OLD ROMAN HOTELS.

Where One Could Get Tiger or Lion Stew, But No Credit.

The traveler who is prone to complain of sleepless nights spent in uncomfortable hotels in this country may find some solace in this account of the Roman hotels in the days of the late republic and the empire:

Most of the hostelries and taverns

Most of the hostelries and taverns Most of the hosteries and taverns of Rome, says Humbert de Gallier in "Usages et Moeurs d'Autrefols," were situated along the Appian way. Some of them were passable. It was at one of the better ones that Cicero used frequently to stop and write his letters.

The most interesting hostelries, however, were near the circuses and amphitheatres. The shrewd and generally dishonest owners had a double purpose in selecting that situation. It was well chosen for the patronage of the huge crowds that went to age of the huge crowds that went to the circuses on holidays to see the fights between wild animals and the gladiatorial combats, and the land-lords could buy conveniently and rea-sonably those animals that had been slaughtered during the day, to be served on their tables. Thus a merrymaker might witness a battle between a lion and a tiger in the amphitheatre in the afternoon, and if he went to a nearby hotel and if he went to a nearby hotel might find parts of the same lion or tiger in his stew for dinner. A bear's steak was considered a great delicacy in Rome.

bear's steak was considered a great delicacy in Rome.

The furnishings of the common room, which in these hotels served as dining room, parlor and taproom were severely simple. A few wooden tables, a few wooden benches and a sort of elevated throne were the only pieces of furniture. On the raised chair or throne sat the owner of the inn and watched over his guests and probably his belongings.

A large number of the hostelries displayed upon the cellings of their common rooms a painting representing a rooster. The painting bore an inscription, the spirit of which will never grow old: "When this cock crows, then we will give credit."

That is the one link that binds the crude, uncomfortable tavern of ancient Rome to the elaborate hotel of the present day.

NORWAY SEEMS ANXIOUS TO DE-COME A REPUBLIC.

Recent Debate In the Storthing Seems To Indicate a Desire to Abolish the Pomp of Courts — The King and Queen Seem Equally Desirous of Giving Up the Throne-Queen Fears For Her Son.

That Norway is tired of its King and Queen, and desire that a republican form of Government should replace the monarchy, was made plain in a recent debate in the Storthing. The question was raised as to what would be done in the event of Prince Olaf, the ten-year-old son of King Haakon, dying before his father and it was decided that in that event no other heir to the throne would be Haakon, dying before his father and it was decided that in that event no other heir to the throne would be nominated and that as soon as Haakon passed from the scene the monarchy would be abolished and a republic proclaimed. This decision, startling as it appears to those who are not familiar with recent events in Norway, was no surprise to those who know that King Haakon and Queen Maud were just as tired of Norway as their subjects were disappointed with the monarchy, and that the Queen especially has been exerting all her influence with the King to abdicate. In view of the debate in the Parliament, she is said to King to abdicate. In view of the debate in the Parliament, she is said to be more than ever determined to leave, because she regards the attitude of the Storthing as placing a price on the head of her little son.

Though Olaf is said to be one of the most charming princes in Europe, there are probably not wanting in Norway Anarchists who would think that if by making away with him they would bring their country within sight of a republic they would be performing a praisworthy act. Only pressure brought to bear upon Haakon by brother monarchs has kept him upon his throne up to the present upon his throne up to the present time, and it would not be surprising if at any moment row he should de-cide to quit and either return to his home in Denmark or go to Ergland, where his wife has a beautiful home, given to her by her father, the late King Edward. Both King and Queen are very wealthy in their own right, and the loss of the civil list voted by are very wealthy in their own right, and the loss of the civil list voted by the Storthing would not be an object. As regards a sacrifice in rank, they would lose little.

In fact, they would be treated with greater respect in any other country in Europe, even in a republic, than in Norway. The King is never called "your Majesty" at the Court, but is referred to as "Mr. King" and the Queen as "Mrs. Queen." Of congenial society they have none. There is no aristocracy in Norway, and titles are unknown, even the "de" or "von" being absent prefixes, and these are entertained by Haakon. It is said, however, that the King's effort to be democratic and offhand with his guests has been misunderstood and criticized. What he has done to become so unpopular is not clear, but the fact is, probably, that the people in Norway, when they separated from Sweden, desired that a republican form of government should be established, and that they set up a monarchy because it was deemed excedient to do and that they set up a monarchy be-cause it was deemed expedient to do

At that time there were three Ger-At that time there were three German princes who, among their other titles, had been accustomed to call themselves "heir to the crown of Norway," and the Car of Russia had a similar claim. Norwegian statesmen feaerd that if they immediately established a republic one or other of these claimants might come forward with a demand upon the throne. Although Great Britain and France had though Great Britain and France had though Great Britain and France had pledged themselves to maintain the integrity of Sweden and Norway, in exchange for a pledge on the part of the Scandinavian kingdoms not to sermit Russia to obtain a foothold of any sort in their territory, it was doubtful if these two powers would have gone to war over the succession to the throne and it was with a view.

have gone to war over the succession to the throne, and it was with a view of enlisting the sympathy of Britain that Prince Charles, of Denmark, sonin-law of King Edward, was elected. The situation has changed in the past six or seven years. Notway has become firmly established as an independent nation, and no longer fears that if she reverted to a republican form of government she would be tacked by sympathizers of the princes who make nominal claims upon the throne. Moreover, it has been learned that both France and Britain would feel themselves bound to support Norway in the event of an attack, and that the British Government would offer no objection should Norway desire to abolish the monarchy. It is said that Russian agents are at the sire to abolish the monarchy. It is said that Russian agents are at the bottom of the present agitation, and that Russia believes that she could make some deal with a republican nation in the matter of an Atlantic port that would be impossible under a monarchy. However, apart from the activities of the agents of the Czar, there is sufficient discontent in Norway to make a change of govern-Norway to make a change of government likely, especially when the King and Queen would probably we come the opportunity to leave the unfriendly adopted country. leave their

Suicide as a Luxury.

Suicide as a Luxury.

Suicide has often been regarded as a luxury, and Marseilles, France, colonized from Miletus in ancient days, preserved a custom and a prison for many years under Roman rule. A dose of hemlock and aconite was allowed to any one who could show sufficient reason why he should deserve death. "This custom," says Valerius Maximus, "comes from Greece, particularly from the island of Ceos, where I saw an example. It was a woman of great quality, who having lived very happily ninety years, obtained leave to die this way, lest by living longer she should happen to see a change of her good fortune."

Persian Legend About Goats.

In Persia there is a legend regarding the goat, which tells us that the goat; without fault of her own, excited the prejudice of mankind until her life was unbearable. The powers then made it possible for her to find sustenance on inaccessible mountain tops where man could not molest her, and she was given the power to find by instinct the leaf of healing, so that she would never become ill. And after centuries of isolation she was to return and live again among the haunts of men, to be a "blessed" animal and to be indispensable to his needs, alone having power to save Persian Legend About Goats. needs, alone having power to save him from many troubles.

Tasteless Preparation of Cod Liver Oil

Prevents Sickness

Are you one of those thousands who, though apparently well, catch cold easily and often? It's a dangerous condition to tolerate, and one which you can easily prevent by taking two or three bottles of Na-Dru-Co Tasteless Preparation of Cod Liver Oil at once—this Fall.

This pleasant-tasting food-tonic gives tone and vigor to the whole system, and so strengthens lungs and bronchial tubes that they readily throwoff the colds which would otherwise take hold of you.

Restores Health

DI

By virtue of its remarkable combination of curative and nutritive properties, Na-Dru-Co Tanteless Cod Liver Oil is one of the very best remedies known for chronic coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma and coatarth. It is also an excellent reconstructive tonic after fevers, and in diseases such as scrofula and rickets, which are due to constitutional weakness.

Prove its worth by getting a 50c. of $1.00 bottle from your Druggist. 311

Making the Little Farm Fay

FTER considerable experience to diversified farming on a place of forty acres in the Chicago district I can recommend a dairy of eight or ten cows as the basis of operations on a small farm. It is taken for granted that a hired man will be kept for the principal work or that the owner is prepared to devote his time and energies to the proposi

For three years my dairy of ten cows has paid $100 to $125 a month. It took considerable time to grade up from a lot of scrubs that returned $50 to $60 a month to cows that can be depended on for about four gallons of milk each. There is something in market facilitles also. Private customers, including restaurants and hotels, are desirable In this way the middleman's profit is saved. Our sales are all by the gailon, and part of the product is furnished in the form of cream. We use a small separator. The place is two miles from an active little town, where there is a ready cash market for milk and cream, butter, eggs, poultry, etc. It is also possible to obtain table scraps in abundance, and this is an excellent kind of food for chickens and pigs. When milk was unreasonably low we made butter, for which we had private customers. With prices on the present basis we prefer to sell milk and cream. One hundred dollars a month pays the wages and all the living and operating expenses. There are then left for profit such items as hogs, poultry and eggs, honey, fruit and vegetables It is bad policy to keep cows of any but high quality. The law of selection needs to be kept in force. It costs no more to feed and handle an animal that yields five gallons of milk daily than one producing three gallons. It does not pay to keep cows that produce less than four gallons a day.

Ten or twelve cows are not too many for a farm of forty acres, and they will permit of many other interests that will distribute the labor evenly through the day. Operating in this way on a small farm there ought to be twenty-five hogs, 200 chickens and 100 ducks and geese to market every fall, in addition to 300 to 500 broilers, a considerable number of eggs and a miscellaneous lot of vegetables.

There is work enough for an average family on a very few acres where the intensive principle is followed. We need to diversify in order to distribute the work over a season.

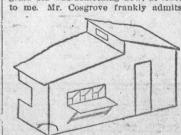

For instance, an acre of strawberries an acre of cucumbers, two acres of potatoes, an acre of onions and ten acres of corn will make a profitable season's work for a family. The total is but fifteen acres, and it will take some hustling to handle these crops. Add ten acres of alfalfa for a dairy, send thirty or forty gallons of milk to market every day and the family will be kept busy from morning till night

$ The leaching manure heap on the farm furnishes the breeding plot for a bounteous crop of flies! at the cost of low production in the fields where the manure ought to be rejuvenating the soil. -Farm and Fireside.

Grubs That Afflict Sheep "What causes some of my sheep to hold their heads to one side, like hogs that have blind staggers?" asks an Indiana reader of Farm and Fireside The answer is:

"The presence of gadfly grubs in the upper passages of the nostrils and head is a common cause of staggers in sheep, and the affected animal may hold its head to one side or constant! try to throw its head back over its spine. In such sheep there is usually discharge from the nostrils, and this may cause coughing or sneezing.

There is no specific remedy for this condition, but sheep usually manage to withstand the trouble if generously fed. The important thing is to prevent the depositing of gadfly larvae in the nostrils of sheep during fly time in the summer. This may be managed by daubing pine ar on the sheep's nose during the time when files cause stampeding.

Alsike For Wet Land. Alsike will grow on land that is too wet and sour for red clover, and with timothy makes a good feed. Stock do not relish it as they do red clover when green, but eat it readily when cured. Being a perennial and producing seed every year, alsike will never need reseeding. Sow about six pounds of alsike seed to the acre.-Farm and Fireside.

"Hogging Off" Corn. A. D. Wilson, superintendent of the Minnesota farmers' institute, observes that there is no better way to fatten bogs, with profit to the owner, than to turn them loose in the corn field and let them pick the corn themselves. This is what is called "hogging of

Here's a Homemade Hand Cultivator That Does Excellent Work.

An excellent hand cultivator for a small truck patch that will do excellent work can be made at very little cost. Get a front wheel from an old ball bearing bicycle. Be sure you get the complete bearings, spindle and nuts. Take off the robber tire. Get the following pieces of the lightest lumber possible, but be sure the wood is tough and straight grained; elm is good: Two pieces for A, 1/8 by 2 by 26 inches; two pieces for B, 1/8 by 2 by 48 inches; one piece for C, 11/4 by 3 by 22 inches.

HOMEMADE HAND CULTIVATOR spindle. Shave the ends thin enough to take a washer inside and outside and leave room for the puts. Bore a five-sixteenths inch hole two inches from the other end: also have the ends of the B pieces to fit against the outside of the A pieces two inches back of the bearing holes at E. With a little stove bolt fasten them there. Shape the other ends like plow han dles. Seven inches from the lower end of piece C bore a five-sixteenths inch hole and two inches from the top end a seven-eighths inch hole. Bolt the A pieces to C at D with a five-six teenths inch bolt three and a half inches long. Cut a broom handle to eighteen inches long and slip it to the middle in the bole at top of C and fasten with small nails. Shave the ends to fit three-quarter inch holes. Make the angle of A and C at D about square. Bore three-quarter inch holes through the handle pieces B at the point where the broom handle will fit. drive the ends in and secure with small nails.

Mount the frame on the wheel. Use any small cultivator shoe or shovel. If the handles stand too high cut a little off the lower end of C and set the shoe higher .- Farm and Fireside.

VALUE OF SWEET CLOVER,

Stockmen Awakening to Use of the Formerly Despised Plant. In Farm and Fireside there appears in article about "Sweet Clover," an extract from which follows: Since colonial days there has grown along our roadsides a legume classed as weed by farmers, weed commis sions and even experiment station of-

Until late years the only steadfast friend of sweet clover has been the beeman, whose neighbors have in many cases offered imprecations against him, accusing him of scattering the seed with malicious intent. This antagonistic attitude is under going a change, and the agricultural press now contains many articles by stock growers who are loud in their praises of this "new discovery," which promises to make their poor lands a profitable stock range for horses, cattle and sheep.

Protein is the most expensive con-

Comparative analyses of sweet clover, alfalfa, red clover, timothy and cowpeas showed that only the alfalfa and cowpeas ex-celled sweet clover in percentage of protein, the alfalfa by 1 per cent and the cowpeas by 3 per cent. Alfalfa Fine For Hogs. To determine the value of alfalfa forage for hogs with and without grain the Oklahoma experiment station plac-ed pigs averaging about seventy-five pounds each in weight on an aifaifa field in April. At the end of a hundred days the average daily gain was twenty-six one hundredths pound per bead when on affaifa alone; on affaifa and all the dry corn shop they would est the gain was 1.28 pounds per head and day; on alfalfa and a half ration of corn chop the gain was seventenths pound.

Best Ways With Timothy. To cure timothy cut it just as the bloom is falling. If the crop is not too heavy and rank cut as soon as the dew is off, let it cure a few hours, rake into windrows and haul to the barn the same day. If crop is ranks cut it in the afternoon. It will will some during the night, and dew will not burt it. Next day's sun will dry it in a few hours, when it can be raked into windrows. Haul it to the barn in the early afternoon.-Farm Journal

WATCH THE FENCES.

A good feuce is insurance against the depredations of prowsing animals. All repairs should be made promptly. Diversified farming requires small fields and considerable fencing material, but it pays. Do not be afraid of spending a few dollars for fences if they are needed. Cut up the farm into small fields so crops can be grazed.-lowa

***** TO KEEP UP SOIL WEALTH.

Growing a Legume Crop Is Necessary

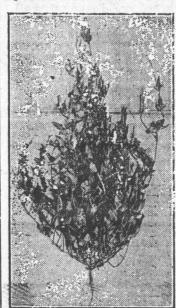

Every Four Years. Clover or some other legume crop once every four years is absolutely necessary in order to maintain the uitrogen of the soil for corn, wheat, oats, timothy and like crops.

Where it is difficult to secure clover the trouble is either a sour soil need ing timestone or a soil low in phos-

per acre. The seed when left to ripen make a very valuable concentrate, be ing as rich in protein as oilmeal. They will yield from ten to fifty bushels per acre and the seed often sells for $2 of more per bushel,

A crop rotation should be practiced which includes the growing of clover or some other legume crop at least as often as once every four years. If the clover should fall some other legume as soy beans or cowpeas, should be substituted.

All crop residues, as well as manure whether stalks, straw or chaff, should be left on the farm, being hauled if necessary and plowed under, either directly or in the form of manure, in order to supply organic matter and nitro gen.

Make Swine Pay Two Ways. An important consideration that is too often overlooked is the economical utilization of manure produced by swine. Dry lot feeding in summer is often associated with a heavy waste of manure on account of the large part of the manure that is leached or blown away when deposited in bare lots. Feeding on pastures or in cultivated fields will do much to obviate this loss, since a large proportion of the droppings and urine will then be deposited in the field where the fertilizing constituents may be utilized .lowa Homestead.

LITTLE BITS OF FARM LORE.

The heating and burning of alfalfa hay in the stack may be avoided by proper curing.

We believe it is not safe, as a rule, to pasture cows on alfalfa alone, says Hoard's Dalryman.

Feed Will Be High

(Weekly Sun.) The American Agriculturist places the world's wheat crop for this year at 3,860,000,000 bushels, or 100,000-000 bushels in excess of that of last

But wheat is the only grain in which an increase is shown. This year's world's corn crop 3,551,000,000 bushels, or 794,000,- 000 short of that of last year.

The oat crop is 4,152,000,000 bushels, a decrease of 433,000,000 bushels.

The world's barley crop is 1,425, 000,000 bushels, a decrease of 33,000,000.

The rye crop of the world is 1,774,000,000 bushels, a decrease of 127,000,000 bushels.

The combined world's crop in all five grains is 14,762,000,000 bushels, a shortage of 1,287,000,000 bushels. Commenting on this showing the Agriculturist says:

Unless Russia and Argentina conclude the year with much larger yields than now seems possible, the world's production of the five leading grain staples for 1913 will be 1287 millions of bushels less than last year, or an aggregate decrease of nearly 10%. This deficiency is not made up by potatoes, the world's supply of which is only about the same as last year. In a word, the world's production during 1913 of wheat, corn, oats, barley and rye may be hardly equal to the normal crops of 1910. Therefore, it is only necessary to distribute and market the supply gradually and evenly throughout the coming six to ten months, so as to supply the demand without artificially reducing prices. In view of the increased population and the general resumption of industrial prosperity throughout the world, the demand for these crops should be even better in the coming months than it was for the crops of keen demand for meats of all kinds. fully justify what The Sun has said on several occasions as to the prospects of high prices for feeding stuffs during the coming winter. Even wheat prices may rule fairly high, as a good deal of the wheat produced is likely to take the place of feeding grains.

Pot Roast Beet

If you ask for a pot roast a butcher will often give you a piece of the round, but that is too dry for a nice roast. Get a chuck or piece of neck. It is cheaper, and if cooked right is really a delicious roast. Ask the but-cher for a small piece of suet with the meat. Put the suet in a kettle on the stove and when it is frying out and hot put in the roast. Wipe the roast with a damp cloth instead of hot water and cover closely. Do not let it boil furiously, but a slow, steady boil, and keep in enough water so that it will not burn. When about half done, season with pepper and make gravy, seasoning well.

East Lambton Teachers' Institute

The annual meeting of the East Lambton Teachers' Institute was opened in the Methodist Church, Petrolia, on Thursday morning, Oct. 9th. Rev. Mr. Moyer, pastor of the Methodist church, opened with Devotional Exercise, and also extended a welcome to the teachers.

Mr. Carbert, principal of the Alvinston Continuation School, spoke on Modern Methods in Geography. Raw material must first be prepared then the foundation must be laid. Observation should precede expression, pupils should be tak-en out into the country and given a chance to see the different natural phennena. Stories about rivers, lakes etc. omena. Stories about rivers, lakes etc., help to impress the things seen on the minds of the pupils. Map drawing should be started in the Second Book. Moulded maps will be found useful. Geography readers should be used as books of travel. Beware of details in geography especially in Third Class geography.

Inspector MacDougall addressed the teachers, throwing out many suggestions to the teachers about their work.

Dr. Osler was quoted in connection with examinations. Too much stress seems to be placed on them.

The method of conducting the examinations was explained. Some complaints have been heard in connection with these examinations. Make the term examinations as comprehensive as possible. Set a high but reasonable standard and keep it through the term. Annual reports that are sent in are not always correct or full. I would like to have the teachers co-operate with me in getting them correct I would like to have the teachers co-operate with me in getting them correct and returned to me promptly before the end of the year. Apparatus for the use in the school is being asked for. Maps should be used not left in the corner to be covered with dust. We should aim high but definitely as well. Teacher as well as pupil should do their very best. The idea of the school and its use social, moral and educative has changed very moral and educative has changed very greatly during the last few years. The meeting Thursday afternoon was opened by Devotional Exercises conduct-

President R. Henderson spoke on the President R. Henderson spoke on the Evolution of the School during the past fifteen years. The schoolhouse should be such a temple that it would be fit to inspire the growing nation. The little red school must go. Many of these are left with us yet. Good utensils to work with are necessary. Boys and girls in the country are given a totally incomplete view of city life. They only hear of the successful persons, not the many thousands who fall in the city.

Consolidation of Schools fail now from poor roads, but this will be remedied in the future. There is big work for rural school trustees to do. They must wake up to a sense of their duty. Manitoba has made a success of the Consolidated School.

The mothers and teachers are beginning to work together.

Practical agriculture should be introduced and carried on with co-operation of both parents, trustees, teachers and chair.

The Friday morning meeting was opened by Rev. Dr. McNair, pastor of the Presbyterian church.

The report of the Nominating Committee was received and adopted.
An election for representatives to Rural School Associations in Guelph, resulted in the following being elected: Miss Mc-Donald, Wyoming, and J. J. Matthews, Petrolea.

Miss Davis, Florence, and Miss Reid, Watford, were appointed delegates to the Ontario Educational Association.

Miss Grace Luckham read a paper on the Deportment of School Children. Pupils should have a proper home training, taught to be courteous and careful and do work that will teach them to be tidy. Pupils should be urged to be punctual in attendance and prompt in answerieg or doing work. Teachers should not forget that pupils imitate them. Teacher should encourage the child by always noticing any courtesies.

child by always noticing any courtesies. Never allow the child to be idle. Mr. S. J. Radcliffe, B. A., spoke on Naturalism in Education or the History of Education. Rouseau made the French Revolution possible though he knew nothing about teaching school. This man was the most revolutionary in all man was the most revolutionary in an the pages of history. Ways of teaching have been revolutionized in the last twenty-five years. Keep away the bad things and pupils will grow up better and stronger. We are making today the greatest progress in child study. The country boy is not atraid to do things, he is taught self-confidence.

country boy is not atraid to do things, he is taught self-confidence.

Miss Pearl Huff read a paper on Play in relation to School Work. They find happiness and success resulting from this in the play and the play hour. Suitable games for boys, such as Baseball, Hawk and Doves; for girls, as Lany Lassie, Stillwater; for boys and girls together, as Black Tom, King William, Humpty Dumpy, were named. Open air schools are only the result if outdoor play. The teacher should impress on the pupils that they must work to enjoy a play. Games and Exercises, a book which can be obtained from McLellan & Goodchild, will be found useful.

Accuracy in pronunciation and use in the state of the state of

will be found useful.

Accuracy in pronunciation and use in English was dealt with by Miss M. Houston. The ability to use the choicest and best English comes from a persistent effort to improve. A well trained ear for false sounds picks these out readily. The cultivated man should possess the power to use the best English language always. Oral lessons, as well as written reproduction stories, should be started in the class. The use of the Dictionary should be started in the Second Class. Teachers should excell in pronunciation—should make determined efforts to learn the correct pronunciation—should make determined efforts to learn the correct pronunciation.
