Ay, look upon this dreary desert path The thorns and thistles whereso'er we turn ; What trials and what tears, what wrongs and wrath, What struggles and what strife the journey hath !

Ask the poor sailor, when the wreck is done,

Who with his treasures strove the shore to reach While with the raging waves he battled on. Was it not joy, where every joy seemed gone,

To see his loved ones landed on the beach ? A poor wayfarer, leading by the hand A little child, had halted by a well

To wash from off her feet the clinging sand. And tell the tired boy of that bright land Where, this long journey past, they longed to dwell.

When lo! the Lord who many mansions had Drew near, and looked upon the suffering twain. Then pitying spake, " Give me the little lad ;

In strength renewed, and glorious beauty clad, I'll bring him with me, when I coms again." Did she make answer selfishly and wrong-

" Nay, but the woes I feel he too must share ?" O rather, bursting into grateful song, She went her way rejoicing, and made strong To struggle on, since he was freed from care.

We will do likewise : death hath made no breach In love and sympathy, in hope and trust : No outward sign or sound our ears can reach, But there's an inward spiritual speech That gree's us still, though mortal tongues be dust.

Had I my own way, there is not a line in the report of those two meetings I would not put in tract form and issue it broadcast .-The movements of Methodism in the wide world are grand and rapid, and of pre-eminent importance and benefit to mankind. It is startling, however, to hear the sentiments of some Metho dists, both in the old world and the new, on certain established usages ; and it is not premature to pray that Methodism universally may be saved from innovation.

Mr. Wesley's compendious and profound, yet simple, injunction to his preachers-" Never be unemployed "-leaves the Wesleyan preachers here without leisure. I recently connted thir teen or fourteen notices of Camp meetings in the ple.
