

GOLDEN CARIBOO AGAIN ASTONISHES THE MINING WORLD

One Hundred and Fifty Ounces of Gold Taken From Montgomery Claim on Lightning Creek in 24 Hours.

Interesting Reminiscences of the Mines During Some of Their Palmiest Days

The recent reports of the large wash-up in the Montgomery mine, Lightning Creek, has again turned public attention to the claims of old Cariboo, and in this way, the illustration shown herewith ought to prove more than passing interest. The picture of the gold escort leaving Cariboo is from a photograph taken in 1888, and represents the express train leaving Barkerville with something like $150,000 in treasure. The armed escort is shown on foot just behind the horse-drawn wagon. Those were the days before the Yale-Cariboo wagon road had been built, and the trip from the mines to Yale—the head of navigation on the Fraser—had to be performed on horseback or afoot, and although millions of dollars in dust was transported to Victoria in this manner, such a report would not be published. The general express was unknown. When it is considered that the distance from Barkerville to Yale is about 400 miles, and that for many years roadside houses were exceedingly few and far between, this record of impunity from crime speaks volumes for the administration of the laws in this province in early days.

government must make provision in the way of railway facilities for the working of a gold-producing district that will be giving rich returns when some of the other much-talked-of places are forgotten. Notice when Dr. Dawson in his report of the geological survey of Canada, 1887, says: "The rich deep leads of Cariboo evidently date from a period antecedent to that in which the country was for the time covered with a great ice mass, or are, in other words, pre-glacial and lie beneath the boulder clay and other deposits due to the ice age. The wearing down of the country rock and natural concentration has been in process from the close of the Miocene or Middle Tertiary period for perhaps in some localities as long as 100,000 years. During the period of the Miocene Tertiary a great part of the province included between the coast range and the gold ranges became occupied with fresh water lakes."

SWITZERLAND TO SWITZERLAND Plan For Making Water Highway From That Country to Sea. Switzerland is the only important country in Europe, except Serbia, that has no outlet to the sea. It depends upon other nations for seaports and steamship lines, paying large sums of money to foreign transportation companies to carry all its foreign trade. This is of course a commercial disadvantage. A young Swiss engineer has conceived a plan to the government for an all-water route from the city of Basel to

By the time this week's reformer had spent a couple of Millions helping the unfortunate Upper Classes to throw off the Shackles of the most unpopular Character in the Country. His heroic Example induced many weak and faltering Statesmen to follow him, and mightily have set at the feet of the Villains any still learn something from him. Nothing is too trivial to amuse up his story of misadventure. Information are curious and reconcile. This is all part of his "business." MODERN FABLES By George Adc. Copyright 1901, by Robert Howard Russell.

ONCE there was a Multi-Millionaire who felt jealous when he saw Carnegie throwing $20 Gold Pieces at the Squirrels, while Little-Oil Jimmy Rockefeller was handing his pet University another Million every time a new Student came in out of the Tall Grass and Married. He saw that a very Rich Man who wishes to be Respected must fill his Clothes with Currency and go out and slather it around and about for every body to have something on him and keep the Change. He decided to follow the prevailing Fashion and spend his Money before he died, thereby giving the Ha-Ha to the Legal Profession. But when this would-be Philanthropist got ready to cut the Strings on his Bundle he struck a Snag. The Philanthropy Business had been overworked. Every Town large enough to be indicated on the Map had a Carnegie Library. He found that the Orphans were getting more Care and Attention than the Children of Club Women. ROYAL IRISH CONSTABULARY

The Constable is a Much Sought After and Entertaining Individual.

There is no more familiar feature of an Irish landscape than a police patrol, 40 where you will find the distressed countryman of the Cape-way to the Cliffs of Achill, the ubiquitous, inevitable "peeler" is always with you. Day and night, winter and summer, on highways and byways, over hedges and ditches, he is making his way away from his prison, kindly, on his feet, and his to the coast side, you will draw a patrol before you draw the fox. The constable is a man of many parts. He is a soldier, a policeman, a teacher, and a "good man, kindly" on his feet. It is the custom of their admirers to talk of the R. I. C. as the backbone of Ireland. They are rather the complete skeleton which gives a support and protection to the sturdier parts of her interesting body politic, running in subtle ramifications to her very extremities. There is, perhaps, no more marked distinction between the rural life of England and of Ireland than this sempiternal presence of the constable. To the outsider the uniform is striking in its effects; upon the wearer himself its influence is thaumaturgic. A the Summer were the Homeless Waifs. As for Colleges, they had multiplied so rapidly that all through the Middle West it was practically impossible to get Harvest Hands. The Poor Working-man showed no inclination to go anywhere but the Free Reading Room and the Cheap Lectures on Astronomy, for he had the Price in his Pocket referred to play Seventy-Seven in some German Place where they served Hot Lunch. It began to look as though the benevolent Millionaire would have to burn his Money or else leave it to the usual Nephew who had on High Balls and Musical Comedy.

"Surely there is Suffering somewhere in this World," said the perplexed Millionaire. "Some one is waiting for a Helping Hand. Now to find him. It began to look as though the benevolent Millionaire would have to burn his Money or else leave it to the usual Nephew who had on High Balls and Musical Comedy. The next thing the Society did was to offer a Cash Bonus to any one giving a Reception at which there would be no standing in Line and only one Hand. All that any one else was the Gentleman who wore the High Collar and carried in his Hip-Bocket a little Work on Etiquette and Good Behavior.

The poor Reptile whose Wife got up in the Morning and grabbed the Paper to see if the Family was mentioned, he was the banner Patsy of all Creation, and he was the Boy that was praying for some one to come along and throw him a Life-Line. By further Investigation the Millionaire was horrified to learn that here in this Smiling Land of Plenty, where the Roses bloom in June and the Editorial Writer calls attention to the prevalent Peace and Happiness, there were thousands of sad-eyed Men and Women who put on their Good Clothes when they would rather not do so, who went out when they would rather stay at Home, who ate when they were not Hungry, Drank when they were not Thirsty, Converted by the hour with People who bored them, listened to Speeches they did not want to hear, Whooped it up for Amateur Performances that were absolutely punk, applauded Vocal Music that was too fierce for words, fuddled Infants that they wanted to throttle and read Historical Romances that caused them to have Charley-Horse Dreams.

COLONIALS' CAMP

How the Troops for the Coronation Will Be Dealt With.

From London Letter. As was generally anticipated, the War Office has accepted the offer of the Alderford Palace trustees to accommodate the colonial troops for the coronation. The colonial troops for the coronation, and in a few weeks' time the Alderford Palace will be criss-crossed with tents and picturesque with the brilliant and distinctive uniforms of many nationalities. The troops will number 2,500, of which 750 will be men of color. Each colony will have its own camp fire, and the whole of the troops, with the exception of the 350 from tropical climates, will be engaged in the grounds. English-speaking colonial troops are to be encamped in the Grove, while the blacks will pitch their tents in the northeast corner of the Alderford Palace.

The officers' mess will be provided in the grill room; the rank and file—with the exception, of course, of those natives whose custom it is to cook their own food—will be fed in the grand dining saloon. The catering has been placed in the hands of Messrs. Bertram, who provided for the colonials in 1897. This firm has in fact everything to be done for at 7s. 6d. per head, and for the rank and file at 4s. per head per day. The idea of the troops as will want special diet and insist on cooking it themselves, will receive the raw material to cook at their own camp fires.

Military barracks are to be provided, so that no colonial will be asked to sleep on the floor; in fact, everything is being done to make the visitors feel that they are the guests of the nation. The troops will be expected to arrive some three weeks or a month before the coronation festivities. The special entertainments will be arranged at the palace both for the colonials and the public. The idea of the trustees, with the consent of the officers, is to give two days to a welcome and farewell to the troops. The trustees also hope that it may be possible to obtain the presence of the King or Lord Roberts at a review of the whole troops.

Horses for the colonials will be provided by the authorities, and arrangements have been made for the tethering for a week of 600 horses in a field adjacent to the Grove. The palace authorities are charging the Alderford Palace with the use of the palace grounds, and all the direct benefit which will accrue to the palace will be in the nature of a contribution. In return the War Office have given an undertaking to put the palace grounds in the same state as they find it.

It is not too much to say that the explosion in Coal Mines Order, 1897, is the effect of that order.
