FIRE HIGH IN AIR

New York Brigade Fights Blaze on 25th Story—Performers at Niagara Have Thrilling Experiences—Four Americans Slain by Moros in Philippines

(Canadian Press) Glendale, Ore., June 29.—Apparently mistaking the first section of northbound passenger train No. 16 on the Southern Pacific Railway, for the southbound train, said to be carrying a shipment of $400,000 in gold dust from Seattle to San Francisco, two robbers held up the northbound train last night near Westfork, an isolated station in Cow Creek, Canyon.

The robbers rifled the mail car, blowing up the safe, and made away with the registered mail. They tried to secure entrance to the express car, but were followed by Messenger Robb, who refused to open the door despite the threat they would dynamite it if he resisted. The robbers boarded the train while it was taking water, and later crawled over into the engine, forcing the driver to stop at Yorkville.

New York, June 29.—New York's firemen last night responded to an alarm for the loftiest blaze they have ever been called upon to fight. It was on the 25th story of the new municipal building under construction, just above City Hall park. A pile of lumber stored for flooring purposes caught fire, supposedly from a heat pipe. Twenty stories up was as high as the construction elevator in the building. There a hose attached to a stand pipe was carried by hand, and the blaze was quickly extinguished.

The King of England, the Governor General of Canada and the minister of justice will receive the pleas of women whose sympathy has been touched by the tragedy of this unhappy Italian woman.

Maria, June 29.—Four Americans have been murdered by Moros in Mindanao lands. Prospects named Cylar and Vexos were murdered near Camp Overton. Prospective Husband of Canadian Girl May Come Into Baronetcy - His Father a Picturesque Character Who Once Saved Life of King Edward VII

(Copyright, 1911, by the Brentwood Company)

Emperor Francis Joseph has just bestowed the rank of furst, that is to say, of prince, with the predicate of serene highness, upon Count Francis Thun, who, after being Prime Minister of Austria, is now once again Governor of Bohemia, a post which he accepted at the earnest instance of Emperor Francis Joseph, and of his heir, Archduke Francis Ferdinand.

The new prince, (whose title of count dates from the end of the sixteenth century—his title of baron from the beginning of the fourteenth century, and whose family traces to the Tyrolean Urndel, namely, to those who were nobles of Tyrol before the establishment of the Holy Roman, that is to say, of the German Empire, and whose own branch of the family has been in possession of his wonderful castle of Tetschen, in Bohemia, for nearly 400 years), is one of the most masterful statesmen of the present day in the dual empire.

Czech of the Czechs, he is the one man, perhaps, who knows how to maintain the order between the warring factions of the Czechs and the Germans in Bohemia, and who, during his previous term as Governor of Bohemia, did not hesitate to proclaim a state of siege, with the object of impressing, not only on the Germans, but also on his fellow Czechs, that obey the law must be obeyed.

The count divides his time between his palaces in Prague and Vienna, and his ancestral castle of Tetschen, which, perched on a crag of rock, constituting one of the Elbe gates of Bohemia, played a great role in the seventeenth and eighteenth century wars. Its gardens are famous all over Europe for their roses, of which there are some 2,000 varieties. The family chapel stands on a still higher hill than the castle, and is visible for miles around. But the burial place of the Thuns is in the Loretto church, on the market place at Tetschen, where for the magnificent deeds of all the members of the grand old house of Thun have been laid to rest.

The new prince is very tall, full-faced, determined looking man, clean shaven, save for short-cropped side whiskers, once sandy, now white; wears a monocle, a laugh of the Golden Pleece, is somewhat of an anti-Semite, is enormously rich, and if he has accepted once more the office of Governor of Bohemia, he is prompted purely by patriotism and by the pressing request of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and of the emperor.

May Come Into Baronetcy

Captain Vierville Champion de Crespiigny is the third surviving son of Sir Claude Champion de Crespiigny, and is a lieutenant of the Grenadier Guards, and a lieutenant of the royal navy, are both uncles of the new prince.

Captain Vierville, who is a captain of the Wiltshire regiment of infantry in the regular army, and who has seen a considerable amount of active service in the Boer war and in the various military operations in East Africa, has the very high honor of succeeding to the baronetcy of his widely known father.

If I mention this, it is because Captain Vierville de Crespiigny is about to be married to Miss Augusta MacSloy, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James MacSloy, of St. John's, N. B.

Just at present the captain is not very "boughtly" endowed with worldly goods. But should he succeed to the baronetcy, any to the property connected therewith, he will be very rich man, through the falling in of an immense number of leases in the northern part of London.

The baronetcy is of relatively modern origin, dating only from the reign of George IV. The family, however, is one of the oldest of Normandy, and has been settled in England since the seventeenth century, when they emigrated to Great Britain in connection with the revolution of the captain's father, Sir Claude, is one of the most picturesque characters in English life, has been in turn a sailor, a few months a lieutenant of Admiral Lord Charles Boscawen, an officer of the English line brigade, a cavalryman in the Prussian army during the Franco-Prussian war, a war correspondent, a champion rider, as well as for many years champion amateur boxer of England.

He holds several medals for saving life from drowning, was bitterly disappointed when Hon. Lord Bessborough refused to carry him on his back across the Falls of Niagara, on a light-rope, and has figured as an amateur fencer in a Spanish bull-fight.

It was while in command of the Suffolk Hussars, one of the crack regiments of yeomanry, or militia cavalry of the army, that Sir Claude was taken to task

A Clean Man

Outside cleanliness is less than half the battle. A man may scrub himself a dozen times a day, and still be unclean. Good health means cleanliness not only outside, but inside. It means a clean stomach, clean bowels, clean blood, a clean liver, and new, clean, healthy tissues. The man who is clean in this way will look it and set it. He will work with energy and think clear, clear, healthy thoughts.

He will never be troubled with liver, lung, stomach or blood disorders. Dyspepsia and indigestion originate in unclean stomachs. Blood diseases are found where there is unclean blood. Consumption and bronchitis.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

prevents all diseases. It makes a man's inside clean and healthy. It cleans the digestive organs, makes pure, clean blood, and cleans, healthy flesh.

It restores tone to the nervous system, and cures nervous exhaustion and prostration. It contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs.

Consultation: the most unclean uncleanness. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures it. They never gripe. Easy to take as candy.

THE KEY TO HAPPINESS

The right key to a happy life is patience with little annoyances, whether they train to sell or others. It has been well said that happiness depends much upon "cultivating our growth of small pleasures." The fact that laughs in a mirror see another that laughs back. Cultivate a happy disposition and let others see it. The bright, cheery face will be reflected in many another face. Down with the black flag of ill-temper that nobly gives no quarter, and up with a banner of good cheer, that, being helpful to the world at large is itself helped.

The Evening Chit-Chat
By RUTH CAMERON

"SHOULD say you were a 'letive'," commented Molly, the little stenographer, after a remark from the man-who-thinks, "I'm afraid I'm not for it's a new one to me, Molly."

"Why, hasn't the lady ever told you about her letive club?" questioned Molly, in surprise. "Big sister, I'm surprised at you. Go ahead and tell them right now."

"It is queer that I haven't before," said the lady-who-always-knows-somehow. "Well, it's this way:

"When I was first married we moved to R—. R— is one of those little old-fashioned towns where everybody knows everybody else. Across the street from me lived a dear little woman with three adorable children. She was one of the sweetest, most kind-hearted and self-forgetful little women I ever knew; and I took to her at once and apparently she did to me."

"We were great friends for several weeks, and then one day a caller said to me: 'My dear you are so intimate with Mrs. R. I've been wondering if you knew about her. You see, my dear—and then followed the old, old story of a girl who had loved—not wisely, but too well.'

"She didn't remember to tell the sequel of a woman whose brave efforts to live her past had been constantly frustrated by happier women; but I could tell that to myself."

"I knew my friend was now a good and honorable woman, altogether far more worth knowing than most of the women who enjoyed telling this sort of bit gossip; and I meant this shouldn't make the slightest difference in our friendship."

"But, of course, the next time I saw her I couldn't help thinking about it—that's the worst of hearing that things you can't help thinking about them."

"I certainly never meant to show it. I tried as hard as I knew how not to, but evidently some sixth sense of her's preternaturally sharpened by suffering, for she hadn't been with me five minutes before she said suddenly: 'You know, I couldn't deny that I knew, but, of course, I told her as warmly as I could that it didn't make any difference at all.'

"It can't help but make a difference," she said. 'You are sweet not to want it to, but you can't help thinking about it. And it was so beautiful to have you not know and treat me just like other people. I was afraid everytime I saw you it would be different. They tell everyone you know, and then they look at me that way. It's my punishment and, of course, I deserve it, but sometimes it seems as if I couldn't stand it.'

"Well, my husband's business changed and we had to move from R— about two months later. During that time we had tried to be the same, but there was a feeling of constraint. I always felt afterward that if I had been there right along and had time enough I could have brought things back the way they were at first, and been real close friends, for I never saw a woman I admired more or liked better. But, you see, I didn't have the chance."

"I suppose you see what all this has to do with the 'letives.' It came over me that Mrs. L. was only one of a great many people who've made mistakes or sinned in some way in their early lives, and who are tied for a lifetime to their sins by people's cruelty. So I simply made myself a promise that I'd never under any condition pass along anything like this about any man or woman who was trying to live it down, and that I'd try to make as many others as I could see it my way."

"Molly called it a club. Well, it is a sort of big, silent club, with no meetings or dues or anything like that. Your only obligations are to make this promise, and also to promise to tell anyone else about it whenever you can, and give them a chance to join."

"Molly," said the man-who-thinks, "I said I didn't belong, but I do right from this minute."

"Lady," said the wants-to-be-cynic, who had listened without one flippant interruption—a record for him. "Me, too, please."

N. B.—The Lady-who-always-knows-somehow wants me to extend her invitation to belong to the "letives" to you, if you aren't already a member.

TO SAVE TROUBLE

When the housewife is preparing some made dishes with cold meat which has been left over, she tries to give a new relish to the dish by adding various kinds of spices and flavorings. How frequently the result is a failure! Just a little too much pepper and the dish is too hot, or a slight error in seasoning, and one particular flavor dominates the others.

The wise housewife has recently made up her mind that she will save trouble by using all-made-up dishes. She is to have a bottle of the Ed. E. Spices at hand for the very purpose of enriching soups and gravies.

In each bottle there is a delicious blending of the choicest essential oils and spices, and purest natural flavors. It is not beyond the mark to say that a bottle of Ed. E. is a cruet in itself.

Just a spoonful added—the salt—and the goodness of the dish is seen. What trouble it saves! No wonder the best housewives always keep a bottle of Ed. E. Spices handy. It is useful in so many ways. Just a few drops in the soup, or with hot or cold meat, fish or even bread and cheese, it is delicious and gives quite a new enjoyment to the meal.

FOR REGISTRATION.

Examinations were begun in the Oddfellows' Hall yesterday morning for doctors wishing to secure registration. The number taking the exams is very small on account of the new five year course which the medicine have to take at McGill. This is the fourth year of the McGill course, hence the small number. None of those writing the papers are from this city. Doctors Emery, Christie, White, Water, Warwick and R. Skinner are conducting the examinations.

THE SENATE AND RECIPROCITY
(Washington, June 22.—Canadian Press)

While both branches of congress were in session today, interest continued to center in the senate, where the opponents of the agreement with Canada now have fairly begun their attack on the reciprocity bill. A speech by Senator Gamble of South Dakota, against the measure, and a continuation of the remarks of Senator Cummins of Iowa, who has denounced the bill as unjust and proposed amendments suggesting the number of Canadian products admitted free under the bill, were prepared.

Chairman Penrose of the finance committee, in charge of the bill, is adhering to his programme of persistently offering requests for unanimous consent to fix a date for a vote on reciprocity, wood and free list bills, and may renew that request at any time.

DETAILS OF THE SEAL CONFERENCE ANNOUNCED
(Canadian Press)
New York, June 22.—A Washington dispatch says: The international fur-seal conference has reached an agreement, which will be effective next autumn. The agreement is that the seal will be protected in the Bering Sea. The conference will end with all the parties thereto well satisfied with the results and the enormous good which will result from the abolition of pelagic sealing, which makes possible the practical conservation of the fur seals.

Under the terms of the agreement which is to last for fifty years, the United States, Russia and Japan will each contribute to a general fund, although the Japan herd is so small as to make the contribution of that country a negligible quantity. This general fund will then be equally divided between Canada and Japan to indemnify them for the loss entailed by their abstention from pelagic sealing. Furthermore, the United States agree to advance to Canada a cash bonus of $200,000 to be used for the reimbursement of the owners of the vessels engaged in pelagic sealing, but the equivalent in skins of the sum so advanced will be deducted from the percentage of catch which the United States is to turn over to Canada in annual instalments.

To guard against poaching and illicit pelagic sealing the parties to the agreement pledge themselves to admit to their countries no sealers which do not bear some mark which shall identify them as having been taken under the government supervision of one or other of the contracting powers, and treat as contraband such vessels as shall be taken under their flags.

It is further agreed that steps shall be taken immediately to prevent on other countries like China, Mexico, Chile and Norway, to institute and enforce such regulations as will make it impossible for pelagic sealing to be conducted under their flags.

Montreal Paper Sets Forth Plain Facts About Reciprocity

They Forget That Principle Was Long Endorsed by Both Parties in Canada—Liberals Redeeming Pledge—Spurious Imperialism of the Conservatives

(Montreal Witness.)
Every day one can meet people who have not yet grasped the fact that the principle of reciprocity has long been endorsed by both of the political parties of Canada. It is wonderful indeed, how short the political memories of people can be; and how safely, at times, political leaders can count upon this forgetfulness. Now that the parties have divided on the question of reciprocity, there are thousands of Conservatives who glory that they have always disbelieved in the principle, and who imagine, further, that their party has always been the stern and unbending opponent of it.

It is sheer forgetfulness, having its origin in lack of earnestness in the study of political history and principles. Ideas are lightly accepted or rejected, according to the commodes of the party of the moment. What else can explain the curious forgetfulness of Hugh John Macdonald the other day as to his former attitude? How could he be his father's son, Hugh John asked, except as an opponent of reciprocity? Yet far more than his belief in protection, which is a matter of fact was no more than a policy of expediency for what protection politically did for him in 1878, was his sense of gratitude for what protection had made them one on the question of desiring the fullest possible commercial intercourse with their neighbors. When even Hugh John forgets this, it is not surprising that many other Conservatives forget it.

To be perfectly fair, however, this forgetfulness is not confined to one party. Many Liberals, as a matter of fact, and to the injury of Canadian Liberal history, have forgotten some of the planks of the great platform of 1867. A more serious recollection of the splendid declarations of that year would have redounded more than once to the credit of the party, and saved some serious errors of administration.

Liberals Redeeming Pledge
But in accepting frankly and fully the offer of the United States for a large and liberal reciprocity pact—which it would have been utterly folly to have rejected—the Liberal party is certainly redeeming one of its great pledges of 1867. The frequent pretensions, therefore, on the part of opponents, and even Mr. Borden, echoes them, that the project is "something new," and that the country is taken unawares, have no foundation, in fact, whatever.

For several years before the advance came from Mr. Taff, every leader of the newspapers should know, the sentiment in favor of reciprocity has been steadily growing in the United States. It has been asked for and advocated by individuals and by bodies whose interests and arguments alike have precluded the idea that their motives have rested in any degree upon purposes or intentions of political absorption. In other words the common sense people of both sides of the line with inherited and developed shrewdness, are and always have been at one in deploring the unnecessary and removable trade barriers between the two countries.

What, then, has been the determining force which has divided the two parties of our own country on this question? Why have the Conservatives abandoned the plain declarations of their leaders in the past as to the wisdom, propriety, and desirability of the project? There can be no hesitation in answering that the determining force has been the periodic obsession of the party by a sort of spurious imperialism, and it is in the cities chiefly that this obsession has manifested itself.

A Lesson For Some Tories
It is a spurious imperialism, however sincere its exponents may think themselves to be in the United States, is shown by the fact that nine-tenths of those who urge that reciprocity with the United States is disloyal are utterly opposed even to the slightest increase of the existing British preference. The fact is that our true Canadian Tories, who still largely influence the Conservative party, in spite of the newer elements it has gained in recent years, never have changed, and probably never will change, their old habits of thought. Ultra and exclusive loyalty was their noblest stock-in-trade in the days of the Family Compact, and it still keeps its place in the old shop window.

The newer elements of the Conservative party, however, should have known more.

MR. BORDEN IN THE WEST

"I have been able to find no evidence whatever of a Liberal turn-over on the reciprocity issue, and from what I can find the majority of the new and independent voters go for the government."

This is the statement of the Toronto Star's correspondent with Mr. Borden in the west. This correspondent gives a very fair account of Mr. Borden's meetings, pointing out that he is getting a better reception than he did in 1907 or 1909, and that by taking a bold attitude he has made a better impression and got a better hearing than if he had tried to temporize.

There is also quite a difference in the feeling in different localities. Winnipeg and Moose Jaw gave him the best reception. In some places the meetings were "frosts." Nowhere has the opposition leader met with the applause that greeted Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and over and over again strong delegations remind Mr. Borden that the western tour will do something to encourage and solidify the ranks of the Conservatives, although many of them will refuse to go the length of opposing reciprocity. The leader will return to Ottawa to renew the fight in parliament with the knowledge that the feeling of the west is against his policy. Apparently he is determined to continue the policy of obstruction, hoping that the country at large may be stampeded by the loyalty cry. Even in that respect, however, his policy is not approved by all of his followers.

A CONSERVATIVE CRITIC

The Victoria Colonist (Conservative) writes a very vigorous protest against the course pursued by the Conservative press in England, which has misrepresented Sir Wilfrid Laurier and for partisan purposes "has exhibited hostility to almost everything determined at the Imperial Conference." For example, the London Morning Post, commenting upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier's resolution bearing on foreign treaties, expressed the opinion that the resolution would not receive a single supporter and would be withdrawn. Yet it was passed unanimously. The Colonist, which animates the English Conservative press, states its own views in the following straightforward manner:—

"It is not in this way that the empire is going to be consolidated. To serve partisan purposes facts are being grossly misrepresented. Opposed as we are to the general policy of the Laurier ministry, and believing as we do that the reciprocity agreement is a mistake, we do not propose to subscribe to the doctrine that this agreement means the dismemberment of the empire, and if the people of Canada shall rally if we are going to contend that Canada will remain true to the crown and the flag. But we find a Unionist paper asserting that this policy of reciprocity is the opposite of the policy of British preference, and gives Mr. Borden the credit of being the author of the latter, whereas as every man in Canada knows both the preference and reciprocity emanated from the Laurier government. This a false issue is raised before the British people, and if the Canadian electors shall decide in favor of reciprocity people in England, who accept this distorted view of the case, will look upon the decision as against British preference, although it is a well known fact that many of the warmest supporters of reciprocity advocate a greatly increased preference."

The Colonist adds that the course of the Unionist press is very disconcerting to all Canadians. That journal must see, however, that Mr. Borden and his leading supporters are not blameless in this matter. Conservative papers and speakers in Canada have given the cue to the Unionist in England. Mr. Borden himself the other day expressed fear that close trade relations would lead toward annexation. He, therefore, falls under the condemnation of the Colonist.

MR. BALFOUR'S ATTITUDE

At a time when for political purposes efforts are made to arouse prejudice in Canada against the United States, it is fortunate that such utterances are heard as those of Mr. Balfour, the Unionist leader at the Pilgrim's dinner in London yesterday. The dinner was in honor of the United States ambassador, Mr. John Hays

BROKEN-DOWN NERVES

Hopeless Condition Cured by "Fruit-a-lives"

Milford Haven, Ont., Aug. 20, 1910.

"I was a complete invalid, three years ago, with Stomach Trouble, Constipation and Broken-down Nerves. I could not sleep at night and my Doctor did me very little good. I was almost hopeless until I began to take 'Fruit-a-lives' in small doses. I have taken about three dozen boxes in this time, and now, feeling very well and strong, I am able to do my own work and have been able to get on my feet. I would not be without 'Fruit-a-lives' in my home, and can highly recommend them to anyone suffering as I did."

MISS D. QUINCY.

Nervousness is not a disease in itself, but is the result of some other ailment, such as becoming diseased. Mrs. Quincy's case, her nervous condition was caused by a very weak stomach and plays the liver and cured Constipation. Then her nerves became well.

"If your nerves are 'all unstrung' take 'Fruit-a-lives.' See a box, 5 for $1.00, or trial size 25c. At all dealers, or from Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa."

A JUNE DAY

(Touchstones in the London Daily Mail)

Give me, when, later, breakfast joys are o'er, And exercise appears to be demanded, A boat and that fair maid I most adore— I cannot work the business single-hand.

Phyllis when sculling looks a perfect dear And I am game to steer.

Next, please, a luscious that's a dainty dream Beneath the boughs with her I worship serving.

Let her divide the strawberries and cream For O! her loyalty is most unswerving While if one is politic and plays the host One cannot grab the most.

And finally while dreamily we glide Home through the sunset, give me inspiration To win the gentle maiden at my side To capricious but beautiful acceptance I ask no boon but these to fill my cup But please do hurry up!

Do your baking with flour made exclusively of the HIGH-GRADE constituents of the HARD-WHEAT berry

Have you ever baked with flour made exclusively of the high-grade constituents of the hard wheat berry? If you haven't, now is the time to try PURITY Flour. Only the cream of the Manitoba hard wheat—the best wheat in the world—is used for PURITY Flour. More than that, only a portion of the flour milled from this wheat goes into the sacks and barrels branded PURITY. PURITY Flour consists exclusively of the high-grade constituents or portions of the Manitoba hard wheat berry. Every wheat berry has both low-grade and high-grade constituents which are separated during our process of milling. So exact is our process that it entirely eliminates all the low-grade portions from the flour which is finally branded PURITY. The greater strength of PURITY Flour makes it go farther in the baking. With it you can make
