The Earl's Son; TWO HEARTS UNITED

CHAPTER XVI.

He sighed heavily and made a despairing gesture with his hand.

"But it's too late for regrets. I've blurted out the truth, and—and I'll take my punishment like a man. Why don't you laugh?" he broke out desperately.

But there was no laughter in her heart, only a delirious joy which shamed while it dowered her.

"I'm sorry!" at last broke tremulously from her lips.

"Sorry!" he echoed, penitently, his mood changing to bitter self-reproach. "Why should you be sorry? Why should the star be sorry because it shines on a puddle? You can't help being what you are! God made you so. You are a queen of women, while I—am just worthy to kneel at your feet and adore you, and that's all."

There was a moment of silence; then he raised his head which had sunk on his chest.

"I'll—I'll say good-bye. I don't expect you to forgive me—"

The note in his broken voice went straight to Veronica's heart and said, "Here is your master."

The woman's longing, craving to yield possessed her.

"Forgive!" she murmured, scarcely conscious that she had spoken.

He drew a step nearer, all his being tense and strained.

"You—you forgive me! You do not laugh!" he breathed. "Then—then I can go away happy—with pleasant memories—" He was silent a moment, then he went on in a low voice: "I shall not be able to believe this. Will you give me some sign? That handkerchief: I've worn it next my heart—give it back to me—"

She took the handkerchief from

THE BLESSING OF MOTHERHOOD

Healthy Mothers and Children Make Happy Homes

Motherhood is woman's highest sphere in life. It is the fruition of her dearest hopes and greatest desires; yet thousands of noble women through some derangement have been denied this blessing. In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong. This is evidenced by the following letters which are genuine and truthful:

London, Ont.—"I wish to thank you for the benefit I received by taking your famous medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before my baby was born I was so ill I could not stand long or walk any distance. I had to lie down nearly all the time. After I took your medicine I felt like a new woman. I could work from morning till night and was happy and well. I certainly think it relieves pain at childbirth and recommend it to every woman who is pregnant. You may use this testimonial if you like. It may help some other woman."—Mrs. FRANK CORNIN, 132 Adelaide St., London, Ont.

Brooklyn, N.Y.—"I was ailing all the time and did not know what the matter was. I wanted a baby but my health would not permit it. I was nervous, my side ached and I was all run down. I heard that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was good and took the medicine. I have now a beautiful baby and your Compound has helped me in every way."—Mrs. J. J. STEWART, 299 Humboldt St., Brooklyn, N.Y.

her bosom and held it out to him, her eyes on his.

He came nearer and stretched out his hand for it. His hand touched hers and an electric thrill ran like lightning through both of them. Unconsciously he fell on his knees, his hand and hers still touching.

"Oh, it's hard to go!" broke from him.

Her face drooped lower, like a beautiful flower, until it was close to his.

"Then—don't go!" she whispered. For a moment doubt, incredulity held him, then his soul leapt to the heights her whisper had opened to him, and springing to his feet he clasped her in his arms.

She did not repulse him. Her head drooped, as it had drooped the day he had carried her, and, when his lips sought hers she did not refuse them. "I'm—I'm dreaming!" he said, hoarsely. "You can't—you can't—"

Her face lightened with a divine smile.

"It is so pleasant a dream?" she murmured. "Let me share it for—I love you!"

He cried out inarticulately and pressed her to him; and she still yielded herself. Then she suddenly grew rigid, her eyes became fixed and fearful, and turning he saw the earl standing at the entrance to the arbour and regarding them with a face like that of that one of the stone statues on the terrace.

CHAPTER XVII.

There was something appalling in the old man's stone-like face, in the rigid, colourless lips, the face in which the only living thing seemed the eyes, that gleamed like mica under the bent brows.

Veronica shrank back for a moment and caught her breath, but Ralph, after an instant of stupefaction, drew himself up and met the terrible eyes steadily.

The earl's glance passed over him and rested like a blight on Veronica.

"I beg you to pardon me for this intrusion," he said in a voice that struck like ice and cut like a whip in its infinite scorn. "I do not usually play the eavesdropper; but I may, perhaps be excused on this occasion, seeing that the lady who has disgraced herself bears my name and is—or was—under my care and in my charge."

Ralph's face grew dark and his eyes flashed.

"Disgraced, my lord—" broke from him.

"Silence!" interrupted the earl, as icily impassive as before. "I want to speak to—this lady. Leave us."

Ralph shook his head.

"No," he said. "My place is by her side, my lord—until she tells me to go."

Lord Lynborough bent his gaze on Veronica.

"Do you accept that?" he asked, sternly, but with a kind of contemptuous indifference.

Veronica held out her hand to Ralph, and he took it.

"I do, my lord," she said in a low, but perfectly clear voice. "The fault is mine. I accept all the responsibility."

For the first time the earl smiled: a bitter smile.

"I agree," he said. "It is always the woman's fault, and she bears the consequences. That you encouraged this man I have no doubt. I had intended to address you alone; but, as you chose that he should remain—" He shrugged his shoulders, paused a moment, then went on: "I gather from the words I heard to-day and yesterday—yes, I was here—that you have condescended to plight your troth to—my gamekeeper?"

Veronica raised her head and regarded him steadily.

"Yes," she said, quietly, but as proudly as if Ralph had been her equal, her superior.

The earl inclined his head.

"Thanks! You are candid. I gather, from my eavesdropping, that this—intrigue has been in progress for some time."

"If you mean that I have met him, have grown to love him, yes," replied Veronica. Each moment her courage was rising, the Denby spirit was in her low, clear voice, in her starlike eyes, and Ralph's heart was throbbing with pride in her. "You do not know all; you do not know that he saved my life—"

"No, no!" Ralph murmured; but she went on steadily, though her lips trembled:

"That of all the men I have met, he is the bravest, the most kindly—"

"I will ask you to spare me your rhapsodies," broke in the earl, with a wave of his hand. "We will accept your infatuation as an established fact. I merely asked from curiosity, and, yes, a desire to ascertain if it were possible for me to stretch out a hand and save you from the degradation to which you are sinking."

Veronica's eyes flashed and the color dyed her cheek.

"Degradation, my lord?"

"Do you wish to argue the point?" he said, deliberately. "You had best be seated, for it will take some few minutes."

She sank on to the seat, but motioned Ralph to stand near her. As he did so he turned to the earl.

"The fault is mine—I am answerable—" he began, hoarsely, but the earl would not hear him.

"Be silent," he said, sternly. "I will address myself to you presently. Now, Veronica, we will take your infatuation for granted. I will do this man the justice to admit that the blame rests with you. I have heard every word. I know that he has struggled to resist you—that he failed. It is a tribute to your charms—"

She made to rise, stung by the cold, impassive voice, but sank down again with a gesture of forced patience.

"That you have exerted those charms to fascinate him, I can well believe; no man forgets his place so soon unless he has had great encouragement, provocation. The devil made woman to tempt, the man to yield—"

Ralph's face flamed and he opened his lips, but the earl motioned him to silence.

"You have tempted this man to the utmost—that he has yielded is no marvel. But have you considered the consequences? I think not. Woman rarely do. Have you considered that, if you carry this thing to its mad conclusion, you leave the Court and my protection, you lose Waynford, all I have willed to you, that you relinquish your place in society, that you become an outcast and a pariah—"

Ralph uttered an exclamation, but Veronica took his hand and pressed it, and a heavenly smile shone in her eyes.

"They are terrible words, my lord," she said; "but they do not frighten me. I shall not become an outcast by marrying an honest man." Her voice trembled with suppressed passion, then grew steady. "My lord, I am not ungrateful—"

He made a gesture of contemptuous repudiation.

"I do not forget all your kindness to me. I do not forget that you lifted me from a life of poverty to one of ease and luxury. You have been very good to me and—the tears rose to her eyes—"it hurts me that I should seem indifferent, ungrateful. But, oh, my lord, I—I cannot help it! I—I love him with all my heart and soul. Let the consequences be what they may, I can not give him up. All the luxury in the world would be of no use to me without him. The consequences? Yes, I accept them. I am ready to share his life, to return to the old poverty, the old hard life—ah, but it will be no longer hard if he will share it with me!"

Ralph's heart throbbed, and he marvelled how any man could look upon that lovely face, listen to that sweet voice unmoved; the earl was still like a stone as he bent his head with icy courtesy.

"And I thought you proud!" he said, as if with self-contempt.

"Proud!" she echoed, as if she were looking back on her past life, a self that had slipped from her for ever.

"Yes, I suppose I was," a smile shone in her eyes. "Love casts out Pride, my lord," she added, softly.

The earl shrugged his shoulders.

"A noble sentiment," he said. "I have no more to say to you. Now, sir, for the few words I shall condescend to address to you."

Ralph drew his eyes slowly from the face of the woman he loved and fixed them on the earl's, and the two men regarded each other as duellists look into each other's faces when the sword play begins; then the earl's eyes grew contemplative and his frown deepened.

"There must be something in you out of the common to have won this lady's heart," he said; "and I will try and forget that you are my servant and appeal to you—yes! appeal to you as if we were for the moment on equal terms. At any rate, I will speak as man to man."

Ralph flushed and waited. The earl was silent while one could count twenty, then he said slowly, calmly: "My niece scorns the consequences of this mad act. But you? I take it that you—love her." It was a hard word to utter and it fell with a metallic note from his bloodless lips.

"Have you, too, considered what this infatuation of hers will cost her—not you, but her! Oh, be silent, until I have finished. Can you, who—love her, bear to see her degraded from the position in which she was born; can you accept the sacrifice she is prepared to make? Are you prepared to take advantage of her—weakness for you? Think! The sacrifice will not be momentary, temporary; it will endure for all her life; until the hour of her death she will be a mark for the scorn of the world, will be pointed at as the woman who married her uncle's servant. Can you realize what that means? I think not; but probably you can form some idea, however slight. It is bad enough when a man makes an unequal marriage and chains himself to an inferior; but for the woman who does so!" He shrugged his shoulders and smiled with a scornful pty.

The Eastern Trust Company!

The Eastern Trust Company has installed safety deposit boxes in its vault in the Pitts Building, Water Street. These boxes can be hired at a moderate rent by the year.

Persons making a will in which they appoint the Eastern Trust Company executor may deposit their wills in the vault of the Company without charge.

An impression has gone abroad that the Company charges a fee upon the making of a will which the Company is appointed executor. This is an error. The Company charges no fee until after the death of a testator and the Company has undertaken the execution of the trusts under the will. It then charges the same fee as is allowed to ordinary executors.

Next Week's Feature.

"THE CALL OF THE ANGELS" AT THE CRESCENT.

The week-end programme at the Crescent Picture Palace was by the large audiences last night commented very favorably upon. The series of pictures was perhaps the best for some time. The feature subject "His Indian Wife" was particularly good; the balance of the pictures and Miss Arkandy's song were also very enjoyable and will be the attraction again to-day. On Monday the opening bill will be a surprise for the patrons when the powerful interesting and fascinating feature is "The Call of the Angels," a subject that has created a sensation in the movie world, and which shows to advantage several of the greatest artists of the day. Other pictures and special music will also be shown, and a treat is in store for those who will attend. The Crescent is the last word in comfort and safety. The Palace is thoroughly clean and absolutely fire-proof.

Little Boy Had Miraculous Escape.

As a motor cycle was touring through Toppal at a fast clip on Thursday evening, an eight-year-old boy, belonging to that settlement, was run down and dragged about ten yards before the machine brought up. The boy, fortunately, escaped with a cut over the eye, but in the opinion of those who witnessed the mishap he had a miraculous escape from serious injury. Cycle drivers should exercise more discretion when in the suburbs, particularly at nightfall.

KEEP MINARD'S LINIMENT IN THE HOUSE.

At the City Hall.

The Chairman and full Board were present at yesterday's meeting of the Civic Commission.

The Committees for the term were announced as follows:—

- Water and Sewerage.—Messrs. Harris, Bradshaw, Jackman, Morris, McNamara.
- Sanitary.—Bradshaw, Morris and Mullaly.
- Lighting.—Jackman, Anderson.
- Clerks and Offices.—McNamara, Ayre and Anderson.
- Victoria Park.—Ayre, McGrath.
- Bannerman Park.—Withers, Harris.

West End Roads and Sidewalks.—Ayre, Mullaly, McGrath.

East End Roads and Sidewalks.—Jackman, Withers, Harris.

Mr. Mullaly suggested that some of the Inspectors move around on Saturday nights and enquire into the violation of the law regarding the depositing of waste matter in the streets.

The Premier, in reply to a communication referring to the condition of Waterford Bridge Road, stated that the matter was being attended to.

With reference to dumps, Mr. Ayre thought that the city was making land for private individuals, who encroached accordingly.

Mr. Harris complained of the annoyance caused the residents in the vicinity of Browning's Bridge, by the city dump in that locality.

An incinerator was suggested as a solution of the problem, with which suggestion the Chairman agreed, as he had seen satisfactory results elsewhere.

The Engineer was asked about the matter and, after considerable discussion it was decided to have the solicitor's opinion before dealing any further with the question.

The matter of substituting another dump for the one complained of was referred to the Sanitary Committee.

M. W. Furlong, solicitor for R. G. Reid, submitted plans of proposed street adjoining Forest Road, and requested that the Council open the street and lay water and sewerage.

The communication further intimated that the proposed street contained 14 lots which would in all probability be built upon.

The Engineer was instructed to outline the plan of the proposed street on the general plan of the city, so more definite knowledge may be ascertained before discussing the matter.

C. H. Bulley offered to supply improved receptacles for garbage. Not required.

H. S. Butler asked if the Board would continue the sewer to his proposed dwelling on LeMarchant Road. After a lengthy discussion it was decided that if Mr. Butler wants the service, he will have to stand the costs.

Application for repairs to houses were referred to the Engineer.

At this juncture Mr. Jackman protested against the Board having to deal with such trivial matters that could be satisfactorily done by the heads of the departments.

Many of the Board agreed with him, but Mr. Mullaly showed that they were acting in accordance with the Municipal Act.

A settlement of claim for compensation re depositing of garbage on Mrs. Hart's Land was ordered to be attended to.

The Engineer's report which contained a review of the past week's work was read.

The sprinkling problem was briefly discussed and some remedies were considered necessary, to which the Engineer will attend.

Mr. Harris again called attention to practice of throwing waste paper in the streets and to the condition of the sidewalks. Both matters will be attended to.

Mr. Morris requested that a rail be placed at the north side of the Long Bridge for the safety of the public. It will be attended to.

The Chairman then announced that a meeting will be held on Monday night to consider the matter of sewerage, after which the meeting adjourned at 5:45 p.m.

LONDON, July 10. A special despatch from Cairo to Egypt, says that Anglo-Egyptian members of the Ulster Volunteers have received cablegrams, calling them back to Ulster.

MONTREAL, July 10. The Allan officers reported that the steamship Calgarian had set a new transatlantic record for the passage to Canada by way of Cape Race from Liverpool, 6 days, 8 hours, 20 minutes. This is six hours less than the previous records held by the C.P.R. Expresses. It is expected that when the Calgarian takes the shorter route through the Straits of Belle Isle, the time will be shortened.

HALIFAX, To-day. The Provincial elections took place in Manitoba to-day. At midnight, the Winnipeg Free Press (Liberal) conceded the election of 22 Liberals, 24 Conservatives with three seats in doubt. The Winnipeg Telegram (Conservative), at the same hour claimed election of 26 Conservatives and 20 Liberals, with three places in doubt. Premier Roblin was elected with a reduced majority. The polling in three northern constituencies was deferred and will not take place for several weeks. The Roblin Government are probably sustained with a reduced majority.

BELFAST, July 10. The Provisional Government, formed by Ulster Unionists, at its first meeting to-day, gave Sir Edward Carson a free hand to take whatever action he may think necessary in calling Ulster Volunteers to arms. The men were declared to be ready for mobilization at a moment's notice. Carson, in a speech, declared that the time had come for the "loyalists" of Ulster to translate their words into action. He said something must be done to compel the British Government to make up its mind. Ulster, he concluded, was anxious for peace, but was not going to accept peace with surrender.

VANCOUVER, July 10. The Japanese owners of the Komagata Maru, have cabled refusal of aid to the Hindu passengers provisioning for the return trip across the Pacific. The owners claim that the charterers are, under their agreement, responsible for all supplies and similar expenses. The charter of the boat does not run out till September 27th. The Hindu passengers have appealed both to the city and the Dominion Government for aid; but the city has refused to extend any assistance, claiming that the Hindu Colony here should come to the relief of the East Indians on the boat, and provide for the return voyage.

LONDON, July 10. The News, commenting editorially on the announcement by the United States Ambassador at the Peace Centenary meeting in the Metropolitan Tabernacle, last night, that a new treaty between the United States, Great Britain, looking to a closer binding of the two countries, was being concluded, says: "This feat which has crowned Secretary Bryan's lifelong labour in the cause of peace, is the realization of the dream, with which Sir Edward Grey roused the House of Commons to an astonishing display of enthusiasm three years ago, but which the amiable weakness of President Taft was not strong enough to translate into action. 'Mr. Bryan's proposals,' the News concludes, 'are strictly practical, the object of referring dis-

Empress of Ireland Disaster.

Amongst those lost in the above mentioned Disaster was Mr. H. R. O'Hara, of Toronto. Mr. O'Hara was insured with the Railway Passengers Assurance Company Ltd. $5,000.00. The total amount which has been paid under this policy was $13,500.00, made up as follows:—

Original principal sum $5,000.00, plus accumulations $1,750.00 making in all $6,750.00. This doubled for travel accidents amounts to $13,500.00. Another point in connection with this case is that Mr. O'Hara carried $2,000.00 in the Canada Life, $2,000.00 in the Continental Life, $4,000.00 in the National Life, and $5,000.00 in the Sun Life totalling in all $13,000.00, the annual cost of which was $474.06. His policy with the Railway Passengers, which was a Combination Accident and Disease Policy, cost him $35.00 and for which his beneficiaries received in final settlement $13,500.00 as against $13,000.00 from the total of his Life policies and which as above stated cost him $474.06. These figures show the importance of not delaying in taking advantage of the benefits granted by the LONDON, July 10. Criticism of the bloated armaments of European Powers, were directed at Sir Edward Grey in the House of Commons, to-day. In reply Sir Edward declared that Britain had done her best, but her direct suggestions to foreign countries as to limitation of armaments, had been without any good result. On the contrary, they had been regarded, he said, as an attempt to limit their control of their own freedom of action, and had been resented accordingly. Sir Edward added that the most notable thing in Europe during the past year had not been the naval, but the military increase; and Britain had not been responsible for that.

WASHINGTON, July 10. With meditation proceedings at a standstill, interest in the Mexican situation to-day was focussed on developments in the Constitutionalists' military campaign that has reached a climax in the capture of Cuadajar, the second largest city in the Republic. While despatches from General Obregon, who led the latest revolutionary triumph, asserted that few of his men had been killed or wounded, yet official constitutionalist reports from El Paso, state that information received there asserted that losses were "numerous" on both sides. From Cuadajar Obregon intends to hurl his troops against Mexico City; distant about 300 miles. Constitutionalists agents in Washington say that the troops of General Obregon are adequate, although resistance by the Federals at some points on the route is anticipated.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office—its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Dishwashing Only Once a Day.

Of all the necessary things in housekeeping the one most disliked by the average woman is dishwashing. Times without number you hear the housewife's wail: "If it were not for washing dishes I would not mind the work." Yet this need not be such a dreadful task if you will step aside from the beaten path and wash the dishes only once a day.

Unless you have a larger family who require a quantity of dishes at each meal this is not only practicable but a big time saver.

Have ready two good-sized dish-pans, and after each meal scrape all scraps from the dishes to be washed, empty all liquid from cups and glasses, pans, putting the large plates in the bottom and the smaller ones on top.

In the second pan put all small pieces, vegetable dishes and small platters.

Stand the silver upright in a jug or pitcher, and pour over all enough very hot water, in which a good soap powder or a little washing soda has been dissolved, to cover.

Now let these dishes stand in their receptacles until the morning hours, when work is easiest.

The hot water will grow cold, but the grease from the dishes will be floating on top and can be scooped off first, then the water may be poured off.

This done, the dishes will be virtually clean and ready to be rinsed in steaming hot water.

After this, if you are a wise housekeeper, you will have a wire drainer ready to receive the dripping china, in which it can be placed on a decided slant and left to drain dry.

They are ready then for the next meal, clean, bright and polished.

Glasses should be quickly washed and dried after each meal; but that is a small matter if all the other dishes can be left until you are quite ready to "do" them.

Young, Pastor of the Cookstown Road Church, having returned from attending the Conference of the Seventh Day Adventists, held in both the Maritime and Quebec Provinces, will commence a series of five lectures, commencing with Sunday week, the 19th inst., on the question of Capital and Labor from a prophetic view point.

City Commission, Here and There.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—The letter from "Citizen" a few nights ago was to the point, and as far as I have heard ever since the first meeting of the new Commission, the comment of most of the newspapers on ex-Mayor Ellis' action finds no echo in public opinion. It is amusing to read in the Daily News a warning to the new Council to keep the "personal equation" out of sight, while a few mornings before it praised Mr. Ellis' action, which was the essence of an excited personal element, so different in fact from the accustomed actions of Mr. Ellis that it might be the reflex of another mind using Mr. Ellis' easy-going way. In one way the new Commission must be a criticism of the old Council, otherwise it would not be being. If the old methods were satisfactory then there would be no necessity for a change. And most people, I think, never expected that any of the old Council would be on the Commission. It is a burden that is on the promoters to show a better way of managing the city and to a great extent they should come to the task unfettered by a knowledge how it was done before, but to find new ways of doing things, and bring them to success as Mr. Herder brought the Telegram.

And certainly they should not be hampered by this "damning with faint praise" which the movement was viewed by the press, and the paper that has published idiotic and ridiculous verses about the actions of any of the Commissioners surely has not the welfare of the city at heart. The city is going to be just as good or as bad as the citizens make it and if everyone kept their own doorstep clean there would be less fault with the Council.

So let us help the Commissioners, for without our help they can do nothing.

I cannot help commenting on the most painful article that has appeared for many a day, which appeared in the News, Friday morning, and concerned a man, rescued from drowning. The trend of the article was that it were better he had not been saved, as his habits and character were so bad. Not long ago the Editor of the News asked: "Am I my brother's keeper?" Editorial platitudes, will take a long time to wipe out the stain of the revolting suggestion of this article which judged the poor individual of no value to the State.

C.E.I. Defeat B.I.S.

The C.E.I. defeated the B.I.S. in last night's football match, after one of the finest exhibitions witnessed for the season. With the B.I.S. defending the western goal, the game was from the start interesting. The forwards of both teams played well, and showed a marked contrast to the game of the night previous. After about fifteen minutes of exciting play, the C.E.I. secured their first goal through the energies of Auckinleck. The B.I.S. put on a spurt, and for a time a splendid exhibition of football was given. When the teams changed ends the score stood 1 to 0 in favor of the C.E.I.

After the usual rest, play was resumed and from the start it appeared as if the B.I.S. would equalize. Fox and Dwyer, of the C.E.I. sent in some good shots from mid-field but the B.I.S. put up an excellent defence. Towards the finish the game was particularly exciting, and the forwards of both teams showed some good combination. Shortly before full time E. Churchill landed No. 2 for his team, and play finished with the C.E.I. 2 and B.I.S. 0.

Mr. E. S. Pines acted as referee, and the line up was as follows:—C.E.I.: Volney, goal; L. Stick, Hussey, backs; Dwyer, Fox, R. Stick, halves; E. Churchill, Mr. Churchill, Hunt, Evans, Auckinleck, forwards. B.I.S.: Clare, goal; T. Duggan, Dunn, backs; W. Duggan, Burke, Brown, halves; E. Brophy, Kavanagh, Jackman, E. J. Brophy, Shortall, forwards.

Prospero Back from the North.

REPORTS FISHERY WORST ON RECORD.

The s.s. Prospero, Capt. A. Kean, arrived back from Griquet and intermediate ports to-day, after a splendid trip during which the weather conditions were ideal. Coming from Bay-de-Verde this morning, the Prospero and Fogota had a race which excited much interest among the passengers on both ships. Needless to say, however, the Prospero outclassed her rival coaster. The Prospero brought a large freight, including a shipment of pickled herring from ports in Green Bay and the following passengers in saloon: Messrs. Staff-Capt. Cave, Case, Parsons, Davis, Lacey, Capt. Moore, S.A., Crumney, Murphy, Hoey, King, Dr. Johnson, Christian, Patton, King, Lockyer, Torrey; Messrs. Lockyer, March; Mesdames Knight, Hutt, LeDrew, Crumney, Joy, Handell, King, Blundon; Misses Brown, Short, Conway; Bennett, Bonzan, Murrell, Pike, Moore, Winsor, Millin, Collins, Bailey, Cooper, March (2), Hudson and 19 steerage.

FISHERY A FAILURE.

According to reports brought along by the Prospero, the codfishery is backward to an unprecedented extent and in fact it is a complete failure. Capt. A. Kean, in speaking of the subject, said: "In my experience of the coastal service and for years previous, I never saw such a bad fishery." Besides some of the oldest inhabitants north never saw fish as scarce as this season. To describe briefly what little success is being met with, we hear that no trap has landed more than ten quintals in one haul. Beyond a few hoon and liners there will be no saving catches ashore.

Furious Driving on Topsail Road.

The time has arrived when the authorities should be up and doing if they would prevent serious accidents. Some motor drivers seem to take a delight in driving at an excessive rate of speed, particularly on the country roads. A case of this kind happened last evening, on Topsail Road, when a powerful car going at a great rate, almost ran into another car which was going in the same direction on the narrowest part of the road. These youths should be taught that they only have equal rights with other people and not to think that they must "astonish" the natives by their recklessness, even if they have to risk the possibility of killing people.

Invermore Ashore

If the wreck of the S.S. Invermore should turn out a total loss, as is feared, it will add one more to the heavy losses already sustained by the Reids, since they took up steamship services for the Colony some seventeen years ago. It is said that the steamer is filled with water up to her water line. The weather is fine and the water is smooth, and the chance of hauling her off the rocks will depend on the extent of damage she has received or may receive, before she can be hauled off, after patching her up, supposing that the extent of damage is small enough to allow divers to cope with it. Should this not prove to be the case, it will prove another heavy loss to the Company. Among these forebodings, it is pleasing, however, to find that the passengers and crew were landed with an abundance of food and clothing. Newfoundland has already sustained such severe loss in the way of life and limb at the sea fishery that we may feel grateful that another heavy toll in this respect has not been exacted of us.

Last evening upon receipt of the news the Government wired with a view of finding out what might be needed in the way of relief but the present message sets all doubts at rest as passengers and crew have been landed with abundance of food and clothing.

The following message was received in reply:—
S.S. Invermore,
via Smokey Tickle and Fogo,
July 10th, 1914.

Colonial Secretary,
St. John's.
"Owing to ice conditions struck rock off Brig Harbor, nine this morning. Ship now filled with water. Passengers and crew landed with abundance of food and clothing."

A GOOD RECORD.—Not a solitary prisoner appeared in the Magistrate's Court to-day.

Mrs. R. J. Randell, of Catalina, arrived to-day by the Prospero.

A Gem of Art.

To-day a Telegram representative had the privilege of inspecting the casket, which is to contain the address to be presented to H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, on the occasion of his official visit to the Masonic Temple on Wednesday night next. The casket is of a rich and beautiful design, the base being of ebony, and the body of solid silver, decorated with richly colored enamelled emblems. The body is twelve inches long, four and a half inches wide and the same in height. On the front side are three panels, one rectangular in the centre, bearing the Connaught Arms, and at each side, square emblems of the Masonic Temple and Harbor of St. John's. At the back are the Connaught Arms with a Grand Master's emblem at each side, and at one end is the emblem of the Grand Lodge of England and the Newfoundland Coat of Arms at the other.

The whole panning is neatly arranged and gives the casket a rich appearance. The base, which is of ebony, has at each of the four corners a reclining Newfoundland dog in solid silver, which gives the whole an exceptionally artistic appearance. The body of the casket is surmounted by the monarch of the Topsails, the Newfoundland caribou, splendidly executed in solid silver. The casket is lined with velvet and will be a fitting receptacle for the beautifully engrossed address, which will be read by the District Grand Master, Mr. J. A. Clift, on behalf of the Masonic Fraternity of Newfoundland. The following is the inscription engraved on the casket:—

Presented to
H.R.H. The Duke of Connaught, K.G.,
Most Worshipful Grand Master
by the Freemasons of Newfoundland
under English Jurisdiction, 1914.

This beautiful work of art was designed by Mr. Cyril J. Duley, of T. J. Duley & Co., and made by the celebrated firm of Kenning's, London, while to this firm recognition of their splendid workmanship is due, we have much pleasure in congratulating Mr. Duley on the general excellence of the design which formed the key-note to such a beautiful piece of art. The casket will be on exhibition in the eastern window of T. J. Duley & Co's on Monday and Tuesday next.

Miss M. Miffin, sister of Nurse Miffin, of the General Hospital, came by the Prospero to-day from Bonavista on a short visit.

Invermore Stranded at Brig Harbor Point.

PASSENGERS AND CREW SAFELY LANDED—SHIP FULL OF WATER.

Yesterday afternoon the Reid Nfld. Co. received a wireless from Capt. Kean, of the S.S. Invermore, saying that the ship had struck at Brig Harbor Point and was making water rapidly. The passengers and crew were landed safely, but the ship is still on the rocks and is expected to be a total loss. The Invermore left here on Saturday last for the Labrador route, taking a large freight and several passengers. She had a large quantity of bunker coal and must have struck the rocks very heavily. The latest message from the ship to-day gives no particulars and merely states that the ship is now aground in her own depth and is filled with water to the water line. The sea is very smooth. The Reid Nfld. Co. have been negotiating for a ship to render assistance, but nothing definite was settled on up to press hour. The S.S. Kyle will not sail for the Labrador route until Monday next, and as she will make her regular ports of call, she may be too late to render assistance. The general opinion expressed is that the ship is a total loss and a general survey will have to be made before any steps will be taken to refloat her. In the meantime, should it come rough the ship will likely be broken up.

The Invermore is an iron screw steamer, formerly the Dromedary, and was built in 1881. She was splendidly fitted for passenger accommodation, was 975 tons gross, 440 net, 250.2 feet long, 30 feet beam, with a draft of 14.7 feet. She was not insured.

How They Apologised.

This is how the editor of the International apologized in his last number:—

"Our printer's devil evidently confused the names of Professor Brander Matthews, of Columbia University, and Matthew, the well-known Christologist. We apologise to both. St. Matthew was no professor. Professor Matthews is no saint."

"I may seem a brute, Mabel," said the innocent young man, "but I ought to tell you that last night, at your party, your sister promised to marry me. Will you forgive me for taking her away?"

"Forgive you!" replied she, "why that's what the party was for!"

BELFAST, To-day.
The official report of the meeting of the "Provisional Government" announces the Executive has been instructed to act in accordance with the spirit of the declaration, asserting the "Provisional Government" to well grounded in its want of confidence in the bona fides of the Imperial Government which compels it to press on with the completion of arrangements to resist by every means in its power every attempt to impose the authority of a Home Rule Parliament on Ulster. Authentic information as to what decisions were reached at yesterday's meeting of the Ulster Provisional Government is very meagre, but the most significant part of the lengthy resolution handed to the Press is the clause which instructs the Executive to take action and if necessary to resist the imposition of a Dublin Parliament. The Resolution further announces the willingness of Ulster to negotiate for a pacific settlement, if her rights are safeguarded. A defence is expressed to the wishes of the King at the opening of Parliament, but they have lost confidence in the Government. The meeting of the council was attended by 500 delegates who listened to a grave statement by Carson which held out little hope for a peaceful solution and suggested the delegates empower the Executive to decide on immediate action. Circumstances might require action which might irrevocably commit Ulster to armed resistance which might have to be taken at an hour's notice. A resolution, investing the Council with power to act was carried Nem. Con. The armed forces of the Ulster covenanters are already under their command and protection.

WINNIPEG, To-day.
By a narrow majority of six seats and one more still to give an answer, the Roblin Conservative Government was returned in Manitoba yesterday. In all the elections ever held in the West, the one just closed, with the near defeat of Roblin and his party, is the closest. Of Cabinet Ministers Hon. Hugh Armstrong, provincial Treasurer was defeated, while Hon. Geo. Lawrence had a very narrow majority.

The Premier himself had a narrow escape from an avalanche of votes that played havoc with the Government. It is anticipated, however, that a recount may save Armstrong. Many recounts will be necessary. So close was the result that it will be several days before many of the majorities are confirmed, but the present figures show there is no doubt that the Government has been sustained.

PERTH, SCOTLAND, To-day.
A militant suffragette, uttering an exultant yell, sprang on to the foot-board of an automobile, in which the King and Queen were driving through the streets yesterday. The woman who was identified as Rhoda Fleming from Glasgow, in making the attempt to reach the King seized the handle of the door of the Royal automobile, before the momentarily dazed police were able to act. She was seized by two policemen. It required a score of mounted soldiers to hold at bay the angry mob bent on lynching the woman who turned out to be a man, only with a petition against the forcible feeding of imprisoned suffragettes. Earlier in the day while in Dundee, the King and Queen had received attentions from another suffragette who pitched a bundle of papers into the motor car.

LONDON, To-day.
A warning that trouble was liable to result from China's refusal to sign a convention in regard to what territory shall compose Outer and Inner Tibet, reached by a recent convention at Darjeeling, India, was issued to China to-day by the British Foreign Secretary. Sir Edward was speaking on the subject of appropriations for the Foreign Office in the Commons, and said, "If China does not sign but resorted to an aggressive policy, the consequences must be disastrous for China." There certainly will be grave trouble on the Indian frontier which will require Great Britain to take up the matter seriously with the Government of China." The Darjeeling Conference at which representatives of Britain, Tibet and China have been discussing the subject of Tibet autonomy has been in session since last Fall, and the convention was recently drafted and presented for signature to the three Governments.

—instead of tea or coffee.

Try the change for a couple of weeks and observe two noticeable things:

You won't miss the old beverage, for Postum has a delicious snappy flavour.

Further, there's the brisk, alert feeling,—free from the logyness of a lazy liver and disturbed digestion. Thousands of people have made the change and know "There's a Reason"

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—needs no boiling. A teaspoonful of the soluble powder stirred in a cup of hot water makes a delightful beverage instantly. Add cream and sugar to taste. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

Grocers everywhere sell POSTUM.

THE GREAT MASTERS

The motor car could have gotten along without DUNLOP TRACTION TREAD—but not so well.

If DUNLOP TRACTION TREADS had not come into being, motorists would still be looking for protection from skidding; a tire that would never rim-cut; and that would adapt itself to every car, every load, because it had sixty-six cubic inches greater air capacity.

In the generality of causes, DUNLOP TRACTION TREAD has sold more cars than any other single source. Tires make or mar the pleasure of driving. A standardized safety-ensuring tire like DUNLOP TRACTION TREAD means auto prospects can be made to forget their anticipated fears about skidding, punctures, rim-cutting, and go ahead and buy the car.

Regatta Meeting.

AGAIN IN SESSION.
A meeting of the Regatta Committee took place last night. President Hiscock in the chair. The others present were: C. J. Ellis, W. J. Higgins, J. L. Noonan, L. G. Chafe, Dr. Souilly, W. J. Martin, R. W. Jeans, J. Penez, J. W. Morris, J. P. Crotty, E. Hunt, P. J. Hanley, R. Dowden, T. J. Day, T. H. O'Neil, C. W. Ryan, T. D. Carew, T. J. Foran, W. J. Crotty.

President Hiscock reported that in the Ward he and Mr. E. W. Taylor were collecting they were getting a liberal response and that the amount received was ahead of expectations. Only one refusal was met with, but to counter this others doubled the amount they gave last season.

Mr. L. G. Chafe and other collectors gave favorable reports of the collections in their respective wards and that in each case the amounts were in excess of last year's.

Vice-President Higgins informed the meeting that the number of crews applying exceeded the supply of boats and asked Mr. J. W. Morris if the Red Lion would be available for the day. The latter replied that in all probability the boat would be in commission, as five crews had already applied for her.

A suggestion came from President Collins, of the C.C.C. Boat Club, asking that a race of College ex-Pupils be put on the programme. The idea was abandoned as it was considered that there were other races that Collegians could take advantage of.

Another proposition made by Mr. Collins as to the advisability of keeping buoys off the lake during practice and not put them in position until the day before Regatta Day, as the prevailing custom had a tendency to discourage interest. A great deal of discussion followed but the consensus of opinion was that the idea was a good one and on motion of Mr. Ellis was adopted.

P. J. Hanley reported that ex-Mayor Ellis, who was unavoidably absent, would again donate two dollar gold pieces for the Tradesmen's race. This announcement was received with enthusiasm.

President Hiscock asked the collectors to continue their work as actively as possible, after which the meeting adjourned.

Fogota Back.

The s.s. Fogota, Capt. Dalton, arrived from the northward at noon today after a quick round trip. The ship reports very little change since last report, except at Peckford's Island, where the traps are doing fairly well when the weather is favourable. Practically nothing has been done with the hook and line, but with fair weather the prospects for an average trap fishery seem more encouraging. The Fogota brought a small freight and the following passengers: Miss M. Fitzgerald, Rev. E. R. Anthony, R. Mahoney, A. A. Cowar, E. P. Earle, Mrs. M. Morris, E. and Mrs. Abbott, Mrs. Young, M. Roberts, W. H. Spurrell, Capt. A. Carter and child, Mrs. Hennebury and 9 in steerage.

Powerful Bomb Shatters House.

New York, July 5.—A bomb of terrific power exploded either on the roof or one of the upper floors of a six story flat house in Harlem today, wrecked a third of the building, killed at least three persons and injured others. One of the dead was Arthur Caron, a machinist, and a leader of the Industrial Workers of the World. The two other known dead were women. The explosion was at first attributed to dynamiting in a nearby subway excavation, and in the excitement attendant upon the collapse of the building estimates of the dead ran as high as fifty.

Inspector Egan of the police bureau of combustibles said the bomb was powerful enough to have wrecked the entire neighborhood if properly placed. Persons across the street were blown from their beds and window glass was shattered for blocks.

Caron was dead on a fire escape. Whether any occupants of the building were buried in the ruins it was at first impossible to determine. The police were inclined to believe, however, that three would cover the total dead. The building, a brick structure, was inhabited almost exclusively by Jewish families.

The building was so badly shattered that the police subsequently attributed the explosion to a powerful bomb.

Divorced Life

By Helen Hessong Fuesste

Marian on Broadway

Marian watched the performance with absorbed interest. The technique, now that she knew there was such a thing, had made the witnessing of a play a new thing for her. With a critical eye she tried to determine just what made this actor good, and that one better. She marvelled to discover that even parts of little importance were being played with unquestionable merit. She blushed secretly as she looked back and realized how ridiculous some of her own efforts among the Theatians must have appeared to critical eyes.

Suddenly a strong voice on the stage exclaimed forcefully: "He is unable to do it!" A wave of thought carried her back to the lonely, rainy afternoon when she had heard in an adjoining room at Mrs. Kern's the repeated declamation of this particular line, with endless variations of accent. She recognized the voice at once. This time the actor read the line as though in no doubt whatever as to the proper accent.

"And now for Lamartin's," said Barker when the final curtain fell. Again he conducted Marian and his sister to a taxi.

"Oh, I didn't anticipate anything like this!" Marian tried to protest, as the chauffeur started recklessly for his goal.

"Nonsense! Lamartin's for our's," laughed Barker.

Marian had heard much about the gorgeous Lamartin's and its merry after-theater crowds, but little had she anticipated this early opportunity to invade its color and gaiety. Not so long ago she had moved in circles where it had been regarded bad form to dine publicly after the theater. A touch of uneasiness fitted through her as the taxi dodged on, but she flung it off with the abandon which New York, that city of unrest, imparts to the newcomer. One finds himself performing all manner of astonishing and unwonted acts when once caught up in Manhattan's whirlpool of excitement. "Oh, well, it's New York and nobody will know," reasons the newcomer as he plunges into the Big Town's glittering night life, and presently finds himself trotting off into a tango with some stranger who dances divinely.

As Marian entered Lamartin's with her companions, with wide and wondering eyes, she saw at a glance that here was a corner of Bohemia which had little in common with the humbler nook of that curious land into which Stokes had led her for a plate of spaghetti. To-night she felt more like a bewildered being who had just stepped across the threshold of fairyland. The subdued, golden glamour of the lights gave a strange and ethereal look to the women she beheld seated at tables or loping down the tango trail, which lost itself in undefined mazes between the flanking tables. The place seemed to be filled with beautiful women and handsome men.

Miss Barker whisked Marian off to one of the women's retiring rooms, daintily appointed as a boudoir, and almost filled with elaborately gowned women engaged in artful beautification. Marian forgot herself completely in watching the picture of life around her. How could some of them smear it on so thick and be comfortable, she wondered. "It looks like the back stage of a theatre," she whispered to Miss Barker.

How could some of them smear it on so thick and be comfortable, she wondered.

"Yes, we're a trifle out of it here," was the reply. "New York women of this class evidently feel undressed unless they are heavily painted up. There's a good deal of the Indian in them yet. They put their war paints on thick when they go out to conquer. Oh, there's the music! Let's go back and see them dance." finished Miss Barker, and the two hurried back to the table where Barker sat waiting.

Along the Line to Caplin Bay.

L. C. M.

CHAPTER II.

By the time the last contingent of trouters had left us, we were almost to our destination, which was Caplin Bay, the scene of the Garden Party. Arriving there, about one hundred and twenty people left the train, all of whom had gone to participate in the recreations of the day, and to encourage the people of the place in their good work.

Caplin Bay, itself, is very compactly situated, and the field in which the Garden Party was held, was peculiarly adapted to the purpose. It lay right at the head of the harbour inside the beach, and is bounded on the northern side by a beautiful pond of salt water, into which the waters of the harbor flow at high tide. In every direction hunting was profuse, and prominent amongst them we noticed the house flag of A. Goodridge & Son. A burgee bore the name of "Ida M. Zink," which ship lay in the harbour at the time, having returned from the banks in quest of bait. Among the strange flags of the codes which attracted our attention, was one which bore a crown in the centre and over it the words "Royal Mail." This flag, no doubt, had once fluttered from the truck of some gallant ocean liner, which met her fate somewhere in the neighborhood of Cape Race, at a date when signals and precautions were not provided as at the present time. This flag struck us as being a relic of some tragedy, but it was the "Ida M. Zink's" flag, that touched us the most, because it reminded us of a gold day in January last, when a poor fallen young man called into our office to warm himself and to ask a little help. He was one of the unfortunate of our town. One of the men who were beaten by passion and by sin, and one who went down in the fight, and became an outcast in our midst. Nature had endowed him with health and beauty, and also with talents, which if properly directed, would have brought him comfort and popularity. The day upon which he sought our aid, was bitterly cold, and within an hour or two of his departure his heart was stilled by the icy waters of our harbour. He had boarded the schooner "Ida M. Zink," and in stepping ashore fell to his death. Perhaps he was seeking his dinner, but whatever he sought, or whatever he found, let us hope that he found the light of eternal life. In life he was beaten and overcome by his environment. He was one of the lost ones, as far as society goes; but he was greater than the limitations of society, and greater than the sin by which men fall, and was of that class for whom One "came to seek and to save that which was lost." The name of the young man was Michael Quinn. We knew his parents and have a faint knowledge of his grandparents, and knew them to be industrious and honest, and to be among the first of those to make St. John's their home. Thus it was that the flag upon the picnic field, and the ship in the offing awoke those sombre thoughts, even though we sought a holiday.

The ladies of Caplin Bay had made extensive preparations to cater to about five hundred persons. The large tents and elaborate decorations were, much to their credit, and the only regret was, that more friends had not tendered their patronage. Among the attractions, the music of the Total Abstinence Band seemed to have filled first place, and was one of the principal acquisitions to the pleasantness and success of the day. The services of the band were given free of charge, and both the Society itself and the members of the band particularly, deserve the best thanks for their excellent help. On such occasions music and dancing, comprise a large part of the programme. But the Total Abstinence Band was not the only music on the field; in addition to it and offering a good second, were the homely notes of the accordion, and when the band ceased the latter took up the strain. The player was a young man; nor was he alone, for near him on the platform sat another player in the form of one of the fair daughters of Caplin Bay. Both the lady and gentleman appeared to be experts at the instrument, but we think the lady was the better player of the two. We do not say she "beat the band," but she certainly did "beat the man." At all such assemblies and festal gatherings there is usually a person who is known as master of ceremonies. This position is generally accorded to some very popular person, and one who is known for his courtesy and gentlemanly deportment. We did not enquire as to whether the friends of Caplin Bay, had really appointed a master of ceremonies or not, but judging from the prominence and expertise of one of the gentlemen on the platform, we decided that he must be master of ceremonies, whether elected or not. He was certainly master of the situation, and from the time he opened the hall at noon, and closed it at evening, he was the man of the occasion. He really had a good day of it, but like many others, he evidently would wish a little more. In this latter opinion we were fully confirmed, later on at the station where the same popular gentleman led off to the strains of the same accordion, while in the distance the shrill whistle of the locomotive warned the party that dancing should be no more.

Dear Sir,—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your Works and I found 20.5 per cent of NITROGEN, Sulphate of Ammonia and Nitrate of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manure.
Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.

Fishery Reports.

From the Southern Head of Keels to Knight Cove Point the total catch is 125 quintals with about 20 for last week. Only 4 traps are in the water, and no dories or skiffs fishing. Prospects are very poor but there is an abundance of caplin for bait. The lobster fishery is very poor. Nearly all the traps were taken in during the week and very little was done by those left out. The catches with hook and line are the poorest for years, and as the main body of caplin is in, with the shore the fishermen say prospects are the worst on record.

Mosquito Point to Bryant's Cove.—The catch to date is 286 quintals. Nineteen traps are out and 48 dories, skiffs and boats fishing. Prospects are fair, the cod being taken in of good size. Caplin is plentiful for bait. Carbonear to Western Bay.—There is plenty of caplin and a good sign of codfish the past two days. The total catch is 190 quintals with 150 for last week. Thirty punts are fishing and 125 traps are in the water. There is a good sign of codfish the past two days and plenty of caplin bait. Eddy's Cove to Anchor Point, St. Barbe.—Fourteen boats and 25 traps are fishing. The total catch is only 50 quintals. Prospects are fair. The supply of bait is good but the lobster catch is poor. The first traps were set on June 24th, and the first cod taken on July 2nd. From the signs of caplin and codfish on the grounds it is believed prospects for a good voyage are bright.

Holyrood.—Bait is plentiful but no boats, dories or skiffs are fishing. The lobster catch is fair.

KILLED AT BRITISH COLUMBIA.
Mr. J. Peddle, carpenter, of 16 Queen Street, received a message last evening which conveyed the sad intelligence of his eldest son's death which occurred at Britannia Cove, B. C., on Tuesday last.

The message read as follows:—
"With extreme regret we advise of accident resulting in death of J. P. Peddle at mine, Tuesday evening, remains sent to centre, and Hannus, undertakers, Vancouver. Our deepest sympathy is extended to yourself and family."

On receipt of the news Mr. Peddle wired the undertakers at Vancouver to forward the body for interment here.
The deceased who was better known as Jack Peddle, was an ex-pupil of St. Patrick's Hall Schools and had been for many years a prominent member of the C. C. C.

He had worked as machinist with the Reid Co. for some years, and left here about six years ago for the west where he had been constantly employed.

To the sorrowing family, as well as to the many friends of the deceased, the Telegram extends profound sympathy.

How You May Influence Eternity.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"Go make thy garden as fair as thou canst. Thon worstest never alone; Perchance he whose plot is next to thine May see and mend his own."

When Andrew Carnegie is asked what first aroused his interest in the need of free libraries he turns back pages of his life and tells about his boyhood. It seems that in Allegheny City, where he once lived, there was no public library. But a certain Colonel Anderson a kind-hearted gentleman opened his library of 400 volumes every Saturday afternoon to loan books to those who could not afford to buy their own. Among these was the poor telegraph operator who later became the steel king of the world. The pleasure and profit which Colonel Anderson's kindness gave Andrew Carnegie was a seed planted in very fertile soil. It has already fruited in the gift of over twenty-two hundred libraries in the United States and Scotland, and nobody knows how much fruit it may yet bear.

So far may the widened circles of one good deed reach. So long may the influence of one man's efforts to help his fellow men, endure. Most of us would like to help and influence humanity in some great and wonderful way, but the humble helps that lie within our power scarcely seem worth while. We must not forget that their influence may become a far greater force than we dare dream of.

The inspiration of the widow's mite has helped to build many a beautiful cathedral. Colonel Anderson's humble gift of self and service has helped educate hundreds of thousands, nay millions of people.

Mrs. Browning once asked Charles Kingsley what was the secret of his beautiful life and work. He answered, "I had a friend." We do not know the name of that friend, but we know that we owe much to him, for by his friendship he helped to make Charles Kingsley.

"All that I am and ever hope to be I owe to my angel mother," said Abraham Lincoln. That means that his mother influenced the history of the world. She might have thought it did not matter whether in her humble corner she lived up to the best that was in her and taught the little country boy to worship the highest ideals of truth and justice, yet it did matter—and not just to a few people but to nations.

"Thou knowest not what argument thy life to thy neighbour's creed has lent"—and not only to thy neighbor's creed, but to the millions of his neighbors whom he may influence.

Truly the possible power even of the humblest of us is a great and solemn thing. One is almost appalled by the thought of it, and yet we need not be. For after all, it is very simple. Of no man is required more than he can give. Just remember what Canon Ferrar says, "The only real failure is not to be true to the best one knows." Live up to that; give what you have and lo, the widening circles of blessed influence from your life may touch the shores of eternity.

Red C

Bull Fighting.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old St. John's." Bull fighting was once called the National sport of Mexico. However, these days it is generally known as the principal cause of what ails Mexico.

What ails Mexico is the fact that it doesn't civilize fast enough. The western hemisphere has been standing around for a century waiting for Mexico to civilize as the housewife waits for her jelly to jell. But nothing has come of it. Just about the time that strong symptoms of civilization are being noticed in the country, the people take an afternoon off and go to a bull fight.

The bull is about the only thing in Mexico that doesn't want to fight, too. He is usually a peaceable creature and has to be prodded with sharp skewers before he loses his temper. The Mexican himself, loves nothing better than to get up a little revolution on a quiet day and reduce the census figures as near to zero as possible, but it usually takes a score of men, half an acre of red cloth and a lot of insulting language to get a bull roused to the point of resistance. For all his reputation, the bull is as peaceable as a democratic administration which has been voting against warships and ammunition for a few decades.

Bull fights are held in vast arenas walled with eager, blood-thirsty people and are extremely fatal—not to the spectators or the fighting men, but to the bull and to such luckless horses as can't get out of his way. A bull fight isn't a success unless half a dozen horses have had their internal arrangements spilled out on the ground by an impassioned bull who is trying to get even with the man who stuck a skewer into his flank. The Mexican senorita is one of the most beautiful things fashioned by nature, but when she claps her dainty hands over a shrieking horse who has just been ripped from stem to stern, she causes the spectator from the north to realize why peace has a hard time getting a foothold south of the Rio Grande. American men admire the senoritas for their dark and vivid beauty, but they they do not marry them to any extent. Possibly they have seen too many of them at bull fights.

The bull fight is not, of course, as cruel a thing as a gun fight on Broadway, or a labor war in Colorado, but it is a bloody, messy and very unfair to the bull and the decrepit horses who get dismasted during the proceedings. In America, we electrocute our gun fighters and fine the man who beats a horse. But in Mexico, the bull fighters are greatly honored and are made popular than the president. Somewhere in this difference between the two countries lies the reason why Mexico has advanced like a stone hitching post in the last century.

Red McGhee says: "Of Mike's another one of those who put aside his old league clothes and did the Fed league diva. An' since he heard the shekels tease he's busier'n a flock of bees around the Baltimore hive. At short there's lots o' bells on Mike. The o' leagues ain't got many like this infield demon frog. He's got a lot o' years to go an' don't bet, any kopecks, 'o, that he'll go on the hog."

McGraw touts Mike as A1 class an' Muggsy isn't like to pass on anything that's punk. He knows the fruit both green an' ripe—bank on it, birds, it's a pipe he don't O. K. no junk. Mike doesn't make a lot o' fuss 'bout fieldin' but an octopus can't cover no more space. His stops are sure, his pegs are neat, there's darn few runners who can beat his throwin' to first base.

The Baltimore Fed fans worship him; they like his style, his peg his vim, his all-around brand o' play. In Philly town they miss him, too, when they see his wander through a couple times a day. He's some more pippin', 'o, to lose. Tim's everyone can fill his shoes or hold at Mike's old gait. They've tried a bunch, they'll try some more 'n' fuss around a heap before they'll find Mike Doolan's mate.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURE FOR COLDS, Etc.

Magical Effect on Neuralgia-Throbbing Pain Goes Quickly.

A YEARS' SUFFERER CURED BY "NEVILLINE."

No person reading this need ever again suffer long from Neuralgia. Nevilline will quickly cure the worst Neuralgia, and Mrs. G. Evans, in her strong letter written from Russell post office, says:—"One long year, the longest of my life, was almost entirely given up to treating dreadful attacks of Neuralgia. The agony I experienced during some of the bad attacks was simply unmentionable. To use remedies by the score without permanent relief was mighty discouraging. At last I put my faith in Nevilline; I read of the wonderful pain-subduing power it possessed and made up my mind to prove it valuable or useless. Nevilline at once eased the pain and cured the headache. Consequently treatment with this magic-working remedy cured me entirely, and I have ever since stayed well."

Mrs. Evans' case is but one of hundreds that might be quoted. Nevilline is a specific for all nerve, muscular or joint pain. It quickly cures neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, lumbago, neuritis and rheumatism. Forty years in use, and to-day the most widely used liniment in the Dominion. Don't take anything but "Nevilline," which any dealer anywhere can supply in large 50c. family size bottles, or in a small 25c. trial size.

OUR SATURDAY EVENING HOME PAGE.

H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught.

"Wot 'as the gen'ral done?" sez I.
"Wot 'as the gen'ral done?"
"O, 'e's a Prince of the Royal Blood,
An' they chucked 'im 'is rank for fun!"

But that was a lie, for I found out since
'E's missence a soldier an' thrupence a prince,
'E's stood fire in Egypt, and 'e didn't wince.

Not Arthur!

From "Writ in Barracks."
—Edgar Wallace.

"Call your next son Patrick," shouted an enthusiastic old woman as Queen Victoria drove through Dublin streets, "and all our Ireland will die for you!" Not long afterwards, on the first of May, 1850, the Queen's third son and seventh child, the Duke of Connaught, was born. He was christened Arthur William Patrick Albert—"Arthur," after the Duke of Wellington, on whose eighty-first birthday he was born, and who was his godfather; "William," after the Prince of Prussia, who, as the Queen wrote to her "dearest uncle" (Leopold of Belgium), "has travelled night and day from St. Petersburg to be in time for the christening of our little Arthur"; "Patrick," in remembrance of the Irish visit; and "Albert," after the Prince Consort.

Virtue has no history. Little Prince Arthur, father of the man, was from all accounts a perfectly model child, gentle, kindly, courteous always, just as he is to-day. But even his Royal mother, on the alluring subject of her offspring, as a rule, almost garrulous, has of this "so-much-wished-for son" very little indeed to say. In the three thick volumes of letters written by her between 1837 and 1861, only three times in all is the future Duke of Connaught referred to.

"On this day," writes Her Majesty, to the inevitable Uncle Leopold, "the fifth birthday of our darling little Arthur—the anniversary of the opening of the Great Exhibition—the once great day at Paris, viz., the poor King's name-day—and also the birthday of the dear old Duke I write," &c.

And a year later, to her "dearest uncle" once more, the Queen, who gloried in anniversaries, writes:

"Last Thursday was our darling Arthur's birthday, which he enjoyed duly."

While on the third and last occasion, referring to the death of the Duchess of Kent, Her Majesty forecasts—of course, unconsciously—a proceeding—viz., attendance at Royal funerals—that has loomed perhaps largest amongst the duties the Duke has been called upon to perform so often since:

"We went to see the body, and poor little Arthur went, too."

It is probable that Prince Arthur was in the carriage driving with the Queen and the Princess Royal on that historic if not, perhaps, properly authentic occasion when the precocious little girl, who afterwards reigned an imperial and saddened Empress in Germany, "cheeked" her august mother the Queen. The Princess, so the story goes, was not only hopelessly bored but also very indignant that her mother, instead of keeping her amused, talked continually to her lady-in-waiting on subjects which the Princess considered frankly dull. So "There's a cat under the trees," she called out suddenly and quite obviously, altogether mendaciously. But her aim was accomplished; attention was called to her naughty little self; and, entirely satisfied, the Princess, leaning back in the carriage, remarked quietly: "Come out to look at the Queen, I suppose!" And smiled superciliously while at the almost petrified "poor little Arthur" at her side.

In 1879 the Duke of Connaught married Louise, only daughter of that brilliant soldier Prince Frederick Charles of Prussia, who during the campaign of 1870-71 was known as the Red Prince. Less than three years later the Duke joined the Egyptian Expeditionary Force, and was present at the battle of Tel-el-Kebir, after the engagement at which Sir Garnet Wolsey telegraphed to the Queen at Balmoral, leading his brigade to the attack. For his prowess in the East His Royal Highness received several Orders, and the thanks of both Houses of Parliament, and was later made Commander-in-Chief of the troops in Bombay, where his close study of Indian Army administration has since borne fruit in more than one speech in the House of Lords, where he spoke as an expert.

His Royal Highness was appointed a year or so later to the command of the forces in Ireland, which post, though held for only a very short time, made him immensely popular in Dublin, where his sterling abilities, fine simplicity of character, and great charm of manner endeared him to everyone with whom he came into contact. Just before the Duke of Connaught went to Ireland, Prince Alfred of Coburg, only son of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, died suddenly. It is fresh in most of our memories how the Duke resigned all his right and title to the dual throne (as did his son, Prince Arthur), and declared publicly at a Bengal Cavalry dinner his determination "not to accept the succession to Coburg, but to remain in England in his present position."

A keen, zealous, and capable soldier, the Duke, as everyone knows, when the war in South Africa broke out, was most anxious to get a commission. The refusal of the Government of the day to accede to his repeated requests was considered in Army circles as perhaps inevitable, but as doing nevertheless "but scant justice to an able soldier," though the Duke himself, with his characteristic good sense, when the keen edge of his disappointment had worn off, acknowledged that Royalty, after all, might perhaps, even with the best intentions in the world, be something of a nuisance on the battlefield.

In 1904, after the reorganization of the War Office, he was given the new post of Inspector-General of the Forces and President of the Selection Board, but his tenure was not satisfactory to him, and his recommendations to the Council did not always receive the consideration to which they were entitled; and though questions were asked in Parliament when His Royal Highness retired from the Board, no steps have since been taken to reinstate him. After less than four years the Duke became Commander-in-Chief in the Mediterranean, but this position, too, was given up of his own accord some two years later, on the plea that his duties were not, in His Royal Highness's opinion, sufficiently onerous or necessary to justify him in retaining the appointment. In other words, the Duke does not care to be merely a figurehead.

Then in 1911 he was appointed Governor General of Canada.

The Duke of Connaught, in addition to the prestige attaching to him as only brother of King Edward, is a man of quite exceptional ability and undeniable Imperial value. He is a good speaker, has a strong sense of duty and singular honesty of purpose, and with it all he combines that gentleness and charm which are invaluable in a Viceroy (whose duties, after all, are very largely social), and which were such salient characteristics of that most able of men his father, the Prince Consort. It is said that no Royalty more readily pardons a breach of etiquette than the Duke of Connaught, for though he derived from his uncle, the Duke of Cambridge, not a few of the habits of the martinet, his unfailing good humour, kind heart, and sense of fun have mercifully preserved from him the most oppressive attributes of what has been called the "Martinetian malady."

The whole Connaught family are without exception globe-trotters. When at Bagshot, the Duke, like the King at Sandringham, leads the life of an English country gentleman, raising stock, and taking the warmest interest in his beautiful gardens, many of the beds in which he has himself laid out. His Royal Highness is particularly proud of one of the conservatories. It cost £2,000 to build, and represents a gorgeous tropical scene, with at one end a gynaecetic cavern, along the floor of which flows a little stream, beneath which are electric lamps, so that at night numerous little pools in the dark recesses appear to shine with liquid fire. It is in one of the private rooms at Bagshot, by the way, that one of the Princess Patricia's most amusing caricatures is displayed. It represents the Duke, in his uniform dress as a field-marshal, his hair on end, his face red, and his whole body fairly bristling with rage. Underneath is written, "Where is my horse?" And those who know the Duke's unfailing mildness are invariably tickled by his daughter's little joke against him. Yet another of the Princess's caricatures "takes off" her cousin the Prince of Wales as an admiral. It hangs in the drawing-room at Frogmore, and causes one invariably to smile.

With the army rank and file the Duke (who, by the way, is official head of Freemasonry in England, and did much to promote the craft in India) was always exceptionally popular. From these not over lenient critics, His Royal Highness's real "kitt," indefatigable energy and complete mastery of his profession, impelled admiration; while, on the human side, the "gen'ral's" charming bonhomie, warm sympathy, and kindly feeling was universally appreciated. Through a long life, and along paths

H. R. HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.
Uncle of King George V., who is visiting Newfoundland for the first time.

strewn not always with "the petals of the rose," the Duke of Connaught, indeed, has steered a course that rounds only to his infinite credit, and has shown himself always, as it has once before been said, "a courteous gentleman, a brave soldier, and a true friend."

Should the Duchess of Connaught survive the Duke she will receive from the State, as a widow, the same income as the Duchess of Albany—viz., £6,000 a year. Her Royal Highness—who, by the way, is always most beautifully dressed in the very latest cry of fashion—is also exceptional in that her closest and most intimate friends, and also those of her daughter, are Americans. Mrs. Jack Leslie, Mrs. Astor (of Cliveden), Miss Helen Post, daughter of Lady Barrymore, and Miss Clare Frewen being four ladies from over the water who are constantly to be met in the Connaught entourage, which also includes Lady Savile, Lady Wemyss, Lady Derby, Lady Alington, Lady Beauchamp, and Lady Dickson Poynder, the young Marquis of Hastings being the friend and sometime housemate of Prince Arthur.—Royal Magazine.

Magic of Mother's Gown

"Oh, mother, how pretty you look!"
"How sweet!"
"Where are you going?"
"Guess?" I cried "I'm going—going to stay right here with you this afternoon." I ended enthusiastically, and smiled. My little ruse had succeeded. Just a simple white dress had created the atmosphere I wanted. Tired and irritable yet I wanted to be patient and agreeable. I remembered when a teacher how the school children had taken a dislike to a certain dress I wore; they fancied I was always cross in it. I recollected how pleased they were over a new gown, and especially over anything white. They begged me always to wear white. Now I resolved to test again the power of the white dress, and see whether it might not react upon my tired nerves.

It was a dull, rainy day, but I had a warm fire. I selected a white waist, not too thin, and, alas, a little out of style. Then I found my old plique skirt a bit mussed, but clean. I wore a dainty blue ribbon at my neck, and a bow to match in my hair.

A string of blue beads completed my costume. Last of all, a lace-trimmed handkerchief with a dash of Cologne. The third-reader class used to admire "teacher's handkerchief, so nice an' smelly."

Now I was ready for the afternoon, and felt quite equal to entertaining three restless children just recovering from the measles. At the chorus of "Ohs" and "Ahs" and the gentle pats on my hair, the loving touches of the string of beads, I felt more repaid. I was actually rested, and in good humor with myself again, while the children were eager to follow every suggestion that I made. Oh, the magic of a white gown!

George Fitch.

He's long a-a-d lean and scrawny, and has a solemn air, a n-d folks would say, "That Johnnie is loaded down with care; he has a secret sorrow that goods h-l-m evermore, and he should try to borrow some sunshine at my store."

Which shows how, in their guessing, the folks are off their base, for George has naught distressing about him, but his face, within him always bubbles the antidote for grief, the mirth that kills our troubles, and gives our woes relief. You read George Fitch, and after you've riddled a score of words, you gurgle round with laughter, and chirrup like the birds. As clean as rippling water his humor flows along, his muse is sure the daughter of Jovianness and Song. He cheers the chronic fretter, reforms the dismal bore, and makes this old world better than 'e'er it was before. He spreads glee by the gate, so what's the odds, my dears, if like an undertaker the humorist appears?

Just a Little Mother.

She's just a little mother in a cabin far away;
Since I kissed her in the gloaming 'tis forever and a day.
In my dreams I hear her calling, calling o'er the weary sea,
"Come ye back to Bally-shannon, Katy, dear, come back to me."

She's standing in the doorway, filling up the space,
With the kerchief o'er her bosom and the frills around her face;
She is smiling as our Lady smiles above the Holy Child,
And my heart runs forth to meet her o'er the waste of waters wild.

Do you know our Ballyshannon, where the very winds are sweet
With the saltiness of the sea foam and the tang of smoldering peat?
Do you know our mist that folds us in a blanket soft and gray,
Do you know our Ballyshannon in the red rose dawn of day?

Then you see the little mother, just herself, so small and old,
With a look I'm sure would warm you were you shivering with the cold.
Oh, so mirthful, O, so patient, she whose work is never done,
O, so ready with her laughter at the rise and set of sun.

In the great house where I'm serving folk are ever kind to me,
But they do not guess my yearning for the cabin over sea,
Wage I earn and wage I send her, yet I can no longer bide;
I must seek my little mother, I must nestle at her side.

She's just a little mother in a cabin far away;
Since I kissed her in the gloaming 'tis forever and a day,
In my dreams she's calling, calling, "Mother darling, yes, I'll come;
I'll go back to Ballyshannon, to my mother and my home."

POEPLS.

THE FLAG GOES BY.

Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums,
A flash of color beneath the sky
Hats off!
The flag is passing by!

Blue and crimson, and white it shines,
Over the steel-tipped, ordered lines.
Hats off!
The colors before us fly;
But more than the flag is passing by.

Sea fights and land fights, grim and great,
Fought to make and to save the State;
Weary marches and sinking ships;
Cheers of victory on dying lips;

Days of plenty, and years of peace,
March of a strong land's swift increase;
Equal justice, right and law,
Stately honor and reverent awe;

Sign of a Nation, great and strong,
To ward her people from foreign wrong;
Pride, and glory, and honor, all
Live in the colors to stand or fall.

Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums,
And loyal hearts are beating high,
Hats off!
The flag is passing by!

THE PLAINS OF MEXICO.

There's a country wide and weary, and a scorching sun looks down
On the thirsty cattle ranges and a queer old Spanish town,
And it's there my heart goes roving
by the trails I used to know;
Dusty trails by camps deserted where the tinkling mule trains go,
On the sleepy summit ranges and the plains of Mexico.

Is it only looking backward that the past seems now so fair?
Was the sun then somewhat brighter, was there something in the air
Made no day seem ever weary, never hour that went too slow,
When we rode the dusty ranges on the plains of Mexico?

Then the long, hot, scented evenings,
and the fiddle's squeaky tune,
When we danced with Spanish lassies underneath the golden moon;
Girls with names all slow and splendid,
hot as fire and cold as snow,
In the spicy summer nighttime on the plains of Mexico.

I am growing tired and lonely, and the town is dull and strange—
I am restless for the open sky and wandering wings that range:
I will get me forth a-roving, I will get me out and go,
But no more, no more my road is to the plains of Mexico.

For the sun is on the plateau, and the dusty trails go down
By the same old cactus hedges to the sleepy Spanish town.
But I'll never find my comrade that I lost there long ago,
Never, never more (O, lad I loved and left a-lying low)
Where the cowardly bullet took him on the plains of Mexico.
—C. Fox Smith, in The Spectator.

MY JOSIAH.

Things has come a pretty pass
The whole wide country over,
When every married woman has
To have a friend or lover;
It ain't the way that I was raised,
And I hain't no desire
To have some feller pokin' round
Instead of my Josiah.

I never kin forget the day
That we went out a-walkin',
An' sot down on the river-bank,
An' kep' on hours a-talkin';
He twisted up my apron-string,
An' folded it together,
An' said he thought for harvest-time
'Twas cur'us kind o' weather.

The sun went down as we sot there—
Josiah seemed uneasy;
An' mother she began to call:
"Looweezy, oh, Looweezy!"
An' then Josiah spoke right up,
As I was just astartin',
An' said, "Looweezy what's the use
Of us two ever partin'?"

It kind o' took me by surprise,
An' yet I kin 'twas comin';
I'd heard it all the summer long,
In every wild bee's hummin';
I'd studied out the way I'd act—
But law! I couldn't do it;
I meant to hide my love from him,
But seems as if he knew it,
An' lookin' down into my eyes
He must have seen the fire—
An' ever since that hour I've loved
An' worshipped my Josiah.

I can't tell what the women mean
Who let men fool around 'em,
Believin' all the nonsense that
They only say to sound 'em;
I know, for one, I've never seen
The men that I'd admire
To have a-bangin' after me
Instead of my Josiah.

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL.
"There's a divinity that shapes our ends,"
And hats and shoes do, too—there's no escape;
Not only do the latter shape our ends,
But equally with truth they end our shape.
—Puck.

CONSOLATION.

Till night I went astray
Where lonely waters creep,
But at the seal of day
I found thee in my sleep.
And something from that calm of thought and will
Is with me still.

I longed for thee all day
And dreamed of thee all night;
And now I find my way
Hath won a lincensin' right,
As though a shining from thy presence stayed
And will not fade.

And thus in thought I sit
Contented at thy side,
Mine eyes with gladness lit
My tumults pacified;
And all the joy of living seems to be Just here with thee.
—Arthur L. Salmon.

MY CREED.

I would be true, for there are those who trust me;
I would be pure, for there are those who care;
I would be strong, for there is much
to suffer;
I would be brave, for there is much to dare.

I would be friend of all—the foe—the friendless;
I would be giving and forget the gift;
I would be humble for I know my weakness;
I would look up—and laugh—and love and lift.
—Howard Arnold Walter.
