HOPES FOR ENTOMBED MINERS IS ABANDONED

No Human Being Could Live Long in Gas-Impregnated Atmosphere.

SURVIVORS OWE LIFE TO WHIFF OF FRESH AIR

Few Houses in Mining Town of Hillcrest that Have Not Lost a Father or Son—Thirteen Widows in one Short Street.

Hillcrest, June 21.—Two days after the explosion which killed nearly 200 miners the "white man's camp," as Hillcrest collieries is termed, is beginning to breathe more freely and at the same time more fully realize the extent of the calamity. Taking stock of the catastrophe, the little town finds itself with several scores of widows and hundreds of fatherless children. There is scarcely a home not affected by the calamity, while the mining camps in close proximity to Hillcrest count among the dead some of their numbers.

The story of the survivors, now that the tenacity of the situation is relieved, is being related more coherently. That the forty-four men were saved almost entirely in a moment of time is due to a whiff of fresh air in the wild rush to the mouth of the mine and in the intensity of the excitement prevailing it was quite to be expected that human beings would forget themselves and leave something undone upon which lives depended, and but for the reversing of the fan supplying fresh air to the depths below, perhaps some of the forty-four would not have been saved. In this General Manager Brown of the Hillcrest Collieries, Limited, was the hero of the hour. Realizing the perilous position of the inmates of the mine when the explosion occurred it was his first thought that survivors would make their escape by means of the shaft.

No. 2. Knowing the geography of the mine he immediately made a rush to the mechanism controlling the interior fan and quickly started it. "When I felt that whiff of fresh air, I knew I was saved," is the statement of several survivors. They were ready to fall in their rush to safety, and but for that moment of time and that whiff of fresh air, the stories from the interior would have been eliminated either from the history of the greatest disaster that ever occurred in the Dominion, and forty-four additional lives would have been added to the already large list.

There are still a score of bodies in the mine. Hope has been completely abandoned that any spark of life remains, for while the interior fires have been extinguished no human being could exist for any length of time in the gas-impregnated atmosphere. In one short street of the town there are thirteen widows, a result of the explosion. Some of these have lost their husbands and sons upon whom they depend solely for existence. This street, which is a short one, contains but thirty-six houses, and had been named for some reason "Peaceful Valley."

THROWN THIRTY FEET BY TRAIN AND ESCAPES

Sussex Young Woman Hit by C.P.R.—Badly Bruised and Miraculously Escapes Terrible Death.

Sussex, June 21.—On Saturday afternoon a young woman named Mary Morgan, who is employed in the cafe of the Depot House was struck by the west bound C. P. R. train at the Main street crossing and had a narrow escape from instant death. She was thrown about twenty feet ahead of the train, and away from the track. Horrified spectators picked her up and carried her into Dr. McAllister's office. At first it was thought she was fatally injured. One foot was badly cut, and the heel was torn from her boot. She was severely bruised in several places and badly shaken up, but apparently no bones were broken. Today she is resting easily and in all probability will recover from the effects of her injuries.

The train was in charge of Conductor Chisholm, with Driver Wm. Hunter in the cab. It was rumbling into the station, and had slowed down to a moderate speed before reaching the crossing. The whistle had been blown, and the bell was clanging. Miss Morgan did not see the train, although she heard the alarm bell over the engine. She evidently made the attempt to cross the tracks without looking, and saw her way to the train was cut off. The pilot beam of the engine struck her on the right side, and luckily threw her clear of the tracks.

She had a very close call. Those who witnessed the accident say it is a miracle how she escaped with her life. As the train had slowed to a very moderate rate of speed, and signals had been made, no blame attaches to the engine crew.

Montreal, June 21.—Godfrey Langlois, ex-M. L. A., for St. Louis, who is about to leave for his new post as commissioner to Belgium, was given a complimentary "send-off" last night by a number of prominent citizens of Montreal, including several newspapermen. A gold watch and chain were given to Mr. Langlois, the presentation being made by Ferdinand Rinfret, editor in chief of "Le Canada."

The farewell took place at the Club Canadien.

Order of K. C. M. G. Conferred On Hon. R. L. Borden and Hon. George E. Foster

Among Those in List of King's Birthday Honors Announced Yesterday—Newfoundland's Governor Also Knighted—Lord Kitchener Made an Earl.

SIR R. L. AND LADY BORDEN.

London, June 21.—The King's birthday honors were announced today. Right Hon. Robert Laird Borden, premier of Canada, George E. Foster, minister of trade in Canada, and Walter E. Davidson, governor of Newfoundland are made Knights of the Grand Cross of St. Michael, and St. George.

Among the Knights Bachelor named is Douglas Newton, the explorer. The list includes a large number of barons and baronets, but there are few notable names in it. Lord Kitchener of Khartoum, his Majesty's agent and consul-general in Egypt, is made an Earl. Sir Herbert Cozens-Hardy, Sir Edgar Vincent, Major-General John Fielden Brockhurst, and Sir Leonard Lyell, are raised to baronies. Among the baronets is Albert H. Stanley, manager of the London Underground Railways, who is English-born but was raised in the United States. Mr. Stanley came to London from Detroit and assumed his British citizenship last year. For a number of years he was connected with the Detroit United Railways and the Public Service Railways of Jersey.

Other baronets named are Sir Joseph Beecham, the manufacturer and philanthropist; George Henschel, the composer, and Sir T. Vansittart Bowler, Lord Mayor of London. Canadians have obtained a very fair share of this year's birthday honors.

W. P. Hunt, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Montreal, and H. A. Richardson, general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Toronto, arrived by the Aquitania for a few weeks' holiday trip. Mr. and Mrs. J. Stewart Tupper, and Misses Marie and Jessie Tupper, of Winnipeg, have arrived here.

Hon. Duncan Marshall, minister of agriculture for Alberta, and Mrs. Marshall, have arrived in London.

SIR GEORGE E. FOSTER

"TY COBB IS ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT"

Detroit Butcher Says Famous Baseball Player Drew Revolver on Him and Attacked Him.

Detroit, Mich., June 20.—"Ty" Cobb, the famous centrefielder of the American league baseball club, was arrested tonight in the butcher shop of W. L. Carpenter, on Hamilton Boulevard, while engaged in a fight with Harold Harding, twenty years old, one of Carpenter's employees. Harding told the police that Cobb assaulted him after the ball player had drawn a revolver on the proprietor. Carpenter confirmed the charge and said Cobb attacked Harding when the latter attempted to interfere. Cobb injured his right hand during the scuffle. Cobb claimed that earlier in the day the butcher insulted Mrs. Cobb. Carpenter denied the charge, but admitted that Cobb rushed into the butcher shop, made the allegation, and then started trouble.

Cobb was allowed his liberty late tonight. No formal charge was made against him, but friends of the ball player said they understood that court proceedings might be instituted.

Cobb will be out of the game for a week.

ALMOST TORN TO PIECES BY LIONS

Theatrical Man Attacked in Cage and Partly Devoured by Beast—One Escape and Terrorizes Residents.

Chicago, June 21.—Emerson Dietrich, Brooklyn, manager of a theatrical production, presenting a troupe of trained lions, was killed and partly devoured tonight by six lions when he entered their cage in which they were caged.

While the keepers were trying to recover Dietrich's body from the beasts a lion escaped from an adjoining cage and terrorized residents of the thickly populated quarter in which the car stood. The escaped lion finally was driven back to its car, having lamed no one.

A pike pole from the fire department finally was used to withdraw Dietrich's body from the lions after it had been sprinkled with formaldehyde to drive the animals away.

BISLEY TEAM SAILS.

Montreal, June 21.—The Canadian Bisley team sailed from Montreal at daybreak this morning on the Allan liner Scotian. The team, consisting of twenty men, is in charge of Lieut. Col. Ross of the Royal Highlanders, Montreal.

COLLIER'S THIRD OFFICER ON STAND SATURDAY

Put Helm Hard Aport Without Orders, He Tells Commission.

ACTION NOT CAUSE OF COLLISION HE SAYS

Hearing Likely to Continue for Another Week—Evidence Regarding the Collier's Log is Heard.

Quebec, June 20.—The announcement by Jacob Saxe, third officer of the collier Storstad, that though he knew it was wrong to change a ship's course in a fog without orders he put the helm of the vessel hard aport just before the collision with the Empress of Ireland aroused an intense interest at this morning's session of the investigation. Witness followed his surprising statement by saying that he did not think that his action had caused the collision, and by explaining that the helm was put hard aport by him to try and offset the effects of the current on his vessel. He also contended that the ship did not change her course because she lost steerage way and he put the wheel hard aport when the order of the first mate to port the helm a little had no effect.

Ludwig Fremmerlid, the lookout, said that when the ships came together he was standing on the forecastle of the collier watching. The Empress loomed suddenly in the fog about a ship's length ahead. She was crossing the bow of the collier. She stuck to his post until he saw the vessels were about ten feet apart when he ran back from the stem to the hatch. The first he saw of the passenger ship was when her masthead lights were discerned. Then her rail light was seen on the port bow. That was in sight for five or six minutes he thought, and was still showing when the fog dropped and shot in the liner. His next glimpse of the vessel was when she came out of the fog across the head of the collier with the light shining through her cabin port holes.

Picked Up One of Empress' Cabin Plates on Collier.

At four o'clock in the morning after the mishap he picked up cabin plate No. 328 on the deck of the Storstad. This was about four feet from the stem and almost half way between port and starboard. The metal was filed as an exhibit, because it served to prove that the ships came together near the forward funnel of the Empress. From the big ship he heard three blasts. The first was one long, then there came two or three short blasts, and the third time there were three long blasts. As far as the Storstad was concerned, he could give no information about the whistles, as he was busy with the Empress.

Home Rule Amendment To Lords this Week

Last Lap of Irish Question—Every County in Ulster to Have Option of Voting Itself Out Until After Two General Elections, Lloyd George Announces.

London, June 22.—The final lap in the long parliamentary struggle over the Irish question will be entered upon this week, when the lords will hear the government's proposals for amending the home rule bill. On Tuesday Lord Crewe, leader of the government in the Upper House, will introduce the amending bill, and after Lord Lansdowne's reply, the debate will probably be adjourned.

Speculation regarding the proposals of the amending bill have been met to some extent by Lloyd George's declaration at Saturday's demonstration in South London. The Chancellor stated that the proposal would be that every county in Ulster should have the option of voting itself out of the operation of the home rule bill until two general elections have passed. This differs but little from the offer made on March 9th by Premier Asquith of the exclusion of any county in Ulster by vote for a period of six years, since the average life of a parliament is now about four years.

In well informed political quarters the belief is expressed that the ministers are in a conciliatory frame of mind, and that if the lords can offer some alternative reasonable proposal, rather than mere stubborn opposition, the government will consider the amending bill as introduced to be the last word. Any new concession would probably take the form of the abandonment of the time limit, though this would be strenuously resisted by the Redmond party. T. P. O'Connor, writing in Reynolds' Newspaper, declares that Carson is almost isolated and that he knows it, while Redmond was never in a stronger position, having a united Ireland behind him.

Although the Commons will not participate in the Irish struggle this week, trouble is brewing over the Finance Bill. Several prominent Liberals object that it exceeds the usual lines of a money bill, and it is expected that the speaker will be appealed to in regard to several of the bill's proposals. Bolton, England, June 20.—Sir Edward Carson, addressing an anti-home rule meeting here tonight, said that if the amending bill simply repeated the government's offer of the optional exclusion of Ulster from home rule for six years, he would have nothing to do with it.

GREAT DAMAGE AND LOSS OF LIFE BY STORM IN HEART OF PARIS

Paris has been swept by a terrible storm, causing loss of life and damage amounting almost to the proportions of a catastrophe. No damage from storm or floods has reached such proportions since the great floods of 1910, and the destruction is comparable to that wrought by the terrible cyclone which struck the suburbs of Amiens in 1897, causing a loss of twenty lives.

COLLIER'S THIRD OFFICER ON STAND SATURDAY

Peter Johnson, the helmsman of the Storstad at the time of the collision, said he received a course, of west by south half south, when he took over the wheel. He was ordered before the collision to port the helm by the chief officer. He put it half over and the third officer then put it hard over.

HOPE FOR ENTOMBED MINERS IS ABANDONED

The cause of the explosion may never be satisfactorily decided, as every miner within any reasonable distance of the actual occurrence, is probably buried beneath piles of rock and coal. The survivors advance several theories as to the cause. The officials refuse to discuss the probable cause in any manner whatever.

CAPT LINDSAY, GENERAL SUPT OF PILOTS

Ottawa, June 21.—The appointment of Captain H. St. George Lindsay, former wreck commissioner, as general superintendent of pilots, with jurisdiction over the Montreal and Quebec districts, and as receiver of wrecks for the river and Gulf of St. Lawrence for the 1914 navigation season, is gazetted today.

The fact remains, however, that for two days previous to the explosions the mine had been idle owing to the slackness of business. During that time gas may have collected in sufficient quantities to explode by contact with a spark caused by a workman's pick striking against rock or metal.

Orders Came in Rapid Succession

Jacob Sindalsen, the third engineer of the Storstad on duty at the time of the disaster said at three a. m. on the morning of the collision he got an order to go slow. He carried it out and it was logged. He got an order two minutes afterwards and that was carried out and logged. Next he was ordered slow ahead and it was carried out but not logged because several other orders came soon afterwards.

Three of the rescuing party

One was found in a kneeling position, with pick in hand, ready to strike, and when we got him out his arms were so rigid that we had to break them in order to hold them.

miner which was produced in court he received a "slow speed" order at three o'clock, "stop" two minutes afterwards, the "full speed" after at 2.50. The next entry was "stop" at 2.10.

Mr. Aspinall insisted that this indicated that the Storstad had been going full speed astern for five minutes. What this meant there were several many orders given that he did not write down.

four o'clock, after the collision, you entered the orders in the log book. The witness—I cannot remember.

Lord Mersey rebuked the witness in the following terms: "Do you know you are giving me a most unfortunate impression. At present I am beginning to think that you wrote down at that time something you don't like, but I may be wrong.

The witness said he did not think he had written down the movements of the Storstad, said that he made the entries in the official log and also the scrap log and what Sindalsen had told him between eight and nine the following evening filled it out because it was not finished. He denied in answer to a question from Mr. Aspinall that he had any reason for liking the log.

With the court in the midst of an attempt to straighten out the tangle of the scrap and the official logs the adjournment was taken until Monday morning.

OBITUARY.

Little One Dead.
 Much sympathy will be extended to Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Goodwin, 169 St. John street west, in the loss of their infant daughter, Dora Margaret, who died Saturday morning after a three weeks' illness of whooping cough. She was 16 months old. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Mary McCarthy.
 The death of Mrs. Mary McCarthy, widow of John McCarthy, took place Saturday morning about 11 o'clock at her residence in St. Andrew street, after about a month's illness with pneumonia. She is survived by four sons, Thomas, Timothy, Michael J. and Edward V., and two daughters, Mrs. Austin Power and Miss Nellie, all of this city. The funeral will be held this afternoon. Many friends will regret the death of Mrs. McCarthy and will deeply sympathize with the family in the loss of one of the best of mothers.

Robert Weyman.
 Sad news came over the wires Saturday to Wm. W. Weyman, in a telegram which told him of the death of his father, Robert Weyman, who passed away at Alaska, Saskatchewan. The late Mr. Weyman was born at Millstream, Kings county, some 77 years ago. He was a son of the late Rev. Edward Weyman, and he himself came to be very well known and highly respected in his native place as

This design is of Old English farmhouse type, now so popular. Its walls are rough cast on metal lath set on heavy wood studs and the beam work is heavy and stamed like old chestnut or oak. Plain heavy posts to the piazza and plain battered shutters at the lower windows, with the diamond paneled sash having an old time, quaint effect. The roof is shingled or may be tile, though, of course this last means additional expense. The large square living hall has a beamed ceiling, a stone or tiled fireplace and plain but handsome staircase effect. At the back of the staircase is the arched entrance into the dining room, a long fine room, with a bay end and very pretty diamond paneled closets on each side of the entrance to the butler's pantry. A fireplace may be put in this room, at an additional expense. On the right of the hall is the parlor, done in white and light color, with an entrance to the side piazza, which can be turned into a very good sun parlor by enclosing it in glass. To the left is the library, stained Flemish oak, with a mullioned bay with window seat and a red tiled fireplace with book shelves each side. This room has wainscot or shelves, and wide book shelf around the top of wainscot. This room could be used as a bed room and even have a small bath attached. There is a large butler's pantry and a good closet room, the kitchen is convenient and neat is a large combination laundry and servant's sitting room and dining room. Laundry tubs look all right covered with a table cover.

On the second floor are four bedrooms, a dressing room and two bathrooms grouped around a central hall. The closets are fine and the arrangement of rooms convenient for a family. The bathrooms are done in white porcelaine enamel. The bed rooms in white paint or chequer stain. In the attic are two good sized rooms and one smaller one, a storeroom and if desired servant's bath. This last is not included in the estimate. The interior finish is cypress or white wood. Floors Georgia Pine on first main floor and N. C. Pine on the balance.

Ceilings 9 feet 6 inches; first story—9 inches, second story. Width 56 feet. Depth 58 feet. Cellar cemented.

well as in St. John, where he spent many years of his life.

Some five years ago the deceased left here with his wife and other members of his family and proceeded to Alaska, Saskatchewan, where a daughter had already established herself as a school mistress. Since then they have been successfully engaged in farming on their extensive land holdings. Mr. Weyman had not been enjoying good health for some time and the news of his death, while naturally saddening, with its severance of old home ties, was not altogether unexpected.

Besides his wife, Mr. Weyman is survived by the following children: Edward Joseph, Robert, Ernest Schwartz, Mrs. Joley E. McDonald, and Miss Margaret B. Weyman, all of Hartford, Conn.; Mrs. P. E. White, Mrs. Mary H. Daye, and Wm. W. Weyman all of St. John. There is also one brother, C. W. Weyman of Sussex. Many friends in St. John and elsewhere will bear with regret the news of Mr. Weyman's death.

Major Geo. W. Massey.
 Fredericton, N. B., June 20.—Major George W. Massey, formerly manager of the Bank of Montreal in Fredericton, died in Detroit yesterday. No particulars have been received other than that his death was sudden. He was a native of Ontario. He is survived by his second wife, three daughters and two sons. The daughters reside here and one of them, Miss Muriel, had made preparation to be married on next Wednesday to W. M. McKee, of the Bank of Commerce, Hon. C. S. Hyman, of London, Ont., is a brother-in-law of Major Massey.

FUNERALS.

Walter Cameron.
 The funeral of the late Walter Cameron took place yesterday afternoon at three o'clock from his residence 144 King street, West St. John, and was largely attended by sorrowing friends. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. R. Robinson and interment was in Fernhill cemetery.

Charles Traynor.
 The funeral of Charles Traynor took place yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from his late residence 161 Britain street. The remains were conveyed to St. John the Baptist church on Broad street, where the funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. Donohue. Interment was in the old Catholic cemetery.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Mahon and family and Mrs. Gertrude Powers who have spent the winter months in Montreal, have arrived at Bay Shore for the summer.

G. S. Campbell, Halifax, and S. F. A. Wainwright of Fredericton, were registered at the Canadian High Commissioner's office, London, during the week ending June 11th.

A Complaint.
 Last night about ten o'clock Mrs. Pastman, who conducts the refreshment house in Rockwood Park, was complaining that there was a crowd of rough youths about the place and that he was frightened the house would be broken into. It was only recently that this place was entered and a number of bottles of beer stolen.

What You Should Know About BEAVER BOARD

2nd—How Beaver Board is Applied

Beaver Board is nailed in panels to the studding (wall and ceiling beams) of new rooms or directly over the lath and plaster in old rooms. The seams formed by the joining of the Beaver Board panels are covered with decorative strips which give that artistic panel arrangement so popular in the modern home. If instructions are followed, anyone handy with tools can apply Beaver Board. Beaver Board is easily handled and can be readily cut by a fine saw, sharp knife or chisel.

MERITED HONORS.

The announcement that His Majesty the King has honored Canada by conferring the order of knighthood upon Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden, and Hon. George E. Foster, will be received with the general comment that the distinction which has come to these great Canadians is a graceful acknowledgment of their broad statesmanship and high imperialism.

The Premier of Canada enjoys an influence in this country that is not bounded by the confines and limits of party. Men who differ from him politically will be ready to admit that he is a thorough Canadian of lofty ideals and broad statesmanship. An imperious, fallacious, and unscrupulous, upright, gentle, kindly and courteous to all, Sir Robert Laird Borden, K. C., M. G., will bring to his new and merited title all the attributes of honor and manliness usually associated with the distinction.

Mr. Borden has ever been democratic, with little desire for titles or fame. It is known that at least once during his career he has refused the honor of knighthood. In connection with this latest honor it is interesting to note that the Canadian Premier will on Friday celebrate his 60th birthday and there is no doubt the evidences of respect and regard he will receive on that occasion from thousands of Canadians will be as dear to him as his new title.

In honoring Mr. Foster His Majesty has also been well advised. No man in the Dominion has longer held a place in the front rank of Canadian statesmanship than the present Minister of Trade and Commerce. He was a member of Sir John Macdonald's cabinet and regarded as one of the greatest of Canada's financial authorities. As Minister of Trade and Commerce he has contributed materially to the cementing of the Empire with the bonds of trade. His most recent achievement in connection with the preferential agreement between Canada and the West Indies has seen the fulfillment of a condition which for years was looked forward to by thousands both in this country and the island Colonies. Sir George E. Foster is to be heartily congratulated today upon selection for an honor which, by his work, he has signally merited.

THE NORTHERN DEAL.

It is very nice for some opposition newspapers to take the ground that the revelations made in the Dural enquiry establish a new record of political wickedness for New Brunswick. It gives them opportunity for fervid editorials laudatory of such "useful citizens" as Mr. Carvell, Mr. Carrier, Mr. Dural and others, and an excuse to make a free delivery of their publications to many homes which would otherwise never see them.

Men who have reached mature years do not require to be told that the Liberal administrations of this province were, in their day, responsible for much corruption, but the younger generation of voters may not be familiar with what happened a quarter of a century ago, and therefore the following editorial on the Northern Deal, viewed in connection with the present enquiry, should be of interest.

The article in question is taken from the Moncton Times, and tells the story of that nefarious transaction as follows:

The investigation now being held as to the administration of the Crown Lands department of this province recalls the famous Northern Deal of 1890. The late Hon. A. G. Blair was Premier at that time, and the general election, the principle issue in which was an increase in the stumpage resulted in leaving the government without a working majority. Northern Deal returned four opposition members, but a deal was effected whereby the stumpage was fixed to suit the big lumber interests, the Miramichi contingent went over and the life of the government was saved. What were the other considerations between the parties to the deal is not openly recorded. One of the dealers, however, was afterwards taken into the government and later was Premier. Another became the first commoner of the province. And we have the sworn statement of a lumberman in the present enquiry that contributions were made to the campaign funds at every election down to the time Messrs. Hazen and Flemming came into power. We also know that the favored lumbermen escaped with the payment of less than half their stumpage, because the present government has doubled the collections without any evidence that a single stick more Lands - Two years after the Northern Deal another general election was prematurely brought on, and through the deal was made an issue, it failed to prejudice the people against the Blair administration, which was sustained with a large majority.

It will be remembered that Mr. Allan Ritchie, a witness to the present enquiry, swore he had contributed for years to campaign funds, and had given to Liberals as well as Conservatives. He intimated that contribution to funds of the kind had become almost a habit with the lumbermen. Also Mr. Burchill, a witness upon whose testimony the Telegraph and Times laid much stress was a participant in the Northumberland deal when the interests of the province were ruthlessly sacrificed. But the newspapers which are making a free delivery of their productions do not tell the people about these things. They much prefer to spread the idea that a monopoly of all virtue is held by the party once headed in this province by one William Pugsley (W. P.), $5,000, and numbering in its ranks such a "useful citizen" as Frank B. Carvell, chief of the "Dark Lantern Brigade."

COMPARISONS.

For the benefit of those who, during the hearing of the Dural charges, may have been influenced by the Telegraph and Times almost to the point of believing that honesty in public life went out of business in New Brunswick when the last Liberal government was hurled from power in Fredericton, it may be pointed out that there has been nothing in the present enquiry to show that the Province of New Brunswick lost one dollar through the operations of Mr. Berry. On the other hand, the revenues from crown land account have been greater during the regime of Premier Flemming than at any other time in the history of the province.

There have been alleged humorous remarks from some of the newspapers, now playing the game of Mr. Carvell, to the effect that sanitarians might be utilized by members of the Government as places of refuge until Mr. Carvell's charges are all brought to light. It may be remembered that when the present Government undertook an investigation into the affairs of the Provincial Building and there took his own life. From subsequent correspondence it was shown that the man was a defaulter largely as the result of the loose and bungling manner in which the affairs of the department were transacted.

"W. P., $5,000," and other entries in the books of the Central Railway Company are fairly illustrative of the manner in which the affairs of the province were handled under the former administration, and "honest" admits when Mr. Hazen was translated from the provincial field to the larger arena at Ottawa, it was not necessary for him to enclose his cheque in an ante-dated letter to square up some transactions that might not look well if subjected to the fierce light of publicity. And the gentleman who found this course necessary was not a member of the Conservative party either. Possibly the Telegraph and Times could supply his name.

CANADIAN CONDITIONS.

The London Financial News in a review of conditions throughout Canada fully bears out the statement recently made by Hon. W. T. White that Canada has really gone through the recent world-wide financial depression better than many other countries and that at least its conditions are sound.

Hon. W. T. White, with his hand on the whole financial operations of the Dominion, is probably in better position than any man in Canada to speak with authority on the outlook. The predictions he made during the budget debate were that from now on conditions would steadily improve and he believed that with a good crop this year there would be an early ending to the cloud under which industry had passed.

It is to be recognized that the depression through which this country has passed was world-wide. It was due, as The Financial News points out, to conditions that were beyond the control of this country, notably in the case of the great Balkan war, with its wiping out of capital.

The effects of the stringency, which is pronounced by men who know as having been the most severe in a great many years, are still being felt in most countries. They are being felt severely even yet in the United States, particularly in the larger cities.

Here in Canada, says the London Free Press, we are rapidly emerging from the cloud and with beneficial results in this respect, that our financial operations, particularly in the matter of real estate, are likely to be placed on a more sensible basis than they have occupied in the past.

The Globe suggests that Mr. John E. Moore should be called to the witness stand in connection with the enquiry into the charges now being heard by the Royal Commission. Until he is so called it cannot be definitely established that he knew the use to which his certified cheque was being put when he endorsed it and handed it to Mr. Berry. And if he should be called and it turns out he did know, it might well be asked of him why, in view of the fact that he was a director of those great organs of party, the Telegraph and Times, he did not at once use his telephone to notify the single-minded and consistent editors of those journals of the awful wrong being perpetuated upon the good people of this province.

Diary of Events

HISTORIC DAYS IN CANADA

Cy Warman, the poet, son-of-a-banker and railroad man who was one of Canada's adopted sons, was born at Greening, Ill., fifty-nine years ago today. For many years he has been a resident of the "Post of the Rockies" which was a citizen of London, Ont., where he owned a beautiful home, and was connected with Canadian railway. Mr. Warman's father was a soldier in the Mexican war, and the poet was born on a homestead which had been given to his sire as a reward of valor. Cy Warman received a common school education, and in his youth and early manhood was a Jack of many trades. He was a farmer and wheat buyer in his native State for a few years prior to 1880, when he went to Colorado and became a locomotive fireman, and afterwards an engineer, on the Denver & Rio Grande road. After eight years he turned journalist, and edited the Crede, Col. Chronicle and the Western Railway at Denver. He received the title of "The Post of the Rockies" from the publication of some of his verses in the New York Sun in 1892. The following year he rode in a locomotive from New York to Chicago and wrote his first long story, "A Thousand Miles in a Night." After several years of travel in Europe and the Orient he built a fine residence in London, Ont., with Warram as a second wife, who was Myrtle Marie Jones, inspired the poet to compose the famous song, "Sweet Marie." Miss Jones was a student in the Academy of the Sacred Heart in London, Ont., when she met Mr. Warman.

THE HUMAN PROCESS ON JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

Proud and erect, for all the weight of years and shame, Julian Hawthorne, distinguished author and scion of one of America's foremost literary families, entered the grim portals of the United States federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., for six months in 1912. He was a dweller in that "living hell" where "men are numbers," and on October 15th last he was released. Julian Hawthorne was born in Boston 82 years ago today, the son of Nathaniel Hawthorne, immortal author of "The Scarlet Letter" and "Mosses from an Old Manse." In his young manhood he was employed as a hydrographic engineer in the New York City department, but for his own part he was devoted himself exclusively to journalism and authorship. In 1912 he was accused of complicity in the Canadian mine promotion swindle, and was convicted. He has been steadfast in asserting his innocence, and declared that "my imprudence, and not a disgrace on me and upon my name, but upon the people who imprisoned me."

THE PASSING DAY ARGENTINE CENTENARY.

Argentina and Uruguay will celebrate today the centenary of the memorable land and naval battle of June 22, 1814, in which the Spanish forces were defeated and forced to abandon the forts of Montevideo, their stronghold in La Plata Provinces. Seven years before Montevideo, now the magnificent capital of the newly born Republic of Uruguay, was stormed by a British force under Sir Samuel Auchmuty, and the resistance was so desperate that a third of the English troops were killed. A few months later the British were forced to evacuate both Montevideo and Buenos Ayres. Encouraged by their success against the invaders the people of both cities repudiated the authority of Spain in 1810, and under the leadership of such brave patriots as General San Martin, Admiral Guillermo Brown, Don Manuel Belgrano and General Jose Artigas, drove the Spaniards from the country. In the battle of a century ago the Spanish troops were so decisively defeated both by land and water that they were forced to flee the country and the army of liberty, under San Martin, crossed the Andes and helped to free Chile, Bolivia and Peru.

FIRST THINGS SUMMER.

This is the first day of that season which is hailed by some as "the good old Summer time," although many people, and especially those given to the pessimist's view, describe it with an adjective the reverse of "good." The Summer solstice, which marks the beginning of the longest day, is astronomically speaking the time when old Sol seems to enter the tropic of Cancer. This is true, of course, only in the northern hemisphere, as in the southern, half of the world the sun's entrance into Cancer marks the beginning of Winter. From now on, in the part of the world where the sun is in the tropic, the longest day in New York lasts about fifteen hours. Montreal has sixteen hours, and at Toronto, in Finland, the sun will shine today for about twenty-two hours. Of the great cities of the world, St. Petersburg has the longest day, of nineteen hours, while Stockholm's day is now about eighteen and three-quarters hours in duration. At Harde, Norway, the sun has

FRENCHMAN WINS ENGLISH MARATHON.

London, June 20.—The annual marathon race from Windsor Castle to the Chelsea Football grounds, for a trophy valued at $2,500, run under the auspices of the Polytechnic Harriers, was won today by Djebel, a Frenchman. His time was 2 hours, 46 minutes, 54 seconds. Westbury, of Sweden, was second and Crumner, another Swede was third. Forty-three competitors started from the grounds of Windsor Castle, where they were sent away by King George, Queen Mary and other members of the royal family were present.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS IN STATEROOM, DIED WITHIN SHORT TIME.

Yarmouth, N. S., June 21.—K. W. Barreau, aged forty-five of Hudson, Mass., a passenger from Boston, died, on the arrival of the steamer Prince Arthur yesterday. When the ship arrived he did not leave his stateroom. The door was forced and the man was found unconscious. Medical aid was called and he was rushed to a hospital, but soon passed away. He was bound to Meadowdale, Annapolis county, to take his aged father to Hudson to reside with him.

At the Age of 40

About that time of life your eyes which have served you well begin to play tricks on you. You make mistakes that you would think impossible. You find things you were accustomed to do almost mechanically require conscious attention. Reading isn't so much pleasure as it was—work seems harder.

Often considerable time is allowed to elapse before one will admit these things even to oneself—but the trouble is a perfectly natural one. The inner lens of the eye is losing its elasticity—becoming set, and lessening the power of accommodation. Artificial help is required for good vision.

At the age of about forty almost everyone needs glasses. Those who come to Sharpe's have their eyes examined scientifically and secure, at a very reasonable price, exactly the glasses their eyes require to restore perfect sight.

FORESTERS TO CHURCH

Attended Divine service, in Zion Methodist church last evening—An impressive address.

Members of the Independent Order of Foresters, subordinate and companion lodges of St. John, attended divine service in Zion Methodist Church last evening. The service was in connection with the celebration of the 40th anniversary of the founding of the order and was attended by many Foresters as well as others outside of the order.

Rev. William Lawson, pastor of the church, gave an eloquent address, dealing chiefly with the objects of the Independent Order of Foresters. He took for the foundation of his sermon the passage from the book of James, which says "Visit the widow and the fatherless and keep yourselves unspotted from the world."

The speaker then dealt with the early history of the order, how it originated in the forests of England, when a band of worthy men formed an organization for giving help to the poor and for this purpose they took money and other articles from the rich. In the present time the idea of taking money from the rich had been abandoned and the true spirit of benevolence had taken its place.

The Order of Foresters of Canada, while still under the direction of the English organization, had its own government in every detail and was totally independent.

Benevolence was one of the chief attributes of the Foresters today and their work was truly the work of Christ. They were present at the bedside of sick brothers everywhere and when help was needed they extended a hand.

The speaker dwelt upon the vast amount of money paid out by the order for the help of those in distress. Liberty was another part of the Foresters' creed and liberty in all

TO WED NAVAL OFFICER

Rear Admiral Royal E. Bradford, U. S. N., retired, and Mrs. Bradford have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Rose Mary Bradford, to Lieutenant Clarence A. Richards, U. S. N.

Miss Bradford, who is one of the favorites in the capital's younger social set, is also a leader in the work being done by the Junior Republic League. She has served as president, secretary and treasurer of the organization at various times.

Matters of religion and politics were featured. Concord was the third great principle of the order and the general feeling of co-operation among the brothers in the order was magnificent. Rev. Mr. Lawson elaborated on the many details of the Independent Order of Foresters. There had been some feeling against the raising of the rates but this had to be done in order to assure all members of securing their proper share in the benefits. These increases had made the order stronger. The speaker urged the need of joining such an order on all young men and spoke in feeling terms of the fraternal features.

At the close of the sermon Rev. Mr. Lawson referred to his farewell sermon next Sabbath and spoke with feeling of leaving his congregation.

The members of the Independent Order of Foresters assembled in the school room of the church and marched to the main auditorium. After the service the rest of the congregation remained in their seats while the members of the order marched out.

ADVERTISING CLUBS HOLD A CONVENTION SALARIES OF TEACHERS NOT HIGH ENOUGH

More than 5,000 delegates to meet in Toronto today—Several from St. John.

More than five thousand delegates from all parts of America, including many from St. John and other parts of New Brunswick, will be in Toronto today for the opening of the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America. "The most important convention in fifty years of north American history," is the way the official announcement of the convention puts it.

For months the advertising journals of the United States and Canada have contained glowing prospectuses of this convention. The extensive grounds and buildings of the Canadian National Exhibition Association have been turned over for the use of the delegates. Messages from King George of England and President Wilson of the United States will be read today. Honesty has become one of the chief factors of the advertising world and honesty will be the watchword of this convention.

Honesty, the Watchword. Fraught, then, with the heavy import of giving concrete expression to this newly awakened sentiment the Toronto meeting is to be no pot pourri of speeches and sightseeing. Here are to meet the men who with their brethren have to do with the welfare of 200,000,000 people. Their purpose is to reduce to rules of practice, their creed, adopted last year at Baltimore of which the first paragraph reads: "We believe in truth, the cornerstone of all honorable and successful business, and we pledge ourselves each to one and one to all to make the foundation of our dealings, to the end that our mutual relations may become still more harmonious and efficient."

This is the ideal designed to affect in some degree every buyer and seller in two nations. From this mountain of uplifted thought are to be brought down at Toronto the ten commandments of advertising, that are to sift from advertising practices every misrepresentation and offer the solution for every problem of questionable publicity—truthfulness.

This once accomplished, the man in the street will not be able to justify the words, "doubtless exaggerated by the advertisements. No longer need he make allowances for over-enthusiastic praise of proffered goods. Instead, he will be able to declare in all earnestness: "This must be good, for the advertisements speak very highly of it."

Separate Groups. At the Toronto convention are to assemble separate groups of delegates representing the sixteen different branches of the advertising trade. The poster men, the technical advertising men, the newspaper advertising men and all the others. Each group will have its own sessions. Every branch will draft its own ten commandments applicable to its work, and based on the general principles adopted at Baltimore. Later in the week, these codes will be presented before the general meeting of all delegates and formally adopted.

While in Toronto the delegates will be given a chance to view some of the features arranged for the 100th anniversary of peace. The finest bands in Canada will give concerts. The Mendelssohn choir, ranking among the best a capella singers in the world, will be heard. There will be moonlight excursions with supper on board the steamers. There will be water sports, a regatta, and motor boat racing. And best of all, there will be a military carnival in honor of the 100 years peace, in which will be given ceremonial drills by his majesty's troops, torch dances, court martials, and whole companies dancing the sailors' hornpipe and the Irish jig.

On the night of June 25, will be sung the ode to "Truth," and the convention will be over. The men who are trying to quicken the commercial conscience of two nations will leave for their homes. But they will have established a platform. "Men must tell the truth about what they are trying to sell." They will have pledged themselves to preach that truthful advertising is a noble service to mankind—and to practise it. That is why the Toronto convention is described as the greatest in fifty years of north American history.

Cured of Piles and Eczema

By Using Three Boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Mr. Abram Bahr, Herbert, Sask., writes: "I want to say that I was troubled with eczema and piles and suffered greatly from the itching, burning sensations caused by those annoying ailments. I sent for a free sample of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this did me so much good that I bought three boxes more, and after using same was cured of both eczema and piles."

This is the kind of letters we receive daily from people who have been cured of these distressing skin diseases by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. No matter how skeptical you might be, you could not read these letters for many days without concluding that Dr. Chase's Ointment is undoubtedly the most prompt relief and certain cure for these ailments.

If you have doubts send for a free sample box and be convinced. It was by use of a free sample that Mr. Bahr was convinced of the merits of this treatment. For sale at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

WOMAN SUES CAPITALIST FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

That Eugene Zimmerman, of Cincinnati, father of the Duchess of Manchester, made ardent love to her and often urged her to marry him, not only in her own home but in such public places as a Broadway restaurant, and even over the long distance telephone, was the substance of statements made by Miss Ivy Wareham, an exhibitor of prize dogs, in confirming the reports of a breach of promise suit started by her in papers secretly filed in the Supreme Court at Jamaica. Miss Wareham lives at Elmhurst, L. I. She declares that Mr. Zimmerman jilted her after an engagement, lasting more than four years, and asks for damages in the sum of $100,000.

"I have many letters to show that Mr. Zimmerman made ardent love to me," she said. "If more evidence be needed it can be supplied by my maid as well as by my friends. On any number of times Mr. Zimmerman asked me to marry him. He pressed his suit by frequent calls on me in my own home, by long distance telephone talks from Michigan, and even in big Manhattan restaurants where he often took me to dine when he was in New York city."

The man who knows Blue Ribbon never says "no" to this best beer.

He knows that it is a mild, mellow brew with a delightful hoppy flavor. He knows that it is a perfectly pure beer; that it is a healthful beverage, for it contains only a small percentage of alcohol—just enough to give it life and snap. He knows that it is always good—good for him and good to drink.

AUSTRALIA DON'T WANT ASIATIC IMMIGRANTS

Antagonism to them greater than in other Dominions—Japan sending Missionaries to counteract this sentiment.

London, June 20.—The Japanese Government has become so seriously concerned over the anti-Asiatic spirit, that it is being cultivated in Australia, New Zealand and Canada, that missions have been sent to England and the Dominions named to counteract this feeling.

In Australia the antagonism against Asiatic immigration is even more bitter than in New Zealand, Canada or the Western States of America. It is believed that the Japanese have designs on Australia. It is for this and no other reason that conscription has been introduced into the Dominion and the start has been made in building a navy. Among the stories current in Australia is one to the effect that a map of that country is hung up in every school room in Japan, to which the attention of the students is directed as being that of a land which should form a part of the Japanese Empire. The Japanese deny this and say that the only justification for the invention is the cry of "To the South" which is in vogue in Japan, but which means nothing more than a movement of commercial expansion and has no political significance.

YOUTHFUL MURDERERS SHOW LITTLE CONCERN OVER THEIR ARREST

Cote Brothers, in jail for fiendish crime, don't appear worried over their predicament—Insanity probable defence.

Special to The Standard. Houlton, Me., June 20.—That insanity will be the defence of Louis and Herbert Cote, names of Edmontonton, N. B., are 14 and 9 years old respectively, who are locked up in the county jail here without any charge with the murder of 12 year old Hartley Webb, at Presque Isle, last week, now seems likely. The boys, who are large and strong for their age, have taken their arrest with the utmost concern and display an utter lack of interest in their predicament.

The crime, which has caused the greatest indignation all through northern Maine, is one of the most fiendish in the criminal annals of the state, if the story told by young Victor is to be credited.

The Porter and Webb boys, both of whom were favorably known, left their home in Presque Isle to go fishing along the banks of the Presque Isle stream, last Thursday. They encountered the Cote boys about noon and gave them a portion of their lunch. At the preliminary hearing Saturday, young Porter told how the two Cote boys had forced Webb and himself to remove a part of their clothing, after which they drove them into the stream. When they attempted to reach the bank, they were beaten back with clubs. Their hands were tied with shoe strings, which were also bound tightly around their necks, and they were thrown on a knife.

OPPOSE SEX HYGIENE FOR YOUNG PUPILS

Educational Committee of London County Council and Scotland Yard officials against introducing subject in Elementary Schools.

London, June 20.—The Education Committee of the London County Council has decided that under no circumstances should sex hygiene be introduced into class teaching in the elementary schools. This decision was reached after a long investigation and the examination of a large number of teachers.

The evidence was almost unanimously against the proposition. Dealing with the objections to the inclusion of such a subject in the curriculum, the report of the committee mentions, in the first place, that the knowledge of such matters amongst children depends very largely upon the type of home from which they have been drawn. It is pointed out that where, as is unhappily common in many districts, the parents and children live in one room in which all the events of life and death take place, the knowledge of the children must be very different from that of children who come from a home where they are carefully guarded and who may obtain no information of this kind until they are fourteen years of age. It would be a task of the greatest difficulty to teach the subject satisfactorily in class, since, while to some children the facts are already known, there are other to whom the knowledge might come as a shock. Then a method of treatment of this subject which might benefit one child might harm another. In the second place, speaking of those subjects in class must tend to break down the children's natural modesty and reserve. Nevertheless, the report agrees that some such instruction might be given to children over fourteen in the higher schools and even institutes, and it is suggested that pamphlets dealing with the subject should be given to girls leaving the elementary schools.

A bill to enable the police authorities to enroll women constables is to be introduced in the House of Commons by Lord Henry Cavendish-Bentinck, Unionist member for South-Downhamshire.

The officials of Scotland Yard have declared themselves as opposed to the measure. A spokesman said bluntly, "We are against the suggestion. We employ special women for special purposes, such as vigilance work, and in all cases intimately connected with women or young girls, to a far greater extent than the public realizes. Moreover, in all our police stations women are employed to look after female prisoners and whenever there is a female prisoner a woman is constantly on the premises. Then, again, we work in close touch and sympathy with the many excellent societies that employ women detectives and watchers, and we step in with our constables on a hint from them. So that, on the whole, women constables are not only unnecessary, but objectionable, because they would inevitably lead to what one may call specialized enlistment."

WEAKNESS AND PALPITATION OF THE HEART.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitated and throbs, skips beats, and sometimes seems to almost stop, it causes great anxiety and alarm.

Many people become weak, worn and miserable, and are unable to attend to either social, business or household duties. FROM THE TRAINER'S CORNER

A column of comment on sporting and athletic men and events, physical culture, exercise, health measures, and body building.

By MacLery of Babylon.
 (Eighteen Years a Physical Trainer.)
 Neuraesthesia and other nervous disorders have become so prevalent in America of late years that these ailments have come to be known by the general name of Americanitis.

But the man in the street who is this is, and you will be told that it is because Americans are the hardest workers in the world, that in the pursuit of the almighty dollar they travel at a pace which inevitably wears their nerves to a frazzle, and that their nervousness is due to their enormous industry.

In a way, this is true. American business men have followed the example of the old steamboat captains on the Mississippi, who in their haste to get from where they were to where they weren't, and to get there first, used to "tie a nigger on the safety valve" and "get there or bust." Very often they "busted," and the same is true of the Americans of today, who in their eagerness to outstrip business or professional rivals make physical wrecks of themselves. Naturally the most delicate machinery gives way first before the strain, and the nervous sound the first warnings of the coming crash.

But for all their making and busting and hurrying, Americans don't really accomplish anything more than their rivals in the commercial field—Germans, Englishmen and Frenchmen, for example. Outside of their business professional interests, or other activities by which they can gain money or glory, Americans are, as a type, inclined to be lazy and physically indolent. It is not only lack of time which leads the average American to neglect exercise and other health essentials, but lack of inclination. There are hundreds of thousands of exceptions to this rule, of course, but they are exceptions.

Americans laugh at the English business man who stops in the middle of the afternoon, and permits his employees to leave their work to take tea. Of course, the Britisher might find a less harmful beverage than tea, but the rest does him more good than the tea does harm.

America leads the world in athletics, but, while untold millions are being sent out to produce a few athletic world-beaters, the great masses of the people pay little or no attention to physical training. Sport for sport's sake, as it is exemplified in England, has a minor following on this side of the Atlantic.

Professor Ludwig Jahn founded the Turnplatz in Germany, practically all Germans have had gymnastic training, nor do they discontinue their studies in the gymnasium when they are young. It is noteworthy, too, that the rise of the gymnastic movement in Germany coincided with the expansion of Prussia from a little state to the center of a great empire, and with the vast commercial growth of the country.

Exercise, sunshine and fresh air are the sovereign remedies for the "nerves" which afflict Americans. There is nothing more certain than that American business and professional men and women could accomplish more in life more easily and live longer if they would devote a portion of their precious time to outdoor exercise, gymnasium work, sports and pastimes.

But, somebody is sure to inquire at this point, if exercise is so good for people, why do so many professional athletes die young? In the first place, they don't, as a rule, if they take anything like proper care of themselves. In the second place, it is easily possible to exercise too much, as well as too little, and the professional athlete's desire to excel and to gain glory leads often to lead him to excess.

In the third place, the professional athlete is hailed as a hero, and, if he will permit it, he will be led by his admirers into all varieties of dissipation.

Take the professional boxers, as an example. The ring gladiator, more than any other athlete, associates with a class of men addicted to the consumption of booze in large quantities, and few of them are able to resist the temptation to drink to excess. In spite of this general failing, however, and in spite of the fact that most boxers often have to undergo sieges of training to take off flesh which are nothing short of cruel, most professional boxers probably live longer than the average man who takes no exercise but is temperate in his habits.

There is John L. Sullivan, who used to entertain an ambition to keep all the distilleries in the world working 'nights. In his youth John L. was nothing but an animated sponge. A weak of such a life as he lived would have put the average man down for the final count, but John L. survived it and now, at fifty-six, he is hale and hearty and a temperance lecturer. Mike Donovan, who is nearing the three-score and ten mark, fought in the ring with bare knuckles for over sixteen years, and has been a boxing instructor ever since. There are several living ex-boxers who are past the three-score mark in mere Joe John, Tom Oliver, Bill Tavee, Tom Hyer, Pat Kelly, "Dublin Bill" Hastings, Jim Dunn, and a host of others.

It has been nearly thirty years since the professional six-day walking game began to decline, yet a great majority of the champion pedestrians of those days are still in the land of the living, and able to walk farther and farther.

Louisville Club Hung Up Hard Luck Record Quarter Century ago today.

A baseball world's record was hung up a quarter of a century ago today, June 22, 1889, which has never since been equalled or surpassed. Moreover no club in any league entertains any ambition to break this record. On the date aforesaid the Louisville club of the old American Association lost its twenty-sixth consecutive game. No league club before or since has suffered so many reverses in a row, without a taste of victory to break the monotony of losing, and it is safe to say that no team wants to. The following year, 1890, the Pittsburgh Pirates were apparently intent on smashing the Louisville record, but they fell short by three games, losing twenty-three in a row. Although Nimek's third men failed in their endeavor to deprive Louisville of its dubious honor, they did succeed in setting up a National League record. The American League record for straight defeats was established in 1906, when the Boston Red Sox, under the management of James J. Collins, were vanquished in twenty straight games.

The old American Association, in which Louisville set up a hard luck record that has endured for a quarter of a century, was classed as a major league, although it included at one time or another many of the cities now referred to in the present American Association. Louisville was the first champion of the old association in 1882. The following year the Philadelphia Athletics were victorious, and the New York Metropolitans annexed the flag in 1884 and played Providence, the National League, for the professional world's championship, but were defeated by

THIS DATE IN RING ANNALS

1857.—Tom Sayers was formally presented with the belt emblematic of the championship of England. According to an old English sporting print, "Mr. Thos. Sayers received the champion's belt, value 100 pounds, June 22nd, 1857," which was six days after to the title by whipping "Mr. Bill Perry. According to this same print, Sayers was 3 feet 8 1/2 inches in height, and weighed 10 stone 10 lbs., or 150 pounds. The clever middle-weight later fought John C. Heenan, a 6-foot giant, for the world's title, but the battle ended in a row and the referee called it a draw. It was decided to give each of the men a belt symbolic of the world's championship. Sayers, who quit the ring immediately after his fight with Heenan, received his trophy, but Heenan's belt was never delivered, the donors having overlooked the little matter of paying for it.
