworthy and amply supplied with provisions. Her captain was in hopes of being picked up by the Brittania. More of the Celtic's passengers would have gone on board the Argosy if the latter could have accommodated them.

Four passengers from the Celtic have landed at Falmouth. They state that at one time the gale was so heavy the Celtic's sails were blown out of the ropes. All the canvas on board the steamer was utilized. The Rothnia was sighted Dec. 29. Only whom she transferred to a tug bound to one time the gale was so heavy the Celtic's sails were blown out of the ropes. All the canvas on board the steamer was utilized. The Bothnia was sighted Dec. 29. Only numbers were exchanged by the two steamers. The Celtic's passengers considered the captain of the Celtic somewhat dilatory in signalized. dilatory in signalling. It was a week before another vessel was signalled. Meanwhile her fresh provisions gave out, but she had salt stores enough for a year. The steamer Argosy offered to tow the Celtic, but the offer was declined. When it was learned that the Argosy could take only four passengers there Celtic whose time was valuable. Lots were drawn for the coveted berths on the Argosy. Two of the fortunate four went on board of that steamer, and the other two sold their places to the highest bidders. THE CANTON RIVER BLOCKADED. The War Party in the Ascendant in China. Hong Kong, Jan. 11-The Chinese have blockaded the Canton river, between the Canton and Borgue forts, leaving only a navigable passage of ninety feet. Calls have been issued for recruits for the Chinese army.

Dresden, Jan. 11.—The Marquis Tzeng

in a letter received here declares that the capture of Sontay by the French had strengthened the war party in China, and it was questionable whether China would now accept mediation for a settlement of the Tonquin difficulty. It also says China would perhaps double the tax on foreign goods to cover the war expenses.

HAMILTON'S HAUNTED CELLS. The Ghost of McConnell, the Murdere

Said to Walk the Corridors of the Jail. Eight years ago Michael McConnell, a Hamilton butcher, murdered Mr. Nelson Mills, a gentleman living in the west end of the ambitious city. McConnell was form Candidate A Joint Meeting with hanged for the crime March 14, 1876, and Much Talking. the Hamilton Spectator states the jail is now believed to be haunted by the spectre of the murderer. Says the Spectator: With McConnell's death it might reas > ground and stubbornly persists in haunting the east yard, and what is known as the the east yard, and what is known as the east basement corridor. On the western side of the corridor the "black holes" or punishment cells are situated. These are small apartments provided with nothing. Prisoners are put there for 6, 12 and 24 hours, according to the nature of the offense. Now a man might naturally be presumed to have a horror of staying in a dark and comfortless cell, but prisoners dread to go, not only for that reason, but because they declare they are haunted by the ghost of the man who was hanged on that wild March morning so many years might, and every time she nears the slight-est noise down-stairs, the poor woman starts up in the bed and endeavors to grasp a descending axe in the hands of an imagin-ary man. It is feared her reason, if not her life, is in danger. WELCOMED TO TORONTO.

TO THE CIVIC ADDRESS. High Compliment to Toronto-The Im-

glorious colony received a formal welcome to the queen city yesterday at the hands onably be supposed that the affair would of the mayor and corporation. The affair end, but it seems that his perturbed spirit was attended with the usual ceremony and passed off quietly. The vice regal party will not rest quietly beneath the cold, cold arrived at the city hall a few minutes after 3 o'clock, having been escorted from government house by a detachment of the government. ernor-general's body guard, com. manded by Capt. Dunn. A guard called, Of myself, sir, I will only say this, that it is a source of infinite satisfaction to me to find myself in a position which gives me opportunities greater than those of others for visiting and acquiring a knowledge of this portion of the queen's dominions, which enables me to take a part in the administration of its public affairs, and to become acquainted with the men who, whatever their rank, party or place of origin, whether they are associated with federal or with provincial or with municipal government are shaping its future destinies. And now, sir, allow me to express the pleasure with which I find myself in the city of Toronto, a pleasure which is certainly increased by the fact that your citizens were the first to make known to me after my arrival here their desire that I should pay them a visit. But, gentlemen, irrespectively of this I was desirous to visit Toronto because I felt that until I had done so I should fail to realize what manner of country Canada really was. You have spoken in your address of the comparative youth of your institutions, and you have reminded me that your civic history may be said to have commenced only fifty years ago. Fifty years ago is, no doubt, a very insignificant space in the lifetime of a nation or of a city, but whatever may be our respect for antiquity we cannot forget that it is the use which a nation or a city has made of its life and not merely the length of its duration which entities it to respect. [Hear, hear] Judged by this standard the position of Toronto is one of which the dominion and the empire of which it forms a part may well be proud, I doubt indeed whether there is any city in the world more remarkable than yours for the variety of the successes which it has achieved in a short space of time. [Hear, hear.] It is the seat of the legislature of this great province and the theatre of its political activity; it is the metropolis of a great agricultural district; it is the home of numerous and thriving industries; it is the abode of our provincial their influence felt, and which are spreading, not only over this province, but over the whole of the North American continent that culture without which material prosperity may become a curse rather than a blessing. As I passed through your spacious thoroughfares and observed not only the admirable public buildings and commercial premises which meet the eye at every step, but also the general evidences of comfort and well being, for which it appears to me Toronto is more remarkable than any city which I have ever visited, I thought that I could well understand that, being citizens of such a city, you should be not only proud but jeaolus of it, and that while you are ready to spend your energies and your fortunes in its advancement, you should resent any action, whether on the part of public or of private bodies, which might impair the pr sperity of your home or lower the general standard of comfort and order which obtains within it. I have made this observation because I am aware that there is an impression in some quarters, possibly an impression in some quarters, possibly an impression that the stream of immigration which has recently set towards your shores needs more careful regulation, and that if it is not so regulated they are liable to be invaded by a class of persons of whom the old country is anxious to be rid, but who would be by no means a valuable accession to the new. Now, sir, I have had some opportunity of observing these matters, both from the point of view from which they are regarded on the other side of the Atlantic, and what I would venture to impress on you is that there is absolutely no divergence of opinion at home. [Hear, hear.] Nothing has been further from the thoughts of the imperial government, or of the private promoters of emigration, than the idea of sending to this country persons who are not able to take their place as useful members of society in the land of their adoption. I rejoice that this subject is being treated in somewhat of a critical spirit on this side. The more li tury and is increasing at a geometrical rate. It is inevitable that a portion of itshould seek its fortunes abroad, and as a matter of fact that is the case aiready. Is it unreasonable to suggest that if these people are to leave the country of their birth we should do all we can to induce them to remain subjects of the crown, and to take their share in the development of that vast inheritance which Canadian enterprise besteened but to their with club stamps our new governor-general as a man of good sense, of exquisite tact, and as one endowed with rare literary taste as touched dangerous ground more than once with skill worthy of an older navigator, making his points every time but slipping away on a new tack before his audience had quite had time to mark, learn and inwardly digest the points he had given them. That the speech was not one elaborately studied and prepared before delivery, is obvious from the freshness of the illustrations with which it abounded, one of the most humorous sections of it having been devoted to his experiences at Niagara Falls during the afternoon of the same day; while every now and again there was a spontaneous ring about his excellency's remarks that elicited the hearty applause of his audience in a manner that no cut-anddried oration could have done. It was no great oratorical effort; there was no expenditure of force, no attempt at declama-It was the happily delivspeech of a refined gentleman scholar addressed in a private room to those who for the moment were his would have been in questionable taste Yet of men belonging to the overdone trade he managed to advise without lecturing will stop. every sensible man in the country, whether it be his native or adopted home. The felicitous simile of the wide spreading elm whose larger branches bent to the earth and there took root, forming a cluster for protection as well of each other as of the parent tree will not soon be forgotten. It has often been said that those who give themselves the most airs are generally parvenues in no way entitled to considera tion. Lords Dufferin, Lorne and Lansdowne are all men of great social eminence and distinction, and if we say, that of the three our present governor-general is perhaps the most perfectly natural and unaffected, those who have known his predecessors will understand that we are paying his worth no inconsiderable compliment,

Lady Lansdowne has charmed everybody by the same simplicity of manner that characterises her husband; and the gentlemen on the staff, notably Lord Melgund, are assiduous in their efforts to please. The new regime has in fact been started into brilliant promise. And if a governorgeneral can, out of threadbare materials, make such an excellent speech as that delivered on Thursday night, he may well tion, while still wishing to see the counbe trusted, should matters worthy of his try's population doubled within reasonable metal arise, to take a stand that shall show him to be no mere ornamental figurehead. but a man of executive and administrative ability, with a will of his own, not to be overcome without expostulation, and whose talents will insure his being a substantive element in the governing machinery of the

The Reader Question.

This vexed question increases in its complications. The minister, we understand, came to the cabinet council on Thursday with his new scheme all in order, but for some reason or other it was not acceptable, whether to his colleagues or the publishers we cannot say. At all events the matter is further from settlement than ever.

There is no thoroughly satisfactory way out of the muddle; we shall, nevertheless, take the liberty of suggesting the best possible course under the circumstances. It

The idea of a composite series is impracticable. Any one of the series in its entirety, we venture to say, will be a better series than one made up of two books from each of the three rival sets. We can understand a clever man taking the three sets, analyzing them, finding the best points of each, and then forming an entirely new series on the basis of none of them, but including the best features of each and containing the most appropriate selections from the three. There would be consequence in such a method. But to merely tie six books together arranged in three different methods is the purest of patchwork inconsequentially carried out.

A uniform series is wanted, but the uniformity must be as much in the series, as in the schools using them.

What we would advise then is to take one of the rival series, leave it to some com-

Taking the Bull by the Horns.

During the dominion election contest in 1882 there appeared in our columns an article by Mr. Phipps, in which it was maintained that a large immigration was for the benefit of the country. The new con were sure to be consumers as well as producers, and would not only seek work for themselves, but would create work for others, such was the general drift of the argument. More recently, however, we have had to speak of assisted immigration as an injury to Canada instead of a benefit, and it may be asked how we reconcile these opposing views? We propose to take this bull by the horns, and show that we have not been inconsistent Let us suppose a community of a million eople, among whom there exists an ideal perfection of the division of labor. There are just as many cultivators of the soil as suffice to supply farm produce for the whole. The number of weavers, tailors, blacksmiths, carpenters, and men of all other trades is just enough, also, to supply the wants of the whole, in each line respectively. In this ideal condition of things there would be work for every man, well as with much practical ability. He no trade would be overcrowded, and there would be men for all the work there was to do. Suppose, again, that the community were increased to two millions, the proportion of men in the various trades still being kept good, the balance would be maintained, and there would still be work for every man in his place. Suppose it increased to five millions, or ten millions, with the proportion of men in the various trades preserved, there would still be a place for every man, and work for all. But let us suppose that to the original one million of people there were suddenly added ten thousand men, all of one trade, or of no trade at all, there would immediately be lack of employment and a fall in wages.

tion brings us to. When immigration is left alone, and when people are allowed to come in as they please, the balance of employment in a manner regulates itself. It may go wrong, occasionally, but will always tend to right itself very quickly. If more carpenters than the country can employ come in, or hosts. To have said anything unpleasant, more tailors, for instance, the fact will soon become known, and the influx has been said more than once—if not the balance. The immigrants who have to with equal grace of diction-in the columns be "assisted" are sure to consist largely of men having no trade at all, while many of We hail with delight the manly them will be found belonging to trades that utterance of views that are held by They are an addition to the very class of whom we have too many here already. Supposing that we had an ideal balance of employment before, with a place for every man and every man in his place, a few thousands of assisted immigrants would destroy the balance at once, and cause a lack of employment to be felt.

It is different with an immigration of farmers, or men who come here to take up land. Of them we never can have too many, as long as there are millions of acres lying unoccupied. If the whole mass of mmigrants were composed of farmers and tradesmen in the right proportion one would make work for the other and the balance would be preserved. But the assisted imnigrants are all, or mostly all, of the class that crowd into the towns, where there are always more people seeking work than work can be found for. It is not the numbers merely of the immigrants that is objected to, but the fact that they are not the kind of people that are wanted. We want the country filled up, but not with them. We may therefore be perfectly consistent in opposing assisted immigra-

The despatches received from Quebec are something like the cablegrams received from China and from Cairo-very unreliable and conflicting. The latest news from the ancient capital is that Mr. Mousseau has accepted the judgeship of Rimouski and that the Hon. Dr. Ross of Three Rivers has been summoned to form a cabinet. If the report be true, we can only say it will he a good thing for the province, which could not have been in worse hands than Mr. Mousseau's, and a bad thing for the county judgeship of Rimouski.

> An Open Letter to Mr. Blake, To the Hon, Edward Blake.

SIR: There are times in the affairs of a country when it is necessary to depart from the ordinary course of its politics, and when the condition of things in the comnonwealth has arrived at such a state as to make every man feel who is loyal to the crown that some great effort must be made in order to meet the existing evils. I feel persuaded that this condition of things has been arrived at in this country, and that it is now full time to extricate ourselves, if it be not too late, from the evils which now exist, and which if not now corrected must necessarily grow until they shall have become intolerable. Before pointing out the evils which at present exist and which threaten us. I will explain the reason why I have taken the liberty of addressing this open letter to you, sir. It is because I conceive that as a leader in politics in this country, you are in a position to come forward at this crisis and act as the true friend of the this crisis and act as the true friend of the interests of your country. You have a bility and influence, and I believe also that you are eady to give all to the service of your country; and if you will be a patriot, if will cast aside the party lines and break away from this intolerable thraldom which ready to surse the French and Roman in-fluence which is ruling the dominion, and which is doing its best to bring the control of sverything under the hand of the emissary of an alien power and who are playing into the hands of men who are Romanists first, and perhaps Brit who are playing into the hands of men who are Romanists first, and perhaps British subjects afterward. I have now opened this subject, I propose to continue it, but I will make my letters short as more suit-I will make my letters short as more suitable for a newspaper, and I will send them to The World because the Mail and the Globe are simply Roman organs. Mr. Martin J. Griffin, the editor of the Mail, Mr. Timothy Anglin on the Globe are both Romanists, and no one can read these papers, especially the Mail, without at once seeing that under the cloak of politics they are using these papers to build up Romanists. are using these papers to build up Roman ism in this country. I hope to follow this by other letters as my time will permit. Your o'sedient servant, VIATOR.

Inspector Hughes and Mr. Gilray. To the Editor of the World.

SIR: In the issue of the Mail and Glob of Wednesday, Jan. 2, J. L. Hughes, the public school inspector of the city of Toonto has been pleased once more to rush into print. I have not had time to reply to this letter, the tone, language and logic of which one does not expect from a public school inspector. In it he states that I said at the nomination that "he had gone over the country advocating the use of certain text books in the public schools at teacher's conventions," and denies absolutely that he ever did so publicly. This is an adroit denial and an implied admission of private advocacy on his part, which by the way he does not deny. It is no wish of mine to prolong the controversy, but there are other ways of advocating text books at conventions, and these other ways J. L. Hughes certainly did pursue, and if he dares to deny it I shall be pleased to give him the names of the parties he canvassed and publish some of the printed testimonials and opinions which a goodly number of the inspectors refused to sign. It may be true my friend refused to sign. It may be true my friend J. L. Hughes has no pecuniary interest in the publishing firm in question, but it in the publishing firm in Question, but it in the publishing firm in question, but it any one has seen his Drills and Calisthenics, his Mistakes in Teaching, his Practical Speller (until completed by an American proof-reader), his Outlines of Canadian History, his Notes on English History, and his editorial management of the Canada School Journal. All issued by the firm in question, they will read by the firm in question, they will read in judge. the firm in question, they will readily infe his zeal in advocating (not publicly) the text book series in question, but if there should still be doubts, Mr. Gage's advertisement of J. L. Hughes as one of the editors of the Readers in question, will

I do not wish to say that the testimonials and opinions sent to the inspectors for signature were printed by this firm under J. L. Hughes' direction, but they were printed and circulated no doubt in their interest, and my friend, J. L. Hughes, was by no means unconcerned in their distribution He says I have drawn on my imagination somewhat, and I trust the above statements are sufficiently concrete to satisfy even J. L. Hughes' mind on the reliability of my statements. But if J. L. Hughes should still pant for notoriety as a model of public integrity, I shall be pleased to detail a few more facts which will tax his adroitness to explain away satisfactorily.

Railroad companies are held to account i neavy damages for injury to passengers, beause it is their business to earry them safely. So it is every man's business to carry his fam ily safely through the period of their dependence, and to trifle with interests so sacred, by putting them to unnecessary hazard, it is to incur a very grave responsibility. When a man does his best there still remain risks enough; but woe unto him who neglects a asonable precaution against dangers that are well known.

When one goes on board a steamboat and ees the fire-buckets and axes, the life-boats and life-preservers, and then reflects how sel iom there is any occasion to use them, it seems like a waste of money-a provision against Thousands of passengers are carried every year and not one of them uses a life-preserver, the life-boats rot at the davits; but who would wish to travel on a steamboat that neglected to provide such things? The truth is, when such things are needed it is a matter of life or death and the people realize that it is better to provide them ten thousand times where they may prove unnecessary, than to be without them once when they need them. But no large company of persons journey through the world long before some of them feel the need of life insurance. Every year the shadows of death fall upon the homes and

An Englishman has patented a device by which the front wheels of two bicycles may be so joined as to permit the machines to be driven abreast by two riders. One advantage of this form of riding is that falling forward over the handles is rendered quite impossible, and another is that a greatly increased pace is attainable. Ascents and descents can thus be made when previously it was necessary to discount of the descent of two parts.

Our idea of training, says Bell's Life in London, is simple enough. All the athlete has to do is take plenty of exercise, live drink little, and smoke less. If possible, do entirely without the latter luxury, but should the athlete be a confirmed smoker a few whiffs at bed-time will do him less harm than constantly hankering after a pipe. Further, in most cases hard work before breakfast should be avoided, and do not make the training so arduous that the man's energies become exhausted before the race. It is better for him to be a bit "above himself" than the reverse.

SIR: "A Lover of True Sport," for one who was not present at the contest on Wednesday evening, knows a wonderful deal about the affair. Instead of questioning the possibility of its having been "fixed," he makes positive and sweeping show speed on the runners never before seen in the dominion or anywhere else.— who simply bases his convictions on the New York Truth, Jan 10.

James Finney of Oldham, Eng., has signified his willingness to accept Wm. Beckwith's challenge to swim one mile in open water, for £500 or £1000 a side, in May next. He offers the Londoner £10 to swin at Hollingworth Lake, or would meet him half way between home and home. Beckwith, however, declines to swim out of half way between home and home. Beckwith, however, declines to swim out of London.

Edward Trickett and Michael Rush the contest was characterized by hard hitting and fierce determination on either side, combined with thorough science. Certainly this was what everybody expected, but nobody anticipated a "brutal exhibition," it only from the fact that they went there knowing perfectly well that the police would not allow anything of the

I think I am correct in stating that Harry Gilmoreis the last man to listen to any proposition as to the "fixing" of a contest. He is far too honest, and far too confident of his own prowess to entertain anything of that sort, and there is no reason to believe that Hurs; was not equally confident, and for aught we know, equally

What is Catarrh?

From the Mail (Canada) Dec. 15, Catarrh is a muco-purulent discharge caused by the presence and development of the vegetable parasite ameba in the internal lining membrane of the nose. This parasite is only developed under favorable circumstances, and these are: Morbid state of the blood, as the blighted corpusele of tuberele, the germ poison of syphilis, mercury, toxemea, from the retention of the effectd matter of the skin, suppressed perspiration, badly ventilated sleeping apartments, and other poisons that are germinated in the blood. These poisons keep the internal lining membrane of the nose in a constant state of irritation, ever ready for the deposit of the seeds of these germs, which spread up the nostrils and down the fauces or back of the throat, causing ulceration of the throat, up the eustachian tubes, causing deafness, burrowing in the vocal cords, causing heareness; usurping the proper structure of the bronchial tubes, ending in milmonary con-

the throat, causing ulceration of the throat, up the eustachian tubes, causing deafness, burrowing in the vocal cords, causing heareness; usurping the proper structure of the bronchial tubes, ending in pulmonary consumption and death.

Many attempts have been made to discover a cure for this distressing disease by the use of inhalants and other ingenious devices, but none of these treatments can do a particle of good until the parasites are either destroyed or removed from the mucous tissue.

Some time since a well known physician of forty years' standing, after much experimenting, succeeded in discovering the necessary combination of ingredients which never falls in absolutely and permanently eradicating this horrible disease, whether standing for one year or forty years. Those who may be suffering from the above disease should, without delay, communicate with the business managers, Messrs. A. H. Dixon & Son, 305 King street west, Toronto, and get full particulars and treatise free by enclosing stamp.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, nave greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I kne w, and reading their testimony was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. I am satisfied the medicine snot injunious, and will frankly add that if I tound myself the victim of a serious kidney rouble I should use this preparation. The cruth is, the medical profession stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one cidney malady, while the testimony of hun-lireds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leaves room to doubt that Mr. H. Provincial Health Bulletin. The bulletin for last week is to the following effect: Bronchitis, which, though high, has been stationary for several weeks, shows an advance, while influenza, which last week had shown a very great advance, has this week become still more prevalent, and tonsillitis has also advanced. Amongst fevers, intermittent shows a wall meaked fevers, intermittent shows a well marked decrease in prevalence, and enteric is ap-parently likewise on the decline. Of the contagious zymotics, there is none which has shown any marked change from last week. The outbreak of smallpox which occurred in a lumber camp near Rosseau, was an item of much interest, inasmuch as the negligence to use the property of the contagion of of the contagi the negligence, to use no stronger term, which allowed the sick man to pass from this point to Orillia in a railway train, was most reprehensible. Whooping cough, scarlatina and measles show no tendency to increase. Diphtheria once more excites

John Drummond, a Grand Trunk railway engineer, came down to the city from Stratford on No. 3 passenger train yester-day evening to report on duty. As the train passed the roundhouse he jumped off, alightning in a snow bank. The snow was alightning in a snow bank. The snow was banked pretty high at this point, and Drummond being unable to balance himself fell back upon the track and was run over. Both his legs and one of his arms were horribly mangled, being almost severed from his body. He was carried on a stretcher to Union station, whence the ambulance conveyed him to the hospital. The poor man died a few minutes after arriving there. He was sensible to arriving there. He was sensible to the last. Deceased came here to take a train back to Stratford, where his wife and

The Literary and Musical society of the Normal school held a meeting Thursday evening, the first since school closed for the cevening, the first since school closed for the Christmas holidays. The program consisted of a piano solo by Miss Fenton, a reading by Mr. A. B. Fry, violin solos by Messrs. French and J. W. Rogers, vocal solo by Miss Henderson, a recitation by Miss P. C. Scott. A debate—"Resolved, that great speakers, have greater influence" stocks placed with the bank to sloan. When the suburban train left the Queen's whars at 4.25 yesterday it was followed by a freight. After High park had been passed the freight came up pretty fast upon the suburban. Some of the passengers became alarmed that the disaster of het week would be represted and two sengers became alarmed that the disaster of last week would be repeated, and two men and a woman jumped off. It is said that there was really no danger, as the suburban engine was as powerful as the one attached to the other train and got away from it in a few seconds. The three who jumped were hedly about 100 men. who jumped were badly shaken up, particularly the woman, a Mrs. Gabutt of Mimico. Agent Gormaly sent a doctor out to attend to her.

Last evening a public meeting of the Weston high school literary society was held, at which there was a fair attendance The chair was taken by Mr. Jackson and after music by Miss Brown the chairman innounced the subject of debate to be Resolved that moral suasion is preferable "Resolved that moral suasion is preferable to a prohibitory liquor law." The affirmative was sustained by Messrs, Wilson and Glassford while Messrs. Patterson and Dunton took up the negative. The line of argument pursued by the speakers on the affirmative was that the law had no right to interfere with a man's personal liberty; that prohibition is not effective and even if enacted could not be enforced. The if enacted could not be enforced. The gentlemen on theother side sustained that intemperance is a crime against the state, consequently the state has a right to stamp it out by prohibitory measures; that by prohibition we gain our object in a shorter time, and effectually eradicate the evil of drunkenness by removing the cause. After reviewing the principal arguments used on each side Mr. Wallace, headmaster of the school, gave his decision in favor of the affirmative.

The Insurance Libel Case. The libel case against the Budget, Canada's insurance journal, for saying that the Citizen's insurance company was guilty of 'reckless underwriting" was continued at the assizes yesterday before Mr. Justice Rose and a jury. Mr. G. E. Hart, manager of the company, who had been on the witness stand for about five hours on the witness stand for about five hours on the previous day, continued his testimony. He was examined mainly with respect to the business of the company, the defendants seeking to make it appear that the company had lost much money, and that this could have been the result of "reckless" management. Mr. John Morison, governor of the British American assurance company was called, and gave expert testimony adverse to the Citizens. The case was not concluded when the court rose, and it will probably occupy the greater part of to-day.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—A joint meeting ommittee on agriculture an mmittee on cattle was held to-day. A mber of the latter said the cattle disea existed in Delaware, District of Columbia Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Connecticut and in a few counties in Nev York. Dr. Law, of the cattle commi treasury department, said the disease was the result of importation and that with plenty of money and the federal law it could be eradicated in twelve months. He advocated burning the building where the disease occurred. Representative Hatch said Mr. Singleton of Illinois had offered one thousand dollars reward for an animal infected with pleuro-pneumonia, but no one had accepted the offer. Several members of the cattle committee at once offered to show the disease to any one doubting o show the disease to any one its existence. Representative Weller gave notice that he would offer a bill appropri ating ten million dollars by the govern ment for the suppression of contagion diseases in cattle, the sum to be distributed among the states and territories in ratio of their representation in congress, pro-vided each state appropriates a sum equal in amount to that given it by the federal
