HARTLAND WILL BE INCORPORATED

Popular Vote Favors the Project
Two to One—First Town
Election Soon

The vote of the village people to see if the popular feeling was in favor of incorporation of the village into a full-fledged town was a decided victory for the promoters of the movement, as exactly two votes were cast in favor to each one against the project. There were 215 in the district proposed to be incorporated who were entitled to vote. Of these 69 stayed away from the polling place; 102 came and voted "for" and 51 "against." Sheriff Foster was the returning officer and R. B. Hagerman and C. D. Dickson were scrutineers. The election passed quietly, there was no undue excitement, no fighting, and no rum or money or other means offered to corrupt the guileless electorate.

Immediately the votes were counted the Sheriff prepared his returns and sent them to the Provincial Secretary. At probably the first meeting of the government, the application for incorporation will be accepted and forthwith a proclamation will be published announcing that the Town of Hartland is an entity on the earth, capable of "suing and being sued." Within ten days after such proclamation has been published a town election will have to be proclaimed, and which will be held shortly thereafter.

It will be necessary to elect a mayor and eight aldermen, who are, by the way, forbidden by provisions of the Act to accept any remuneration for their services. At the first meeting of the council so appointed the town officers are to be appointed and the town divided into wards, with their boundaries specified.

So far The Observer has heard of no aspirants for civic honors, but the one level-headed, successful business man who has given the most time, energy and pep to the movement is W. D. Keith, and should he consent to fill the office, there should be no opposition to his nomination for mayor.

Wasson-Tompkins

On Wednesday, Sept. 25, a wedding of much interest took place at River Bank when Mrs. Bertha Etta Tompkins of that place was united to Charles Farley Wasson of Windsor. The event took place at the home of the bride at 6:30 p.m. in the presence of about fifty guests. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. H. Manuel. Mrs.

Wasson, for a number of years kept store and post office at River Bank and Mr. Wasson is the owner of a large farm at Windsor. Both parties have many friends in their respective communities who wish them a long and happy wedded life. They left on Thursday for Windsor where they will reside.

Victory Loan Campaign Goes (Merrily On)

Matters concerning the 1918 Victory Loan are going with a happy swing and the whole county is practically in working order for the big drive. Christian; Upper Peel, F. L. Tompkins, B. F. McLeary; Back Wakefield, L. A. Fenwick, Mr. Harrison, George McElroy; Lower Peel, E. W. Melville; Kent, G. W. Perry, D. B. Secord; Richmond, John Y. Fleming, Lt. Col. Kirkpatrick. An organization meeting will be held at Centreville on Saturday evening.

TRAGIC DEATH OF FOUR PEOPLE

Three Brothers and Young Girl of Bloomfield Killed When Train
Strikes Auto

One of the most shocking tragedies that has overshadowed Carleton county occurred at Parson's Siding, on the Aroostook Valley Railway, near Presque Isle, on Monday evening. William Kidney, of Bloomfield, his 18-year-old daughter Gladys, and his two brothers, Stanley and Sanford, Washburn, Me., were in an auto and were struck by a train that was backing over the crossing without tail-lights. Stanley and William were instantly killed and Gladys died in a few moments. The girl had both legs severed and died soon after being admitted to Presque Isle hospital. It would seem from reports that the terrible accident occurred through the gross negligence of the railway company which operates the electric road in that section.

The victims are all natives of Bloomfield and were widely known and honored. The young girl was a mail driver and was a general favorite along the miles of road she daily traversed. Probably the saddest funeral ever held in the county was that of father and daughter which was held at their late home yesterday afternoon by Rev. T. Spencer Crisp of Hartland, who spoke from the words, John 14:1-2—"Let not your hearts be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my father's house are many mansions." A great concourse of people gathered from far and near to mingle their tears with the heartbroken wife and mother and sisters.

Another shocking tragedy occurred near Edmundston on the same day when a carriage containing Mr. and Mrs. Corrievau and Cleopatra Valier was struck by an N.T.R. train. The man was instantly killed, the woman was horribly hurt, and the girl so injured that she died the next day.

Victoria S. S. Association

The Victoria Sunday School Convention was held at Grand Falls. The first meeting was held on Wednesday afternoon, when Rev. J. K. King led the devotional exercises. Mrs. M. L. James of Perth, read a paper on "Junior Problems," and Rev. W. K. J. Ross, of Moncton, general secretary, gave an address. On Wednesday evening the devotional service was led by R. V. W. K. Read. Rev. R. E. Britton addressed a few words of welcome to the visiting delegates, Rev. W. K. Read gave an address on "An Investment," Rev. W. J. Ross again addressed the gathering, and Miss Marie Pirie sang. On Thursday morning the devotions were led by Rev. C. Flemmington, of Andover, who also gave an address on "The Religion of the Child." The greater part of the time was taken up with reports and plans for the coming year.

Use For Shaving

Many men are troubled, more particularly in the cold weather, with a sort of roughness of the skin or eczema caused by shaving. The application of Dr. Chase's Ointment after the shave, soon cures the trouble and by using it after each shave you keep the skin soft and prevent irritation and soreness. Because of its antiseptic qualities this ointment prevents and cures Barber's Itch.

The Methodist appointments on the Hartland-Lindsay circuit next Sunday are as follows: Hartland 10:30 a.m., the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper at the close of the preaching service. At Lindsay at 3 p.m. and the Lord's Supper also to be administered at this service. In the evening the service at Red Bridge will be as usual at 8. Rev. T. Spencer Crisp will conduct these services.

Mrs. Wm. Tedlie, Hartland, visited her son, Geo. Tedlie, last week.

Memorial Service for Corporal John A. Orser

A memorial service was held at Olovelde on Sunday, Sept. 15th, in honor of Corporal John A. Orser who enlisted Jan. 1, 1916, and was killed in action on Aug. 8. This is the second one in the family to make the supreme sacrifice within a year. The large congregation which attended the service shows the high esteem in which the young man was held. Much sympathy is extended to the parents and family in their great sorrow. Herder Adair had charge of the service. Sermon by Rev. P. J. Quigley, Peel.

CROSS, SICKLY BABIES

Sickly babies—those who are cross and fretful; whose little stomachs and bowels are out of order; who suffer from constipation, indigestion, colds or any other of the minor ills of little ones—can be promptly cured by Baby's Own Tablets. Concerning them Mrs. Jean Paradis, St. Bruno, Que., writes: "My baby was very ill and vomited all his food. He was cross and cried night and day and nothing helped him till I began using Baby's Own Tablets. They soon set him right and now he is a fat, healthy boy." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HAD TO HAVE THOSE CARDS

Canadian Soldiers Cheerfully Risked Their Lives to Recover Dues on Person of Fallen Comrade.

Captain McWilliams of the Canadian forces, told an after-dinner story the other night to illustrate how large amusement looms in the life of a soldier in the trenches.

A game of bridge was in progress just before the firing step in a front line trench, when the alarm was given to repulse a raid. Sergeant McBride snatched up his rifle with one hand and gathered the cards with the other, and in less than a minute every man in the trench was over the top.

Half an hour afterward, when it was all over, the captain was scrutinizing No Man's Land, through the periscope, counting as the losses, when he thought he recognized the prostrate form of Sergeant McBride, and it instantly occurred to him that the only pack of cards in that section was in the sergeant's pocket.

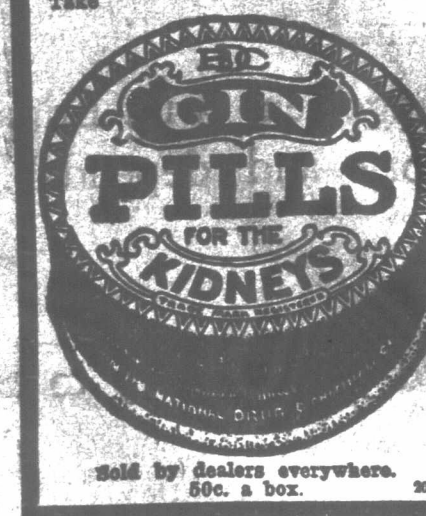

Upon explaining the matter to his comrades, all of whom were bridge fiends, three of them at once volunteered to go out and recover that pack of cards, which they did. Men have recovered the Victoria cross for less hazardous exploits.

Operation for Appendicitis

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Surgeon, Falle, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation or even of a doctor as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure."

BACK-ACHE!

You will never get rid of that pain in the back until your kidneys are performing their proper function.

LITTLE TERRIER IN TRENCH

This Canine Warrior Was Not a "Blacker," but Didn't Care to Go Over Top.

In those long lines of trenches in France and Flanders, where Britisher faces German, it is not all discomfort and misery. During quiet hours we play and joke. And we like nothing better than some little pet—a dog or a cat, perhaps—to care for and look after.

Cats are not uncommon in trenchland, many of them having been born and bred there, says Boys' Life, the boy scout's magazine. Unless a kitten or cat is actually taken from the trenches, it makes that sector its home, and is fed and cared for by the troops which come in to hold the line at that part. But a dog will follow his unit about and soon becomes the friend of all, and quite an important being in the regiment.

Our little smooth-haired fox terrier had taken up his quarters in a strong redoubt near the front. The little dog would quake with fear on hearing a German shell in the air, but after the explosion would run about as before, realising that the danger was past. Four little Warriors stayed in the trenches always. He would not follow the men out, but would settle down with the incoming unit. Many were the jokes made at his expense. "Warrior, old boy," a man would say, "if I was you I would get a transfer to some nonfighting job, never comes up, and keep out of it well behind." But Warrior wouldn't desert. Every time the battalion came up to hold the line there was the little terrier.

POINT TO BIBLICAL PROPHECY

Huns Claim That Russia's Collapse Was Foretold in Verse in the Book of Daniel.

Quotations from the Bible and the use of the name of the Deity are favorite methods of the Kaiser and his subjects for trying to justify themselves for bringing on the world disaster. Now they have come forward with a verse from the Book of Daniel to prove that a Biblical prophecy has come true in the collapse of the Russian fighting forces. The verse is: "And for the time that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days."

The Germans point out that the period of 1,290 days corresponds with the period from August 1, 1914, when war began between Germany and Russia, and February 11, 1918, when it was announced that Trotsky had declared the war at an end.

The French Tricolor

The Tricolor, the French national standard of blue, white and red, divided vertically, originated during the first French revolution. In 1790 the first plucked by Camille Desmoulins in the garden of the Palais Royal became a rallying sign, and green was to be adopted as the national color; but, remembering that green was the color of the hated Prince d'Artois, they rejected it at the following day. They at first chose, instead, blue and red, the colors of the city of Paris, and later added the white of royalty, that had been faithfully preserved by the national guard. This new standard was adopted with enthusiasm. A few months after taking of the Bastille, Bailly and Lafayette offered to Louis XVI the three-colored cord as a badge of reconciliation with the king. Thus the Tricolor originated as the symbol of the liberty of the French nation, and it continued as such even when afterward the "reconciliation" with the king ended with his decapitation.

Tie's Part in Women's Finery

For women who are proud of the fact that they wear holsters, underwear and dresses made of silk, realize that old tin cans contribute from 20 to 300 per cent in weight to the glossy silks worn by them. The price of silk has increased enormously and to enable them to sell heavy silks at a price that will yield a reasonable profit and yet be within the means of the average purchaser, the manufacturers resort to the practice of weighting the silk with tin trichloride, derived from old tin cans. Five thousand tons of tin were used for that purpose in 1917. Don't throw away the empty tomato cans!

War is Informal Affair

That the number of full dress suits purchased in America since Uncle Sam threw down the gauntlet has fallen off 90 per cent is an indication of a realization on the part of the nation that war is no dress affair.

In the trenches the guests from across the street don't stand on ceremony or wait for an invitation. They are real neighbors, and likely to drop in unexpectedly any time. In fact war is an informally informal business.

It has its humorous side, too. Every day many things occur that are perfectly killing.

Patriotism

A College avenue woman was entertaining her card club. One of the woman members of the club brought her son John, about four years old, along. John got unruly, and his mother put him upstairs and told him to sit there until he could behave, while she proceeded to play bridge. John was quiet about 15 minutes, when he burst forth singing "America." Immediately it broke up the card game and the women stood up until John finished singing.

A LIGHTER GAS FOUND.

Coronium May Make Airship Travel Easier and Safer.

An astronomer's discovery from observations of a recent total eclipse of the sun may make airship traveling a little easier and safer. Studies of the eclipse prove beyond doubt the existence on the earth of a light gas that had long been supposed to exist. It is named coronium, because it appears in the corona of the sun, and its particular claim is that it is much lighter than hydrogen, which has long been used for inflating balloons and airships.

Not only has it been proved that there is such a gas, but it is pretty well established that there are vast quantities of it about the earth. Getting possession of it, of course, is another matter. Yet the fact that such a gas does exist is the first step, and no scientist would deny the hope that eventually it may be obtained in quantities if desired.

It is easy to see how a gas much lighter than hydrogen would make airship flight easier and safer than it is now. In order to carry the weight of engines, passengers and envelopes the Zeppelin airships are of enormous size, and carry vast quantities of gas. Their very size has been the greatest element of danger for their extended service gives a grip for gales. Bigger engines to fight the gales would require bigger gas capacity, and so on.

Though some other considerations affect this point, still the fact is largely true that increasing the size of the whole outfit does not, as a matter of fact, solve the problem of safety in gales. On the other hand, if it should be possible to have the same lifting power—the same powerful engines—with even a slightly reduced gas envelope, it is all a gain for safety.

It has been estimated by one scientist that at an altitude of 100 miles above the surface of the earth the atmosphere is composed entirely of coronium, and that farther up still the coronium exists, getting thinner as it extends into space.

At a height of 130 miles he estimates that the atmosphere consists of about equal parts of coronium and hydrogen, and at forty-five miles the coronium is an appreciable part. Nearer the earth there is less and less of this light gas, until at the surface of the earth, if it exists at all, it is only in a very minute quantity.—Saturday Evening Post.

IS THE EARTH DRYING UP?

This Is a Question Upon Which Scientists Do Not Agree.

There is a wide difference of opinion among scientists as to whether or not the earth is regularly losing moisture. The theory propounded by Dr. Gregory in his lecture before the Royal Geographical society that the earth is not older than it was 1,000 or 2,000 years ago may be strictly true if loss and gain are balanced against each other all over the globe, but in many notable instances of special interest to mortals there seems to be no doubt that the loss of water is pouring over Victoria falls is nothing like what it was only thirty years ago, while 200 miles to the southwest of it Lake Naami, a great sheet of water in Livinstone's day, is now but a mass of reeds.

In the western Sudan the climate has been artificially modified by the natives in burning down the trees to increase the cultivable area. It is true that Dr. Sven Hedin does not think that Persia has perceptibly dried up in the last 2,000 years.

On the other hand, that other great Asiatic traveler, M. Aurel Stein, has stated that there is "incontrovertible evidence of the desertion of eastern Thrace and historical times." American scientists who have studied the conditions in Palestine maintain that the Dead sea is seventy feet lower than it was in the time of Christ.

Even the Apian Way is Not Spared

Rome's venerable Apian way, with its countless associations of a magnificent past, will now be disfigured by the desecrating rails of a modern tramway. In the interior of the city streets are being torn up and ancient squares sacrificed to projected enlargements. This road, the oldest and most famous of Roman roads, was begun in 312 B. C. and is from fourteen to eighteen feet wide, paved with large stone blocks.

Ravages of Cancer

Some 75,000 persons die of cancer every year in the United States and half a million in the civilized world. A trifle over 8 per cent of all human beings die of that disease. In Europe the death rate from cancer is as high as 12.2 per 10,000 of the population annually, while in Spain it is only 4.8. All along the Mediterranean the death rate from this cause is low.

Winter Rain Radio-active

Munoz Del Castillo, the famous Spanish savant, has been conducting researches into the radio activity of water from various sources. Rain water collected in winter contains a notable proportion of radium emanation, which diminishes steadily and disappears in twelve days. Snow collected at Madrid in February was found also to be radio-active.

Baby Shark Skin For Shoes

The newest fancy leather in the shoe manufacturing trade is called "baby shark skin." When tanned, it is said, this skin makes a distinctive leather that is durable and easily worked. Some of the shoe manufacturers are much interested in this new skin, and it is thought that for some purposes the leather will be popular.—New York Times.

Automobile owners who have been so kindly asked to save gasoline on Sundays are generally not paying much attention to being asked in a pleasant manner, but the owners of cars in Andover, almost to a man, have put away their cars the past three Sundays. The surrounding country is certainly paying no heed to the demand for the saving of gasoline. There was almost a continual procession of automobiles passing through Andover last Sunday. Only one or two American cars were in town. It seems as though friends across the border are paying more respect for "Gasoline Conservation."

Details of Corp. Pirie's Death

Mr. and Mrs. Pirie have recently had word from Private Norval McPhail, of Perth, giving details of the death of their son, Corporal Thomas Pirie. Private McPhail who was a very close friend of Corporal Pirie, tells that he was near him when he fell, shot through the forehead. Death was instantaneous. Later, on the same day, Private McPhail was himself wounded, but he has been able to get possession of several of the personal effects of the dead soldier, and will send them home to his parents. Mr. and Mrs. Pirie have also received a letter from Private Kenneth West, one of our own boys and a former school-mate and warm friend of their son. Private West, who has been for some time acting as stretcher-bearer, tells that it was his lot to be one of those who found his friend and helped to carry his body to the rear. Private West is now in hospital, suffering from wounds in the left arm.

WEAK BOYS AND GIRLS

It is a mistake to think that anaemia is only a girl's complaint. Girls probably show the effect of weak, watery blood more plainly than boys. Delayed development, pale faces, headaches, palpitation, and a feeling of listlessness, call attention to weak blood in case of girls. But many boys in their teens grow thin and "weedy" and have pimples on the face, showing that they have not enough blood. The anemic boy is just as likely to become a victim of consumption as the pale, breathless girl with her headaches and worn-out look. Let the boy in this condition catch cold and he will lose his strength and his health becomes precarious.

To prevent serious disaster to those of the rising generation, let both boys and girls be given the new rich blood, which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are famous for the world over for making. When giving these pills watch how soon the appetite returns or how the languid girl or the weak boy becomes full of activity and high spirits. Remember that the boy has to develop, too, if he is to make a strong hearty man. Give both the boys and girls a fair chance to develop strongly through the new, rich blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make. You will then see active boys and girls, instead of weakly children around you.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be obtained by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brookville, Ont.

Converting Gwendolyn

By MARTHA COBB SANFORD.

At twenty Gwendolyn's hand was undoubtedly a personality to be reckoned with. "I don't see where you get such ways," Gwendolyn complained, her mother, "Woe, at your age!"

"Yes, indeed," responded Mr. Rand, "at your age, Gwendolyn, your mother had settled down, she wasn't running around after all the young men in the neighborhood."

"Oh, daddy," remonstrated Gwendolyn, "I think you might be a little more patient."

"Well, well, the young men weren't all running after her, then," amended Mr. Rand, "settling at the time, but in Gwendolyn's big brown eyes. But I don't look well either way. I can't understand where."

"Mother was brought up in a convent, you remember. I'm the product of coeducation," ventured Gwendolyn. "Hm," reflected Mr. Rand, "that may be the reason, but the remedy is your Aunt Abitha."

Gwendolyn gave a little gasp of apprehension. "Yes, my dear," continued Mr. Rand, "your mother and I have decided to send you down to Florida to spend the winter with your Aunt Abitha."

"She will teach you the things a girl of your age ought to know, daughter," added Gwendolyn's mother dolefully, "things which I have somehow failed to make you take an interest in."

"In other words, I'm to be sent to a convent," exclaimed Gwendolyn as she switched out of the room, her head high in air, but her eyes glistening with unshed tears.

Aunt Abitha's ancient, old-fashioned house nestled kinder, redder than Gwendolyn's bedroom. Once up in her cozy bedroom, however, with its chintz covered four poster and French window opening out on to a little rose covered porch, the girl's heart melted in spite of herself, and she threw both arms around Aunt Abitha, completely subsiding for the time being.

But after the novelty of dressing, sewing and cooking lessons to resolve itself into routine Gwendolyn suddenly balked.

"Now, I know how to do all these domestic things, Aunt Abitha," she argued, "what's the use of doing them day after day? There are so many real live things to do in the world. Let's give a garden party or something. Aunt Abitha, are there any male inhabitants in Centerville that could like to come, do you think?"

"Gwendolyn, my dear, how you talk! Of course there are," Aunt Abitha was started into admitting, "There's young Jack Hayward for one."

"What's he like?" "Very thoughtful and polite," replied Aunt Abitha loyally. "He comes of one of our best families."

"Poor thing," muttered Gwendolyn. "What did you say, dear?" "I asked what he does for a living?" precariously Gwendolyn unblinking.

"Why, he manages his father's estate, of course. He's a country gentleman."

"Oh," commented Gwendolyn indifferently, "he must be a very provincial kind of person. I don't think I should like him."

"Well, all things Gwendolyn," bracketed Aunt Abitha. "Of course you'd like him. Every one does. I'll ask him to call."

An afternoon or two later at Gwendolyn was reclining in the hammock on her little porch engaged in a novel, she became suddenly conscious that the front doorbell had been ringing for some time. On the veranda below she could hear Aunt Abitha rocking to and fro.

"The front doorbell's ringing, Aunt Abitha," she called, jumping up. "It's that postman, please don't disturb me. I'm in the midst of an awful exciting love story."

A heavy masculine laugh followed Gwendolyn's declaration. "It aroused her curiosity, but also her indignation, and she re-established herself in the hammock, determined not to display the slightest interest, whatever happened."

But the next thing she heard startled her into a sitting posture. "Now, Aunt Abitha, will you introduce us?"

Gwendolyn, waiting to the rail of the porch, could hardly believe her eyes. There on the roof of the veranda, not ten feet away from her, sat an extremely good looking young man. And there on the lawn stood Aunt Abitha, the picture of dismay and disapproval.

"Gwendolyn," she called up, "this is Mr. Hayward. Jack, my niece, Miss Rand. I never saw such going on in my life. Go right into your room, Gwendolyn."

Gwendolyn did not budge. She only laughed and laughed until Aunt Abitha finally joined in.

But such a triangular situation was not over encouraging, especially since Aunt Abitha refused to leave her angle of observation, so eventually they all adjourned to the downstairs veranda for afternoon tea.

"So you're a climber, Mr. Hayward?" Gwendolyn observed archly, taking advantage of Aunt Abitha's absence in the kitchen.

Jack answered lightly. "I couldn't stand down there below, you know, and let a fellow in a book get ahead of me."

"Get ahead of you?" "Well, absorb your interest to the exclusion of a real human being," explained Jack.

"You took an awful risk," laughed Gwendolyn. "Oh, that was nothing!" Jack boasted. "I'm used to all sorts of athletic stunts, you know."

"That isn't the kind of risk I meant exactly," Gwendolyn enlightened him. "Well, how did you like him?" beamed Aunt Abitha after the caller's departure.

"Not very well," said Gwendolyn, shaking her head dubiously. "He's so bold and conceited."

"But, my dear," hastily interposed Aunt Abitha, "you mustn't judge him from first appearances. Jack was a little queer today. I don't know what was the matter with him. But we'll have him in often, and you must be polite to him, Gwendolyn."

And that was how a most undacious courtship came to be carried on right under Aunt Abitha's eyes.

"Gwendolyn," asked Jack dreamily one sunny morning as they sat together in the fragrant rose garden, "how did you ever happen to come down to this quiet little spot anyhow? I should imagine you'd love all the gay things of life—dances, theaters, dinners and all that, you know. Don't you?"

"No, you're all wrong," answered Gwendolyn slowly, hiding her face in the lavender she had gathered. "I love something quite different."

For a few minutes the birds in the garden had it all to themselves, so Gwendolyn still were the two people who sat there.

"Gwendolyn," Jack finally found himself asking in a husky voice quite unlike his own, "do you really love it down here the quiet, happy life we lead?"

Gwendolyn nodded, but did not lift her face. "Love it enough to stay with me, dearest?"

Gwendolyn nodded again. "Look up at me, you grand!" Jack commanded, taking her joyfully into his arms.

"Oh, let me get it out, sweetheart," implored Jack sympathetically. "What is it, darling?"

"A tear, I think," confessed the mischievous Gwendolyn.

Half an hour later Jack sat talking with Aunt Abitha on the porch. Gwendolyn was scribbling her daily line to her mother.

"Read that, Aunt Abitha," the girl called suddenly, holding out a sheet of note paper. "It has something about you in it."

And this is what the astonished Aunt Abitha read:

Dearest Mother and Dad—I want you to come down here just as quick as you can. I am to be married at Aunt Abitha's in a week from today. The wedding will be very quiet. Aunt Abitha fully approves my engagement—in fact, she has done everything in her power to bring it about. Please bring my trousseau along with you. Yours lovingly, Gwendolyn.

P. S.—His name is Jack Hayward, and he's just as nice as my name. I can cook and sew and dust. G.

Weighting Transfers. The clumsy transfer slips taken in on street railroads by the tens and hundreds of thousands each day are now counted in many company offices instantaneously by scales, thus saving a great amount of clerical labor. All the transfers that are to be counted are dumped on the main pan of the scales. Then a few transfers of the same kind—about twenty-five, for instance—are placed in a small pan on the balance of the machine, and the operator slides a weight along a bar until the scales balance. The area of the bar then shows that if there are twenty-five transfers in the small pan there are, say, 482.25 that number of transfers in the main pan, or 11,556 transfers, and the machine even does the figuring—exchange.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Bronchitis. The cause of bronchitis is the effort of the organism to establish an additional channel of depuration for the removal of an excess of mucus which the effluvia of organs—skin, lungs, bowels and kidneys—have been unable to carry off. Medicinal treatment of this condition is most unsatisfactory.

It is, however, very tractable when treated by hygienic methods. This method of treatment is to limit the amount of food taken and to accelerate the depurating function. A fast or a restricted diet will accomplish the first. The Turkish or vapor bath, free water drinking and deep breathing will accomplish the second.

The value of deep breathing in bronchitis is not generally appreciated. The lungs present a thousand square feet of surface, and their depurating power is enormous. The following exercises, taken out of doors or in a well ventilated room, will be found a most valuable factor in the treatment:

Stand erect, weight forward, head and chest up. Take slowly a full, deep breath. Then, without retaining it, exhale gently until the lungs are as nearly empty as possible. Do this from four to ten times, depending upon your strength, and repeat every hour if possible.

TAKES PLACE OF REAL EYE

Invention of French Oculist Invaluable to Soldiers Who Have Suffered Disfigurement.

The high velocities and high explosiveness of the present-day projectiles often result in facial wounds of most horrible appearance, in the repair of which the surgeons meet with extreme difficulties. In particular, soldiers return from the line of fire not merely with an eye shot out, but with the entire lid and eye socket destroyed, and the absence of these foundations has often made the insertion of an artificial eye impossible.

Until the present moment there has never existed any means for concealing this disfigurement and restoring to the unfortunate victim the appearance of a normal man possessing two eyes. But quite recently a French oculist, Henri Emiles, has made it possible to do this even when the eyelid is entirely missing.

In its essential features the apparatus consists of an artificial eye, equipped with a lid of any convenient plastic material—paraffin or modeling plaster, colored to match the subject's complexion. This eye is furnished also with lashes, to give it to the fullest extent, the appearance of a natural eye. It derives its support from fine metal wires attached to eyeglasses, or spectacles, so adjusted that when the latter is placed upon the nose, the artificial eye falls accurately into its cavity. The eye may easily be separated from these attachments for cleaning.

BODY MAKES ITS OWN HEAT

Comes as Natural Result of Chemical Changes Which Are Constantly Taking Place.

The heat of our bodies is the direct result of the chemical changes which take place in all the tissues and organs of the body. Bruckner's Physiology says that "each contraction of a muscle, each act of secretion, each exhibition of nerve force is accompanied by the evolution of heat."

"The chemical changes," it continues, "are for the most part of the nature of oxidations, the union of oxygen with the elements, carbon and hydrogen, of the food principles either before or after they have become constituents of the tissues."

"The ultimate source of the body heat is the latent or potential energy in the food principles, which was absorbed from the sun's energy and stored up during the growth of the vegetable world. When the food—whether this be directly vegetable or vegetable that has been transformed into meat by being eaten by an animal—is digested in our bodies it is 'reduced by oxidation to relatively simple bodies, such as urea, carbon dioxide and water, with a liberation of a large portion of their contained energy, which manifests itself as heat and mechanical motion.'"

English Hereditary Offices. Conventional epithets have once more been used in the English newspapers about the late Lord Londesborough's hereditary offices as vice admiral of the Yorkshire coast. In reality there are many similar appointments in force elsewhere. The lord mayor of Bristol is vice admiral of the channel as far down as Holmes and possesses an ancient silver cup, which he is entitled to have borne before him in virtue of his office. By a fiction of medieval law all dead persons washed up by the tide were considered to belong to the parish in which the Merchant Venturers stand, and births at sea were registered there. Before the organization of the royal navy had been fully developed it was conventional to intrust the interests of the crown in regard to the duties of the admiralty to local gentlemen, like the nobles of Scarborough, from which the earls of Londesborough derive, of sufficient standing to be immune from sympathy with smuggling, which the chief difficulty in early times. For handling maritime questions special qualifications were necessary, which the lord lieutenant, if he were seated inland, might not possess.

Art. Here are quotations from some of the examination papers submitted by Indianapolis school children for credit in the art courses at the John Herron Art Institute:

"His way of working was very 'technical.'"

"There was a picture of St. Catherine receiving the crown from an 'angel.'"

"Michael Angelo has many paintings in the Renaissance, which is a building in France."

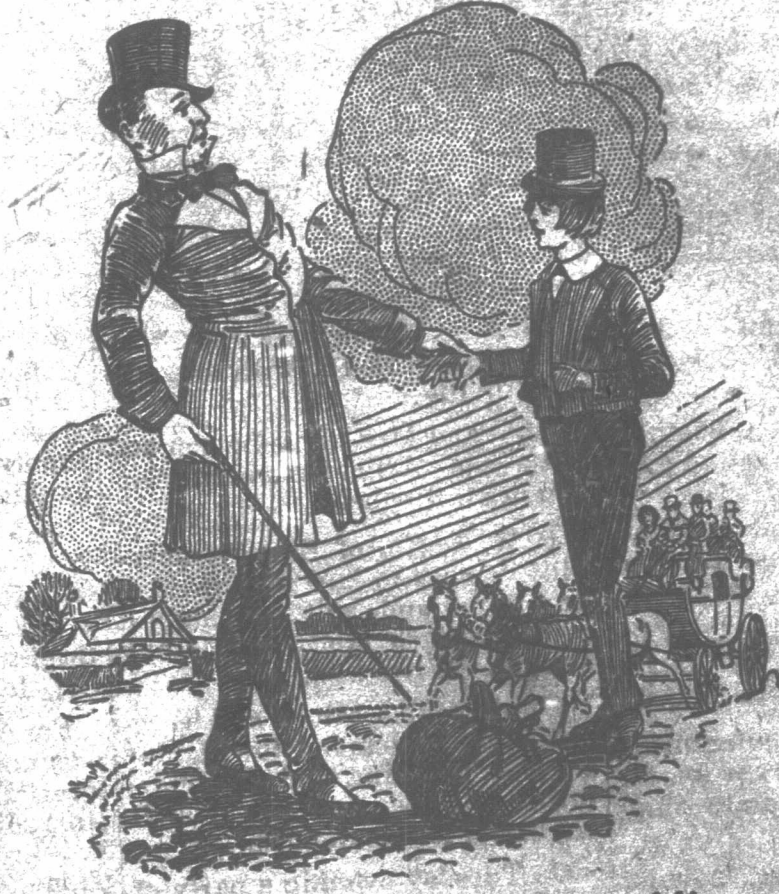

"The 'largest' did the 'freeze' in a room in the Boston Library."

"Hoffman painted most of the Prima Donna. The most famous is the Sistine Madonna."

"One of the greatest painters of all times painted beautiful pictures on the ceiling of a church somewhere in the United States, and this great artist's name was Michael Angelo."

Heavy Demand for Rubber. The world discarded 183,000 tons of automobile tires during 1916. Adding to this the large number of bicycle tires thrown away every year by their owners, it appears that at least $600,000,000 is spent every year at least $600,000,000 in the United States. To supply these with tires nearly 88,000 tons of India rubber are needed every year, and the American automobile owners pay every year as much as $200,000,000 for tires.

An Advertisement by Charles Dickens

CHARLES DICKENS is one of the world's great teachers. Here is what he has to say in one of his books:

"My other piece of advice, Copperfield," said Mr. Micawber, "you know. Annual income £20, annual expenditure £19, 10, 6—result, happiness. Annual income £20, annual expenditure £20, 0, 6—result, misery. The blossom is blighted, the leaf is withered, the God of Day goes down upon the dreary scene, and—and in short you are forever flooded. As I am."

Prudent men and women have always maintained a margin of saving.

But to-day we must go farther in our efforts to save than ever before.

To-day it is a matter of the gravest importance that each Canadian seek ways and means to economize by cutting down expenditures for unnecessary things, saving the money he spends on things he could do without, so that when the Nation needs to borrow money he will be in a position to do his full duty.

There is war-shortening work waiting for every dollar that can be saved.

If Charles Dickens were writing to Canadians to-day he would probably give us advice to this effect:

"My other piece of advice, Canadians, you know. No matter what percentage of your annual income you have previously saved, your efforts to-day should be to save more. The advantage of so doing is threefold. By the practice of economy you conserve the material and labor which must be devoted to the grim task before us; you cultivate the priceless habit of thrift; you gather more and more money to lend to the Nation for the prosecution of the war to a quick and certain victory."

It Works! Try It

Tells how to loosen a sore, tender corn so it lifts out without pain.

Good news spreads rapidly and drug stores here are kept busy dispensing freestone, the other discovery of a Chinaman, which is said to loosen any corn so it lifts out with the fingers. Ask at any pharmacy for a quarter ounce of freestone, which will cost very little, but is said to be sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

"You apply just a few drops on the tender, aching corn and instantly the soreness is relieved, and soon the corn is so softened that it lifts out without pain. It is a sticky substance which dries when applied and never inflames or even irritates the adjoining tissue."

"This discovery will prevent thousands of deaths annually from lockjaw and infection heretofore resulting from the suicidal habit of cutting corns."

GIRLS! WHITEN YOUR SKIN WITH LEMON JUICE

Make a beauty lotion for a few cents to remove tan, freckles, sallowness.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply you with three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Squeeze the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle, then put two fresh lemon white and shake well. In the orchard white and shake well. This makes a quarter pint of the very best lemon skin whitener and complexion beautifier known. Massage this fragrant, creamy lotion daily into the face, grant, arms and hands and just see how freckles, tan, sallowness, redness and roughness disappear and the skin becomes soft and clear the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless, and the beautiful results will surprise you.

HAS ALL SEASONS

Umbrella "Lent" Seems to Be Kept at Any Time.

Some Other Points, Good and Bad, Concerning One's Protector From the Sudden Shower or the Less Annoying Steady Rain.

Umbrella is a common noun, singular number, neuter gender, silk or cotton case—as the case, may be. It is wise to have yours in the "possessive" case also, if it is a good umbrella. The word "umbra" is derived from the Latin "umbra," meaning a shade or shadow. This does not mean that it is exclusively a shade from the weather, but rather that you have not a shadow of a chance to get it back should you leave the umbrella behind you anywhere.

Never leave an umbrella behind you, anyhow. Always keep it in front or beside you, where you can see it.

Umbrellas were known to the early Saxons and to many of the late ones coming home from the lodge or wet nights. They joyfully seized any "gamps" they found lying around loose in the hall stand.

In Queen Anne's reign umbrellas were assigned exclusively to the use of women, but in all subsequent rains men have been using them, too. New silk umbrellas are particularly popular with humanity—especially on wet days. The most conscientious and scrupulous of men have been known to mistake nice, new umbrellas for their own faded and decrepit ones. Sometimes, in their temporary "fits of abstraction," they don't even leave a substitute.

Some umbrellas are waterproof and others not quite so. The rain runs off the better kind and through the cheaper sort.

Nothing can be more depressing than to join a parade of umbrella holders in a heavy shower, hoping to be immune from the rain, and get deluged with umbrella juice instead.

Old and worn umbrellas may sometimes be easily recovered, but if you mislay a good silk umbrella it is very difficult to recover it. Some philosophers have observed that the umbrella has religious tendencies, because it "keeps Lent" so easily.

There are many ways of carrying the umbrella, but the most popular way—because the most sensible—is to carry it under the arm horizontally. When you do this in a crowd some are almost sure to notice it and tell you about it.

They speak feelingly, too. If they happen to get the end of your umbrella in the stomach or back, forgetting how much more serious it might be if they got it in the eye.

Umbrellas that open automatically and without warning should be prohibited. Sometimes they develop most surprising vitality at unexpected times and in inconvenient places. This is caused by a hidden spring in the handle.

They are useful novelties for the first week or so, but the novelty soon wears off and so does the spring. Then the umbrella becomes ill-mannered and aggressive, springing open impulsively, to the consternation and humiliation of the owner.

American Soldiers in Brittany. I have been told that in certain western districts American troops are billeted among the inhabitants, and I know that in their honor, municipalities have ordered the vast heaps of manure that in most Brittany villages line one side of the road removed to the fields—no small task, when it is remembered that only women, children and old men are left to take care of the farm.

Plans are being developed to improve these farm houses, many of which were built 200 or 300 years ago. The influx of Americans will thus serve to ameliorate the sanitary conditions in these districts, the people of which are rather conservative, but beloved by all France because they give us our best soldiers. Bretons and Vendéens are famous for their stubborn courage. To the former was in great measure due the credit for the first victory on the Yser, won at terrible sacrifices. Mme. Leonie Bernardini-Sjoestedt in Cartoons.

A Suitable Name.

Two farmer's wives were discussing the worries of trying to make room in the house for the hired hand, and one of them said: "I don't mind cooking the meals, if there was only some place for him to stay nights and rainy days. I've planned a building with a sitting room and bedroom, but I wouldn't know what to call it, for you couldn't call it the barracks."

Then the other woman said: "Well, if I could put up the building I wouldn't worry over a name, I'd call it 'The Hand-out.'"

Really an Old Scheme.

When music, heavenly maid, was young in these United States she was wont to the Hoover scheme, all right, as witness the title of these old-time fiddling tunes: "Shortenin' Bread," "Raise Big Taters in the Sandy Land," "Negro in the Woodpile," "Simmon Tree," "Ham and Gravy" and "Cotton-Eyed Joe."

In Book Form.

"I'm surprised to see a poet's love letters sell as well as they do." "Well, you must remember that some people have never had any of their own."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL ITEMS

Sunday saw the usual parade of millinery on the board walk, following the openings at C. M. Sherwood's Ltd., and G. E. Wilson's, on Friday and Saturday. From all appearances the H. C. of L isn't weighing very heavily on our citizens.

The farmers are all in good humor these days. This week each day saw then hauling in a load of twenty barrels of potatoes and floating homeward with a load of $60. Rather a tidy income: The long-scorning turnip has come into his own and brings one dollar per.

Mrs. A. C. Gibson spent last week in Woodstock, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gibson.

Mrs. G. G. London is spending a month with friends in Saint John.

On Friday Mrs. Jas. Clark celebrated her ninety-eighth birthday. The venerable lady looks her age not the least, is hale and hearty, and recently enjoyed an auto ride of twenty miles. Some few days ago she walked out and spent the afternoon with a neighbor, Mrs. A. C. Gibson.

Teddy Hazel, a veteran of the Boer war, and at present on the Home Defence Corps in St. John, is spending a few days' furlough at his home here.

Mrs. Wm. Reid left on Monday for the Fisher Memorial Hospital,

Woodstock, for a course of treatment there.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Buchanan was gladdened on Sunday last by a visit from the stork, leaving a lusty boy.

David and Damsy Burr made a trip to Mars Hill on Thursday.

Miss Isa Ryan of Fredericton arrived on Monday to assume charge of the millinery department of G. E. Wilson's store.

B. E. Cliff is laying the foundation for his new Potato house at the Valley station.

Geo. Wilkinson and Theodore Cain left on Thursday for an extended hunting trip on the Miramichi.

Harley C. White of Aroostook, Jct., was the guest of his aunt, Mrs. G. L. White, on Wednesday and Thursday last week.

Mrs. Fred Chaney and Miss Laura Burpee spent Sunday at Avondale, the guest of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Burpee.

Leverett London of Woodstock, a representative of the Chevrolet Motor Co., was in town on business on Friday.

Miss Velma Briggs and Mrs. Thomas Libbey of Mars Hill were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Kinney on Sunday.

"The Centreville Observer" is welcomed by the village and surrounding county, and not the least interesting portion of it are the business announcements of our progressive merchants.

Centreville Red Cross

The Centreville Red Cross branch recently shipped to the Soldiers' Comforts, Ltd., St. John, a box containing 138 pairs of socks, and to the soldiers in hospitals 25 pairs Christmas stockings. We wish to thank the following ladies and men for filling the above:

We wish to acknowledge with thanks knitted work contributed by ladies not members of the society from Red Cross yarn:

Mrs. Porter 16 pairs, Mrs. Frances West 13, Mrs. Wilmet Burrill 12, Mrs. A. J. Gibson 5, Mrs. Isaac Cronkite and E. Crouse 3 pairs each, Mrs. James O'Hara, Mrs. Edward West, Misses Annie Reed and Kathleen O'Hara, 2 pairs, Mesdames Thomas G. White, Geo. Lewis, Chas.
