then rushed from their ambush and made an attack. Captain Birch was speared through the shoulder. The Arabs suc-ceeded in getting within ten yards of the British line before the latter opened regular fire, which the enemy promptly replied to. Three of the infantry and several Haden-dowahs were wounded. Four of the in-fantry were killed, including Lient. O'Connor, whose horse was shot from under him.

The object of the reconnaissance having been attained, the British retired, the Arabs showing no disposition to follow. The British infantry and guards were left on the road half way between Suakim and the Hasheen hills, supporting the Indian contingent. The Bengal cavalry took many prisoners. It was ascertained by the reconnaissance that the Arabs were in large bodies along the entire range of hills, and evidently massing their forces.

After the skirmish Gen. Graham's right, consisting of British infantry, Indian infantry and the guards, began an advance to refuse to remain here. The navigation of the Nile is very difficult and the transpor-tation of the wounded tedious.

As the British retired after having entered Hasheen the rebels rapidly re-secupied the positions previously evacuated by them. The entire British force with the exception of the Shropshire regiment will parade at six to morrow morning, pre-gious to an advance to Tamai, where it is that ingland respects all religions and de-sires the friendship of the Arab tribes. He advises the Sheikhs to submit at once and to rely won the mercy of England; otherwise he t reatens to destroy the flock and other property of their followers.

Waning Influence of the Mahdi. KORTI, March 19.—Generals Wolseley and Buller have returned to Korti. The chief of the Shakiyeh tribe has submitted to the British. A rival of the mahdi has appeared at El Obeid. Scores of despatches in the morning papers confirm the reports of the mahdi's waning power. Several dervishes have denounced him as an im-postor. The despatches had been detained.

CAIRO, March 19 .- The bitter feeling shown by the English toward the French is due to the hostility of the Bosphore Egyptien, which is constantly inciting the natives te oppose the British. The suppression of the paper appears to be a military necessity. The mahdi's adherents tary necessity. The mahdi's adherents declare that before summer is far advanced Lord Wolseley's army will be cut off from ammunition to each man, in the direction of Hasheen. The troops are now three miles from the city, and the cavalry have been sent to beat up the enemy, and fighting is expected. Five hundred of the enemy were seen on the hills near Hasheen.

The cavalry, mounted infantry and Indian infantry were sent to reconnoitre, while the guards acted as a reserve. The enemy retreated before the British advance. The head of the British column is now near Hasheen.

The soouts reached the summit of the hills and discovered that the Arabs had massed in the valleys. The Arabs retired into a position of shelter, but fifty remaining in sight. They remained in this position until the British advance reached a ridge of hills. The Hadendowah tribe then rushed from their ambush and made an attack. Captain Birch was speared through the shoulder. The Arabs succeeded in getting within ten yards of the cost of living; the extent to which the industries have been developed, and the cost of production reduced through the use of machinery; difference in rates of wages in like industries in different localities of the United States, influence of activities of the use of machinery; rates of wages and cost of living; influence of climate on the use of machinery; rates of wages and cost of living; influence of the use of machinery; rates of wages and cost of living; influence of climate on the use of machinery; rates of wages and cost of living; influence of the use of machinery; rates of wages and cost of living; influence of climate on the use of machinery; rates of wages in like industries in different localities of the use of machinery; rates of wages in like industries in different localities of the use of machinery; rates of wages in like industries in different localities of the use of machinery; rates of wages in like industries in different localities of the use of machinery; rates of wages in like industries in different localities of the use of machinery; rates of wages in like industries in different localities of the use of machine railroad building, etc., have preceded them.

Acts relating to the departs secretary of state, to the constitution of the treasury board and to the bank of British Columbia were read a first time. Replying to Mr. Blake, Mr. Pope said the government section of the Canadian Pacific in British Columbia is being utilized for the conveyance of freight and passengers by the contractors who are building the road.

Replying to Mr. Patterson, Sir Leonard Tilley said that no official steps had been taken towards developing the trade relations between Canada and Mexico.

Mr. Bowell, replying to Mr. Edgar, said the St. Croix cotton mills owed fifteen to twenty thousand dollars duty on machinery. The government were taking steps towards having the debt liquidated.

Mr. Casey resumed the budget debate. Mr. Stairs followed. Mr. Gi'lmore then succeeded in turning the matter into a burlesque. He said it would not be so bad if the whole inhabitants, from Vancouver to Halifax, were playing draw poker as believing in the national policy. It astonished him how the people continued to vote that way. If bread, cotton and sugar were not cheap he would not take a risk on the lives of the ministerial members. His Manager's Wife.

St. Catharines, March 19.—An elopement took place on Tuesday evening last. The parties are Malcolm Wilson, accountant in the bank of Commerce here, and Mrs. Hankey, wife of the manager of the same bank. The manager was in Toronto at the time, Wilson being left in charge of the bank. He purchased tickets for Buffalo and, taking a hack, drove from here to Merriton with Mrs. Hankey, who took three valises with her. They missed the train and are supposed to have procured a conveyance and gone on to Thoroid to catch the evening train on the Welland railway for Port Colborne and thence to Buffalo. Mrs. Hankey leaves three young children and Wilson two daughters, one of whom is a young woman 15 or 16 years of age. Mrs. Wilson has been living with relatives in Belleville for a month past. Wilson recently converted a mortgage that he held for $2000 into cash. His relations with his own wife were unhappy. His accounts are the bank. He purchased tickets for Buffalo

MR. HAYNOR'S WIFE.

BY JOHN TURNER, Hanna hMeade was in the kitchen mak ing pies. The bright June sunshin strayed in at the open window, trailing its golden rays through the pink and purple morning glories, and paving a little tremulous pathway over the snow-white floor. Bees buzzed in the clower blossoms outside, and the rebin redbreast, which had built its nest in the tall poplar tree near the kitchen window, was rehearsing for grand concert. Hannah's dark, piquant face was full ofdiscontent as she mixed her pastry and rolled it out, working away as though her life depended upon her efforts.

"I'm tired," she burst forth, impetuous ly, though whom she was addressing it was difficult to tell, for she was all alone in the great breezy kitchen-"tired of the drudgery and confinement! So little time for study and to write. Yet I know that if I had only the leisure I could make money enough, writing for story papers, to help father a great deal !" "Ha! ha!"

The laugh, which rang out sweet and silvery in the doorway, was sarcastic and Hannah closed the oven door on her pie

A lovely blonde vision greeted her eyes—a girl of 18, attired in floating white muslin, with cardinal ribbons, one mossrose in her braid of golden hair, and another fastening the lace at her white "Listen!" cried the merry voice. "Come, mamma, and hear Hannah, the kitchengirl, lecture on a woman's rights, becoming an authoress and making money—actually a fortune—writing for the press! Oh, it's too funny for anything! Hannah, the cook, an authoress!"

Hannah Mead's alim figure was drawn up proudly to its full height, her clear eyes flashed, her red lips curled.

"Kitchen girl, cook!" she repeated,
"Belle West, who made a house-drudge

"Belle West, who made a house-drudge of me but your own mother? I was happy here with pape, and never had to work until he, poor man, was foolish enough to take a second wife. On the day that he married your own mother, the widow West, and you and she came here to live, our servant was dismissed and I was installed in her place. The burden of the house-work is laid upon my shoulders that you may keep your hands white and pass your time angling for a rich husband."

"Hush! How dare you speak to my daughter in that coarse manner?"

A tall, angular woman, in a tawdry wrapper, sailed into the kitchen.

"I'll teach you to air your insolence here!" And she struck the astonished girl

And she struck the astonished girl a heavy blow upon the cheek.

For a moment Hannah stood too bewildered to utter a word, the red blood crimsoning her cheek and marking the spot where her stepmother's insult had fallen. With the majesty of an outraged empress she turned to leave the room.

"Mrs. Meade," she said, in a low, clear tone, which somehow made the trate stepmother pause, "I am going to leave this house. First I shall see my father and tell him of this outrage, and then I am going away. You can procure another servant in my place, and your dangher will have no one to comment on her strenuous effort to marry Mr. Rayner!"

"You shall win him!" returned the mother decidedly. "He is rich, and there is not another such a party to be had. Do your best, Belle, and be glad that we are safely rid of that girl. To tell the truth I have fancied lately that Mr. Raynor admired her." Mother, you are mistaken! What an

Hirdly had the two left the kitchen when a tall, graceful form arose from a bench under the poplar tree, a man with a scornful look upon his handsome face.

"By Jove!" he exclaimed, indignantly, "I know Belle West as she is at last. So she's trying to catch my fortune? It's lucky that old Farmer Meade brought me out here where I might find a cool spot to smoke my cigar, while Miss Belle prepared for the pionic. I suppose I must make a martyr of myself and attend her, but thank heaven! my eyes are open at last! Poor little Hamash!"

Time passed, and under the modest nom de plume of "Nemo," Hannah Meade was earning both fame and fortune. Beaded Lace Fronts worth $4,50 for $3 at the Bon Marche. 4 Markham Libel Case.

When the case of Vanzant v. Hail way called yesterday morning at the assize court before Justice Wilson, the popula tion of Markham was largely represented. The matter has, since the issue of the writ, excited deep local interest, the parties being well known business men. At the municipal elections, held in January, the plaintiff was one of the candidates for the reeveship of the village, and the defendant, who was working for the opposing candidate, is alleged to have circulated slanders against the plaintiff of so serious a candidate, is alleged to have circulated slanders against the plaintiff of so serious a character as to justify the commencing of an action for $5000 damages. When the case was called, the counsel engaged, B. B. Osler, Q. C., for the plaintiff, and J. K. Kerr, Q. C., for the defendant, announced that a settlement was pending. This was altimately agreed upon, the defendant making the following apology: "I regret having made the statements complained of by the plaintiff in his statement of claim, and having heard Mr. Vanzant's denial of and having heard Mr. Vanzant's denial of them upon his examination herein, I am prepared to accept his denial thereof to the fullest extent."

Quails are now so abundant in California that they throng the roadways. While rewards are offered by farmers in southern counties for killing this bird, which destroys much grain, the Almeda and Contra Costa farmers say the quail is useful to them. It attacks their grain only as a last resort, and ohiefly subsists upon insects. Their destruction of ants is of incalculable importance. The quail's great foe is the wildcat. A quail nesting will cover fifteen to twenty eggs, and nearly every egg will wildcat. A quall nesting will cover intent to twenty eggs, and nearly every egg will hatch. They nest once a year, and during such periods the male is the most pugna cious defender of the mother and young The wily wildcat, as large as four ordinary cats, will stretch himself out and put out his tongue; the male quail will promptly fly down and peck it, whereupon the cat seizes his toothsome prey. From the London Free Press.

George Fulljames, the somewhat notorient for such offence is proferred by ous Toronto pugilist, appears to be the neanest man yet, judging from the heartle manner in which he deserted the person whom he was supporting on Monday night.
A short time since Cliffe was taken in charge by Fulljames, who put him through a course of training, accompanied him here, confident of his ability to defeat Jack stewart, and acted as his second in the sparring exhibition that took place. But after the result of the match was announced fulljames incontinently abandoned his man with the remark that he had bettar get on his clothing and go home. Cliffe was them left alone, and had no one to assist him until the second and some of the friends of Stewart gathered around, aided him to dress, engaged a cab and sent him home. This conduct has been severely censured, and it certainly is most improper, but only what might have been expected from such a man.

During the recent siege of Bhamo the Chinese residents were reduced to famine. They sent an envoy to make terms with the Burmese commander. The latter offered the Chinese 6000 rupees and permission to loot Bhamo on condition that they would evacuate the town and deliver up the two leaders of the place. The Chinese answered that they would accept the Burmese commander's terms if he would so alter them as to allow the leaders to be delivered dead, the reason given being that the men could not possibly be taken alive. To this the commander assented, and not long afterward he received the bodies of two dead men, as he had expected. It soon transpired that the Chinese took their pay, but made no attempt to carry out their contract. They stole the corpses of two fever victims and, after hacking them up with knives, sent them to the Burmese commander, who paid for them as those he had contracted for.
