

SPLendid SPEECH OF MR. W. F. COCKSHUTT

Brantford M. P. Shows Falsity of Liberal Representations as to the Tariff --Should be a United East and West

OTTAWA, April 9.—That the Liberal party has been led into a hole through the "free implement" amendment of the member for Moosejawa, a hole out of which they will have difficulty in emerging, was the opinion expressed by W. F. Cockshutt, member for Brantford, in continuing the debate on the budget yesterday afternoon.

What If on the Free List. Mr. Cockshutt dissented strongly from the Liberal theory that if an industry were able to export it no longer needed protection. He also quoted figures to show that the imports of machinery into Canada were steadily increasing; such was the case under existing duties. What, he asked, would happen if implements went on the free list?

The policy of the Liberals was very properly characterized in Mr. Cockshutt's opinion by Sir Wilfrid's own phrase, "a policy for the moment," but what the country wanted was a policy that would last through the years and upon which capital could rely. The Liberals had yet to learn that it was better to build up than to destroy. Mr. J. G. Turiff, in continuing the budget debate, termed the tariff changes "a raw deal for the farmer."

POLITICAL REFINEMENT IN IRRITATION

Liberals Put Forward in British House a Hundred Blocking Motions.

NEW YORK, April 9.—A cable to the Tribune from London says: The Standard claims to be able to state that the Government has definitely decided in favor of a dissolution of Parliament in June, probably toward the end of that month. The general election would thus take place in July. Before separating for a brief Easter holiday, the members of the House of Commons enjoyed themselves yesterday by twisting into caricature the grave, sedate procedure of the venerable mother of Parliaments. On the eve of the holiday the House invariably discusses a potpourri of topics, and the Unionists had a fine diversified list of grievances needing ventilation, but by the simple process of putting down a wholesale array of blocking motions the Liberals checkmated discussion at every turn.

This was in revenge for Lord Hugh Cecil having prevented the divorce debate last week. The seven seats were swept clean by a motion to call attention to all foreign affairs, and nothing that had happened in the Empire on which the sun never sets could be brought under review. It was a refinement of polite irritation. Altogether there were nearly a hundred blocking motions. D. Co's Annual Theatre Party The entertainment committee met last evening and decided to hold the theatre party on Friday evening, April 17th. Members will meet at the Armouries on this date at 7.45 p.m. sharp in uniform. The dinner will be held Friday, May 1st, and men will be allowed to bring a civilian friend to this function.

Labor Scarcity In the County

Mr. T. Y. Thompson of the Ontario Labor Bureau in this city stated to the Courier last night that there is no necessity for men going without work hereabouts. "The farmers," he said, "simply cannot get enough men for their work, and there is a surprising scarcity of farm labor in view of the fact that many men are reported to be without employment in the cities. Last Saturday I had no less than 12 farmers in my office at once, all asking me to get them men, and I have been unable to meet all the demands made. The time looks opportune for a back-to-the-farm movement, because there is lots of work in the country for men willing to earn a livelihood."

COMPROMISE TALK LIVELY AGAIN TODAY

Believed That Premier Asquith is Prepared to Make Another Offer.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] MONTREAL, April 9.—There is talk of compromise in regard to settlement of the Irish question according to the London correspondent of The Daily Mail, who quotes the parliamentary representative of The Pall Mall Gazette as follows: "There is a general belief that some very definite offer will be forthcoming from the prime minister before the critical stage of the bill is far advanced. The Unionists are still standing out for an appeal to the country on the terms of Mr. Bonar Law's last offer and will not abate this demand except they get equivalent concessions, such as the permanent exclusion of Ulster. "Pending the formation of an imperial federal scheme, ministerialists are known," The Pall Mall Gazette continues, "to be reconciled to the idea of a general election after the passing of the bill. It is not so certain that any number of Liberals would agree to the suspension of the act until after the election, as has been suggested, but there is a curiosity on the Unionist side to know how far the government would go."

TO DEATH MONDAY

All Avenue of Escape For Four Gunmen is Closed.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] NEW YORK, April 9.—Every avenue of hope has been closed to the four gunmen slayers of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, now that Governor Glynn has refused to intercede. Counsel Wahle, for the men, said last night. Mr. Wahle conferred with his associate, Mr. Kringel, who accompanied the clergymen's deputation which visited Albany yesterday. Nothing remains to be done in behalf of the quartette in the Sing Sing death house. Mr. Wahle said, and now only the unexpected could save the four from the electric chair next Monday.

GRANT OF $10,000 FOR SEALERS' FAMILIES

Premier Borden's Tender of Sympathy and Relief is Unitedly Endorsed

[By Special Wire to The Courier] OTTAWA, April 9.—When Parliament met yesterday afternoon Premier Borden announced that he had been in communication with Hon. John R. Bennett, acting Premier of Newfoundland, in respect to the recent disaster which had caused great loss of life, and now seemed to be even greater than was first apprehended, as small hopes were held out respecting the fate of the steamer Southern Cross. He had extended the sympathy of the Canadian Government and the Canadian people, and volunteered to give practical evidence of Canadian sympathy by a grant to assist the families of the lost. He would accordingly ask Parliament for a grant of $10,000 for the purpose.

TO ABANDON HOLDING THE ROYAL COURT

King George and Queen Mary Find the Same Very Distasteful.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] NEW YORK, April 9.—A cable from London to The New York American says: Of all the jobs the King and Queen like least are the court receptions. The long train of presentations is wearying in the extreme. An unceasing repetition of bowing and smiling to hundreds of gorgeously attired women is a trial of the nerves which take a lot of keeping up. The late King Edward was no lover of these court ceremonials and on more than one occasion he very nearly collapsed. It is an open secret that next year the courts will be abolished, for even the formal and strict stickler for etiquette, Queen Victoria, suffered severely through the court ceremonials and she often left early commissioning the Princess of Wales (now Queen Alexandra) to take the general presentations. Next year the old practice of afternoon drawing rooms is likely to be revived when a tea room will be substituted for the present supper. During next month there will be two courts. One is to be held on a Friday and the other on a Monday. These will be held during the first half of May and two levees will be held by the King at St James' Palace in the same month.

MONTREAL IS WITHOUT ANY COUNCIL

Recount Will Leave City Without Government for Three Weeks.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] MONTREAL, April 9.—Owing to the bungling that has taken place in counting the votes cast at the municipal elections on Monday last, and the necessity for a recount, this city will be without an official administration for three weeks. This information was supplied to-day by Ald. L. A. Lapointe, leader of the city council, who explained that a recount will take four or five days, and when the returning officer is in possession of the figures he cannot make any public proclamation of the results until four more days have elapsed, in order to give unsuccessful candidates an opportunity to apply for a judicial recount. Such a judicial recount will be asked for, which means a week more before the city council can take office. The outgoing civic administration retires to-day, and the new mayor, controllers and aldermen should have been sworn in on Saturday. "The board of control or the city council cannot sit," said Ald. Lapointe, "and although Mayor Lavallee still remains nominally mayor, he is but a communicating link between the old and the new, and nothing he does is official. For three weeks no civic business can be transacted and the disposal of urgent civic affairs will be at a standstill."

RETORT COURTEOUS

Over Ottawa Liquor License Reduction in the Courts Today.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] TORONTO, April 9.—The case of Patrick Henry Wall, versus the City of Ottawa, seeking to have the by-law limiting the number of shop licenses quashed, came up before Chief Justice R. M. Meredith at Osgoode Hall this morning, and was enlarged for one week, James Haverson, K.C., for the liquor association, explained that the parties had consented. "But I have not been consulted," said the Chief Justice. "I must think of the clients and must not allow them to be charged with unnecessary costs."

Will Discuss The Issues of the Day

A meeting of Bellview residents will be held in Bellview schoolhouse at 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening next, when addresses on Workmen's Compensation and on other political issues will be delivered by Mr. J. H. Fisher, M.P., Mr. J. W. Westbrook, M.P.P., and others. Mr. A. W. Robertson will be chairman. A cordial invitation is extended to all residents to attend.

Massey-Harris Earnings Greater

The annual meeting of the Massey-Harris Company was held yesterday in Toronto, and the old board was re-elected. While it is not the policy of the company to make public its earnings, the official statement was made that, despite a falling off in western sales of farm implements, due to financial depression, the total gross sales of the company showed an increase, gratifying under the circumstances. The showing was attributable to a development of foreign business. It is stated that the company looks forward with confidence to improved business this year, despite the lowered tariff.

CASE GOES TO THE JURY AT MORDEN

Krafchenko's Trial Has Been Closed--Was a Heavy Affair.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] MORDEN, Man., April 9.—After occupying one entire day and portion of two others Crown Prosecutor Hastings concluded his address to the jury which is trying Jack Krafchenko shortly after the resumption of proceedings this morning. "I think," said Mr. Hastings in conclusion, "the crown has proven beyond a reasonable doubt that John Krafchenko was the man who robbed the Bank of Montreal at Plum Coulee and murdered the manager. It is for you to decide whether the crown has proven this. A grave responsibility rests upon your shoulders." Hastings concluded his address at 10.35 and His Lordship began his charge five minutes later. Opening the twentieth day of the trial, Chief Justice Mathers this forenoon began his address to the jury in whose hands will rest in a few hours the fate of Jack Krafchenko, charged with the murder of H. M. Arnold, in Plum Coulee on December 3 last year. His lordship began by thanking the jury for "the unflinching interest you have manifested in the proceedings throughout and for your patience and good temper with which you have performed your duties."

He complimented counsel in the case for the manner in which they had "faithfully and ably discharged the onerous duties which respectively rested on them." A verdict is expected before night.

MADE HIM ANGRY

Display of Wife's Easter Finery Caused Husband to Commit Suicide.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] NEW YORK, April 9.—Angered by the display of Easter finery which his wife and three daughters were showing him last night, Wm. Weisse of Mount Hope, a suburb, seized a shotgun and shot himself through the head, dying instantly. When Weisse unbathed this morning, Mrs. Weisse and his daughters laughed at him for getting angry. "You won't feel so funny about this by Sunday," he said, and disappeared into another part of the house. A moment later he committed suicide. Weisse was foreman at a cable manufacturing plant. He was about forty-five years old.

WILL REDUCE EARNINGS.

OTTAWA, April 8.—It is estimated that the effect of the western freight rates decision based on the present earnings of the railways, will mean a loss of revenue of about $3,000,000 per annum of which the C. P. R. will bear about half and the G. T. P. and C. N. R. the other half. There is some concern about the probable effect on the two latter comparatively new roads.

Mr. Reg. Robbins of the Bell Telephone Co., will holiday at his home in Hamilton.

CITY'S BILL IS ADOPTED TO-DAY BY LEGISLATURE

Brantford Secures Right to Run Street Railway--Parks Board Gets Control of All Boulevards.

The City of Brantford's Bill before the Ontario Legislature got through the Private Bills Committee this morning, and there is little doubt but that the Legislature will adopt the legislation, which gives Brantford the power to own and operate the street railway. The clause referring to the street railway was left untouched, and the other important features in the bill were adopted without serious objection being raised. Under the bill the city has power to borrow money to build the Mary street footbridge, a matter which has been outstanding for several years. The clause handing over to the Parks Board the care of all civic boulevards was also adopted. The only objections—and they were of a technical nature—were those in connection with the city's application to guarantee the bonds of the Brantford Realty & Industrial Company, which was formed primarily for the encouragement of new industries. City Solicitor Henderson promised to redraft the clauses relating to the matter, and it was settled in this way. Mayor Spence, Ald. Robinson and Fitcher, City Solicitor Henderson, and Messrs. Fred Mann and A. Burdette composed the deputation at Toronto to-day in connection with the city of Brantford's bill, which includes several features of municipal enterprise. They are also watching the bill introduced by Mr. Brewster for the supply of pure gas, which is expected to come up this afternoon before the Private Bills Committee. Messrs. Mann and Burdette are on the deputation in connection with the city's application for power to guarantee the bonds of the Brantford Realty & Industrial Company.

STEPHENS TO CONTEST WEST LANGASHIRE SEAT

He Will Probably Succeed Sir George Agnew, the Present Member

LONDON, April 9.—Sir William Stephens is to be the Liberal candidate for West Salford division of Lancashire, succeeding Sir George Agnew, the present member, who is retiring at the close of this Parliament. Stephens has been prominently identified with Salford all his life. An interesting incident in the present controversy is revealed in Manchester. Mr. Horsfall, a prominent citizen, has resigned his office of Magistrate, because having signed the Ulster covenant he considers it obviously desirable that he should not continue as a Justice of the Peace. A petition against home rule signed by adult Australians will shortly be presented to the Premier. There are 75,000 signatures already received. The House of Commons will probably renew acquaintance with the bill the middle of next month when the third reading will be taken up. On both sides, however, it is expected that conversations between the leaders will be resumed in the meantime. Trains Running Late. With the holiday rates starting to-day the rush commenced on the railways. Most of the trains are running from one to two hours late. The 1.42 p.m. on the Grand Trunk was one hour and 45 minutes late.

BUMPER OPENING OF SEASON IS PLANNED

Mayor Allan of Hamilton, Mayor Spence and Judge Hardy Will Be In The Points For the Ceremony.

Big preparations are now under way for the opening of the Canadian League season in this city. Come what may, we've got to have an opener, and it will be more pretentious than ever this year. The ingenuity of President T. J. Nelson, for the spectacle is at present finding all kinds of sport in arranging for the opening ceremony. Word has been received that five special cars will bring up the Hamilton fans for the opener and this will mean something. A Kilties band will be brought along and Mayor Allan of Hamilton will head the Tiger rosters. As a result of the visit of Hamilton's popular first citizen, the task of throwing the first ball will doubtless devolve upon Mayor J. H. Spence of this city. Mayor Allan will go to bat and His Honor, Judge Hardy will be on the receiving end for a change. His Honor has already been on the receiving end of the ball, and the innovation will test his efficiency in handling Mayoralty curves and twisters. Of course the Duff band will be out in full force, heading a Broadway auto parade with the usual galaxy of notables. Following the precedent of last year many stores will close at 3.00 o'clock and re-open at 6 o'clock. This Baseball Day in Brantford has come to be of pre-eminent importance as the day of days in the sporting realm. Naturally, attention will be focused on President Nelson, who in years past, has tried to duck from the public gaze by refusing to ride in the auto parade. This procedure will not be tolerated this year, and the natural modesty will be eliminated. In fact, an effort will be made to have the President pose for a photograph. On the whole, opening day ought to prove a big success again. It will doubtless intensify the old rivalry between Brantford and the Assiniboia City. That it will be a healthy rivalry, goes without saying.

Ladies of Zion Hold a Social

The members and friends of the Young Ladies Foreign Mission Auxiliary of Zion Presbyterian Church, held a social evening on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. James B. Hay, on Clarence street.

During the evening Miss Duncan, president of the auxiliary, made Miss Ethel Nichol and Mrs. Gordon Duncan (nee Miss Jean Martin) life members of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Before the presentation, Miss Duncan read an address, saying that it gave the members pleasure to make these two young ladies life members for a twofold reason, that of their fathers and themselves. She spoke of the inspiration the life of the Rev. Dr. Martin had been to all and of the widespread influence of Dr. Nichol in foreign mission circles, she then made mention of the worth and promise of the young ladies themselves in their work for the Master.

GIRLS! STOP WASHING THE HAIR WITH SOAP

Soap Dries your scalp, causing dandruff, then hair falls out.

Laid at Rest

After washing your hair with soap always apply a little Danderine to the scalp to invigorate the hair and prevent dryness. Better still, use soap as sparingly as possible, and instead have a "Danderine Hair Cleanse." Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one strand at a time. This will remove dust, dirt and excessive oil. In a few moments you will be amazed, your hair will not only be clean, but it will be wavy, fluffy and abundant, and possess an incomparable softness and lustre.

Besides cleansing and beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; stimulates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

Men! Ladies You can surely have lots of charming hair. Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it.

A piano solo by Miss Olive Hall, a vocal duet by the Misses Lena and Ella Giffatt and a solo by Miss Lizzie Gilmour were greatly enjoyed, and a recitation by Miss Gertrude Cronk, Miss Mary Friend and Miss Jessie Mitchell were heartily applauded.

Very dainty refreshments were served. Before going home a most hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Hay for her hospitality.

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK, THICK, GLOSSY

Look Years Younger! Try Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

To The Editor

A PROTEST IS ENTERED. Brantford April 7, 1914.

To the Editor: Sir—In Tuesday night's issue of The Courier, I noticed a report of the council meeting at which Ald. Pitcher made certain statements with regard to the Hebrews building a synagogue on William street. Whilst I realize that a member of the Council is at liberty to state his case on the floor of the house, the members should so realize the necessity of being well informed as to the accuracy of the statements he makes. When Ald. Pitcher tells us that the best evidence that a synagogue would be objectionable on William street because a prominent Hebrew citizen (Mr. Lazarus) had signed the petition against it shows us that Ald. Pitcher has gone to the trouble to verify his information. How can he claim Mr. Lazarus as a leading Hebrew citizen when in the next breath he tells us that the Russian Jews are an undesirable class—Mr. Lazarus cannot deny that he is a Russian Jew, having emigrated from that country. Moreover Mr. Lazarus is not a Jew in the faith and would therefore, probably object to a church of any denomination being built near his house.

Again, he (Ald. Pitcher) makes a sweeping statement by designating the Jews of Brantford as bene and rag collectors, and that they would congregate for a week at a time, thereby becoming a menace to peace, prosperity and happiness in the neighborhood. A little enlightenment to Ald. Pitcher, will no doubt cause him to think seriously of the mistakes he has made. First the calling of a junk dealer, if lowly, is, at least, honest and it is a means of a livelihood to a family without any help from the charities and secondly, how will Ald. Pitcher prove that the Hebrews are a danger to the peace of the community by their congregation? I may point out that for more than six years they have held services at No. 17 George street without any complaint from citizens or authorities and since last October have been located in one of the rooms of the Conservative association of which institution Ald. Pitcher is a prominent and active member, and so far he has not made any complaint or made application for their removal.

Now, I ask Ald. Pitcher if that is what he calls British fair play—to give them shelter, as it were, in his own house and then to attack them behind their backs in the Council Chambers. If a report were taken of the Jews of this city, we would find that for the most part they are engaged in business of various kinds and are large taxpayers and property owners and deserving of the fair consideration of the council.

The annual report of Chief Constable Slemin will prove you that the Jews of this city are a peaceful and law-abiding people. Only last week Mayor Spence and several of the aldermen were present at a function promoted by the Jews of this city and in the opinion of these gentlemen the conduct of the gathering would not have disgraced any city affair and mark you a great many of those present were what Ald. Pitcher terms undesirable.

He is also afraid that if a synagogue is built on William street that the place would become a Jewish settlement. That is without fact for we only have to look to other towns to disprove that assertion. He also says that they congregate for a week at a time. That also is untrue and I challenge Ald. Pitcher to prove it, for he has had every facility to observe them during the time they have been at the Conservative rooms. The Alderman then tried to back out at the last moment by throwing the blame on the shoulders of Mr. A. T. Watts, but I cannot forget that it was Ald. Pitcher who made the attack backed up by a man who is admittedly against any form of religious worship.

In conclusion, I may point out that the building which the Jews are prepared to build will be an edifice worthy of the purpose it is intended for and will in no way detract and rather enhance the surrounding property. The cost will be in the neighborhood of $12,000 and an ornament to the Jewish community.

Thanking you in advance for the insertion of this letter. I beg to remain, REV. W. GRINGORTEN, 40 Spring Street.

HARTLEY BROS REPLY.

To the Editor of The Courier: Sir—Will you kindly allow us a small space in your valuable paper to reply to Ald. Sutch and Calbeck's question of privilege, as reported by the Board of Works committee in your columns at the City Council meeting, on Monday night, April 6th. Ald. Sutch, you are raising a big howl about the minimum wage. Now we asked you in a previous letter to kindly inform us what the minimum wage is for Brantford. Did you grant our request? You did not. If you had had the eagle eye that you claim you have now when the first tender forms were sent out to contractors and had you used it before they went out you would have had the minimum wage placed in the tender form in large bold figures, stating the amount in dollars and cents, and you did not have said amount inserted in new tender. That's two blunders you made. You also claim in callings for new tenders that the city saved $800 on a contract of $3,400. This statement is absolutely false, and you know it. It is ridiculous. Our second or new tender called for 10c. less than our first tender; that is 10c. on 100 lbs. of castings. That would be a saving of less than $140. Right here we make a standing offer to you. If you can prove that you saved the city $500 on the last and new tender, we will gladly donate $100 to one of the charitable institutions of our city. Listen, when you saved the $140 for the city, it was saved in a very questionable way, and if you believe the ratepayers of Brantford would like to know about the little scheme that saved 10c. per 100 lbs. for them, and if at any time you wish to take the ratepayers into your confidence, we will be pleased to furnish them with the desired information, through the press. We will not refer to the other gentlemen, only that Ald. George Ward, went to bat and made a home run. Ald. Calbeck, if you used the same method to determine the saving to the city on the lumber contract; that Ald. Sutch installed in the casting contract, the saving to the city water and all, may be $375, but when you squeeze out the water, it might pan out about 17c. in hard cash. Both of you are congratulating yourselves on this point, so we will explain here. We do not manufacture, our output is made up of such jobs as the city contract, parts for machine shops, castings for factories not having capacity for turning out castings and numerous other repair jobs in cast iron. We have to tender on city work every year and our prices are always reasonable. We tender through good times and dull times; and the larger shops do not want the contract when they are busy. Consequently, if we were not here to tender each year, the city would have to pay a very much larger price for their castings, and we think that when we furnish castings to the city at reasonable prices when trade is booming, it is only fair to give us the contract when there is a depression, providing our price is the lowest and we give them a good article.

MR. COCKSHUTT'S SPEECH

Judging from the summary of a speech contained elsewhere in this issue, Mr. Cockshutt, M.P., yesterday in the Dominion House, made one of the most forcible addresses of his career. The Courier will republish it verbatim from Hansard in the course of a day or so.

A FALSE STATEMENT.

In the Commons the other day the Liberal members from Nova Scotia solemnly assured the House that the fishermen of that province were crying out for freer access to the markets of the New England States. The shallowness and falsity of this claim is manifest when it is remembered that the two greatest fishing counties in Nova Scotia—Lunenburg and Queen Shelburne—went unmistakably against reciprocity in 1911. The hardy fishermen of these two great fishing counties knew perfectly well that under the Reciprocity Pact, their fish would have free entry to this same New England market.

Why, then, it may be asked, did they vote against it to a man? It was not that they did not understand the arrangement, for they had every opportunity of hearing, and did hear it discussed, by the man who was one of the authors of the pact—the Hon. W. S. Fielding himself.

If fish free of duty was so desirable and necessary, why in the name of common sense did these fishermen vote against reciprocity? Doesn't this plain fact go to show that all this talk about the American market is the merest cant and humbug.

The present government by arranging for better facilities for the rapid shipment of fish from the Maritime Provinces to Ontario and Western points, are doing a real service not only to the fishermen, for whom they are opening up a new market, but for the consumers of Upper Canada, for whom they are providing better and fresher fish.

But instead of commending this move, the Nova Scotia Liberal members waste the Commons' time, and the country's money with a flow of nauseous cant about the poor fisherman.

AN UNWARRANTED ATTACK.

Liberal members of Parliament are very bitter over the fact that Senator Sir Melvin Jones should have left their party because he realizes how disastrous the present Grit trade policy would prove to the Dominion.

The depth of feeling was clearly evident during the course of a debate yesterday in the Dominion House, Mr. Turriff (Liberal) shouting among other things:

"Oh, you've got him now. Keep him; we don't want him. The best thing he ever did for the Liberal party was to leave it."

Nice language that with reference to a man who was hitherto all his life been a staunch Liberal, and a generous contributor towards the needed funds of his side.

Senator Jones was, of course, quite within his rights in taking the course he did. He is exceedingly clever and far-seeing—his whole career has attested that—and as such he naturally became disgusted with the Laurierite vagaries, free food one day, free implements the next, and so on. The wonder is, that more Liberals do not follow his example and that thousands of them did quietly do so at the polls last election was abundantly demonstrated.

Sir Melvin has not alone rendered much public service, but in addition he has been a great captain of industry. It is well known that much of the world-wide reputation of the binders and mowers produced by his firm has been due to his great mechanical knowledge and inventive genius. The value of that received forcible local illustration during the recent months of world-wide depression, when the Brantford Massey-Harris plant was kept working with an extra staff of men full time in order to fill foreign orders. What the continued employment of those several hundred men meant to this community alone it does not require any words to demonstrate. The Senator is at the head of an institution which in all employs thousands of hands, representing many more thousands with regard to the upkeep of the attendant families. In turn represent much more employment in connection with all branches of commerce, the building trade, and so on, and also help in the upkeep of the splendid home market of the farmers in this and other centres. For a Liberal member of Parliament, from his seat in the House, to say that such a man is good riddance, demonstrates how narrow-minded some politicians prove themselves.

THE PATRONAGE QUESTION.

Now that the Liberals are out of office, and cannot help their friends, they have discovered serious defects in the patronage system. They would have it appear, from their speeches in Parliament, that prior to September 21, 1911, there was no such thing as patronage system, but that it was introduced by the present administration, and is a menace to the public interest. This is what you would be led to believe if you sat in the House for any length of time and listened to the lamentations of Opposition members, more especially from the Province of Nova Scotia.

Such shams as this do not, as a rule, deceive many people. The bluff was put up in the House last week, and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries met it with a definite and clean-cut statement as to what the so-called patronage system really means under the present administration. A. K. Maclean, of Halifax, had asked, with an air of great innocence, "Why permit the existence of a patronage committee?"

"My hon. friend," said Mr. Hazen, "is too old a politician to ask a question of that sort. He knows that when his party were in power, and when other parties were in power also, people in different constituencies would organize themselves into patronage committees and make representations to the member from that constituency, or to the Government, with regard to appointments to office, and as to from whom purchases should be made, and so on. That is all very well, but after all, the responsibility for what is done must rest upon the responsible head of the department, and the officials, and they will take pains to guard the public interest. I think we are indulging in a good deal of nonsense when we say that governments will not help their own friends. All governments will help their own friends if they can do so, and if, by doing so, they are doing nothing that is against the public interest. But governments have no right to purchase from their own friends, in preference to their opponents, if by doing so they pay higher prices for the goods purchased. I think that is the correct principle under our system of party government, and when we talk about governments not favoring their own friends when they can do so without injury to the public interest, we are talking what, at the bottom, of our hearts, we know is not the principle which governs to-day anywhere."

There is a plain statement of a principle which is well recognized in Canada and in other countries. It is not a bad principle unless abused as the late Government repeatedly abused it.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

It looks like easterly weather for Easter.
 The present indications tend to the belief that there will be an election in this Province during the summer or else in the early fall.

A wealthy woman in Hawaii who married an American has just received a divorce from wireless from San Francisco. That doesn't also make her wifeless, because she turned right round and married another gent.

Cornwallis-West, who married Lady Randolph Churchill at a time when she was old enough to be his mother, has since his divorce led Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the famous actress, to the altar. That young man seems bound to attain fame somehow.

MAY CONFESS THEIR PART IN MURDER

It is Said the Four Gunmen Sentenced to Die May Make Statement

[By Special Wire to The Courier]
 NEW YORK, April 9.—There were persistent rumors to-day to the effect that at least one of the four gunmen who are to die at Sing Sing Monday morning for the part they played in the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, would confess. The rumors could not be traced to their source.

Joseph A. Shay, counsel for Charles Becker, the former police lieutenant, convicted of instigating the murder but saved by higher court ruling, said he might go to the prison some time to-day and endeavor to get statements from the four men to be used by the defence at the second trial of Becker. In case the condemned men decline to make statements to him, he has prepared an application to the Supreme Court for an order requiring the appointment of a commission to take their depositions. In either event it was said, the execution of the sentence would not be delayed.

Although Governor Glynn has twice refused to grant a reprieve the families of the gunmen and their counsel, Charles G. F. Whale, had not given up all hope to-day. Every means known to the law will be employed from now until Monday, Wahle declared.

The rumors regarding the expected confession had it that the one gunman most likely to talk was "Gyp the Blood" Horowitz.

Fire in the Diner.
 A fire started in the rear end of the dining car on the 4.45 train from Toronto yesterday afternoon. The train was stopped at Burlington and the blaze extinguished by the train hands. There was quite a little excitement amongst the passengers, among whom were several Brantfordites. The train reached this city half an hour late as a result of the mishap.

The Wanderers

Dragon Football Club is Reorganized—League Executive Meets

The football club formerly attached to the 25th Brant Dragoons, decided last night to separate themselves entirely from that corps, and in future be known as the Wanderers. The reason for this action is given as allowing the team a much larger field for drawing upon likely players, and on account of lack of support from the Dragoons. The name by which the organization will in future be known, was chosen as being thoroughly appropriate to the team. The action of the team in these matters had the hearty approval of the league and the same officers and men with the same colors will distinguish the team as hitherto.

Mr. Forbes Thomson kindly accepted nomination as honorary vice-president, and there is no doubt that with his knowledge of football work that he will be a valuable acquisition to the team officials.
 A first class team has been brought together and the total strength to date is twenty-three playing members. Although not cocksure, the men feel confident of being able to accomplish things in the Brantford and Paris League in which they will operate. The colors of the team are, as last year, red and yellow, and a work out practice match has been arranged for to-morrow in the Recreation park ground at the end of Nelson street. Another practice is slated for Saturday first.

League Executive

The Brantford and Paris Football League held a meeting last night in the Y. M. C. A. when a good representation of the teams in the league were present.

It was reported that two gentlemen had purported to be representatives of the league at a meeting of the Old Home Week committee, and although they may have had the best of intentions they did not have the sanction of the league to act in that capacity or their approval. Two members thoroughly authorized were appointed, and they were Messrs. Bowtle and Uniacke. A long discussion with regard to referees followed, and it was decided that all intending referees apply to the league if they desire to offer their services. The league will be formed as an association within the British Football constitution.
 The date is 23 playing members. Although

RIDGEMAN, Ont., May 21st, 1913. "You 'Fruit-a-lives' cured me of Rheumatism. It was the only medicine that made any impression on me. I was a terrible sufferer from Rheumatism. I was laid up for four winters with Sciatica and Muscular Rheumatism, and was a cripple completely, not being able to do anything. I doctored with four different physicians, but they did not help me. Other advertised remedies were equally unsatisfactory, and I have taken several. Some neighbor of mine told me that 'Fruit-a-lives' helped him, and I took them faithfully every day and the result was marvellous. For over two years now, I have been free from any Rheumatic pains whatever, and give 'Fruit-a-lives' the full credit for making a remarkable cure."

MR. BREWSTER PRAISES SYSTEM

Told of Brantford's Experience With Hydro at Woodbridge Meeting

Mr. W. S. Brewster, M. P., spoke at Woodbridge in favor of the Hydro-Electric by-law that place. Mr. Brewster told of the experience of Brantford with a private corporation. When the people of that city passed a hydro-electric by-law six years ago the city council did not act upon it, and when this measure was submitted a third time it was defeated, because the local company had given a signed and sealed contract for five years to sell light and power for per cent, cheaper than in any municipality supplied by the Hydro-Electric commission. This contract was not carried out owing to a clause which enabled the company to evade it. But a few weeks ago the Hydro-Electric system was installed, and the Western Counties Electric company, the competing concern, cut its former rates in two, thereby making the passing of the hydro-electric by-law effect a saving of $25,000 a year to the citizens. Moreover this corporation had now established a flat rate of two dollars a month for private residences as compared with seven and eight dollars a month under the old system. Churches received a cut of forty dollars a year in their rates and Brantford was now the best lighted city in the province. He said that nothing could give a greater impetus to the growth of Woodbridge than cheap light and power.

SPLENDID SPEECH OF W. F. COCKSHUTT

have got to keep him. The best thing he did for the Liberal party was to leave it," said Mr. Turiff.

"This is a manufacturer's budget from beginning to end," said Mr. Turiff. "The farmers and the common people get nothing at all, but it is just what you might expect, for the minister was not elected under false colors. He says that he is protective, and the Government says that it is protective, but the people are getting a lesson on what it means. He had an opportunity to bring relief to the people and he did not use it. Put the farmer in a position to get the profit from his products and he will keep the manufacturers busy. But as long as you prevent him from getting the real value of his labor, so long will you have your factories running at half time, and your manufacturers coming here asking for more protection."

Mr. Turiff said he had heard a Government speaker say that he would be willing to contest an election on reciprocity again. "He would not be half so delighted as I would be," said Mr. Turiff. "We welcome the day and the hour when we can fight the question again, and will bring Laurier back in power."

Mr. Cockshutt.

W. F. Cockshutt, in opening, congratulated the Minister of Finance on his management of the country's finances during the year, and felt that his budget speech, which read and considered throughout the country, would do much to bring reassurance to those disturbed by the vagaries of the Opposition. While there had been a financial depression, the outlook was good because the country was on a sound basis. Were it not for the legacies of the late Government there would be little to cause concern to the country of late and in this connection it could truly be said that no Government had ever left such encumbrances behind as the Laurier administration. It was claimed by the Liberals that good times had prevailed during their regime. If good times meant the scattering of about of fat contracts, the paying for goods at twice their value, and similar practices, then Canada enjoyed this species of good times during the late regime. The result of it all was that many millions had been paid out for nothing that was a tangible asset to-day or that could ever hope to add. Sir Wilfrid Laurier had admitted that mistakes might have been made in the building of the N. T. R., but claimed that anything that was misspent was the result of mistakes.

Mr. Blair's Warning.

Mr. Cockshutt said he could not agree with this statement at all. Let him read once again the speech of Hon. A. G. Blair, and the warnings there. Mr. Blair had shown that the Government of the day was embarking on a false basis. He had demonstrated that their figures were false. The whole project was carried through in the apparent belief that the G. T. P. would pay interest, no matter what the cost and the country could not possibly suffer. As a matter of fact a large part of the eastern section was 15 to 20 years ahead of its time, as for the New Brunswick section it was absolutely needed.

The Liberals, he said, evidently thought that good times consisted in throwing money around to their friends, and Sir Wilfrid was too fond of power to punish the wrongdoers in his own party.

Under the Laurier regime political and commercial morality sank to its lowest ebb in Canadian history. "In case we harden our necks and run astray, I hope I am lashed rather than getting a vote through such a practice as under the Liberal administration," said the Brantford member.

Turning next to the question of free trade and protection, he quoted from speeches of British members of Parliament, to show that conditions were far from ideal in the old country. He thought there was a great deal more chance of protection being established in Great Britain than in Free Trade in Canada. People in Canada were living in clover when compared with British and European conditions.

Workmen would be contented if it were not for the agitators like some men on the other side of the House.

Passing on to agricultural implements, he said that the member for Moosejaw had led the Liberal party into a hole when he introduced his amendment for free agricultural implements. There was a proof of this in his own city of Brantford. Mr. Hugh Guthrie, member for South Wellington, had been advertised to speak in Brantford, but had not turned up.

Mr. Guthrie Wise.
The meeting was to have been held on the night after Mr. Knowles had brought forward the policy of free implements, and so Mr. Guthrie could not go to Brantford. Mr. Cockshutt added that a Liberal had told him that if Mr. Guthrie had come to the meeting the Liberals would have given him a warm time.

Mr. Turiff had not said a word about the Ontario farmer, yet the Ontario farmer raised 20,000,000 bushels of wheat a year, and they were quite content with the conditions existing to-day.

The member for Brantford dissented strongly from the Liberal theory that if an industry was able to export it did not need protection. If that doctrine were put into effect, nearly every article would go upon the free list. He declared that no industry in Canada had greater enterprise or got the point of manufacture down so low as the agricultural implement industry. It was unreasonable to suppose that tariff duty could add that a free tariff duty could increase prices in a larger percentage than itself, and the duty on agricultural implements ranged only from 17 1/2 to 20 per cent.

Mr. Cockshutt stated that in 1911 the imports of agricultural implements had been valued at $4,887,000. If such large imports had been under the existing duties, he asked what would be the result if implements were placed on the free list. The result, he said, that the capital invested in these industries in Canada would be wiped out, and that 10,000 hands, supporting 50,000 people would be driven out of employment.

Mr. Turiff's statement that Canadian plows could be sold in the United States in spite of a duty, was absurd. When the duty had existed a trial carload of plows had been sent over.

But they had been seized at the border and the company had been fined thousands for undervaluation, although American plows were entered at this value at Winnipeg.

Hitting Canadian Trade

That, declared the member for Brantford, was the way with American business men. As soon as Canadians were beginning to get a trade established, immediately obstacles were put in the way. That had been the case with potatoes, when the cry of disease had been raised. If we succeeded in getting a market for our cattle they would apply the tuberculin test. If the Western farmers had free wheat, the American farmers would find smut in it.

The Liberal policy of free implements, asserted Mr. Cockshutt, was in Sir Wilfrid's phrase, "a policy for the moment." A policy for the moment was not good enough.

What the country wanted was a policy that would last for years and on which capital could rely. The Liberal idea was, whenever you see an industry, whack it. The Liberals had put binder twine on the free list, and now the Grain Growers' Guide had discovered that there was a combine among the American dealers, a combine under free trade.

He believed that it would be better if the duty were again placed upon binder twine, so that Canadian factories, which closed down, could again open up.

Easy to Destroy

Mr. Cockshutt said that the Liberals should learn that it is easy to destroy but hard to build up. During the Easter recess the Opposition leaders and his followers should consider the situation and bring down a policy which would not be a policy for the moment, but one of permanence for all of the people of the Dominion. The other day Sir Wilfrid Laurier had reopened his speech of 1903 on the N. T. R. proposal, in which he had expressed a doubt as to whether the government had acted in time. He now proposed to come forward with a policy that would seriously damage the railway.

The people of the East had never objected to the spending of money on railways, elevators, etc., in the West. The East had stood nobly by the West, and this was no time to begin to pull down and destroy that which, by care and the expenditure of money, had been built up in a manner which enabled Canada to cope in some respects with the world.

On his concluding remarks, Mr. Cockshutt expressed regret that the Minister of Finance had not provided in his budget a sum of 10 or 15 million dollars by way of contribution to the Imperial navy. He believed that the Liberal Senate had made a great mistake in rejecting the $35,000,000 contribution proposal of last session. The action of the Senate had made him almost ashamed as a Canadian to step on the wharf at Liverpool when we in Canada have done all the talking but given nothing to contribute to the defense of the empire.

The House at 6 o'clock adjourned until Wednesday, April 15.

Wants New Sidewalk

The bad condition of the St Paul's street hill has been brought to the notice of the city by E. P. Watson of the Watson Manufacturing Company. He asks that the city takes action as soon as possible, as this street is used to a large extent by the employes of his factory.

Fourth Form Holds An "At Home"

A memorable page in the book of school history was written last night at the Collegiate Institute when the Fourth Form held their annual "At Home" and were the hosts of the Fifth Form who accepted the invitation in full force. It was a night in which the pupils set their masters in a different light. They are then as members of society, and the vision of the dignified and somewhat severe "head" is dispelled, as the other side of life is presented.

A most delightful time was spent during which Miss Irene Todd gave a splendid recitation entitled the "White Swan."

She would, however, along with the other performers have been heard to better advantage in a hall with better acoustic properties. Mr. S. F. Passmore, M.B., a master of classes at the school, gave a fine old song in great voice. The Song of a Soldier, and an encore was demanded. A similar reception was accorded Mr. Passmore and Mr. J. R. Cornelius, who gave a duet on the piano with splendid executive ability. Promenades, contests and races and an informal supper pleasantly passed a genial evening, which made a very acceptable break in the somewhat monotonous round of school life.

County Court

Brown v. Deagle. The case of Brown v. Deagle came before Judge Hardy at the County Court without jury this morning; this action both plaintiff and defendant, are farmers in the Onondaga district and occupy adjoining farms. Brown claims that a fence line which has stood for forty years between the two farms is wrong and that it has recently been shifted by defendant giving him an advantage of five feet all along the line. This is denied by Deagle who alleges that the present fence has stood in its present position for ten years. He does not deny that its original position forty years ago was not where it is to-day. The plaintiff asks for the fence line to be removed to its original position and costs of the action. Messrs. Brewster and Heyd are acting for plaintiff and Lewis and Arrell represent the defendant.

HARTFORD

(From our own correspondent.) Our roads are still bottomless. Very little driving these days. Herbert Bertran sold one of his grey horses Saturday.

Duncan Fair sold a fine 3-year-old heavy draft colt.

John Nelson had a narrow escape Sunday afternoon while driving through the village. In driving along by Theodore Burkes he drove too close to the culvert and the cart turned over, the horse fell down, falling on him. F. Hages, and T. Burke were quickly on the spot and succeeded in extricating him before he received serious injury. He was able to drive home after about an hour. Jos. Roberts has been visiting his sister in Hamilton the past week. His policy in the Sun Life Assurance Co. of a 20 pay life has matured and he has been settling this while in the Ambitious City.

Morgan VanLoon has a new boy at his house, John Elbersson.

Mrs. Hellyer of Watford is visiting at Fred Bradshaws. Tuck Slaight, Victoria Mills, has been suffering a slight attack of congestion of the lungs, but is fully recovered. Rev. J. E. Pettit of Lakeside, occupied the pulpit Sunday. Wm. Sloat of Carsonville, Mich., was visiting at Geo. Sloats a few days. The Ladies Aid intend holding an Egg Sale next Monday night. Sol. VanLoon has sold his noted horse, Dr. John to Harry Martin, the price being $600. The bad roads do not stop Sol. VanLoon from teaming, as April 1st he drove a heavy democrat with his ponies hitched on, to Oshweken, and brought back 19 pigs, weighing 600 pounds. Since then he has sold his 3-year-old ponies to John Curley for $260.00.

Y.M.C.A. is Shocked.

An enterprising (?) tobacco company of the United States sent an appropriate gift to the dormitory roomers at the Y.M.C.A. in the nature of a sample box of cigarettes of a new brand. Cigarettes are barred from the Y.M.C.A., and this donation caused considerable comment amongst the officials of the Association.

AT IT AGAIN.

BELFAST, Ireland, April 9.—Militant suffragettes continued their campaign of arson in Ulster to-day by setting the torch to Orlands an old mansion near Carrickfergus on Belfast lough. The residence was burned to the ground. The usual suffrage literature was found littered about the grounds.

The Mother's Knee.

(Ottawa Journal) Asked about the whereabouts of the old fashioned mother's knee around which children were accustomed to gather and listen to bedtime stories, a Chicago bishop states that it would be found under a bridge table.

Why won't some high brow get busy and bring ancient history up to date?

COUNTY CARLOW FARMERS STOP IRISH RACE MEET

Hunt Sportsmen's Races Abandoned Under Very Remarkable Circumstances.

LONDON, April 9.—Announcement was made last night that the popular Irish race meeting, the Carlow Hunt Sportsmen's races, had been abandoned under very remarkable circumstances. One of the prizes offered for the competition at the meeting is a military cup. Notices were yesterday served on the promoters of the races of a resolution which was passed on Sunday last by the Tullow branch of the United Irish League. It read that "in view of the attitude assumed by the military officers at Curragh in connection with the home rule bill, we farmers of County Carlow protest against their racing over our lands in the future, and request that the military cup be withdrawn from the program of the Carlow Hunt Sportsmen's races."

Sporting Comment

Shag has been offered a real phenom. by the New Orleans club. He has a big batting average, and last year made twenty home runs in a class C league. Probably he had short fields in which to knock the ball over the fence. He ought to fatten his average if he comes to Brantford to play.

The Athletic classes at the "Y." are becoming very popular. Even "Wag" enjoys the fun, and is incidentally doing a little spring training. He says he will be in good condition when reporting time comes.

The Ottawa Journal ridicules Brantford's chances of copping the pennant. Look out, Mr. Wise Guy, we may surprise you.

Wag Bremner is the coming champion boxer of this city. This kid has all kinds of sand and a great punch.

Clare Betts doesn't seem to fear anyone for a bout. He says he will box all comers who weigh in at 128 pounds. Look out, Clare, you may be covering too much ground.

With Charlie Conkle of Hamilton and Westgarde of Syracuse, N. Y., doing battle for the 145 pound championship of Canada, Brantford sport lovers will have the opportunity of seeing one of the best wrestling bouts ever put on here. The date of the bout is April 17th.

Conkle clearly demonstrated last Friday night that he is not too old yet to lay down to anyone. As for Westgarde, though not known well in this part of the country, has a reputation throughout the States.

The main boxing bout between Pete Scott and "Beef" Britton, both of Hamilton. This is the outcome of the challenge at last week's bouts.

Wag Bremner and Brooks of Hamilton will stage a fast bout in the 135 pound class. Kid Hagen and Clare Betts, both of this city, will put on the other bout. This will be the 128 pound class, and no doubt will be fast.

For some time it was anticipated that the 13th Regiment indoor ball team would be here to-morrow night to play the Duffs, but nothing has been heard from them and the game has been called off.

The Colborne street clerks intend to have a little recreation this summer other than handing goods over the counter. They are going to play soft ball. They have the material for a good team and will make the other teams hustle.

"Peanuckle" says the reason he was "canned" from the position of scout for the Red Sox, was that he knew too much about ball players. Take last year's team for example.

The Eagle Place Stars will send a representative to the W. O. B. L. meeting to-morrow afternoon to look over the proposition of entering the league, and this matter won't be decided until Saturday when the representative will meet with the club members and the matter decided.

With weather permitting, the Stars will begin spring training at Tutela. The Stars are getting to work early in preparation for their games with the Red Sox. Any players who would like to catch a place on the team, are invited to turn out to practice Saturday.

Manager Fred Billio is confident that if the Stars enter the W. O. B. L., they will have a team of home brews that will make the other teams hustle to beat them. There are a bunch of good men in this city whom he is confident will make good in faster ball after a season in the W. O. B. L.

Jimmy Bradley is going to Woodstock to manage the team from that city in the semi-pro. league. Bradley has had considerable managerial experience, both in Canada and the United States, and he ought to make good in the Industrial City.

The London club is being followed by a jinx. But it happens to be the Advertiser's sporting writer of that city, who has gone to the training camp.

Mr. Fred Westbrook has made an application to get in the front seat of the ball parade opening day.

Mr. J. C. Steele, Brant Avenue, is one of the best of local fans, and is reported to be displaying the anxiety of a colt as to what the Red Sox will do this year. Truly these are anxious moments.

The rumor that last year's Red Sox didn't pay their board bill is denied. On the general assumption that nothing mean enough could be said about last year's outfit, the rumor probably originated.

With two out, three on and four runs needed in the ninth to win, Gabby Ivers hit one in front of the pitcher, the ball bounced in the air so high that Ivers displayed tremendous speed and negotiated the circuit, registering a home run before the ball came down again. Pardon us, but April fool day is past. We just had a pipe dream.

If the Hamilton Herald sport editor plunges any more new top pieces on those Tigers, he won't have anything left for the bang tails in June, which would be deplorable. Betten tighten up for a little street car fare, Paddy.

Charlie Conkle, the human eel, and Westgarde should make a good pair a week from Friday. Conkle's bout here with the Indian was an honest one. Had it been otherwise the Hamilton man could have come back and cleaned up a fortune.

"Ladies and gentlemen, I have just got a wire from Matteawan. Harry Thaw was released and asked me to join him at a banquet. I leave to-night."—J. Ira Davis. Thank goodness we will have no more of this, this year.

Sporting Editor, Courier: I am so glad Mr. Gero is coming back this year for Brantford. He was such a nice chap. When he pitched last year there were times I just felt like screaming for joy, and I did scream, too. Do you think he will hold his job alright? I'm sure he will. Yours,

FAIR ONE. If any more "fair ones" send in communications like the above, we'll call a doctor for the case.

BROOKLYN TURNS TRICK ON MACKS

Dodgers, Two Behind in the Eight, Tied Up Game and Won in Ninth.

BROOKLYN, April 9.—Two runs behind at the end of the seventh, the Brooklyn Nationals won in the last two innings against the Philadelphia Americans yesterday, scoring twice in the eighth and once in the ninth. The score was 3 to 2. The hitting throughout was light, the Athletics getting their lead on ragged fielding by the locals. Score: Philadelphia . . . 000100100—2 3 0 Brooklyn . . . 00000021—3—3—6

The P. S. A. Football club will have a practice on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock and will hold a meeting at 6 o'clock in the basement of the Congregational church. All players are requested to turn out.

Local Soccer

Captain.
"Bob" Plant one of the most popular men of Cocksutt's United team has been selected as the captain for the new season. His selection for the post is immensely popular.

Jerseys.
Black and white jerseys, identical with those of the Magpies of Newcastle have been chosen as the colors of the Cocksutt team. If they perform up to the reputation of the original Gordies, Cocksutt's United will take some stopping.

Boots.
One of the finest football boots that ever kicked a ball has been selected as the only ones to be used for the season by Cocksutt's United team. It is without parallel, having a steel instep which insures a permanent shape. The sole is made of especially hardened and polished leather, and the toe is a masterpiece of block work. Six sturdy studs of leather form the basis of ground grip. This modern piece of the bootmakers' art is retained at four dollars a pair by a Toronto firm.

Socer on Saturday

One of the first football matches of the season will be played on Saturday at the Tutela Park between the Sons of Galt. The kick off has been arranged for 4:15 and the Brantford bunch will have a fast line up selected from the following: Short, Johnson, Matthews, Doud, Smith, Johnson, Douch, Hardy, Wright, Huges, Mitchell, Budd, Graver, Frank, Hart, Hughes, Williams, Davis, Tyler.

First Letter From 1914 Red Sox to the President

30 Mile Station, April 6, 1914.
Mr. Nelson, President Brantford B. B. C.,
Dear Sir—As soon as I received your letter advising me that you would give me a trial this spring to make your team I left home and am now on my way to report to your manager in Brantford. As you sent no advance money, I am trying to get there as best I can. This travelling without funds, reminds me very much of a baseball game each time I try to slide in a box car. I always find a railroad man there to put me out, and would you believe it, I never have a chance to kick. All the kicking that is done, finds me on the receiving end. But one thing you can depend on is that when I arrive in Brantford you will see the coolest pitcher that has ever appeared in the Canadian League. I have eaten nothing but snowballs for two days. This morning I knocked at a door and asked the lady of the house if she would kindly fill one of Mr. Nelson's pitchers. Her reply was: "If the rest of Mr. Nelson's dishes are as dirty as you it is about time he was married, and if you don't move out of my yard mighty quick, he will soon own a cracked pitcher." As I go to sleep at night, I say this little piece:

Now I lay me down my head,
Upon this box car floor;
I pray the brakeman overhaul
Won't hear me if I snore.
 Hoping to arrive in Brantford in time, I remain,
Yours sincerely,
HARD GOING.

Forgue Is Recovering.

(St. Thomas Times.)
Gil Forgue had his nose treated again yesterday, and with one or two more treatments it will be all right again. Forgue's nose has never been right since Schuman, the Guelph hurler, beamed Gil on his smelling apparatus in 1912. With these treatments, however, Forgue's nose will be as good as ever.

President Denham of the Peterboro baseball club, received a letter from Outfielder Willie Swartz stating that although he thought he ought to have an increase in salary, he was willing to sign up at the old terms. President Denham will turn the case over to Manager Blount and let him deal with Swartz as he sees fit. The Reading boy is the only one of the original Templin White Caps now held by the Peterboro club.

Just one more month and the crowds will gather at Pinafore Park to see St. Thomas do battle with Shaughnessy and his bunch of ball-tossers from the Capital.

Tarzan of The Apes

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright, 1912, by the Frank A. Munsey Company.

For a few minutes that seemed hours, to the frightened girl she sat with tense nerves waiting. She heard a sudden, slight sound behind her. With a shriek she sprang to her feet and turned to face her end.

There stood Tarzan, his arms filled with ripe and luscious fruit. Jane Porter reeled and would have fallen, but Tarzan, dropping his burden, caught her in his arms. She did not lose consciousness, but clung to him, shuddering and trembling.

Tarzan of the apes stroked her soft hair and tried to comfort and quiet her as Kala had him when as a little ape he had been frightened by Sabor, the tiger, or Hlath, the snake.

Once he pressed his lips lightly upon her forehead, and she did not move, but closed her eyes and sighed. She could not analyze her feelings, nor did she wish to attempt it. She was satisfied to feel the safety of those strong arms and to leave her future to fate.

As she thought of the strangeness of this she commenced to dawn upon her the realization that she had possibly learned something she had never known before—love. She wondered and then smiled.

Still smiling, she pushed Tarzan gently away, and, looking at him with a half quizzical expression that made her face wholly entrancing, she pointed to the fruit upon the ground and seated herself upon the edge of the earthen drum of the anthropoids.

Tarzan quickly gathered up the fruit and, bringing it, laid it at her feet, and then he, too, set upon the drum beside her and with his knife proceeded to open and prepare the various viands for her meal.

Together and in silence they ate, occasionally stealing sly glances at one another, until finally Jane Porter broke into a merry laugh in which Tarzan joined. "I wish you spoke English," said the girl.

Tarzan shook his head, and an expression of wistful and pathetic longing sobered his laughing eyes. Tarzan had long since reached a decision as to what his future procedure should be. He had had time to reflect all that he had read of the ways of men and women in the books at the cabin. He would not as he imagined the men in the books would have acted were they in his place.

Again he rose and went into the trees, but first he tried to explain by means of signs that he would return shortly, and he did so well that Jane Porter understood and was not afraid when he had gone. Soon he returned with a great armful of branches.

Then he went back again into the jungle and in a few minutes reappeared with a quantity of soft grasses and ferns. Two more trips he made until he had quite a pile of material at hand.

Then he spread the ferns and grasses upon the ground in a soft, flat bed, and above it he heaped many branches together so that they met a few feet over its center. Upon these he spread layers of huge leaves of the great elephant's ear, and with more branches and more leaves he closed one end of the little shelter he had built.

Then they sat down together again upon the edge of the drum and tried to talk by signs. The magnificent diamond locket which hung about Tarzan's neck had been a source of much wonderment to Jane Porter. She pointed to it now, and Tarzan removed it and handed it to her.

She saw that it was the work of a skilled artisan and that the diamonds were of great brilliancy and superbly set, but the cutting of them denoted that they were of a former day. She noticed that the locket opened, and, pressing the hidden clasp, she saw the two halves spring apart to reveal in either section an ivory miniature.

One was of a beautiful woman, and the other might have been the likeness of the man who sat beside her except for a difference of expression that was scarcely definable. She looked up at Tarzan to find him leaning toward her, gazing on the miniatures with an expression of astonishment. He reached out his hand for the locket and took it away from her, examining the likenesses within with unmistakable signs of surprise and new interest.

His manner clearly denoted that he had never before seen them nor imagined them the locket opened. This fact caused Jane Porter to indulge in still more speculation, and it taxed her imagination to picture how this beautiful ornament came into the possession of a wild and savage creature of the unexplored jungles of Africa.

Pointing to the miniature of the man within the locket, he handed the photograph to Jane Porter, holding the open locket beside it. The photograph only served to puzzle the girl still more, for it was evidently another likeness of the same man whose picture rested in the locket beside that of the beautiful young woman.

Tarzan was looking at her with an expression of puzzled bewilderment in his eyes as she glanced up at him. He seemed to be framing a question with his lips.

The girl pointed to the photograph and then to the miniature and then to him, as though to indicate that she thought the likenesses were of him, but he only shook his head, and then, shrugging his great shoulders, he took the photograph from her and, having carefully rewrapped it, placed it again in the bottom of his quiver.

For a few moments he sat in silence, his eyes bent upon the ground, while Jane Porter held the little locket in her hand, turning it over and over in an endeavor to find some further clue that might lead to the identity of its original owner.

At length a simple explanation occurred to her. The locket had belonged to Lord Greystoke. The likenesses were those of him and Lady Alice. This wild creature had simply found it in the cabin by the beach. But to account for the strange likeness between Lord Greystoke and this forest god—that was quite beyond her, and it is not strange that she did not imagine that this savage was indeed an English nobleman.

At length Tarzan looked up to watch the girl as she examined the locket. She noticed that he was watching her, and, thinking that he wished his ornament again, she held it out to him. He took it from her, and, taking the chain in his two hands, he placed it about her neck, smiling at her expression of surprise.

Jane Porter shook her head vehemently and would have removed the golden links from about her throat, but Tarzan would not let her. Taking her hands in his, he held them tightly to prevent her.

At last she desisted and with a little laugh raised the locket to her lips and, rising, dropped him a little courtesy. Tarzan did not know precisely what she meant, but he guessed correctly that it was her way of acknowledging the gift, and so he rose, too, and, taking the locket in his hand, stooped gravely like some courtier of old and pressed his lips upon it where hers had rested.

It was a stately and gallant little compliment, performed with the grace and dignity of utter unconsciousness of self. It was the hall mark of his aristocratic birth.

It was growing dark now, and so they ate again of the fruit which was both food and drink for them, and then Tarzan rose and, leading Jane Porter to the little bower he had erected, motioned her to go within.

For the first time in hours a feeling of fear swept over her, and Tarzan felt her draw away as though shrinking from him. To reassure her Tarzan did the only thing he knew. He removed his hunting knife from his sheath and handed it to her, and she, again motioning her into the bower.

The girl understood, and, taking the long knife, she entered and lay down upon the soft grasses, while Tarzan of the apes stretched himself upon the ground across the entrance.

And thus the rising sun found them in the morning. When Jane Porter awoke, slowly the consciousness of her position crept one by one into her mind. Then a great wonderment rose in her heart, a mighty wave of thankfulness and gratitude that, though she had been in such terrible danger, yet she was unharmed.

She moved to the entrance of the shelter to look for Tarzan. He was gone. But this time no fear assailed her, for she knew that he would return. In the grass at the entrance to her bower she had lain all night to guard her. She knew that the fact that he had been there was all that had permitted her to sleep in such peaceful security.

She looked up to see his lithe form drop softly from a nearby tree. As he caught her eyes upon him his face lighted with that frank and radiant smile that had won her confidence the day before.

As he approached her Jane Porter's heart beat faster and her eyes brightened as they had never done before at the approach of any man. He had again been gathering fruit, which he laid at the entrance of her bower. Once more they sat down together to eat.

Jane Porter commenced to wonder what his plans were. Would he take her back to the beach, or would he keep her here? Suddenly she realized that the matter did not seem to give her much concern. Could it be that she did not care? She could not understand it. Her reason told her that she should be torn by wild anxieties. Instead, her heart was singing.

When they had finished their breakfast Tarzan went to her bower and recovered his knife. Motioning her to follow, Tarzan walked toward the trees at the edge of the arena and, taking her in one strong arm, swung to the branches above.

Thoughts for Easter

Because he lived this world begins to live today, and of its spiritual birth this day is the anniversary.—Edward Everett Hale.

A legend of the Greek church tells us that our Lord used to feed the robins round his mother's door when he was a boy; moreover, that the robin never left the sepulcher till the resurrection and at the ascension joined in the angels' song.

Across the sea the light brought joy to many a ship, and, glancing on the shore, ten thousand spires flashed the glad illumination and trembled to the rolling organ beneath that sounds forth the Christian's exultation. It is the Lord's day and the annual day of resurrection.—Henry Ward Beecher.

There are great merits about Easter as an annual feast day. It says to us: "Put on your best clothes, think your best thoughts and be as good and happy as you can. The Lord of Christendom is risen. The spring is coming back. Life begins again in the fields and parks and gardens. Let us be grateful to our Maker for life; let us rejoice in the present all we honestly can and take as hopeful a view of the future as common sense permits."—Edward S. Martin in "Times and Seasons."

CARDS FOR EASTER.

They Vie With Christmas Messages In Popularity Nowadays.

The pretty custom of sending appropriate cards at Easter June grows in favor with every year, and the makers of these dainty trifles are beginning to find almost as many calls upon their ingenuity and their skill to meet the Easter as to supply the Yuletide demand. They no longer hold exclusively to the religious character of the spring festival, as they did for a long time, or to the pictured celebrations of the legends dear to childhood hearts.

And every pretty thought of cards, dealing with these themes, they now reach out for motives that deal solely with the signs of awakening spring and with the thoughts and emotions that these arouse even among those who do not respond to the religious interpretation of the day.

Among these year's cards, there are many quite elaborate and varied presentations of the rabbit and the egg motifs. There are cut out varieties of ingenious construction and varied employment, dainty maids rising out of flowers or eggs and flower cards and booklets in artistic coloring and with appropriate inscriptions in the greatest variety.

A humorous note has been essayed by some daring designers, and there are little girls in old fashioned attire leading choirs of rabbits, dainty chickens devoting themselves to music, chubby babies struggling with hand-boxes, while grotesque rabbits look on in wonder. The postcards include every variety of motive—humorous, moral, animal and religious.

THE MEANING OF THE RESURRECTION.

By CARDINAL GIBBONS.

The resurrection of Christ is the most signal and splendid evidence of his divinity. It is the keystone in the arch of faith, as it is the most brilliant luminary in the constellation of Christian festivals.

A certain religious enthusiast named Leberaux once submitted to Talleyrand a project he entertained of founding a new religion and asked the French statesman's views as to the feasibility of the undertaking.

"You will certainly succeed," replied Talleyrand, "and your name will go down with glory to posterity if you fulfill the conditions which I propose." "And what are they?" eagerly inquired the visitor. "You must first suffer, be scourged and crucified, and then rise on the third day. Do this and your success is assured." This reply extinguished the zeal of the would be reformer.

The moral of the witty Frenchman's remark is that as Christ alone, after entering the portals of the tomb, returned by his own power to life he is without a rival. He alone has made good his claim to found a new religion and to merit the supreme adoration of mankind.

April Crop Bulletin
Is Optimistic One

New Fall Wheat Looks Promising—Orchards Have Wintered Well—Reports on Other Crops.

The following information regarding agricultural conditions in this province is contained in a bulletin prepared by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, based upon information furnished by a large staff of correspondents under date of April 1st.

Fall Wheat.—The new fall wheat, according to the November returns, has found a good seed bed, and was then looking strong and promising. The crop is starting April in nearly the same condition in which it entered the winter, having received but little injury from the low temperatures occurring at times during January, February and March, as the fields were nicely protected by snow. A few reports describe the young plants as looking rather brown, but the bulk of the crop is in good condition. The appearance of the crop as most encouraging. However, the first half of April with its tendency to freeze by night and thaw by day is considered the critical time for fall wheat and clover, and that period has yet to be encountered.

Clover.—This crop, like fall wheat, has so far come nicely through the winter. Should it escape injury from heaving during the first couple of weeks, April pastures will get off to an excellent start.

Fruit trees.—Notwithstanding the unusually low temperatures that were registered at times during the winter, orchards have come through in a fairly satisfactory way. Reports are frequent that peach buds have been more or less frozen, but the actual injury will not be known until the period of blossoming. So far however, no serious loss is apprehended from root freezing. A number of the more tender bush fruits were nipped by the severe cold, but no serious harm is anticipated. Judging by the remarks of some correspondents, however, the San Jose Scale and the tent caterpillar are more to be feared by fruit raisers than occasional dips in temperature during midwinter. Scattering reports of injury to young orchard trees by field mice and rabbits were received from several counties.

Live Stock.—The wintering of live stock caused anxiety to many farmers owing to the severe cold occurring during winter, but some correspondents claim that the rather steady cold weather was much better carrying farm animals through than in the case of a so-called mild winter.

Horses, with the exception of some cases of distemper, wintered well, and are generally in excellent shape for spring work, although perhaps a little lean from economical feeding. Unfortunately at present there is less demand for horses than far any other class of live stock.

Cattle have also wintered well, and are remarkably free from disease. Dairy cows are described as being thin but thrifty, the result of the careful feeding demanded by the comparatively sparse stores of fodder. Both fat and store cattle are in good trim generally, but are scarcer than in recent years, as the great demand in the fall for all kinds of beef cattle made a big clearing. The cattle on hand are much younger than in former years, many of them being yearlings, as most of the beef cattle are now turned off at about two years. Several correspondents state that most of the calves are now being kept on the farm, and where sold are commanding higher prices than ever before.

Sheep are reported to have come through the winter in prime condition, but they are fewer in number than they should be.

Swine are being marketed regularly, there being a steady and strong demand for this class of live stock. The chief incident of the winter has been the large number of hogs in many counties of the province subject to a crippling which is described by some as a stiffening of the hind quarters, while others allude to it as a form of rheumatism. Several correspondents ascribe the trouble to injudicious feeding; others assert that the animals lacked a supply of earth or charcoal, which they believe is essential to a hog's good digestion during its winter confinement; others, again, lay the blame on centric floors and a lack of sufficient bedding during the severity of the winter. Young pigs have been the chief sufferers from this complaint.

Fodder Supplies.—Careful winter feeding of live stock is now a habit with the farmers of this province, and fodder supplies are much more economically and effectively used than in former years. In nearly every county there has been full sufficient for all needs, although in a few instances it had to be purchased for local emergencies. Straw has been scarce, and its excellent feeding value has constrained many farmers to be rather too sparing of its use for bedding in the stable. Roots are helping to make the rations succulent for live stock until the animals get on the grass and there is a sufficiency on hand. Grains of all kinds are somewhat scarce, but with careful handling the supply will be equal to the demand. Corn in the form of either stover or ensilage is not so plentiful as in recent years, but there is enough to help to keep things going until the pastures are ready. Every year our farmers have a good word to say of corn as stand-by for the raiser of live stock.

Military Notes

B Company's Social.
In the men's institute at the Armories last night "B" held a smoker, and whilst tournament. Capt. Newman loaned his Amberola, and musical selections gave color to the night's pleasure.

"Roamin' in the gloamin'" sang Harry Lauder as the five tones started into what proved a keen and sporting series of games.

The prize winners were as follows: 1st Pte. J. Woods; 2nd Sergt. A. T. Pickles; 3rd Pte. S. Taylor; 4th Pte. W. Bingham; 5th, Pte. J. Casey.

The winners "rumped home" just as the Amberola rendered "The Manhattan Beach March" and its appropriateness equalled their overflow of excitement. The evening was devoted afterwards to song. In the absence of Capt. Newman at the commencement of the affair Pte. J. Casey acted as croupier. The first call for an artist was replied to with sarcastic brevity in the cryptic remark "Nex' week," the gentleman being engaged with a "Rathburn" non-intoxicating ginger ale. Greater success was met with when Pte. Howlins rendered "Molly My Irish Molly," which was chorused by the entire, throaty but enthusiastic conferees. Almost all present gave a contribution vocally and while all helped to make the social a success, the outstanding numbers were sung by Ptes. Lockyer, Woods, Casey and "Scotch Sammy" outbravied Harry Lauder on the Amberola, as he sang "I'm a Scotch Coon Frae Inverary."

Short addresses were delivered by the officers present. Col. Howard, Capt. Colquhoun and Capt. W. Newman, their popular company officer, who received three cheers and an Indian at the conclusion of his remarks. All three officers emphasized an agreeable feature of this year's camp; the pay to be $1.75 a day for privates and N. C. O's, in addition to staff pay, to receive a bonus of 75c per diem. This will mitigate the trouble which has previously kept many keen soldiers from participating in the training period at Niagara. With a $1.75 guaranteed for five days most men will be able to maintain themselves throughout their absence from civilian employment and at the same time enjoy an excellent holiday.

Refreshments were enjoyed and the only regret was that through an unfortunate error in a local paper, many would not know that the affair was to be held last night.

Recruits are requested to enroll as early as possible in order that camp arrangements can be completed and individual comfort ensured therefrom.

Cadet Notes.
Major Butcher and Major Marshall were yesterday in the city superintending the shooting of B. C. I. Cadets, in their preparatory courses for Bisley. About twenty of the corps' cracksmen competed and live made 200 points out of the possible 280. The test was an exceedingly stiff one of deliberate and rapid firing and the results are very satisfactory from a musketry standard.

G Company Meet.
The annual business meeting of G Company under Capt. William Miller took place last night and the members were enthusiastic over the prospects. Eight recruits have been added this spring and G Company will soon be the banner company of the regiment. The annual theatre party will be held April 22. Arrangements are being made for a euchre party and smoker next week. The committee elected last night were as follows:

Representative to the Rifle Association: Col. Sergt. Davis.
Representative to Athletic association: Pte. Malloy.
Representative to Men's Mess committee: Pte. Davis.
Frederick W. Miller
Rifle Committee: Chairman, Sergt. King, Sergt. Bellingham, Ptes. Glynn, Stanley Philpott.
Entertainment Committee: Chairman, Lieut. Frederick W. Miller, Sergt. Branson, Ptes. Butler, North and Webb.
Sports Committee: Chairman, Lt. W. A. Burrows, Col. Sergt. Davis, Pte. Price, Williams, Solman.

QUICK BARGAIN.

OUR YOUNG FO

Lost In The Storm Story of Two Brave Boys

A GENUINE January blizzard had suddenly set in. No one had expected this unwelcome visitor, for not even the Weather Prophet had heralded the storm's coming. It crept upon the people in a certain part of the country and took them unawares.

Two boys, Paul and Lloyd Quincey, cousins, had decided to spend Saturday and Sunday with some friends in the country, and had made an early start on Saturday morning from their respective homes in town. They loved the five-mile walk over the crisp winter roads, and had planned to walk the entire way to their friend's home, a farm just five miles from town.

The first two miles were covered without the slightest change in things. Then the sky became suddenly overcast, and both boys looked up to see a dark grey mass coming from the west. "Well, where did the grayness come from?" and Paul went on to say, "The sun was shining ten minutes ago. This cloud, which seems to cover the entire heavens, has crept upon us like a thief."

And then the air changed, and little gusts of wind came whipping over the land. "Go!" exclaimed Lloyd, "it's threatening a storm, or I'm no judge of a sky."

"Why don't you say it's threatening a blizzard?" grinned Paul, "for that's about the size of it. Only a Northern blizzard upon you like a thunderbolt from a clear sky. I'm wondering whether or not we'd best turn our faces homeward."

Lloyd gave a searching look around the heavens. Then he said, "No, we'll reach Grant's place before the blizzard can break. We're only about three miles from there now. Let's push on. I hate turning back—for it seems cowardly. Even a blizzard couldn't become so fierce within an hour as to hide our road."

"But we may be farm-bound for a week," observed Paul. "That would mean missing school for several days. And neither of us can afford to lose out on attendance. Haven't missed a day this term, so far."

"Oh, a blizzard in this part of the world never lasts over twenty-four hours," said Lloyd. "Just think how disappointed the Grant children would be if we were not to put in an appearance. And the old folks are as fast as our feet. Mrs. Grant always roasts a fat turkey in our honor, not to mention her pumpkin pies. And what's more, Stella Grant is making a drawn-throat something-or-other for Mother, and she phones in to say she'd send it to Mother by me. So we mustn't disappoint Stella and Mother."

Paul gave a sly grin at Lloyd, who blushed a bit and glanced round the sky. "Say, why don't you speak for yourself, John?" taunted Paul. "It's not Stella nor Mother who'd be so terribly disappointed. It's Lloyd, who has an eye for pretty Stella. And say, I don't blame you, old chap. Stella's the finest girl in this neck of the woods. I like her pretty well myself. Only, she prefers my noble-ing through the frosty air chills one quickly unless one is dressed against the weather. Not only good coats and cloaks, but caps with ear-muffs and warm hoods should be worn, for the ears become frost-bitten before one realizes they are even cold. And the hands and feet should be warmly dressed in mittens and overshoes. Many a very heavy cold has been contracted by children while coasting on account of their not being properly dressed for the sport.

COIN TRICKS. Take a small coin, a dime or a quarter, and with a penknife cut a small notch in the edge of it so that a tiny point of the metal will project. By pressing the coin hard against a door or wooden partition it will adhere mysteriously to the perpendicular surface.

Half fill a glass with water and put a dime into it. Cover the glass with a rubber fitting plate, upon which press one hand while you hold the glass with the other. Turn the glass upside down so as not to spill the water and place it on the table, plate-side down, and you will see the coin at the bottom larger than it is in reality, and another will appear, of the natural size, a little above it.

THE FISHES

WHERE do all the fishes live when the ice is on the pond? Is it possible for them 'neath the ice to swim around?

Really, I greatly fear That some very dreadful thing Will befall the little fish 'Twixt the autumn and the spring.

And when warmer days have come And I hie me to the brook I may sit and wait all day For a nibble at my hook.

And when evening shadows fall I may homeward trudge my way Without e'en a little fish To show how I have spent the day.

made him go "ugh!" He examined the obstacle into which he had run and found it to be a tree. "Whew!" he cried out to Lloyd, "we're off the road. We must be in that uncultivated tract belonging to Jackson's ranch. Here's a tree."

"And here's another," cried Lloyd, bringing up against the trunk of an immense tree. "Say, do you suppose we've come a mile off the road?" It was a mile from the section line to Jackson's timber. This may be the strip of grove belonging to Mr. Peters—half a mile north of the creek.

"But we haven't crossed the bridge yet," reminded Paul. "No, this is Jackson's timber, and we're at least three miles from any habitation. You see, while we have been getting farther away from town all the time, we have not been nearing Grant's farm. We've left Grant's to the north. Gee, we're in a pickle! How'll we get out of this? Can't we our way a dozen feet round?"

"We'll not give up," stammered Paul. "At least, we'll use all our grit and come out of the dilemma some way. Let's turn right round and keep going straight ahead. It ought to take us to the main road again."

"Well, if I'm not mistaken, Hattie Smith has looked more than twice at a certain brick-topped, freckled-faced chum and cousin of mine," laughed Lloyd. "And she's about as fine a girl as Stella. She's true blue, and has the finest mother and father—aside from our own, and Stella's—in the land."

And so the two boys went on their way, talking about their little school favorites and friends, and for the time almost forgot to notice the increasing storm. But presently the wind made them realize its force and temperature, which was below freezing degrees.

"Say, this is more than we bargained for," declared Paul, bending his head against the storm, which was now thundering about them in all its fury, snow and sleet filling the air and shutting off view of the landscape about them. "I'm afraid we've got more ahead of us than we can manage. I can't keep my eyes open."

As he spoke, he had to cover his eyes with his gloved hand, and the sleet cut into his face till he was obliged to close his eyes. And Lloyd was not faring any better. He, too, could not hold his eyes open save for a few seconds at a time, and when he did open them he could not see any thing but snow and sleet.

"Don't lose the road," warned Lloyd, gasping for breath, for the wind had whirled him about and took his breath from him. "Can you see the road, Paul?"

"I can't see it, but I can feel it," replied Paul. Then they went on in silence. But presently it seemed to be growing darker, although the day was only a few hours old. And then Paul ran against something which brought him to a standstill and blanks the form of a man. Near to him, leaning against the wall, was a fine rifle and an old-fashioned shot gun. Just above the weapons hung a huntsman's game bag and ammunition.

"We're two boys from town, and were on our way to the Grant farm when this blizzard came out of a clear sky. We got lost from the road and wandered here. I suppose you have no objection to our sharing your cabin and bed, sir?" said Paul.

"None," replied the man, rising on an elbow. "And I'm mighty glad the good Lord has answered my prayer. For two days and nights I have lain here with a broken ankle and sprained wrist. See—" and he pointed to his left leg and left arm. "I was felling a tree when the thing went wrong and took me right across the left shoulder. It threw me beneath it, but I managed to get out. But I found I was injured too much to leave two or three miles to Jackson's ranch house. So I got here as best I could and lay down. I had a bucket of water, fortunately, in the cabin, one I had fetched from the spring in the morning. So I have had drink. But no morsel of food has passed my lips for two days. But I don't mind my hunger. It's my hurts I am anxious about. I've bound my ankle and wrist as best I could with one hand. But the job was a bad one."

"We'll miss a half-day of school," reminded Paul, as they trudged along the snow-filled road. "But I don't mind that, so long as our getting lost meant just what it is in distress."

"That was just what I was thinking about," observed Lloyd. "Happening out to be less in disguise. If we hadn't got lost, we'd never have found the injured trapper, and he might have died through need of attention. I'm glad we got lost, so I am."

"Ditto here," affirmed his cousin.

BEAUTIFUL CHINESE PAGODAS

On the sides of many of these bricks that they are not very ancient, the oldest one being a little less than a thousand years old. At any rate, Chinese history informs us that "most of them were built during the Ming dynasty, 1366-1644. A magnificent white pagoda once stood in the hills west of Peking which was built of stamped bricks.

Since the Chinese in political affairs in China, many of the wisest men recommend that the pagodas be turned into modern schools, and that they no longer be used as parts of religious temples. But just what disposition will be made of them is yet to be seen. A writer, speaking of the pagodas, says: "Nothing can interfere with their grand beauty. Denied by birds and often dotted with vegetation, they are the pride and inspiration of the townspeople. They stand for generations like sentinels, often long after the temples of which they have been a part have disappeared. Pagodas are one of the noble gifts which Buddhism has conferred on China."

OXEN OF EUROPE. ALTHOUGH the slow, plodding ox disappeared from the United States with the passing of the "prairie schooner," he is still a popular draught animal in Europe. Switzerland is one of the best markets for oxen. The Swiss peasant finds them much better than horses for plowing hard ground in the Alpine districts. Oxen imported by Switzerland last year numbered over fifty thousand, and the average price paid was $140 per ox.

The Wild Chase Story of White Foot's Narrow Escape

IT WAS a very, very long way through a deep meadow, over a long hill, across a creek, frozen over, and then through another meadow skirted by heavy timber, to a place of safety. But little White Foot did not stop running to count the miles. All the thought about was the two hounds following her in hot pursuit.

White Foot was a beautiful rabbit, a dark form of immense size came over the hill before which White Foot had begun to give way. She felt she could never gain that ascent, for her legs were trembling beneath her. Her heart had almost ceased to beat.

The dark form came over the ledge of the hill quickly and began to descend right toward White Foot and her pursuers. She could see the hounds, the immense creature lifted its head, snorted, then bent his head and shook its long horns. Then it made a lunge toward the barking dogs, pawing the air for a second before the charge. Then the beast belched and the noise seemed to shake the very earth.

The hounds seemed to forget White Foot and turned their attention to the bull that had broken through a fence in the neighborhood and was out for a fierce time. He meant to destroy anything which came in his way, and the two hounds were the first to come in his path.

White Foot did not stop to watch the encounter between the bull and the two dogs. She could hear the roaring and the barking and snapping, and that was enough to give her hope. Evidently she was at liberty now to make her escape, for she had been beneath the noise of the roaring and the barking and snapping, and that was enough to give her hope.

White Foot did not stop to watch the encounter between the bull and the two dogs. She could hear the roaring and the barking and snapping, and that was enough to give her hope. Evidently she was at liberty now to make her escape, for she had been beneath the noise of the roaring and the barking and snapping, and that was enough to give her hope.

On and on went the three forms, dark against the white snow which lay like a great sheet over the land. The little form which ran in front was panting and frightened, her heart almost bursting. The two great forms coming behind were maddened by the scent of the warm little creature whose blood they desired to spill, and their tongues were hanging out and the cold air froze their breath about their noses. Their barking had almost ceased, for the cold was intense and they needed all their strength for running, having no energy to spare for barking.

"Oh, shall I never reach safety?" thought White Foot, becoming very weary after the first two miles. Her feet were covered. "I feel that I shall drop in my tracks and be devoured by the horrible monsters behind me. Oh, what shall I do?"

But as she talked mentally, White Foot renewed her efforts to get out of the reach of her deadly enemy. But she knew the dogs were gaining on her, for she could catch the sound of their paws beating against the hard snow. In vain did she endeavor to increase her speed. Her little legs were giving out. She looked ahead. It was just a long, long way to the edge of the great woods where safety was for her. Great hollow stumps and fallen logs, little, deep crevices in massive boulders, all were there to hide her. But she feared she would never, never reach the haven of the wood.

And now the dogs began to bark again, which told White Foot that they were gaining and gaining on her. She lay low and made an extra effort. Oh, how she suffered! Fear was cruel enough, but the continuous running at such a rate was almost killing, especially as the air White Foot took so rapidly into her little hot lungs felt like streams of ice. She was being sadly tortured after which two horsemen came galloping to the place where bull and hounds were trying to frighten each other, and separated the huge animal from his adversaries and drove him off to his pen.

Then the hounds, pretty well worn out, returned slowly to their home and forgot for the time all about the little creature whose life they had intended to take on that beautiful January morning. But so it is with dogs, you know, and these two hounds had been trained by their master to pursue the ant and catch and wound what creatures they called "game."

And so ended the greatest danger which had ever threatened little White Foot, and she remained to tell the tale to her friends. But not all rabbits are so fortunate as to meet an angry bull just in time to save them from the jaws of hounds, for bulls are not everywhere about, and even when they are near to the rabbit's quarters, they do not always succeed in breaking out of their pens.

On and On Went the Three Forms.

But so it is with dogs, you know, and these two hounds had been trained by their master to pursue the ant and catch and wound what creatures they called "game."

And so ended the greatest danger which had ever threatened little White Foot, and she remained to tell the tale to her friends. But not all rabbits are so fortunate as to meet an angry bull just in time to save them from the jaws of hounds, for bulls are not everywhere about, and even when they are near to the rabbit's quarters, they do not always succeed in breaking out of their pens.

On and On Went the Three Forms.

On and on went the three forms, dark against the white snow which lay like a great sheet over the land. The little form which ran in front was panting and frightened, her heart almost bursting. The two great forms coming behind were maddened by the scent of the warm little creature whose blood they desired to spill, and their tongues were hanging out and the cold air froze their breath about their noses. Their barking had almost ceased, for the cold was intense and they needed all their strength for running, having no energy to spare for barking.

"Oh, shall I never reach safety?" thought White Foot, becoming very weary after the first two miles. Her feet were covered. "I feel that I shall drop in my tracks and be devoured by the horrible monsters behind me. Oh, what shall I do?"

But as she talked mentally, White Foot renewed her efforts to get out of the reach of her deadly enemy. But she knew the dogs were gaining on her, for she could catch the sound of their paws beating against the hard snow. In vain did she endeavor to increase her speed. Her little legs were giving out. She looked ahead. It was just a long, long way to the edge of the great woods where safety was for her. Great hollow stumps and fallen logs, little, deep crevices in massive boulders, all were there to hide her. But she feared she would never, never reach the haven of the wood.

The Wild Chase Story of White Foot's Narrow Escape

IT WAS a very, very long way through a deep meadow, over a long hill, across a creek, frozen over, and then through another meadow skirted by heavy timber, to a place of safety. But little White Foot did not stop running to count the miles. All the thought about was the two hounds following her in hot pursuit.

White Foot was a beautiful rabbit, a dark form of immense size came over the hill before which White Foot had begun to give way. She felt she could never gain that ascent, for her legs were trembling beneath her. Her heart had almost ceased to beat.

The dark form came over the ledge of the hill quickly and began to descend right toward White Foot and her pursuers. She could see the hounds, the immense creature lifted its head, snorted, then bent his head and shook its long horns. Then it made a lunge toward the barking dogs, pawing the air for a second before the charge. Then the beast belched and the noise seemed to shake the very earth.

The hounds seemed to forget White Foot and turned their attention to the bull that had broken through a fence in the neighborhood and was out for a fierce time. He meant to destroy anything which came in his way, and the two hounds were the first to come in his path.

White Foot did not stop to watch the encounter between the bull and the two dogs. She could hear the roaring and the barking and snapping, and that was enough to give her hope. Evidently she was at liberty now to make her escape, for she had been beneath the noise of the roaring and the barking and snapping, and that was enough to give her hope.

And now the dogs began to bark again, which told White Foot that they were gaining and gaining on her. She lay low and made an extra effort. Oh, how she suffered! Fear was cruel enough, but the continuous running at such a rate was almost killing, especially as the air White Foot took so rapidly into her little hot lungs felt like streams of ice. She was being sadly tortured after which two horsemen came galloping to the place where bull and hounds were trying to frighten each other, and separated the huge animal from his adversaries and drove him off to his pen.

Then the hounds, pretty well worn out, returned slowly to their home and forgot for the time all about the little creature whose life they had intended to take on that beautiful January morning. But so it is with dogs, you know, and these two hounds had been trained by their master to pursue the ant and catch and wound what creatures they called "game."

PERTH OPPOSED TO PRISON FARM

Refuses to Join With Other Counties in the Proposition.

STRATFORD, Ont., April 9.—The Perth county council held its first meeting of the year yesterday afternoon and refused to fall in line with the proposition to have a prison farm for this county and those around it. The matter was brought before the session by Messrs W. Martin and W. Featherstone, who moved that a commissioner be appointed. The motion, however, did not go through. Mr. Squires of Norfolk County in speaking to the council concerning the matter urged that for the sake of economy as well as humanity the counties should have one prison farm. There are too many jails in his opinion, and they do more than most other things to increase the number of criminals. The estimated cost of such a farm would be $40,000, of which Perth's share would be $4,320 on a basis of population.

Waited upon by a Hydro radial delegation from the Stratford city council and board of trade, the county council listened to the story of the Hydro radial movement and carried a motion to the effect that it apply for estimates for the construction of Hydro lines and support the movement generally.

MAD DOG BITES FOUR PERSONS IN GUELPH

Beast Was Finally Shot by Constable—Head is Sent to Toronto.

GUELPH, April 9.—A mad dog created considerable excitement in that part of the city known as Brooklyn yesterday. It was a large collie, and had been acting strangely for several hours, but nobody had an idea that it was mad until it attacked Miss Gaughan on Bay street, as she was going up town. The beast bit her quite severely in the left forearm, and was only warded off the second time with great difficulty. It was frothing at the mouth in a manner which left no doubt as to its being mad.

After leaving Bay street it attacked and bit Mrs. Reid and tore on up to the Ontario Agricultural College, where two students were also attacked. It was finally shot on Forbes avenue by Constable McElroy, and the body taken to the police station, where the head was severed and shipped to the health department at Toronto for examination. Dr. H. O. Hewitt, medical officer of health, intends to take every possible precaution, and is insisting that the by-law regarding the tying of dogs be strictly enforced all over the city.

THE COUNTY COURT

Was Adjourned Yesterday Afternoon—Decision Reserved in One Case.

The semi-annual sittings of the County Court with a jury, were concluded at the Court House yesterday afternoon when His Honor reserved judgment in the Cocksbutt v. Levine case. After hearing the evidence pro and con, in this action His Honor decided that the matter required consideration and upon this ground he reserved judgment. When the case was finished the court rose. There were two other cases upon the list, that of Brown and Deagle, and Acme Pattern Company and Brantford Autocycles. These cases being adjourned, because witnesses were not present who were necessary for the hearing.

Thus it comes about that out of eight cases entered on the list, only two were heard by the end of the session. The cases concerning the Brantford Autocycle Company's action against Mayor Spence, W. A. Hollinrake and McIntyre, will be the subject of a special sitting. One case was settled out of court, that of Cocksbutt and Crouch and two were adjourned. The only case to come to an issue was that of Brantford Metal Co. and Sukernek in which defendant was given judgment and damages on his counter claim of $550.

THE KING CONFIDENT

King George visited the Aero and Marine exhibition at Olympia on Monday and spent nearly two hours inspecting the exhibits.
His Majesty paid particular attention to the British-made machines. He spent some time in examining the stand occupied by Messrs. Vickers, where the "Fighting Biplane" proved of great interest. This, the latest type of war engine, carries a pilot, a gunner, 300 rounds of ammunition and fuel and oil sufficient for a flight of four and a half hours at a speed ranging from 45 to 65 miles an hour.
"I am confident that we can build aeroplane engines equal to any in the world," was an opinion the King expressed when looking at the motors exhibited by the Green Engine Company. These are also of British design and construction. The exhibition will remain open until April 25.

EXILED SPANIARDS REACH TEXAS

Villa Strips Northern Mexico of Its Population of King Alfonso's Subjects.

EL PASO, April 9.—With dawn this morning came a bleak wind and dark skies, a fitting setting for the entry into a strange country of over 700 Spanish exiles from Torreon. With their removal, Northern Mexico is practically stripped of its entire population, which a few years ago numbered thousands. The exile of the Spaniards is the result of one of the first acts of Pancho Villa after he had captured Torreon. The work of clearing the streets of corpses and searching for the last Federal stragglers had not yet been completed before the order expelling Spaniards from Torreon was given. So important did he consider the work of ridding the Laguna district of Spaniards that he sent a meagre personal belongings and go to the station where, under heavy guard, they entrained and were hurried to the border. It was early morning when the refugee train arrived. In the coaches the women and children had been riding, while the men were given quarters in box cars and cabooses. In the chill morning the train arrived at the Juarez railway station and remained there until dawn, the refugees huddled in the cars and in the yards, afraid to leave the train in the rebel border town.

In spite of the fact that their property had been confiscated, those who were the wealthiest have assisted the poorer ones in such ways as they could, and none of the refugees are destitute.

CATHCART

(From our own correspondent.)
Rev. Mr. Neill occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church on Sunday night. Owing to the bad state of the roads the attendance was small.
A meeting was held last week in the interests of the sidewalk, to consider which side of the road it should be on. Some suggest to commence at the school house and extend as far west as the Lover's Glen. Others think it best to start at Mr. Joseph Chant's and go west as far as Mr. Shoemaker's. It has not been decided yet where it will commence or where it will end.
Mr. and Mrs. Kinsella entertained a number of their friends on Monday night.
Miss Davis of New Ontario has returned to her home after spending a few weeks the guest of Miss Lockyer.
Mr. A. Sweeney is moving from Hamilton to Cathcart where he has purchased a farm, a little north of the village.

"GIN PILLS ARE WONDERS"

Says Prominent Winnipeg Newspaper Man. "Before I Used The Second Box, The Pain Had Left"

"Manitoba Free Press"
Winnipeg, Jan. 15th, 1913
"I think it only right that I should tell you about the benefits I received the last couple of weeks by using GIN PILLS. I was troubled for over three weeks with a pain in my back, and tried a number of remedies without any benefit. One of the reporters had also been troubled the same way and he said to me, 'Why don't you use GIN PILLS? I used a box and a half and the pain left.' He said 'You take this other half of the box and get another box, and you will be all right'. I am glad to inform you that before I used all of the second box, I felt myself all right again and the pain had left. I certainly think 'GIN PILLS' are wonders."
