Roosevelt Precedent-Breaker To Ship Lobsters Across The Ocean

No man before Roosevelt who became President through the death of his predecessor ever received the Presidential nomination. Arthur narrowly missed this. It accordingly came to be regarded by a somewhat unwritten law that a Vice-President acting as Chief Executive could be nominated or elected at the fall term of his own. Mr. Roosevelt, however, has been nominated by acclamation and elected by the largest popular majority of any President in the history of the country, the proportions of his preponderance over Parker being substantially Taft over Bryan. Mr. Roosevelt was the youngest man who ever became President. He is the one man, since the unwritten law against a third term was established in the early days of the Republic, who was prevented from breaking it down only by his own determination that this should not be done. He could have had the nomination in 1908, had he even remotely desired it, and that he would have been overwhelmily elected admits of no question. He is also the only President since Jackson virtually to select his successor. He is also the only President to have organized a party of well-organized group of party leaders in the Senate. And yet Mr. Taft received an overwhelming majority in the convention, and one of the great popularities of history, no small vindication of the power of Roosevelt's leadership.

It is plain that the number of superlatives in accomplishment and attainment which can be used in connection with the Administration of Roosevelt is such as to make his career an exceedingly attractive one for the future investigator. No danger exists that the history of the country will ever be written and his name left out. Among the pictures of the great originality with which he has acted, he is sure to be long quoted, and his experiences widely cited. He has doubtless established more precedents than any other half-dozen Presidents; he has broken quite as large a proportion of the total. In trifles this appears. He has changed the name of one old edifice from the stilted "Executive Mansion," which is acquired in the middle of the last century, to the simpler name by which it is known the world over. His method of going out of the Presidential office, including his trip to Africa, is decidedly original. The journey of the battleship fleet around the world was a Roosevelt idea. No man had even attempted such a thing, and he became a ready listener to the reform causes, and has been notably active propagandist on going from the size of American cities to the spelling of the English language. Municipalities Union

The Union of Municipalities closed its session at Moncton Thursday evening. City Clerk McCready, Fredericton, moved that the subject of urging the government of New Brunswick to introduce legislation providing for a public utilities board be commended to the consideration of the different councils of cities, towns and municipalities of the province and the matter be taken up for discussion at our next annual convention. Seconded by Ald. Rowan, St. John, and carried.

Opposed to Transfer of I. C. R. Ald. Reilly, Moncton, moved the following:

That this union of New Brunswick, now assembled in convention, do strongly disapprove either leasing or otherwise transferring the Intercolonial Railway or any part thereof to any individual company or corporation, and be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Minister of Railways.

Ald. McClelland, St. John, seconded the resolution. He said it would be a great disaster if this road was transferred to any private corporation. The I. C. R. should not make any money, but the benefit to the people was in keeping the control of the rates. If other roads got it they would want to make money out of it. The extension of the I. C. R. by the government was in the interests of the people in the upper provinces as well as the people of the lower provinces. Mayor Murray, Campbellton, said he hoped the rates would not be increased any more on the I. C. R. They were raised considerably a few years ago and it was very much felt. He was heartily in favor of the resolution. The resolution was then put and unanimously adopted.

HIGHWAY ACT

Commissioner Sterling submitted the report of the committee appointed to consider the highway act as follows:

To the President and Members of the Union of New Brunswick Municipalities. Your committee appointed to take into consideration the highway act and the suggestions thereon, beg leave to report that after considering the act and the changes suggested by the various county councils, we beg leave to submit the following changes in the working out of the act:

- 1.-That we approve of the road board and the government appointing one member of said board be fixed by the government.
2.-That the commissioner be done away with.
3.-That the board divide the parishes into districts under a surveyor.
4.-That the taxes be collected by the surveyors in their respective districts, and the money so collected shall be spent in the said districts.
5.-That the poll tax be placed at $1.50.
6.-That the property tax be 15 cents on the $1.00.
7.-That the rate of pay for work on winter roads be the same per hour as statute labor in summer.
Signed--A. Sterling, M. D., A. Branscombe, John T. Tullin, R. A. McNeill, C. H. Read.
The report was dealt with section by section, and the only sections to provoke discussion were those on the collection rates and rate of taxation on parishes. In reference to the rate, Mayor MacLachlin, Chatham, asked if it would be wise to make a recommendation of the kind. New Brunswick was now paying the lowest highway rate of any province. It would be wise to let them fix the rate they considered sufficient to keep up the roads. If a people got good roads he considered there would be no objection to a slight increase in the taxes.

He moved in amendment to the report that the property tax be twenty cents instead of fifteen. This was seconded by Ald. McClelland, but overwhelmingly lost. Votes of thanks were extended to the citizens of Moncton for kindly reception to the press, and convention adjourned.

Doctors and Patients

In all the world there are only two classes of mankind--doctors and patients. I have had a delicacy in confessing to the patient class ever since a doctor told me that all patients are phenomenal liars where their symptoms are concerned. But, as a patient, I should say that the average patient looks upon the average doctor very much as a non-combatant looks on the troops fighting in his behalf, and thinks the more trained men there are between him and the enemy the better.

It is unfortunate for the doctor that death--the senior practitioner--is bound to win in the long run. We patients must console ourselves with the idea that their husbands is to make the best terms they can with death on our behalf to see that his attacks are delayed as long as they can be, or diverted, and to see that, when he insists upon driving the attack home that he does so according to the rules of civilized warfare.

Every sane human being agrees that this long-drawn fight for time that we call life is one of the most important things in the world, and it therefore follows that the doctors who control and oversee this fighting are the most important people.

The world decided long ago that doctors have no working hours that any one need respect. Nothing except extreme bodily illness will excuse them, and they are to be summoned and what little vitality they have accumulated in leisure hours is dragged out of them again.

At all times, at fire, flood, famine, plague, battle, murder and sudden death, they are required to report for duty at once, to go out on duty at once, and to stay on duty until their strength fails or their conscience releases them--which may be the longer period.

And I do not think their obligations will grow less. Nobody ever heard of a bill to promote an eight-hour day for doctors. No change in public opinion will allow them not to attend a patient when they know the man never intends to pay them, or protect them from people who, although perfectly able to pay, prefer to go to a free hospital for their glass eyes or aork legs. It seems to be required of them that they must save others, while no one has laid down that they need save themselves.

At their orders, houses, streets, whole quarters of a city will be pulled down or burned.

To do the patients justice, they do not often dispute the doctor's orders. They have been exposed, and always will be, to the contempt of the gifted amateur--the gentleman who knows by intuition everything they have learned through long years of study. They have been exposed to the attacks of those persons who consider their own emotions more important than the world's most bitter agonies and who would hamper and cripple research because they fear it may be accompanied by a little pain and suffering.

Such people have been against them from the beginning, ever since the Egyptians erected images of cats and oxen upon the banks of the Nile. But their work goes on, and will go on, and they remain the only class that dares tell the world that you can get no more out of a machine than is out in it, and that if the fathers have eaten forbidden fruit, the teeth of the children are apt to be affected.

At a time when few things are called by their right names, when it is against the spirit of the time to hint that an act may entail consequences, physicians belong to a profession paid to tell the truth, a profession which exacts from its followers the largest responsibility and the highest death rate, for its practitioners, of any profession in the world--K pling.

The Political Economy of Good Roads

Poor roads impose an unnecessary financial burden, not only upon those who most constantly use them, but upon the men and women who consume the products grown in the rural sections and brought to cities and towns by farmers.

Everybody who thinks must concede the evident fact that if a farmer with two horses can draw but 600 pounds to market in five hours, he would save money if with one horse he could haul 1,200 pounds in two hours. Were the roads in good condition, he could do that and more. Any saving in hauling a ton of farm product would bring a benefit, not alone to the farmer, but to the consumer, and if the product hauled each year was large, it is not hard to figure that the saving would be large. Figures have been assembled to prove that owing to the frightened condition of almost all American roads, it costs 25 cents a ton a mile to haul. The superb roads of the old countries of Europe make possible the hauling of farm products at 12 cents a ton a mile. Therefore, every ton hauled costs the American farmer 13 cents more per mile than the farmers of the old country are forced to pay. The average length of haul of farm products in the United States is 9.4 miles; therefore, were our roads as good as those of France, the farmer's gain would be 9.4 times 13 cents, or approximately $1.23. Scientific American.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by druggists. Price 75c. per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Oratory

The trouble with young men in Canada is that most of them are ashamed to be as eloquent as they could be. They make speeches when they must but they hold back from oratory. They adopt the conversational or business tone; as it is used by altogether too many of our foremost men. The desire of most of our public speakers seem to be to argue logically, or at least plausibly, but few of them attempt eloquence, or allow themselves to rise to passionate declamation. With English statesmen it is pretty much the same; they take the conversational tone. Or, perhaps, we may ascribe the decline of eloquence to the influence of great lawyers, who have spent their best years in making arguments before benches of judges, and whose manners and methods impress younger methods of the profession entering politics. A generation or so ago eloquence was much honored in the United States, but since it acquired the name of spellbinding it has fallen into decline as with us. And yet there at here the man who is not afraid to let himself go, but who will stand up on his feet and speak with fire and force the thoughts that are in him, will sway the multitudes and for long years after influence the lives of men. Eloquence is not to be underrated in human affairs. Oratory, considering its influence, is quite too much neglected in our universities. Toronto Star.

Drinking the Groceries

The Toronto Globe issues the following extract from a circular issued by a number of grocery firms in Ohio city: "Any one who drinks three glasses of whiskey a day for one year, and pays ten cents a drink for it, can have exchanged for the same money, at any of the firms whose names appear on this card:

- 5 barrels of flour.
20 bushels potatoes.
200 lbs. lard.
1 barrel crackers.
2 lbs. tea.
1 lb. pepper.
50 lbs. salt.
20 lbs. rice.
50 lbs. butter.
10 lbs. cheese.
25 lbs. coffee.
10 lbs. candy.
3 doz. cans tomatoes.
10 doz. pickles.
10 doz. oranges.
10 doz. bananas.
2 doz. cans corn.
18 dozen matches.
1.2 bushel beans.
100 cakes of soap.
12 pkgs. rolled oats
and $15.30 premiums for making the change in expenditures."

That is about as striking a temperance lesson as we have ever seen. We commend it to the Sons of Temperance and other orders engaged in fighting the traffic. They might have a copy of it placed in the hands of every man known to habitually indulge. No man with a spark of economy in his make up, particularly if he has the monthly grocer's bill to pay, could long bear to see potatoes, canned goods, matches and so on, disappear down his throat in that fashion, and so disguised.

A Real Lung Tonic

There are many preparations that will relieve a cough—few that will cure it. The first class, containing such drugs as Opium and Morphine, simply deaden the irritation and stop the cough, but do little or no permanent good.

Rev. Father Morriscy

"Father Morriscy's No. 10"

does not contain a trace of these dangerous drugs, but is an absolutely safe and scientific preparation of Nature's own remedies—Herbs, Roots and Balsams.

It entirely removes the irritation that caused the cough, by clearing out the mucus, stopping the inflammation and healing the delicate membrane of throat and lungs.

Moreover, it tones up and strengthens the whole system, particularly the lungs, and protects against future coughs and colds.

Trial size 25c. per bottle. Regular size 50c.

WILL POWER

Frederick Howell in Philadelphia Bulletin

In a moment of mental aberration, Hansen paid me a crown which he had owed me for years. He gave no reason for the rash act, but I suppose someone had died and left him a lot of money. I took the crown and thought for a moment of sending it as conscience money to the tax collector.

Then I was undecided whether to purchase a new house or a fur overcoat, and finally bought a new book for which I paid a crown and a half.

It was a nice book, entitled "Will Power." The professor on the front page alone was worth the money. He hadn't quite made up his mind whether to look like Sandow or Brigham Young. He finished up in the portrait, however, by coming out with a strange resemblance to a chin parrot.

When I had finished admiring the professor I turned to the contents, and when I was through with the first page I came to the conclusion that I had been leading a wasted life.

According to the professor, all that was wanted to succeed in this world was the proper use of your will power. Exercise your will power and you won't have to walk on the pavement. The centre of the road is yours with brass bands in front, and your friends looking out of the windows reminding each other of the days when you had one banana for lunch and spelled street car with a K.

"Exercise your will power in everyday life," the professor advised, "and you get there with both feet."

There seemed to be something in the idea, and I decided to try it at the first opportunity. It came in the shape of a man with a wheelbarrow, who was obstructing the sidewalk just where I wanted to cross.

I looked at him sternly, bearing in mind the professor's words that silent determination will remove all obstacles.

It didn't remove the wheelbarrow, though.

The proprietor, a gentleman with a face that looked like a frozen tomato, and a hand that could have spanned the smoke-stack of an ocean-liner, appeared uncomfortable under my stern gaze.

After I had looked at him for some seconds without winking till my eyes watered, he advanced in what might be called battle array.

"If you don't clear your tailow face out of here in less than two seconds you won't have none of it left," he said.

A consultation with the professor behind a moving van told me he had nothing to fit the occasion, and I decided to postpone further experiments till I got home.

"Think of what you wish anyone to do," the professor said, "and you will at time get astonishing results. It will require patience and practice, and if no other result is obtained, there will be plenty of fun at any rate."

The professor was right. I had enough fun of a kind to last a circus or the next ten years.

"My dear," I said to my wife. "I'm going upstairs. I want to try a little experiment."

"You are not going in for chemistry are you?" was the anxious question. "You know what Mr. Olsen did with his face when he tried a new explosive."

"No," I answered shortly, "and if you feel any mysterious influence impelling you to do something, don't do it."

Maria, with a touch of unwelcome humor, hinted that there was a mysterious influence impelling her to make beef-steak pie for dinner and that she hoped he wouldn't set the house on fire.

I sat down in the bedroom and thought till I felt that I was getting brain fever. All I wanted Maria to do was to bring up my pipe. It seemed a simple task, when the professor said in his book that Napoleon won all his victories solely by the use of his will power.

I caught sight of myself in the glass and realized that if Napoleon ever looked as I did it was no wonder that he scooped in victories every afternoon. No fencing army could ever have looked on such a face and lived.

I frowned until my forehead was nearly split, and then I went downstairs thinking that perhaps Maria was looking for that pipe.

After calling her several times I found that she was endeavoring to persuade the dog to let her have our beefsteak back again, while Jeannette the maid, was shrieking for help and tried to blow out a yard of gas flame escaping from the stove.

When I explained the science to Maria after dinner she was very much interested.

"If you can do everything that the book says is possible, it will be very fine," she said. "There is a gas bill to pay tomorrow and I want new linoleum for the bathroom floor and new slates for the roof. I explained rather insistently that will power would not sole boots, nor would it lay down new floor cloth, but that if she would be absolutely quiet I would try a simple experiment. I would try Jeannette to come up from the kitchen. Simply that. I sat and thought till Maria moved her chair and sat with her back to me. She said it frightened her to look at me.

"There," I cried, "I knew I could do it."

"I thought you had gone as/weep, dear, so I rang the bell for Jeannette to lock up downstairs."

The professor went on the fire, but Maria says that she doesn't believe my face will ever be right again.

There may be something in the professor's idea and if ever he appears to lecture in public I shall be there, so as to get a good seat from which to throw a brick.

Epitaphs That are Spiteful

One might imagine that when a man has been liberated from even the most shrewish wife he would be content to let her rest in peace without perpetuating her little weaknesses on her tombstone; and yet all men do not take this rational and charitable view.

Such an unforgiving husband was the man who had these lines engraved on her late spouse:

Here lies a woman, no man can deny it,
That rests in peace, although she lived unquiet.
Her husband prays for her grave you walk,
You'll gently tread, for if awaked she'll talk.

After all, this good lady may not have had a spiteful, if a two garrulous tongue; but we cannot be under any delusion as to the character of the wife who inspired her husband to write these words as her epitaph:

Here rests my spouse; no pair through life,
So equal lived as we did:
Alike we shared perpetual strife,
I knew no rest till she did.

Another happily-bereaved husband was content to confine his feelings to two words, but they were very eloquent of what he had suffered. They were these:—"Pacem habet"—He has peace.

There was no such reticence, however, about the widower who commemorated his wedding life thus:—

We lived one and twenty year
As man and wife together:
I could not stay her longer here,
She's gone, I know not whither.
But did I know I do protest
(I speak it not to flatter)
Of all the women in the world
I swear I'd ne'er come at her.
But I suppose she's soured aloft,
For in the line great thunder
Methought I heard her very voice
Rending the clouds asunder.

There is a lot of meaning, if very little poetry, in the following quatrain penned by a not too discriminating husband:—

Here lies my wife,
Who's gone on high:
If I said I was sorry
I no should lie.

The following arithmetical epitaph shows that a submerged sort of creature the husband must have been during his wedded years:—

We were not one but surely ten,
I and the wife I sigh for;
For while my better half was one,
I ne'er was but a cypher.

Punning would surely seem just as much out of place in an epitaph as spitefulness; but there are many most interesting examples of this rather grim kind of humor. Here is an enigmatic one on John Kott:—

There was a man who was Kott born,
His sire was Kott before him;
He did Kott live, he did Kott die,
His tombstone was Kott over him.

Over the body of a cobbler these lines were written:—

Come, gentle Reader, gentle friend,
And here behold poor Cosier's end.
Longer in length his life had gone,
But that he had no Last so long.
O mighty Death! whose art can kill
The man that made soles at his will.

A Case of Poisoning

Not infrequently caused by cheap acid corn salve. Be safe and use Putnam's Corn Extractor. Purely vegetable, harmless and always cures. Insist on Putnam's.

Mistaken Identity

A man, going home at a late hour in the night, saw that the occupants of a house standing flush with the street had left a window up, and he decided to warn them, and prevent a burglary.

Putting his head into the window, he called out:

"Hello, good neep—"

That was all he said. A whole painful of water struck him in the face, and, as he staggered back, a woman shrieked out:

"Didn't I tell you what you'd get if you wasn't home by nine o'clock?"

When People are seeking health or relief from any disease the price never counts

It is a fact that not less than a million is spent every year by people seeking a satisfactory cure for Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

Probably the best and most highly recommended preparation is Catarrh-ozone which treats the local symptoms very effectively by means of medicated air supplied through a convenient hard rubber inhaler. The poisons in the blood are driven off by Ferreroze Tablets, which are taken after each meal. They promote appetite, aid digestion, and make the blood rich and pure, so that it will nourish all parts of the body.

This combined local and constitutional treatment in catarrhal diseases has met with wonderful success and can be relied upon to cure every time. The inhaler stops sneezing, coughing, droppings in the throat, and brings quick relief and cure to all the disagreeable symptoms of catarrh.

The following testimonials from well-known Canadians furnish abundant proof what Catarrh-ozone accomplishes in stubborn cases.

Mrs. James Tweedie, of Jay Bridge, says: "For years my daughter doctored unsuccessfully for Catarrh. She had droppings in the throat, hawkings, nausea, and could not sleep at night. The first day's use of Catarrh-ozone benefited and ultimately cured my daughter so that Catarrh has never returned. I can recommend Catarrh-ozone as a grand remedy for Catarrh."

Thousands of strong letters could be given like the above if necessary, but all that is required to prove the merit of Catarrh-ozone is a trial. It is sure as death to cure and if it fails your money will be refunded. Catarrh-ozone cured lots of cases worse than yours and can do it again.

The Charm of Simplicity

Simplicity has no rival. Though we may be scarcely aware of nothing appeals to our inmost selves so truly and effectively as unaffected simplicity in everything.

Take, for instance, the girl armed with every feminine witchery and will that every Cupid succumbed to, she carries you away with her sparkling audacity, her bewildering moods and tantalizing airs; she dazzles you with her unflagging vitality and nerve, her irrepressible gaiety and spirits—only however, while you are yourself the charm of her presence, for when she has vanished so also does the momentary impression she has created for the spell she casts over you is a airy and diaphanous as the chiffon on her gown.

Then, by way of contrast, take the girl with the simple, unobtrusive manner, with no thought more remote from her mind than the desire to create an impression—she converses freely and genially, entirely without any trace of self-consciousness, and, although she does so unwittingly, she compels your admiration and interest by that "something" genuine and irresistibly true in her manner. It is, after all, the true real thing pure and simple which in making so strong an appeal to you which has stirred that love of everything natural and unaffected which lies hidden, however remotely, within you together with her unobtrusive manner and friendly cheerfulness, which is rendered not one whit the less charming by her natural reserve.

Thus it is with everything, not only so far as our social hearing is concerned, but in the hundred and one situations and circumstances of our daily life.

If we would win and secure true and sincere friendship, not merely a passing infatuation or attraction, let us cultivate simplicity, the rival of which never has and never will exist.

Matresses of Seaweed

A United States Consular report states that two representatives of an American mattress manufacturing company spent a portion of last summer investigating the quality and quantity of seaweed, of which large quantities are driven ashore at different points. As a result, 130 tons of seaweed, said to be of excellent quality for mattress-making, were gathered and pressed. It is proposed to resume operations on a much larger scale early this spring.

THE I. C. R.

The future of the I. C. R. seems to be one of the most important questions now engaging the attention of our representatives. A few are disposed to hand the road over to a private corporation, others take a decided stand against such a move, holding that it must continue as a government road. Prominent among these is Hon. H. R. Emmerson who in a masterly speech in the Commons on Monday strongly advocated the taking over of branch lines and thus make them feeders to the main road.

But we now have a road that is costing the people hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. Each year brings its large deficits. Can these be avoided? and can the road be made as some claim a valuable asset? Let the report of Mr. Emmerson's two years as Minister of Railways and Canals and Mr. Emmerson Commissioner of I. C. R.

The time has come when there should be no more experimenting with the people's road. Mr. Emmerson has made railroading a life study. He proved himself the man for the position while he had it. His speech on Monday showed him to be master of the situation. It is the duty of the people now to rise, irrespective of party, and demand that their road be placed into the hands of this, the only man who knows how to run it to their advantage, that they be no longer called upon to meet these large annual deficits.

This is larger than a party question, and we do not raise it as such. It is a question of large annual losses which must be met by the people. The people therefore should have something to say about it, and if the government will persist in experimenting with the people to the disadvantage of the people, they must be held responsible. In our opinion there is but one man equal to the occasion and that man is Hon. H. R. Emmerson, ex-Minister of Railways, and whom the people of both parties want to see Minister of Railways and Canals, and the sooner this is done, the sooner will relief come.

DEBATING SOCIETIES

The true Art of Speech is the effective representation of our thoughts by language. The Art of Speech is not in repeating poetry, dramatic compositions, or other time-worn extracts, from our literature, for the admiration of friends. Teaching a student how to say his words without giving him any words to say is a great error. He is a perfect reciter of other people's ideas and language, but cannot utter a thought of his own.

Of the many people who learn what is called "Elocution" in our schools, how rarely do we meet with one who can express himself with clearness and propriety. The cause of this is plain; they have not been taught to think, and therefore, when thought is required of them they have none to give.

A far better mode of instruction might be easily devised. The practice of discussion forms a much better exercise for the student, than the fatiguing recitation system which is now pursued. It teaches him thought, style and delivery—thought in the preparation which is requisite, even for the simplest debate; style, through the necessity which the speaker finds of the order and arrangement in his ideas; and delivery, in the utterance of his speech.

Elocution is doubtless an important part of the Art of Speech, but it is not the whole of it. The voice, the gesture, the manner, the action, and the expression are beyond question matters that demand great care and attention; but the education and training of the speaking powers are greater matters still.

Debating societies serve to awaken thought, establish principle and convey general information. Debates that are made to turn upon questions that involve practical, moral and speculative truth tend to supply information, thought and arrangement of ideas. In addition to learning to clothe the ideas in language, and methodize thoughts that have been formed, a debating club is a source of much pleasure and amusement.

BY THE WAY

Squalls!

St. Patrick's Day.

Winter might as well give it up.

How fast stories grow by repeated telling.

"The wee bit of shanrock we all love so well."

Buy of your home merchants and help the town.

The "blessed" legislators are assembling in Fredericton.

It is as true as ever: "Death loves a shining mark, a signal blow."

By the death of Joseph Meating the town suffers a great loss, for he was truly a good citizen.

Wild geese are flying North. Weather conditions at this writing are not very encouraging to Southern visitors.

The engrossing pastime of sending delegates to Ottawa is at its height. The shallow murmur, but the deeps are dumb.

It is reasonably safe to count on an addition to our tax bills for the present year. Perhaps any addition will be offset by deductions in other directions. There's room for that.

Neither the work of the Council nor that of the people alone, can accomplish the best results. There must be a public spirit that is willing to do its part to assist and perfect the labor of the town officials.

The father of Reginald is very much opposed to nicknames, and when he heard his offspring refer to another boy as Billy the stern parent remonstrated.

"Why do you call your little playmate Billy?" demanded the father of Reginald. "You surely must know that Billy is not his proper name."

"Yes, sir," replied Reginald. "His right name is Bill, but we call him Billy for short."—N. Y. Times.

Bill Nye had the truth well told when he said: "A man may use a wart on the back of his neck for a collar-button; ride on the back coach of a railroad train to save interest on his money till the conductor gets around; stop his watch at night to save wear and tear; leave his 'y' or 't' without a dot or cross to save ink; pasture his mother's grave to save corn; but a man of this sort is a gentleman and a scholar compared to the fellow that will take a newspaper two or three years and when asked to pay for it puts it into the office and has it marked "refused."

A pleasant little anecdote to the credit of the Kaiser, who is usually on his high horse, comes from Metz, where he was visiting. His majesty was present for a few moments at a school treat he had ordered for some village juveniles in the neighborhood. He chatted with the girls for quite a long time and said laughingly: "Well, Madels, have you all got your fathers under your thumb, like my Lutschien has me?" It is well known that the Kaiser, kind enough in his way, was strict in his education of his sons, but princesses can twist her father round her little finger. There is some virtue in being the only girl in a family of seven.

If you work for a man, in Heaven's name work for him. If he pays you wages that supply your bread and butter, work for him; speak well of him, stand by him and stand by the institution he represents. If put to a pinch, an ounce of loyalty is worth a pound of cleverness. If you must vilify, condemn and eternally disparage, why, resign your position, and when you are on the outside, damn to your heart's content. But as long as you are a part of the institution, do not condemn it. If you do, you are loosening the tendrils that hold you in the institution, and the first high wind that comes along you will be uprooted and blown away and probably you will never know why.—The Philistine

At a meeting of the Council of a neighboring town a few days ago, one of the aldermen addressing the members on the assessment system of the town, declared that year after year the assessment was made up from the old books and that the members of the board did not know either the location or condition of half the property assessed by them. He said that property which had run down was assessed at the same rate as it had been when it was in good order and worth considerably more, and that in many cases the amount was greater than in others where the value of the property was considerably higher. He thought the assessors should be required to examine the property before making the assessment and determine the condition thereof. Paste this in your hat assessors of St. George.

PERSONAL

Mrs. Harry Hinds is visiting friends in St. John.

Mrs. Foster returned to her home at Marysville Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cook visited the border towns on Friday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Connors drove up from Black Harbor Thursday.

Ellery Johnson and Edw. O'Neill, returned from St. Stephen Saturday.

Miss Bessie O'Brien has returned from Calais, where she was visiting relatives.

A. D. Wetmore went to St. John on Thursday's train. His brother Robert continues to improve.

Miss Laura Wetmore arrived here Friday from Truro to visit her brother Robert, who has been ill.

Miss Lena Britt left for her home in Calais on Monday, after a ten days visit with Mrs. Neill McMillan.

J. W. Richardson has been appointed police magistrate at St. Stephen, in place of the late L. A. Mills.

Mrs. John Doyle, Mrs. George Murray, Miss Winnie Doyle and Miss Julia Murray visited Beaver and Blacks Harbors on Friday.

The alms house commissioners met Saturday evening and appointed Simon Boyd Secretary.

George Hills the popular road man of the Union Blend Tea Co., called on his customers in town Monday.

Rev. J. F. Carson was a passenger on Monday's train from Musquash.

Mrs. Allan McLeod is suffering from a broken arm, the result of a fall on the ice.

Mr. Dan Doherty, the shoe man is in town.

H. J. McIntyre, of Toronto, is in charge of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Thos. McEneaney, Elmville, was a business visitor in town Monday.

Mayor Lawrence is spending a few days in Moncton.

Thos. Magown, is confined to the house by illness.

Miss Margaret Sullivan, Second Falls, has been the guest of Mrs. Mary Kane.

Joe, Clark, went to Fredericton, on Tuesday's train.

Mrs. Geo. McCormick and Mrs. John Berry, are visiting friends in St. Stephen.

John Conley arrived from Parraboro, Tuesday, on a short visit to his mother.

Dr. H. I. Taylor M. P. P., has gone to Fredericton, to attend to his legislative duties.

Miss Annie Brown who has been quite ill with slow fever, is slowly improving.

Elmer McLoughlin who is receiving treatment in St. John writes that he is improving slowly. His many friends will be glad to hear this, and wish him a complete restoration and good health.

Messrs. John J. Kane, the contractor of Beaver Harbor wharf, R. C. Justason, of Pennfield, and E. W. Cross of Black Harbor, paid Greetings a visit on Monday.

H. M. Doull who for some months has been in charge of the Bank of Nova Scotia here, has resigned from that institution and left for his home in Nova Scotia. Mr. Doull made many friends during his stay here and his departure is much regretted. He was a valued member of the Utopia hockey and base ball teams and was also an enthusiastic golfer.

Messrs. Everett Nesbitt and Allen McGarrity left by C. P. R. Thursday evening, the former for Edmundston and the last named for Winnipeg. They were given quite a send off at the station. The Maple Leaf Band, of which Mr. Nesbitt has been the efficient leader for several years, was on hand, and a number of speeches were made regretting their departure and wishing them good fortune in their new home. The band, previously, had presented Mr. Nesbitt with a generous purse of money.—Advertiser.

While hauling hay Tuesday, David Leavitt fell off the load, landing under the horse's feet, he was kicked and his leg badly broken, besides receiving other bruises Dr. Taylor is in attendance.

Schooner John R. Fell arrived in port Monday, in tow of tug Wesley Gove. She is taking in pulp for Norwalk, Ct., from the St. George Pulp Co. There is an immense pile of pulp on the river bank, and with the mill turning out a large quantity each day, the shipping season promises to be lively. The new wharf will greatly facilitate shipping, and the Pulp Co. will benefit by the improvements.

The consolidated school at Kingston, N. B. was burned to the ground Sunday night.

Schr. John R. Fell discharging cargo in St. Andrews will load pulp here on the opening of navigation.

We are in receipt of a beautiful office calendar from R. F. Milliken & Son, the well known coal dealers of Eastport.

The Springhill Tribune, that has been edited by J. W. Gay, has been taken over by the Springhill Publishing Company.

Frank Gamble who injured his foot some days ago, while working in the pulp mill, has resumed work, although not entirely recovered from the injury.

The railwaymen were in session Friday night until a late hour. It was the largest gathering of employees of the road since the Union was formed. Much important business was transacted.

At the hockey match in St. Stephen Thursday night, the Utopians were defeated by the Thistles. Quite a number witnessed the game. The boys had a good time and were royally entertained by the Thistles.

The schooner Francis Goodnow was in collision with the British steamer Vizcaina, Friday night on Nantucket Shoals. She was towed into Hyannis by the revenue cutter Greenham. The schooner was not badly damaged.

An epidemic among horses which has proven fatal in several instances, is said to be prevalent throughout this section, valuable horses having died from same in this city, Deer Island, N. B., and other places.—Sentinel.

Ground is being broken for an extension to the wood mill of the Pulp Co. When improvements are completed lath and shingle machines will be installed. It is the intention of the company to add machinery for sawing long lumber at an early date.

Mr. Patrick McLaughlin received an ugly and dangerous cut in his head Saturday evening, the result of slipping on the ice on Portage street hill. Several stitches were required to stop the flow of blood, an artery having been severed. Dr. Alexander attended him.

Thaddeus Cook of Deer Island, while cutting wood on Monday last, met with a painful accident, the axe slipping and cutting a long, deep gash in his leg. He was brought to this city, where the wound was carefully dressed and the unfortunate young man made as comfortable as possible.—Sentinel.

In order to supply the great demand for their popular Brunswick brand of canned goods, Connors Bros. have installed a new steam plant in their factory at Black's Harbor. This wide-awake firm expect to have their new steamer "Connors Bros." on the route about May 1st.

Operations have commenced at the McLaughlin mill L'Etang. A large amount of lumber was cut during the season, and it is expected to keep the mill running, with a large crew, for many months. It may be of interest to state that McLaughlin Bros. who are engaged in this enterprise were residents of L'Etang nearly forty years ago and lived on the farm where the mill has been built, the place being known as the Thorpe farm. The Messrs. McLaughlin were boiler makers, and business in this line grew to such proportions that they moved to St. John where they were established many years.

Alex. Thompson, assistant post office inspector, has just returned from Moore's Mills, where he conducted an investigation into the management of the office there. There were three or four parties who lodged complaints which related mainly to the condition in which the building was kept, and the manner in which the mail was distributed.

Both sides were represented by lawyers at the investigation. There were between twenty-five or thirty witnesses, all of whom gave evidence under oath. The large majority of these were for the defense.

The postmaster at Moore's Mills is Alexander Sinclair. For some time past, it is said, he has concerned himself little about the affairs of the office, leaving matters largely in the hands of an assistant. The whole of the testimony will be sent to Ottawa to be submitted to the post master-general.—Telegraph.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Dr. R. M. Wilson, will be at his office all next week.

The reduction sale of boots and shoes at J. Sutton Clark's is still going on, watch their Ad. next week.

Rankine McIntyre has purchased in St. John, a very large and handsome horse which he will use for teaming purposes.

Barton Blundell has cut two hundred tons of ice which completes his contracts this season. The ice is of excellent quality, with an average thickness of twenty-six inches.

Wm. Henry met with a painful accident last Thursday. He was doing some work on the roof of a barn when he slipped and fell a distance of twelve feet spraining both ankles.

Str. Massasoit, laden with fertilizer, completed discharging on Thursday afternoon. Consignee DeWolfe says that the captain was well pleased with the despatch he received and that the pilot experienced no trouble whatever in coming in or going out. The fertilizer is intended for Carleton County and other points along the C. P. R.—Beacon.

A special meeting of the Town Council was held Saturday evening. Alderman Levi W. Goodell was appointed Marshal, after resigning from the board. He will also act as street commissioner. The appointment will meet with general approval. The need of a marshal was emphasized by the actions and language of several would be young toughs on the same evening. The talk was of a saltpuric quality, and was most disgusting. It is hoped the new marshal will use a strong hand in suppressing this element in future. Our public streets should be opened at all hours for the safe passage of ladies, and the use of the public generally.

When the debating club met Monday evening great interest and speculation was in evidence, as the subject for discussion was known only to the judge, Dr. Taylor, who on taking the chair said the subject had been chosen was prominently before the people at present, and was being discussed in all sections of the Province. Resolved—that New Brunswick should have prohibition. Every person present spoke on the subject and the discussion was quite animated at times, and the speakers on both sides were listened to most attentively. The judge in his remarks complimented the members on the excellent arguments used in this debate, for which no preparation could be made, and said the advantages gained, by the meetings held this winter were plainly in evidence in the speeches delivered on this occasion. The decision was given in favor of the Negative side.

The hot sun of last week melted the snow in many places, in the town, the bare spots enticed the small boys with marbles and the public were officially notified of the advent of spring. The boys do not play marbles the old fashioned way. The familiar hole in the thumb nail, and the well chapped hands, of the marble days of (not) so very long ago, are no longer in evidence. "knuckle your jaw" is no longer a term in the game, to fight over. The science of the game is wanting, any girl could play now, and some of the old fellows see signs of degeneration in the game of today. However a few minutes observation, near a group of players, will furnish the observer with ideas of the possibilities of the English language, new to him, lurid to a degree unthought of, when a China "law" made the happy possessor the most envied boy in school.

Mount Vernon Lodge the beautiful summer home of Mrs. C. H. Lee has been leased to Mrs. N. Richardson, of Hawthorne ave., St. John, who will open the house for the reception of permanent and transient guests June, 15th. Mount Vernon is situated on the Magaguadavic River, overlooking the basin and town, affording a view, to lovers of nature surpassing in richness. Acres of undulating fields afford ample room for one of the most picturesque golf links in New Brunswick, stately trees, border the lofty river bank bidding the moss covered rocks that kiss the waters of the ever rising, ever falling tides of the Magaguadavic. Ideal spots abound for camping, tents will be provided on short notice. The mingling of fresh and salt water give bathers opportunities for indulging in this favorite summer pastime, seldom found elsewhere. The chill of the sea is tempered by the warm waters of the inland lakes and streams, and the invigorating effects of the salt of the ocean are not lost.

The man who prided himself on his keen perceptions, watched the witness on the stand with intensity, and nodded his head vigorously at the closing words of the bewildered witness, under the searching cross-examination of the lawyer.

"That man's concerned in it," said the keen observer to his friend. Did you not notice how his eyes shifted around while he was answering the questions?"

"How about this next one?" inquired the friend, as another witness took the stand to give his testimony.

"He's guilty of something," asserted the keen observer. "No man stares at people in that bold, defiant way if he has a clear conscience."—Exchange.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness--nothing more. Put simply, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in its work, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden may find more that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve--the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve--simply needs, and man has, more power, more ability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, pulsating, suffocating heart disease. Dr. Shoop's Restorative--this popular preparation--is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds up strength; it offers real, genuine heart help. If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves--re-establish them as needed, with

IN PRAISE OF CATS

(The 'Nation,' London)

It is the final proof of the civilization of the French that they have learned to understand the cat. In no country, since the dog loving Greeks overthrew the maturer culture of Egypt, has she been a popular idol, or extorted the reverence of crowds. But in France, at least, there is literary testimony in her favor and the French intellect has bestowed upon the task of comprehending her a talent and a devotion, which we have squandered on the horse and the dog. Balzac described the passion of one of Napoleon's veterans in Egypt for a leopardess, with a sureness of insight and a depth of feeling that proclaim him a devotee of the cat tribe. Gautier has been eloquent and fantastic about the cat. Loti has been tender and graceful, and his essay on the death of an aged cat has a sincerity and truth which are wanting in his sugared writing about Oriental women. A man must put self aside who loves a cat; there is in all the range of sentiment no emotion so entirely disinterested. We have before us a small volume of minor verse which carries this distinguished tradition yet a little further. It is a eulogy, relieved by humor and marked by what is rarer still, a nice and accurate study of cats. M. Alfred Ruffin not only loves cats; he loves them for the true reasons. He loves them for their grace and their elegance, reverences their self-sufficiency and their sublimity, accepts their egotism, and feels a becoming awe at the concentration of diabolic vigor which can reveal itself, under the stress of passion, in the limbs of a firecat Tom. He sings the mistress whom no praise can corrupt, the friend whose intimacy flatters no human vanity. He paints her amid rare vases and works of art, admiring her self more than any masterpiece. He delights to tell of her ravages among his precious china, and exclaims, as he contemplates the sublimity of her indifference. One might as well accuse the pyramids. He tells of the mingled prudence and courage with which she meets the perils of a street, where every journey is an anabasis through barbarian lands. He dwells with a sane and restrained tenderness on the rare moments in her relations with her human servants, when her habitual tolerance warns into an almost maternal affection.

A Household Necessity

Father Morriacy's Liniment Should be in Every Home

How seldom a week passes without some member of the family suffering from a sore throat, chest or back, sprain or a cut, a sprain, strain or ache!

Such troubles will come, but there is no need of suffering much from them. Keep a bottle of Father Morriacy's Liniment in the house, use it freely, and the pain has little chance.

During his lifetime Father Morriacy prescribed this Liniment regularly, and it proved very effective in relieving all sorts of pains and aches. In Rheumatism it is valuable as a "rub", when "Father Morriacy's No. 7" Tablets are taken internally. Similarly, applied freely to throat and chest it helps "Father Morriacy's No. 10" (Lung Tonic) to quickly break up and drive away a sore throat, cold in the chest, or cough.

Taken all around it is one of the best family liniments in existence. Price 25c per bottle. At your dealer's, or from Father Morriacy Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N. B.

and great, is really a self-centred expression of satisfaction or pleasurable expectation. For once that he rubs himself upon a human leg at such times, he rubs twice upon a chair or a tree. He is not stroking the leg to flatter it; he is stroking himself by means of the leg. Equally ill-observed is the current notion that his chronic disobedience and his failure at call due to some want of intelligence. It is his profound individualism, his triumphant self-sufficiency, which makes him disdain to obey or to learn tricks like a dog.

To respect the cat is the beginning of the aesthetic sense. At a stage of culture when utility governs all its judgements, mankind prefers the dog. Let it advance to a level at which it can admire an object of beauty with a disinterested passion, and it will renege this egoism among animals, whose suffices for himself. Only in the mouth of the egoist is egoism in others a matter of reproach. To the cultivated mind the cat has the charm of completeness, the satisfaction which makes a sonnet more than an epic, a fugue more than a rhapsody. The ancients figured eternity as a snake biting its own tail. There will yet arise a philosopher who will conceive the Absolute as a gigantic and self-satisfied cat, purring as it clasps in a comfortable round its own perfections, and uttering as its motto that line of Edmund Spenser's the Cosmos--"It loved itself, cause itself was fair."

There is, however, a deeper reason why the cat is, in the domestic hierarchy, a relatively unpopular animal. It is not content to stand aloof from all human activities; it views them with a disquieting disdain. It is the authority who makes our luxuries foolish, the anarchist who rebukes our organizations and our politics. The dog, within the limits of his understanding, must share in all we do, scratch when we dig and retrieve when we hunt. When his understanding fails him, he looks at us with a mute appeal for enlightenment like some Galatea waiting for the breath of life. The cat in the same circumstances stares verily, winks one eye, and goes to sleep. More than the lilies of the field she rebukes us for our care for the morrow. The student Faust in the old engravings had always a human skull among the vain instruments and the barren alembics in his study. A cat blinking at midnight among your papers and your books declares with more eloquence than any skull and the vanity of knowledge and uselessness of striving. Mahomet, nursing a cat one day, was minded to rise upon some great errand of revelation or conquest. But, man of action though he was, he was Oriental enough to value her passivity. He cut off the sleeve of his robe and left her seated on it. There comes to those who love a cat a further questioning, which is the paralysis of all morality. Why, after all, should one rise at all, and what is worth the sacrifice of a sleeve? The cat enjoys the march of seasons, spins through space with the stars, and shares in her quietism the inevitable life of the universe. In all our hurrying can we do more? She sits among creative work, the indolent spectator of our progress, blinking at our questions, the malicious eyes of a Sphinx. And the real secret of the Sphinx, one suspects, was that she knew one knew that there was no riddle answer.

PHYSICIAN TELLS HOW HE TREATS RHEUMATIC PATIENTS

A Distinguished Specialist Gives Valuable Advice.

In the first place I always impress upon my patients the importance of careful living and regular habits. Moderation in eating, keeping the feet dry and wearing plenty of warm clothing are some of the precautions. A moderate amount of exercise will cure, or even help, unless attention is paid to these few simple rules. I have had perfect results where patients followed these instructions and rheumatic specific: Fluid Extract Cascara, 1/2 oz.; Fluid Extract Cassia Compound, 1 oz.; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, 6 oz. Dose: One teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. It is advisable to drink plenty of water during the treatment. A prominent local merchant who has tried this treatment states that it relieves backache, bladder trouble, and urinary troubles almost immediately, and has a gentle but thorough action on the kidneys. We advise all our readers to keep this prescription. The instructions are valuable.

Palace Within a Palace

The private apartments of King Edward and Queen Alexandra and the Princess Victoria at Buckingham Palace may be aptly described as forming a palace within a palace, and are kept from all save the privileged few. Indeed, the only person outside the royal family who may enter the Queen's boudoir uninvited is the Hon. Charlotte Knollys. All these private apartments communicate by means of corridors, so that the King and Queen and the Princess may pass from one to the other without the necessity of using the main corridors of the palace.

THE KING'S SUITE

King Edward's suite of apartments is the largest in the palace, containing nearly a dozen rooms in all; the windows overlook the gardens. The largest room of this suite is used as a private sitting-room where the King entertains his intimate friends, and occasionally dines when the Queen is not staying in the palace.

This is a most comfortable room, with little or nothing about it to indicate the state of its owner. The wall paper is of a delicate shade of green with a white dado and a dark green frieze. The floor is covered with a magnificent Indian carpet that was presented by one of the Indian native princes to the late Queen Victoria many years ago. The furniture contains some exquisite examples of eighteenth century art, and while some of it has been either in the palace or at Windsor for nearly a century most of it has been collected personally during the owner's frequent visits to the Continent.

DOORS ALL MIRRORS

A striking feature of the whole of the King's suite of apartments is the doors, every one of which has mirrors fitted into the whole of its panels. The next most important apartment is the King's "office," as he sometimes laughingly terms it. It is here that he transacts all his business while staying in London. As he has a great dislike for American roll-top desks and revolving chairs, neither of these conveniences finds any place here. He does his writing at a large knee hole writing table, upon which his papers, etc., are placed in orderly bundles, and flanked by great dispatch boxes.

THE QUEEN'S APARTMENTS

The Queen's suite of apartments immediately adjoins those of the King. The principal room here is the boudoir, which is paneled in pale ivory silk of beautiful texture. These panels are confined in gilt mouldings and are carefully covered up every evening as soon as the room is no longer in use. The curtains here are also of ivory silk, with broad borders of deep purple. There are also some fine examples here of Beauvais tapestry, while the carpets of French manufacture are beautiful models of this work. The furniture is entirely of the Louis Seize period and includes some very valuable specimens.

The number of photographs to be found in this room, and, indeed, in all Queen Alexandra's apartments, is remarkable. Wherever a photo can be placed, there one is to be seen. Nearly the whole of the royal families of Europe are to be found represented. The Queen's room is hung with rose du Barri silk, with white satin, of which the bed hangings are also composed. The bed itself is a magnificent specimen of the Empire period and was formerly in the Trianon.

The room is rather small and is furnished more with an eye to comfort than to stateliness. Perhaps the most striking feature is the imperial crown which surmounts the bed.

PRINCESS VICTORIA'S ROOMS

The suite allotted to the Princess Victoria stands on the opposite side of the palace to the main front and looking straight down the Mall. It comprises some half dozen apartments, including a very cozy sitting-room, where the Princess takes her afternoon tea and entertains her friends. She is a great reader, with very catholic tastes, and the room contains two large cases filled with her favorite works. There is here, too, a very fine pianoforte that was presented to the Princess by the King some years ago. The boudoir and the bedroom adjoin.

A failing tiny nerve--no larger than the finest silken thread--takes from the Heart its pulse, its power, its regularity. The Stomach also has its hidden, or inside nerve. It was Dr. Shoop who first told us it was wrong to drug a weak or failing Stomach, Heart or Kidneys. His prescription--Dr. Shoop's Restorative--is directed straight for the cause of these ailments--these weak and faltering inside nerves. This, no doubt, clearly explains why the Restorative has of late grown so rapidly in popularity. Druggists say that those who test the Restorative even for a few days soon become fully convinced of its wonderful merit. Anyway, don't drug the organ. Treating the cause of sickness is the only sensible and successful way. Sold by all dealers.

Meats and Vegetables

Certain meats are as closely allied to certain vegetables as is the long meter doxology to Old Hundred. To separate them seems almost desecration.

Thus stewed chicken without mashed potatoes, and pork without apple sauce lose half their zest.

Fried onions fairly cry aloud for a juicy beefsteak, and roast beef without potatoes browned under the meat never tastes quite the same.

Potatoes are an accommodating sort of vegetable. They are good with all meats though their digestibility when served more than once a day is questionable.

With roast meats, sweet potatoes are appropriate as are squash, tomatoes, asparagus, and stewed onions.

Baked macaroni is a fitting accompaniment to a roast, so are Brussels sprouts and scalloped or creamed cauliflower.

Turnips, carrots, parsnips and cabbage are generally eaten with boiled meats, while peas, beans, corn and tomatoes are food with either boiled or roasted meats.

Rice should be served with stewed chicken. Roast duck demands both apple sauce and stewed onions. Turkey without cranberries would be as lost as venison without currant jelly.

Celery should never be omitted when serving poultry, and is an invariable accompaniment of soup. It is specially good for the nerves and is fittingly served with all meats.

Squabs and all game have lettuce with French dressing served with them, and lettuce must be eaten with Virginia ham.

It is no longer correct to serve more than two vegetables with the meat course though with poultry, cranberries are counted as an extra.

57-62 The Critical Age

Height of vigor is past--nature's power slowing down--vitality ebbing away, endurance decreasing. Stop the progress of decay, tone up the weakened nerve centres, impart vigor to the flailing body--pr. par. for the crisis. Best means for rebuilding is found in Ferrozene; it brightens up the whole being, imparts power, strength, vigor. Old age is pushed back twenty years, the reliance of youth is restored, vigor, vim and new life established. You'll try Ferrozene, 50c. at all dealers.

The Gospel of Sunshine

St. Luke was a physician as well as a painter, and there is something kindred in the spirit of the two occupations. The quick eye, the observant gentleness, the appreciation of character, the seizing of the actual circumstances, the genial spirit, the minute attentiveness, the sympathizing heart, the impressionableness to all that is soft and winning, and lonely and weak and pitious--all these things belong to the true physician as well as to the true artist. St. Luke is a Gospel of Sunshine. It throws strong lights into the darkest places, and loves to do the power it has to do so, and is not this painterlike? He is known, like all artists' by his choice of subjects.

Drunkard's Island

"Drunkard's Island" is the name by which the Salvation Army's latest colony for inebriates, off the coast of New Zealand, is known to passing mariners. The Salvation Army has completed plans for isolating confirmed drunkards on a couple of islands, one for men and one for women. Only one island is available at present but the success of this settlement has been such that the New Zealand Government and the Salvation Army may acquire another for women.

Pakatoa is the chart name of "Drunkard's Island." It is an ideal little colony of about seventy acres, set in the Hauraki Gulf, twenty-five miles from Auckland. The only communication with the mainland is by the Salvation Army motor-boat, and the residents have no opportunity of reaching a public-house.

All spirits and alcohol in any form are forbidden on Pakatoa, and the colonists lead the simple life on a fruit diet, without drugs or policemen. The New Zealand Government recently passed an act giving magistrates power to commit persons who have been four times convicted of drunkenness to Pakatoa. The residents work at market gardening, fruit culture, frame making, and the manufacture of children's toys.

The "Bread-and-Butter" Letter

After you have spent a few days or a week with a distant friend, and returned home, don't whatever you do, forget to instantly write what is known as a "bread-and-butter" letter, otherwise a note of thanks. Such a note is more or less formal, but can be written in a manner to express the same appreciation that was spoken upon leaving. It also informs the hostess of the guest's safe arrival at her home. A telegram is not considered to take its place.

Black Satin Boots

Satin boots instead of suede ones are gaining headway every week. They are worn with smart afternoon costumes when one does not walk.

It has been decided by the fashionable girl that the high-heeled patent leather slipper is not dressy enough for the resplendent gowns worn at social affairs between 4 and 7 o'clock.

The flat-heeled, or high-heeled, pump has entirely gone out except for the most informal wear. Girls use it at home in the evening and always during the day with short skirts. When the warm weather comes in it will be again in first style for street wear.

The satin boot, however, is the afternoon footwear. Otherwise women wear high-heeled satin slippers with open-work silk stockings.

An Open Congratulation

W. S. Gilbert does not retain all of his humor for use in his librettos, when Gilbert and Sullivan were considered by managers as the "sure winners" in the comic-opera field, a young woman who was one of the "Pinafores," companies wrote to Gilbert telling him of her approaching marriage with a young man of good position and family.

Gilbert congratulated the young woman, and expressed the hope that her future might be prosperous and happy.

Only a little more than a month passed, and another letter from the same girl reached him, in which she stated that her engagement with the young man had been broken, and that she had accepted another suitor.

He replied that he had every confidence in her judgement, and again expressed his hearty wishes for her welfare.

It was almost two months after that Gilbert received a third letter from the same girl, who informed him that young Lord--had proposed and that she had accepted him, after breaking her engagement with No. 2.

Gilbert's humor could no longer withstand the temptation, and he wrote. "I desire to congratulate you on your approaching marriage with--"

Here he placed an asterisk, and in a foot-note added: "Here insert the name of the happy man."

The Family Physician

The best medicines in the world cannot take the place of the family physician. Consult him early when taken ill. If the trouble is with your throat, bronchial tubes, or lungs, ask him about taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Then take it or not, as he says.

Billious attacks, sick-headaches, indigestion, constipation, dizzy spells--these are some of the results of an inactive liver. Ask your doctor if he endorses Ayer's Pills in these cases. The dose is small, one pill at bedtime.

Prepared by J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Obituary

The funeral of the late Joseph Meating took place from the family residence Thursday afternoon and was largely attended. The services at the church and grave were conducted by Rev. H. I. Lyons. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes. All the granite works were closed as a mark of respect to the deceased. Interment was in the rural cemetery.

At her home in Machias, Me., after a brief illness, Viola wife of Rev. Samuel R. Belyea died on Thursday, March 4th, aged 77 years. The remains were brought to Baring, Me., her former home for interment. The funeral took place from her father's residence, Mr. Simeon Phinney's on Sunday afternoon and was very largely attended. Rev. Mr. Barton of Milltown officiated at the house and grave. Besides a husband Mrs. Belyea leaves a father mother and brother to mourn her early death. Many beautiful floral offerings bore mute testimony of the esteem in which the deceased was held.

The death occurred on Thursday of Mrs. Levi W. Goodell after a lingering illness. Deceased was 38 years of age, and leaves to mourn a husband and five children, besides a large circle of relatives. The funeral was held on Saturday, services being conducted by Rev. E. V. Buchanan of the Baptist church.

MRS. BOYNTON HANLEY

Lula A. C. Hanley, wife of Boynton Hanley, passed away at her home in Back Bay, Saturday morning, after a lingering illness which she bore without a murmur aged twenty-four years. Mrs. Hanley was the sixth daughter of Oliver and Priscilla Hooper. Five years ago she was married to Boynton Hanley who survives her with two little daughters aged four and two years. From childhood to this mature age she was the personification of good, and therefore an example to all who knew her. Having the higher moral and spiritual senses highly developed in her character she won the respect of all in the vicinity. As a daughter she honored and revered her parents, and therefore the days of her early and influence, which she poured into the lives of others, shall be long in the land. Her home was the center of her affection her endeavors being to have those given unto her care to walk in the paths of purity and righteousness. Let us pray for more mothers, wives, daughters and sisters such as she as the greatness of any nation can only be measured by the moral and religious standard of its womanhood what is our loss, we believe, must be her gain. By the calm which sat upon her brow as she lay in that last chamber expressed that her last moments were similar to those of Longfellow.

"Out of the darkness of night
The world moves into light.
The day-break everywhere."
The funeral services on Monday afternoon were conducted by Rev. A. B. Wade and were largely attended, much sympathy is extended to the sorrowing friends.

Do You Get Billious?

This trouble arises from torpidity of the liver. Nothing acts so nicely as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They stir up the liver, rid the system of bile, tone the stomach, give appetite and sound digestion, you feel "briar and bud" tempered. Dr. Hamilton's Pills will help you at once.

--taken by night you're well by morning. Don't be afraid of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, they are mild--don't gripe or nauseate. They just "cure"--that's all.
