

MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

THE ADVENTURE OF THE BERYL CORONET

With a dashed face the banker made out the required check. Holmes walked over to his desk, took out a little triangular piece of gold with three gems in it, and showed it down upon the table.

I have no doubt that she loved you, but there are women in whom the love of a lover extinguishes all other loves. I think that she must have been one. She had hardly listened to his instructions when she saw you coming downstairs, and when she closed the window rapidly, and told you about one of the servant's escapades with her wooden-legged lover, which was all perfectly true.

these only remained your niece and the maid. But if it were the maid, why should you not have yourself to be accused in their place? There could be no possible reason. As he excellent explanation why he should retain her secret—the more so as the secret was a disgraceful one.

"When I arrived at the house," continued Holmes, "I at once went very carefully round it to observe if there were any traces in the snow which might help me to the first side of the hidden door. The evening before, and also that there had been a strong frost to preserve impressions.

"I passed along the tradesmen's shop, but found it all trampled down and indistinguishable. Just beyond it, however, a woman had stood and talked with a man whose round impressions on one side showed that he had a wooden leg. I could even tell that they had been disturbed, for the woman had run back quickly to the door, and was shown by the deep and right heel marks, while Woodcock had waited a little, and then had gone away.

"Precisely. It was I. I found that I had my man, so I came home, and changed my clothes. It was a delicate matter which I had to play for, for I saw that a prosecution must be avoided to avert scandal, and I thought that when I got into the stable lane a very long and complex story was written in the snow in front of me.

"The return of the day's weather has enabled the contractor on the river, extension to one more push on with the work. Sections 1 and 2 were reported yesterday to be making good progress. Large gangs of men were busy and on section 1 preparations were made to connect the wood-pipe aqueduct with the thirty-six inch cast iron pipe being made. The pipe, which will convey the water from the end of the wood-stave section to the point where it will flow into the city's main near the reservoir.

In the World of Labor.

Six thousand union operators of Boston, Mass., received an increase of wages under the decision of Judge George I. Wentworth recently, to whom was submitted the question of a new working agreement.

The Seaman's Union has 20 relief stations in the United States.
A London firm of printers recently recovered damages of £1,000 from the Printers' Society for alleged "inducing workmen to break their contracts."

There were 373 strikes in Italy in 1904, 1,315 of which there were 133,332 strikes, with an average of 429 per strike.
The output of lace and tulle from 65 factories, having 2,200 machines and employing 30,000 hands at Cadix, France, amounted to $10,000,000 in 1904, of which nearly $5,000,000 worth went to the United States.

There were 6,080 Chinese inhabitants of New York, according to the census. The number of Chinese is twice as large. Although there is a rapid federal exclusion law and few births occur in the Chinese quarter, the Chinese population seems to increase.
Bureau of immigration figures shows that 253 Chinese were admitted into the United States during July, and nine deported.

Twenty-one prominent manufacturers from different parts of the country are named as directors of the National Association of Manufacturers of the United States, which was incorporated at Albany, N. Y., on August 22, for the purpose of "settling relations between employers and employees and dealing with labor unions." The principal office is in New York.

The promoters of the miners' hospital at Spangler, Pa., for which Government $10,000 have decided to go ahead with the erection of the building. The cost will be met by the coal operators, the miners and other residents of Spangler and vicinity. It is estimated that the building will represent an outlay of $150,000.

The Industrial Workers of the world organized recently in Chicago, are growing at a rapid rate.
It is said that President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers, will devote all the time to the upbuilding of the organization in the anthracite region for the balance of the year. It is also reported that the miners are again administering themselves with the organization in large numbers.

P. E. ISLAND LETTER

Reports During Case of Horse Stealing—An Experiment in the Transplanting of Oysters and Lobsters—Deaths of Islanders.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Sept. 8.—Rev. W. B. Evans, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal church, Summerside, has resigned his charge, and will leave in the course of a month for Springhill, where he has accepted a call. Wearing a large gold nugget as a scepter and bringing with him a small bag of nuggets, Allan McPherson, a native of Montague, P. E. I., arrived this week to spend a few weeks at his old home, after twenty-four years' absence. He has been engaged ever since in mining, in which he has been successful, first in Leadville, Colorado, next in the Klondike, and lately in the Tanana country, where he has taken up ground that promises to yield profitable returns. Mr. McPherson says that about ten thousand people went into that country last winter and that this summer four thousand prospectors have been at work in the Mount McKinley district. Many of the Dawson City people have removed to Fairbanks, Tanana's capital, taking their buildings and machinery with them. Among Islanders that have done so are the Palmer brothers, formerly of Charlottetown. They are engaged in the project of opening a road to the meeting of the Y. M. C. A. directors this week it was unanimously decided to make a strong special effort to wipe off the mortgage of three thousand dollars now on the building. The approaching marriage convention which is to be held here from Sept. 14th to the 17th, and the 50th anniversary of the founding of the institution, next New Year's Day furnish two incentives for this movement. Charlottetown has the second oldest association in Canada and the first association building erected and owned by the Y. M. C. A. in America. The police are seeking for two young men belonging to Charlottetown. One, Joseph McAleer, aged 18, has already served a term in D. and the other, Geo. Leder, aged 22, is evidently rapidly qualifying for the same institution. Last week they stole from Lawrence Morris, Charlottetown, a mare and wagon. Driving about twenty miles into the country, they exchanged first their wagon and then their horse, doing the first transaction surreptitiously, and in the latter case receiving $5 to boot. The second horse was too slow to suit their exacting tastes, so they un hitched him and let him walk home. They carried the mare into the woods and next day stole another horse, and are still at large. G. B. Lockhart, manager of the condensed milk factory of Charlottetown, has been appointed general manager of the Irish Intercolonial Fisheries Co. of Lake City, and will leave for that place on the 19th. The Regt. C. A. of this city will undergo their annual practice this year at Petawawa, Ontario, towards the end of September or the beginning of October. The steamer Minto arrived this week from Quebec, where she had landed the winter service at Picton, and the Stanley, the other winter steamer, will receive her repairs in Charlottetown. At Summerside this week the division court heard the election petition case against A. A. Lefurgy, M.P. The latter claims that as he had filed a counter petition against the other, J. W. Richards, that service of the petition should be waived. Chief Justice Sullivan and Justice Gifford overruled this contention, and decided that the case should proceed. The further hearing is adjourned till Tuesday, Oct. 3rd. A large quantity of grain was caught out in the heavy rain storm of Monday, especially in the north and east of the island. If the much weather continues the crop now out will sustain serious injury. In the southern section of the province the crop had been housed before this time. Lemang G. Gallant of St. Timothy's Lot 15 claims to have discovered a process of growing and saving the turnip from the cut worm. He has experimented for six years on all sorts of soil, and has successfully grown immense crops as high as a thousand bushels to the acre. Last year the root crops, particularly turnips, suffered most severely from the cut worm, and Mr. Gallant claims that with his method there was no danger of failure. Death has been busy among Islanders recently. At St. Francis Mrs. Sison, relict of the late George Sison, formerly of Summerside, and for the past seventeen years a resident of California, passed away. Among other deaths were the following: At Wood Islands, Malcolm H. McMillan, aged 75, at Red Point, Aug. 31st; Mrs. Alex. McInnis, aged 78; at East Point, Aug. 30th, Mrs. James Robertson, aged 73; at Summerside, Sept. 1st, Mrs. William Godkin, aged 82; at the same place on the same day, Jesse Shaw, aged 86; at Charlottetown, Sept. 1st, Mrs. White, aged 78, widow of the late Archibald White and daughter of the late James Price of Greenwood, and sister of H. C. McLeod, and Lucille McLeod, 3rd daughter of the late John A. Webster, daughter of Major William G. Peter, Road, Sept. 3rd, Tena McPherson, aged 17, youngest daughter of Donald McPherson; at Charlottetown, Sept. 4th, Mrs. G. G. Gifford, aged 78; at Glenfines, Sept. 5th, Mrs. Patrick Sherry, aged 88; at Eildon, Aug. 31st, Mrs. Maria Morison, aged 82. Captain Kempf, Dominion oyster expert, has returned to Charlottetown from British Columbia, where he had gone to transplant oysters and lobsters from the waters of P. E. Island. The captain says that both of these kinds of fish from the coast of Canada have been successfully placed alive and well in the west. He left Halifax on the 8th. The oysters, now, were all right and were distributed as soon as possible in suitable places. The Nanaimo Herald gives the result of the oyster trial. The new oyster beds are thriving fully as well as was hoped for by the most sanguine. In places where regular oysters have been planted they are thriving splendidly. In one place the oysters show a growth of fully an inch in about three weeks. Captain Kempf says British Columbia waters are apparently well adapted to the cultivation of these large Eastern oysters, and this should result in building up a large and profitable industry for British Columbia with the very best success. Experiments will be conducted with great interest by this province, which is noted for its oysters and lobsters. Mr. Ryan, which is one of our natural oyster beds is rapidly becoming depleted and unless the fish, large losses will accrue to the island, for the "Majestic" are world-famous and command the highest price. Last year as high as $7.00 per barrel was paid at the boats. Capt. Kempf's plan for the bill of sale, set forth that he represented the island is to lease portions of the bay along the shores to parties who will plant artificial beds from which young oysters can be obtained to restock the remainder of the ground.

THE INSURANCE INVESTIGATION

Affairs of the New York Life Monopolized Yesterday's Session—Thomas W. Lawson May Be Asked to Testify—Some Doings of the Equitable Life.

New York, Sept. 8.—Today's session of the legislative life insurance investigating committee was devoted exclusively to the affairs of the New York Life Insurance Company and a searching examination was made of its officers who appeared on the stand. An interesting feature of the day was the statement that Thomas W. Lawson, of Boston, might be called as a witness. The committee's chairman, State Senator Armstrong, said if the information Mr. Lawson is supposed to hold could not be secured from other sources the Boston financier would be asked to testify. Not being a resident of the state, Mr. Lawson cannot be compelled to give testimony. Officers of the New York Life Company testified today that it was not necessary for the company to sell certain of its securities in order to satisfy the Prussian government. Two checks signed notes aggregating $2,335,000 and on the books the securities appeared as sold to these parties, although they really had been turned over to the New York Trust Company as security for the loan made on the notes of the insurance companies' employees. It was declared that since 1890 the New York Life Insurance Company had not been connected with trust companies but subsequently it was admitted that the stock of the New York Trust Company is now held for the New York Life by a committee of trustees. The New York Trust Company is a consolidation of the New York Security and Trust Company and the Continental Trust Company. The committee adjourned this afternoon until 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning. In the investigation yesterday William Alexander, secretary of the Equitable, was asked if he knew where Mr. Jordan could be found. He replied that he had not seen Mr. Jordan since he severed his relations with the Equitable. Mr. McIntyre, it was said tonight at his former home, Seventh avenue and Fifty-fifth street, is "either on the Jersey coast or in the White Mountains." Next he introduced the bill of sale executed by James Hazen Hyde last June, in selling the 502 shares to Thomas F. Ryan. The bill of sale has not been made public before, and the terms of the transfer, until the lawyer read the document, had been known only to the "insiders." In selling the 502 shares for $2,500,000, young Mr. Hyde executed a supplementary agreement to make a codicil to his will, appointing Thomas F. Ryan trustee of the stock under the authority of the old trust agreement of 1885, executed by Henry B. Hyde. This supplementary agreement, it appears, was to avoid the legal difficulty existing by reason of the elder Hyde's provision that the stock was not to be disposed of. According to the supplementary agreement signed by young Hyde, Mr. Ryan was to receive back the $2,500,000 in case Hyde should fail to do what he promised. Mr. Ryan, in signing the agreement and bill of sale, set forth that he represented himself "and undisclosed stockholders." Alexander testified that the salary of Charles Johnston, the president, was $80,000. He gave the salaries of Mr. Tarbell, second vice-president, and Mr. Wilson, third vice-president, as $40,000 and $24,000, respectively. The president's salary formerly was $100,000, he said, but all salaries were reduced 20 per cent after Mr. Morton came in. Daniel H. Wells, secretary of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, testified that no proxies were used at elections of the Connecticut Mutual, where only about 40 to 50 votes were cast. Herbert H. White, secretary of the same company, gave the salaries of officers as follows: President, $125,000; acting vice-president, $120,000; secretary, $75,000; and treasurer, $50,000.

Neglect the Liver And You Will Suffer

Scarcely an Organ in the Body but Feels the Effects of a Disordered Liver. When the liver gets torpid and inactive, bile is left in the blood—causing jaundice. Indigestion results, because the liver is an important organ of digestion. Constipation arises, because bile from the liver is nature's own cathartic. A torpid liver means a poisoned system, pain, suffering, chronic disease. By their extraordinary influence on the liver Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills positively remove the cause of such disorders. Biliousness, dyspepsia, constipation—headaches, backaches and bodily pains disappear when the digestive, filtering and excretory systems are set right by the use of this great medicine. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

Manager Fred Lucier has an established reputation as one of the very best impresarios of rural characters now before the public, having "starred" in such well-known plays as "Akin Jokin," "The Darker," "Sky Farm," etc.

Miss Olga Netherole, best known in America for the tearfulness of her Camille, the unrestrained affection of her season in Washington in "The Ladybirds," the new play written by Paul Hervieu. Prior to leaving New York the privilege of seeing her performance she will appear in Chicago. Her supporting company will be entirely English, headed by Hubert Carter, who was leading man last season with Ellen Terry at the Imperial Theatre, London.

Mrs. Leslie Carter, whose sprained ankle interfered with her plans for the summer, has entirely recovered and returned this week from her summer home at Shelter Island, to resume rehearsals in New York.

Mrs. Fred Lucier

Gorton's Minstrels will be the attraction of the York Theatre for three nights, commencing Monday, Sept. 11th, with Wednesday matinee. The management promises some innovations in the staging of the production and the entire company is said to be one of exceptional ability. The Minstrels will offer a programme containing all the best and most essential features of modern up-to-date minstrelsy and which are guaranteed to be a sure cure for the blues. The company is composed of thirty actors of popular command, headed by the jolly fun makers, Sam Lee and Jake Waddy. The marvelous comedy impersonations of the Great Hammond, wizard of hoops and banjo; Waddy, Dear and Feli, comedians and novelty dancers. The Crescent City Sextette, vocalists and harmonists; the wonderful Farina Trio; comedians and buck and wing dancers; celebrated hand will render a concert of solos, overtures and popular airs, which will be followed by a street parade by the entire company.

Raymond Hitchcock, late of "Yankee Consul" fame, has been pouring forth his views of the joys of straight comedy as contrasted with that usually known as the musical variety. In "Eve's Devil," the new production by Kidder, in which Mr. Hitchcock is credited with being the "whole show" that most humor of comedians admits he is pleased to find himself minus a chorus. Yet an assistant clerkship in a shoe shop at the salary of six dollars a week was graduated into the chorus, where he spent some years.

Forbes Robertson will open his engagement at La Scala, in "The Consul," a tale of war which demands a double for the hero. For this role Mr. Forbes Robertson has been engaged.

Charles Hawtree, who has been playing in the curtain-raiser which preceded "Larkie Miss Dean" in London, will play the hero when the piece starts on tour on September 11th.

The flight of time is emphasized by the fact that Evangeline Dixey, daughter of F. P. Dixey, will appear this season in a stock company. As the original "Evangeline" she had many reproductions since Dixey first played "The Wings of the Heifer," it is impossible to

BUSINESS OVERLOOK

General business, the crop outlook, the state of railway earnings, and the other essential elements in the financial situation remain as they have been all along. Seasoned assurances have been given of the best property in the stock market, and the leading consumers of pig iron have found it necessary to advance their purchases made in the late spring and early summer, owing to the unexpected rush of orders for their finished products. Yet with all that new production and a supply of steel on hand is steadily decreasing, and in some localities there is a scarcity which threatens to become acute. In other lines of business the prosperity continues to improve. The other part of our activity this fall and winter. Not the slightest interruption is expected in the remarkably successful progress of the crop. The September report of the agricultural bureau, due on the 10th, is expected to show the highest percentage condition of corn on record for the time of year. While there has been a decline from last month in the condition of spring

WESTERN BAPTISTS

Superintendent Stackhouse, of the Baptist church, has returned from Charlotte, N. C., where he attended the annual convention of Baptist churches for the mid-state provinces. In former years he had the care of Manitoba and the Territories, while a second superintendent had charge of British Columbia. Under the new arrangement he will superintend all Baptist missions in Western Canada between Winnipeg and Vancouver. At present his residence is in Portage la Prairie, although his office is in Winnipeg. On November 1 he will remove to Winnipeg and will live in the city in the future.

COPPER COMPARISONS

There has been a shrinkage of over $45,000,000 in the selling prices of copper shares between the high prices of this year and the low prices of yesterday. There has been no per cent. rise in the price of copper since the end of the year, and yet prices of copper stocks have declined materially. We show in the table below the extent to which twenty-five of the copper stocks have advanced in price. We included the minor interests in the total shrinkage, which would not be counted. Of this total, four stocks, namely, Anaconda, Copper Range, Calumet & Hecla and Green Lake, advanced about $25,000,000 and in very many cases the prevailing share quotations are below the price of the metal. No weakness in any of the copper in the actual market at which the copper metal is changing hands, and while the metal exists there is good reason to believe that the recovery in the price of copper

HUMORS OF HISTORY---140

Princess Elizabeth at the Traitor's Gate. Queen Mary's chief object in life was to stamp out the Protestant religion. For this purpose she had her half-sister Elizabeth arrested and brought to the Tower. They took her in by the Traitor's Gate, to which she objected, sitting on a stone in the rain and refusing to move. Her guards brought her to come in out of the wet, but she answered that "it was better sitting there than in a worse place." At length she went to her apartment. She was kept practically a prisoner until the death of Mary.

What is a Backache?

IT IS NATURE'S WARNING TO WOMEN

Disease of Women's Organs Cured and Consequent Pain Stopped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"It seems as though my back would break." Women utter these words over and over again, but continue to drag along and suffer with aches in the small of the back, pain low down in the sides, "bearing down" pains, nervousness and no ambition for any task.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham: "I suffered a long time with ovarian trouble, having pains in the back and abdomen and very sick headaches every month. I was tired and nervous all the time and life looked very dreary to me and I had no desire to live until I began to take Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to get some relief. My recovery was slow but it was sure and I have never regretted the money spent for the Compound as it brought me back to good health.

It seems to be a medicine especially adapted to the use of our sex and I am glad to say a good word for it.—Mrs. Albert Mann, 124 Gore Vale Ave., Toronto, Ont.

No other person can give such helpful advice to women who are sick as can Mrs. Pinkham. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice free.

ADVANCE IN GLOVES

The Glove Manufacturers' Association passed a resolution at their third annual meeting, held in the Board of Trade building on Tuesday, to the effect that in view of the strong increase in the cost of raw materials, it is absolutely necessary to make an advance of from 15 to 25 per cent in the price of gloves for the coming season.

The Executive Committee was instructed to watch the interests of the glove trade in connection with Tuesday's action, and to advise the trade in relation with the present and future. A resolution was passed that no trade discount be allowed, and it is absolutely necessary to fix the date for full delivery, November 1, 1905, 2 per cent, off for ten days.

Garnations and Sweet Peas

The butter market is reported to be a shade easier today, and the price at which butter can be bought has been correspondingly reduced; some of the leading dealers, however, wish to get rid of their stocks, and are offering butter at prices which tempt the more conservative dealers to buy. Some dealers, however, made today of most eagerness, at the price of 12 1/2 cents per pound, and it is not clear that there is any real demand for butter at this price. A man who has been in the market for some time, however, says that there is a real demand for butter at this price, and that the market is likely to be a shade easier today.

FIRST STYLES IN HATS

FIXED FASHIONS FOR FALL AND WINTER

"In Paris" writes a correspondent of authority in fashion matters, "autumn and winter millinery is being evolved as a great rate."

The trend in both fields is emphatically toward exaggeration, the styles, poses, etc., of 1905, brought the incredible sum of $200,000,000, it was announced, would be the cost of a reproduction.

Headgear shown in the country is as yet only moderately borrowed from these pronounced styles, but occasionally one encounters a palatial headpiece with all of the Parisian qualities among the more moderate styles.

As to shapes, the tiny undulating structure of the summer built up high from the head, massed with trimming underneath and sparsely decked out with feathers, is a popular classic.

In fact, never were bows tied with more feeling grace, and one forgives the audacity of a too perky shape because of these same beauties. The trimming method is simple.

A twist of the hand garniture goes around the edge of the hat crown, the hair is tucked in, and the crown is left at the front or over the left eye.

Underneath the tiny little nocker, whose hair band is enormously high, there may be a head of flowers! The tiny wreaths of roses seen during the summer are employed in these late autumn styles.

Among the newest styles there are indications of a marked heightening of the crown, and many of the stiffer walking turbans are lifted high at the side and there trimmings are "doves".

All the pigeons are "doves" in the millinery world, and to see the vast quantity of feathers, especially the black and white, which are used in the construction of their present shape, but wild birds and barn-yard fowls are employed in a way to achieve a wonderful result.

One rare fowl plume seen upon a turban of silk in submerge (egg plant red) color, the mother semi-weekly until the child is old enough to rub its own scalp.

Clipping the locks at each new moon is a worn-out superstition. It is apt to be done for the hair course, its growth depends entirely upon the activity of the oil glands and the care with which it is handled and brushed so that it does not split at the ends.

Before going to bed a child's hair should be loosened and shaken out in order that the air may pass through it. If the locks are braided during the day time, tie them together lightly for the sleeping hours, or braid them at night when they have been allowed to hang loosely all day.

The Russian fashion of cutting off the hair squarely at the neck saves much trouble to the mother and is far the most comfortable for a child. It also has the advantage of giving the air free access to the scalp.

The Small Hat Built Up High From the Head and Massed With Trimming Underneath Is to Enjoy an Uninterrupted Vogue During the Entire Season.

Headgear Displayed at Present Shows Only a Tendency Toward the Pronounced Styles Which Will Become Popular as Fall Grows Into Winter.

Street Gowns Will Be Influenced by Russian Styles and Fur Will Be More in Evidence Than Ever on Hats and Frocks—Aubergine Is the New Shade of Purple.

(By Mary Dean.)

single brilliant color is also a feature of the fine and simple headgear, such hats going well with the black gowns which will be worn. In every-day hats, the toque and turban shapes are endless.

As to costumes, while attending the moment of the absolutely new thing, the smart woman's purchases are mainly in the way of summer splendours, which can be worn throughout the autumn and winter.

Two radiant gowns depict late effects from the workrooms of well-known French makers. The first in point of exquisite detail is a "costume cascade" of pale blue silk muslin, trimmed with bands and rosettes of fine-white ermine, edged with rare Valenciennes. The surplus fastening of the body, and the completely trimmed skirt, indicate two effects likely to be prominent among winter styles.

The hat, which is of gold-colored panama, with the brim faced with blue tulle, is dubbed "Le Chinois." The decoration of the left front of the brim is made of gaudy-looking rosettes of fine white lace.

The second gown is of white Indian muslin with embroideries of the same. Cliffs, a delicate shade of violet shades the skirt and other bodice trimmings, and the hat is of white satin (beach) with trimmings of violet panama and ostrich feathers.

Street gowns for winter, it is said, are likely to be influenced by Russian styles, which exact magnificent textures and fur trimmings. So in all probability the darker and finer furs will again be used in small quantities on diaphanous evening textures. Night wraps will also show fur garnitures of all sorts, and certain long loose capes being designed are to be fashioned entirely, later on, of real and rich imitation pelts.

The mode will give rise to many rare and becoming effects, for nothing is so enhancing to the fair as fur, and the exquisite lightness with which skins are made up now-a-days adds to their bewitching charm.

Upon the heaviest fur garment, concludes the French letter, "the dainty lingerie touches of last season will be seen in even greater profusion."

HOW A WOMAN MADE HER WAY.

Women especially widows drift into strange lines of work to make a living for themselves, but there are some who have chosen a stranger occupation than Mrs. Harris of this city, relates the Philadelphia Record.

Gray silk is used by the outside of the hat, which is grazed by a paradise plume shading from white to the deepest gray. Such a head-piece would be very beautiful with a gray cloth walking gown, fashioned in a style sufficiently smart for the dressy hat.

The fourth hat is in shade blue felt with velvet and ostrich trimmings in the same shade, and a brim-edge of white guipure. The hat is made of a very fine material, and the new mourning is to be very much worn in the first weeks of black.

The entire hat is in small folds of net, a heavy quality of English crepe shaping the brim-edge, the side rosette and the top of crown, a little shaped mask veil of Brussels net, edged with a fold of crepe, is sometimes worn over the face.

The jaunty bent-up brims, and beaps of couterie of the new millinery. Then, best of all, the heads of incredible size sometimes—add to the dressiness, and here and there some made plume or wing black or white and the hat brilliantly tinted.

A group of five hats in the larger drawing gives some of the more moderate styles in first autumn headgear. All are eminently simple for home wearing, and with crowns or brims in fabric materials may give economical suggestions.

BREAKFAST BREADS FOR AUTUMN DAYS

Both Spanish Bun and the Pungent Cinnamon Bun Can Be Made Without Setting a Yeast Batter Over Night.

Fig Rolls and Sultana Biscuit Give the Suggestion of Both Fruits and Spices Which Men Like.

Oatmeal Scones Are Easily Digested and Sally Lun Plrases the Old-Fashioned Man.

Break September air whets the appetite for a substantial breakfast, and the family have begun to clamor for hot breads. There is always a certain dread to the housekeeper about starting in on a round of griddle cakes, waffles and raised buns, and when the annual question is put to her, "Isn't it about time we had some hot bread?" she looks for a variation of light rolls and muffins to bridge the few minutes until really cold weather sets in.

Here are some recipes which are easily prepared and can be cooked immediately. Spice and fruit buns are particularly appealing in the early fall.

Spanish Bun—One cup of sugar, four tablespoons of melted butter, half a cup of New Orleans molasses, two eggs and one yolk of egg, one cup of milk, two cups of flour, one cup of seeded raisins. Add one tablespoonful of cinnamon and the same of allspice, soda, vanilla and half a teaspoonful of cloves. Bake in a loaf.

Quick Cinnamon Bun—Rub one tablespoonful of lard into one quart of flour and add one teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Stir in quickly half a pint of milk. Roll out in a thin sheet, cover with a thick layer of sugar, another of currants, and then a sprinkling of cinnamon. Roll up and cut into buns about two inches long. Stand these on their ends in a greased pan and bake twenty-five minutes in a quick oven.

Fig Rolls—Sift together one quart of whole wheat flour, half a teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Rub into this one tablespoonful of butter, and one egg whipped light. Make a soft dough by working one and a half cups of milk into the flour gradually, but do not allow it to become too wet. Roll out quickly half an inch thick and cut into oval pieces. Brush with melted butter. Chop tea figs very fine and spread over half of each roll. Fold over the sides of the roll and seal together with beaten white of egg. Bake for twenty minutes in hot oven.

Sultana Biscuits—Sift one quart of flour with a teaspoonful each of salt and bicarbonate of soda, and then with the hands rub in two tablespoonfuls of lard. Next mix in a cupful of Sultana raisins well sprinkled in flour. Stir in gradually enough sour milk to make a soft biscuit dough. About one pint of milk will be required. Form little cakes with the hands, dip into flour and bake twenty minutes in a hot oven.

Often the milkman has not arrived when it is time to make the breakfast bread. Here are several recipes which do not require milk.

Beaten Biscuit—Two quarts of sifted flour, a teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sweet lard and one egg. Make a dough with half a pint of water. Bake until the dough breaks open in soft puffs, roll into a ball with the hand and bake in a quick oven.

Vinegar Biscuits—Take two quarts of

GENTLE CARE OF CHILDREN'S HAIR

Baldness, Which is Becoming So Prevalent, Can Be Prevented by Gentle Treatment of the Scalp From a Baby's Birth Until It Is Six Years Old.

Massaging With Oil Keeps the Pores Active and the Hair in Healthy Condition So That It Will Not Split at the Ends.

Every woman takes pride in the softness and beauty of her baby's hair, but few mothers realize that care which the scalp receives for the first six years of the life does much to determine the gloss and thickness of this same baby's hair in after years.

Steady, regular attention while the skin of the head is tender is what gives hair its vigorous health and life, and prevents premature baldness when the child has grown up. The care of her baby's hair is, therefore, of greatest importance to the young mother.

When the infant first makes its appearance in the world, a coat of fatty substance covers the head. The first duty of the attendant nurse is to rub the entire scalp with sweet oil or oil of sweet almonds. This is allowed to remain on for several hours and is then washed off by abundant cotton dipped into warm water that is white with soda made from shavings of castile soap. Similar applications of oil and a soap bath should be a daily operation for several weeks, or until the coating that covers the head has entirely disappeared.

In the meantime, the utmost care should be observed that the little head is handled with great gentleness, using exceptionally soft towels in wiping, and by no means permitting brush or comb to be used if, as sometimes happens, the baby is born with a goodly supply of hair.

At the expiration of ten days the scalp begins to look firm and strong, and now the mother should see that the tiny head is very delicately massaged with the tips of the fingers at least twice each day. The nails should never be allowed to touch the skin. If the latter has a tendency to be somewhat dry, rub on a little almond oil.

Keep up the massaging and bathing for at least three months, after which a weekly shampoo preceded by an oil massage is sufficient.

As the hair comes in thickly, brush with the softest camel's hair brush. Refrain from using any sort of comb or stiff brush on a child's head until after and eaten as a breakfast food with a fork.

Southern Biscuit.—Work together one tablespoonful of butter and lard mixed with one quart of whole wheat flour and season with one teaspoonful of salt. Make a rather dry dough by adding one-half pint of milk and water mixed, pouring it in gradually so that not all of the milk be used if the ingredients hold together. Knead for fifteen minutes until it is soft and elastic. Then beat constantly for twenty minutes. Roll out in a square half an inch thick. Cut in biscuits, prick the tops and bake in a moderate oven for thirty minutes or until thoroughly done to the center. The top and bottom should be a beautiful golden brown, and the secret of their lightness lies in the long kneading.

it is a year old. As soon as the baby has passed its first birthday, it should have a comb and wash of its own, and they must be kept in a place by themselves so that there will be no danger of anyone else using them! It is essential also to the cleanliness and health of the scalp that the child never makes use of any brush or comb except those allotted to it, and she mother should cleanse them in ammonia and steam water each week.

Clipping the locks at each new moon is a worn-out superstition. It is apt to be done for the hair course, its growth depends entirely upon the activity of the oil glands and the care with which it is handled and brushed so that it does not split at the ends.

Before going to bed a child's hair should be loosened and shaken out in order that the air may pass through it. If the locks are braided during the day time, tie them together lightly for the sleeping hours, or braid them at night when they have been allowed to hang loosely all day.

The Russian fashion of cutting off the hair squarely at the neck saves much trouble to the mother and is far the most comfortable for a child. It also has the advantage of giving the air free access to the scalp.

A DAILY HEROINE

A woman, known and loved in a small town, was during all her life a tower of strength to her family and friends. She cared for an invalid, and at the end of a mentally incurable, mother, she took charge of a sick brother, she was always ready to nurse, to help, to cheer her neighbors and intimates. She was unflinchingly brave and heroic. When all her work was done, and the end of her own very long life drew near, it was found that she had been carrying a most burdensome and slow, incurable cancer, of which no one knew but her physician and herself. Yes, if she had been told she was a heroine, she would have protested genuinely against any such idea. Her humanity was as heroic as the rest of her qualities.

"What is a hero?" has been answered, "A soul which rises up to face life squarely to comfort its grievous circumstance and conquer it." With all the improved conditions that women have today, with any conditions that the race can attain, there are still many instances of women who have lived so heroically in the lives of others, give so unselfishly by their very nature, that fate increasingly demands from them the heroic qualities—self-command, self-enclosed, courage and sacrifice. The daughter who renounces all personal ambitions to minister to the helpless age or infirmity of the father or mother; the wife who shields or strengthens an unworthy or weak husband; the mother who sacrifices herself absolutely to support and educate her orphaned children; the world is not worthy of these, and yet we have them always with us, witnesses of a diviner life than most of us know how to live.

The hero protects, rescues, fights for, and if needs be dies for, others. Tried by these tests, how many daily heroines this crowded, commonplace life of ours holds. There are plenty of splendid girls, plenty of frivolous matrons, plenty of empty, extravagant useless lives, among women today, more's the pity, the heroines are there—died bless them! If they were not, the world would have gone to pieces long ago. Harper's Bazar.

If there is any kind of a chap who has a harder time than the one who always looks after himself, it is the one who sleepily lacks confidence in his ability.

CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP

It Might Save the Country—Prodigious Power Thrown Away—Skin-deep Christianity and Its Failures.

(Collier's Weekly.)
 Is there such a thing as Christian citizenship? No, but it could be created. If Christians should vote their duty to God at the polls, they would carry every election, and do it with ease. They would elect every clean candidate in the United States, and defeat every solid one. Their prodigious power would be quickly realized and recognized, and afterwards there would be no unclean candidates upon any ticket, and graft would cease. No church organization can be found in the country that would elect men of foul character to be its shepherds, its treasurers, and superintendents of its Sunday school. It would be revolted at the idea; it would consider such an election an insult to God. Yet every Christian congregation in the country elects four men to public office, while quite aware that this also is an open and deliberate insult to God, who cannot approve and does not approve the placing of the liberties and the well-being of his children in the hands of infamous men. It is the Christian congregations that are responsible for the filling of our public offices with criminals, for the reason that they could prevent it if they chose to do it. They could prevent it without organizing a league, without forming a platform, without making any speeches or passing any resolutions—in a word, without concert of any kind. They could accomplish it by each individual reaching to vote for God at the polls—that is to say, vote for the candidate whom God would approve. Can a man imagine such a thing as God being a Republican or a Democrat, and voting for a criminal or a blackguard merely because their party loyalty required it? Then can we imagine that a man can improve upon God's attitude in this matter, and by help of professional politicians invent a better policy? God has no politics but cleanliness and honesty, and it is good enough for men.
 A man's second duty is to his family. There was a time when a clergyman's duty to his family required him to bid his congregation's political slave, and vote his congregation's ticket in order to safeguard the food and shelter of his wife and children. But that time has gone by. We have the secret ballot now, and a clergyman can vote for God. He can also plead with his congregation to do the like.
 Perhaps we cannot be sure. The congregation would probably inquire whom he was going to vote for, and stand upon his maudlin and answered that they had no Christian right (which is the same as saying no moral right, of course, no legal right) to ask the question. It is conceivable—not to say certain—that they would think him mad, and be much offended at his proceeding to be a man as well as a clergyman.
 Still, there are clergyman who are so situated as to be able to make the experiment. It would be worth while to try it. If the Christians of America could be persuaded to vote God and a clean ticket, it would bring about a short revolution that would be incalculably beneficial. It would save the country—a country whose Christians have betrayed it and are destroying it.

 The Christians of Connecticut sent a palkey to the Senate. They sent to the Legislature the men who elected him. These two crimes they could have prevented; they did not do it, and upon them rest the shame and the responsibility. Only one clergyman remembered his Christian morals and his duty to God, and stood bravely by both. Mr. Smythe is probably an outcast now, but such a man as that can endure ostracism and such a man as that is likely to possess the treasure of a family that can endure it with him, and be proud to do it. Oh, how the Lord is glorified!
 Four years ago Greater New York had two tickets in the field: one clean, the other dirty, with a single exception: an unspeakable ticket with that lonely exception. One half of the Christians voted for that foul ticket and signed God and the Christian code of morality, putting loyalty to party above loyalty to God and honorable citizenship, and they came within a fraction of electing it; whereas if they had stood by their professed morals they would have buried it out of sight. Christianity was on trial then, it is on trial now. And nothing important is on trial except Christianity.
 It was on trial in Philadelphia, and failed; in Pennsylvania, and failed; in Rhode Island, and failed; in Connecticut, and failed; in New York, and failed; in Delaware, and failed; in every town and country and State, and was treated to its trust; it has effusively trusted itself with the small matters of charity and benevolence, and has looked on indifferently while its country was sinking lower and lower in repute and drifting farther and farther toward moral destruction. It is the one force that can save, and it sits with folded hands. In Greater New York it will presently have an opportunity to elect or defeat some straight, clean, honest men of the sterling Jerome stamp, and some of the Tammany kind. The Christian vote—and the Christian vote alone—will decide the contest. It, and it alone, is master of the situation, and lord of the result.
 It is a good and safe rule to solemn in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never committing an opportunity of doing a kindness or speaking a true word or making a friend.—Ruskin.
 The best help is not to bear the troubles of others for them, but to inspire them with courage and energy to bear their burdens for themselves and meet the difficulties of life bravely.—Lubbock.
 Is thy friend angry with thee? Then provide him an opportunity of showing thee a great favor. Over that his heart needs melt, and he will love thee again.—Richter.

CHANGING IDEAS OF FUTURE LIFE

Every Age Will Embody Its Hopes in a New Description of Heaven—Would Absolute Knowledge Mean the Death of Religion?—Interesting Discussion of a Subject That Has Stirred the Heart of Humanity in all Ages.

(Literary Digest.)
 Even those who accept the Christian revelation most heartily and completely, as a writer in The Spectator points out, must admit with St. John that "it doth not yet appear what we shall be." Christ taught that the soul of man is eternal. St. Paul, says the writer quoted, summed up Christ's teaching on the subject of immortality when he said that he had "abolished death." The exact nature of the future life promised us remains a matter of surmise.
 "Upon the dark background of the future," this writer continues, "the religious imagination . . . throws beautiful and terrible pictures; but with each succeeding age the pictures dissolve and change." Thus all popular ideas of heaven and hell, he states, are just now fading away. "The conventional heavens fall to satisfy the aspirations of man, and all conceptions of the everlasting tortures of the damned fade before a new consistency of thought which can not reconcile eternal punishment with the knowledge and love of God." Of other changes that have come over our ideas of a future life, he writes further:
 "Our forefathers looked forward in some moods to everlasting rest and never-ending worship, in others to a happy and prosperous life in a perfectly governed and perfectly healthy city. At times, instinctively look for consolation and expansion, reward and restitution, change also. Nevertheless, these pious opinions of the past, the outcome as they are of a spiritual preoccupation more concentrated than anything of which the present age is capable, are not without their value. Imaginary they may have been, but—

 God is also in sleep, and dreams advice. Which He had most propitious, some great good presaging.
 We smile reverently as we look back. Crowns and cities, feasts and sweet fields, all melt away together. Still the words of Christ, which cannot pass away while human nature remains, sound in our hearts. "It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing."
 As we face the baffling realization of our ignorance, he further remarks that it is interesting to consider what the result would be if the exact nature of the eternal life of the spirit were revealed to us, "so that we could believe in it exactly as we believe in this present world."
 He reaches the startling conclusion that such knowledge would mean the death of religion, and then adds:
 "Aspiration kindled in by certainty would lose all power to soar. Men would no longer try to purify their hearts that they might recognize the presence of God everywhere. Such certainty as we are supposing would be a prelude to the descent of man. Hilbert's his road has always led upward. As we look back we can trace it by the light of learning, more or less clearly, right down into all slays. In front we can see nothing tangible, nothing but those ideals which belong to a kingdom 'not from hence.' Forward, upward, we can only move by faith. If the knowledge we crave were granted, men would surely become more material, more earthy, more secular. We should indeed be 'drowned in security.' There is a terrible verse in the Psalms which would, we believe, soon describe our condition: 'And he gave them their desire; and sent leanness withal into their soul.'"
 That men will cease to dream of what they cannot know, he concludes, we do not for a moment suppose. "Every age will embody its hopes in a new description of heaven."
 Make friends with your trials, as though you were always to live together, and you will find that when you cease to take thought for your own deliverance, God will take thought for you.—Francis de Sales.
 Half the world is on the wrong scent in the pursuit of happiness. They think it consists in having and getting and in being served by others. It consists in giving and serving others.—Henry Drummond.
 This concise truth was once uttered by Joseph Cowe: "There is a best way to live and it is best to live in the best way."

WANTED—A HYMN BOOK

One That Shall Gather Up the Best of the Passion of Worship—Faults of the Hymnals Extant.

(New York Evening Post.)
 A new hymnal is announced by the Methodist book concern, a book which will soon find its way into all Methodist churches, north and south. A volume which reaches as many people—over four million members, with an equal number of adherents—is an educational force to be reckoned with; to hundreds of thousands it will be a hand-book of poetry, music and religion. In Methodist—as in other non-liturgical—churches the Bible lessons and the hymns are the most elevating part of the service. Neither in prayer nor sermon can any preacher of the denomination hope to offer such a stimulus to mind and soul. Nor can the minister take offence when members of his congregation flee from the commonplace inconsequence of his discourse and take refuge in the pages of the hymnal. Hosts of sincere worshippers find church tolerable because they can close their ears to the droning exhortation, and commit to memory a hymn or two. A man who has made his own the stanzas beginning:
 "Sever, when in due to Thee
 Low we bend the adoring knee" that man carried away from the service more than he can get from a score of sermons.
 This we say, in spite of the fact that so much religious poetry is neither religious nor poetic. Hymn-books are over-loaded with stuff which has nothing to recommend it but doctrinal soundness. Fever of emotion and beauty of diction are absolutely wanting. In this matter, however, there has in recent years been considerable improvement. The late Rev. Charles S. Robinson, for example, compiled a hymnal which was a decided advance on those in general use. The Episcopal Hymnal, published about ten years ago, marked another step forward; but it contains too much—678 hymns. The new Methodist Hymnal has 717; but it supplies a collection containing 1,117—an appalling mass of mediocre verse. The difficulties of discarding any hymn, once admitted, are apparent. However banal the words or flat the jingle, they have pleased some people, have become hallowed by searching of hearts, high aspiration, hope of eternity and sorrow for the dead. The joint commission, which saved but 477 of the old hymns and added 240 new, has therefore shown uncommon firmness.
 Of course, not all of the new are recently written; they are drawn from all sources, ancient and modern. The whole of the last century, with Heber, Keble, Newman, Bonar, Montgomery, Faber and Neale, has produced hardly 250 worthy hymns. Two of the new hymns, Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar" and Kipling's "Recessional," are sure to provoke adverse comment. Both are solemn and in a way devotional, but "Crossing the Bar" seems almost too elaborately metaphorical, too artificial, to make a direct and telling appeal; while the "Recessional" owes something of its vogue to the fact that it isn't a Barrow Ballad. Earnest souls have accepted it as proof that the profane Kipling of "Fuzzy Wuzzy" has returned, and is bringing forth fruits meet for repentance.
 The world is yet willing for a volume of hymns on the scale of Palgrave's "Golden Treasury of Song and Lyrics," the choicest, and nothing else. The number of selections would probably range between two and three hundred. No denominational hymnal can supply the want. That work is compiled with an eye to the traditions and temperament of a sect. The keen theologians who pass upon the worst recent Arminianism, Socinianism, or other vile heresies in the most innocent and odorous syllables. As a critic of the Methodist Hymnal notes, "Hymns, flawed in themselves and eminently congenial to the Presbyterian or Congregational worship, might not meet the demands of the Methodist spirit of worship." The hymns, then, must be blessed with a catholic and unprejudiced taste.

 All hymns are religious verse, but all religious verses are not hymns. A metrical statement of the doctrine of the Trinity or the theory of atonement may be as valuable for purposes of worship as the equate described in the hypothesis of a right-angle triangle is equal to the sum of the squares on the other two sides. Indeed, too many of the hymns written in periods of religious controversy have been weighted down with doctrinal theory. John Wesley himself, in the preface of his collection of hymns, dated 1779, boasts that these hymns "contain all the more important truths of our most holy religion, whether speculative or practical." "Illustrate them all," and "prove them both by Scripture and reason; and this is done in a regular order." That, indeed, is the defect of the book; it contains too much that is merely expository, argumentative, or horatory. Take, for example, two stanzas:
 "Lovers of pleasure more than God,
 For you've suffered pain;
 Swearers, for you He spilt His blood;
 And shall He bleed in vain?
 "Misers, for you His life He paid;
 Your basest crime He bore;
 Drunkards, for you sine were on Him laid
 That you might sin no more."
 These lines might easily be matched in all of the older denominational hymnals. Some of the most inspiring hymns were the product of the early age of faith. Nothing of the sophisticated Victorian era has touched their simplicity and vigor. When hell was a pit of physical torment and heaven a city of pearl gates, the Christian's fears and hopes were absolutely definite. For Bernard of Cluny there was in all reality a "Jerusalem, the golden, with milk and honey blest," a "sweet and blessed country, the home of God's elect," and Bernard's cry from his heart:
 "For thee, O dear, dear country,
 Mine eyes their vigils keep
 For very love beholding
 Thy holy name, they weep."
 No vague remarks on ethics in this—no thin generalizations about the pleasure and satisfaction of doing good. The hymn book that shall gather up the best of this passion of worship is yet to be made.

THE STAR "WRONG AGAIN"

The New Freeman holds the Mirror Up to Its Contemporary.

The New Freeman gets the editor of the Star on the hip and gives him a tom as follows:—

SOMEWHAT DIFFERENT. Saturday's Star says—"The New Freeman announces that A. G. Skinner will not be a candidate in the provincial by-election unless it is run on Dominion political lines. This is not the first time that Mr. Skinner has expressed his lack of confidence in the Tweddle-Pugsley administration. He knows well that to run on a Dominion political line of the government would mean certain defeat not only in St. John but in almost every constituency in the province."

What we really said was that Mr. Skinner, before announcing that he would not be a candidate in the provincial by-election unless it is run on Dominion political lines, had expressed his lack of confidence in the Tweddle-Pugsley administration. He knows well that to run on a Dominion political line of the government would mean certain defeat not only in St. John but in almost every constituency in the province.

The New Freeman understands that Mr. A. Skinner, before announcing that he would not be a candidate in the provincial by-election unless it is run on Dominion political lines, had expressed his lack of confidence in the Tweddle-Pugsley administration. He knows well that to run on a Dominion political line of the government would mean certain defeat not only in St. John but in almost every constituency in the province.

HOME DESTROYED

The House and Barn of Geo. A. Saunders Burned Yesterday.

The house and barn of George Andrew Saunders, who lives at 1111 St. John street, New York, on the Grand Point road, about three miles from the city, were burned Tuesday afternoon.

The fire caught in the barn, from an unknown cause, and the building was soon destroyed, with its contents, including about fifteen tons of hay and one pig. The fire spread to the house, and though situated on a hillside, the flames were able to reach the comfortable home as soon as the hay was consumed. The furniture being saved.

Great sympathy is felt for Mr. Saunders, as he had no insurance, and had everything in the house and barn, including his own farm and was getting along very nicely when this disaster overtook him. He has a son in the employ of W. H. Thomas & Co.

WEDDINGS

Rogers-Dollimore. Miss Kathleen Dollimore, daughter of Mrs. E. Dollimore, 729 Sherbrooke street, Montreal, was married to Alvin Rogers, of Stollerton (N.S.), on Wednesday afternoon, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. A. J. Morais.

The bride was married in a travelling suit of navy blue, with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers left for Toronto, where they will spend two or three days before going to Brookton (Mass.), where they will reside.

Nixon-Marsland

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Tuesday afternoon at Toronto, in the Wesleyan Methodist church, Dundas street, where Miss Ethel Maude Marsland, eldest daughter of Mr. Charles Marsland, was married to William Bover Nixon of Sydney, Cape Breton, son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Nixon, of Sydney.

Rev. C. O. Johnston officiated. Mr. and Mrs. William Nixon left for the eastern provinces, en route to Sydney (C.B.).

Allan-Lonen

Albert H. Allan, of Upper Gagetown, and Miss Laura May Lonen, of Halifax, were united in marriage early this morning at the Free Baptist parsonage, Victoria street, by Rev. David Long. After the ceremony the young couple took the steamer Pokanook to Upper Gagetown, where they will in future reside.

FOR WINTER BOARDERS

Now that those who have been living in the country for the summer are returning to the city for the winter months, and some families who board are thinking of a desirable home in a desirable location.

The New Victoria Hotel, on Prince William street, is each winter the home of quite a number of boarders, including small families, who find in this excellent hotel all the home comforts at moderate cost.

The New Victoria is not only well heated, with warm and well furnished rooms, but has table service at the best, and every care taken to ensure the comfort and convenience of its guests. It is on the street car line, close to the business centre of the city, and overlooks the harbor, the outlook being exceptionally fine.

The New Victoria has boarders who have been its guests for years, which is the best evidence of the excellence of the accommodation, service and location.

Persons desiring quarters for the winter will do well to consult the management of this hotel.

NOT BOOK AGENTS

While other schools are engaged in selling text-books on abhorrent and exploitive "cash" or "new" or so-called "easily acquired" abhorrent system, the management of the The Carrie Business University, Limited, very wisely avoided such tactics.

This institution engaged the services of expert court stenographers and had a system of shorthand compiled at a cost of nearly one thousand dollars, which is imparted to the pupil the "technique" of the profession; or, to put it plainer, the "tricks of the expert" for the accomplishment of a large mass of work.

This class of training cannot be obtained through text-book teaching, nor can it be acquired in any other school in this vicinity; hence the reason why this school guarantees a position to every graduate.

MORE DIPHTHERIA

Two More Cases Reported to the Board of Health Today.

Two more cases of diphtheria have been reported to the board of health, one on Germain street, and the second on British street. The board of health officials are seeing to it that the infected houses being fumigated, and the doctors are using antitoxine in the treatment of patients. Everything possible is being done to prevent the spread of the disease.

There are various rumors as regards the cause of this outbreak, one of them being that a child from an infected house had associated with other children, the disease being spread by contact. The accuracy of the statement has not yet been ascertained.

It is, perhaps, worthy of note that the disease has not in all cases been confined to the dirtiest parts of the city, a fact which seems to indicate that cleanliness is not always a preventive.

THE NEW FREEMAN

Talks of Grocers and Mr. Purdy and Has a Sty Dig at Mr. Lantallum.

NEW NORTH END BANK

The Royal Bank has decided to open a north end branch in the Harrison Building, that used to be the post office on Main street. This bank has adopted a more progressive policy in St. John, and its branch in the north end will no doubt prove a great convenience to the citizens there. It will be opened as soon as the office has been properly fitted up.

T. B. Blair's management the Royal Bank is growing in popularity with the business community.

In connection with the suspension of Policeman Jones, it is rumored that an investigation is to be held, and that a local M. P. has taken a hand in the game in the interests of that officer, who claims that he should be given a hearing, and that he has something interesting to say.

THAT ST. MARTINS CAR

A Misunderstanding in Which the Times Was Misled.

The Times on Thursday contained the following item:—

"An unusual incident happened at the depot recently. A passenger car was held from making a trip up the line by the customs officials in the station, because the owners had neglected to pay the duty on it. The car in question was purchased by the Hampton and St. Martins railway from the Boston and Albany railway and was in the city for three or four days before the customs officer was aware that the formality of paying the duty had not been gone through. He got busy then and the result was the car did not go to St. Martins on that day. The management, however, paid the necessary amount of the 'coin of the realm,' before next day and proceeded to release the car, but only one trip was missed. The car is now running regularly."

The St. Martins Railway Company take exception to this article and state that there was no difficulty regarding the duty on this car. They further state, and this is confirmed by the customs house authority, that the latter knew the car was not paid for. The car, however, arrived in advance of the invoice, and a misunderstanding arose.

A customs officer at the depot, finding the manifest of the car, and having no orders that duty had been paid, gave orders on a Tuesday not to allow the car to go out until the duty was paid. The car was held until the duty was paid, and was then released by the collector, but by the officer in the ordinary course of his duty. It was not until the day after that the St. Martins Railway Company was notified of the misunderstanding, in the course of which the Times was misled.

POLICE COURT

In the police court this morning one drink forfeited a deposit of $5.

Edward York for profanity on King Square was fined $8 or two months in jail.

Samuel Dibble, butcher, was arrested yesterday charged by Wm. H. Vall, of Springfield, Kings Co., with stealing a quarter of beef from the Beatrice Waring on the afternoon of July 28th.

Samuel Dibble stated that he came to the city on the day in question with two straight carcasses of beef, and he purchased another quarter while on the boat. Mr. Dibble had most quite handy to where his own was hanging. He (Vall) went to the Crystal Street, and on returning found that one of his quarters was gone.

Mr. Brown was with him on his return. He asked Mr. Dibble who took his beef, and the latter stated that he did not know. The complainant stated that he had returned to their respective stores and found what he considered to be his quarter in Mr. Sprague's wagon. Mr. Sprague stated to him that he bought the beef from Samuel Dibble. He found Dibble at the C. R. station about five o'clock in the afternoon, and he denied taking the beef. Mr. Vall stated it was his beef.

Thos. McDonald, butcher, stated that he was called to Mr. Sprague's shop by the police, a statement between the parties concerned, and he thought that it was bull beef, but he stated that no man ever saw him take a quarter of beef from between bull and steers' beef. Mr. Sprague stated to him that he bought the beef from Samuel Dibble. He found Dibble at the C. R. station about five o'clock in the afternoon, and he denied taking the beef. Mr. Vall stated it was his beef.

Mr. Brown was with him on his return. He asked Mr. Dibble who took his beef, and the latter stated that he did not know. The complainant stated that he had returned to their respective stores and found what he considered to be his quarter in Mr. Sprague's wagon. Mr. Sprague stated to him that he bought the beef from Samuel Dibble. He found Dibble at the C. R. station about five o'clock in the afternoon, and he denied taking the beef. Mr. Vall stated it was his beef.
