THE CELEBRATION OF THE GLORIOUS TWELFTH

Charlotte County Well Represented in the Parade

Stirring Addresses

The Glorious Twelfth was celebrated by the Orange Lodges of Charlotte, and their friends, in a royal manner. Early in the morning the crowds began to gather—before eight o'clock the streets were filled with strangers. They came in teams from neighboring parishes, in gasoline boats from around the shores—a happy throng, filled with enthusiasm and ready for a day of pleasure. It was hot, the weather man was not so gracious and the arrival of the Henry F. Eaton at noon with a half a thousand Orangemen, their friends and the Maple Leaf Band started the celebration with a vim. The Pennfield and Boacoe Lodges met the boat at the wharf, headed by the St. George Band. The visiting lodges marched up Portage street to Court's Hall. Bands were broken and the inner man attended to, dinner being served by the members of the Church of England in Franley's hall and by the Baptist congregation in the basement of the church. The grand parade started at 2.30 and for an hour or more the streets resounded with the lively strains of music. About three hundred men and women were in line—the ladies and some of the older members riding in carriages. The line of march led up Main St., out the St. John road, around the square, down Wetmore's hill, up Carleton street up Portage hill and returned to the point of starting. The St. George and Maple Leaf Bands accompanied the marchers and the following lodges were in line: Boacoe, Pennfield, Rolling Dam, St. Andrews, St. Stephen, Eastport, Lords Cove, Baillie and the Prentice Boys. Surveyor General Grimmer on a white charger, looking every inch the Grand Master led the procession. James Marryat was Grand Marshal and was assisted by an able corps of grand knights as aides. The members of the Ladies Lodge of True Blues from the Islands proved an interesting feature of the parade. The intense heat caused a postponement of the speeches until after supper. During the afternoon a baseball match of more than usual interest was played, in the Drake field, between Letete and Pennfield games. A large crowd witnessed the game which was won by Letete. At six thirty the addresses were delivered from the grand stand in Dr. Taylor's field. Grand Master Grimmer presided. He was happy in his remarks and paid a glowing tribute to the order over which it is his good fortune to preside. Mayor Lawrence in a few well chosen remarks expressed his pleasure over the presence of the visitors in town. He complimented the strangers very fully on their good behavior. Mr. Foster Calder told of the benefits of the order, of their constant watchfulness when the liberty of any sect was threatened and of their efforts to further the brotherhood of man and the welfare of the country. G. W. Ganong, M. P., delivered an address of some length. During the speeches music was furnished by the St. George Band and at the close of the exercises the Maple Leaf Band delighted a large audience with a number of choice selections. A dance in Court's Hall wound up the day's festivities.

Think First

Never suspect a friend of doing you wrong until the proof of it is as plain and clear as the sun at noon on a cloudless day, and then—yes, even then do not accuse or censure until you have heard from his own lips his version of the supposed wrong. If you were ever a friend to him he is certainly entitled to that much forbearance and consideration. If this rule was practiced, many a misunderstanding would be averted, and many a heartache spared.

Messaging the Heart

It was in 1896 that the world was startled by the report of a case of successful stitching of the wound in a man's heart. By 1902 the operation had been frequently attempted, and of the known cases there were nearly forty per cent. of recoveries. The percentage is slightly higher in the latest tabulation. So rooted is our belief that the heart is the most vulnerable organ of the body that we find it hard to believe that it can be operated on successfully. Yet the percentages of recoveries almost equal that of recoveries for bullet wounds in the abdomen. An injury to the most vital organ is, with modern surgery no longer necessarily fatal, says a writer on the "Miracles of Modern Surgery," in the May issue of the New Broadway Magazine.

Perhaps the most marvelous case on record is that of a person brought in with a bullet wound in such a place that the missile must have reached the heart. The man still breathed, but there was scarcely any pulse. He was operated upon at once and as soon as the heart was exposed a jet of blood twenty inches high spouted from the wound. This was immediately stopped, stopping the loss of blood. But where was the bullet? Cautiously the heart was lifted up. There was no sign that the bullet had gone through it. It must have lodged in the heart itself. Ah, the surgeon can feel it plainly in the wall opposite the wound. To leave it there means death. Quickly the heart is traced up half out of the body and with infinite caution an incision is made. But how to get out the bullet? The surgeon dare not use force for fear of pushing the bullet back into the cavity of the heart. Very gently and carefully he pinches the heart between his thumb and forefinger and in a moment the missile drops out. The wound was stitched up and the cavity closed and the patient made a complete recovery.

Handling the beating heart does not seem so wonderful as mending it to beat again after it has actually stopped. This was done in several cases where a wound in the heart was being stitched, and only after prolonged message was the organ induced to beat again. But the modern surgeon has gone even further. In cases where the heart has collapsed from chloroform during an operation to reach the organ by one of three routes and apply direct message to it with his hand.

Piles are easily and quickly checked with Dr. Shoop's Magic Ointment. To prove it I will mail a small trial box as a convincing test. Remember it is made expressly and alone for swollen, painful, bleeding or itching piles, either external or internal. Large Jar 50c. Sold by All Dealers.

The Rise of a Boy

This boy goes to his business, and at his business begins by, simply doing the things he is told to do, and doing them in a common and ordinary way. If he stops here, he remains all his life long a drudge. But if he begins to see that business has a significance, and his life is not merely sweeping the store, not merely writing letters, not merely selling goods; if he begins to see the higher life involved in business; if he begins to see that business is a greater instrument of beneficence, that trade is clothing thousands of men where charity clothes ten, that agricultural and mining industries are feeding thousands of men where charity feeds ten; if he begins to see how the whole history of the world is linked together, and is God's way of building up humanity and serving humanity—as he gets his larger view, and enters into it, life is enriched and becomes itself the minister whereby love is enlarged and conscience is strengthened, the school wherein he is educated out of the lower into the higher.

Peary all Ready for the Conquest of North Pole

New York, July 6.—With the Peary Arctic Club pennant fluttering from her main track and flying the Stars and Stripes at her mizen, the Arctic exploration steamer Roosevelt, left her pier at East 24th street today, carrying Commander Robert E. Peary who is to head another expedition in quest of the North Pole. The Roosevelt will head for Sydney, C. B., where she will stop to take on coal. Before she left, Commander Peary expressed the hope of reaching the Northern goal before his return. "I have done too much work in the Arctic regions," he said, "to believe that I can make the Pole without strenuous work. I am not foolish enough to say that I am going to go or die, but I am certainly going to put into this trip every bit of energy—mental, moral and physical—that I have in order to succeed in my undertaking. "I know my path will be hedged in by many trials and undoubtedly many disappointments, but I feel confident as my ship leaves New York today, that if I do not reach the Pole itself, at least I will carry the American flag further north than it has ever been carried by any previous explorer. Unless unforeseen circumstances intervene, within the next year, I hope to plant the Stars and Stripes at the Pole."

As the Roosevelt swung out into the East River, a few minutes after one o'clock, a crowd on the pier cheered goodly while the whistles of the river crafts joined in the farewell.

On board the Roosevelt, in addition to Commander Peary, Mrs. Peary and their children, Marie and Robert E., Jr., were a number of members of the Peary Arctic Club, including its president, Thomas D. Hubbard; vice-president, Zenas Crane and Herbert J. Bridgeman, secretary, several members of the Explorers Club and personal friends of Commander Peary. Commander and Mrs. Peary will lunch with President and Mrs. Roosevelt tomorrow at Oyster Bay. After the launch, President Roosevelt will go aboard the ship bearing his name to inspect her and to bid her commander and crew God-speed on the journey. Peary will return to New York and will join his ship at Sydney, C. B.

Among those who will go as assistants to Peary, are Donald McMillan, of Maine, a graduate of Bowdoin College; Dr. J. W. Kennell, of New Kensington, Pa., the surgeon of the party, and Professor Ross G. Marvin, a professor at Cornell University. Mr. Marvin was with Peary on his last expedition.

The Daughters of the Revolution presented to Commander Peary a peace flag, with the request that he carry it with him to the Pole, as "a shield and buckler against all disaster."

Captain Bartlett, Peary's sailing master, said that the Roosevelt would be at

MARKED PROGRESS IN BACK BAY

Wonderful Improvement in a Few Years

Eight or nine miles from St. George is the thriving village of Back Bay. In days gone by an old gentleman of this town, always referred to as Back Bay as the "Garden of the Town," and the village well deserves the title. The restless waters of the turbulent Bay of Fundy are soothed ere they enter the haven and lap the shores of the village, whose hills command a splendid view of the ever interesting sea. Protected from the fury of the ocean's storm tossed waves by Islands and far reaching arms of land, whose rocky coast-hills bid them defiance and break their mighty force, Back Bay offers a haven of refuge and where the "boilers of the deep" moor their boats in security and the fishermen rest from their labors in peace. The Harbor at Back Bay has attracted the attention of men who build for the future, and recent large purchases of land, lying on the water front, by parties whose interests are closely connected with one of the great transcontinental transportation companies would indicate a confidence in the future development of Back Bay. The first settlement at Back Bay dates back over one hundred years. Among the very old settlers were John Lasley, Geo. B. French, James Murphy, Samuel Craig, James Kinney, James Oliver, Samuel Hooper and Wm. Baxter. Wm. Hooper is probably the oldest living inhabitant. He was born on March 9, 1820. The first frame house was built by Henry Cook, who came from St. John and was accompanied by his brothers, John and Richard. The roughly constructed hut of the first settler has given way to the well-modelled house of the present—the motor boat has replaced the heavy oared craft of other days, the lonely trail of the fishermen over the hills is now a well-kept road and the fishing station of other days is a village rapidly developing into a town. The Back Bay of today has three hundred and fifty inhabitants, an increase of 150 in a few years, sixteen new houses have been built within a year, fifteen motor boats and scores of fishing vessels are owned by the inhabitants. The Free Christian Church built in 1881 of which the Rev. J. A. Gates was first pastor, was rebuilt, remodelled, and dedicated in December of last year. It is a beautiful church, neat and compact, with a commanding situation. The Rev. George Titus is the present pastor. Court Seaside of the Independent Order of Foresters has a membership of thirty-five, the schools are up-to-date and the inhabitants are progressive, well to do and happy. Wm. Mitchell, L. H. Theriault & Son, B. Dick and Andrew McGee are among the most active of the business men of the village. They all have stores carrying large assortments of goods including the necessities of life. The name of Andrew McGee is well known in the County of Charlotte. He is the son of Captain Joseph McGee, who was born in Back Bay in 1839 and died a few years ago. Andrew has lived all his life at the Bay. He has been very successful in business and has at present one of the best equipped stores in Eastern Charlotte. The public will hear more of him if we may judge by the remarkable showing he made in the Provincial contest of this year. In this campaign, practically unknown to the political element of the county, he was nominated, and despite the brief time at his disposal and the handicap of business interests demanding his attention, he polled a magnificent vote. With few exceptions his neighbors and associates gave him loyal support, a fine tribute to the worth of the man.

The Watcher in the Pew

His neck is fitted on a globe-socket, and turns clear around. He sees everything that goes on. The man who comes in late does not escape him, and it is vain for tenor to think he got that little note to the alto: conveyed between the leaves of a hymn-book unobserved. The watcher saw H. He sees the hole in the quarter that Elder Skipper dropped in the plate. He sees the Deacon Sloboway has but one cuff. If the door swings, he looks around; if the window moves noiselessly, he looks up. He sees the stranger in his neighbors pew, and he sees Brother Badman sitting away back under the gallery, furtively take a chew of the inhibited fine-cut. All things that nobody wants him to see, the watcher sees. He sees so much that he has no time to listen.

Crisis is Reached in Sardine Business

Desperate Efforts Being Made to Disrupt Fishermen's Organization

FAILURE LIKELY

(Special to The Sun.)

St. George, July 9.—That matters have reached a crisis in the sardine canning business this season is quite evident by the attitude of the Weir Owners and Weir Fishermen's Union of Charlotte Co., which met here July 7th. The East Coast Fish Association, which is making the most desperate efforts to disrupt the fishermen's organization, is not meeting with the success hoped for. They are presenting contracts to the fishermen, which find very few signers.

In a classification, carefully made, of the weirs, known as contract weirs, and those under union control, it would appear that the claim of the opponents of the union to having one hundred weirs is not correct.

They have eighteen weirs that can be classed as good, twenty-three unknown, twenty-two no good, sixteen not built, twenty-one fair.

The union claims one hundred and eighty-three weirs and their season is just commencing, and the contract weirs that are considered "good" are now practically of no value, as the bulk will not make any stock for the balance of the season. It will be seen that the packers are absolutely dependent on the union for their supply.

The drift of public opinion is with the fishermen in this contest, as against the grasping attitude of the American packers. If the fisheries of Charlotte are to be developed and made productive it becomes the duty of Canadian fishermen to resist every unjust demand of foreign corporations and to work for the advancement of their own interests and public welfare.

A meeting of the executive of the Charlotte Co. Weir Owners' and Weir Fishermen's Union was held at St. George on Tuesday, at which all the members were present.

George J. Clarke, one of the members for District No 1, tendered his resignation, which was accepted.

The greatest confidence was expressed in the ultimate success of the union, and the comparison was drawn between the claims of the so-called contract weirs, and the weirs controlled by the union, showing that after a year of persistent misrepresentation of the union's position, they emerge stronger than ever and with absolute control of the product.

It was moved and seconded that unless the packers agree to take fish from the union weirs at union prices, on or before the 15th of July, steps would be taken by the union to protect themselves. The members separated for their respective homes in the highest spirits, confident in the justice of their cause and its immediate success.

On Tuesday the boatmen of the Eastport syndicate took fish from several union weirs at Digdegush without the formality of a contract.

Another lot of good Tories get good jobs—this time as deputy fish, game and fire wardens, vice numerous Grits who are being discharged. "Bah for civil service reform."

Undoing of Prof. Bings

Prof. Amos Bings was a little the most versatile scientific man that ever struck this rodeo. He drifted into camp on his uppers and very much down on his luck, as balmy as a Chinook wind and about as refreshing. He was a habit, and we acquired him. For many a week, if you wanted to stand pat with the boys all you had to remark was that the professor says this or the professor does that. Whatever the professor said and did ranked pretty high before he worked that grand hocus pocus in the mill. After that things were different.

He shaped a good deal like the shadow of a skeleton man, bony and loose and a temptation for every four-knot breeze to lift him up and wait him elsewhere. But the cyclone never blew that could do business with Bings. He weighed tons when he wanted to, and his magnificent nerve held him together. Nor was he ever known to dodge a calamity except once, and that was when he faded out of our midst at Tenstrike. When he came to us he was a stranger and we took him in; then he reciprocated.

Two days after reaching camp he introduced the game of monte. Not that the time-honored game needed any introduction to most of us, but he had individualized it until it defied our recognition. When we got together and took stock, after the monte fever had subsided, we discovered that the professor had won all the good clothes in camp, from Eph Perkins' $20 Sonora hat to the boiled shirt of One-Eyed Baxter and the Sunday football of Abe Little, who was doing some courting over Phenix way. But Bings was such a quaint little cuss we none of us had the heart to grumble or to make a too rigid examination of the backs of the monte deck.

As soon as he had made himself respectable, the professor proceeded to shove a new scene into the goeve. Armed with a cold-chisel and a five-pound hammer, he wandered through the hills.

"Just prospecting," he used to explain, as he dragged himself into camp simultaneously with the sounding of the supper gong. "But not for gold," he would add. "The love of gold is the root of all evil, and heaven forbid that I should be the cause of turning any more evil loose in the world than there is already. I'm prospecting for the remains of an elephantus gigantus which, if my search proves successful, I shall forward to the Smithsonian institution at Washington.

Bings didn't find the elephantus, but he dug up the finest specimen of petrified man that the boys ever set eyes on. The relic was put on exhibition in the old bank-house four bits a head for outsiders and two bits for the Tenstrike men.

Prosperity smiled upon Bings. The fame of his petrified man traveled from Casa Grande as far north as Big Bug, and east and west in proportion. Our camp became the Mecca of the morbidly curious, and if One-Eyed Baxter hadn't sneaked up on the professor after exhibition hours and found him quarreling with his petrified man about the returns, I suppose the graft would have continued indefinitely.

Baxter saw enough with his one eye to keep him talking for a week, and he did talk, for brooding over the loss of his linen had made him revengeful. He told how Bings had gone across the desert to Frong Tanks and had hired a greaser at a dollar a day and found to play dead and allow himself to be whitewashed. The expose, while it ruined the professor's business, only heightened his popularity. We began to see that he was cute as well as quaint.

After Baxter had glutted his vengeance, the professor was quiet for a month, spending his money like water among the boys, but not on water by a long chalk. His bright talents would not permit him to remain long inactive and he took to roaming again—this time with a Winchester and a belt full of cartridges.

"Wouldn't it be the best joke you ever heard of?" said Baxter, "if Bings made a mistake and held up to his Montana stage during one of those gunning trips of his?"

That remark came to the professor's ears and it hurt him. He'd play monte, he said, and he'd win if he could; and he wasn't above whitewashing a greaser for the fun and profit to be got out of it; but as for holding up a stage—well, who'd suppose that the loss of a boiled shirt would put such ideas into a man's head?

The professor didn't hold up the stage. On the contrary, he took to bringing in wildcats and coyotes, and Gila monsters, and rattlesnakes, and such vermin; and when he had collected enough for a fair-sized menagerie, he gave his Winchester away and went to stuffing his collection.

"I'm getting them ready for the Smithsonian Institution, he confided to the boys on the night shift in the mill—for he was at the mill every night, examining battery boxes and planning improvements, as he said. And whenever he went to the mill he carried a bottle which he exploited, as he observed, purely for the sake of sociability and the general flow of soul.

Two weeks after the professor began his visits to the mill, some $20,000 worth of amalgam was found to be missing, and the super, upon learning how the professor had been studying the battery boxes, waited upon him and asked him, gently but firmly, if he had seen anything of the missing amalgam.

That was the last straw. The professor was cut to the heart, and vowed that he would leave the Tenstrike, which he had so long honored with his presence, and never more return. Henceforward, he declared, he would pursue his scientific investigations in other camps, and upon other camps, therefore, would descend the lustre of his achievements.

Nothing was found and the super was a very much bewildered man. There is quite a bulk to $20,000 worth of amalgam and a considerable amount of room would be required for its stowage. The professor wasn't carting the stuff away with him that of the super was certain. Several of us were near the bunkhouse, that afternoon, watching Pablo, the freighter, back up his wood-wagon to take on the professor's trunk, grips and animal boxes.

While the loading was going on, a row was started between Reddy Jackson and Pablo's brother, Manuel. There seems to have little cause for the trouble, aside from the known antipathy which Reddy cherished for Mexicans and all things Mexican. Baxter averred that Manuel made a face at Reddy, and in a silent but none the less insolent manner, took occasion to make himself extremely offensive.

Anyhow, Reddy leaped for Manuel grabbed him, and in the struggle that followed both fell on one of the animal boxes, wrecking it completely. When Manuel disentangled himself and jumped up, he had a wildcat by the tail and was whirling the stuffed carcass about his head.

"Gingo chingado," shouted Manuel and launched the wildcat straight at Reddy.

Jackson side-stepped and came back at Manuel with a Gila monster which struck the greaser fairly on the shoulder and sent him staggering. By that time, Pablo had leaped to his brothers assistance, and in a twinkling had picked up a coyote and struck Reddy such a blow from behind that he broke the animal in two. The amount of seaweed and excelsior that filled the air right then would have stuffed a good-sized set of parlor furniture.

"Woop!" cried Reddy, and picked up a ball of something bright and hurled it at Pablo.

Pablo ducked, the ball passed over his head, and the super caught it. "Amalgam!" shouted the super. Stop that row, you fellows! Catch the professor—catch him! He has stuffed those animals with the stolen amalgam! Don't let him get away! Catch him!"—Philadelphia Bulletin

DIRT--DIRT--DIRT!

The prophecy of Hon. H. R. Remerson in accepting the nomination of the Liberal party in Westmorland, has been speedily fulfilled, by the dirt throwing sheet published in Halifax with deep red lines for its heading.

We have never seen more repulsive stuff published in any paper making the slightest claims to decency. But we do not know that the sheet referred to makes any such claims.

Hon. Mr. Remerson can stand any amount of dirt throwing coming from such source. Westmorland will stand by him, and those who know him best will speak when the time comes.

GOOD MEN--BAD CITIZENS

There are such men. Indeed there are many who in times of obvious crisis, will make great sacrifices, but, who in the weak, piping times of peace, are unwilling to give even a little time and effort to the public good. They are even too busy to attend to the business of politics. They sacrifice public good to promote gain--and that is the charge we bring against them, good men--bad citizens.

The men who withdraw from public concerns, are as truly responsible for mischief, as are the men who are in politics for revenue only. The former neglect politics for their private interests; the latter manipulate politics for their own private interests. Whence the difference? It is the selfishness of the former which gives the selfishness of the latter its opportunity.

The "good citizen" becomes the accomplice of the bad. We are then afflicted with the bad citizenship of good men. We expect bad men to be bad citizens, but when good men are bad citizens, public interests go to the bad with a rush. A constituency then where men who deserve good government may be largely in the majority, may be ruled--misruled by a corrupt minority.

Good men must arouse themselves to an appreciation of the demands of good citizenship and when this is done we will have the best.

BY THE WAY

Hot!

Pay up Mr. McKane.

Now will you be good?

Thanks, Senator Gillmor!

The dog tax is next in order.

And the river will be dredged, too.

You will never have a friend if you must have one without a fault.

Not even the farmers prayers avail in bringing along the much needed rain.

During the past week the air has been full of perspiration, profanity and dust.

It will be to the obvious advantage of certain political "leaders" to persevere and digest certain portions of the supplementaries.

According to Prof. Agazzi there are more than 9000 varieties of fish. This is a small number in proportion to the fish stories.

Summer seems to have started in with the idea that her hot work must be done in a few days instead of dribbling over three months.

Granite cutters, fishermen, manufacturers and sardine packers, get in a more peaceful and conciliatory mood, and do your duty to yourselves, your neighbors, the town and the county at large.

It will be seen that Charlotte County alone figures for $56,000, a fact which would indicate admirable activity on the part of the popular member for that county, G. W. Ganong.--Telegraph. Rot!

With a majority of 62, the largest vote of the session, the Commons on Thursday night endorsed the proposal of Sir Wilfrid Laurier for an All-Red-route. The Conservative party are on record against it.

Lake Utopia is becoming a desirably popular summer resort. Nature has generously endowed it. There is not in the whole country finer sandy beaches, and visitors are always ready to pay for reasonable accommodations and privileges.

The prodigal son wrote the man as follows: "I got religion at camp-meeting the other day. Send me ten dollars."

But the old man replied: "Religion is free. You got the wrong kind."--Atlanta Constitution.

Gossip and comment are always on top. It is surprising that so much can be said on laying, murdering, marrying and labor troubles. Some of our garrulous citizens should be located amid larger populations, where there is no chance of conversational powers running dry.

It is rumored among the ladies that the condition of the streets about town is due, not altogether, to stupidity, but that a shoe manufacturing concern has a hand in it. It is astonishing how ones shoes will wear out travelling the rough ways.

Canada is larger than the United States by 250,000 square miles.

Canada contains one third of the area of the British Empire.

Canada is as large as thirty United Kingdoms, eighteen Germanys, thirty-three Italys.

Canada has a boundary line of 3000 miles between it and the United States.

The following figures speak so loud that they may be heard. It would appear that the town has very little to show for the great increase in taxes, and present conditions call for reform rather than any new program for extra expense:

In 1880 poll tax, 70c. rate, 40 cts.

In 1882 poll tax, 85c. rate, 50c.

In 1884 poll tax, 85c. rate 54c.

In 1885 poll tax, 70c. rate 53c.

In 1908 poll tax, $3.95, rate $1.58

There is a very little trouble

That happens as today:

It's the sorrows of tomorrow

That drive our joys away.

We sometimes sit and wonder

And stew and fume and fret

For fear something may happen,

But it hasn't happened yet.

There was once a lonely woman

Who cried by the sea,

"What if my pretty children

All should perish be?"

Now this particular woman,

Who thus did cry and fret,

Is still a maiden lady,

So it hasn't happened yet.

Work has commenced on the school house annex. It is expected that the building will be completed before school opens.

The old wooden abutments at the lower bridge should be removed, they detract from the appearance of this fine structure.

The regular train on the N. B. Southern has been late several times during the week, owing to the ballast train running off and blocking the track.

A rat has been playing havoc with Mr. Philo Hanson's chickens. A trap has been set and something will drop some night, if tempting bait has any attraction.

Dr. Alexander has put plate glass windows in his office and made other improvements to the interior that will add to the appearance and comfort of the place.

Rev. Geo. Titus preached to a large congregation in the Baptist church last Sunday.

A bunch of white clover placed in water will wait a delightful perfume over a room and prove an excellent remedy for the fly pest. The clover has a far nicer appearance than the disgusting fly pads and drives the flies out altogether.

It is said that the dredge at St. Andrews will be brought here at an early date to commence operation in the river. This dredge will be for mud only, another will be used on the wood, and sunken logs in the basin.

An interesting game of base-ball was played at Pennfield Wednesday, between St. George and Pennfield, in which St. George were the victors. A large crowd witnessed the game. A return game will be played at an early date.

Much anxiety is being caused by the forest fire near L'Etang. Men are watching the progress of the fire, but can do little to check it. If this calm air continues there will be no immediate danger, but if the wind comes up much valuable property will be destroyed. It was the opinion of the people that the fire was deliberately set.

Every day investigation into the affairs of the Bank of St. Johns exposes some new rotteness. It is very doubtful if it ever had any capital to handle. Hon. Mr. Roy the president of the bank is in jail, and his two cashiers. This gentleman is the late speaker of the Quebec Assembly and a few weeks ago ran for Mayor of Montreal. It is the very worst Bank failure in Canada for twenty years.

On June 16, one hundred thousand Salmon Fry were deposited in the Magaguadavic River. On June 18 one hundred thousand more fry were deposited by officials connected with the Marine and Fisheries Department. These deposits of fry were obtained by Senator Gillmer and the act is only another proof of his ability to do things for the good of the country without the accompanying blare of the political horn so loudly blown by the dear, dear friends of the people about election time.

It is expected that work in the Fishways at St. George and the Second Falls will be started at once.

There is a meeting at Eastport today of the British and American commissioners appointed to thoroughly investigate conditions and report on a uniform code of statutes governing the inland food fisheries between Canada and the U. Sardine quotations remain unchanged and very firm. On the Maine coast the run of fish continues light, and many of the factories are practically idle. It is needless to say that there are no accumulated stocks. The catch to date is estimated to be about 175,000 cases behind that of last season.

Jed Frye & Co. says: "Buyers who have contracts booked for future delivery on the present basis, which provides for billing goods at the ruling price on date of shipment, guaranteed to be as low as our competitors, have the preference in the event of any shortage over buyers placing orders for prompt shipment."

WOULD-YOU-LIKE-TO-READ-THE-STORY OF - THE FURNACE?

Just how correct principles say it should be constructed?

Just why no other plan of construction will do?

Just wherein lies its ability to be easy on fuel, quick in action, simple in operation?

The story is briefly told in a little booklet called "Furnace Facts." It's not an advertisement. No furnace name is mentioned, and you can read the whole story in 5 minutes.

To the party contemplating purchasing a furnace it points out the snags and pitfalls, and shows exactly what to demand of an architect, contractor or dealer, in furnace construction and installation.

The Wandering Stonecutter

It was back in the days of Bible story In the bygone times of Solomon's glory That mighty man with wisdom stored, Determined to build a house of the Lord.

And he sent to Tyre, that wonderful town That mighty city of great renown, To find an architect, trained and skilled, To design the house that he wished to build.

And Hiram came from his native land, And with him came workmen—a mighty band From Tyre and Sidon cities of yore, And stonecutters among them—four thousand score.

The stone was banked on Moriah's hill; They worked with patience and skill, And the building arose with its walk sublime, To be the marvel of after time.

The wonderful work came on apace, And the heart of Israel's hasty race Swelled high at their monarch's invitation To come and aid at their dedication. But the stonecutters thought themselves treated wrong; United and skilled were they, and strong; So they counseled together and thought it best To ask that the wrong should be redressed.

A committee was sent from them to bring The matter in hand before the king; And the mighty monarch was wise to see Ehey turn their backs on the sacred sod, And they leave the temple crowned Mount of God.

For, unless he did, they would quit his land And the wonderful temple he left to stand An unsightly ruin on Zion's hill, And the stonecutters thus defeat his will.

"Come listen, ye workmen! and hear the decision; Hark to the sentence the Wise Man shall give; Ye striking stonecutters who work with precision Your king, and your master decrees you shall live.

"Without you I cannot erect this great temple, This wonderful building, so nearly complete; I could not replace you; and, as I am yielding, With all the strikers I, am going to treat.

"I have heard your request, and I grant your petition; Return to your banker and work with a will; Toil on till each pillar and porch, and addition, Now moulded in beauty, is finished with skill.

"But think not a moment that ye are victorious,

For transient and fleeting your triumph shall be Over colonnade, the Wise Man, and monarch most glorious, For wisdom, and judgement and power hath he.

A grievous curse unto you shall be meted: Cursed be the stonecutter now, and for aye! When this wonderful building is done and completed, The striking stonecutter shall wander away.

"Ye ever shall wander from nation to nation Houseless and homeless; a vagabond race: Ye shall come, at the call, and the kind invitation, And go, when you're ordered to some other place.

Both you and your children forever and ever, Shall wander o'er this world from mountain to main; Both working and tramping, but never, no never Have fired habitation, in health or in pain.

"This is the sentence the Wise Man hath spoken; This is the curse that on he shall place; This is the promise that ne'er shall be broken, You shall always be homeless upon the earth's face.

Now back to work the strikers hie, With skill the point, and hammers ply; They work away and never shirk Till they have finished the mighty work.

Then true to the curse that on them lay, They pack their tools, and tramp away; Ehey turn their backs on the sacred sod, And they leave the temple crowned Mount of God.

They wander down to the sounding surge; They seek, and at length they find a barge; They sail across to the Grecian shore, And their tools resound on the stones once more.

At Corinth old, and Athens great, Raise pagan temple, and half of state; Until the land of old Greek story Was seen to blaze with sculptured glory.

And when this wonderful work was done, The stonecutters turned to the setting sun; For not by sculptured wall nor dome, Did the "vagabond" stonecutter find a home.

And crossing o'er the waters wide, He encamped by Tiber's yellow tide, Raised mighty wall, and carved lofty dome In the wonderful city of ancient Rome.

And as time went by in his endless march, Cut Circus wall, and triumphal Arch; And when the Roman sun went down He tramped, away to some other town.

And crossing over the mountain wall,

He entered the shades of the forest tall; He tramped through Germany, Gaul and Spain, Through snows of winter, and summer's rain.

He crossed the channel to Britain fair, And you hear the stonecutters hammer there, Till the mighty London spread far and wide.

And very soon on every side By rushing river and ocean tide, Great cities arise in every land, The work of the stonecutters cunning hand.

For feudal lord he built the wall Of dungeon, deep, and turret tall; And for bishop good, in the church's march, Carved buttress-cap, and Gothic arch.

Built royal palace for king of power, With banquet hall and lofty tower; And everywhere his skillful hand Did much to beautify the land.

While others found peace, and rest and home, The stonecutter still was forced to roam From country to country o'er dale and hill; For the curse of the Wise Man followed him still.

So when men looked out on the stormy seas And, the great world seeking Genoese, Had led the way to the Western world.

The stonecutters banner was soon unfurled, On the western shores of Atlantic wide, The "vagabond" stood by the ocean side; And so it was here, as in days gone by,

With skill, the point and hammer ply, And cities arose, on every side, From Atlantic old to Pacific wide; From the Southern Gulf with its skies serene, To the Northern Lakes with their waters green.

The skillful stonecutter did his best To build a home in this glorious west; But he finds no permanent board or bed, For the ancient curse is still on his head.

It is even so now, as in bygone day, When the job is done he must tramp away; From city to city, by fortune led, To work again for his daily bread.

When this job is finished, his tools he'll pack And tramp away, down the railroad track, And watch his chances near and far; To steal a ride in a cattle car.

Or, if fortune smiles with face more fair, He may find a seat in a reclining chair; But whether the "vagabond" walk or ride, From the ancient curse he cannot hide.

It follows, where'er their race they run, In storm of winter or summer sun; It follows where'er they take their flight; From frozen Pole to Equator bright.

No rest to them on earth is given, May their souls find rest, and a home in heaven; Such is the legend learned in youth; But I do not vouch for its literal truth By a UNION GRANITE CUTTER.

Very Much Out

An acquaintance called on some ladies in an Alabama town who had at the time been much wearied by an apparently endless succession of callers. The door was opened by Augustus Batts, the faithful old butler. "Are the ladies in?" asked the caller. "No, ma'am, they're all out." "I am so sorry that I missed them," continued the visitor, handing him her cards. "I particularly wished to see Mrs. Jones." "Yes ma'am, thank'yo, ma'am," responded Augustus. "They're all out, ma'am and Mrs. Jones, is particularly out, ma'am."—Argonaut.

The Citizen's Duty

Every citizen is bound by the very fact of his citizenship to take an active and intelligent part in the politics of this country. Politics is the science of the art of government. In Canada government is founded upon the opinions and convictions and ideals of the people—"bread-based upon the people's will."

The opinions of the people in a democratic country find representation and expression in public men and public instructions. If the Parliament of Canada or the Legislative of any of the Provinces does not reflect public opinion on any great issue in public life it is because the people, and especially the informed and representative people, have not done their duty as citizens in relation to the controversies and conflicts of the political campaign.

There are few things more discouraging or more threatening to the public good than the disregard of her political duties on the part of a very large number of intelligent and influential citizens. College-bred men of power and effectiveness in business or the professions, and many other men who by force have made their merits known in other walks of life, not only repudiate their own political obligations as citizens, but scoff at those of their fellows who sacrifice time and comfort and personal interest in the seemingly vain endeavor of redeeming politics from the curse of corruption and graft. The day is coming when men of that ilk will be known for the snobs they are, and when in the just estimates of public opinion their affectation of superiority will be held as ignominious selfishness and as treason to the State.—Toronto Globe.

The Crops and Business

Toronto Star. Fortunately the crop outlook, so far as this Province is concerned, could not well be brighter. A heavy yield of hay is already assured, as if conditions at harvest which will begin in two weeks, prove favorable, there will be more coarse fodder in the barns of Ontario at the end of July than in any previous July in years. In grain the growth, despite the late seeding season, has been simply marvelous, and if the weather is as favorable for maturing and harvesting the crops as it has been during the preliminary growth, this will be a record year in the production of cereals. In dairying, although the number of cows has been reduced, the yield per cow has been, owing to the abundance of pastures, much larger than in 1907. Again, while cheese is a shade lower in price than last year, butter is higher, so that on the whole the returns from the dairy industry will exceed those of the previous season. In fruit and vegetables the prospects could not well be brighter than they are. In the West conditions are quite as promising as here. The area in wheat is vastly in excess of any previous season, and, if nothing unforeseen occurs, the Canadian prairies will this season produce a crop that will cause the attention of the whole world to be centred to Canada. In considering the general situation the fact must not be overlooked that last year was the first really bad season experienced by Canadian agriculture in ten years, and that the proceeds of the good years were not squandered by farmers as these came in. The general situation is thus a healthy one; the country has suffered no more than a temporary check, and, with good crops this summer, the effects of this check will speedily disappear.

Heat prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to off-set the customary hot weather. Nerve and strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weakened nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually see the improvement. That tired, lifeless, spiritless, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a falling appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by All Dealers.

Be Always Neat

A girl that is not neatly dressed is called a sloven, and no one likes to look at her. Her face may be pretty, and her eyes bright, but if there is a spot of dirt on her cheek, and her finger ends are black with ink, and her shoes are not laced or buttoned up, and her apron is dirty, and her collar not buttoned, and her skirt is torn, she cannot be liked. Learn to be neat and when you have learned it, it will almost take care of itself.

A Good Measure

The new Civil Service Bill is very far reaching in its provisions. It will tend to correct many evils which have existed in the Canadian system, and to free the service from party politics, while relieving the Government of the day from a pressure which too often has other results than the obtaining of the best for the country.—London Advertiser.

His Honor
 The calling of Sir Charles Macpherson to the Supreme Court is a high honor well deserved. It comes on top of his appointment to the Hague Tribunal, and will be welcomed in Canada as a recognition of one of our foremost public men. Sir Charles has been singularly successful in winning the confidence of his colleagues, and he is ever a representative man of whom the Dominion will be proud. The two other judicial elevations are equally well chosen. Sir Henri Taschereau has long commanded a high position in the esteem of Quebec, and his fellow citizens will rejoice to see him so signalled out for honor. He holds a responsible position as Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench, and a secure place in the hearts of his friends. Sir William Falcombridge has won his way to the highest respect of the people of Ontario, and his selection for knighthood will be received there with general approval.—Moscow Herald.

A Wonderful Cold Cure
 Just think of it, a cold cured in ten minutes—that's what happens when you use "Catarrhose." You inhale its soothing balsams and out goes the cold—sinuses are cured—headache is cured—symptoms of catarrh and grippe disappear at once. It's the healing pine essences and powerful antiseptics in Catarrhose that enable it to act so quickly. In disease of the nose, for irritable throat, bronchitis, coughs and catarrh it's a marvel. Safe even for children. 25c. and $1.00 sizes at all dealers.

Integrity of Women
 Of all the evils prevailing among young men we know of none more blighting in its moral effects than the tendency to speak slightly of the virtue of women. Nor is there anything in which young men are so thoroughly mistaken as the low estimate they form of the integrity of women—not of their own mothers and sisters, thank God, but of others, who they forget, are somebody else's mothers and sisters. As a rule, no person who surrenders to this debasing habit is safe to be trusted with any enterprise requiring integrity of character. Plain words should be spoken on this point, for the evil is a general one and deep rooted. If young men are sometimes thrown into the society of the thoughtless, they have no more right to measure other women by what they see of these than they would have to estimate the character of honest and respectable citizens by the developments of crime in our public courts. Let young men remember that their chief happiness in life depends upon their utter faith in women. No worldly wisdom, no misanthropic philosophy, no generalization, can cover or weaken this fundamental truth. It stands like the record of God himself—for it is nothing less than this—and should put a seal upon lips that are wont to speak slightly of women.

The Girl That is Pale
 She is in danger, her system is run down, we—she needs nourishment, needs richer blood. More than all else she needs Ferrozone, needs it because it brings back the nerve energy which rapid growth and study have exhausted. The old-time vigor, happy spirits and new strength return with Ferrozone. The delicate maid is energized, strengthened and rebuilt. Isn't it worth while using Ferrozone when it surely does so much. At all dealers in 50c. boxes.

Look After Your Boys
 Where is my boy tonight? You are his father or mother, and if you desire to lay your hands on your boy within five minutes any night, you wouldn't know where to find him. He is on the street somewhere, or at the railroad depot jumping on freight trains, but just where, with whom, in what engaged, what plotting or executing for the shrewder ones who plot for him, you could not tell for the life of you. He has a good home and he ought to be here at night. He desires to be some where else with the boys, and you lack the moral courage to insist that he shall be where he should be. You hope that he will escape the pitfall, but you know the chances are against him. Why don't you do the boy the kindness to keep him home nights? The time will come when he will thank you for it or reproach you for not doing it.

A Declining Industry
 A Statement brought down by the Government on the 11th, shows that the Woolen industry of Canada is making progress backward. There was an industrial census in 1905, which showed the employment of 4,387 hands in that year, while in 1901 the number was 6,750. The value of products fell from $7,359,000 to $5,717,000. This trade returns show that the quantity of wool imported for manufacture in 1908 was 6,129, 216 pounds, while in 1898 it was 11,785,899. The value of woolen manufactured goods imported increased from $8,115,909 in 1898 to $21,213,234 in 1908.

Where Britain Scores
 The most significant incident of the last twenty years has been Great Britain's masterful re-entry into continental politics and diplomacy under the lead of King Edward. The close relations between Great Britain and the four Latin Powers—especially close with the greatest of these—and the British rapprochement with Russia, makes a striking contrast to the days when Great Britain was in "splendid isolation." France also was isolated, and Germany was allied secretly with Russia and openly with Italy and Austria-Hungary, and enjoyed an unchallenged supremacy in continental councils.—New York Tribune.

Heaven help the man who imagines he can dodge enemies by trying to please everybody! If such an individual succeeds pass him over this way that we may have a look at his mortal remains ere he vanishes away, for surely this earth cannot be his abiding place. Now we do not infer that one should be going through this world trying to find beams to knock and thump their heads against, disputing every man's opinion, fighting and elbowing and crowding all who differ from him. That, again, is another extreme. Other people have their opinions, so have you. Don't fall into the error of supposing they will respect you more for turning your coat every day to match the color of theirs. Wear your own clothes in spite of wind and weather, storms and sunshine. It costs the irrefutable ten times the trouble to wind and shuffle and twist than it does honest, manly independence to stand—Exchange.

Girl Mesmerized By Unknown Man

Peterboro, Ont., July 6.—Mesmerized while bathing near Jackson Park, Dominion Day, fourteen-year-old Rita Kennedy was thrown into a trance from which she went into convulsions so serious that it was necessary to carry her to Nicholls Hospital.

She is still under the strange influence of an unknown man who suddenly appeared from behind some bushes where the girl was bathing with companions.

"We were all having a jolly time," said one of the girls. "It was about 2 o'clock and besides Rita Kennedy, the Creswell girls and the White girls were there. All of a sudden the awful man looked out from behind the bushes. I can see him yet in my sleep."

"Did you see him make any motion with his hands?"

"Yes he seemed to move his hands in front of his eyes and Rita just stared him straight in the face. We called on her to come, because we were afraid but she paid no heed to us."

Answering the man's steady gaze the girl went slowly out of the water though it seemed as though she struggled against the influence. The man tried to get rid of the other children but they refused to go.

Mrs. Dawson, who came along, found the child lying on the bank. She spoke to her, telling her to come to her place. She would not move, but stared with widely open eyes into her face.

After some difficulty Mrs. Dawson got her to her feet, coaxing her to come along. The man persisted in following them despite the fact that Mrs. Dawson told him several times to go. He walked beside the child staring her in the face, and the girl in return vacantly gazed at him.

By this time the alarm had spread and several citizens in the vicinity had come out. She was taken to Mrs. Dawson's house in a hammock and medical aid was summoned. She cried in a pitiful manner but was partially unconscious. The only words she would utter were, "I want to go home, and these she wailed incessantly. Dr. Scott soon arrived and she was taken to the Creswell home in North end.

While in the hammock, Rita lay with the same vacant stare in her eyes, her fists clenched, held out as though fighting off some one. Her teeth were closed tightly. She was ghastly white. No man could go near her. If one went in her sight she would scream violently. At the hospital she became so hysterical that she had to be strapped to the bed. She was in the same condition today.

A Loss Due to Intemperance

The Dominion Coal Co. lose considerable money every year, says the Sydney Post, through the fact that a large number of men are absent the Monday after pay day. From figures obtained by the Post we are able to give the number of men off work at the different collieries on June 15th, which was the first Monday after pay. Although there were eight hundred and ten men off work. This occurred at a time when there are no picnics going on, neither are there any outside games or amusements that would likely keep the men away.

From January 1st to the last day of April, the company claims to have lost 45,000 tons of an output through the men absenting themselves. This would be at the rate of 150,000 tons a year. The loss in wages to the men is estimated at $130,000 for the year. The government loss is royalty $16,250. Through increased cost in production the company lose $13,400, besides the profit on the 130,000 tons of coal.

It is estimated that in twelve months $250,000 is spent in liquor around the mines. Although the loss to the men and government and the company would no close to the half million dollar mark. We are indebted to the above facts and figures to Mr. Stuart McCawley. They present a pretty strong argument in favor of curtailing liquors in the colliery towns, looking at the matter solely from a material point of view. The loss from a moral standpoint cannot be estimated.

Sensible Advice
You would laugh at the child who should try to pick up a heavy sledge hammer to kill a mosquito. But many grownup children quite as foolishly use their strength. They sweat, they fret, they worry, what about, get into a passion, have not time to eat or sleep properly—indeed, often set up so late and get so tired that they can't sleep. These persons, whether old or young, need to learn the following simple rules: 1. Never fret yourself nor anybody else. 2. Never indulge in fits of passion, nor the blues. 3. Never do things in a confused hurry. 4. Eat regularly, cheerfully, moderately, but don't eat what is indigestible. 5. Don't cut short your sleep. Get eight hours of it in clean, well-ventilated rooms. 6. Give your stomach and brain as well as your hand, all the rest they need. 7. Be self-controlled, calm, hopeful. Keep a good conscience and cheerfully trust God.

Laurier's Strength
The Dominion elections will no doubt, be held within a year, and in view of Mr. Whitney's success, people are discussing Sir Wilfrid Laurier's chances in Ontario. At present this Province sends to Ottawa a Conservative majority of ten, while in the Local House Mr. Whitney has now a Conservative majority of sixty-eight. But the sweep made in the Provincial contest has little significance in Federal politics. The forces line up in quite a different way for Dominion elections. Probably the Conservatives will show considerably better than ten of a majority from Ontario in the next Parliament, although not enough to imperil the safety of the Liberal Government. From various causes Sir Wilfrid has lost ground in this Province, which, perhaps, would not have been the case had he visited Ontario more frequently. No public man has been able to arouse more popular enthusiasm than he, and a few visits up this way would have worked wonders.—Toronto Saturday Night.

Sensible Advice
You would laugh at the child who should try to pick up a heavy sledge hammer to kill a mosquito. But many grownup children quite as foolishly use their strength. They sweat, they fret, they worry, what about, get into a passion, have not time to eat or sleep properly—indeed, often set up so late and get so tired that they can't sleep. These persons, whether old or young, need to learn the following simple rules: 1. Never fret yourself nor anybody else. 2. Never indulge in fits of passion, nor the blues. 3. Never do things in a confused hurry. 4. Eat regularly, cheerfully, moderately, but don't eat what is indigestible. 5. Don't cut short your sleep. Get eight hours of it in clean, well-ventilated rooms. 6. Give your stomach and brain as well as your hand, all the rest they need. 7. Be self-controlled, calm, hopeful. Keep a good conscience and cheerfully trust God.
