CHAPTER IX.
IN BITTER MISERY.

He stares at her with unbounded astonishment at first, then an apprehensive look comes into his face, and he puts his arm round her waist.

"Edna! My darling! What is it? What has happened? Why do you look so? Edna! you must be ill!"

She shakes her head slowly, and coldly puts his hand away from her; he is so petrified that he does not resist, and his hand falls upon the tombstone that is no colder than her fingers; then he looks round, as if for help, and is about to draw her to him, when she speaks.

"Do not—do not touch me!"

"Do not touch you!" he repeats, each word distinct and full of horrified alarm. "Why not? Edna, are you mad?"

For a moment a swift light comes into her eyes. Perhaps she is! she thinks; then she remembers, and shuddering, puts him away from her.

"No, I am not mad," she says, and her voice is so hollow, so lifeless, so changed, that he starts as if he could not believe his ears. Before he can speak she opens her lips again.

"Why did you marry me?"

"Why did I marry you? Great Heaven! am I mad?" and for the moment he looks as if he were. "Why did I marry you—do you ask me that now? Because I loved you—but—why do you ask, my darling? What has come to you? I left you here, all right, not a half an hour ago, and come back to find you like—like a ghost, and—for God's sake tell me what is the matter with you?"

And the Worst is Yet to Come—climbed, her soul afire with jealousy, tortured love, virginal indignation. "If I have loved you! Oh, how can you stand there and say such words to me? As if I had not loved you! Keep away from me! I—I could not bear you to touch me! I—I hate you!"

Cyril started, and clinched his hands hard, and set his lips tight.

"Yes—you—all my love is turned to hate! How could it be otherwise while I have sense to think and heart to feel? Ah, you do not know what you have done! You have worse than killed me! Oh, I would die a thousand times rather than hear this! Don't speak—I will not listen! I have listened too much—too much!"

Then her tears flowed fast, but she put up her hand to keep him off, and he could not stand and groan.

"You know that I have heard all about you—about your wickedness and your falseness! You know it! I can see it by your face! Oh, why—why did you come to me and make me love you? Why—why? I did not seek you, I did not think of you; I did not come across your life and take it all up and waste it? Why did you do it? Why did you pretend to be all that is good, and kind, and noble, while you were wicked, and false, and base, all the while? Did I deceive you? Why did you deceive me? Why did you make me love you even against my will, and then throw off the mask and come back to me something quite different? What had I done that you should do me such a great wrong—oh! what have I done?"

In a low, passionate voice she charges him, and he can only stand dull and white as a statue, and by silence, deep and awful, plead guilty.

He does not know how she has discovered his deceit, he does not know how much she knows—it may be all; but he understands how her pure young soul shrinks from him! And what wonder, for, as he stands confronted by her innocence, her maidenly indignation—he shrinks from himself. And she is his wife! "Has she forgotten that? This is their marriage day—to-night their nuptial night; she has not forgotten, her next words show it."

"You do not answer; what can you say? Ah, it is all true what that woman said!" and she shudders.

A great light flashes upon Cyril's intelligence—that woman!

He takes a step toward her.

"Edna! for God's sake, tell me! Whom have you seen—who has been telling you—?"

"Who?" she repeats, with a shudder of disgust and a vivid flush. "The woman you loved—the woman who wears your portrait—the woman who should have been your wife—one of the many you have loved!"

Slowly, bitterly, as the bitterness comes upon herself, she pants the words at him.

Cyril stands with half-bent head and twitching lips.

There is a moment's silence; then, as the anthem rises solemnly, and the voices of the monks break out, again he speaks.

"Edna—the voice hollow and trembling—'do not say any more. Come home; it is too late—after to-day's work—'"

She hides her face with a moan.

"Too late!" she cries.

Cyril trembles in every limb, and his eyes devour her, imploringly, pitifully, hungrily.

"Great God! she hates, she loathes me," he mutters, and turns away to hide the anguish with which the conviction has stabbed him.

Then he turns to her, and, with clinched hands and dry, white lips, speaks to her.

"Edna, it is not too late! You need not shrink from me—you need not shudder; you are my wife—you are mine, to have and to hold. I could carry you away with me to-night." His voice trembles for a moment, and sounds hollow and uncertain when he goes on: "I could command you to come to me, here where I stand, and keep you until death should part us. Ah, you need not shrink!"—for instinctively she has drawn a little further away—"you do not know me, or you would not fear that I should force myself or my right on you. You are my wife—it is too late to prevent that, nothing can alter it—but you can be my wife only in name; we can part to-night. Do not fear—we will! You shall go back to your aunt, in all but the name of your wife the same as when I first saw you. It is all I can do to repair the wrong I have done; I will do it—yes,

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made

Here's an easy way to cure it, and you have the best cough syrup you ever used.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth); then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for five times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy cures a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosen a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for the most stubborn croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

Never disappointed by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with all directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Fashion Plates.

2686—There is no model more comfortable than a one-piece model. The style here portrayed is loose fitting. The closing is effected at the left side, where side front and panel join. The sleeve may be finished in wrist or elbow length.

The Pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires 6 yards of 36-inch material. Width at lower edge is 2½ yards, with plaits drawn out.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

AN INTERESTING GOWN.

2680—This simple style could be attractively developed in black charmeuse and tan crepe, or in black satin and beige silk duvetyn. It is also good for combinations of velvet and satin, serge and silk, georgette crepe and satin. The neck line may be round or finished with a collar.

The Pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires 7 yards of one material 40 inches wide. The dress measures about 2 yards at the lower edge. To make sleeves and overblouse of contrasting material, as illustrated, will require 3½ yards of material 27 inches wide for the 38-inch size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

let it cost me what it will, I will do it. Ah!"—and his voice deepens into sternness—"I do it for my sake as well as yours, for I would rather die than hold you by any tie than love. If you do not love me, if you have learned to hate me, no power on earth shall make you wife of mine!"

Then his voice breaks.

"Poor child!" he says, almost inaudibly. "My poor, sweet, little Edna! go back and learn to forgive me—if you can, to forget; as I shall never learn to forgive myself or forget you."

She sits as motionless as if she were a figure carved upon the tomb beneath her. Still the music of the organ and the chant of the monks fills up the pause.

"You may think—fear—that I may break this resolve," says Cyril's voice, so utterly unlike his. "You need not fear that. You will never have to complain of my crossing your path after to-night. I will never, by my presence, or by word or deed, remind you of my claim to you; from to-night you may look upon me as dead, as I shall be in all but reality, to the world in which you are likely to be. After to-night we shall never meet—we shall never meet again."

There comes a silence deep and awful. Is she deaf, or dead, that she sits so silent and signless?

Cyril pulls himself together with a shiver, and goes up to her.

"Good-by, Edna," he says, "good-by, for the last time!"

Then he bends over her and kisses the edge of the shawl. Does she feel that last, mad kiss? She may or may not. She makes no sign, and the man who has loved her, who—be his sins what they may—loves her as truly and passionately as any man has loved yet, turns and walks quickly away.

At the corner he looks back; it is with a last wild, groundless hope that love may prevail!

No, she is still motionless, unrelenting.

Then he bows his head to hide the working of his white, haggard face, and passes swiftly away.

A moment afterward the mute figure he has left behind him starts to her feet.

Cleanses Your Hair Makes It Beautiful. Thick, Glossy, Wavy.

Try this! All dandruff disappears and Hair stops coming out.

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will spend a few cents for a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

Returning Reservists Snow-bound at Kitty's Brook

TWO CONCERTS ON TRAIN.

Fifty sailors returning from Overseas Service arrived at Port aux Basques, Sunday morning. The first news to greet them was "trains all snow-bound"; well, as usual, Jack did not care, and the word was "all on shore," and as usual they found lots to drink, such as spruce beer, lemonade, and water, (which is a substitute for Adam's Ale). In the afternoon they went to the Salvation Army, where they received a hearty welcome from the Captain, who was very proud to see the boys back again. At six in the evening they returned to the S. S. Kyle, where they enjoyed their supper very heartily. After supper some of the boys went up to see about the train, and came back saying she would arrive at twelve that night; so they all turned in, hoping she would not make too much noise and awaken them when she came; however, she did not arrive until eight o'clock next morning. Then we found we had yet more delay, as the train could not leave until 1 p.m., but we did not worry, Jack's motto is "Pack all your troubles in your old Kit Bag, and Smile, Smile Smile!" While they were waiting for the train to pull out, an old gentleman, an Englishman by birth, I should judge his age to be about 75, was there. He was coming down the hill with a load of wood on his slide. The sailors watched him with great interest, and when he started to mount the hill a little farther down the road, where he had to stick in his toes, about twenty of them rushed out to help him; one pulled off his coat, threw it upon the wood and placed the old man upon it. The others, seizing the ropes and guide-stick, raced with the old man and his wood around to Channel, and I expect he thought he was in an aeroplane.

At 2 p.m. the train pulled out. When we arrived at Bay St. George, it was the same old tale—No. 1 engine and plow off the track. When the train reached Kitty's Brook, the conductor told some of the boys that No. 1 would be on the road at 4 p.m. The day was spent singing songs and playing cards; and it was amazing to hear some bright young sailor telling his pals what he thought was the best way of getting the engine on the rails again. Anyway, night came, and we were still at Kitty's Brook, and every one was beginning to feel "fed up," when suddenly the doors of our car opened and the smiling face of able-seaman W. Smith appeared. His first words were, "Boys, we are having a concert in our car to-night, and we'd like it very much if some of you would help us out with a song or a recitation." Immediately all was excitement. A concert met with everyone's approval, and at once Smith was cheered by one and all. The concert opened at seven. Able-seaman W. Smith acted as chairman. Well, I can assure you it was something good; in fact, one time I thought the train was moving. I had to look through the window and then had a job to convince myself that we were still at Kitty's Brook.

PROGRAMME:

Refrain—"The Boys of the Bull-dog Breed."
 Recitation—"Prince Courtship," by Curtis.
 Song—"Old King Cole," by Tobin.
 Recitation—"Starlight," by Laite.
 Song—"Old Clothes Shop," by Hewitt.
 Recitation—"Saucy Sail," by E. Samson.
 Song—"A Little Bit of Cucumber," by W. Mitchell.
 Song—"Clayton Wiley," by H. Gravitte.
 Song—"The Boston Harbor," by H. Payne.
 Recitation—"The Spring Cleaning," by Chalk.
 Song—"I'm the Daddy of them All," by Chapman.
 Song—"Where the Black-eyed Susans Grow," by A. Steele.
 Song—"My Voyage to Nid," by T. Elliott.
 Chorus—"We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall."
 "God Save the King."
 Well, the next morning we were still at Kitty's Brook, waiting for No. 1 to be put on the road. Suddenly there was a signal; everything was full of life, and the boys struck up the old tune "We're off to sea again." Everything went well until we reached the Gaff Topsails, when all of a sudden, "bump," "bump," and we were jammed. The next thing we heard some one shouting "all hands on the deck"; then we thought we were at the icefields! Yes, it was quite realistic. When we looked through the window we could see nothing but the tops of a few trees rising out of the snow. At the same time one shouted, "gunners and dogs get ready!" Some one was turning the tops of the trees into a patch of old seals, and it was only when some one shouted that the snow plow was gone, that we realized we were snow-bound at the Gaff Topsails. So the next thing was to search for the plow. After a little while we found it still Against Tobacco.

Notice has been given that the W. C. T. U. will inaugurate a campaign against tobacco, especially in the form of cigarettes. The threat is made by Mrs. Emma Boole, Vice-President of the National W. C. T. U., and President of the New York State branch of that organization in the United States. "Such a movement was to be expected," says the Montreal Gazette, "for the women politicians of the W. C. T. U. have long been antagonistic to the cigarette, and the promise of Prohibition removes their chief object of attack. So the smoker may look for insult and words as well as for votes." Spineless politicians seeking votes will also be found espousing the cause in various centres, and here and there a professed and professional reformer will make pro-

At for a day and days. The W. C. T. U. of the United States, and the other bodies which follow its lead, are undertaking a big task in seeking to oust tobacco. In the suffering field of war millions of soldiers found solace in the cigarette. That mild soothe eased the agony of countless wounded men and helped to reconcile others to the final going out into the night from whence they will never return. The cigarette and the pipe and the cigar are also a solace to a multitude of hardy workers in peacetime occupations. They do not lead to crime, any more than does the woman's candy, or face powder, or other articles of luxury. A war on the man's tobacco will surely provoke reaction against all petty tyrannies everywhere. This is a day for reasonable liberty and not for senseless restrictions.

German Colonies to be Internationalized.

Belfast Employers Threaten Lock-out — Labor Unrest Spreading — Jellicoe's Itinerary Omits Newfoundland.

STRIKE CASUALTIES.

GLASGOW, Jan. 31. Forty persons were injured to-day during the disorders in connection with the strike. To-night the clashes between the strikers and the police have ceased, but the city was in semi-darkness owing to the shortage of electric current.

BACK BY AUGUST.

TORONTO, Jan. 31. "We hope to have all the troops back in Canada by the end of August," said Major General S. C. Newburn, Minister of Militia, who was in Toronto to-day with Col. H. C. Osborne, Military Secretary. "Soon as navigation opens up the troops will be landing at Halifax, St. John, Quebec and Montreal, and will be arriving as fast as they can be transported. The third division will come back first, as announced. The troops will return in units, as far as possible."

NO LACK OF CRITICS.

LONDON, Jan. 31. Though the ordinary lines of party cleavings will be absent from the new Parliament, the Government will not lack independent critics. The general elections, which marked the disappearance of the Pacifist group in the House of Commons, sent back to Westminster in place of the Pacifists, a body of men, who by reason of their practical experience, are peculiarly well fitted to assist the Government and guide the nation in the transition period.

A NOVEL DEMAND.

LONDON, Jan. 31. Except for serious developments in Glasgow, the Labor situation was not materially changed to-day. It was reported that some Belfast firms had threatened to institute a lockout, but as yet, this has not been officially confirmed. The Belfast concerns affected by the strike, however, issued a joint statement, contending that any change of hours must be a national affair, and asserting that they are willing to adopt whatever standard may be nationally decided. But they declare if a shorter working week than 47 hours is adopted only in Belfast, that city will be unfairly handicapped. The Belfast linen mills are still running, but it is considered impossible that they may eventually become involved. Order has been maintained up to the present, through the strike committee having agreed that their pickets may assist the police in keeping the peace, and the pickets are patrolling the streets wherever disorder is likely to arise. Strong efforts are being made to induce Dublin to join the strikers. As an instance of the novel phases of the strike movement 2,000 strikers at Edinburgh to-day, demanded that the Edinburgh Corporation should grant £2,000 for a strike fund, and the Leigh Corporation £500, and threatened unconstitutional acts if their demands are refused. There is a prospect of a strike in the electrical trades in South Wales to-morrow. Representatives of the Miners' Federation are in conference to-day, with the Labor Ministry and the Board of Trade, concerning the miners' demands for a thirty per cent. increase in wages, a six hour day and nationalization of mines. The Labor Minister promised to place the whole matter before the cabinet. The Executive of the Federation has, in the meantime, issued an order deprecating any local strikes to secure these demands.

U.S. ARMY AND NAVY.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. Universal compulsory military training for American youths, as a permanent National policy, is proposed in a bill introduced in the Senate to-day by Senator New of Indiana, Republican. "Such a policy," the Indiana Senator said, in offering the Bill, "provides the only guarantee against any occasion for the maintenance of a large regular army." Unanimous approval of the Administration's new three year Naval programme, with the number of capital ships reduced from sixteen to ten, because of differences among experts over the value of battle cruisers, was voted to-day by the House Naval committee.

INTERNATIONALIZATION.

LONDON, Jan. 31. The Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail, in a despatch to his paper to-day says that Japan, on Thursday, formally accepted the theory of Internationalization of Colonies, and that it was understood South Africa had abandoned its opposition to the scheme. "President Wilson," the correspondent adds, "undoubtedly won an immense diplomatic victory, but has had to modify his original proposals to some extent."

CLUBS AND BOTTLES.

LONDON, Jan. 31. Brief despatches, received from Glasgow this afternoon, indicate that the strikers carried out their threat to fix noon to-day as the time limit for carrying on their dispute in a lawful manner. Up to four o'clock this afternoon, the only news which had been received was that riotous scenes had occurred in George Square. The police used their batons and strikers replied with bottles, cartloads of which had been taken to the scene of the gathering, and used them freely against the police. Thirty persons, injured in the fighting, were treated at one hospital. After the Riot Act was read, Nell McLean, Gallagher and Kirkwood, three of the strikers' leaders, were permitted to address the crowd from a window of the City Hall. They advised the strikers to proceed to Glasgow Green to discuss the situation.

LOCK-OUT THREATENED.

BELFAST, Jan. 31. The shipbuilding firms have notified the strikers, that unless they resume work to-morrow, on a forty seven hour week basis, the employers will institute a six week lock out.

SHIPBUILDING IN CANADA.

OTTAWA, Jan. 31. The Imperial Munitions Board, after constructing forty-seven wooden ships, is about to conclude its operations in that line. There has been no development in this business since the Dominion Government elaborated a shipbuilding programme of its own, and the activities have been centered on finishing up the vessels on the stocks. The last of them is scheduled to sail from British Columbia on February 15, via Panama, and will carry a cargo of lumber. Four ships are at Quebec. They got only as far as there when navigation closed, and will sail early in the spring. There is foundation for a report that sixteen ships, constructed for the Board in the United States, proved unfit for use.

ADD NEWFOUNDLAND.

LONDON, Jan. 31. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Admiral Lord Jellicoe will start on his tour, in connection with an Empire Naval Scheme, about February 20th. He will go first to India, thence to Australia, and later to New Zealand, South Africa and Canada. The tour will occupy fifteen months. Lady Jellicoe accompanies the Admiral.

LATEST.

BOLSHEVIKS EXPECTED.
LONDON, Jan. 31. The Polish information committee learns that the Germans have transferred control of Brest Litvsk to the Ukrainians, and that the Bolsheviks are expected to arrive in that town within a few days.

AERO FREIGHT SERVICE.

LONDON, Jan. 31. The Government has allotted a squadron of military airplanes to convey foodstuffs to Belgium, for the relief of the population. The service will begin immediately, between Folkestone and Ghent.

SOMETHING NEW.

STRASSBOURG, Jan. 31. (Havas).—Two British gunboats arrived here to-day. The British flag now floats over the city.

RIOTING MINERS.

LONDON, Jan. 31. There was serious rioting to-day in the mining districts of Lanarkshire, particularly at Bells Hill, where much damage to property resulted. The police clubbed the rioters.

WANT FRYATT'S MURDERER ARRESTED.

BASEL, Jan. 31. The arrest of Admiral Schroeder and Captains Koester and Regner, of the German navy, has been requested by the Central Committee of sailors at Hamburg. The officers are accused, especially Admiral Schroeder, with being responsible for the execution of two sailors, although they were conversant with the general amnesty order. Admiral Schroeder became notorious, when he ordered the execution of Capt. Charles Fryatt, while he was commanding the German naval forces at Bruges.

A NEW EXPEDITION.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. Sir Horace Plunkett, who in 1918 presided over the Dublin Convention, which tried in vain to bring about an agreement among Irish factions for self-government, arrived here to-night on the steamer "Adriatic," on what he termed a "Listening Expedition" to America. He said he hoped to discover in this country interest in Ireland's political problem, sufficient to help bring about its solution before an adjournment of the Peace Conference. Emphasizing his freedom from attachment to any party, Sir Horace declared it was his highest hope that establishment of an Irish Government responsible to the people would be one of the results of the war. He said the Convention of 1918, which he asserted recently had "laid the foundation for an agreement unprecedented in history," was still technically in existence, though it had failed in its ultimate objective. He declined to comment on the organization of the Irish Parliament from the first news of which he received when his ship had reached her pier.

POPULAR RULE IN BELFAST.

LONDON, Feb. 1. (By the A.P.)—The Administration of Belfast, from artisans Hall, by self constituted rulers continues. The organization of a police force of three hundred constables by the strike committee having been effected, the force is cooperating in perfect harmony with the city police, and window smashing and other disorders have virtually ceased. The entire city has accepted the rule of the committee, which prohibits extreme agitators and Sinn Feiners from public speaking. Anybody with a grievance must obtain permission from the committee before airing it publicly.

PEACE WITH UNREST.

PARIS, Feb. 1. Preliminary Peace terms will probably be presented to Germany along with conditions for a further renewal of the armistice this month, if present plans are not deranged. Recognizing the need for a return of the world to a normal peace time basis, the nations associated against Germany are considering making a start toward the actual Peace treaty by inserting some of the elementary terms into the conditions which will be submitted to the German Armistice Committee on February 17.

Peace Conference Demands.

The big revival of business that is confidently predicted by men who know as a result of the War and the Peace Conference, will require many trained office workers. Larger salaries are being paid than ever before. Get into business or prepare for promotion. Now is the best time of all to prepare. See the Technical and Commercial School adv. in the Telegram. Are you doing your share by attending?

Briefs of Interest.

Whatever else may be said of the generous-hearted Bolshevik, he is at least ready to divide your last dollar with him.—Boston Transcript.
McGill University will erect a memorial hall to soldiers, seating between 3,000 and 4,000 persons.
The Quebec Telegraph says: "Half-fax has had a half million dollar fire now. But, after the great conflagration a little more than a year ago, no doubt even the small boys and the dogs were too blasé to follow the engine to the scene."
Transfer from one airplane to another in flight has been accomplished at Barron Field, at Fort Worth, Texas, by Lieut. Omar Locklear, of Fort Worth. The achievement has been revealed by the lifting of restrictions on photographs.
A British aviator has attained an altitude of 30,500 feet, or nearly six miles. Pretty soon the husky station-master will be bawling, "All aboard for the Moonland Limited!"
Druggists at Owensville, Ind., are permitted to sell only pills and castor oil on Sunday.
Martin McKee, a coal miner, at Springfield, Ill., won a war prize of $5 by eating at one sitting 25 big pickles, weighing altogether 13 1/2 pounds.
Returning to his home early at Pittsburg, Robert Colbert, aged 75, found he had locked himself out. Procuring a hatchet, he chopped a hole in the lower panel of the front door and attempted to crawl in. While trying to squeeze through the opening his clothes caught and he was held till he froze to death. His body was found hanging in the door by neighbors shortly after daylight.

Police Court.

A breach of Section 39 of the Prohibition Act, that of refusing police officers permission to search, was heard. The defendant proved that he was not present at the time of the refusal and the case was dismissed.
A sailor who had refused duty on board his ship, which now lies in the dock, was put aboard again, his plea of illness being disproven by a doctor's certificate.
A drunk was fined $5 or 10 days.

Important to Shippers.

The following letter has been received by the Board of Trade from the Reid and Co. for the information of shippers and consignees. "The Reid and Co. will endeavour as far as possible to forward all freight via North Sydney and Port aux Basques, but reserves the right whenever circumstances, in the opinion of the company require it, to forward freight originally routed via North Sydney and Port aux Basques and designated steamers, via Halifax, or via Louisburg, collecting extra charges over the Sydney and Louisburg railway, and also the right to forward same by any steamer owned or chartered by the company from North Sydney or Louisburg, or Halifax direct to St. John's or Newfoundland ports other than Fort aux Basques. Shippers and consignees, when effecting marine insurance, should bear this in mind and have their policies made accordingly."

A Chapter of Accidents.

The custom of boys sliding down the hills and across the road at the bottom is becoming more and more pronounced, and no surprise may be expressed if a serious accident is reported at any day. Yesterday afternoon, at 2.30, a young lad came down Garrison Hill on a slide, and a street car, when passing along Queen's Road, very narrowly escaped killing him, the slow speed only preventing. A passenger had just alighted, and the car was starting, when the slide with the boy on it, ran right under the fender. The conductor brought the car to a quick stop, while a man passing quickly pulled the lad out quite unharmed.
Last evening, about 7 o'clock, a large number of boys were sliding down Springdale Street, going down as far as Water Street. A number of minor accidents happened throughout the night, people who were standing near New Gower Street being carried off their legs. The most serious of these was when a young boy of about 8 was thrown violently to the ground, having to be carried home by friends.
An accident occurred on Water St. West about 11.45 a.m. to-day, when at the bottom of Patrick Street, a young girl named Margaret Kavanagh, whose age was about 6 or 7, was run over by a passing milk sleigh, which was drawn by a young and lively runner, was dragged some distance before the horse could be brought to a stop. The driver then extricated her from the position, when her mother, who had rushed across the street, carried her into the house, which was nearby. The child was suffering considerable pain, and Dr. Campbell, who happened to be near, was called in to examine her injuries. After a short examination he found that no bones had been broken, and but for some bad bruises on the leg and hip, the girl had suffered no harm. All this points to the great need for more care in the matter of allowing young children on the streets, and the only wonder is that more accidents are not reported.

A. S. Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of St. John's Agricultural Society was held in the British Hall to-day. The attendance was slightly larger than that of last year. President Cowan occupied the chair. Minutes of the previous annual meeting were read and confirmed, after which the Secretary read the annual report for the year ending December 31st, 1918. The meeting not being over at press hour, we are not able to give the report in its entirety. Some of the points in it were, that the potato crop for the past year was not good, this was probably accounted for by the bad weather. However no disease had been reported among the potatoes. The turnip average was gradually increasing, but only a fair crop was realized. Cabbage is growing extensively, but the 1918 quantity was barely normal.
The hay crop had been fair, and the production of oats was the largest on record, and over 4,000 bushels were threshed (white oats principally were grown here).
Sheep rearing was increasing, and this was augmented by the fact that in general, more dogs were being destroyed.
Small fruits, such as plums, apples garden berries, etc., although not increased showed no decrease.
Other matters in reference to the society; livestock, and machinery were spoken of, and suggestions were made, which we hope to publish in Monday's issue.

Give Credit to Cervantes.

With the thought of yesterday's epigrammatists in mind, it should be set to record that no one has handed down to this age more homely and immortal sayings than Cervantes. "Don Quixote" is full of them: "Why do you lead on a wild goose chase?" "Sure as a gun!" "Within a stone's throw"; "Little said is soonest mended"; "There is no love lost between us"; "Honesty is the best policy"; "All is not gold that glitters"; "A word to the wise is sufficient"; "The pot calls the kettle black"; "Counting your chickens before they are hatched"; "My thoughts ran a-wool gathering," and "As secret as the grave." One need not look far behind to find "mad as a March hare" also attributed to this prolific Spaniard, but really it was an inspiration of the English poet, John Skelton, who lived in the time of Edward IV. "Set the cart before the horse," as well as "I have other fish to fry," comes from sixteenth century Rabelais, while "A bird in hand is worth two in the bush" goes all the way back to Plutarch.—Ex.

The Causes of Back-ache Can Be Remedied
Many people are apt to disregard backache as being of slight importance. This is wrong. A backache should be accepted as a very grave warning that the kidneys are not performing their proper function, and need immediate attention and assistance.
One ingredient of gin is a most beneficial agent in the toning up of the kidneys and restoring these vital organs to their normal duty of eliminating the poisons from the blood.
Gin Pills contain this ingredient, together with other tested diuretics and antiseptics, without a suggestion of alcohol.
When you feel backache coming on, be warned and take Gin Pills at once. It may save you a great deal of suffering. Should you neglect the backache or pains in the side, you stand in danger of more serious ailments, such as Sciatica, Lumbago, and Swollen Bladder, which, with their excruciating pains and prolonged dreary suffering.
Gin Pills can be obtained from almost any dealer, and the price is only 20 cents a box. You buy them on a guarantee of satisfaction or your money refunded.
The makers of Gin Pills will be pleased to send you a free sample if you address your request to the National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto. U.S. residents should address N.D.C.Co., Inc., 202 Main St., Buffalo, N.Y.

Give Credit to Cervantes.

With the thought of yesterday's epigrammatists in mind, it should be set to record that no one has handed down to this age more homely and immortal sayings than Cervantes. "Don Quixote" is full of them: "Why do you lead on a wild goose chase?" "Sure as a gun!" "Within a stone's throw"; "Little said is soonest mended"; "There is no love lost between us"; "Honesty is the best policy"; "All is not gold that glitters"; "A word to the wise is sufficient"; "The pot calls the kettle black"; "Counting your chickens before they are hatched"; "My thoughts ran a-wool gathering," and "As secret as the grave." One need not look far behind to find "mad as a March hare" also attributed to this prolific Spaniard, but really it was an inspiration of the English poet, John Skelton, who lived in the time of Edward IV. "Set the cart before the horse," as well as "I have other fish to fry," comes from sixteenth century Rabelais, while "A bird in hand is worth two in the bush" goes all the way back to Plutarch.—Ex.

Great Achievements.

By RUTH CAMERON.

There, visited in our town, last summer, a very charming young man of about twenty-five. He was one of those young men to whom young and old are alike attracted. He was not remarkably good looking nor especially brilliant, but he had such perfect hearing in the ears of that world, that every-thing he said was heard.

The sort that does think. There are many people who fall in love with him because they don't see the thing to do or because their own ears are wrong, but just because they think that of others is that they are hard of hearing (themselves). The young man was the sort that thinks that notices when the doctor says that your eyes, remember after your cold or your rheumatism or your sick sister, knows when you ask for it that you would like a glass of water or an extra glass. Moreover he noticed and did it for you, whether you were old or young, plain or handsome, rich or poor, popular or unpopular.

Have You Met His Mother?

Several people who had met this young man were wondering why there were so many young men like him, how he came by it, and if there were someone who had known his mother. He said he never met his mother. "No? Well if you had, would you understand him. He is the sort that does think."

What a beautiful tribute to a woman to have earned? Think of the sunshine of courtesy and thoughtfulness, and think of knowing it was you who had helped set apart from the common run of thoughtless, self-loving young men.

That Was Worth Its Weight in Rubles. Another woman showed me the other day a letter that her son, a boy sixteen away at school, had written an accident had happened to his possessions and his father had offered to restore it. Most boys would have accepted this as their due. Not so this lad. He insisted that they simply must not try to make it good in any way and, in order to spare their feelings, made light of what must have been a great blow to him since it meant that many hours of hard work had come to nothing. I don't believe one boy in a hundred would have written a letter like that, and I think the mother of such a boy has good reason to be both proud and thankful for her share in building such a character.

As one of the characters in an old English play declares, "The mother in her office holds the key of the soul; and she it is who stamps the coin of character, and makes the being who would be a savage but for her gentle cares, a Christian man."

Milady's Boudoir.

A JAPANESE BEAUTY TREATMENT.

We could learn much from our little eyed sisters of Chrysanthemum land if we really would heed her teachings. The peachlike complexion of the Japanese woman is greatly aided by the application of hot cleansing cloths, which she uses after having been in the dust outdoors. You may go through the same steaming process in your American bathroom. Run a quantity of hot water into the stationary basin, take a large soft cloth or a small soft towel, make a pad of it by folding, dip it in the hot water (not scalding hot) and then, after pressing the water out of it slightly hold it to the face for about two minutes.

Repeat the process three times and then proceed to douse the face vigorously with cold water for about five minutes, so that the pores will not become enlarged from the steaming. This would be preferably before retiring. Never fail to put cold cream upon the face after the cold water douch. If done before retiring, the cream need not be washed off, but if the steaming and cold water douch are used before going out, the cream may be wiped off gently from the surface with a soft handkerchief and powder applied.

If your complexion is "off color" this steaming and cold water bath will brighten it up beautifully. Be sure and do not forget the cream if the weather is cold.

Hold Tight to the Navy.

The World's Guarantee of Freedom of the Seas.

(By Admiral Lord Berosford, G.C.B. in a Special Interview with "The Bits.")

To give up our maritime rights means suicide. At the Peace Conference table one of the points which the German delegates will want to discuss will be the freedom of the seas. That must not be allowed. The seas in peace-time have always been free. Just as the Germans had open British markets for their goods, so they had full freedom of the seas for their ships. And as long as Great Britain commands the seas the freedom is open to all countries.

All vessels come into and go from British ports without hindrance or without paying a penny more in dues than a British ship was charged. They could get coal from British coaling stations at the same rates as those charged to ships of all other nations. No restrictions were placed on their shipping, so far as we were concerned. In fact, we treated them too leniently and quite fairly. They did not hesitate to seize the opportunities presented to them of undercutting our own shipping, and abused in every possible way the freedom of the seas.

What Germany Wanted.

This, however, is not sufficient for the Germans. They have been dreaming of and striving for, not freedom of the seas, but domination of the seas. That is how German authorities interpret the term "freedom of the seas." Listen to what Count Reventlow, the German naval writer, said in March, 1917:

"Of course we do not mean by it that free use of the seas which is the common privilege of all nations in time of peace, the right to the 'open highways of international trade.' That sort of freedom of the seas we had before the war. 'What we understand to-day by this doctrine, is that Germany should possess such maritime territories and such naval bases that at the outbreak of war we should be able with our Navy ready, reasonably to guarantee ourselves the command of the seas.'

"We want such a jumping-off place for our Navy as would give us a fair chance of dominating the seas." That there should be no mistake as to the attitude of the Germans in regard to the freedom of the seas, Admiral Von Tirpitz gave this definition in October, 1917:

"I know of but one way of re-establishing the freedom of the seas, namely by removing from the sea the British control of the ocean, which could be realized only by a grouping of naval Powers whereby Great Britain's supremacy at sea would be practically prevented. 'Without being forced to her knees, Great Britain will not give up an inch of her naval supremacy.'

An Impudent Claim.

What would it mean to us if Germany secured freedom of the seas, according to her interpretation of the term? It would mean that in the course of time she would be able to dominate the whole civilized world. With her present naval bases in the Baltic and the North Sea, and with the naval bases which she would establish and develop on the Atlantic and Pacific, if her colonial possessions were returned, Germany would have the ocean trade routes of the world at her mercy.

According to the German view of freedom of the seas, Great Britain must give up her naval bases at Gibraltar, Malta, Hong Kong, Bermuda, the Cape, etc., but Germany was to retain her naval bases at U-boat centres, which would enable them to cut the trade routes and leave the world at their mercy.

U-boats, in the event of another war, would be supreme. Had Germany possessed these bases with an adequate fleet of submarines at the outset of this war Great Britain and her allies would have been starved into unconditional surrender within six months.

Had she known anything about our trade routes she could have sent out 30 cruisers and armed merchant ships before the war, and sunk a thousand ships in the first ten days; and we should have been done. The trade routes are our weak points, and our food supply is only ensured so long as those routes are protected.

Murder on the High Seas. The command of the sea is vital to the life and existence of the whole Empire, and it must never be interfered with. We have held our maritime rights for centuries under international law.

That is why Dr. Solf and other German statesmen have declared that the regaining of Germany's colonies is their main task, and why we must prevent their return and absolutely refuse to consider, in any shape or form, the question of freedom of the seas, as understood by the German people through the teachings of their statesmen and experts.

Germany has sunk over 13,000,000 tons of shipping, and has murdered 16,000 of the finest seamen in the world, who were heroically carrying out their duty in the mercantile marine. We shall never forget the way in which the Hun has violated the charter of the seas. It is necessary for our very existence that we do not relax for one moment that watchfulness which has always maintained the real freedom of the seas, and which has been our doctrine since the day of Nelson. If we once gave up command of the seas it would mean an end of the British Empire. But for our maritime power the Germans would have overrun Europe, and America would eventually have been at war with the Germans to secure its own existence.

We must keep the seas free for the world. The German demand for freedom of the seas is simply a wily move to get the Powers of the world to combine, in the interest of Germany, to destroy the naval predominance of Great Britain. We must see that the Government enter into no discussions and no parley whatever when they consider peace negotiations, or do anything that would interfere with the British Empire's command of the seas.

The Newest Problem.

Women motor car thieves and women burglars have been a source of considerable trouble to the police. Many thousands of women learned to drive motor cars during the war, and among them were wives and sweethearts of professional thieves, who saw an opportunity of increasing facilities for carrying out daring robberies. Motor cars stolen while left unattended in the street have been used extensively to carry large quantities of cloth, costumes, furs, cigars and cigarettes taken from warehouses and private houses. It is known that in some instances the motor cars have been stolen by women drivers. In one case three hairpins were found in a roadway in the West End of the spot whence a car had been stolen, and the evidence showed that a woman had been seen to turn the starting handle. In doing this the hairpins had dropped from her hair.

WHAT MATTERS.

It matters little after all whether stocks shall rise or fall, whether joys my strength rewards. Whether anyone applauds Any little feat of skill; All that matters, all that will, is that I may gayly tell That the ones I love are well.

Fame can vanish over night; Wrong can swiftly follow right; Loss can take the place of gain, Sunshine turn to chilling rain; Fate may rob me of my wealth, But if those I love have health 'Tis no right to frown or sigh—Fortunate indeed am I!

He that stands beside a cot Cooling fevered hands and hot, Fighting blindly, hour by hour, illness, with its hidden power, Headless in of worldly fame Or the fortunes mortals claim; He forsakes life's battles then 'Till his babe is well again.

Fortune then his name might call, But he'd answer not at all; Deaf to glory he would stay By that little cot to pray— Watching waiting, not for gold, Not to hear his praises told, But for one faint sign to tell 'That his babe would soon be well.

Sum up life and all its care, Count burdens mortals bear, Shift the losses and the gains, And but one real was remains: 'Tis to live those days of fear When the hand of death seems near. Then all else a man would sell Just to have his loved one well.

New York practically suspended all business for one minute and paid silent respect to the memory of Theodore Roosevelt, as his body was being laid to rest in the cemetery at Oyster Bay. As Old Trinity's chimneys began the funeral toll, hundreds of other churches followed. Precisely at 1.59 p.m., and until 2 o'clock, for one minute virtually every wheel of industry in Greater New York stopped. The roar of subway, elevated and surface, wires ceased. Street traffic was practically suspended when 12,000 New York policemen, while the bells were tolled, doffed their caps.

Evidence Crops Up Every Day.

THAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ALWAYS HELP KIDNEY DISEASE.

Quebec Man Who Suffered From a Radium System and Kidney Disease Finds Quick Relief.

Miguasha Point, Que., Jan. 31st.—(Special)—More evidence crops up in this vicinity every day to prove that for rundown people there is no remedy to equal Dodd's Kidney Pills. Among the many who have come forward with statements is Mr. Paul Landry, a well-known resident, whose testimony can easily be corroborated. "It is with great pleasure that I write to tell you your Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine that I have ever taken," Mr. Landry states. "When I commenced to take them there was not much hope for me. After taking four boxes I felt like myself again. I advise all persons who suffer from kidney disease to take Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are popular all over this country, because they not only cure the pains and aches of the different diseases springing from disordered kidneys, but also give new life and energy all over the body. They do this naturally. They cure the kidneys. Cured kidneys strain all the impurities out of the blood, and the pure blood carries nutriment instead of poison to all the nerves and muscles. You have never heard of a person Dodd's Kidney Pills harmed. You hear of thousands who have benefited by them.

What is the result. The girls have said to me, how much better they feel in health, you see they have no water in their homes. Can we expect anything else but Spanish flu, or some other disease to break out among our people under existing housing conditions?

Hon. John Anderson has taken up this housing question, and it is the duty of every right-minded, and Newfoundland loving citizen to back up. When day after day one comes in touch with such homes, one is forced to agitate and forget self, when they see the suffering of others. I again say, I do hope that Dr. Robinson's address to the Current Events Club will be an address to all the citizens of our "Dominion" or Island Home, they will see the force of the Dr's words, and by actions will show him that his time was not spent in vain in preparing such a grand appeal to our people.

Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor. Yours truly, JULIA SALTER EARLE, President of the N. L. W. A. Jan. 30, 1919.

Sergt. Fred Mercer, of the Royal Nfld. Regiment, who is now stationed at Hilden, Germany, has our thanks for a copy of the Division paper, "The Watch on the Rhine." This bright little magazine, which costs one penny to buy, is edited and published at Cologne by the journalists of the 9th Division, of which the Nfd. Regiment forms a worthy part.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Miss Fannie Noel, eldest daughter of Mr. Seiby Noel, South Side, died there on Monday after a short illness of influenza. Miss Noel recovered from the first attack, and being anxious to help her mother, who was sick, she worked on Saturday with the result that a sudden return of the disease ended fatally. She was 22 years of age.

Mr. Simmons' son, Horace C., Capt. W. Yetman, left for St. John's yesterday for a load of supplies for her owner.

Mr. H. H. Archibald visited St. John's this week on a business trip.

Mr. L. Sheppard and Mr. R. Brazil left for St. John's on Wednesday to consult the authorities on business in connection with the Harbor Grace Volunteer Fire Brigade.

Mr. W. H. Kennedy, the genial assistant at the Post Office here, spent a few days in St. John's this week, of which we feel sure his many friends were glad to know. Mr. Kennedy is one of our most popular government officials.

87th Annual Report

OF THE BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA.

The Bank of Nova Scotia was incorporated in 1852 and the statement of its affairs as at December 31st, 1918, which appears in to-day's issue is, therefore, the 87th of the long series. It has always kept itself in a position of great strength and the statement now being submitted to its shareholders shows this reputation to be well maintained and to be equally well deserved. The Bank has had a successful year. Profits, after deducting the expenses of operation and providing for all other charges ascertained and estimated, amounted to $1,411,925. The sum of $560,268 was brought forward from the previous year as undivided profit and, adding this to the net profits, $1,972,193 became available for distribution. $910,000 was taken to pay the usual dividend, the War Tax on circulation took $45,000, contributions amounting to $47,500 were made to various patriotic funds, $50,000 was added to the Officers' Pension Fund and $150,000 was written off Bank Premises Account, leaving $749,694 of undivided profit to be carried forward into the current year. The total assets are increased by $35,357,266 to $161,325,783, of which $35,357,266 is represented by actual cash on hand and in the Central Gold Reserves as security for the excess circulation,—almost 25 per cent. of the Bank's total liabilities to others than its own shareholders. Other quickly available resources,—balances due by other banks, Government and other securities, etc.—are again seen to form a large proportion of the total assets,—an element of safety and an evidence of strength which must continue to command this bank to the confidence of its large and growing number of depositors.

The circulation has increased very materially, notes amounting to $17,568,924 being outstanding as compared with $12,171,423 a year ago. Non-interest-bearing deposits show an increase of $21,583,772, or over 82 per cent. Interest-bearing deposits are reduced by $3,703,781, due to the very large withdrawals made for investment in War Loans. Total deposits show a net increase of some $18,000,000. Balances due to other banks are practically unchanged. The paid-up Capital and Reserves remain at the former figures,—$5,000,000 and $12,000,000, respectively.

The Bank of Nova Scotia has always stood high in the estimation of its patrons and the general public and the statement now published will show this confidence to be fully warranted and its continued success to be assured.

Household Notes.

Mixtures which are raised with eggs alone should have the whites and yolks separately beaten. Veal is better in late Winter and Spring, while pork and fowls are better in Autumn and Winter. Always wet cornmeal with cold water before pouring it into the boiling water to make mush. In oiling the sewing machine, never forget to put a big drop of oil in each end of the treadle. A prepared milk food taken before bedtime will often make an old person or an invalid sleep better. All swabs or sponges used in bathing the baby should be burned so that they can never be used again. The refinement of the hostess is measured by the simplicity, method and daintiness of her entertainment. One teaspoon of salt to one quart of water is the proportion for the water in which cereals are to be boiled. Better soda biscuits are made by mixing separately the dry and liquid ingredients, stirring together at the end. Apple sauce with the whites of three beaten eggs beaten into it, then chilled and served with boiled custard, is a delicious dessert. All the different classes of food-stuffs should be represented every day in the diet of aged people, but the quantities should be small. Hot water is best for the first rinsing after washing clothes with soap and warm water.

Trades Unions Rule Belfast.

U. S. Will Not Reduce Navy-- Glasgow Strikers Clash With Police -- Soldiers Killed by German Treachery.

NO REDUCTION IN U. S. NAVY.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 31. In presenting commissions to-day to the last class of reserve officers trained at the United States Naval Academy during the war, Secretary of the Navy Daniels predicted that there will be no reduction of naval power for many years.

CONDITIONS IN BELFAST.

LONDON, Jan. 31. (By the A.P.)—Telegrams from Belfast depict a situation there which seems akin to that which recently obtained in Germany under revolutionary rule. The governing power has been usurped, says a Belfast despatch to the Mail, by the strike committee, and the city is governed not from the magnificent building known as the City Hall but from the humble Artisan's Hall. "There is no outstanding personality," says the despatch, "but there is a capable committee of local Trades Union leaders, most of whom are moderate and restrained. Nobody can do anything unless he comes cap in hand to this committee, even the police are helpless and the chief of police has asked the strike leaders to co-operate with the constables in preventing disorders and lawlessness. The committee has prescribed a limited amount of work to certain industries, particularly those involved in feeding and warming the people. Otherwise there is no industrial or commercial activity whatever. It is reported that shipyard men and engineers at Londonderry are arranging to follow the examples of the Belfast strikers."

MAKING THE MOST OF IT.

PARIS, Jan. 31. The crisis in the peace negotiations over the disposition to be made of Germany's colonies seems to have passed momentarily, at least. It is too early to say that President Wilson's view has prevailed in its entirety, but in American quarters there is confidence that a compromise plan which has been accepted in principle will be worked out with details which will be acceptable to the American viewpoint. When the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference meets to-day it will have before it the very plain statement made by President Wilson at Wednesday's session. In phrases stripped of diplomatic niceties it is understood Mr. Wilson told the members of the Supreme Council he would not be a party to a division of Germany's colonial possessions among the Powers which would hold them and then become party to a League of Nations which in effect would guarantee their title. There are inferences that the President even referred to a peace of "loot."

STILL ACUTE.

LONDON, Jan. 31. There was still no prospect early to-day of any betterment in the labor situation in the United Kingdom. If anything the situation both at Glasgow and Belfast, has become more serious, particularly in the latter city. The strike movement is spreading and there are undoubted signs of coming disorders which may entail the proclamation of martial law. The view taken by the Government is that any governmental interference now would be unwarranted and perhaps dangerous. It appears to be generally believed that the absence of strike pay for the men will soon bring about the collapse of the movement. The problem in view for the government ministers is how to re-establish the authority of the trade unions and assist to the greatest possible extent in the expansion of machinery of conciliation so as to enable each trade to settle its own disputes. It is further considered that the strikes are largely promoted by a few agencies with political motives, hence the government is determined to limit its action to the prevention of intimidation and the maintenance of order. The attitude of the employers in most cases is that they will refuse to negotiate until the men resume work.

STRIKERS INJURED.

GLASGOW, Jan. 31. Several persons were injured here to-day when the police charged a crowd of strikers with their batons. The mounted police were called out and a number of arrests were made.

ALLIED ARMY OF OCCUPATION.

PARIS, Jan. 31. The number of American, French and British troops to be maintained in the occupied regions along the Rhine will be limited to 1,000,000 men, according to the Echo de Paris.

GIVEN A FREE HAND.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. Removal of all restrictions on margins of profit on food-stuffs, except cotton seed products and eggs, and the cancellation of most license requirements on importers and distributors, effective to-morrow, were announced to-day by the Food Administration on authority of a proclamation signed by President Wilson at Paris.

FULL EXPLANATION.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. The British Mission here has explained to the War Trade Board officials that the drastic action which prohibits importation to Great Britain after March, of many important commodities, was necessary to stabilize finance industry and labor. It was stated that the present labor situation in England required immediate measures to re-establish the entire economic fabric of the country and moreover that the dollar exchange was lacking to pay for the commodities on the prohibited list if they were permitted to be brought in.

VICTORY OVER POLES.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 31. Austrian East Silesia has been entirely occupied by Czechs after heavy fighting with the Poles, according to a Vienna despatch to the Cologne Volks Zeitung.

MORE MURDERS.

MONS, Belgium, Jan. 31. Two British soldiers were killed and several injured to-day by the explosion of bombs hidden under coal abandoned by the Germans. The soldiers were engaged in removing the coal when the explosion occurred.

AN INTERMEDIARY MEASURE.

PARIS, Jan. 31. An official communication issued this evening says the Allied ministers have decided to send to Teschen (Austrian Silesia) Allied delegates with the purpose of assuring the peaceful exploitation in agreement with the Czechs and Poles pending territorial settlement questions by the Peace Conference.

THE TIMES' OPINION.

LONDON, Jan. 31. The official announcement issued by the Supreme Council Thursday night is welcomed by the Times in an editorial, as an indication that the controversy over the future of the German colonies is tending toward an agreeable solution.

WON'T MEET BOLSHIEVIKS.

PARIS, Jan. 31. The Peace Conference so far has had two replies to its invitation to the various Russian governments for a conference at the Princes Islands. In one of these the government of North Russia formally refuses to meet with the Bolsheviki. The Omsk government, under Admiral Koldchak while less categorical in its reply, expresses strong reserve. Nothing official in connection with the invitation has been received from the Russian Soviet Government.

NOT UNDER AMERICAN CONTROL.

BOSTON, Jan. 31. Members of the Harvard Surgical unit, arriving here last night after more than three years with the British army in France, refused to obey orders of the United States War Department concerning their demobilization. Major M. J. Moore, Acting Adjutant General of the department, was informed by Lt.-Col. Herbert H. White, business manager of the organization, that the unit had been under British jurisdiction and had been demobilized in England. He further explained that the members did not consider themselves under orders from Washington and that they had already formally disbanded. Major Moore did not insist that the war department's orders be carried out.

FIFTY DAYS WITH THE IMMORTALS. SEVEN FREE TRIPS TO THE BATTLEFIELDS OF Flanders, France, Switzerland, London, Paris & Rhine.

THE HALIFAX HERALD AND THE EVENING MAIL WILL PAY ALL TRANSPORTATION STEAMER, RAILROAD FARES, HOTEL ACCOMMODATIONS, AUTOMOBILES, AND ENTERTAINMENT "TIPS." IT IS THE GREATEST OPPORTUNITY EVER OFFERED FOR SUCH WONDERFUL POSSIBILITIES FREE.

THE HERALD AND MAIL WILL SEND SIX LADY PRIZE WINNERS AND A CHAPERONE, AND THE SIX PRIZE WINNERS WILL BE THOSE WHO GET OUT AND HUSTLE.

The Plan

Nova Scotia (outside of the city of Halifax), Westmorland county, N.B., and Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland have been divided into six districts. The candidates in each district securing the greatest number of votes will be entitled to this splendid FIFTY DAY trip through that section of France and Flanders where 70,000 boys from the maritime provinces fought the great Battle of Freedom. More than 100,000 men will see London, Paris, Switzerland and also spend a few days on the famous Rhine.

WHO MAY ENTER.—Any woman, single or married, over 16 years of age, of good reputation is eligible. Candidates must enter their own applications, or they may be nominated by their friends.

IT COSTS NOTHING TO WIN. There are no strings to the offer. The only restriction is as to character. A CAMPAIGN WITHOUT A LOSER.—In addition to the seven splendid trips to be given the district winners, a competition of TEN PER CENT. will be paid to ALL contestants who remain active until the end of the campaign, but who do not secure the trip, so that everyone is compensated according to her merits.

ALTHOUGH candidates will only compete for the trips against their sister candidates in the same district, they will not compete to their districts in securing votes. Votes can be secured anywhere in the campaign territory or out of it. There is no restriction as to where votes can be secured.

YPRES, LENS, YIMY RIDGE, PASSENDAALE, COURCELETTE, SOISSONS, AND OTHER IMMORTAL BATTLEFIELDS TO BE VISITED.

FOR GENERAL INFORMATION AND REGARDING NOMINATIONS, VOTING AND RETURN OF TRIP, AND FOR THOSE WHO WISH TO ENTER AS A CANDIDATE, SEE MRS. CROTHERS, THE REPRESENTATIVE, FROM TEN UNTIL 12 A.M., AT THE CROSBIE HOTEL.

The Evangelists.

(L. C. M.)

The influences and impressions of the closing service of the fourth week of the Victoria Booth-Clibborn Demarest Evangelistic campaign, which she had stated. One story was of such a character as to imprint upon it the hall mark of success. This was evidenced by the immense congregation, and the hearty singing, and by the faithful message of the evening, and by the deep notes of the organ, which touched many a heart. There were lots of things to help; but it will be unanimously agreed by all who heard the devoted Evangelist, that her discourse was the principal feature of them all.

The moment our good sister stood up to speak, there was a feeling, an assurance, that she would be at her best. Her calm devotion gave this impression; and her invocations and prayer ratified this belief. She began in the right place, and continued in for the space of one hour and ten minutes.

As announced her topic was that of "The Empty House." This topic, as every student of Scripture is aware, is taken from the Gospel narrative of Matthew and Luke, chapters twelve and chapters eleven. Taking the first Gospel as her text book, Mrs. Demarest read as follows: "When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man he walks through dry places, seeking rest, and findeth none. Then he saith, I will return to my house from whence I came out; and when he is come, he findeth it empty, swept, and garnished. Then goeth he, and taketh to himself seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter in and dwell there; and the last end of that man is worse than the first."

We say Mrs. Demarest read this parable. Yes, she did read it; and well would it be for some of our certificated college graduates, if they could catch a little of her rendition, and practice a little of her enunciation. Her reading of these three verses was a revelation as well as an interpretation; and when she paused at the end of the Scripture, and then began and read it a second time, she illuminated her revelation and widened her interpretation.

In beginning, she spoke of the timeliness of this topic in connection with the campaign now closing. Often she had been hurt by hearing people say, that after the fervour and sensation of a revival had died out, many of the professed converts died also. In some cases that was so, but it did not destroy the good in the many who held faithful, and who by lives of consecration, "endured to the end." Continuing, she took up the question of "unclean spirits," and maintained that men are still possessed of the same. She had seen such cases, herself, in her rescue work; and from her wide experience among men of the most fallen character, she was fully convinced that the devil still enters into men, and controls their passions.

We took her to mean a real personal devil, but in her enumeration of evil spirits she spoke of the sins which men commit, and the depths to which they fall; and in this light she saw them possessed by the devil. There was the evil spirit of lust, of drunkenness, of temper, of pride and jealousy, and of harsh criticism, and of self and ill-will. Men's hearts are dominated by these things, and are under their control, and they are at the mercy of their baser selves. They try to reform themselves and to patch themselves up, and they think themselves better for a time; but they have not looked to the proper source for help, and in their struggle fail, and go further and further from the way of peace. They thus become desperate, and hardening their hearts they fall deeper than before, and therefore they take unto themselves seven other spirits more wicked than the first, and the last end of these men is worse than the first."

In this connection the Evangelist told two very interesting stories which vividly illustrated the point which she had stated. One story was about John Wesley, and the other one was about a prominent Quaker named George Fox. In their life's work these good men had been opposed by people who were demon-possessed, and who, by their rough behaviour, and bad living, and rude manners, were almost as reckless in their conduct, as was the man, who, having one evil spirit cast out of him, went afterwards and "took to himself seven other spirits."

Upon these points the speaker was intensely earnest, and unconditionally emphatic; nor did she leave any room for doubt in the minds of her hearers as to her own connections. But we noticed she was broad in all her statements, and did not assume an unduly narrow policy—though she did not lower her standard for a moment. Men and women of every shade of thought, who believe in the common tenets of the Christian Faith, could have listened to last night's discourse, and said "Amen" to it.

Of the after service we cannot write, as we could not stay; but we are pleased to be able to thus report so highly of the main service, and of the sermon. We learned a good deal from them, and we feel sure that many more can add a similar testimony.

NOTES ON THE WEEK.

Not a hitch occurred. Harmony and system, good-will and fellowship, marked the operations of the entire week.

The weather was fine, the streets were clean, the people were eager, and the throng continued from night to night.

And this is just as it ought to be, for every meeting presented something good, and all that was done was for a high purpose.

Surely somebody got out of that little shell called self, and for a while at least, they saw that life is grand, and can be made even grander.

Someone said that the people wouldn't attend the meetings. Somebody else said they would. Who was right? Someone, or somebody?

Someone wants to know about what amount the Evangelists will receive for their services. They deserve the best, and we think they will get it. They have influenced a thousand hearts for good, and will leave a thousand happy memories.

A First Prize of $500.00 was recently awarded a Buick Motor Car owner in an extensive advertised long distance mileage contest conducted by a Roller Bearing manufacturer.

The Buick Car, winning this prize, had traveled 262,000 miles in all kinds of weather on all kinds of roads. The car was manufactured in 1909 and had been in almost continuous service ever since.

In its travels 15,000 gallons of petrol were consumed, 200 tires were used and the car covered a distance equal to 9½ times around the world.

The same quality material and workmanship which made this record possible is being used in the construction of the Buick Car to-day. It is why the growth in production has never been able to keep pace with the increase in demand.

A Navy's Birth.
An Echo of the Day When German Naval Hopes Were High.

One would like to know what deep schemes was hatching in the minds of the War Lords of Prussia when, in 1869, they invited Great Britain to be represented by a man-of-war at the official opening of their new naval base on the North Sea. It is more than likely that the function was designed to convey a subtle hint that a root was in pickles for the scourging of Great Britain at some future date.

Needless to state, the invitation was accepted without any "arrière pensée."
 For Britons were then wont to smile, in an easy-going, patronising sort of way, at German efforts to create a navy.

The rulers of Prussia had long foreseen the necessity of establishing a naval base on the North Sea; and as far back as 1853, when they opened an inch of coast outside the Baltic, the cessation was procured from the Grand Duke of Oldenburg of a piece of marsh-land, near Bremen, which, after sixteen years of incessant labor, and in the face of enormous difficulties, was sufficiently developed as a base for warships as to merit the honour of an official opening by the King of Prussia.

A HAPPY CHOICE!
 The distinction of attending this epoch-making function was accorded to H.M.S. Minotaur, flagship of the Channel Squadron. The selection was singularly felicitous; for, apart from the vessel's imposing proportions—she was one of the five-masted ships which added dignity, if no great fighting value, to the British Navy, of the Sixties—her up-to-date equipment, and high state of efficiency, the vessel was commanded by an officer of noted scientific attainments, who, besides being a German scholar and great admirer of German "method" in administration, numbered many personal friends amongst the officers of the Prussian Navy.

The reception accorded us was "solidly official." No hospitalities were extended to either officers or crew, and only the captain and his staff were invited to the Royal functions.
 By way of an "extra," not included in the official programme, we were treated, however, to a most imposing spectacle, which left a deep impressi on all who were privileged to witness it. The recollection of it is still vivid in the mind of the present writer.
 King William I. having expressed a desire to visit the Minotaur, duly arrived aboard in his yacht, accompanied by the whole of his numerous and truly brilliant staff, comprising Bismarck, Von Moltke, and many o-celebrities, on whom we young officers gazed with respect and admiration, for were not the echoes of Sad-owa still ringing in our ears?
 Could we have foreseen the events of the next eighteen months—a crushed and suppliant France, her Emperor a prisoner in Germany, the pro-clamnation of William I., Emperor of United Germany on French soil, and under the shadow of the once proud city of Paris; had we been vouchsafed this peep into futurity, with what added interest would we have gazed on that bemuddled and historic group assembled on the Minotaur's quarter-deck.
 His Majesty whose pious inclinations and outpourings were not so notorious as they became a year later, was all affability and politeness, even the Iron Chancellor unbent, but Moltke was self-centred, and there was a far-away look in his eyes which became the strategist who had rolled Austria in the dust—ay! and at that very time was planning the same rough treatment for France.
 By way of entertaining our Royal guest, we "beat to quarters," and the guns were worked for a quarter of an hour or so, under the critical gaze of the Prussian War Lords. After which, his Majesty, having graciously expressed his approval and thanks, returned to the shore. Next day we sailed away.

Captain Carpenter, V.C., in the course of his lecture at the Russell Theatre, Ottawa, referred to an officer whose arm was shot off and over whom the men had to walk to get from the Vindictive to the Mole. The officer called to them to keep on and waved his stump in bidding them God-speed. Capt. Carpenter was later surprised to find that the officer he referred to was a listener and seated in Lady Kingsmill's box. He is Lieut. H. T. C. MILNARD'S LINIMENT CURES DIPH-THERIA.

King Charles I. Interviewed.

King Charles' statue in Trafalgar Square has just been unwrapped from its bomb-proof dress which cost $400. The Daily Mail interviewed the unwrapped monarch, with this result:—"How is your Majesty?" I asked a workman.

"A bit faint-like," he replied.

"Has he spoken?"

"Only once. Asked directly he was uncovered, for a pint of bitter. Always heard that he was a good one for asking for more than he could get."

"Can I speak to him?"

The workman pointed to the ladder.

"Good afternoon, your Majesty," I said when I reached the top of the ladder and confronted the handsome, haughty features of Charles the first.

"Why have I been imprisoned all these months?" he demanded. "Heaven wot that someone shall have his hair—shall duly suffer for this. Tell me, sirrah, why has this been done?"

"Your Majesty," I answered, "it was done for your own protection against air raids."

King Charles flushed angrily.

"Tush!" he cried. "Do they not know the Stuarts yet? Did they think it likely that I would care for air raids, that I would lose my hair—er—nerve? Marry. This infernal darkness had been worse than a thousand air raids."

Hearing that there was an Armistice King Charles nearly jumped off his charger. "The armistice!" he cried. "Do you tell me that the war is over?"

I told him that Germany was utterly beaten. He was tremendously moved.

"Zounds," he shouted, "why did they not rip off this accursed dug-out that I could participate in the rejoicings?" Tears came in his fine eyes.

"Forsooth!" he said, brokenly, "I am at a loss for words of joy." The famous smile of the Stuarts irradiated his face. Then he suddenly darkened.

"William!" he demanded. "What have they done to William?" Nothing yet your Majesty. He has retired to Holland.

"To Holland! Ah, if I had only—," His hands strayed to his neck and caressed it. Then he darkened again.

"What is human justice," he cried bitterly, "that I only an obstinate, well-meaning King, should have been punished so, and that this—this—No," he resumed with dignity. "It is not a Stuart to use the words that best this wolf of perdition!"

"What would your Majesty do to William?" I asked.

"What was done to me," he answered. "Could less be done?"

"But what of the divine right of Kings?"

The haughtiness returned to King Charles. "Ah, yes," he ruminated. "The divine right of Kings—I forgot that. No," he said sadly "you must not touch him."

I bade his Majesty farewell and began to descend the ladder. He called me back. "Yes," he shouted. "By the Saluts! You can punish him! You have precedent. For Precedent I lived. By Precedent I ruled. For Precedent I died. You have then, your precedent—it is here." With another Stuart smile and a graceful gesture King Charles touched his neck again.

"Farewell your Majesty," I called. "Your recommendations shall be forwarded to the proper quarters."

Prodigious Families.

The nation which could scheme out the intensive cultivation of "man power" would win all the wars of the future and dominate the globe, but though this sort of thing can be done with vegetables and, to some extent, with poultry, it seems a far cry for the human race, and perhaps it is all for the best, for if six at a birth became common marriage might become very uncommon.

The papers contained the information lately that a woman of Palermo had presented her husband with five boys, all well formed, and, according to the doctor, "eating well and crying well," but this case is neither unique nor a record.

The largest grand total of children borne by one wife seems to be sixty-two—as many as most wives would want, certainly! Strangely enough, this number has been twice recorded. It is set to the credit of the wife of a poor weaver in Scotland, who bore her "hubby" forty-six boys and four girls who grew to manhood and womanhood, and a dozen others who died ere reaching their prime.

Sir John Bowers, of Newcastle, we are told, adopted ten of the sons—rather a large order; three other landed gentry took ten each, and the remainder were brought up by their parents.

In obstetrical annals the "Gravata case" is as well known as the "Tichborne case in-law. The peasant girl Gravata of Tuscany was the twin daughter of a woman who was herself one of triplets, and married a man of her own class.

She set her seal on the family reputation and assured herself of endless fame, although she led off unostentatiously enough with a baby girl, by presenting her husband with six little boys, and followed that the next year with five more!

Then came triplets twice, which were followed by a quartet. Then ensued a long procession of ones and twos, and, as a wind up, less her reputation should suffer eclipse, came four more boys—all at once, bringing the grand total of her living children to sixty-two.

GENTILE ANNE.

Come, gentle spring, ethereal mildness, come of while winter lasts this life is pretty bum. We look ahead with yearning and with sighs to vernal days and cloudless azure skies. As some worn pilgrim, lashed by wind and sleet, wounded by thorns and dying on his feet, beholds the inn, with windows all aglow, so view we spring, from out our drifts of snow. Winter is fierce; its methods all are wrong; winter's a frost, it sticks around too long; if it would come and last a week or two, then chase itself to fields and pastures new, we could endure, with Spartan fortitude all it might spring in climate rough and rude. But as a guest old winter has no style; he brings his gripes and comes to stay a while month after month he camps around the place till he becomes a burden and disgrace. Vainly we hint that he should pull his freight; still he remains, immovable as fate. Long weary weeks must pass before he goes, taking his frost and sample line of snows; then cometh spring, with all her roses red, and to that time we yearning look ahead.

Within the Sacred City.

An extremely interesting and informative article appears in the "Spectator," showing what has been the effect of the British occupation of Jerusalem and what are the plans for its future.

New Life in Its Veins.

"The ancient city, hoary with age, amidst the baked and barren hills of Judaea, feels new life in its veins," says the writer. "Jerusalem is giddy with prosperity. The British 'Tommy' is here, and a Factolian stream of piastres floods the shops, bazaars, the very gutters. None so meek, so dull, so unenterprising but can divert some of this torrent; and Turk, Jew, and Gentile, shopmen, curio-sellers, restaurateurs, cabmen, guides, photographers, artisans, hucksters, barbers, shoeblocks, and beggars, are enjoying an affluence they have never known of since King Solomon's day.

"Jerusalem in war time has become very much like one of the numerous fertile, army-infested towns of Northern France, and in her streets a thousand allurements, from cheap jewellery to pink ice-cream, appeal irresistibly to the passing thousands of dust-covered soldiers.

What is to Happen?

"I have paid several fresh visits to the Holy Place. One innovation which I remarked is welcome. As there are not enough English-speaking professional guides to go round (and these are reaping a rich harvest), the military authorities have wisely detailed soldiers to the task of escorting their fellows over the chief shrines, and incidentally of recalling Scripture history. I say 'wisely,' for or the whole it has saved 'Tommy' from much imposition. But you can't expect an honest, long-suffering sergeant or corporal to become a Cook's guide at a moment's notice or be guiltless of occasional blasphemy.

"Within Jerusalem is a seething caldron of speculation. What is going to happen? What is to be its political, social, economic, industrial, and architectural future? The inhabitants are dimly aware that conferences are going on, in which the Commander-in-Chief, General Allenby, the Military Governor, the Chief Administrator of Occupied Enemy Territory, the Mayor of Jerusalem, the Mufti, the Chief Rabbi, the American Commissioner, the English Bishop, and perhaps others are taking part.

"Amongst the more ignorant, strange rumours are afloat. It is difficult to say who are the most exercised—the Jews, who number more than half the population, the Moslems, or the Syrian and Armenian Christians. But there is little doubt that the Jews, ever since Mr. Balfour's pronouncement concerning Palestine, have the most confidence in their destiny. It is astonishing the effect which the Balfourian declaration has produced. You hear the name of the English statesman on the lips of Jews as if he were one of the ancient prophets and the deliverer of their race.

The Walling Place Deserted.

"The Jews are to have Jerusalem at last; they are no longer to be here on sufferance of the Moslem. The tablets are to be turned; they are at last able to stalk proudly through the streets; it is the Moslems and the Christians who are henceforth to take the wall. The Walling Place is deserted. No one comes there now. For the first time in centuries the spectacle of the crouching Hebrew lifting up his voice in lamentations at the 'lost glories of Israel has wholly ceased. There is nothing lament about the sun shines on Zion.

"A handsome new motor car containing a single swartly figure is familiar in the streets. This is Dr. Weizmann, the British Zionist Commissioner, who is believed to be engaged on an epoch-making Report to the Foreign Office. Of course there is another side of the picture. It is not an exaggeration to say that the Moslems and Syrians and Armenian Christians are nervous. For them the future of El Khuds and of Palestine under Jewish domination is not at all rosy. Many of them will tell you frankly that they will be obliged to emigrate. Already in the manner in which the special trading privileges accorded to the Jews have been exercised indicates what their policy will be when they are given the full power they expect. 'The Jew is clannish—exclusive; he has been kept down so long. Reaction will make him intolerant. We see clearly what is in store for us.'

The Mayor.

"Meanwhile the Moslem is lying low, as low as Brer Rabbit or the Dead Sea. The Mayor, a brother of the late Hussein Husseini, who surrendered Jerusalem and died three weeks later, is shorn of nearly all his powers, the city being still under martial law. He is an amiable, enlightened man, and honestly desirous of promoting the welfare of the community. The Mufti views the intricate philosophical, and he, like the Sheikh of the Mosque of Omar, finds comfort in the present tide of prosperity. Also do they find comfort in the assurance given them by the British authorities that in the town-planning scheme now afoot the ancient city within the walls is to be untouched.

Town Planning Outside.

"Perhaps this same town-planning scheme is rather a fly in the ointment of the local Jew's felicity. For it involves the destruction of hundreds of the hideous erections which have arisen outside the walls of late years—shops and dwellings which have ruined the approach to Jerusalem. For the Jew, with all his artistic temperament, is not very studios of architectural symmetry, and centuries of Ghetto life have not inspired him with much domiciliary taste. The Germans and the Russians have been in their way but little better. One measure of Turkish official taste is the breach in the wall made close to the Jaffa Gate on the occasion of the Kaiser's famous visit in 1898, and the erection of that eyecore, the Kaiser's Clock Tower. This latter, at all events, one is rejoiced to hear, is to come down; the breach is to be filled up and the Jaffa Gate restored.

The New City.

"The plans for the new city have been drawn by Mr. McLean, the Chief Engineer of Alexandria, who was responsible for the Khartum improvements. Amongst their chief features is a splendid boulevard running from the south-west towards the old city, intersected by an arborescent round-point containing the British War Memorial. In future all buildings are to be in keeping with the local character; no more red roofs, no flamboyant gilded domes and other Neo-Byzantine atrocieties.

"The Holy City is henceforth to preserve her architectural soul secure from outside violation, and with this security may become one of the most beautiful, as it is the holiest, the most ancient, and the most interesting, city in the world. On the industrial and educational side, Mr. Ashbee, the English artist-metal-worker, is here giving his advice as to the various artistic activities which are shortly to be set afoot, of which the Bezalot Workshops and those of the American Colony are pioneers.

"On the whole my impressions of Jerusalem are of a 'live' town full of newly-awakened interests and special problems which will be watched absorbingly by the whole world. It is hardly likely that British guardianship and oversight will be relaxed even on the conclusion of peace and the formal announcement to the Jews of Palestine that their destiny is henceforward in their own hands."

Baron Michelham, formerly a member of the firm of Herbert, Stern and Company in London and Paris, died in London recently of pneumonia. Baron Michelham, who was born in 1851, was well known as a philanthropist. In 1915, during the German Zeppelin raids on London, he offered $5,000 each to British airmen for the first ten dirigibles destroyed.

Unique Typewriters.

One Made With 1,800 Keys.
The most elaborate typewriter ever built was one made for the Czarina of Russia by the Remington Company. All parts of the machine ordinarily enamelled black were of a brilliant blue, whilst gold lining was replaced by inlaid mother-of-pearl. The keys were of precious African ivory, and what was usually plated parts became solid gold.

Queen Victoria, who had a great dislike for the typewriter, and always demanded hand-written communications, even from her Ministers, was presented with a magnificent "Bar Lock," similar to the Remington made for the Czarina. It was possessed of ivory keys and gold-plated throughout. It may also be added that the machine, beautiful though it was, did not reconcile Queen Victoria to the new style of writing.

Two other costly machines were presented to the Duchess of York and the Khedive of Egypt, the former receiving hers on her wedding-day. The Hammond Typewriting Company have had the distinction of making the most extraordinary typewriter in the world. The machine was designed and built for Li Hong Chang, the great Chinese Ambassador. It was fitted with twenty sets of Chinese characters, comprising a collection of no fewer than 1,800 keys; no dies were available, so the engraving of the type had to be done by hand. The typist that used the machine would be well worth seeing, for to remember such a number of keys is not easy.

An enterprising Celestial who was permitted to view the machine at once proposed to form a company for the manufacture of similar typewriters to be put upon the Chinese market. The size was to be five times that used for typewriters in England, and which, he asserted, would have a ready sale in China at $1,000 each. Capital, however, was not forthcoming for such an enterprise, so China is still "pen-pushing."

Forty Years in the public service
--The Evening Telegram

IS IT NOT SAD

To think that of the hundred thousand blind people in the United States, the greater part of them might have had their sight to-day had their eyes been properly attended to in time. You people whose eyes bother you, don't make the grave mistake of putting the inevitable off until too late. Your eyes are the most valuable asset you have; take care of them. See
