Britisher Will Revolutionize Blasting Work on Panama Canal—Ordinary Means Will Not Set it Off

Washington, Oct. 20—A new explosive, a British invention which possesses possibilities, it is said, of revolutionizing the blasting work in connection with the construction of the Panama Canal, has been tested on the Isthmus of Panama recently and as a result the Panama Canal Commission ordered twenty tons of it for trial.

The inventor's exhaustive tests before the Isthmian Canal Commission showed that it is absolutely impossible to explode it by ordinary means. It was hammered with a sledge, shot into by a rifle, burned and ordinary dynamite detonators were exploded in it both by fuse and by electricity, but the compound was inert.

Not until a special detonator was inserted could the substance be exploded, but then, in a few shots that were shot off it showed itself more powerful than dynamite. It can be set off by only leading a small platinum wire just inside the open end, by an electric spark or fuse. It will not explode by concussion. It is claimed that the new explosive is 50 per cent stronger than the 65 per cent grade of dynamite and that the cost of manufacture will be less than that of dynamite.

Jeanne of the Marshes

BY E. P. OPPENHEIM

CHAPTER VII.

The Count de Brensault had seldom been in a worse temper. That Jeanne should have flouted him was not in itself so terrible, because he had quite made up his mind that sooner or later he would take a coward's revenge for the slights he had been made to endure at her hands. But that she should have flouted in the presence of a whole roomful of people, that he should have been deliberately left for another man, was a different matter altogether. His first impulse when Jeanne left him, was to walk out of the house and have nothing more to say to the Princess or Jeanne herself. The world was full of girls perfectly willing to tumble into his arms, and mothers only too anxious to push them there. Why should he begrudge himself the pleasure of a girl as great a heiress though she might be? But somehow or other, after he had tossed off two glasses of champagne at the buffet, he recalled that his fancy for her was a real thing, and one from which he could not so readily escape. If she had wished to deliberately attract him, she could scarcely have chosen means more calculated to attract than that by which she had done so. He would not let her go, he determined. Dignified or undignified, he would pursue her to the end, only he must have an understanding with the Princess, something definite must be done. He would not run the risk again of being made a laughingstock before all his friends. Forrest found him in exactly the mood most suitable for his purpose.

"Come and talk to the Princess," he said. "She has something to say to you."

De Brensault rose somewhat heavily to his feet.

"And I," he said, "I, too, will have something to say to her. We will take a glass of champagne together my friend Forrest, and then we will seek the Princess."

Forrest nodded.

"By all means," he said. "To tell you the truth I need to see her."

De Brensault looked at him curiously.

"You are very pale, my friend," he said. "You look as though things were not going too well with you."

"I have been annoyed," Forrest answered. "There is a man here whom I dislike, and I made me angry to see him with Miss Jeanne. I think myself that the time has come when something definite must be done as regards that child. She is too young to be allowed to run loose like this, and a great deal too inexperienced."

"I agree with you," De Brensault said solemnly. "We will drink that glass of wine together, and we will go and talk to the Princess."

They found the Princess where Forrest had left her. She motioned to De Brensault to sit by her side, and Forrest left them.

"My dear Count," the Princess said, "tonight has proved to me that it is quite time Jeanne had some one to look after her. Let me ask you, are you perfectly serious in your suit?"

"Absolutely!" De Brensault answered eagerly. "I myself would like the matter settled. I propose to you for her hand."

The Princess bowed her head thoughtfully.

"I do not want to hurry you, dear," she said, "but when you have finished supper I should be glad to go. We have to go on to Dorchester House, you know."

Jeanne sighed. She had been enjoying herself very much indeed.

"I am ready now," she said, standing up. "but must we go to Dorchester House? I have not had such a good time since I have been in London."

"Remember," the Duke was saying, as he drew Jeanne's hand through his arm, "that I was very much in earnest in what I said to you just now. I have seen a good deal of the world, and you nothing at all, and I cannot help believing that the time when you may need some one's help is a good deal nearer than you yourself imagine."

"I wonder," she asked, a little timidly, "why you are so kind to me?"

"I accept you upon trust," the Duke said earnestly to Jeanne, and the Princess was a little perplexed.

"I wonder," she remarked, more to herself than to her companion, "what he is saying."

De Brensault shrugged his shoulders.

"I do not care," he said. "We will keep to our bargain, you and I. In a few days it will be my arm that she shall take, and nobody else's. Perhaps I shall be a little jealous. Who can say? In a little time she will not mind."

"Remember," the Duke was saying, as he drew Jeanne's hand through his arm, "that I was very much in earnest in what I said to you just now. I have seen a good deal of the world, and you nothing at all, and I cannot help believing that the time when you may need some one's help is a good deal nearer than you yourself imagine."

"I wonder," she asked, a little timidly, "why you are so kind to me?"

"I accept you upon trust," the Duke said earnestly to Jeanne, and the Princess was a little perplexed.

Fashion Hint for Times Readers

A Coat That Can Be Worn Separately.

Though this smart coat is really part of a two-piece suit, it may also be worn with one-piece frocks of harmonizing color, or with a shirtwaist and mohair skirt for runabout use. The material of this suit is serge in a dark blue color—blues being very fashionable this season. The long-sleeved effect is produced by the strap across the hip, with pleats set in below. The curved pocket is a new feature, and the buttoned straps, used instead of cuffs. The hat is a stone blue beaver, trimmed with gray and blue wings.

A NEW DODGE IN MARINE INSURANCE

London Fairplay Thinks it Sees the Handwork of Certain Americans, With Whom H. P. Whitney is Associated

(Fairplay, London.)

In view of the effort being made to obtain an increase in rates of premium for marine insurance, it is interesting, if not amusing, to notice that a fresh "market" (?) has sprung up in London willing to compete for business, and where the rate is apparently not the most important feature. This "market" consists of a number of syndicates of names who are signed for on a form of policy strikingly similar to Lloyd's form, and which, I understand, can be obtained from a firm having a small office in the city, and need not, as is now connected with Lloyd's. The same firm has opened an office in Antwerp, and I hear, issued thence a "certificate" of insurance with "British Underwriters, London," on a certificate by a French sailing vessel Antwerp to Calcutta, at 75 per cent, a premium which should command a large amount of similar business if the security offered is sufficiently evident to tempt insurers. There is a further clause, "In event of claim apply to Lloyd's agent." Needless to say, nothing of this arrangement with its agents is known at Lloyd's. Another policy I have before me is headed "British Underwriters" and directly underneath are the words, "Signed by Underwriting Members only." The significance of these words will be apparent to anyone accustomed to a Lloyd's policy. As the policy of the British underwriters does not state where payment of any claim that may attach may be obtained in this country, application was made to the firm in London who are credited with being the originators of this "policy." A representative called in response to a letter, and stated that all the "underwriters" were Americans. It seems surprising that a policy headed with the words "British Underwriters" should, according to the information given, be composed entirely of American citizens. They are certainly unknown on this side. The representative was asked if any of the gentlemen had made any deposit, and the reply was, "I decline to give any information on that point."

Circulars have been issued broadcast in America by the originators of this syndicate of British underwriters offering to do business on most favorable terms, with the result that numerous inquiries have been made by American houses desirous of obtaining cheap insurance, as to the standing of these underwriters. Replies have been sent that, these Britons are said to be American, and no doubt inquiries are now being made in the land of their birth as to the place of residence and evidence of wealth of these "British underwriters' resident" abroad. There are other amusing episodes in connection with this matter which, however, would take too much space to relate. The following is the list of names appearing on the policy referred to above:

Le Roy Gates Clarence Payton
Alfred Morton H. H. Howard
John Sherman W. H. Miller
Randolph Slater T. D. Turner
A. S. Mason Samuel Tracy
W. B. Hammond Burdett O'Connor
Frank Witherbee Watson Page
John Wray Henry Dunlop
Marvin Allen Frederick Gray
C. G. Moore Manuel Voyle
Thos. H. Whitney

William Cameron R. H. Drennan
John T. Collins Robert S. Perkins
H. H. Richards Alexander Davidson
S. M. Glyde F. E. Houston
John W. Calkins F. Calkins
Thomas Harbour F. H. Johnston
Per Henry F. Davis.

The list of underwriters comprises the two syndicates who were supposed to be interested in a policy of insurance referred to above. I would also allude to the fact that the first syndicate is signed for by H. P. Whitney. I do not know whether the well-known American of this name has taken a situation in the office referred to in the city, but if it should happen to be a clerk possessing the seen initials he is sure to be appreciated by his employers, and that he will receive full benefit of the value of possessing such an excellent name.

COMPENSATION OF WORKMEN UNDER THE ENGLISH ACT.

More Than $10,000,000 Paid by Employers According to First Year's Record

The first volume of the new series of workmen's compensation statistics for the year 1909, the first complete year under the existing act of 1906, has been issued by the British Home Office. It covers the compensation cases in the several principal industries—shipping, factories, docks, mines, and the construction of buildings. The benefit of the act to workmen is shown by the number of cases and dependants of those killed in 1909.

The figures do not cover the whole and, for the case of industries such as building, agriculture, sea fishing, and domestic service, all of which were liable to compensation by the new act, the statistics are not available. The statistics made it practically impossible to obtain complete returns.

In the seven industries above quoted the returns are as follows:

Total employees	7,812,753
Fatal accidents	2,347
Disability cases	23,844
Compensation paid	£2,090,072

These figures divided among the seven groups of industries are as follows:

Shipping	Deaths	1	Disability	1	Compensation	£100
Factories	221	2,112	22,844	£2,089,972
Docks	551	130,596	82,644	£1,100,000
Mines	1,301	17,822	81,456	£1,000,000
Quarries	119	8,865	51,823	£500,000
Railways	428	30,949	15,111	£1,000,000

What the increase of compensation has been under the new act cannot be known, but the following summary of cases which have been reported since the act came into force shows that it must have been very great:

These figures only deal with county courts in England and Wales.

Average annual number of cases in 1903	6,283
Previous five years	2,903
In total cases in compensation	$19,240
Five years was 48 cases, with compensation	£75,000
Informal arbitrations registered in county courts in 1909	22,115
The annual average for the previous five years was	2,654

These figures show that the number of cases in which compensation was paid last year, the greater number having been settled privately, but they are sufficient to indicate how great has been the increase of liability incurred by employers under the new act.

How many workmen have received compensation under the new act it is impossible to say, but the statistics show that 23,844 cases were registered in county courts in 1909, and 1,019 disability cases.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE IN KENT COUNTY

The Proceedings—Those Present—Boy Rescued from Drowning

Recton, N. B., Oct. 18.—The annual meeting of the Kent Co. Teachers' Institute was held in the Superior School here last week, and was a decided success. W. S. Carter, chief superintendent of education, and Inspector Chas. D. Hebert were in attendance. Miss M. C. McInerney presided at the meetings. There were forty-two teachers present.

On Thursday evening a largely attended public meeting was held in the public hall. The speakers were Chief Superintendent Carter, Rev. J. J. McLaughlin, Hon. D. V. Landry, commissioner of agriculture, Inspector Hebert, and H. M. Ferguson. A nice musical programme was also carried out during the evening.

Mr. Carter strongly advocated the consolidation of schools and urged that more attention be paid to the exterior of the schools by having the grounds nicely fenced and adorned with trees and flowers. He also advised the introduction of the teaching of manual training and domestic science in the schools of Kent County.

On Friday evening the visiting teachers were entertained at an at home in the public hall, which was much enjoyed.

The following was the programme of the institute:

Thursday, 10-11—Organization.
11-12—Address by the president.
Friday, 10-11—Composition, Miss Lynn Wright.
12-1—Moral training, Miss Mary Chrysal.
11-12—Teacher's duties, C. M. McCann.
11-12—Birds, J. A. Starrak.
12-1—Paper in French by Miss O. Breaux.
2-3—First steps in reading, by Inspector Hebert.
3-4—Question Box opened; election of officers.
Harcourt was chosen as the next place of meeting and the following officers were elected: President, Arthur Mitchell; vice-president, Miss Ettavander Palmer; secretary, C. M. McCann; executive, Miss M. A. Buckley; Miss O. Breaux.

On Friday afternoon the institute divided into two sections, French and English. The French section was presided over by Inspector Hebert, and a paper in French was read by Miss Breaux. Inspector Hebert's paper was also in French. These were very interesting and beneficial to the French teachers.

The following is a list of the teachers who were present: Misses Laura Mitchell, Lynn Wright, Jessie Dickinson, Mary Chrysal, M. C. McInerney, Onora Breaux, Mina Richard, Kate Robertson, Ethel Rogers, Kate S. HEBREW BIRTH RATE EXTREMELY HEAVY

(Montreal Herald)

In connection with an unusually high birth rate reported for last week, it was said in the health department at the City Hall this morning, that of the eighty-three births at the Protestant Maternity Hospital during the week, only three had been of other nationalities than Hebrew.

"It is astonishing how prolific they are," said the Herald's informant. "And when you consider the fact that the death rate among Hebrew children is very low, it brings their increase in population away above even the French-Canadian."

The total births for the week were 230; 122 being males and 117 females. Deaths totalled 130; 104 Catholics, 19 Protestants and 7 Jews. Of these 3 were due to typhoid, 12 to tuberculosis, 7 to cancer, 4 to meningitis, 4 to pneumonia, 26 to intestinal troubles in infants. Sixty-seven children under five years died during the week.

The contagious diseases report showed 81 cases of typhoid, 14 diphtheria, 21 scarlet fever, 3 measles, 7 whooping cough, 8 chicken pox, 22 tuberculosis, 1 scabies, 2 mumps. Total, 157.

It is no sin to be thirty years of age, but it is a shame to ask a girl of thirty how old she is.

BRITISH POLITICS

A London cable says—"British politics will be interesting even to an outsider for the next few weeks. It is not possible to announce with any confidence what form the developments will take, but it is sure they will be unprecedented. The proposed referendum on the budget probably will not be adopted, although no sound reason against it has been forthcoming."

The latest report is that the government intends to revise a procedure which has been desisted for more than two centuries, and to move in the House of Commons a bill to dissolve parliament or merely acknowledge the receipt of the remonstrance. Dissolution would follow in any event.

"Much depends, no doubt, on the result of the Bermondsey by-election. This is a typical London constituency is now Liberal, but is more than likely to go Conservative, and such a result would preclude a government defeat in a general election. It requires only one or two more needless Socialist speeches, such as Chancellor Lloyd-George made at Newcastle a week ago, to make such an event a certainty."

C.P.R. MAKES USE OF CARRIAGE PIGEONS

(Montreal Gazette)

The Canadian Pacific has other means than its telegraph wires and its mail train to carry news. Two carrier pigeons belong to the company's extensive stock at Caledonia Springs Hotel, were released the other day by George Duncan from the Ottawa city ticket office of the company, and covered the distance to Caledonia in short order. Tied to them were a number of messages to Manager Cole of the Caledonia Springs Hotel. The birds are the third generation of a flock originally brought from Boston, and for some time they displayed a marked tendency, whenever released, to make back for the centre of culture and baked beans. The company, however, has constructed a special loft for the pigeons and the latter generations are content to stay at Caledonia. Every now and then a couple of the birds are taken away 100 miles or so and released. They invariably find their way back home with unerring exactness.

UNITED TO FIGHT AGAINST THE EVILS OF DRINK HABIT

French and Irish Catholic and Protestant Temperance Societies of Montreal Hold Parade—They March From the Champ de Mars to St. James Cathedral

(Montreal Witness) An epoch making event—"as the temperance demonstration which took place yesterday under the auspices of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of Canada. About two thousand people marched from the Champ de Mars to St. James Cathedral, and a very interesting and significant feature of the procession was the juvenile section, comprising about one-third of the number taking part in the exercises.

This is the first time such a demonstration has ever taken place in Montreal, said a member of the C. T. A. U., "but it will not be the last. We feel greatly encouraged at Quebec, they were enthusiastically displayed, and will plan for a larger and more representative demonstration next year."

The procession started at three o'clock when the procession filed off the Champ de Mars into St. Gabriel street and proceeded via St. James, St. Lawrence, St. Catherine, Peel and Dorchester streets to the Cathedral. There were three brass bands and a juvenile band and several large banners in the procession, the head of which had turned into St. Catherine street before the rear had reached Craig street.

There were over twenty French and Irish societies represented and the procession was an imposing one.

When the procession reached the Cathedral, the members of each society were given the pews allotted to them, while the officers and invited guests took special seats in front of the altar railing.

The service opened with two sermons, one in French and the other in English. Before each sermon the following letter from Archbishop Bruchesi was read:—

Were it not for the First Plenary Council of Canada which necessitates my presence at Quebec, gladly would I be with you today to bid you a hearty welcome to my Cathedral. With the Apostle St. Paul I may say, in all sincerity: "I am with you." Your presence, in answer to the proffered invitation, is an earnest of your eagerness to take part in our crusade against one of the worst foes of individual, domestic and social peace, and happiness. You are evidently blessed with the grace of temperance, and I congratulate you on the religious and patriotic work which I inaugurated three years ago. You must persevere with unflinching zeal.

Parents, unite with your bishops and your priests. Teach your families sobriety by word and example. Let your homes be centres of purity, honesty and dignity. Workmen—Exert your best influences over your fellow workmen. Keep them away from where they ruin their health, squander large sums of money which they could devote to much nobler purposes and where they learn to contract the most pernicious habits.

There are far too many saloons in Montreal. There is no reason why there should be any at all in maritime localities. Christian citizens, league together, spare no pains in order to limit their number. Your zeal will suggest the means which you will prefer to adopt in order to minimize the occasions of evil. Should not all saloons and bars be closed early on week days and particularly on Saturdays? Are not the regulations adopted in other places, and attended with the happiest results, most opportune in the city of er. "But," said the surveyor general, "it is an easy thing to make up the report and I will tell you that J. B. Stevenson will certainly not be dismissed as lumber scaler."

USEFUL FOR BUSINESS MEN A city man tells this story against himself. It may be of use to business men who are tormented with horses who waste their time.

"I went to see a busy man in the city, and being very interested in my business, I talked rather at length, and perhaps consumed a little too much time. The telephone on Mr. Busman's desk rang, and he picked up the receiver.

"In a minute," he said, "I will be up there immediately. I am busy with a gentleman now, but we are about through."

"I started to hurry my last words so as not to detain him, but I forgot myself and I talked longer than I intended to. Again the telephone rang.

"All right," answered the man; then turning to me he continued: "I have an appointment on the floor above that will require me to excuse myself for a few minutes." He left his desk and disappeared through a door.

"I was anxious to say a few words more," I waited. Several times I thought I heard some one approach the door through which he had gone, but ten minutes passed without his returning. I walked up and down the floor, and in my journey noticed a button at the end of his desk where his hand had touched it. I was surprised to hear the telephone bell ring.

"I made an examination, found the telephone was connected with nothing but that button, and realized that he had rung it just to get rid of me."

"I concluded to wait no longer, and sneaked out as quickly as possible."—London Times.

SISTERS OF CHARITY The organization known as "Sisters of Charity" must go back for its real origin to the daughter of Helena, mother of the Emperor Constantine. This daughter, Eustachia, was devoted to works of charity, and in the course of her unremitting labors among the poor and sick was attended by a body of maidens whom she had thoroughly animated with her spirit. It was from that body of young women that the organization of the Sisters of Charity sprung in New York America.

MAY BE ANOTHER MURDER CASE New York, Oct. 19.—Around the bleached skeleton of a young woman which was found in a clump of woods yesterday (19) are weaving a mystery down at Islip (L. I.), which may or may not be a murder case, but pasting interest. Evidence was discovered today which seems to indicate that the girl was shot. A bullet, discovered on the ground close to the spot where the body was found was the first clue, and later a careful examination of the skull showed a bullet hole at the top of the mouth. A wound in the mouth is a fatal one, unless the wound is shallow and the bullet is stopped by the jawbone, although trifling and personal effects of the victim were undisturbed.

Judging by the condition of the skeleton, the murder occurred about a year ago. The victim, according to the coroner, was of average height, about 24 years old and a blonde. Part of the hair has been found.

An effort was made today to identify the girl as Miss May Smith, a nurse in the Manhattan State Hospital at Islip. Miss Smith, who has been missing since last spring, was believed to be the fiancée of Augustus Schwartz, who is now in jail at Riverhead (L. I.), awaiting trial on the charge of murdering Irving J. Nelson, an Islip politician, on September 18.

Strathroy, Ont., Oct. 19.—(Special)—T. O. Currie, dominion immigration agent at Milwaukee (Wis.), died at his home here early this morning after an illness extending over many months. Deceased had been broken down in health for some time and early in April was forced to leave his desk and come home to rest.

SALVAGE CART HIT BY CAR; FIREMAN KILLED Montreal, Oct. 19.—A fatal accident occurred on McGill street at a late hour this evening when a salvage wagon hurrying to a small midnight fire was run into by a street car while crossing the street. The salvage wagon was upset in front of another car moving in the opposite direction. Fireman Robert Stearns was thrown and sustained fatal injuries, his skull being fractured, one arm torn and a leg fractured.

Fireman Macaran also suffered a fractured jaw, while another fireman on the wagon was badly bruised and cut. The two derailed cars collided, smashing their ends and bruising and cutting several of the passengers. The fire which led to the tragedy was a trivial affair.

TUB TALK No. 2

To wash colored muslins, linens or lawns, first make a strong suds with Taylor's Borax Soap and luke warm water. Wet but one piece at a time. Unless the article is very much soiled, do not run the soap directly on the article. Rub gently with the hands until perfectly clean. Wring out the clothes, and rinse thoroughly in water of the same temperature as that previously used. Never boil colored clothes. A very little Taylor's Borax Soap added to boiled starch will prevent it from sticking, and makes the clothes iron smoother and easier.

SUPERIOR PAINLESS DENTISTRY!

"There is a world wide cry against the dentists that they torture their patients. Those of strong physique submit and endure the agony. With a second class this is simply impossible, and thousands of teeth are neglected and lost even though the patients may be able to pay for our most skilful services. Then there is a third class who, after months of mental torture in anticipation, finally come into our hands, and with nerves strung to a hurtful point, pass through the ordeal, but at what a cost! We do not sufficiently consider the consequences of shock in the dental chair, yet undoubtedly many suffer for months and even years from injuries to the nervous system received whilst in our hands.

The greatest duty of our profession today is to discover and adopt a mode of painless performing our operations."

A. of the maritime provinces, to be held in Fredericton from Oct. 22 to 25. A very fine programme has been arranged for the main session and there will also be special conferences.

Rev. A. A. Graham was greatly pleased with the returns from Harcourt, Kent county, where the saloons were voted of the parish by an overwhelming majority yesterday. Mr. Graham visited Harcourt during the campaign. The temperance forces, he says, were splendidly organized.

A Telegraph reporter went up to the Every Day Club Autumn Fair last evening to get a report of the proceedings. Incidentally, he won a pair of gloves at the excellent table and an umbrella at the bean toss. He left the rest for this evening. At the request of a number of ladies who are ardent suffragettes, a vote on the most popular ticket will be started this evening. The ladies show their political aptitude by their interest in "the man with the pull." Regulation ballot boxes are used.

After the prisoners had been disposed of this morning in the police court, a motherly woman, worrying over something, stepped into the court room and asked that she be allowed to pay her son's fine in order that he would be set free. It developed that her son, Edward McHugh, who yesterday morning was sentenced to a fine of $8 or 30 days jail on a charge of drunkenness. His mother pleaded with Judge Ritchie and he ordered McHugh to be brought into court. The prisoner was brought in, appearing very downcast, and shamefacedly looked at his mother, who was standing by the table, in tears. McHugh promised to behave better in future, and after giving him some excellent advice, His Honor allowed him to go with his mother, who paid his fine apparently with good cheer.

LAST CRIB OF NEW WHARF PLACED IN POSITION TONIGHT

With tonight's tide it is expected that the last crib of the new Clark wharf will be placed in position. It was expected that this morning's tide would have seen it in place, but Mr. Clark said the water was not high enough. The crib was moved to within three feet of its proper position, where it rests very evenly, and no trouble is anticipated in moving it into its place tonight.

THE CHANGE OF FRONT (Sackville Post.)

The St. John Sun, which bowed down and worshipped the image of Hon. Mr. Emmerson when that gentleman was minister of railways, is singing an entirely different song today. Then Mr. Emmerson was the greatest railway manager that ever happened. Today the Sun is crying out for company management. Why not reinstate Mr. Emmerson, if his management was so great a success only a few years ago? The principal owner of the Sun and Chronicle is Mr. Pearson of Halifax. The Sun has at one time or another fit to boom the member for Westmorland—there was something in it for him; but today Mr. Emmerson has nothing to give in the way of political favors, and Mr. Pearson has therefore turned his attention to other things, and just now, for reasons best known to himself, he would like to see the People's road handed over to a company, whether the C. P. R., Mackenzie & Mann or to some other company in which Mr. Pearson himself would be largely interested, is not known. Perhaps the Sun will disclose the secret one of these days.

POLICE COURT

Calf Moose Case Dismissed—Trouble in Restaurant and Sequel in Court

The case of Peters & Rice, charged with having in their possession a portion of moose unlawfully, was again brought up in the police court this morning. The matter was dismissed. H. H. Pickett, appearing for the defendants, asked that his honor dismiss the case or else deliver judgment, as his client could not afford to come up to court so often as he had to do. Judge Ritchie said that as had no word from the other parties, he would dismiss the case, but he said that he understood the man who shot the moose in Queens county might be brought here for trial.

In the court this morning there was the usual array of prisoners charged, for the most part, with drunkenness, and Judge Ritchie speedily disposed of them. Samuel Barker, and Englishman, charged with being drunk in the I. C. R. yard yesterday, received a severe lecture and was fined $5.

Michael McKeown, charged with being drunk in Sheffield street, was also fined. "He who he was 'that very drunk' had 'just a few glasses of beer.' Sergt. Campbell told of making the arrest and Judge Ritchie told him that his name was Melancon.

Duncan McKay, when a charge of drunkenness was read to him, said he had just come from "down east" and was in the depot waiting for his train, when he was arrested.

"You have no business there in a drunken state, even if you came from Washington," said his honor—"38 or 30 days."

Andrew Magee and John Clancy pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness, but their memory failed when the charge of using profane and abusive language was preferred against them. Magee was charged with ordering lunches, amounting to 75 cents, in the "Do Drop In" restaurant in St. John street, and not paying for them. This charge was made by the proprietor, Mrs. Mary McLaughlin, and she also charged Clancy with using abusive language to her.

Mrs. McLaughlin said that Magee and Clancy, accompanied by another man named Theo. Cairns, came into the restaurant yesterday afternoon and ordered lunches, which amounted to 75 cents, for which Magee said he would pay. When she came to collect the money, Magee told her that he had already paid her, giving her a $2 bill. This she denied, and on Magee still persisting in his statement, she called Sergt. Baxter to arrest him. Meantime, she said, Clancy had been calling her names—names such as were not fit to be used in the dens of Sheffield street," she said this morning.

THE LATE W. I. WHITING (By H. L. Spencer.)

Except among a few of St. John's oldest residents the news of the death of W. I. Whiting in the city of New York, which was received last Saturday, was the occasion of but infrequent comment, because, though a native of Kings Co., and for several years a respected and successful business man of St. John, he left here a good many years ago, soon after the great fire of 1877—and since then had been but an infrequent visitor in his native province. A large majority of Mr. Whiting's contemporaries here have preceded him on his journey to the "Great Beyond," and the younger generation have heard of him but casually or not at all. In more respects than one Mr. Whiting was a notable man. In his business on South Street he was capable and alert, and his integrity was never questioned. He broke no pledges, he never turned his back on a friend, he was jealous of the good name of the city, and intensely Canadian in his sentiments. Mr. Whiting was born in Kingston, Kings Co., and while still a very young man he went to St. John, to join in the battle of life. As a general merchant and ship owner, he was quite successful, but he was a persistent reader of old and curious books, of which he probably had a large collection than any other resident of the city, with the exception, perhaps, of the late James McMillan, and after the fire of 1877 had swept away much of his property, he resolved to live the remainder of his life among books; and with several cases of rare books that had been stored in his den over his store on South Street, he removed to New York, and opened what became later, according to the New York Sun, the largest Ancient and Modern book-store in the world. So far as we are advised, his enterprise was a financial success, but financial success was not his sole aim; he wanted to live his life in his own way, and it is hoped he succeeded in doing so. Mr. Whiting first established himself at 27 Beaver street, but later removed to 62 New street, where it is said, among the books that were stored from floors to ceilings, the uninitiated were as liable to go astray as they might be in the catacombs at Rome.

Mr. Whiting was himself a writer, satirical, cynical and humorous, of no little note. The writer has before him three of his productions—"Harlequinade," "Pegasus to Purgatory, via Wall Street," and "The Crowning City." The following lines are reproduced as a sample of Mr. Whiting's verse.

"Mothers of Kingston! daughters hear! Hungry I seek my childhood home. Oh! give me that substantial cheer That oft ye gave ere I did roam; Ah! meals by you, there's none can beat them, And I'm the daisy that can eat them.

Fathers of Kingston! sons, attend! And freely let your pity flow; Like, yet unlike, hath been your friend 'Till him who went from Jericho After his thieves, Samaritan.

But I have never yet found one. But such is life; some up, some down, Some play the fool, and some the sage, Some act the king, and some the clown, And such hath been in every age; But come what may, oh, never fret, But pray you may be happy yet."

Mr. Whiting was never married. An alarm from box 2 was responded to this morning about 9:0 o'clock by the fire department, the cause having been a blaze in a shed at the rear of the roofing establishment of G. S. Fisher & Co., King St. The fire was thought to have caught from a spark from a neighboring chimney. The roof was quite badly burned. The shed was used as a place for mixing materials used in roofing purposes. There was no insurance.
