THE CLIMAX OF A WORLD'S TRIBUTE TO A GREAT KING BUT ONE THOUGHT IN ST. JOHN TODAY, AND THAT IS OF EDWARD

Memorial Services in Many Churches This Morning, Large Congregations Attending

Mayor, Civic Officials and Societies Gather in Trinity—Bishop Casey Makes Eloquent Remarks and Cathedral Chimes Ring Out Dead March—Methodists and Presbyterians in Joint Services—Other Features of the Day in the City

In common with every other portion of the empire, the Loyalist city of St. John mourns today the passing of a great and wise ruler. While in England thousands of loyal and loving subjects were listening to the eulogies and prayers of the highest prelates in the land, or the muffled drums of the bands in the funeral cortege, in this city the people were honoring the memory of their late king by attending services in the churches and by appropriate signs of mourning.

His Majesty King George V.

At the services held in the churches this morning there was a very large attendance representative of all very impressive. Additional interest attached to the service in Trinity church, owing to the presence of the officers of the local militia in uniform and the members of the common council, who attended in a body. Special services were also held this morning in St. John's (Stone) church, St. Paul's (Valley), St. Andrew's Presbyterian, Centenary Methodist, Mission church, and the Hazen Avenue synagogue.

British people, and none has done more to strengthen those foundations than he whose memory we honor today. The speaker then went on to refer to the suddenness of the announcement of His late Majesty's illness and death and of the shock which the news was received. He touched also on the fact that even kings are subject to the will of the great ruler of the universe. In speaking of the "excellent qualities" which had endeared the king to his subjects, his high ability to bring about peace and happiness in South Africa and his efforts to bring about international peace, in which he was successful to a very large degree, the speaker recognized his own debt to the king's public duty. They relied on him. They considered him a worthy guardian of the empire's interests.

"Regardless of himself he would till the last grudging snarl of life had run and his last recorded utterance revealed a heart that was true to duty. "As he received so he gave—nothing grudgingly denying. "Not even the last gasp of his breath when he strove for his dying. "Our great king, like all men in death, had passed into the nearer presence of God. He like any other man now gives an account of his stewardship. His achievements and his failures balance which hangs in the hands of Almighty God. We trust that he may find mercy of God in that day and that his soul in Paradise above may rest in peace. "In closing Rev. Mr. Armstrong said: "Let us remember that the Lord is king, be the people ever so impatient; he will not be angry with us for our sins, but he will be angry with us for our unbelief. "And as the passing of our monarch thrusts death forcibly upon our notice and we realize that it is the common experience of all men, let us recall for our strength and consolation those grand majestic words uttered of old and reiterated over all sons of the church whether great or humble: "Lord, then hasten us from this generation to another. Before the mountains were brought forth, or even the earth and the world were made, thou art God from everlasting, and world without end. "Father in thy gracious keeping, Leave us now thy servant sleeping."

IN TRINITY

Rev. R. A. Armstrong Speaks of the King's Good Work—City Council and Societies Attend

The service in Trinity church was most impressive. Spazio had been reserved for the mayor and members of the common council, the officers of the local militia, St. George's Society and Sons of England, and those quietly died into their places. The service began at 10 o'clock. During the organist's rendition of Handel's "Dead March," the congregations rose and stood until the solemn notes died away. Rev. Mr. Armstrong took for his text, Chronicles, 22:33—"And Hezekiah slept with his fathers and they buried him in the presence of death and it is world-wide because a king whose subjects are in every land and whose empire always fronts the sun, is being borne to his tomb. Everyone who is interested in the world's peace and welfare turns in thought to the ideas are there in all their uplifting power. "And so behind our monarchial system there is a grand idea. As the family is the unit of the national life, so the nation is the archetype of the family. The highest office in the family is not elective, neither is the highest office of England's state. The king is the father of the people. Not by the will of man, but so long as we preserve this present form of government, by the Divine will. It matters not whether he be young or old, good or bad, the office may even fall, as it did, into the hands of a frail girl of eighteen, the same reverence and loyalty is paid the office itself by the people at large. "Foundation Deep and Solid "The British throne rests on deep and solid foundations in the hearts of the

IN THE CATHEDRAL

Bishop Casey's Eloquent Tribute—Catholics Regard for the Late Monarch

In the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, at the 11:15 mass this morning, His Lordship Bishop Casey eloquently referred to the death and funeral of King Edward. The "Dead March in G" was played on the chimes and special prayers were offered after the mass. His Lordship spoke as follows: "Today, as you know, my beloved, is the funeral day of His late Majesty, our deceased king. It is a day of sorrow and of mourning; it is an epoch in the history of the world; it is a day that will never be forgotten as long as the world's history is read. At the death of the late monarch, it was all natural that the hearts of his millions of subjects should be touched with grief that tongues should exult his praises, and make his memory evergreen. Since then this mourning refrain have blended the voices and tongues of all the nations of the earth, adding to our sorrow their melody and their pathos. This affords a sad, but a real comfort to the afflicted nation, so that we can say on the death of Edward VII, all nations of the earth mourned. "Speaking for Catholics and to Catholics, we are reminded that in the church there is a duty which she ever teaches her children to fulfill, and that is, loyalty, and obedience to our legitimate sovereign. As the foundation of this church, reminds us of the words of St. Paul to the Romans: "That great Apostle of the Gentiles tells us: 'Let every one be subject to higher power, for there is no power but from God, and that which are, are ordained of God; be ye, therefore, subject

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

Rev. Mr. Grant and Rev. Mr. Read Are Heard by Large Congregation This Morning

There was a large congregation in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church to listen to addresses by Rev. K. J. Grant and Rev. H. R. Read, Rev. Gordon Dickie conducted the service and prayer was offered by Rev. S. W. Anthony. Solos were sung by Miss Blenda Thompson and Fred McKean. The members of St. Andrew's Society occupied seats at the front of the church. Rev. Dr. Grant alluded to the grief of the people of the British Empire, 450,000,000 being bowed in sorrow. He said: "We need today to pay our tribute of love to the late sovereign and to sympathize with the queen mother and King George. Tribute after tribute we have had from the city press, all eloquently expressed, and one finds it difficult to say anything that has not already been said. "The speaker reviewed the many acts of the late king in his role as the peacemaker of the world. Now all nations were most friendly to Great Britain and there had been a wonderful coalition and King Edward was the force that brought it about. In an address given to an archbishop long ago, King Edward said, in speaking of world affairs: "The concord of Christendom is unbroken." The late ruler was endowed with a generous nature, tactfulness unrivaled and a shrewd vision of matters of state. Reference was made to the king's ill-

HIS TASK IS O'ER

(T. L. S. in Toronto Globe). Once man, also, the passing bell The tidings of our loss: The King is dead, O royal general, nobler of his name Few years that happy has the Empire seen Since from his stained mother's dying hand He took the scepter and with it the vow To live and reign as Great Victoria's son Now he is gone, and in our heart of hearts We say amen, to his last whispered word. His task is o'er, his duty is well done, God comfort her who sheds a widow's tear.

Tens of Thousands Who Sought Early for Positions Caught Not a Sight of the Funeral Procession, So Great Was the Throng—Late Monarch's Charger and His Pet Dog Led Behind Master's Body—Service at Windsor

(Associated Press) London, May 20.—The body of King Edward VII was carried through the streets of the capital today in the presence of hundreds of thousands of subjects and with the kings of nine European nations, several future rulers, members of all the royal families of the world and a former president of the United States following the caquet from Westminster Hall to Paddington Station.

King Edward VII.

The cortege moved through solid lines of caquet soldiers standing with rifles reversed and the regimental colors dipped to the ground. At the railway station the caquet was placed in a funeral car and taken to Windsor where, after the Church of England service had been conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury in St. George's Chapel, it was entombed in the Albert Memorial. The parade included many of the greatest men of the kingdom with representatives of all arms of the service and delegates from the most famous regiments of the empire and representative groups of foreign armies and navies. Behind the caquet, upon which rested the imperial symbols followed the late king's charger, while his favorite terrier was led by a Highland soldier just before the imperial ensign.

The morning was clear and a hot sun beat upon the scene of procession. It is doubtful if so many people were ever before seen in London. gray towers over which the union jack was flying a hallmast never appeared more impressive. In the streets below was a seething mass of people in black, with a lane kept open by two solid lines of soldiers for the cortege to pass through. When the royal train arrived at the station the body of the monarch was again placed on a gun carriage and the procession was returned with the addition of the ambassadors, ministers and other representatives of foreign states. Thus it to the caquet and into St. George's chapel. Joint Methodist Service With Sermon Preached by Rev. Dr. Rogers

The Methodists of the city held a united memorial service in Centenary church, and they attended in large numbers. The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Rogers, and the preacher was Rev. Dr. Rogers of Sussex. He delivered a forceful and inspiring sermon, eulogizing the late king and Queen Alexandra, and breathing a prayer that the new king would prove himself as good and capable a ruler as his father had been.

THE ROYAL LADIES

The mounted group was followed by twelve state carriages. The first was occupied by the Queen Mother Alexandra, the Russian Dowager Empress Marie, the princess royal and the Princess Victoria.

The second carriage contained Queen Mary of Great Britain, Queen Maud of Norway, the Duke of Cornwall, heir to the British throne, and Princess Mary. The next four carriages carried royal ladies and ladies in waiting. The seventh carriage carried Prince Tsai Tao of China and his suite. The eighth carriage was shared by special American Ambassador Theodore Roosevelt, Mr. Pichon, French foreign minister, and Saad Khan Mottaz, Sultan of Persia.

START AT 9:30

The procession started from the hall at 9:30 o'clock just as the first minute gun boomed. The president affixed by half a mile were unbroken stretches of temporary erected stands filled to their capacity with black garbed mourners.

The Transparent Wrap

Nothing so graceful as the chiffon cloak has been invented in a long while. These transparent wraps give a particularly dressy look to the simplest costumes, and when the frock beneath has an effective pattern, as in this instance, the wrap seems doubly rich. This chiffon cloak is made of black chiffon, combined with motifs of black chamois lace, and deep satin cuffs and a satin border down the front make the cloak more substantial and give the necessary weight to the filmy chiffon. The parasol is also of a dressy character, and the long silk gloves are delicately embroidered to match the frock.

Rising as if to bar the way, the crowning terrace apparently ended the trail against all further advance. Here Van finally halted, dismounted, and waited for the advent of his charges.

Both rode up uncertainly, her brown eyes closely scrutinizing his face.

"Let me see if the cinches are tight," said the horseman quietly, and he looked to the girth of her saddle.

It was found to be in a satisfactory condition. The girth on the bay he tightened, carefully pushing Elsa's foot and the cinch into the girth.

His own horse now showed unmistakable signs of weariness. He had traveled some twenty odd miles to arrive at Dave's before undertaking this present bit of hardship. Since then Van had pushed him to the limit of his strength and speed, in the effort to reach Goldie, tremendous in the all-prevailing silence—came clearly up to the top. Then Van found his feet could be rested on the shell, and he let himself relax to ease his arms.

two had disappeared. Nothing could she see of Van or his pony. A chill of horror attacked her, there in the blaze of the sun. It was not, even then, so much of herself and Elsa she was thinking—two helpless women, lost in this place of terrible silence—she was smitten by the fate of their guide.

Van, for his part, looked about as best he might, observing his situation comprehensively. He was safe for the moment. The ledge where he was bearing a portion of his weight was narrow and crumbling with age and disintegration. The shrub to which he clung was as tough as wire cable, and had once been stoutly rooted in the crevice. Now, however, it held but weakly, and he must continue to trust a part of his weight to its branches. There was nothing, positively nothing, by which he could hope to climb to the trail up above.

He deliberately rested and fostered his breath, not a trifle of which had been jolted in violence from his body. Presently he raised his voice and called out, as cheerfully as possible:

"Ship ahoy! Hello—Miss Laughing Water!"

For a moment there was no response. Beth was too utterly overcome to speak. She hardly dared believe it was his call she heard, issuing up from the tomb. She feared that her hope, her frantic imagination, her wish to have it so, had conjured up a voice that had no genuine existence. Her lips moved, but made no audible sound. She trembled violently.

Van called again, with more of his natural power.

"Hello! Hello! Miss Beth—are you up there on the trail?"

"Oh, yes! Oh! what shall I do?" cried Beth in a sudden outburst of relief and pent-up emotions. "Tell me what to do!"

Van knew that she was rather near at hand. The bridge and trail were certainly no more than twenty-five feet above his head. He could make her hear with little effort.

"Breathe up and keep your nerve," he instructed. "We're O.K. up to date. Just ride ahead till you come to the flat. Let Elsa hold your mare. Can you hear me plainly?"

"Oh! yes—yes—then what next?" replied the writhed girl.

Van resumed calmly: "You'll find a rawhide rope on Elsa's saddle. Come back with that, on foot. Then I'll tell you what to do. Don't try to hurry; take your time, and don't worry." After a moment, as he got no reply, he added: "Have you started?"

Beth had nudged her mare, for terror of what she must do. She was fortifying all her resolution. She answered with genuine bravery:

"Yes—I'll do what you say."

She took up the reins. Her pale face was set, but she did not close her eyes to cross the dizzying brink. The mare went forward—and Elsa's bay resumed his patient tagging, up to and past the awful place where a part of the shelf-edge, having been dislodged, had let Van's pony fall.

For ten agonizing minutes Van waited on his ledge, feeling the treacherous, rotten stuff break silently away beneath his feet. The shrub, too, was showing an earthy bit of root as it slowly but cer-

HAIL AND FAREWELL

Who in the realm today lays down
Dear life for the sake of a land more
dear?
And, unconcerned for his own estate,
Toils till the last grudging sands have run?
Let him approach. It is proven here
That King asks nothing of any man
More than our King himself has done.
—Kipling.

With splendid, yet subdued and mournful pageantry, in the great metropolis of this vast empire, the mortal remains of Edward the Peacemaker are today borne to the tomb. An empire mourns, and a world pauses at the spectacle, in token of profound and universal sympathy. That which is uppermost in the minds of men today, in every town and village and hamlet in the province of New Brunswick, is shared in common with the people of other provinces, other dominions and the sorrowing mother land.

As a tribute to the memory of a king, the gathering together of so many monarchs and representatives of foreign states, great and small, to take their places in the great funeral procession, is impressive beyond precedent; but that personal tribute to the man, which comes straight from the hearts of his people everywhere, and finds expression in memorial services in the country villages as well as in the great cities, is the really significant fact to be noted and remembered.

In the period that has intervened since the news of King Edward's death was flashed around the world, there has been time to estimate the general feeling with regard to him and his services to the empire and the world. With a remarkable, and perhaps unparalleled unanimity, his personal character and his acts and influence as king and emperor have been made the subject of the highest eulogy, in an age when freedom of expression is the guarantee that the estimate is impartial, and without other inspiration than the personal judgment of the authors.

Canada is second to none in her appreciation of the splendid gifts and high services of Edward the Seventh. Today, from the Atlantic to the Pacific the country is one in sorrow and in sympathy, and in rendering the last sad tribute which the empire pays to him who was its greatest citizen.

KING GEORGE V.
Tomorrow George V. becomes the central figure in the British empire in a more real sense than during the brief period since he assumed the duties of a king. Tomorrow the tomb will have closed over the body of the late monarch. Public attention will be diverted to the new king and his acts. He is today a mourner with his people. Tomorrow he must take up the task made more exacting because it was so nobly performed by his predecessor. There is no reason to fear that he will be unequal to the task.

His natural ability, his long and invaluable training, his intimate relations with his father, and his general knowledge of the affairs of the empire and the world at large are all in his favor. Responsibility, to a man trained in such a school and with such traditions, is an inspiration to splendid effort, and surely no constitutional monarch ever had so high an example. In the trying period of sudden grief and great bereavement, and of grave responsibility suddenly thrust upon him, King George has borne himself in such manner as to command respect and the loyal sympathy of the people. Despite the weight of the burden, therefore, there is sound reason to believe that he will walk in his father's footsteps as a constitutional ruler who values the people's welfare far more than personal inclinations or ambitions. Long live the King!

GROWTH OF TOLERATION

Touching the matter of the coronation oath and the growth of religious toleration in the world, the Toronto Globe says: "Protestants no longer dread Divine wrath on account of the tolerated proximity of Roman Catholics. The adherence of the Church of Rome no longer dreads Divine vengeance through the proximity of Protestant worshippers. Both have more faith in the beneficence of the Ruler of the universe, and consequently more faith in and respect for one another. The spirit that prompted them to kill one another in what they mistakenly regarded as a holy cause is rapidly going and is almost gone. No sect imposes its rites or its beliefs on others by force. A deeper and a truer conception of religion has been reached, and people are no longer eager to kill for the wording of a creed. The fear of the prosecution of Protestants by a Roman Catholic king or of the prosecution of Roman Catholics by a Protestant king is a thing of the past. No Protestant possessed of a gentlemanly respect for the sovereign. The narrow materialism of that idea has no place in the enlightenment of today."

St. John today unites with the rest of the empire in the last tribute to a loved monarch.

It is a notable fact that though there are so many rulers of nations in London today there is no apprehension of danger from anarchists.

There should be a lesson in religious tolerance in the expressions of profound sorrow from the representatives of all creeds at the death of King Edward the Seventh.

King George and Empress William, after kneeling together beside the bier of Edward the Peacemaker, rose and stood for a moment with clasped hands. It is a good omen. These two men wield a tremendous influence in the matter of the peace of Europe and of the world. The incident at Westminster Hall will not be lost upon the people of Britain and Germany. Lovers of peace everywhere will hope that the most cordial relations between the two great nations may be encouraged by the King and Emperor.

AUSTRALIA LINKING UP WITH PACIFIC ISLAND BY WIRELESS

Unitarians in England Want Workers for Colonies—Grand Trunk Dividend Increased to 15 Per Cent

Times' Special Cable.
Melbourne, May 20.—Mr. Batcher, minister of external affairs, is calling for tenders for the erection of a medium power wireless telegraph station at Port Moresby, south coast of New Guinea, and at Cape York, the most northerly point in Australia, preliminary to carrying out the larger scheme for linking up the Pacific islands with Australia.

London, May 20.—John Harrison, speaking at a meeting of the British and Foreign Unitarian Association, said: "In Canada, New Zealand, and Australia there is a pressing demand for earnest workers in the cause of the liberal Unitarian faith. A Unitarian St. Paul is wanted, who would win the great dominions of the empire for the cause of liberal, rational religion."
At a meeting of the Land Corporation of Canada the Grand Trunk Railway announced the dividend increased to 15 p. c. It was said no country promised so well as Vancouver for investment.
At the Whiteside hiring fairs the Cumberland farmers complained that the best men were emigrating to Canada. One reason stated was the lack of cottages for married men.
John Dagle aged 39; his wife, Emma Dagle, 25, and Harry King, 25, were arrested yesterday on charge of fighting on the Strait shore road. Dagle and his wife are white, and King is colored. The latter claims that the woman was bothering him with attentions, and the husband resented any familiarity between the two.

TELEPHONE COMPANY'S ANNUAL MEETING

Fredericton, N. B., May 19.—The annual meeting of the New Brunswick Telephone Company took place today. The roll board of directors was re-elected with the exception of J. D. Irving, of Buctouche, who is replaced by J. L. McAvity of St. John.
The company was reported in a satisfactory condition. The surplus for the year is $3,474.27. It is understood that the dividend will be the same as last year, six per cent.
The company decided to expend about $33,000 on an extension of the St. John office. The building will be doubled in size. This extension is made necessary by the fact that at present the company is forced to rent buildings in various parts of St. John for storage purposes. Stock will be sold to meet this outlay.
It was decided to add $4,000 to the reserve for depreciation, bringing the total up to $32,000.

The report to the shareholders states the value of the plant is $1,298,728.18, an increase of $41,699.30, made up by expenditures on underground work in St. John and Fredericton, and the addition of a new copper line, Moncton to Chatham, and the development of the rural service in St. John valley.
The business has expanded, the number of telephones having increased from 1,010 to 9,035 during the year. The directors feel assured that the growth of business, and increase in rates, will ultimately furnish sufficient revenue to meet the depreciation requirements.

Total assets amount to $1,293,472.74, and the liabilities are $1,287,998.47. The following directors were elected: S. H. White, Senator F. P. Thompson, F. B. Black, A. W. Bennett, H. P. Robinson, R. O'Leary, W. B. Snowball, A. R. Slog, J. M. Robinson, G. W. Ganson, R. B. Emerson, L. B. McFarlane, F. B. Carroll, J. L. McAvity, F. W. Sumner, Mr. McFarlane belongs to Montreal, and represents the Bell Telephone Company. The directors at a subsequent meeting elected S. H. White, president; Senator Thompson, 1st vice-president; F. B. Black, 2nd vice-president; those with A. W. Bennett and H. P. Robinson form the managing board.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"I just felt like it, so I kept going until I got what I planned to do done, and then I went to bed with a raging headache, and today I'm a perfect wreck," explained my neighbor when I dropped in upon her in the middle of the morning yesterday and found her limp and watched on the couch with her morning work untouched.

"I felt like it," is never a sufficient excuse for deliberately overdraining your fund of vitality.

Any more than it is an excuse for the man who deliberately overdrains his account at the bank.

It takes strength of mind to accomplish things in spite of difficulties, to carry them through to the end in the face of obstacles, but it often takes still more strength and of a much higher variety to lay aside an unfinished task even though at the moment you may feel like finishing it.

To know how to spend one's self to the best advantage—that is, so as to get the most usefulness and enjoyment out of a given amount of vitality, is a much greater lesson than that the wise use of money, and one far fewer people learn.

The woman who says, "Oh, I just want to finish this seam or get this petal done before dark," and then bends almost double over the work, straining her eyes in the twilight to reach the desired goal, is exhibiting a wretchedly high price for an absurdly small accomplishment.

Just because the payment is not demanded of her for envying the fine, clear eyes of the woman who had the self-control to lay aside the almost finished work, she may realize that nature, although she often forgets for years to ask payment on the checks you draw upon your account with her, sooner or later, surely exacts it.

We have a great deal of talk these days upon the conservation of natural resources.

Wise people point out to us, how, by using our great timber lands wisely and fearfully, instead of ruthlessly and unscientifically, we can get just as much out of them without exhausting them.

Are the resources of nature any different from the resources of the body of man in this respect?

Are they any less susceptible of conservation?

Most of us applaud the people who are trying to save the resources of nature from short-sighted misuse, and to bring about a wise treatment of them which will utilize without exhausting.

If we approve this principle why not carry it into our own lives and apply it to our utilization of our own vitality?

TRIBUTE OF RABBI AMOUR TO KING EDWARD VII.

Sermon At Memorial Service In The Jewish Synagogue This Morning—King and Gentleman and Friend of the Hebrew Race—He Followed in the Path of Moses

At the memorial service in the Jewish synagogue this morning, Rabbi Bernard L. Amour spoke as follows:

This world is a fluctuating age in which permanent safety is owned by no man. When the sky above us seems calm and serene, yet in some unobserved quarter there gathers the little black cloud which the tempest ferments and prepares to discharge itself on our heads. In those luminous days of spring when nature is beaming with life, the earth clothed with beauty, and the waters glittering with the loving glances of the sun, we behold a dark cloud which gathered in some corner of our mother country and dispelled itself over the heads of Europe and America, and wherever life is throbbing within human heart, the unconscious cable reporting the demise of our benighted king has chafed and drifted all hearts with grief and gloom and plunged our nation into incalculable sorrow.

Little did we dream that after that dismal day, May 6, the sun shall rise, the stars shall glitter, the seasons shall turn to cheerful smiles on our good king. Little did we think that the monarch whose every word, the moment it leaped from his lips, was listened to by hundreds of thousands of people as numerous as the stars in the firmament, would now lie on the bosom of a mother earth, cold, silent and speechless.

His kindly vision, his dignified personality and stately countenance, his serene and refined smile, his noble bearing, his narrow house placed in God's acre. His Majesty, whose kingdom encompassed the unlimited space under the sun over all continents on the face of the earth, has now resigned his earthly kingdom and by the bidding of the King of Kings, entered into the kingdom of heaven.

I recently read when Massillon, the greatest funeral orator in France, arose in his pulpit to deliver the oration on the death of Louis XIV. of France, he paused a moment before he began the tribute of the "grand monarch." He looked in the faces of the nobles and the representative men and women of France, his eyes on which lay the remains of the king, the candles and incense, all impressed him deeply and, raising his head heavenward, he said in a voice trembling with emotion, "My brethren, only God is great, nothing physical is enduring, only God, the God-like and Godliness endures forever."

In the republic of death all are equal, it reads like the purple robe of power and the tattered rags of poverty; it larks in the mansion of the monarch and the "castles wall"—and farewell son of man. It is pleasing to stand at the seaside and gaze upon the waves that resemble burnished gold while the sun reflects on the moving waters and to feel that age after age these waves will continue to move on the shore, it is pleasing to look upon the silent glittering stars of the night and to feel that generation after generation God will look through them upon the earth. But it is more pleasing to know that human good will last until eternity. Pyramids and sphinxes will crumble into dust but the spirit of man endures.

The King and the gentleman, the sovereign of the British empire and the citizen of the world, to our brethren Jewesses his name will always remain alive in their hearts, for our King Edward was the sympathetic and true friend of the Jewish race. He was to us in the present century as was Cyrus, the King of Persia, twenty-five centuries ago. Cyrus, after the Babylonian exile, offered to our ancestors the land for rehabilitation. King Edward VII. at the Zionist congress offered to the Jews the territory of Uganda and other regions within his domain as a haven of refuge for our unfortunate brethren, living in European countries where brute force is swaying with a high hand and where the hands of anti-semitism are still the order of the day.

I read just lately of an instance that occurred last year which clearly shows the intimacy of Edward the Peace-maker and the Jews. His Majesty ordered to postpone a banquet which was to be given on a certain day, because it was found that the date was the "Day of Atonement" in which his Jewish invited guests could not participate. We now mingle our tears with those of the world and, though our sovereign passed away, yet he speaks in the words of Longfellow:

One of all great men remind us
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time.

Thus, the curtain rolls down, closing the grand performance upon the world's stage.

ETHEL ROOSEVELT'S REGRETABLE MISTAKE
London, May 20—Miss Ethel Roosevelt, daughter of Colonel Roosevelt, was the innocent cause of considerable embarrassment when she rode striking with laughter in the immediate vicinity of the procession accompanying King Edward's body from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Hall.

SOME INTERESTING MINUTES WITH THE SPORTING MEN

Papke Knocks Thomas Out. San Francisco, May 19—Billy Papke knocked out Joe Thomas tonight in the sixteenth round, after a hurricane battle. After two lame rounds, Papke, in the thirteenth, with several uppercuts to the jaw and rushed Thomas about the ring. There was much clinching. In the fifth Papke staggered the Californian. Thomas did somewhat better in the sixth, but was bleeding at the nose. In a mild rally in the eighth round, Thomas whipped in several good body punches. Thomas improved as the fight progressed and landed several wicked punches in the tenth round. After Papke had swung two rights to the stomach in the eleventh, the Californian jolted his right hand to the jaw, forcing Papke to break ground. Thomas followed with a wicked left hook to the jaw that gave him the advantage of the round. In the twelfth Papke forced his opponent against the ropes and landed four times with right on the head without a return. Papke continuously used his head which he rammed against the Californian's chest. A mid-air rally in the thirteenth found Thomas landing repeatedly on the face with short arm lefts and Papke bled steadily from the mouth as they separated from a clinch. Then followed heavy exchange of right good body and Thomas sent Papke reeling against the ropes with rights and lefts to the jaw as the going seemed. In the fourteenth round Thomas drove Papke against the ropes with a fierce right, and then nearly dropping him with a vicious right to the jaw. Papke sent Thomas to the floor in the sixteenth with right hook to the stomach. Thomas came up after him like a tiger, and taking Papke crashing to the floor, taking the count.

ADVICE TO WOMEN
A Message from a Famous Specialist in Women Lacking in Energy and Vitality
Thousands of women vainly attempt to improve their complexions and to remove blackheads, crows' feet and other blemishes, through the use of cosmetics. This treatment fails because the trouble lies far deeper than the skin. They are suffering from impure and impoverished blood. This condition is in many cases due to a catarrhal condition of the whole system which finds its expression in sallow, muddy complexion, dark-circled eyes, general weakness of the system, and perhaps most plainly in the wearing of mucous membranes that are commonly called catarrhs.

FROM THE VIEW POINT OF A CANADIAN
Times Special Cable. London, May 20—(Special)—For today's tribute, prompted by the widespread sorrow in the Empire, less the Empire has sustained, long before the sun rose all its glory, tens of thousands of people gathered in the route, determined to gain the best point of view. The nation ceased its toil to pay a last tribute to the late king. It is safe to say that tens of thousands who assembled early saw nothing of the procession. Never before had London's millions forgotten as today. From midnight until the break of day they had been arriving from the four corners of the metropolis, and there was not a single point of vantage, but was occupied. Flouring emblems were everywhere visible. The music was very scarce, but good.

OVERFATNESS CONDEMNED
Fat, or even fatish women readers who want to be in the mode this year must understand that the demand is for lines, not curves, and for themselves accordingly. That means OFF with the fat. It has become a duty. Many are trying exercise or dieting; but it is certain they will find the methods too slow and unprofitable. The easiest and surest way to get in form for the Dressing mode is by means of Marmola Prescription Tablets. Any druggist for the Marmola Co., 1199 Turner Bldg., Detroit, Mich., will give the best advice in case of these elegant little fat reducers, containing a good genuine cod liver oil, seventy-five cents, and even this quantity should be enough to make a decided impression on your excess fat. Many have lost as much as a pound a day.

Canada's Representative
The occupants of the ninth carriage were objects of interest to Canadians, but as it passed the occupants were not visible, but Lord Strathcona and the Australian high commissioner and New Zealand high commissioner were the occupants. The procession, which had to traverse the route of two miles. The office of the agent general of Nova Scotia is the only colonial office on the route, and some 200 Canadians have to stand apart from affording them a comfortable position from which to view the procession.

CHANGE WHOLE SYSTEM OF LIFE RISKS

Insurance Companies in Canada and States About to Alter Their Attitude to Policy Seekers—Important Statements Made
New York, May 20—When you take out a life insurance policy in Canada or in the United States a few months hence, you will be asked a good many more questions than policy seekers have been asked in the past, according to a statement made last night at a dinner of the Actuarial Society of America at the Hotel Brooklyn in New York.
"The profession of trade we have followed, will for one thing, have more to do with the amount of the premium you have to pay and you will not be so likely to be refused because your medical history is bad. If your father and mother both died of tuberculosis, for example, you will not necessarily be refused, as a risk by many of the life insurance companies, as in the past. Two or more deaths from cancer in your family tree may not necessarily make their examiners shake their heads at you."
A different system of judging whether or not a policy seeker is a good or a bad risk, is about to be adopted by all the big companies in Canada and the United States. It was learned last night from the actuary of one of the best known life insurance companies of this country.
"People who seek policies will not all be judged alike, as more or less, they have been judged in the past. Each man, according to the method of livelihood and the peculiarities of family history will be classified in a special way. His calling and industry will put him accurately and scientifically in one of about 145 'special' classes. For each of these there will be a different premium."

S. P. HOWARD RESIGNS POSITION WITH C. P. R.
Montreal, May 20—Sydney P. Howard has resigned his position of general freight agent of the eastern division of the C. P. R., after 28 years connection with the company. Mr. Howard's resignation becomes effective in two weeks. His successor is not yet appointed. Mr. Howard will engage in real estate business with John Findlay, of this city.
"Mr. Howard was born in Montreal, and is the son of the late Captain Thomas Howard, harbor master of Montreal. His first position was private secretary to the late Andrew Robertson, chairman of the Montreal Harbor Commissioners. Then he was for some time secretary to G. M. Bowditch, fourth vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway. From this position promotion followed rapidly, first to contracting freight agent, then to city freight agent, then general freight agent, which position he has occupied for a number of years."

THE CLIMAX
"The best play of the season," such was the united opinion of the New York critics regarding the merits of Joseph M. Weber's novelty drama "The Climax," by Edward Locke, which will open on Monday night at the Opera House, for a week's engagement.
Since its first performance at Weber's theatre, New York, the piece has been attracting large and enthusiastic crowds to the theatre, and all industries point to a record breaking run on Broadway, as the piece is now in its eighteenth month. "The Climax" is a very simple little story of Bohemian life in the great Thorne Lodge, No. 259, I. O. G. T., will meet this evening in the Haymarket-Square Hall at 8 o'clock sharp. All members are requested to be present.

Steamship Manchester Commerce, Captain Connel, left port this morning for Manchester via Philadelphia. The steamer took a large shipment of spruce lumber to the latter port.

The Eastern Steamship Company people will watch with interest the result of the experiment to be tried this season of burning oil on the turbines Harvar and Yale. If it is successful, it is probable that before long the steamers Belfast and Camden will also be burning oil. The Harvar and Yale will go on the Boston-New York run, on May 23.

Friends of Cyrus D. Strang, carpenter, of North End, will learn with regret that he is confined to his bed in his home in Metcalf street, as a result of injuries sustained in a fall on Monday last. Mr. Strang fell while at work on Mr. Conroy's house in Adelaide street on the upper portion of the building near the chimney. He struck his back a severe blow when he alighted on a joist, nine feet below. He has since been in bed, with Dr. Case attending him. It is thought that it may be some time before he is again able to be out.

MR. SUMNER AND THE ST. JOHN TELEPHONE

"Perhaps the fairest way would be the meter system," said F. W. Sumner of Moncton, one of the directors of the N. B. Telephone Company, to a Times-Star reporter who spoke to him as he was passing through here today, with reference to the strong objection in this city against the increase in rates.

Mr. Sumner ventured the opinion that constant users of the telephone would find the present rates reasonable in comparison with such a change. Asked if the outcome would be along the lines of his suggestion, he replied, "It may come to that yet."

A question as to whether the company would resist any attempt to get at them through the legislature, met with a negative reply, Mr. Sumner saying that the government could take over the system and see what they could make out of it, qualifying this latter with "so far as I am concerned." He insisted that New Brunswick was getting cheaper rates than any place that he knew of and the company were trying to give the public a first class service and they received small encouragement so far as St. John was concerned.

BOYS SCATTER WHEN THE POLICE ARRIVE

A disorderly crowd of boys annoyed the residents of Barker street last night by shouting and carrying on, and put fear into the hearts of some by lighting a bonfire. Policemen Crawford and Pinky arrived, however, and put a stop to the proceedings. Crawford extinguished the fire, while Pinky pursued the boys. He caught one lad, Kenneth Morrison, aged 12, and placed him under arrest, while he reported four others about the same age. Fred Chisholm, Wilfred Kelley, Bert Smith and Arthur Stragham. Morrison will likely be a witness against the other boys.

I. C. R. Suburban Folders Are Now Ready

The I. C. R. suburban train service for the summer, between St. John and Hampton, will go into effect on Monday, when there will be additional suburban trains running on a time schedule that ought to prove most convenient to the suburbanites. The general change of time on June 14th is not likely to affect the suburban trains, though it will make a difference in the time of the through express. A neat and convenient pocket time table folder has been issued by the railway, showing the service between here and Sussex. These may be obtained from the city ticket agent, George Carville; from the station ticket office, from L. R. Ross, the terminal agent, or from the station agents at Botetoune, Hampton and Sussex.

"BOOM" MEN VISIT LOCAL SHOE FACTORY

Advertising Committee of Board of Trade See Work in J. M. Humphrey & Co. Establishment—Small Start, Now 50 Employees, Capacity Taxed

An example of what well-directed energy and enterprise will do is shown in the shoe factory established a few months ago by J. M. Humphrey & Co. of this city. When the factory was started in August the present superintendent, E. A. Redding, and two hands constituted the staff. Now there are fifty employees and the business has grown to the full extent of the quarters occupied, so that in order to expand it will be necessary to move into a larger building.

Yesterday the members of the new industries committee of the board of trade visited the factory and were shown how the various grades of shoes and stockings are made. The whole process from the cutting of the leather from the whole skins to the finished product in the neatly labeled boxes was explained and demonstrated. Mr. Redding accompanied the committee about the factory and explained the uses of the machines and the employees showed how quickly and thoroughly the work is done.

The skins first go to the cutters, who sever the various shaped parts with the aid of patterns. The parts are then handed over to a number of girls, each of whom is fitted with a special machine that is particularly interesting. These three rows of wheels thread at once an operation that formerly had to be done one row at a time. Other machines punch creases into the leather and give it the shape of the shoe. After the uppers are finished they are sent to a machine that in less than a minute heels and tacks the uppers to the soles and heels all by special machinery, the full quota of heels for the day being driven at one stroke. There are machines for shaping the shoes, for cutting soles and heels, for polishing and rubbing out wrinkles and many other details of which the average wearer of shoes never thinks.

Hundreds of pairs of shoes in various stages of advancement are held in racks or large cases alongside the different machines and not an inch of space appears to be wasted. Mr. Redding said that the factory was now working at its full capacity and it would be impossible to do any more in their present quarters and this was echoed by A. M. Hayes, a member of the committee. What they would do for the future he was not prepared to say at the present time, but it would appear that more room would have to be secured very soon.

The members of the committee were very much impressed by their visit and remarked that St. John should have more of these industries. "It was stated by some of those present that there is room in St. John for many small factories and some of the lines spoken of as being capable of being conducted here, profitably, were—Shirts, suspenders, jackets and other articles of clothing."

The goods turned out by the Humphrey factory are all soft leather and each pair of boots bears the firm's name with the imprint "Solid Leather." No shoddy paper or imitation leather is used in the local establishment. The firm is deserving of every encouragement in their enterprise.

MRS. O'BRIEN'S SUDDEN DEATH IN LEWISTON, ME.

Lewiston, Me., May 20.—(Special)—Peppermint taken as a medicine may have killed Mrs. Ellen K. O'Brien, a former St. John woman. A physician was called, but Mrs. O'Brien was dead. She was Miss Ellen Kavanaugh of St. John. Her husband is John J. O'Brien, a professional ball player. She was about forty years old.

LEAGUE SEASON TO BE OPENED TOMORROW

Tomorrow afternoon on the Every Day Club grounds the South End League will start their schedule. The league is composed of the St. Johns, under the management of Charles E. Tilley, and the Clippers, whose manager is James McBride. With good weather there should be fast ball. As last year these teams put up a gift edged article. They are composed of some of the best in the city, including some who have had experience outside of this province. The players have been taking full advantage of the fine weather to get in practice on the grounds, and every one is on edge. Whoever wins it will only be after some of the fastest kind of ball.

Manager Tilley gives out the following as his line up:—Roots, catcher; Nesbitt, pitcher; George Croady, 1st base; A. Ramsey, 2nd base; E. Roberts, 3rd base; J. Copeland, short stop; F. Totten, left field; J. Boward, centre field; B. Cribbs, right field. Manager McBride has not yet given out his line up.

The Whole World Mourns With the British Empire

The whole world mourns with Great Britain today at the Bier of King Edward VII.

Citizens of the British Empire do not merely honor an illustrious King's just fame—they sorrow at the grave of a guide and friend.

Through his practical diplomacy and international popularity his had come to be the strongest hand in the maintaining of peace in Europe.

No proclamations were needed to prompt the general suspension of business upon this mournful day—the end of all! It is an act of grief, not of duty!

From all parts of the world the message of sympathy is sent to the British Empire of her loss.

The King is Dead, Long live the King.
