

The Same... Old Sarsaparilla.

That's Ayer's. The same old sarsaparilla as it was made and sold by Dr. J. C. Ayer 60 years ago. In the laboratory it is different. These modern appliances lend speed to skill and experience. But the sarsaparilla is the same old sarsaparilla that made the record—60 years of success. Why don't we better it? Well, we're much in the condition of the Bishop and the rasperberry: "Doubtless," he said, "God might have made a better berry. But doubtless also, He never did." Why don't we better the sarsaparilla? We can't. We are using the same old plant that cured the Indians and the Spaniards. It has not been bettered. And since we make sarsaparilla compound out of sarsaparilla plant, we see no way of improvement. Of course, if we were making some secret chemical compound we might... But we're not. We're making the same old sarsaparilla to cure the same old diseases. You can tell it's the same old sarsaparilla because it works the same old cures. It's the sovereign blood purifier, and it's Ayer's.

HER ABILITIES.

Robert Burdette Sums Up What a Woman Can Do in a Unique Way

"True, a woman cannot sharpen a pencil," says Burdette, "and outside of commercial circles she cannot tie a package to make it look like anything. Save a crooked crust of cheese, but, land of miracles! see what she can do with a pin. I believe there are some women who can pin a glass knob to a door. She cannot walk so many miles around a billiard table with nothing to eat and nothing to speak of to drink, but she can walk the floor all night with a fretful baby without going sound asleep the first half hour. "She can ride 500 miles without getting into the smoking car to rest (and get away from the children). She can go to town and do a wearisome day's shopping and have a good time with three or four friends without drinking a keg of beer. She can enjoy an evening visit without smoking half a dozen cigars. She can endure the torturing distraction of a house full of children all day while her maid hand cuts them all howling to bed before he has been home an hour. "Every day she endures a dress that would make an athletic soldier, walk 500 miles, and possibly cannot walk 500 miles around a table with a crooked crust of cheese. She can walk 200 miles in ten hours up and down the crowded aisles of a druggist's store when there is a reduction sale on. She hath no skill at fence, and knoweth not how to spar, but when she has a man in the ribs at Christmas crowd, that man's whole family howls. She is afraid of a mouse, and runs from a crow, but a hawk cannot scare her. She is the salt of the church, the pepper of the choir, the life of the sewing society, and about all there is of a young ladies' school or a nursery."

THE WORST OF IT.

President Lincoln's reputation as a humorist rests largely upon the good stories he could tell, or invent, to illustrate a point. At times, however, he exhibits himself as a joker in another way, as in this anecdote narrated by Harper's Round Table: "One day Lincoln and a certain judge, an intimate friend, were bantering each other about horses, a favorite topic. Finally, Lincoln said: "Well, look here, judge, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll make a horse trade with you, only it must be on these stipulations: Neither party shall see the other's horse until the horse trade here in this court yard of the hotel, and both parties must trade horses. If either party backs out of the agreement he does so under a forfeiture of $25." "Agreed," cried the judge, and both he and Lincoln went in search of their respective animals. A crowd gathered, anticipating some fun, and when the judge returned first the laugh was uproarious. He led, or rather dragged, at the end of a halter the meanest, homiest, rib-staring, quadruped, blind in both eyes, that ever trod a turf; but presently Lincoln came along carrying over his shoulder a carpenter's horse. Then the mirth of the crowd was furious. Lincoln solemnly set his horse down, and silently surveyed the judge's animal with a comical look of infinite disgust. "Well, judge," he finally said, "this is the first time I ever got the worst of it in a horse-trade."

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

The testimony of Frank S. Emerick, of Alvinston, Ont., says South American Kidney Cure Saved His Life—It Relieves in Six Hours. "For two years I was greatly troubled with kidney disease. I suffered intense pain, and frequently was unable to work. I doctored at intervals, but got little or no relief. I began to grow worse, and the pains were frequent and intense. About this time I saw South American Kidney Cure advertised as a speedy relief for all kidney troubles. I purchased a bottle, and it gave me wonderful relief in a few hours. I improved steadily, and after taking four bottles I am completely cured. I consider it worth its weight in gold, for it assuredly saved my life." For sale by C. McCallum and B. A. Mitchell.

TORN BY A HOG.

Coldwater, Mich., July 2.—An infant son of George Lankman of Grand, was left in the house asleep, with the doors securely fastened. The little one did not burp as usual in the usual places, but he crawled out, got into an orchard, and was nearly killed by a vicious hog before his grandmother could rescue him. One arm and leg were broken, and an ugly gash torn across the forehead. He may recover.

Stearns' Lament Cures La Grippe.

Stearns' Lament Cures La Grippe. The London players were guilty of ungentlemanly conduct. Several of them, including prominently Gunther, Schriest, Sippl and Hickey, were untrusting in their efforts to quell the riot which had been stirred up by Ward's attempt to assault Mr. Lyndon at the close of the game, and to their timely interference is probably due the fact that the injury escaped without serious bodily injury. "The Hams and Holman must be given to understand that a repetition of yesterday's scenes will not be permitted. It is the kind of work which disgraces respectable people with the grand game of baseball, and without the support of respectable people the game cannot hope to thrive in Canada. "If London can't lose without attempting to commit a murder, they should get out of the business. "The Hams on their next trip to London will be accompanied by a detachment of the Thirteenth Regiment under arms. "And it all happened in London, the good and the just. "London should hereafter be known as the 'home of the hoodlum.' "The ladies of London need fixing. There is no authority to justify an attempt to jab out a defenseless man's eyes with the business end of a parasol as ladylike conduct. THIS AFTERNOON. The London and St. Thomas teams play an exhibition game of ball on Teasdale Park this afternoon, commencing at 2:30 o'clock. Andy Reid, the London's new catcher, will be behind the bat. London, Saturday, July 3, 1897.

A Distinguished Visitor.
Mr. H. Buxton Forman, the British commissioner to the postal congress recently held at Washington, arrived in London last night, and is the guest of Dr. R. M. Bucke, superintendent of the Asylum for the Insane. Mr. Forman is a writer of ability, and is a noted expositor of modern poets and poetry. His greatest work is an edition of Percy Bysshe Shelley's works in eight volumes, with a preface, and of John Keats' poems in four volumes. He has written several biographical sketches of Walt Whitman for encyclopedias, besides various articles on "the good gray poet" for the magazine. Mr.
Forman's library is exceedingly well stored with the first and best editions of Browning, Byron, Coleridge, Longfellow, Morris, Arnold, Whitman, Tennyson and other notable poets, who have helped to make the Victorian age noteworthy. At the postal congress, from which Mr. Forman has just come, an effort was made to have a stamp provided that would be available in every land, but on account of the various monetary standards this was not found to be now practicable. An effort will, however, be made to provide uniform colors for postage stamps. The postal tariff was considerably diminished by the graduated scale adopted for letters. The day may not be far distant when we will have an international penny post for the world. Britain may ask the next postal congress to be permitted to set the example by providing for penny postage with her colony.

A Leading London Financial Institution.

One of the best known of London's sound financial institutions is the Canadian Savings and Loan Company, the annual report of which is printed for the information of Advertiser readers in another column of this journal. The report shows steady progress and careful management of the resources at the command of directors. After paying a dividend of 6 per cent, there remained a net profit of $12,079 21, of which $5,000 was added to the reserve fund, which now amounts to the large sum of $210,000, or 23 per cent of the subscribed capital of the company.
The repayment of principal and interest has been satisfactory, and the deposits in the savings bank have been well sustained. The company has very little real estate on hand, and some of the sales made during the year realized amounts exceeding what was anticipated. Mr. M. H. Rowland, an experienced employe of the company, who acted as manager during the illness of the late Mr. Blinn, has been appointed to the position vacated by that estimable citizen. The new manager is an able financier whose services to the stockholders and to their patrons are certain to deserve appreciation.

Increase of Insect Pests.

If it is true, as some old-time agriculturists assert, that the farmers of North America have in these later days to wrestle with many varieties of insect pests that were almost unknown to the early settlers, it is probable that inquiry will reveal that the disadvantages thus caused arise from the sinners in the human race. Why is it that the chinch bug, the clover mite, the elm tree blight, the potato bug, the San Jose scale, are to be found in greater or less numbers, in almost every state of the neighboring republic? Why is it that some of these pests are finding their way into the thickly-populated portions of Canada? Investigators say that the increase of these insects can be pretty clearly traced to the wanton destruction of birds. Every year until the present season brought the fashion of trimming headgear with artificial flowers and vegetables, something like 200,000 birds were slaughtered to make so-called ornaments for women's hats and bonnets. Such slaughter for a purpose so indefensible might well bring upon a community an Egyptian plague. Careful students assert that in exact proportion as the birds which used to throng our trees and meadows are killed off, in that proportion the insect plague increases. It is a clear case of cause and effect. There is a remedy, which has been adopted by a young woman school teacher, as chronicled in the Breeders' Gazette:
"She has on that day a programme full of birds, poetry and song. The house is crowded with interested parents and children, and in that neighborhood everybody protects birds. The boys now study the nature of birds, where their nests, and are the friends of every songster. If every school in the land had such a teacher, it would be but a few years until public sentiment was enlightened and elevated so that the destructive agents would be checked."

We are proud to say that in more than one school of this city there are teachers who not only instruct their pupils in the dry and often unattractive subjects found in the curriculum, but who find spare moments to teach the children the wondrous world of destrorying birds or ill-using the brute creation in any way. Where these humanizing little talks are given, it is noteworthy that the pupils develop a finer moral nature and exhibit more consideration for the welfare of humanity as well as of brute life. The Insectivorous birds must be increased, and as carefully looked after as any other of the farmer's aids to making a living.

The Great Anglican Gathering.

The British metropolis is at present the scene of the fourth conference of bishops of the Anglican Church. It is noteworthy that the first federal council of the Episcopacy was held at Lambeth Palace on Sept. 24, 1867, and was assembled at the instance of the Anglican Church of Canada. At a provincial synod held in this country in 1865, on the motion of the Bishop of Ontario, it was agreed that the Archbishop of Canterbury be required to devise some means "by which the members of our Anglican communions in all quarters of the world should have a share in the deliberations for her welfare and be permitted to have a representation in one general council of her members gathered from every land." In the next year a committee of the Convocation of Canterbury reported on the Canadian address, and in 1867 the Archbishop of Canterbury addressed to the bishops of the world, then 144 in number, a letter summoning them to conference at his palace in London. This Episcopal Federation really had its origin in the Bishop Colenso's trouble in Natal, and when the first conference assembled the Bishop of Vermont moved that the Natal bishop be excommunicated, but the archbishop held that the motion was out of order. Finally, however, the conference resolved, "that in the judgment of the bishops here assembled the whole Anglican communion is deeply injured by the present condition of the Church of Natal." From the first these conferences, held about every ten years, have been a pronounced success. The attendance shows how the church has widened her influence and increased her numbers in the last third of a century. In 1867, there were 144 Anglican bishops, and 76 attended the conference. In 1878 there were 173 bishops, and 108 attended. In 1888 the number of bishops had risen to 209, and of these 146 participated. For the conference now being held, chosen a year in advance to enable the bishops to take part in the celebration of the 1,300th anniversary of the landing of Saint Augustine, 250 invitations were issued and over 200 were accepted. United conferences of this kind, taken part in by Anglican bishops from every part of the British empire and the neighboring republic, cannot fail to be of great value to the denomination.

Reciprocity in the States.

The following is the full text of the reciprocity provision of the United States tariff bill agreed upon by the senate committee on finance, and now pending in the senate:
"That whenever the president of the United States, with a view to secure reciprocal trade with foreign countries, shall within the period of two years from and after the passage of this act, enter into commercial treaty or treaties with any other country or countries concerning the admission into any such country or countries of the goods, wares and merchandise of the United States, and their use and disposition therein, deemed to be for the interests of the United States, and in such treaty or treaties, in consideration of the advantages accruing to the United States therefrom, shall provide for the reduction during a specified period not exceeding five years of such goods, wares and merchandise, some of which as may be designated therein of the country or countries with which such treaty or treaties shall be made, or shall provide for the transfer during such period from the dutiable list of such act to the free list thereof of such goods, wares and merchandise, and merchandise now included in said free list as may be designated therein; and when any such treaty shall have been duly ratified and public proclamation made accordingly, then and thereafter the duties which shall be collected by the United States upon any of the designated goods, wares and merchandise from the foreign country with which such treaty has been made shall during the period provided for, be the duties specified and provided for in such treaty and none other."

It may or may not happen that, under this provision, if finally passed, a limited reciprocity treaty may be arranged between Canada and the United States. But if our neighbors, in their restrictive humor, do not desire greater freedom to trade with us, well and good. It is their right to choose.
Canadians will not sit down in dejection. They are, as the trade returns indicate, vastly increasing their trade elsewhere, not only to their own benefit, but to the profit of those who trade with them. Nobody either sells or buys in any market who believes the transaction to be unprofitable to him.

"Current History" (Buffalo: Garretson, Cox & Co.) for the first quarter of 1897, contains 276 closely-printed pages.
Queen Victoria is the subject of the leading article. Treaties and Cuba, international arbitration and the tariff question are some of the important topics of the quarter. This magazine is one of the most useful of works for a handy shelf in a library.

In the Century for July the "featured" articles are John C. Van Dyke's study of Hogarth, illustrated by Timothy Cole, who in his illustrations begins a new series of his wood engravings; and H. W. Seton-Karr's account of hunting big game in Africa and India. But there are many other attractive articles in the number to name which would be practically to reprint the table of contents. The number is one of great interest.

UNCLE EBEN'S PHILOSOPHY.

[Washington Star.]
"Some folks," said Uncle Eben, "ain't satisfied with meen't trouble half way.
Dey hangs on 'er it. Even when or hot day is done pas' dey won't talk bout nuffa 'cep'tin' how uncomf'ablel' 'twas befo' it set cool."

WAITING.
She is waiting on the doorstep with a wistful, pleading eye For someone who has told her he was coming by and by And her sad, sweet face with welcoming smile grows radiant in a trice As she hears the loitering footsteps of the man who brings the ice.

A DELICATE REMONSTRANCE.
"When I get to be a man," said the boy who has a good memory for phrases, "I'm going to strive to cultivate an unselfish nature."
"That's right," replied his father.
"Have you been going to go about it?"
"Well, in the first place, if I have any little boys I'll let them shoot their own fireworks instead of telling them they must let me do it or fear they will hurt themselves."

THE MARRIAGE QUESTION.
[Louisville Courier-Journal.]
"Are men marrying less?" asks a Boston contemporary. Some of them are. The late Shah of Persia had 1,720 wives, but his successor has only 60.

A good many marriages are made for just this reason: The man wants somebody to cook and sew for him, and the woman wants a home. So they enter upon a matrimonial contract, regarding it merely as a commercial bargain. When it is too late they find the partnership irksome because it imposes limitations and responsibilities beyond those of a mere business agreement.

CANADA'S STRONG MAN.

Mr. Laurier is undoubtedly the strong man amongst the colonial premiers now our guests. Although famous as an orator and a maker of phrases, he has kept his head much better than some of his colleagues and refuses to be lured into saying a word more than he means to say. England is strong in Canada today, as he told us at Liverpool in 1895, and he has not found a governor strong enough to break through official red tape and recognize the local interests, local aspirations. And the time is approaching, as he pointed out, when the Canadian and Australasian, having developed a sense of their own independence, will demand as of right their share in that "broader citizenship" which Mr. Laurier developed this idea fairly to the Liverpool audience off its feet, and showed that, properly put, there is nothing in the idea of Devolution, Federation or Home Rule all round to frighten the most rigid English Tories."

THE NOISE NUISANCE IN LONDON

[London Truth.] Dwellers in towns must of course put up with a certain amount of noise at all hours. But there are necessary and unnecessary noises. The church bell belongs to the latter class. It is absurd to say that there is in these days any necessity whatever for ringing a bell to announce the hour of worship. If people want to go to church they will go whether the bell chimes or not. The bells do not want to go all the bells in creation will not fetch them. The theaters and music halls do not want to be disturbed by performance, and their managers are quite as good judges as the clergy of the best way to annoy the public.
Chiming clocks, again, are quite unnecessary in the middle of the night.
In busy times they are a nuisance.
The amount of use in the daytime, although I suspect that the chiming clock, like the bell for church service, exceeds five years of the time when there was only one clock in a town or village, and that generally at the church.
The bells for the Liverpool audience had its origin in the time when there was only one clock in a town or village, and that generally at the church.

SUSTAINS SENATOR MILLS' VIEW.

[Bystander in Toronto Sun.]
The proposal that if the government would not give way on the Intercon-tional extension question, the Senate should throw out the supplies, has raised more the question what its constitutional. In England about 40 years ago, the Lords threw out a bill which had been passed by the Commons in the interest of the cheap newspaper press, repealing the duty on paper. The Lords, however, in a controversy about the constitutional principle, with a grand display of political metaphysics, held the bill unconstitutional. The Lords to originate a bill; it was unconstitutional for them to amend a money bill; was it unconstitutional for them to throw out a bill repealing a tax, thereby in fact continuing or re-imposing the tax upon the people? The speaker, Mr. Denison, had privately asked his opinion, replied that there was no mystery, and no ground for metaphysical speculation about the matter. The Lords, he said, cannot originate a money bill, because the bill would have to be passed by the Commons who would throw it out; they cannot amend a money bill, because it would go back to the Commons, who would disagree to the amendment; they can throw out a bill repealing a tax, because there would be an end.

TO DEDICATE LIPS TO GOD.

Clergymen Take Part in a Novel Consecration Scene in Old Orchard, Me.

Old Orchard, Me., July 3.—At the second advent camp meeting, Rev.
Miles Grant, of Boston, said the trouble today in society and the church is that men form and express too hasty opinions regarding the acts of others.
" I have many times harshly judged those who, after all, were not half as guilty as I," said Mr. Grant.
Then Rev. Mr. Cross suggested that all present, ministers with the rest, go forward to the penitent form and there dedicate their ears and lips, the ears that they might not listen to scandal, and the lips that the might not speak evil, to God. Mr. Grant was the first to go forward. Others followed, until probably two-thirds of all present were kneeling together.

Cataract Is Easily Cured by this proper treatment. Many of the remedies advertised, while apparently doing good at first, result in positive harm in the end. They are mere astringents, checking the discharge for the time being, throwing it back into the system to affect the delicate organs of sight, taste and hearing.

10 days free trial treatment has been the standing offer for years in England, in connection with Dr. Ray's Cataract Cure by inhalation. The successful treatment of an eminent specialist. A scientific home treatment that gets at the cause and removes it and all the awful results. Thousands of cures when others had failed warrant the offer of trial treatment first.

Merit Made Hood's Sarsaparilla. That is just the truth about Hood's Sarsaparilla. We know it possesses merit because it cures, not once or twice or a hundred times, but in thousands and thousands of cases.

Commercial. THE EXPORT TRADE IN OATS. There has been an active inquiry for oats for export to England, and sales of considerable quantities have been made during the past few days at 27 1/2 to 28 1/2 for stock and at 27 1/2 to 28 1/2 afloat.

THE OIL MARKET. PETROLIA. Montreal, July 2.—Oil opened and closed at 41.00. NEW YORK. New York, July 2.—Petroleum—Pennsylvania crude steady; Aug. 85c bid; sales none.

THE WHEAT OUTLOOK. Macy & Penland, Wall Street, New York, write to the advertiser in an amount of visible and of that afloat to the United Kingdom and continent combined, amounting barely to the supply for the United States and Europe for about 30 days, even in a hand to mouth way.

Live Stock Markets. Toronto, Ont., July 2.—Trade was only fair at the Toronto cattle market today. The receipts were pretty heavy, being 55 cars, including 1,000 hogs, 700 sheep and lambs, 25 calves, and 20 milch cows and springers.

sheep and lambs, 25 calves, and 20 milch cows and springers. The buying of cattle for Montreal and Buffalo was slow, about 14 cars of butchers' cattle being taken for Montreal, and 22 cars of stockers to Buffalo.

Export Cattle—Trade is quiet, and prices are unchanged. Cables continue weak, there being a lot of American cattle on the British market. The ruling prices paid here were 23c to 45c per lb. and for some extra 45c to 50c per lb.

Butchers' Cattle—There were very few choices offered and fair prices were obtained for the best. The supply of grassers was large, and that gives the market a weak tone, as it helps to depress the price of stall-fed cattle.

Sheep—There was a fair demand for export; prices ruled from 2c to 2 1/2c for ordinary, and 2 1/2c for extra choice ewes and wethers. Bucks ruled at 2 1/2c to 3c.

Lambs—Good ones are wanted and the market is firm, $3 to $3 50 each. A few extra choice bring $3 75. Calves—Steady at $4 to $6 each. Good ones are wanted. Occasionally an extra choice veal sold at $7. Some of the calves were sold for whatever they would fetch.

Hogs—Offerings are fair and the market was steady at 5 1/2c for selections; light fat, 5c; thick fat, 10c plentiful and not wanted; the sale of 100 to $4.80. Sows firm at 3 1/2c to 3 3/4c. Steers—2 to 2 1/2c. Stores are not wanted.

New York, July 2.—Receipts—Receipts, 2,432; 12 cars on sale; firm for all grades; rough stut shade higher; mixed opened 25c lower; 25c to 30c; ovens, 32 1/2 to 34 for poor to good; cows and bulls, $2 25 to $3 25. Cables quiet. American steers at 10 1/2c to 11c; refrigerator beef, $25 to $30 per lb. Export today was 300 tons; tomorrow, 1,841 cattle and 413 quarters.

East Buffalo, N. Y., July 2.—Cattle—Receipts, 2 cars; prices were not as strong as those prevailing at the opening of the week or on sales made since Monday, the bulk of the supply being cow and heifer stock.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 8,543; 35 sheep on sale. Sheep dull and lower; lambs opened 25c lower; 25c to 30c; 50c lower; five and a half cars unsold; sheep, poor to good, $3 50 to $3 75; 3 cars choice, $4.

Hogs—Receipts, 3,212; 13 cars on sale; market lower at 4 1/2 to $4 15. EAST BUFFALO. East Buffalo, N. Y., July 2.—Cattle—Receipts, 2 cars; prices were not as strong as those prevailing at the opening of the week or on sales made since Monday, the bulk of the supply being cow and heifer stock.

Constant communications are passing between the Indian and home governments.

Bombay, July 3.—The assassins of the late Maharaja of Gaekeshind, who were shot and killed by concealed natives while leaving the governor's reception at Gaekeshind, on the evening of the 21st inst., were generally believed, and that a rebellion of unpleasant proportions may be threatening. Constant communications are passing between the Indian and home governments.

Calcutta, July 2.—The rioting has ended, a compromise on the plague measures having been arranged between the British and the natives, whereupon the disturbances immediately ceased. The rioting arose out of the British refusal to pay for certain so-called mosques, built by the Mohammedans of the Mohammedan religion, on ground believed to be sacred.

checked the impulse and sank back again in his chair. Ten minutes later Geraldine came back in her traveling dress, and found her husband in the position in which she had left him.

"The carriage is round, Philip—wake up, my poor boy! You will soon be all right when I get away from here."

"No, Geraldine! I want no help to stand on the lounge or arm chair, and no company. I must go alone."

"Geraldine, I have never found anything better than your Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for pains in the stomach."

"Nothing Better." Miss Emily Craig, Almonte, Ont., says: "I have never found anything better than your Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for pains in the stomach."

"What do I care? What do I care for the loss of a man who is dead, and whose name is not on my name?"

"No, but a man may die of a bullet through him. The man Otway, who is dead, was shot in the back as I sat in the sitting-room at the farm yesterday, mistaking me for James."

"I was an accident," gasped the other, in a weak, hoarse voice, as he reeled against an armchair, and James helped him to place himself in it.

"The last word was formed on his lips, but not uttered, for speech had left him; and the next moment, with one long, struggling, gasping breath, 'he lay dead in his bed.'"

That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cure When Other Medicines Fail - What They Have Done for Others They Will Do for You.

No remedy of modern times has offered more, or stronger proof, of its sterling merit than has Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The cures are not those of people in foreign lands, but from all parts of our own country, and the statements made are easily verified by everyone in the vicinity in which the cures were reported.

"Nothing will make me shrink from you now, Philip," she whispered, timidly, as her clasped hands trembled on her arm.

"Wait till you hear what I have done. I have killed James Otway."

"As he had expected, there was only one James Otway for her. She shuddered from head to foot, but her fingers, though they trembled on her arm, did not relax their clasp."

"Well," said he, harshly, "Have you forgotten the devotion for which you have sacrificed your life for him? You should dare to touch a hair of his head!"

"Philip, Philip, I am sorry—you must forget them! You are hiding something from me; you did not mean to do it—I am sure of that. I have learned to trust you; trust me, too, and tell me what you mean."

"He tried to speak, but could not; she felt that she was trembling violently, and she saw the old fire rekindle in his eyes. After a minute's silence, he said: 'You are right; it was an accident. But I cannot prove it. We were alone together, and I shall have to fly from the police.'"

"Will you? When?" "To-day—now?" "Where shall we go?" she whispered, starting to her feet.

"Yes, yes, I will go with you, of course; and I will nurse you and devote myself to you, and try to make you forget," said she, hurriedly.

"Do you mean it? he asked, looking steadily up in her face, and saying, 'Before heaven, I do!'"

"Then go, we have no time to lose. Get ready for the journey as quickly as you can, and come back here to fetch me."

"I will and I will order the carriage." "Touch the bell; I will see to that. Go—make haste!"

He had grown feverishly impatient; but as she left him, he suddenly stretched out his arms as if to detain her; she was hurrying to the door, however, and did not see him, and he

JOHNNY'S EQUIVOCAL SPEECH

A Public Utterance That Left Room for Doubt as to Where He Was At.

[Chicago Daily Tribune.] A small orator made his debut in front of a large audience at a west-side club-house the other night, and it is safe to predict that he will not follow further in the footsteps of Demosthenes on his recent experience.

He was at. "Now, Johnny," said the mother, "be sure you make a nice bow."

"Yes, I will," said Johnny, with a swager. "And let your hands hang easily by your sides, and don't let your father strike an attitude."

"Of course," assented Johnny. "Are you sure you know your piece?"

asked his sister, anxious to have him succeed. "I wish I had a little dog."

"To pat him on the head."

"That's right," he'd do splendidly," remarked his father. "You'll go on in a minute now, and we must get into our seats. Don't you get scared a bit, Johnny."

"Which scared?" asked Johnny, who began to feel a sinking of the knees, while his heart seemed to rise until it was in his mouth, and then some body was pushing him forward, and he saw a lot of faces, not one of which he had ever seen before, and it was lighter than any electric searchlight he had ever seen.

"Speak up, now," said the manager of the entertainment. "Make your bow and say your piece."

Johnny made his bow and the audience applauded, but he had a difficulty in finding his tongue, which seemed lost in the roof of his mouth. His hands hung down as his father had suggested, making him look like a little wooden man, and when he forgot and stuffed them into his pockets the audience again applauded. The manager took that opportunity of a stage whisper:

"Speak up, now," and he began with the first line. Then Johnny said in a strange, hoarse voice:

"I wish I had a little pat to do him on the dog."

Roars of laughter and frantic demonstrations on the part of Johnny's family.

He began again: "I wish I had a little pat to do him on the dog."

His father rose in his seat, but this only added to Johnny's confusion.

Again the hoarse voice essayed: "I wish I had a little dog."

Then a weary family took Johnny by the hand and led him home.

SUNDAY, JULY 4.

BREAKFAST—Red and white currants. Farina molds, sugar and cream. Sliced tomatoes (iced). Fried perch. Muffins. Coffee.

LUNCHEON—Sardine sandwiches. French pickles. Snowballs. Red raspberries. Iced tea.

DINNER—Barley soup. Roast lamb, mint sauce. New potatoes. Telephone peas. Cucumber fritters. Cherry roll, fruit sauce. After-dinner coffee.

Cut out these recipes and paste them in a scrap-book.

Farina Molds—Mix three tablespoonfuls of farina with three-quarters teaspoonful of salt and a half cupful of milk. Heat the milk to a boil. Heat the rest of the milk with a pint of water till they boil and stir in the farina. Add one-half cupful of sugar, pour into jelly glasses, filling each half full, and stand on ice over night. Serve in the morning with cream and sugar.

French Pickles—Slice in an earthen jar one peck of green tomatoes, six large onions, and pour over them one cup of salt. Let stand 24 hours and drain. Mix three cups of vinegar, three pounds of sugar, one-fourth of a pound of white mustard seed, one teaspoonful of cayenne, one of ginger, two of mustard, one of cayenne pepper, and cook slowly for fifteen minutes.

Snowballs—Cream one-half cupful of butter, add one cupful of fine granulated sugar, beat well; mix two level teaspoons of baking powder with two cups of flour; add alternately with one-half cupful of milk; beat the whites of four eggs very stiff and add lightly. Fill buttered cups half full and steam half an hour; roll in powdered sugar. The quantity will be sufficient for Sunday's tea as well.

Cucumber Fritters—Peel and grate three full-grown, tender cucumbers. Press all the juice from the pulp and add to two cups of the pulp half a cup of cream, a cup of flour, one tablespoonful of melted butter, a level teaspoonful of salt and half a teaspoonful of white pepper. Beat four eggs, yolks and whites separately, very light, and add to the batter, which should be very thick. Have ready a kettle of boiling cotons and drop in one large spoonful at a time, removing as soon as crisp and brown. Serve with mayonnaise dressing, which they very much resemble.

Raspberry and Red Currant Tart—When fruit is so cheap and plentiful as it is just now, fruit pies always taste so much nicer made and baked in a deep pie dish (English fashion). There is always sure to be some raspberries left over from luncheon; put a layer of these at the bottom of the pie dish, then a layer of red currants cleaned and washed, then raspberries, and proceed till your dish is full (it will take about three pints of fruit to make one pie). Sprinkle over one-half cupful of sugar and one-half cupful water, put a thin layer of pie crust round the edge, then put on your top crust, brush over with a little water and sift a little granulated sugar on the top. Bake in moderate oven about 30 minutes; the sugar makes it have a nice frosted look; only be careful you watch it after it is in the oven so that it does not burn.

Contractor Grant Lost Money on His Job But Was Late.

The Sewer Committee Unable to Decide Whether or Not They Should Enforce the Penalty for Overtime—Section "K" Let.

A deadlock blocked proceedings at the meeting of the special sewer committee last night, when the account of Contractor Grant was presented for the balance due on the construction of the Evergreen avenue sewer. His contract holds him liable for a penalty of $10 per day overtime. Aid. Carrothers and Nukins held that a rule was now being set which would govern future contractors, but when the latter arrived Mr. Cummings was beyond human aid. He was unconscious the greater part of the time after going to the hotel, and the last words he spoke in his delirium were: "O Lord, prepare a coffin for me."

The deceased had been employed at Laidlaw & Watson's shoe factory since its establishment, and was highly esteemed both by employers and employees. He was a man of sterling character.

A sad circumstance connected with his death is that he leaves a wife and two young children at Dornoch, a village about nine miles north of Ingersoll. Mrs. Cummings was sent a telegram early last night, asking her to come to London, and a short time afterwards this message was followed by another conveying the sad intelligence that Mr. Cummings was dead. Mrs. Cummings was engaged in packing up, when she was again sent for, and administered more morphine, as another convulsion had set in. About 6 p.m. Mr. Cummings again attacked, and the doctor administered chloroform. Mr. Burke noticed the sick man sink rapidly, and at 8:30 telephoned for a physician, who arrived at 9:30. Mr. Cummings was beyond human aid. He was unconscious the greater part of the time after going to the hotel, and the last words he spoke in his delirium were: "O Lord, prepare a coffin for me."

Following was the division: Yeas—Aid. Carrothers, Nukins and Johnston. Nays—Ald. Parnell, Cooper, and the mayor.

The matter will come before the next meeting of the committee.

The contract for constructing section K of the new sewers was awarded to Oakley & Holmes, of Toronto, at $14,750.

Tenders had been previously opened for the construction of this section, but were so high the committee decided to call again. Three tenders were received on the first occasion, and three the second, the latter all being from new firms. The six tenders were as follows: the first batch being given first: W. F. Grant & Co., Toronto, $17,645; A. Burnett & Son, city, $19,225; Geo. D. Cameron & Co., city, $18,990; Clark & Connolly, Toronto, $18,928; Harding & Leathorne, city, $18,890; Oakley & Holmes, Toronto, $7,750. City engineer's estimate, $12,700.

The committee were unanimous in awarding the contract to the lowest tenderers, who are stated to be a reliable firm, and have for sureties J. G. Orchard and J. W. Cawree.

A. Burnett & Son asked for payment for the River street overflow, but as they had been six or seven days behind the agreed time, at $5 per day, Aid. Carrothers moved to inflict the penalty in this case also.

The committee decided to pay $400 on account, and left the question of penalty over for a future meeting.

The city engineer reported that Contractor Grant had signed his contract for the construction of section J and that he proposed beginning work on Monday next.

Samuel Baker was appointed inspector, and that he proposed beginning work in next Thursday.

Death Game Suddenly

To Mr. James Cummings, Foreman for Laidlaw & Watson.

Apoplexy the Supposed Cause—Seized Without Warning.

Sad and sudden was the death of James Cummings, late foreman of Laidlaw & Watson's shoe factory. Yesterday Mr. Cummings went to work as usual, and at noon ate heartily. About 1:30 he left his work, complaining of pains in his head, and was assisted to the Fraser House, where he had lived for some time, by Mr. Laidlaw. As the time went on the pain gradually increased, and Mr. Cummings tried every means to obtain relief. Mr. L. W. Burke, who met him at the door, advised him to get a doctor. Mr. Cummings went into a convulsion, and Mr. Burke at once telephoned for Dr. Hodge, who, upon arrival, administered a hypodermic injection of morphine. Mr. Burke kept watch over the sick man, and about four o'clock the doctor was again sent for, and administered more morphine, as another convulsion had set in. About 6 p.m. Mr. Cummings again attacked, and the doctor administered chloroform. Mr. Burke noticed the sick man sink rapidly, and at 8:30 telephoned for a physician, who arrived at 9:30. Mr. Cummings was beyond human aid. He was unconscious the greater part of the time after going to the hotel, and the last words he spoke in his delirium were: "O Lord, prepare a coffin for me."

The Bicycle in Japan.

Oddities Witnessed by an English-Speaking Wheelman.

Where Everybody Goes in the Middle of the Road.

By George William Knox, D.D., in The Independent.

Foreigners in Japan catch something of the native spirit and are receptive of all new things. Besides, the foreign colony constantly receives as pilgrims from all people that on earth do dwell, each bringing new enthusiasm for the latest thing at home. And so it happens that the "Settlements" show as large a variety of new social customs, religious opinions, scientific theories, and all sorts and conditions of men to the acre, as any portion of the earth's surface. No one need fear being behind the times because he lives in far Japan.

Of course, in this athletic age, that holds true to sports. Indeed, before there was a tennis court in the United States Yokohama was intent on singles, doubles, mixed doubles and the championship. No wonder, then, that the bicycle made early appearance, and that as soon as the "safety" was a success we had a club euphemistically named Taikai. The club was cosmopolitan, with members Russian, French, English, American and, in my memory serves, German. Shows that there were runs, meets and records. The latter would cut small figure in this field of the modern, but the records were English in make (I fancy there were as yet none American), weighing 40 pounds or more, with small wheels, tires, mud guards and brakes. But as even cushion tires were still undreamed of, no later wheels were used, and more easily. And our highest gear was 64.

Tokyo was agog. When a halt was made, for never so short a moment, the street filled with an eager throng, and all eyes were turned to the stranger on his wheels. The Englishman who had just been riding his bicycle made early appearance, and that as soon as the "safety" was a success we had a club euphemistically named Taikai. The latter would cut small figure in this field of the modern, but the records were English in make (I fancy there were as yet none American), weighing 40 pounds or more, with small wheels, tires, mud guards and brakes. But as even cushion tires were still undreamed of, no later wheels were used, and more easily. And our highest gear was 64.

When a halt was made, for never so short a moment, the street filled with an eager throng, and all eyes were turned to the stranger on his wheels. The Englishman who had just been riding his bicycle made early appearance, and that as soon as the "safety" was a success we had a club euphemistically named Taikai. The club was cosmopolitan, with members Russian, French, English, American and, in my memory serves, German. Shows that there were runs, meets and records. ing her finger bathed by her husband, while the prisoner was being led down in the adjoining room. The prosecutor was removed to the hospital, and the prisoner to the police station. Mr. Vaughan—Why, your wife the witness box, said that she did not wish to proceed with the case. The prosecutor—Oh, sir, he's my youngest brother, and I'm his youngest sister. He's very fond of me, very fond, indeed—and I think that's the way he always goes for me when he's in drink. (Laughter.) Mr. Vaughan—That seems to me a very extraordinary way of showing his affection. (Renewed laughter.) The prosecutor—Yes, but he's kind to me all the same. Mr. Vaughan—But did he not bite your finger? The prosecutor—Yes. Mr. Vaughan—And did he not bite it badly? The prosecutor—Yes, but he does love me, and I love him. He would not have done it if he did not love me. (Laughter.) Mr. Vaughan—All I can say is that he shows his affection for you in a very peculiar manner. I wonder what he would do if he disliked you. The prosecutor—Oh, sir, he loves me dearly! Eventually the prisoner was discharged on his promising not to go near his sister's house.

ACCORDING to the new Chicago Directory there are 7,273 attorneys-at-law in that city. It would be interesting to know if the demand approximates the supply.

The Progress of Religious Thought.

In a remarkably lucid and comprehensive article in the New York Independent of June 17, Prof. Fairbairn, of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., has written in the Victorian Era. The reign has been a period of great activity in religious thought. The religious movements are three, and they are all pointing towards a common end, and in the midst of which there is a conflict with each other, but they are now showing signs of uniting their forces. "and in the midst of which there is a conflict with each other, but they are now showing signs of uniting their forces." This great tendency to a common end, common duty, common interest, and common ideal, is an endowment of almost infinite promise. The three characteristics of these tendencies are: the mystical, the transcendental, and the practical. Each has had its rise in the few years preceding the religious renaissance. Prof. Fairbairn traces the tendency to a common end to the poet and novelist Scott, for he, more than any single person, contributed to the formation of the mediaevalism which has had its high priests in the Oxford Tractarians. To a majority of the admirers of Scott this will be undoubtedly an evidence of the influence of the mystical, the transcendental, and the practical ideal tendency is traced to Coleridge; and the critical and historical to the members of the English Historical Society.

The Deacon's Wife Let Him Know in Emphatic Terms What to Expect From Her.

Old Deacon Stubbs rested his elbows on the rail fence and watched the wreaths of smoke that arose from his wince pipe. But he was shyly raised his eyes every few moments and glanced fondly at a plump little woman who was busily engaged in picking over the matter he put up. Erected to the memory of a few friends. To forget 20 shillings for every default, 5 shillings to the poor man's house on Monday and Whitsunday, and 10 shillings to the use of the town."

A NEW ISLAND

Discovered in the Mid-Atlantic.

When it was announced a few weeks ago that the captain of an English ship had discovered in mid-Atlantic a hitherto uncharted islet, the universal inclination in maritime circles was to laugh at the report and to jeer at the captain who could mistake an overturned wreck for a rock. Now people are not quite so sure that the little island does not exist, for its discoverer has answered his critics with such exact details of what he saw, and has denied so indignantly that he could have been deceived, that now there is a tendency towards believing him. The rock was sighted early in May last, from the ship Crompton, in calm weather and broad daylight, close at hand. It was seen by several of the crew, and so sure were they all of its character that they did not deem it necessary to lower anchor and attempt a landing. The position was carefully taken as latitude 42 degrees north, longitude 37 degrees 20 minutes west, or, translated to the continent, it would be about 20 miles northwest of the Azores, and 700 miles east of Newfoundland. This is a point on the ocean coast of the Atlantic regular highways, and one where a rock of that kind, rising only a few inches above the surface, might long remain unknown except to those who stop upon it in a storm. They, for obvious reasons, would never bring to shore the news of its existence, and the discoverer the islet would be invisible, and in calm, its dripping sides, partly overgrown with seaweed, and partly bare, for a derelict. Similar rocks in some more frequent traversed have been found in very recent times, notably one near the Azores, the English coast, and in 1876 a tiny island, sighted directly in the route of steamers approaching Queenstown from the Azores, by the admiralty surveyors till several years later. In the interval they had decided it as a rock. The Crompton's find, if it is a rock, is a discovery of many a dark and dismal tragedy, like the loss of the Naronic and the Boston, in going to rest and means in regard to it will be awaited impatiently by those who trust their lives or their fortunes to the great waters.

HAVE YOU CATARRH?

But One Sure Remedy—Obtain It for 25 Cents, Blower Included, and Be Cured.

Catarrh is a disagreeable and offensive disease. It usually attacks the cold and often ends in consumption and death. The only effective remedy so far discovered for it is Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure.

Physicians failed to cure Geo. Bell, Fries, toll-gate keeper. Hearty, vivacious, one box cured him. Kneeshaw and two boxes cured J. W. Stoddard, both of West Gwillimbury.

Division Court Clerk J. G. Rogers, Robert J. Hooper and George Taylor, all of Beeton, Ontario, are all cured by the efficacy of Chase's Catarrh Cure.

J. W. Jennings, of Gifford, spent nearly $100 on doctors, but found permanent relief until he spent a 25-cent box of Chase's Catarrh Cure.

Miss Dwyer, of Alliston, got rid of a cold in the head in 12 hours.

Henry R. Nichols, 176 Rectory street, London, tried a box with excellent effect. He is now completely cured.

Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure is for sale by any dealer, or by Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Price 25 cents, including blower.
