NEW BRUNSWICK MAN UNDER SERIOUS CHARGE.

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—With the recovery from the bottom of the harbor today of a leather bag containing a head, believed to be that of Miss Susanna A. Geary, the dress suit case victim, and a message from New York that one of the men under arrest there had thrown the blame of the primary operation performed on the girl upon a woman and one of the men now in custody, the local police feel that they have well in hand the major details of what for weeks has been a very baffling case.

When asked tonight concerning the alleged confessions of Louis W. Crawford and William Howard, the New York prisoners, Chief William B. Watts of the Boston bureau of criminal investigation, said: "All I will say is that the confession of these two men is the most startling and sensational story I have ever heard. I do not like to think of it. It is a terrible story and the most remarkable tale I, in all my years of police service, ever heard of. I believe that both men have told the whole truth, for never before in my life have I ever heard the confession of a criminal so complete in detail and vivid in its description. If it is ever given in its entirety to the public, and I hardly think it will unless it comes out at the trial, the effect upon the people will be stunning."

The New York prisoners, Morris Nathan, who was brought here from Pittsburgh, Pa., and Dr. Percy D. McLeod, who was arrested in Boston Friday, are all charged with the same crime, that of abortion, and according to the local authorities there is no mitigation of this charge, as it holds against anyone who may be involved in any way in such a case. According to the laws of this state, a charge of being an accessory in such a case cannot be made in a warrant against a person. Where a death occurs the penalty in this state is not less than five or more than twenty years in state prison.

The police are still searching for Mary S. Dean, said to have been housekeeper and nurse at the house where Miss Geary died. Nathan has not yet left the city hospital, but his condition is much improved and he may be arraigned tomorrow. Dr. McLeod's case will not be called in court until Friday.

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—Percy DeMille McLeod, doctor of medicine, was born in New Brunswick thirty-five years ago, and is well known among the provincial colony here. He is a son of Komney McLeod of the Hotel Hurlock, Roxbury district, and formerly of Penobscot, Kings Co., N. B. The family has relatives in New Brunswick, including several in St. John, Woodstock, Fredericton and in Kings county. The family moved to Boston about 22 years ago. Percy attended the Primer school and English high school, and after his graduation took an academic course at Boston University. Later he attended Harvard medical school, graduating in 1884. He was not particularly brilliant at first, but was a member of the house staff of the City Hospital, and while there developed noticeably and became an expert in gynecology. At the end of eighteen months' hospital service, in 1886, he began as practitioner on Tremont street, south end. Later he moved to Huntington avenue, Back Bay, where at No. 208 he remained three years and then removed to Huntington avenue. He has been there four years. In 1900, McLeod married a young daughter of a prominent resident of Mohawk, Herkimer Co., N. Y.

Dr. McLeod has engaged lawyers and made a last resort to save life, if possible. It is generally understood McLeod performed the second operation in the hope of relieving peritonitis, which developed from the first operation. The police charge, however, that Dr. McLeod was the one who dismembered the body, the head of which was found in the harbor today. Dr. McLeod declines to make any statement at this time and appears to take his arrest coolly. His wife however, is overcome. Dr. McLeod is well liked wherever known and his arrest came as a great surprise.

The finding of the girl's head was the most important event in the case during the day. The police continued the search for Mary S. Dean, who is said to have had charge of the body, but without result and it is believed that she left the city as soon as she learned of the arrest of Crawford and Howard. Crawford and Howard will probably remain in New York for several days until the necessary papers are approved by Governor Higgins. Morris Nathan, the lover of Miss Geary, will be arraigned in court tomorrow in a charge of abortion and a heavy bail is anticipated.

VICTIM'S HEAD FOUND. BOSTON, Nov. 5.—What is confidentially believed to be the head of Miss Susanna A. Geary, the dress suit case victim, was recovered in a leather bag from the bottom of the harbor today. It was dragged up to the surface very near the point where Lewis W. Crawford and Wm. L. Howard, who have confessed to disposing of the dismembered body of the girl, said they dropped it from the stern of the East Boston ferryboat. The head completes the entire body of the unfortunate girl. The trunk of the body, which gave the first intimation of the crime, was found on Sept. 21st, in a dress suit case floating near the Winthrop Yacht Club, three miles below the city. Another case containing the limbs was discovered at the mouth of the Charles river, a quarter of a mile above the ferry, on October 27th. The leather bag, in which the head had been placed together with thirty pounds of loose shot, did not move apparently from the place where it was taken to a Howard street undertaking establishment and will be viewed by Medical Examiner Harris in the morning. The head was in a good state of preservation and it is believed by the police that it was readily recognized as that of Miss Geary, thereby confirming the identification.

THE GEISHA TONIGHT. Austin Daly's musical comedy, "The Geisha" will be staged at the York Theatre tonight by the Pollard Australian Juvenile Opera Company. This is one of the very best things in the repertoire and gives all of the little ones a chance. "Teddy McNamara" will be seen as "Yun Hi," the wily Chinese. Eva Moore will sing the title role and Daphne Pollard and Olive Moore will alternate in the part of Molly Seymour. The twins have also good parts, as have the rest of the talented children. Special scenery and costumes will be on view for the first time. "The Geisha" is also the bill for Tuesday night. The balance of the week will be divided as follows: Wednesday and Thursday nights and Saturday matinee "A Gaiety Girl," Wednesday's matinee, "The Belle of New York," Friday and Saturday nights, "The Lady Slavey." Seats are now on sale for the entire week.

RIVER STEAMERS IN COLLISION. The river steamer Springfield came into Indiantown at five o'clock Sunday morning with her bow battered out of shape and an undesirable load of water ballast in her hold, the result of a collision on Saturday off Ormocote with the str. Majestic. An officer of the Springfield gave the following account of the accident to the Sun: "We were steaming along," he said, "shortly after noon on Saturday heading for the Ormocote landing, when the Majestic came up behind. We were both traversing the shoals at this point and as the Majestic neared it was seen that she would pass very close to our bow. She did in fact go by with ten feet to spare between the two rafts. The steamer by the Majestic is strong and was accentuated by the shoal water. The consequence was the Springfield was drawn over against the other bow, her bow striking the Majestic stern of the engines and on her left side. The lower part of the Springfield was twisted and a hole punched in her bow. Through this the water poured and the bow was beached. Repairs were made temporarily and the boat started for the city Saturday night. Two or three days will be necessary to complete repairs."

Old Gent: "Have you vanishing ink?" Tradesman: "Yes, going to make sure of no breach of promise suits." Old Gent: "Oh, no; going to give my daughter a cheque for a thousand pounds as a wedding present."

NEW YORK WOMEN APPLAUD DIVORCE.

Members of Legislative League in Session at Waldorf-Astoria Discuss Paper on Question.

BOSTON, Nov. 4.—That the majority of women of the New York Legislative League are strongly in favor of divorce is shown by their discussion of a paper on Divorce read by Dr. Harriet Keating, at a meeting Thursday afternoon in the Waldorf-Astoria. In her paper Dr. Keating said: "Hardly of the unborn child exempt as a criminal, and the number of criminals and degenerates is on the increase, for this reason alone we should have laws to regulate unwise marriages, for though the women suffer from disreputable divorces, the greatest evils are brought out in the children. 'Who thinks to ask if a girl is strong and healthy and capable of being the mother of children? All that is necessary is that she comes of a good family, that they have enough money to have a clean bill of health before marriage we might insure a clean, healthy race. As it is, we should rejoice that there is a door through which these unhappy mortals can escape. Mrs. Richard Best, secretary, who was authorized to get up a memorial on the views of the league on divorce to send to President Roosevelt, said: 'I don't see why a man and a woman who have made a mistake should not be free. In the opinion of Dr. Anna Blackwell Brown "It's a scandal and a disgrace to the nation for men and women to separate and marry again in a week."'

Look at the wretched women to whom the river is a temptation," said Mrs. Emily Van Eiel, who gave a long list of the statistics that married women have to bear. Mrs. Margaret Holmes Bates, treasurer of the league and a woman prominent in club circles here in Brooklyn, said: "An outcast is more of a result than the Y. M. C. A. will receive a sum towards the building fund. Instead of the three thousand or thirty-one hundred dollars, which the committee thought would remain after the building fund, considerably over four thousand dollars has been cleared."

MONUMENT OF SIR OLIVER MOWAT.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—The monument erected in Queen's park in memory of Sir Oliver Mowat was unveiled by Lieut. Mortimer Clark this afternoon in the presence of a large assemblage. The statue is situated in front of the parliament buildings. It is of bronze, the figure standing nine feet high upon a pedestal of granite. The statue is granite with bronze panels. It was the work of Walter S. Alward, sculptor, Toronto, who was highly complimented on his work by the speakers, Lieutenant Governor Hon. G. W. Ross and Premier Mackenzie King. The oration of the day was delivered by Mr. Ross, and it will be remembered as one of his finest literary efforts. Mr. Whitney touched a tender chord when he referred to the Union Jack upon the statue. Lieut. Governor Mortimer Clark before unveiling the statue spoke briefly of his intimate acquaintance with the deceased statesman for 45 years, his many successes in the legal profession, on the bench and as lieutenant governor fighting constitutional questions. Concluding, the lieutenant governor said that without his influence the country would not be today what it is, and he hoped the monument would long remain as an emblem of what a true statesman should be. The lieutenant governor drew from the statue the Union Jack that unveiled it amid the subdued but respectful applause of the spectators.

SAYS HE BRIBED SYDNEY ALDERMAN.

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 5.—At the trial of Neil J. Sutherland at Sydney, the accused gave evidence to the effect that he had paid David Ahearn, crown prosecutor for the county of Cape Breton, then Alderman Ahearn, $200 to help secure the consent of the city council to grant a license to the Cape Breton Brewery Co., etc. Sutherland was an active promoter of the brewery, and while the consent of the council was secured for the license, the public raised such a storm of protest that the inland revenue department declined to grant the license. The brewery was near the high school and the cause of objection to citizens. The giving of this piece of evidence by Sutherland created a decided sensation. Mr. Ahearn explains that the money was paid him for professional fees and as a briber.

MORE ARRESTS IN THE COMPLICATED BARBER CASE.

Two More in Jail—Forgery the Charge Against One, Slander Against the Other.

The arrest on Tuesday last of H. R. Barber, the distributing agent for Canada and Newfoundland of cash registers and safes handled by H. A. Thompson, of Virginia, has been followed by the arrest of the people responsible for Barber's temporary incarceration. This case fairly teems with complications, and bids fair to rival the case of the late Mrs. Thompson. Barber has been in St. John a little over a year, and has sold a large quantity of goods. A warrant was issued during that time. Early in October he went to Virginia and had an interview with Mr. Thompson, who gave him money to settle certain claims of people in this city. Shortly after Barber returned from Virginia, J. N. Rouse, the New England representative of Mr. Thompson, arrived in St. John and after consulting Barnhill, Ewing & Sanford, had Barber arrested on a writ of capias, issued out of the supreme court, for a claim of $1,300, in the form of a note made payable by Barber to H. A. Thompson, "for value received." Barber was taken to jail, and remained there until Saturday afternoon. He swore that he was not possessed of any personal property or real estate, and was consequently liberated.

On the other hand, Mr. Maughlin, who has been in the charge of Barber, was also arrested, charged with having eluded Mr. Rouse. Mr. Maughlin is still in duress, having been unable to secure bail. After his liberation, Mr. Barber did not waste any time in making counter moves on his opponents, J. P. Finkbine, who was not possessed of any personal property or real estate, and placed him under arrest. He was taken to the central station and locked up. An effort was made to procure his release on bail, but it was unsuccessful.

Mr. Fouse was not neglected, either. He is accused of saying things derogatory to the good history of Mr. Barber, and he was arrested on a slander charge, by Constable McFarquhar. Both arrests were between four and five o'clock, and within an hour after Barber's release. Mr. Fouse was released in the evening on $500 bail. It was reported last evening that he had left the city. After his release, Mr. Barber had in his possession at the time of his arrest are now in the custody of E. H. McAlpin, who is a constable. Mr. Barber was issued an injunction restraining Barber from disparaging the good name of the firm of Barnhill, Ewing & Sanford. Other complications will no doubt arise in this case as time goes on. As it is, the parties concerned have been arrested, and perhaps the process will be repeated a few times.

FAIR OF NATIONS CLEARED $4,140.

The Fair of Nations was even a greater success financially than the most hopeful dared to expect, and as a result the Y. M. C. A. will receive a sum towards the building fund. Instead of the three thousand or thirty-one hundred dollars, which the committee thought would remain after the building fund, considerably over four thousand dollars has been cleared.

BANK OF MONTREAL. DEATH OF PROMINENT HALIFAX MAN

It was reported on Saturday that W. E. Stavert might be made general manager of the Bank of Montreal succeeding Mr. Clouston, who will become vice-president. The following despatch has been received from Montreal: The Bank of Montreal is a difficult place from which to obtain news regarding officials. Mr. Stavert's appointment as general manager is not likely. The story to the effect that he is to be given the oversight of the maritime provinces branches is more likely correct. Meredith is generally regarded as to succeed Clouston when he becomes vice-president.

Piano Tuning!

It is surprising how many people neglect to tune their Pianos. Not only is a Piano that is out of tune, not fit to listen to, but it is a positive injury to let a Piano run down and stand a long period without tuning. A Piano should be tuned at least two or three times a year.

The young ladies of the Thompson Dry Goods Company invited us in the other afternoon to drink lemonade with them, preferring the invitation with the remark that we must say something nice about them in the paper. And of course we could not do otherwise, for they are all, without a single exception, just as nice and sweet as they can be, and our only wonder is that they have been allowed to remain single so long—and some of them, oh! so long.—Record, Marion, Kan. STATE LIFE INSURANCE.

A natural result of the recent insurance exposures in conjunction with the growing public opinion in favor of state ownership has been the creation of an active agitation for state life insurance. In this country and in several of the American states there is already considerable supervision of insurance companies, and the vast array of alarmed policyholders are asking why this cannot be extended till the government shall control the whole business, thus overcoming the abuses and extravagances which have grown up under the private and competitive system. A writer in the current number of the International Quarterly takes strong ground in favor of this policy. At present, he says, the state specifies for private companies the mortality table to be used; it can use that table for itself. It names a rate of interest to be assumed in computing premiums and reserves; it can do this for its own as well as the guidance of other companies. It compels the attachment of a reasonable surrender value to lapsed policies and specifies how such value is to be determined; it has something to say, here and there, of how and when the surplus shall be divided;—it can simply take over these standards of general conduct and apply them to an insurance business of its own through the machinery already established for their application to private companies. The state can as well make safe investments as it can prescribe such investments for others. And the state can do some things which it cannot compel private companies to do and prevent them to remain such,—it can eliminate competition, abolish solicitation through an expensive agency system, and so radically reduce insurance charges; or it can establish a business in competition with private companies, and by applying a moderated system of solicitation by agents or advertising, effect, perhaps, a material cheapening of insurance to those who want it from the state. To illustrate the great savings that would follow such a policy the writer quotes convincing figures from the reports of insurance companies and state savings banks in Massachusetts— institutions existing for a similar purpose— showing that the expenses of the latter amount to less than one per cent. of the total income, while the expenses of insurance companies run from 15 to 25 per cent. The salaries alone of officers and employees of four Massachusetts companies are more than double the total expenses of four savings banks, though the latter handle considerably greater funds. By simply reducing salaries to reasonable limits the state could lower the charges of insurance from 15 to 30 per cent. without effecting in the slightest the additions to and deductions from surplus. The most effective premium charge for an ordinary whole-life policy at age 30 would thus be 20 per cent. of the most, instead of 24, and other policies would come in for proportionate reductions. The magnitude of saving on such a scale, when extended over large bodies of policy-holders and for stretched years would be incalculable. Moreover, endowment or policies with the savings-bank feature would in this case have a greatly enhanced desirability; for, as it is, such a policy involves the absurdity of turning savings from a bank of low expense ratio to an insurance company with a ratio many times higher. Discussing the methods of accomplishing the change, he says the state might either take over the business of existing companies within its borders or permit them to live out the slow liquidation of existing contracts. There is, however, an alternative. The New Zealand method might be adopted, by which the state would offer insurance in open competition with private companies. It would then be a case of "the survival of the fittest."

A CONDITION AND A REMEDY.

The manner of Mr. Cobbe's farewell in a measure compensates his denunciation and the city for the loss of his going. Such a courageous and forcible address as he made yesterday morning—it is reported elsewhere in this paper—cannot fail to broaden the religious life of this community and to bring nearer the day when sectarian differences shall be forgotten. While Mr. Cobbe admits that disagreement on theological questions is the immediate cause of his resignation he makes it clear that the real reason lies in conditions which demand radical remedy if ever Christian work in St. John is to be carried on as it should be. There are too many churches, he says—not only too many branches of the same denomination but also too many denominations. As a result each church organization is in such a precarious position financially that the pastor and the work are greatly hampered. While his resignation is due to these conditions his departure is not a remedy. Because of his views, Brussels street Baptist church is losing members and contributions but should be succeeded by a man who can make the church prosperous, it will be at the expense of some other church which in turn will go down his. Clearly the remedy may be found only in a process of union and reorganization which shall co-ordinate efforts and contributions which are now scattered and, in a large measure, wasted.

And, as Mr. Cobbe emphatically declared, this process of union should be more than an amalgamation of a few churches of the same denomination. It should be interdenominational and universal. The day of the little churches, founded on dooms, he declares is passing; and the courage and force of his declaration will help to bring the day nearer when the separating barrier of sectarianism shall be broken down and all denominations shall be united in one great house of many mansions.

The church is but a channel to bring the Truth from its source to the people who need it, and the broader the channel the more can come through and the more will be fed.

INDIAN SUMMER.

Faint blue the distant hills before, Yellow the harvest lands behind; The thistledown goes out to find, On naked branch and empty nest, The woodland's blended gold and red, Dim glory less which autumn shares With faces of the newly dead.

Tender this moment of the year To those who have departed, 'Tis the lifting of the latch, A footstep on the flags of home.

Now may the peace of withered grass And golden-rod abide with you; Abide with me—for what is death? Fall of a leaf against the blue, —Scribners.

13 YEAR OLD MURDERER GETS SEVEN YEARS.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—Seven years in the penitentiary was the sentence passed on Josie Carr Saturday by Justice MacMahon. When the girl, who is only thirteen years and four months old, stood up in the dock to reply to his worthy question, "Have you anything to say?" she showed more feeling than she did at any of her previous appearances in court. In a broken voice, with tears in her eyes, she said:—"I plead guilty to killing the baby. Mother's brother said he would tell my father, and I did not want them to know that I hid the baby down there, and when I went down to see the child, the child was dead. I am very sorry for what I did."

Mr. Robbette, her counsel, made a strong plea for her, referring to her bringing up, that she had been for three years without the care of a mother.

LABOR TALKS.

DAN, THE DRIVER, AND THE PROFESSOR.

Dan—Yes, we get good wages, but not too much for the danger we run. If we're a minute late in getting to West-wood, some big buster who is chummy with the superintendent hauls out his gold watch and says, "You're behind time, Dan." It's just his coffee and eggs and don't know no more than a cat on the rug the ninety things that keep a train back. Good wages, Hoo a month is not too much for this job.

Prof.—The trouble is that in order to make big mileage you work too many hours. An engineer who has only had four hours' sleep is not fit to look after a train.

Dan—Well, of course, we have the right to take our sleep. But if, when you turn in at 7 a. m., after having run 14 hours, you are told to be ready to take out No. 6 at noon, you don't quite like to refuse. The boss might remember it against you. And then the winter work is tough. Not for me, perhaps, for I am young and have good sight. But there's old Tom S. It uses him up pretty fast when he leans out the cab and faces his northeast head storm howling up the B grade.

Prof.—Can you spare enough out of your wages to insure?

Dan—Hardly, you see the rate is high. Most of us go wrong in the kidneys by not getting and in more destructive than war. In 1905 there were 2,160 more employees hurt than in 1904. Are we in Canada any less than the United States in this respect?

Prof.—We have lots of rules, but who can enforce them and get on time.

Prof.—Why don't you and the Drivers' union take up all these rules with the management. Make them provide me to take out the trains and not rob you of the daily 8 hours sleep. Did you take any interest in the "Factory Act" passed last spring?

Dan—No, what have we got to do with it?

Prof.—Railroad and switchmen are mentioned in it. There should be a clause as to certificated engineers. If the government refused to insert it, if your strong union had spoken out that clause might have been in it.

Dan—You legal and business men, in fact the whole travelling public, are responsible for these bad accidents. You continually want to go fast. And then you seem afraid of the Railroad Board. You forget that the public own the ground the road is built on, and the public ought to control the railroads, as far as security of life and reasonable freight and passenger rates are concerned.

Prof.—There you are right. We ought to look after these common carriers. In New Brunswick we had loss of life on the St. Lawrence bridge accident on the Central, and on the C. P. R. at St. Leonard, and again at Carleton last year.

A good way would be to have an inspector go over all the roads twice a year, inspecting culverts, bridges and road beds and make a semi-annual report to the government at Fredericton. Then in case of accidents such reports could be used as evidence. Yes, the people should see this done, but you and your union could do more.

You ought to demand a good railroad labor law to prevent young, inexperienced men doing driver's work. A certificate of at least three years' service should be shown before any one is permitted to drive an engine. There are many things your union could do to help yourselves, and also to help the travelling public.

FIFTY MILES OF HAIR. Few ladies who carry that carry some forty or fifty miles of hair on their heads; the fair-haired may even have to dress seventy miles of strands of gold every morning.

DIAMOND ADVICE. PUT YOUR MONEY INTO DIAMONDS. Diamonds in your possession represent money—more money than you pay for them after you have worn them a while, for the advance in prices is very marked and there is positively no danger of diamonds depreciating in value in our time. Of course it is always necessary to choose wisely and pay the right prices when you make your selection; therefore it is essential that you should choose the gems at a responsible house and I have a record and a reputation I think enviable; and my very large stock of set and unset gems allows for the best selection in this city or province.

Respectfully yours W. FREMAINE GARD, 77 Charlotte St. Direct Importer.

HIS LUCK CHANGED. A butcher in a small way of business was in the habit of sending his son out with a small trap to deliver orders. The lad was a careless driver, and one day he knocked down an old lady. The inevitable lawsuit followed, and the butcher had to pay heavy damages.

Shortly after this his son was the cause of another accident, which had a similar result, and the drain on the butcher's resources brought him to the verge of ruin.

A few days after the second case had been settled he was sitting in his shop thinking over his hard fate, when a neighbor came rushing in breathless with the information that the butcher's wife had been run over by a motor-car and was lying in the hospital. "Think goodness!" exclaimed the butcher; "my luck's changed at last!"

There were only four deaths per 1,000 among the children who passed through the late Dr. Barnardo's hands.

Brewster's Millions

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Young Montgomery Brewster falls heir to $2,000,000, left him by his grandfather Edwin Peter Brewster. He is confiding his good fortune to Peggy Gray, the daughter of an old friend of his mother, with whom he has made his home when he receives word that his uncle James T. Sedwick, a bitter enemy of his grandfather, has died in Montana leaving him $7,000,000 on condition that on his 25th birthday, just one year away, he is absolutely penniless. The money is left in trust of a secular character, Brewster Jones, of Montana, who makes several restrictions as to how the money shall be spent. He must take no one into his confidence, must not be more than ordinarily dissipated, nor give excessive aid to charity. Brewster starts to spend his money and is worried that he can't get rid of it fast enough.

He seeks the aid of a young society woman, Mrs. Dan DeMille, to help him "invest" in a most elaborate scale which makes him the laughing stock of his friends who don't understand his predicament. He is fascinated by her personal discomfort and danger. Peggy Gray was thinking of the prisoner below. In a reflection of her own terror she pictured him crouching in the little stateroom like a doomed criminal awaiting execution, alone, neglected, forgotten, unloved. At first she hesitated to do anything for Brewster's peace of mind and safety. Her heart was bitter toward every one responsible for the situation, and it came dark rebellion in her soul. It culminated finally in a resolve to release Montgomery Brewster at any cost.

With difficulty she made her way to the stateroom door, clinging to supports at times and then plunging violently away from them. For some minutes she listened, frantically clutching the door and then plunging violently away from them. For some minutes she listened, frantically clutching the door and then plunging violently away from them.

For three days and two nights the flitter steamed westward into the Atlantic, with her temporary owner locked in his stateroom. The confinement was irksome, but he rather liked the sensation of being interested in something besides money. He frequently laughed to himself over the absurdity of the situation. His enemies were friends, true and devoted, his jailers were relatives, but they were considered. The original order that he should be guarded by one man was violated the first day. There were times when his guard numbered at least ten persons and some of them served tea and begged him to listen to reason.

"It is difficult not to listen," he said fiercely. "It's like holding a man down and then asking him to be quiet. But at the same time I'm coming."

"Revenge will be his!" exclaimed Mrs. Dan tragically. "You might have your term shortened on account of good conduct if you would only behave," suggested Peggy, whose reserve was beginning to soften. "Please be good and give in to the whole cruise," said Monty. "On deck I wouldn't be noticed, but here I am quite the whole thing. Besides I can get out whenever I feel like it."

"I have $1,000 which says you can't," said DeMille, and Monty snatched him up so eagerly that he added, "that you can't get out of your own accord."

Monty acceded to the condition and offered odds on the proposition to him the others, but there were no takers. "That settles it," he smiled grimly to himself. "I can make $1,000 by staying here, and I can't afford to escape."

On the third day of Monty's imprisonment the flitter began to roll heavily. At first he gazed over the deck, but there were no takers. "That settles it," he smiled grimly to himself. "I can make $1,000 by staying here, and I can't afford to escape."

"Where are the others?" he asked, breaking himself in the doorway. "Oh, Monty," she cried, "we must not go to them! They will think me a traitor."

"Why were you a traitor, Peggy?" he demanded, turning toward her suddenly. "Oh—oh, because it seemed so cruel to keep you locked up through the storm," she answered, blushing. "And there was no other reason?" he persisted.

"Don't, please don't!" she cried piteously, and he understood her emotion. It was clear that she was merely sorry for him. "Never mind, Peggy. It's all right. You stood by me, and I'll stand by you. Come on, we'll face the mob, and I'll do the fighting."

Together they made their way into the presence of the mutineers, who were crowded into the main cabin. "Well, here's a conspiracy!" cried Dan DeMille, but there was no anger in his voice. "How did you escape? I was just thinking of unlocking your door, Monty, but the key seemed to be missing."

Peggy displayed it triumphantly. "Peggy!" cried Dan. "This is rank treachery. Who was on guard?" A steward rushing through the cabin at this moment in answer to frantic calls from Bragdon furnished an eloquent reply to the question.

"It was simple," said Monty. "The guards deserted their post and left the key behind."

"Then it is up to me to pay you $1,000."

"Not at all," protested Monty, taken aback. "I did not escape of my own accord. I had help. The money is here, and now that I am free, he added quietly, "let me say that this deed does not go to Boston."

"What was I expected?" cried Vanderpool. "She's going straight to New York," declared Monty. "The words were hard-ly uttered when a heavy sea sent him sprawling across the cabin, and he conscious, "or to the bottom."

"Not so bad as that," said Captain Perry, whose entrance had been somewhat hastened by the lurch of the boat. "But until this blow over I must keep you below." He laughed, but he saw they were not deceived. "The seas are pretty heavy and the decks are being bolted for nothing, but I wouldn't like to have any of you washed overboard by mistake."

The hatches were battened down, and it was a sorry company that tried to walk away from the flitter that night. Even if it had been easy to forget the danger, the creaking of the ship and the incessant roar of the water were enough for "wakers" and to follow, but he checked himself on the threshold. It was such a mite of a thing to meet so ferocious an attack. Through the night the fragile little craft fought its lonely way, bravely ignoring its own weakness and the infinite stretch of the sea. To the captain, lashed to the bridge, there were hours of grave anxiety—hours when he feared each wave it approached and wondered what new damage it had done as it receded. As the wind increased toward morning he felt a sickening certainty that the brush, the rifle discharging its contents and so great was the shock to our citizens that for a time it was impossible to obtain particulars of the awful calamity. On the street corners, in the stores and shops men talked in heated breath of the sad affair, and it is safe to say the town has never been so deeply stirred by any occurrence of a similar nature.

As far as can be learned the correct particulars of the sad affair are as follows: Mr. Shives in company with Mr. McLean, the millwright, went on Saturday afternoon up river nearly to the mouth of the Upsalquitch for the purpose of selecting a site for a couple of sheds which he proposed to build as a sort of half way station on the portage to the lumber camps of the company. Mr. Shives carrying a hammer on a small steep hill, and it was in attempting to climb this hill that the shocking accident occurred. The hammer of the rifle was caught by the butt of the rifle discharging its contents. The bullet entered Mr. Shives' body on the right side, passing clean through him and coming out just below the heart.

Mr. McLean, who was about thirty years ahead of his unfortunate companion, on hearing the report, ran to his assistance, and on reaching his destination he found the body of Mr. Shives lying on the ground. Summoning the aid of some other men who were near by, he did what he could for the sufferer, but his intense suffering, and started him on his way to the road on a blanket.

They had not gone far, however, before the sincere and finest sympathy of the whole community. When the deceased first regained consciousness, he received the news that "Boys, I'm dying." He then gave directions concerning his business and a last word of farewell for his wife and family, and requested that he be buried in the old home on Coburg street. It is said that when it became only too evident that death would result, he turned to the man who had been with him in the bush, broke down completely in the arms of the latter, and uttered a striking example of the place the deceased held in the hearts of his employees for the humblest in his employ always found in him a sympathetic and responsive.

One whiff of the sweet smelling cologne was enough for Bragdon and he bolted up the companionway, leaving the stateroom door wide open and the prisoner free to go where he pleased. Monty's first impulse was to follow, but he checked himself on the threshold.

"Hang that bet with DeMille," he said to himself, and added aloud to the seeling guard, "The key, Joe—I dare you to come back and get it!"

But Bragdon was beyond recall and Monty locked the door on the inside and passed the key through the ventilator.

On deck a small part of the company braved the spray in the lee of the deck house, but the others had long since gone below. The boat was pitching furiously in the lightest sea he had encountered, and there was anxiety underneath Captain Perry's mask of unconcern. DeMille and Dr. Letless talked to the seeling guard, but they were in no mood for conversation.

Only one of them was quite oblivious to personal discomfort and danger. Peggy Gray was thinking of the prisoner below. In a reflection of her own terror she pictured him crouching in the little stateroom like a doomed criminal awaiting execution, alone, neglected, forgotten, unloved. At first she hesitated to do anything for Brewster's peace of mind and safety.

KILGOUR SHIVES KILLED NEAR CAMPBELLTON.

Tragic Death of One of New Brunswick's Captains of Industry.

While Walking Through the Woods to a Lumber Camp His Rifle Caught on a Bough and Was Discharged, the Bullet Piercing His Body

CAMPBELLTON, N. B., Nov. 5.—Deep gloom hangs over the town today with the full realization of the shocking death of one of our most prominent citizens, Kilgour Shives, yesterday afternoon. There was a note of sadness in all the church services today, and particularly in Christ church, where he died a member.

Yesterday evening the news passed from lip to lip that Kilgour Shives, head of the Shives Lumber Co. had accidentally shot himself in the woods, and so great was the shock to our citizens that for a time it was impossible to obtain particulars of the awful calamity. On the street corners, in the stores and shops men talked in heated breath of the sad affair, and it is safe to say the town has never been so deeply stirred by any occurrence of a similar nature.

As far as can be learned the correct particulars of the sad affair are as follows: Mr. Shives in company with Mr. McLean, the millwright, went on Saturday afternoon up river nearly to the mouth of the Upsalquitch for the purpose of selecting a site for a couple of sheds which he proposed to build as a sort of half way station on the portage to the lumber camps of the company. Mr. Shives carrying a hammer on a small steep hill, and it was in attempting to climb this hill that the shocking accident occurred.

The hammer of the rifle was caught by the butt of the rifle discharging its contents. The bullet entered Mr. Shives' body on the right side, passing clean through him and coming out just below the heart.

Mr. McLean, who was about thirty years ahead of his unfortunate companion, on hearing the report, ran to his assistance, and on reaching his destination he found the body of Mr. Shives lying on the ground. Summoning the aid of some other men who were near by, he did what he could for the sufferer, but his intense suffering, and started him on his way to the road on a blanket.

They had not gone far, however, before the sincere and finest sympathy of the whole community. When the deceased first regained consciousness, he received the news that "Boys, I'm dying." He then gave directions concerning his business and a last word of farewell for his wife and family, and requested that he be buried in the old home on Coburg street. It is said that when it became only too evident that death would result, he turned to the man who had been with him in the bush, broke down completely in the arms of the latter, and uttered a striking example of the place the deceased held in the hearts of his employees for the humblest in his employ always found in him a sympathetic and responsive.

As far as can be learned the correct particulars of the sad affair are as follows: Mr. Shives in company with Mr. McLean, the millwright, went on Saturday afternoon up river nearly to the mouth of the Upsalquitch for the purpose of selecting a site for a couple of sheds which he proposed to build as a sort of half way station on the portage to the lumber camps of the company. Mr. Shives carrying a hammer on a small steep hill, and it was in attempting to climb this hill that the shocking accident occurred.

Surprise and Disappointment at Legislation Intended for Interests of the Church.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 2.—Canadians, conservative, independent and liberal, could not see for more effective campaign literature than the following extracts from a letter written over Rev. C. W. Gordon's own signature, in which the writer denounces everything that is Laurier-Scott-Barrett party and is for in the Saskatchewan campaign, as follows:

I am the more surprised at Sir Wilfrid because he has shown himself the champion of provincial rights and because especially he has shown himself superior to the rest of the political party in his own province. No one will doubt for a moment that this legislation is proposed simply because a certain section of our people fear that the interests of their church will be adversely affected by the action of the new provinces. It does seem a strange thing that the territories, which were during all our premier's deal in a manner perfectly satisfactory to the Roman Catholics with the school question, should not be treated to deal with equal fairness with that church in the future, and while none of us would for a moment oppose an intervention with the secular and religious rights of our fellow-citizens, I feel sure that it is in the long run to the detriment of the "Black Hand" and its intensely democratic spirit that the province should be allowed to work out its own destiny, and should have the fullest control of its internal affairs.

DEATH OF WELL-KNOWN PHILANTHROPIST. MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—Charles Alexander, a retired business man, and the best known philanthropist in the city, was accidentally killed last evening.

WHY MR. COHOE IS LEAVING BRUSSELS ST. CHURCH. Courageous and Forceful Sermon Yesterday—A Plea For Broadness—Day of Secular Church is Past.

In Brussels street Baptist church yesterday morning Rev. B. Cohoe talked to the congregation with regard to his recent resignation from the pastorate of that church.

SHOULD REORGANIZE. "The Baptist churches of the south of the city will never do the work they ought to do until by reorganization they are so reorganized that each church which shall then exist will be able to guarantee to themselves and to their pastor that the support of the church is not necessary. I believe that if the problem is approached in the spirit of Jesus and in the interests of the kingdom of God, such a reorganization can be realized."

WHY MR. COHOE IS LEAVING BRUSSELS ST. CHURCH. Courageous and Forceful Sermon Yesterday—A Plea For Broadness—Day of Secular Church is Past.

In Brussels street Baptist church yesterday morning Rev. B. Cohoe talked to the congregation with regard to his recent resignation from the pastorate of that church.

SHOULD REORGANIZE. "The Baptist churches of the south of the city will never do the work they ought to do until by reorganization they are so reorganized that each church which shall then exist will be able to guarantee to themselves and to their pastor that the support of the church is not necessary. I believe that if the problem is approached in the spirit of Jesus and in the interests of the kingdom of God, such a reorganization can be realized."

IT MAKES NIGHT HIDEOUS.

If the dog paiser, who was so dreadfully effective some time ago in his indiscriminate operations, would visit the region of Victoria street, in downtown, and cause the removal of a large dog who makes nights hideous, real. The dog is a large, black, spotted with a generous purse. Last night from 10 o'clock until nearly midnight this canine howled and bayed in a state of restlessness, and adding to the discomfort of a number of invalids. The owner of the brute will be held liable for the cost of the dog's removal, to answer the charge of harboring a nuisance. For several months this dog has been bothering the people.

CALL FOR REV. A. B. COHOE.

Rev. A. B. Cohoe was seen this morning and asked whether he had received a call from any church which he intended to accept. Mr. Cohoe said that he had received a call lately from a church in Ontario, but he had no intention of accepting it and had no church in view at the present time. The reverend gentleman also received calls from two different churches, while on his vacation in the west.

FUNERALS TODAY.

The funeral took place this afternoon of the late Capt. Arthur F. Nobles and was largely attended. The members of Union Lodge of Portland of which the deceased was a member and representatives of other lodges were present. There were no pall bearers. Impressive services were conducted by Rev. R. P. McKim and by Rev. Mr. Hutchinson. Interment was made at Fernhill.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE IN CONVENTION TODAY.

The Epworth League Societies of the Methodist church in St. John district met in session at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. The meeting is being held in the Portland Methodist church with Rev. C. W. Hamilton presiding. The conference is divided into a number of circuits of which St. John is one of the largest and most important but until this year it seemed impossible to hold a district convention. Rev. Mr. Hamilton was this year ably assisted by all the churches interested and the result is most encouraging. Not only the city but Silver Falls and Fairville are represented at today's meeting.

WORK ON NEW WHARF HAS ALREADY BEGUN.

Contract Signed Saturday, But Work Began Week Ago. Contractor D. C. Clarke is Confident of Having the New Berths Completed Within the Time Specified. The contract for the new wharf was signed and delivered on Saturday and the contract to build the wharf for $145,237, has already made a good start. When seen on Saturday afternoon, Mr. Clarke was in a happy mood. He had taken advantage of the fine weather since last Monday when the first piece of timber was laid and had a good week's work in before the contract was signed. He has contracted for about all the lumber he will require and can get plenty of good workmen and as he said to the Star on Saturday, "Give me good weather and the work will get along all right."

J. N. SUTHERLAND PRESENTS CITY WITH PAINTING.

At the regular monthly meeting of the common council this afternoon considerable business in connection with the water works extension to Loch Lomond will be discussed and the meeting taken all in all promises to be a lively one, or at the least a very interesting one. This is the first meeting in years that the evening newspapers have been unable to get in advance to secure copies of the correspondence to be submitted. At a recent meeting of the general committee it was decided that in future communications and reports should not be given to the press in advance, and the brakes were applied today, the mayor and the common clerk positively refusing to make any communications public.

AT THIS AFTERNOON'S MEETING HIS WORSHIP WILL ACCEPT ON BEHALF OF THE CITY A HANDSOME OIL PAINTING FROM THE BRUSH OF J. N. SUTHERLAND.

At this afternoon's meeting his worship will accept on behalf of the city a handsome oil painting from the brush of J. N. Sutherland. The scene is Market Square as it is at present, and in his letter Mr. Sutherland asks that the picture be hung in the mayor's office, so that in years to come there will be an authentic picture of what the square looked like in 1905. Mr. Sutherland has been invited to the Constabulary meeting this afternoon to receive the city's thanks for his generous gift.

MORE N. B. BOYS HOME FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

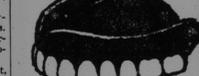

John Ryan, of Quispamsis and V. A. Schofield, of Fairville, members of the South African Constabulary who are home on six months' furlough have been warmly greeted by old friends. Both men seem in the pink of condition and admit that while the work is hard they are well treated and perfectly ready to go back if they are called upon to do so. Both served with the Mounted Rifles and after coming home enlisted with the Constabulary for three years or five if necessary. Their furlough is up so that they hardly expect to go back.

MR. RYAN AND HIS COMPANION SAILED FROM PORT BELLEVILLE DIRECT TO MONTREAL ON THE STEAMER BELLEVILLE OF THE ELDER-DEMPSTER LINE.

Mr. Ryan and his companion sailed from Port Belleville of the Elder-Dempster Line. Trooper Ryan was appointed a shooting smith shortly after his arrival in South Africa while Mr. Schofield has been doing city police duty. The work, the men say, is very similar to that required of the North West Mounted Police.

WITH ADVERTISERS.

TOOTH HINTS!

"When ought we to go to the dentist?" Many think it unnecessary to devote particular attention to the teeth until the appearance of the mouth is affected by damaged, decayed or broken teeth. Others give their teeth no attention till pain compels them. The stupidity and short-sightedness of either policy is evident.

EVERY ONE WHO THINKS A MOMENT ON THE SUBJECT KNOWS THAT WE CANNOT MASTICATE OUR FOOD SATISFACTORILY IF ONE OR MORE OF THE TEETH ARE TENDER, INFLAMED, DECAYED OR OTHERWISE OUT OF WORKING ORDER; AND THAT IF THIS BE THE CASE THE MOUTH REQUIRES IMMEDIATE ATTENTION.

HEADACHES!

No doubt there are other causes for headaches than fatigue of the eye muscles, but when so many cases respond with such quickness to treatment based on this hypothesis it is advisable that all sufferers should try spectacles or eye glasses if defects that are remediable with glasses can be found. Our opticians will tell you if such defects are present.
