Repeated Earthquakes at Peggio and Messina-Pitiable Plight of the People.

Loss of an Italian Cruiser.

ROME, Nov. 26. -It is reported that the torpedo cruiser Monzambano foundered off Istria today. The crew is said to have been saved. Monzambano was a steel vessel of 730 tons displacement, carried six six-pounders and two magazine guns and had a speed of twenty knots.

Italy Still Shaking.

ROME, Nov. 26 .- Repeated earthquakes shook Reggio and Messina today. The terror of the inhabitants increases. It is wet and cold throughout the districts round both cities, yet hundreds are living in the fields. Many families are destitute their backs. Relief committees are organizing, and a special relief bill is in preparation for Parliament.

Murder in Old London.

LONDON, Nov. 26 .- The dead body of a woman was found in a street in Kensington at midnight last night. The woman, who was one of the lower grade of abandoned females, had been stabbed in the neck and had bled to death. Her murderer left a walking stick lying by her side. There is no indication of "Ripperism" in connection with the murder, which was evidently the result of a street brawl, and no one has any notion that Jack the Ripper has resumed his bloody ing one. The Awful Massacre of Armenians. A private letter received from Constantinople says the destruction of life in Sassoun, south of Moosh, was even greater than was supposed. The brief note which has reached us from Bitlis says that 27 villages were annihilated in Sassoun and 6,000 men, women and children were massacred by troops and Kurds. This awful story is only just beginning to be known, though the massacre took place early in September. The Turks have used infinite pains to prevent the news leaking

The massacre was ordered from Bitlis in the sense that some Kurds, having robbed Armenian villages of flocks, the Armenians pursued and tried to recover their property, and a fight ensued in which some Kurds were killed. The slain men were semiofficial robbers-that is, enrolled as troops and armed as such, but under control. The authorities telegraphed that the Armenians had killed some of the Sultan's troops. The Sultan at once ordered infantry and cavalry to put down the Armenian rebellion, and they did it, only, not finding rebellion, they cleared the country so that none should occur in the future.

After the Wedding.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 26 .- The Czar's bride after the ceremony was over looked pale and tired, but beautiful. Her ornaments were conspicuously splendid. The crown of diamonds which she wore was surmounted by a diamond studded cross. The Czar wore the red uniform of a general of Hussars.

At the close of the ceremony the newlywedded couple kissed the picture of the Virgin, which is supposed to have been painted by St. Luke. The relic is now covered with jewels, so that only the face is visible. Upon the neck is a necklace sf diamonds and emeralds, and the head is surmounted by a diamond crown.

The pair proceeded to Nicholas Hall, and at the foot of the grand staircase entered a golden and white coach drawn by four white horses and were driven to the Kaizan Cathedral, accompanied by a small escort. During the drive of half a mile they were cheered by the enormous crowds which lined the roadway, guns booming and bells ringing meanwhile.

sion in the streets. The crowds were orderly and the troops assigned to keep order were without arms. Services were held in all the churches during the marriage ceremony and the church bells were rung throughout the day.

Canada and Copyright. LONDON, Nov. 26 .- Lord Ripon, Colonial Secretary, received today a deputation from the Chamber of Commerce and the allied section known as the Society of Authors, the Copyright Association and the Print Sellers' Association. Mr. Underdown, Q.C., described Sir John Thompson's demand in the matter of copyright as solely an effort to advance the trade in reprints. Walter Besant said the question briefly is this: Ought a country with 5,000,000 inhabitants to be allowed to wreak mischief on the English-speaking world of 120,000,000 merely that a few of its publishers may enrich themselves by underselling the Americans? Lord Ripon said he intended to discuss the matter fully with Sir John Thompson, the Canadian Premier, at his first opportunity, but he was anxious to learn first the opinion of such bodies as he had the honor to be receiving. The Japs' Latest Success.

All indications now point to a speedy termination of the war. It is believed that speedy negotiations for peace will be pushed rapidly forward. China, it is thought, will have no difficulty in securing the funds with which to pay the war in-

A dispatch form Rome to the London Daily Graphic says the latest news from Tokio is that as soon as China shall make proposals for peace Japan will accept the good offices of the United States in the negotiations.

The Times' correspondent in Yokohama gays that Japan has consented to receive of shelter and have only the clothes on China's proposals of peace through the American Ministers in Tokio and Pekin.

A LONG SIEGE.

How a Sufferer for Iwenty Years Regained Health and Strength. Mr. John A. Stewart, of Napinka, Man., a former well-known resident of Stratford, Ont., writes:

"It gives me pleasure to give you a plain statement of what your Pink Pills have done for me. I have been troubled with a lame back for the past twenty years, caused by a strain while cradling wheat, and once or twice a year for four or five weeks at a time I would be completely laid up with it. I tried plasters and medicine, with such little benefit that at last I gave up all hope of ever getting better. In May, 1891, I first heard of Pink Pills. At that time I was laid up with a particularly severe attack, which left me perfectly useless, as I could neither stand nor walk. All I could do was to lie on my back, and it was advised to try Pink Pills, by a man working for me. He had about half a box, and at his urgent solicitation I began their use. Having began them I decided to give them a fair trial, and procured more from Dr. Snider and kept on taking them all summer. My recovery was slow, but after the first few weeks I could feel that I was getting better every week. By the fall I was perfectly well, and yet I feared that the cure might not be permanent, as the trouble was of such long standing, but I am pleased to be able to say that after the lapse of so much time I have not had the slightest recurrence of the trouble, and am feeling in perfect health. I still use Pink Pills in the fall and spring as a tonic medicine, and find much benefit from them. I may say that there are a number of others here who have "You are at full liberty to use this letter

RAISING CHURCH MONEYS.

London Presbyterian Council Discuss the Interesting Question.

A Pertinent Paper by Mr. G. A. Somerville-Some Admirable Ideas-A List of Questionable Schemes-A Large Meeting.

A largely attended meeting of the London Presbyterian Council was held last night in the Bible class room of St. Andrew's Church. The president, Rev. W. J. Clark, occupied the chair. The meeting was more than usually interesting owing to the fact that the managers connected with the various Presbyterian churches were present on invitation of the Council, which has hitherto been composed of the ministers and elders. A motion, of which notice has been given, will no doubt be carried unanimously at the next meeting, conferring full membership on managers. It was also dejoint Christmas service of the various Presbyterian congregations from 11 a.m. to noon on Christmas day in the First Presby. terian Church, Park avenue. Some steps with regard to the meeting of the General Assembly in this city next year were also

The time of the meeting was principally engaged in listening to and discussing an interesting paper on the subject, "How to Raise Money for Church Purposes," by Mr. G. A. Somerville. After alluding to the necessity of raising money for church work, he said among other things: "The two most prominent general plans are pew renting and voluntary contributions. In congregations comprising a large number of well-to-do persons the former is an easy way of financing. It corresponds with selling seats for operas, lectures, etc., and the grading of passengers as first, second, and third-class in railway trains, where the primary object is to make money. But it does not attract visitors nor strangers. As likely as not the visitor is first shown into the pew of an influential late-comer on whose appearance the usher thinks it judicious to politely pilot the visitor to another seat where, instead of listening to the sermon, he sits fancying that numerous frigid glances are being cast at him as an intruder, that perhaps the usher may not leave him alone for the rest of the service, or possibly wondering whether, if he should ever get there, he will find rented pews beyond the pearly gates. It accentuates the difference between the rich and the poor, as the former naturally rent the best pews and are seated together in the most comfortable portion of the church, while less favored brethren, in a worldly sense, are compelled to content themselves in back pews, the gallery, or perhaps a small mission church where they can feel more at home. As the value of a sermon can hardly be supposed to depend upon the position of the seat the equitable course would appear to be that hearers should pay according to their ability and sense of obligation rather than according to the position of the wooden seat they occupy. Although pew renting is often a success financially it does not tend to insupplies up to noon on Monday, Dec. 3, 1894, for the supply of Butchers' Meat, Hutter, Flour, Oatmeal, Potatoes, Cordwood, etc., for mately, is less satisfactory than the plan of accepting voluntary contributions. And the main object of the church being to worship and convert sinners, voluntary contributions appear to harmonize with the doctrine of human brotherhood and the general plan and scope of the Gospel.

"Where the church members are all pretty nearly equal financially it is sometimes found expedient to charge a small rental for the pews, sufficient to pay current expenses only, and ask weekly contributions for payment of interest and principal of the church debt." "Where voluntary contributions are depended upon, seats are usually free and allocated in the order of application, placing all members upon an equal footing. Strangers and casual church-goers, whether rich or poor, find that their circumstances are recognized, their feelings considered, and that they may feel quite at home where pews are free. They are thus induced to attend more frequently and bring others with them, so that free seats tend to increase the membership and contributions. · Qualification for church membership being not worldly prosperity, but faith and piety, and capacity to appreciate the truths expounded, it is reasonable that all members should contribute as they are able, and not on the basis of a fixed rental. The free pew and voluntary contribution and experience has shown that it produces most satisfactory results." Mr. Somerville then laid down plans for carrying the voluntary system into effect. He supposed a board of twelve managers with "finance" and "pew and music" committees, etc. The finance committee should estimate the total sum required for all annual expenses and obtain pledges sufficient to meet them by means of the weekly envelope allowing a margin of 20 per cent between promise and fulfillment. The offering should be weekly rather than quarterly or yearly. It was easier to pay 25 cents a week than $13 a year. "The pew committee require to exercise special care in the allotment of sittings. Unless dealt with on the principle of 'first come first served' people are very apt to take offense. Care should be taken system is, therefore, fair and reasonable.

at the outset to explain that pew-holders have no such rights or ownership as under the pew-renting system, and to remind them frequently that while as a rule they and their families may sit together in one particular pew, still the ushers are quite at liberty at any service, before the pew-holder has actually taken possession, to show anyone else into that pew and find him a seat elsewhere. Indeed, I should favor the experiment of placing no names whatever upon the pews, allocating no special sittings to anyone, but simply placing a Bible and Hymnal in each pew

The Weekly circulates largely throughout Ontario, and has the largest circulation of any weekly and allowing members on entering to take or be shown to any vacant seat. In this way the same pews would accommodate a much larger congregation than if the pews are allocated to members. The pew committee should have the direction of the ushers and act in harmony with them, so that casual attendants may be waited upon with a view to converting them into regular contributors; a personal interview being always much more effective than a circular. And a committee of ladies to call upon new arrivals in town may be formed with advantage." Among further aids the paper included the cordial treatment of strangers; invitations to transient hotel guests to attend service: an active treasurer: a bank account: quarterly publication of the contributors' names and their donations; a statement of account to contributors in arrears, and an efficient choir, confining themselves strictly to sacred music, who might, if the proper spirit prevailed, give an occasional concert, pay for music and perhaps be almost se'f. sustaining. Young people, with good voices, should be admonished to exercise their talents for good and thus recruit the choir.

"The managers should relieve the minister of all care as to raising the funds required for equipment and yearly expenditure. The fact that he receives as salary a portion of the money collected places him at a disadvantage in raising church revenue. And there are other far more important duties requiring his attention. Besides the services on Sunday and through the week, he is expected at least to visit all sick rooms and houses of mourning, to counsel those in trouble, spiritual of temporal; not to mention the grave responsibility of keeping his flock in harmony and usefulness. It is well, however, that he should keep in touch with those in charge of the finance, as he can do a great deal of good indirectly, his influence being usually greatest when least obvious. And it is helpful to have an occasional sermon upon the duty and privilege of supporting Gospel ordinances and the benefits, spiritual and temporal, derived from systematic giving. But after all has been done that appears possible in the way of obtaining money from voluntary contributions there may remain, perhaps, a large church debi or some other pressing need for money. To meet such a case it may be well to ask the aid of the ladies, who are always willing to assist in every good work. One year they may devote their energies to collecting small weekly contributions to be devoted to one particular object, say a payment on the principal money. At the beginning of another year give to each woman who will accept it a small sum of say $1 or $2, calling it a talent, Let each in her own way do what she can with this talent throughout the year, and, after deducting expenses, return it with the gain. The usual plan would probably be to buy raw material, bestow some labor upon it and sell the finished product. One may find that she can make money by getting some good recipes printed and selling them: another that she can make dinner mats and useful articles or even candy, root beer, or collections of autumn leaves and grasses. To dispose of the articles not sold privately a quiet sale, or even a bazar, may be held in the schoolroom in connection with the church. Occasionally a lecture or an old-fashioned teameeting may be held. Apart from the financial results of such schemes it will be found that they the members better acquainted with each other and more interested in church work. It will also show the strength of a united effort and will give many who have thought themselves of little value to the church an opportunity to be of service, and thus afford them much real pleasure. It will also tend to concentrate the energies of the members upon the supthan dissipating them on outside objects.

port of the schemes of the church rather "In considering schemes for raising money for church purposes it must never be forgotten that the object of church services is not to provide paying entertainments, but to worship, to encourage piety and to convert sinners. Care must, therefore, be taken not to secularize what is sacred; not to treat the church as if it were largely a business enterprise, nor to encourage schemes for getting money rather than winning souls. If a congregation can be preserved in unity, and spiritual prosperity be secured, funds sufficient for all legitimate requirements will certainly be forthcoming, for 'The blessing of the Lord it maketh rich." A very interesting and animated discussion in three-minute speeches by the tap of the bell, followed. Fully 20 or 25 persons took part and many useful ideas were brought cut. It was generally concurred in that there was no system at all to be compared with the weekly envelope. Various catchpenny methods by which church revenues were sought to be raised were for the most part condemned, though certain exceptions were made by some speakers. A good many argued that there would be no trouble if people set apart one-tenth of their income for the Lord, obeying the Scriptural injunction. The question of free seats also received some attention. A list of the methods by which, in various quarters, efforts had been made to secure church moneys, was read as follows: The oyster social-with one oyster to a quart of warm water. The grab-bag.

The lottery. The raffle.

The cane contest.

The strawberry festival-with the biggest strawberries on top. The necktie social.

The maple sugar social. The tea meeting, with charge for admission. Readings, comic or serious, with an admission charge. The lecture, with an admission charge.

The sacred concert, with an admission charge. The pumpkin pie social. The pink teas. Open air festivals, where liquor has been sold. Conundrum socials. The taffy-pull. The bazar, where you are got into a corner and made to pay 50 cents for a 10-cent sawdust elephant. Hot maple sugar socials. The Devenshire cream social. The jug-breaking social.

The auction social. Socials where kisses are sold. A good deal of money has also been got in the aggregate from members of Parliament, candidates, and other prominent people, by taking advantage of their public position. Some might call this method of replenishing the coffers of the church a kind of zeal of godliness-others might call it a kind of black mail. At the conclusion of the discussion a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr.

Somerville. As this was the first meeting since the death of the Rev. J. A. Murray, ex-president, a resolution was carried expressing the sorrow of the society and their sympathy with the bereaved ones, moved by Dr. Hotson and seconded by Rev. M. P.

Talling.
Rev. Mr. Robertson dismissed the meeting with the benediction.

an axe against them." The awfulest thing in war is besiegement, for to the work of deadly weapons it adds hunger and starvation and plague. Besiegement is sometimes necessary, but my text commands mercy even in that. The fruit food for man. But in my recent journey around the world I found at Lucknow, siegement of the ages, and I proceed to tell you that story for four great reasons: To is under bombardment; to put a coronation on Christian courage, and to show you how the natives were ready to break out in re- dency I visited the grave of Havelock. The bellion against all foreigners, and especially scenes of hardship and self-sacrifice through against the civil and military representatives of the English Government. A half- mortal endurance, and a few days after dozen causes are mentioned for the feeling | Havelock left the Residency which he had of discontent and insurrection that was evidenced throughout India. The most of these causes were more pretexts. The from Queen Victoria over his triumphs and simple fact was that the natives of India were a conquered race, and the English England never gave to any man since Wel-were the conquerors. For 100 years the lington came back from Waterloo awaited British scepter had been waved over India, his return. But he had another victory to and the Indians wanted to break that scepter. There never had been any love or sympathy between the natives of India and I the Europeans; there is none now. Before the time of the great mutiny the English Government risked much power in the hands of the natives. Too many of them manned the forts. Too many of them were in Governmental employ. And now the time had come for a wide outbreak.

It was evident in Lucknow that the natives were about to rise and put to death all the Europeans they could lay their hands on, and into the Residency the Christian population of Lucknow hastened for defense from the tigers in human form which were growling for their victims. The occupants of the Residency, or fort, were, military and non-combatants, men, women and children, in number about 1,692. suggest in one sentence some of the chief woes to which they were subjected, when I say that these people were in the Residency five months without a single change of clothing; some of the time the heat at 120 and 130 degrees; the place black with flies, and all a-squirm with vermin; firing of the kept my promise, when in the opening of enemy upon them ceasing neither day nor this discourse I said I would show you four night: the hospital crowded with the dying; things: What an awful affair war is; what smallpox, scurvy, cholera adding their work to that of shot and shell; women, brought | bardment; what is the coronation of Chrisup in all comfort and never having known want, crowded and sacrificed in a cellar where nine children were born; less and less sermon of the "Round the World" series. food; no water except that which was brought from a well under the enemy's fire, so that the water obtained was at the price of blood; the stench of the dead horses added to the effluvia of corpses, and all waiting for the moment when the army of 60,000 shrieking Hindoo devils should break in upon the garrison of the Residency, now

There was a solemn stillness as we approached the gate of the Residency. Battered and torn is the masonry of the entrance. Signature of shot and punctuation of cannon ball all up and down everywhere. Here, said our guide, is the building that was used as a hospital. At this part the amputations took place, and all such patients died. The heat was so great and the food so insufficient that the poor fellows could not recover from the loss of blood; they all died. Amoutations were performed without chloroform. Yonder was Dr. Fayrer's house, who is now Queen Victoria's doctor. This upper room was the officers' room, and there Sir Henry Lawrence, our commander. was wounded. While he sat there a shell struck the room, and someone suggested that he had better leave the room, but he smiled and said, "Lightning never strikes twice in the same place." Hardly had he said this when another shell tore off his thigh, and he was carried dying into Dr. Fayrer's house on the other side of the road. As soon as Sir Henry was told that he had not many hours to live he asked the chaplain to administer to him the holy communion. He felt particularly anxious for the safety of the women in the Residency. He charged the officers saying, "By no means surrender. Make no treaty or com promise with the deperadoes. Die fighting." He dictated his own epitaph. "Here lies Henry Lawrason, who tried to do his duty. May the Lord have mercy on his soul." said, "I would like to have a passage of Scripture added to the words on my grave, such as, "To the Lord our God belong mercies and forgivenesses, though we have rebelled against Him." So as brave a man as England or India ever saw expired. All of which I state for the benefit of those who would have us believe that the Christian religion is fit only for women in the eighties and children under 7. There was glory enough in that departure to halo Christen-

"Had you made up your minds what you and punched his left eye. In court he and the other sufferers would do in case the made a full apology to Stuart, as the police fiends actually broke in?" I asked "Oh, yes," said my escort, 'we had it all planned. You must remember it was 1,600 against 60,000, and for the latter part of the time it was 900 against 60,000, and the Residency and the earthworks around it were not put up for such an attack. It was only from ingly disagreeable and very common disease.

Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood resolved not to allow ourse vesto get into resolved not to allow ourse ves to get into the hands of these desperadoes. If unable to hold out any longer we would have blown ourselves up and all gone out of life together."

Then we went down into the cellar of the Residency, where 622 women and children had been crowded until the whole floor was full. The women within the Residency were kept on the smallest allowance that would maintain life. No opportunity of privacy. The death angel and the birth angel touched wings as they passed. Our escort told us again and again of the bravery of these women. They did not despair. They encouraged the soldiery; they waited on the wounded and dving in the hospital. They endured without complaint. They prepared their own children for burial. They were inspiration for the men who stood at their posts fighting till they

They had received a letter from Havelock rolled up in a quill and carried in the mouth of a disguised messenger-a letter telling them he was on the way-but the next news was that Havelock had been compelled to retreat. It was constant vaciliation be tween hope and dispair. But one day they heard the guns of relief sounding nearer and nearer. I asked our friend if he thought that the world-famous story of a Scotch lass in her delirium hearing the Scottish bagpipes advancing with the Scotch regiment, was a true story. He said he did not know but that it was true. I knew from my own observation that delirium sometimes quickens the faculties, and I rather think the Scotch lass in her delirium was the first to hear the bagpipes. I decline to believe that class of people who would like to kill all the poetry of the world and banish all the fine sentiment. The Scotch lass did hear the slogan. I almost heard it myself as I stood inside the Residency while my escort told of the coming on of the Seventy-eighth Highlanders. Show us where the came in!" I exclaimed, for I knew that they did not enter through the gate of the Residency, that being banked up inside to keep the mur-derers out. "Here it is," answered my escort. "Here it is—the embrasure through which they came."

As we stood there, although the scene was 37 years ago, I saw them come in; Havelock, pale and sick, but triumphant; and Outram, whom all the equestrian statues in Calcutta and Europe cannot too grandly present. "Then," said our guide, "the earth was removed from the gate, and soon all the army of relief entered, and some of us laughed, and some cried, and some prayed and some danced. Highlanders so dustcovered and enough blood and wounds on thou shall besiege a city a long time in their faces to make them unrecognizable, making war against it to destroy it, thou snatched the babes out of their mothers their faces to make them unrecognizable, arms and kissed them, and passed the babies along for other soldiers to kiss, and the wounded men crawled out of the hospitals to join in the cheering, and it was a wild jubilee, until the first excitement passed, the story of how many of the advancing army had been slain on the way trees must be saved, because they afford began to have fearful effect, and the story of suffering that had been endured inside the fort, and the asmouncement to children India, the remains of the most merciless be- that they were fatherless, and to wives that they were widows, submerged the shouts of joy with wailing agony. Had not this first show you what a horrid thing war is, and relief arrived as it did in a day or two at to make you all advocates for peace; to most, and perhaps in any hour, the besiegers show you what genuine Christian character | would have broken in, and our end would have come. The Sepoys had dug six mines under the Residency and would soon have splendidly good people die.

I have for 40 years so ruled my life that when death came 1 might face it without tear. To die is gain." He had in early life been immersed in a Baptist Church. He acknowledged God in every victory, and says in one of his dispatches that he owes it to the power of the Enfield rifle in British hands, to British pluck and to the blessings of Almighty God on a most righteous cause. He was accustomed to spend two hours every morning in prayer and Bible reading, and if the army was to march at 8 o'clock he arose for purposes of religious devotion at 6 o'clock, and if the army was to march at 6 o'e ock he arose at 4. A plain monument erected by his widow and tamily marks Havelock's grave, but the epitaph is beautiful and comprehensive. Some audiences and some readers are so slow of thought and so stupid that they need an application made of every subject. But the people who get this sermon have made the application for themselves already. I challenge you to say whether or not I have genuine Christian character is under bom-

FAIR PLAY FOR CLARA FORD, There has been much speculation in the newspapers regarding the case of Clara Ford, the Toronto woman arrested on a charge of murdering Frank Westwood. No to push the trials through in short order doubt the police officers believe that they and without a break. The ever-changing have good grounds for placing the woman under arrest, and it may turn out that she has confessed the crime. So far, however, the only facts established relate to her indifferent early training, her sojourn near the residence of the Westwoods in Parkdale, and her peculiar delight for dressing as a man and walking around with a loaded cevolver in her pocket. The freakish characteristics of the woman do not necessarily had to sit with him. The strain, imply that Clara Ford was a desperado, and that she was the slaver of Frank Westwood. She has a right to a fair trial at the hands of unprejudiced persons, but so many have been the stories set on foot regarding her-many of them doubtless ill founded -that it is open to question whether she will obtain such a trial in the sensation-loving the notes for the use of the bench and the city of Toronto. There is altogether too ready a tendency on the part of some journals to sacrifice everything to create a sensation. But even a friendless woman should have some rights that all should be bound to respect, while at the same time any story that a prisoner may tell in extenuation of a crime should be received with caution unless where corroborated. ITS LESSON.

A very wide circle of acquaintances throughout the Province as well as in this city mourn the death of Mr. L. B. Young, one of the official court stenographers of this Province. His passing away in the prime of manhood has once more drawn the attention of the public to the importance of shorthand work as a necessity to the proper administration of justice in civilized land, and to the many qualifications necessary to the work, as well as to the great pressure under which it has to be performed. Mr. Young, who received his early training here, was one of the best writers in the Province, and probably performed his duties with as little worry as anyone in the profession, but there is good evidence that the constant strain of his duties so weakened himas to make it impossible for his system to throw off disease Moralizing on Mr. Young's death, under such melancholy circumstances, the Toronto Mail points cut that no one longer questions the value of stenography in the courts. In the old days, it says, legal proceedings were long drawn out and sometimes with no very satisfactory result, owing to the difficulty experienced in recounting testimony and in presenting it a second or third time for the consideration of the tribunals to which appeals are taken. Now trials are conducted with speed, which is a matter of considerable moment to the litigants, for the expenditure is thus materially reduced. Furthermore, when for any purpose the evidence, the arguments, or the judgments are required, all the records are reproduced with such accuracy as to facilitate and render more satisfactory than otherwise could be the case the ultimate decision. Stenography, in a word, is a part and parcel of the legal procedure. It is essential, and cannot now be dispensed with. It is as necessary in criminal as in civil cases, for while in the latter it aids justice in its work, it is required in the former to guide the action of the authorities in respect of the carrying out of the sentences that have been pronounced. The weight attached to testimony as taken down and transcribed by the stenographer casts great responsibility upon the note-taker. An error in the evidence, and a very slight one at that, may affect the result of the trial. It may involve serious injustice to litigants or it may branch are required to provide their own | have calamitous consequences upon freedom cories of works to be performed, which and even upon life. A wide range of general, and, indeed, scientific knowledge is therefore required of the ganization are as follows: Messrs. Geo. Furthermore, in taking down evidence a great deal of care must be exercised, for the decision frequently turns upon points which the casual or non-expert attendant Cleghorn, T. H. Carling, F. J. Moore, S. at the courts fails to observe. This care necessitates a very close watching of every case, and it sometimes happens that | much may depend upon the treatment at the critical juncture the remarks of Philharmonic Society should be able to give | witnesses and counsel, always rapid in a good account of itself. Let us, how- this country of rapidly-speaking people, are anything but clear. Witnesses unaccustomed to the formation of sentences cannot always make their evidence perfectunions. They should avoid too long ly plain, while counsel in the excitement or too heavy selections in the early years of the moment forget to be deliberate. The trouble is especially noteworthy where two or three people, the judge, the counsel, and the witness, are speaking at one time. the members or upon the public who will | Every word the stenographer has to take, and it is easy to understand that the speed,

It is the desire of the judges and the profession, in the interests of witnesses and litigants, series of lawvers come fresh to each case in its turn. But it is different with the solitary stenographer. He sits from 9 until 6, and sometimes away into the night, taking down the words as they fall from the lips of judge, counsel or witness. A good illustration of this break-neck pace in administering justice was afforded at the recent assizes here, when Mr. Justice Armour sat continuously from 9 to 6 o'clock, and the shorthand writer even for a short time, is heavy enough, but prolonged as it is for a period which in journalism would be considered unreasonable, it is especially wearing to the constitution. After the assizes comes the period of transcription, when all cases to be appealed have to be transcribed from bar. Transcription is heavy work, and in order to prevent delay it has to be done at tip top speed. Thus the stenographer is up | C. P. DEATH OF A LONDON MAN AND of dollars to the people of Ontario in a muskets on the anniversaries of battles to year. Courts that under present circumstances get through in a week or ten days would, if the old longhand note-taking system were revived, require from three weeks to a month in which to conduct their business, at a cost to the taxpayers three or four times as great as is necessitated under the present system of recording the proceedings by shorthand writing. And then the records would be much less complete and accurate. Sometimes we hear lawyers suggesting that in any law reform to be brought about, the first thing to be done is to cut down the allowance for the shorthand staff. In view of the value of the work, the necessity for securing the services of thoroughly trained professors of the art, and the extraordinary demands on their mental and physical resources, it would be a mistake not to pay these nevertiring public servants handsomely and well. Pity 'tis they so soon wear out.

LIBERAL JAPAN AND CONSERVA-TIVE CHINA.

With the capture of Port Arthur the Chinese must begin to see that successful resistance to the onward sweep of their plucky little neighbor, under the present circumstances, is out of the question. In every department of field and naval warfare, the superiority of Japanese arms has been demonstrated. The forces of the country of 400,000,000 of inhabitants, with apparently unlimited resources, have been outgeneraled and beaten on shore by the nation of fewer than 40,000,000 of people, while the Chinese fleet has been outmaneuvered and outfought in general engagements and driven into harbors of refuge, where its usefulness as a means of coast defense has been nil.

How has it all been brought about? Simply by the enterprise of the Japanese. While China has continued dozing away her existence in fossil Conservative sleep, the Japanese-the Liberals of the Orient-have in a quarter of a century advanced from comparative obscurity to the position of a first-class nation. The Chinese folded their hands in slothful saw that progress and prosperity could and all the technicalities it contains as only be obtained by following the example of Great Britain-by educating the masses. by studying the progressive agencies possessed by the leading nations of the world, by adopting every possible means to add to the knowledge, the capacity for work, and the power to extend trade and commerce that civilization has provided. By this means alone Liberal Japan has triumphed over Conservative China.

Japan has become a first-class power. No one can tell what the future fate of the unwieldy Chinese nation will bewhich the victors in the present conflict extend to her-but there can be no longer any doubt that in the management of the far east Great Britain, Russia, France and Germany, who have interests in common in that part of the world, must in future reckon with the new nation that has so conclusively proved her right to be heard.

CANADA AND AMERICAN TARIFFS.

Prof. Goldwin Smith on the Present Situation and Future Outlock.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER: In a letter addressed to you by me some time ago it was observed that little reliance could be placed upon relaxations of the American tariff in tavor of Canada so long as the customs line remained and the tariff was liable to being changed with the balance of American party. I then said that appearances had begun to point to a restoration of the Republican and Protectionist party to power. What then seemed likely has now signally come to pass. It the reaction lasts for another year or two Protectionism will again control the policy of the United States. That there will be a return to the McKinley tariff is not likely, so far as can be judged from recent manifestations. But we shall get no further access to the American market, and every commercial question that arises between the two countries will be settled on the part of the Americans in the Protectionist sense. The Canadian farmer in producing for the American market will be subject to the same uncertainty as before.

Had commercial union been carried, and the fiscal barrier between the two countries been once completely thrown down, nobody would have thought of setting the custom houses up again. We should then have had nothing to fear from the chances of the political contest in the United States. But the interest of the farmer gave way to that of the politician and of the Toronto, Nov. 23, 1894. SIR OLIVER'S BRIGHT FUTURE.

(Sarnia Post.) The result of the London election leaves Sir Oliver with a clear majority in the new House, whether he had one before or not. There are plenty of people who take but little stock in Patron heroics, and confidently expect to see the members elected by that order voting Grit or Tory in the House before very long, as they would have done had there been no Patron order. Sir Oliver stands to win most of the byeelections, and can with reason look forward to another four years of power.

WORK DONE IN FRANCE,

in Which Many Londoners Are Interested.

Annual Meeting of the Local Branch of the Mcall Mission-Reports Presented and Officers Chosen,

The annual meeting of the London branch of the McAll Mission was held in the "Y" rooms, Dundas street, yesterday afternoon, with a large attendance of members, the president, Mrs. McMechan, in the chair. It is just four years since the London branch was founded to aid in evangelizing the residents of the La Rochelle and Rochefort districts in France. The work has experienced many varying vicissitudes, but the heaviest loss yet sustained by the mission was the death of Dr. McAll, the founder, who died in France some time ago. While the London workers at yesterday's meeting expressed in very touching terms their regret at the doctor's demise, yet they noted with pleasure the fact that his successor, Mr. Grigg, was receiving good support from every quarter.

The meeting was opened with devotional exercises, led by Mrs. McMechan. A few introductory remarks followed, and the secretary was called upon for the annual report. Miss Wickham stated that the year had been one of marked progress, and the members had been much encouraged. The branch had held six meetings, with an average attendance of 20, out of a membership of 44. Although this was not all that it should be, yet it was pleasing to note that all who attended entered heartily into the work and had done what they could to render the meetings interesting and instructive. The ladies of the different denominations had in turn taken charge, when Scripture readings, hymns and solos, and encouraging letters from the work in France were given. The literature sent by the American and Canadian associations was helpful and inspiring. The funds of the mission had been raised by means of contributions and fees, but chiefly by persons or societies becoming responsible for a chair in the McAll Mission Hall. Figures could be given to show what the workers had done, but the real results were visible in the changed lives and the happy homes and the inspired communities which followed the efforts of the mission laborers.

The report was adopted. Miss Hamilton, in her statement of the finances, showed that about $50 had been sent to the headquarters in France, leaving about $12 on hand. It was expected that the receipts next year would exceed those of any preceding twelve months.

The election of officers resulted in the choice of many of the former staff. The secretary, Miss Wickham, declined to act for another year, as she was going to leave the city in January. She consented, however, to serve until that time. The list is:

President-Mrs. McMechan. First Vice-President-Mrs. Robertson. Second Vice-President-Mrs. Fraser. Third Vice-President-Mrs. McKenzie. Secretary-Miss Wickham.

Treasurer-Miss Hamilton. Executive Committee-From the First Presbyterian, Mrs. (Rev.) W. J. Clark; Knox Presbyterian, Mrs. McKenzie; St. James' Presbyterian, Mrs. L. Gibson; First Congregational, Mrs. A. Johnson; Dundas Street Methodist, Mrs. Dickson; Queen's Avenue Methodist, Mrs. Evans; Memorial Church, Mrs. (Canon) Richardson; St. Andrew's, Miss Fraser; St. Paul's, Mrs. Cal-

During the meeting Rev. D. M. Mihell, pastor of the Adelaide Street Baptist Church, gave a very instructive Bible reading: Miss Minnie Hartson favored with a solo, and Miss Rendell, Mrs. and Miss Robertson read letters pertaining to various subjects.

Thomas Tulley, secretary of the Guelich Company of Detroit, said he visited Toronto in 1893, when the Guelich tenders were rejected finally. To Mr. Grier he said that he was present at the Headquarters Saloon on the morning of the 17th of July. Guelich, Maitland and Ald. Hewitt and J. E. Verral were among those present. After a time Mr. Guelich and Ald. Verral left the room together and returned shortly afterward. Then Ald. Hewitt left with Mr. Guelich and atterwards returned. STUPENDOUS STEALING.

Further Developments in the Shoe and Leather Bank Defelcation Case-Many Individuals Suffer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 .- Attempts to trace the disposition that Frederick Baker made of the money of which he robbed the Shoe and Leather National Bank and the public announcement of his transactions therewith have brought to light facts that indicate that as far back as fifteen years ago he began his stealings, which will amount in the aggregate to an enormous sum, far in excess of the amount taken from the bank, Baker succeeded in getting control of a number of estates. He was either executor or trustee of funds for the heirs. The persons who trusted him are alleging that he appropriated large sums of money belong. ing to them, to his own use. Just how far

Mr. John Inglis being called repeated he did so only his own books, which are son Frederick, will show. Having misappropriated the property intrusted to him and lost a portion of it in assurances from different parties that speculation, it probably became necessary for him to resort to the bank thefts to pay accruing interest, etc. In this way he kept those from whom he was trustee absolutely in the dark as to their property, for as their interest and dividends were paid regularly they supposed their estates had fallen into excellent hands. When the Shoe and Leather Bank opened for business this morning it had $1,500,000 in its vaults. The officials calculated that if that went in the event of a run they could realize all they needed by a sale of securities. The paying teller of the bank reported at 12 o'clock that during the morning only an ordinary half-day's business was done. The story that Seeley was merely a tool of Baker is firmly believed by the bank officers. Universal Testimony cannot be disputed, and the case is yet to be heard from in which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor has failed to perform a perfect cure. Local Market. Reported by A. M. Hamilton & Son.

LCNDON. Nov. 27. Today receipts of grain consisted, for the Today receipts of grain consisted, for the most part, of oats, with a moderate sprinkling of wheat and barley. Peas, corn, beans, rye and buckwheat were very scarce. There was little change in values of anything but the two first lines, Oats were in good demand and showed much strength all day, sales of which were 85c to 86c and black 85c to 90c, with the bulk of sales at 85c to 87c. Wheat took on a bold front at the opening, and although only a few loads of red sold over the 90c point, the fact that a few loads did is an indication of the urgency of the demand. White wheat sold at 93c for ordinary and 95c for choice. There was no change in the value of butter and eggs; offerings were heavy and the demand only fair. Pound rolls butter were butter and eggs: offerings were heavy and the demand only fair. Pound rolls butter were most inquired for, and sold mostly at 18c to 20c by the basket. Turkeys quiet at 7c. No change in chickens and ducks. Dressed hogs were the only kind of meat noticeably active. The price of choice weights advanced about 25c. and the close was $4.50 to $5.50 for all kinds, depending upon the quality. Potatoes were steady, but it seemed impossible to get them out of the 50c rut. The whole range today was 50c to 60c, the latter for single bags only. Only a moderate quantity of other kinds of vegetables offered, and the price for mostly everything was the and the vrice for mostly everything was the same as Saturday. Hay was in good demand, and sold rapidly at $9, and a good many loads of extra nice quality sold at $9 50. The following list cives the average values of today.

A Queer Reminder.

The Montreal Star, speaking of Mr. Hardy's repeated appeals to the people of London to give the Government a chance, and yet in the same breath, reminding them that London would receive justice no matter what their verdict might be, says: "It all reads remarkably like that old story of Daniel O'Connell, in which he is said to have earnestly implored his friends NOT to duck a certain obnexious individual n a convenient horse pond."

The Exeter Mill Robbery.

The preliminary hearing in the case of John Hodgins, of McGillivray, arrested on suspicion of robbing Muir's woolen mill in Exeter on the night of May 24, was held before Squire J. B. Smyth at the court house this morning. There were no new developments in the case, the evidence being largely a repetition of that given against the Sholdice boys. Several of the articles of clothing found in Hodgins' ouse were positively identified by Muir as stolen from the mill, and Constable Ward said that Hodgins admitted being in Exeter at the time of the robbery. Hodgins was committed for trial. He was subsequently brought before Judge William Elliot, elected trial by jury and was committed to the December essions. Bail was accepted, Hodgins giving bonds for $800 and two sureties of

DILLING HAD NO VOTE.

Query-Then How Could He Be Person. ated !- A Fine Point For Argument.

The hearing of the Dilling case at the Police Court was continued yesterday afternoon and finally adjourned for a week to admit of papers being sent from Toronto. In the evidence of Robt. Kingsmill and Wm. J. Knott, they both stated that the prisoner had stoutly maintained that his name was Dilling or Dillon, and that after he had taken the oath he waited quietly in the booth until the information for personation and the warrant for his arrest were being made out, though he could have escaped during that time if he had been inclined.

The witness Knott admitted having taken Dilling up to the registration booth on the last night for registration, though Dilling had told him that he did not think he had been in the city long enough. Dilling, in his evidence, admitted having egistered himself as a voter at the registration booth and having taken the oath there that he had resided in the city for three months prior to Oct. 31, though he had only come to the city from Exeter during the week prior to Sept. 3, and had never lived here before. When he was asked to put in his vote after he had been personated by the prisoner he declined to take the oath required by Hobbs' scrutineer, and stated that he had not been in the city long enough. He did not vote.

Mr. Cowan stated to the magistrate that one of grounds of defense that as Dilling, the person personated, did not have any right to vote it was no offense under the Election Act to personate him. The magistrhte remarked that that would be a question for argument.

Mr. Cowan stated that if "persecutions" were to be the order of the day he thought as good a case of perjury as could be wished for had been made out by Dilling against himself, but he was not a public "persecucases to bring against the prisoner, and Mr. Cowan retorted that he would have as many witnesses to disprove them as he had in the Turner case, as Mr. Essery was off the track.

Mr. Essery stated that he had other Ring; ring; ring, Rather a louder peal this time, as if a little impatience now mingled with the reluctance.

Flinging on a warm shawl, and putting her feet into her shoes, Jelly proceeded to the front-room — Mrs. Cumberland's chamber when she was at home-threw up the wincow, and called to know who was there. little man, stepping back from the door into the bright moonlight, looked up to answer— and Jelly recognized the form and voice of Cissy. She's dead."

"Couldn't it wait?" tartly returned Jelly, overlooking the sad nature of the tidings in her anger at having been disturbed. Would it have run away, that you must come and knock fo ks up to tell it, as if you'd been the telegraph?"

"It was my wife made me come," spoke Ketler, with much humility. "She's in a peck o' grief, Jelly, and nothing would do but I must come right off and tell you; she shought, mayhap, you'd not be gone to said the man, with a sigh. "I wouldn't have done it myself; but poor Susan was taking on so, I couldn't deny her. We was all so fond of the child; and—and—" Ketler broke down. The man had loved his child; and he was weak and faint with hunger. It a little appeased Jelly. I suppose you don't expect me to dress myself and come off to Susan at this hour?" she exclaimed, her tone, however, not quite

"Law, bless you, no," answered Ketler.
"What good would that do? It couldn't bring Cissy back to life again."

"Ketler, it's just this-instead of being upset with grief, you and Susan might be thankful the child's taken out of the trouble of this world. She won't be crying for food where she's gone, and find none. The man's grief was renewed at the last suggestion. But Jelly had really meant it in the light of consolation.

"She was your god-child, Jelly."

"You needn't tell me that," answered Jelly, "Could I have saved her life at any

"Yes," assented the man as if he were heart-broken. "If it wasn't for the thought of the rest, I should wish it was me that

"Well, give my love to Susan and say I'm "Not a penny," moaned Ketler.

"Well, I know you wouldn't like the poor little thing to be buried by the parish, so I'll see what's to be done, tell Susan. Good-

Jelly shut down the window sharply. She really looked upon the strike as having led to the child's death—and remotely possibly it had done so; so what with that, and the untimely disturbance, her anger was some-

What excusable.
In passing across the landing to her own chamber, the large window became sudden-ly illuminated. Jelly stopped. Her heart, as she would herself have expressed it, leaped into her mouth. The light came from the outside: no doubt from Dr. Rane's. dely stood motionless. And then—what desperate courage impelled her she never knew, but believed afterwards it must have been something akin to the fascination of the basilisk-she advanced to the window, and drew aside the white blind. But she did not see Bessy Rane this time, as perhaps she had expected; only her husband. Dr. Rane had a candle in his hand, and was apparently picking up some-thing he had dropped quite close to his own window. In another moment he lodged the candle on a chair that stood there, so as to have both hands at liberty, Jelly watched. What he had dropped appeared to be several articles of his deceased wife's clothing, some of which had unfolded in the fail. He soon had them within his arm again, caught up the candle, and went downstairs. Jelly saw and recognized one beautiful Indian shaw!, which had been a present from her own mistress to Bessy. "He is going to pack them up and sell them, the wicked man!" spoke Jelly in her conviction. And her ire grew very great against Dr. Rane. "I'd almost rather have seen the spirit of his poor wife again than this," was her comment, as she finally went into her room. Putting aside all the solemn doubts and fears that were making havoc with Jelly's mind, her curiosity was insatiable. Perhaps no woman in all Dallory had so great a propensity for prying into other people's affairs as she. Not, it must be acknowledged, to harm them, but simply to gratify her inquisitiveness. On the following morning, when Jelly attired herself to go to Ketler's after breakfast-the meal being seasoned throughout with reproaches to Dinah for not hearing the night-beil-she bethought herself that she would first of all step into the next door. Ostensibly with the neighbory object of informing Phillis of the death of the child; really, to pick up any items of imformation that might be floating about.

ARE YOU ON SPEAKING TERMS Dr. Rane, it may be here remarked, had given Molly Green a character to get herself another situation, preferring to retain the elder servant, Phillis' who, however, only went to him by day. The doctor was alone in his house at night, and Jelly be-lieved he dared not have even old Phillis in, knowing it was haunted. He made no secret now of his intention of quitting Dallory. As soon as his practice should be disposed of, and the tontine money paid over to him, away he would go.

Jelly coolly walked out of the window of Mrs. Cumber and's dining-room, and through that of the doctor's. She had seen him go out some little time before. Phillis was upstairs, putting her master's chamber to rights, and Jelly sought her there. She described the fright Ketler had given her by coming at midnight to bring the news about Sold in lead packets only dropped a tear or two to the child's memory. Cissy; and Phillis, whose heart was tender, Cissy had been loved by every one. "Miss Dallory will be sorry to hear this when she comes back," remarked Phillis.

"I say, Phillis, what does your master mean to do with Mrs. Rane's clothes?'

abruptly asked Jelly.
Phillis, dusting the looking-glass at the moment, paused in her occupation, as if considering.

"I'm sure I don't know, Jelly, He pointed out a few of the plain things to me one day, and said I might divide them between myself and Molly Green, but that he wouldn't like to see us wear them till he was gone away. As of course we shouldn't, being in black for her.

"She had lots of beautiful clothes. I'm sure the shawls, and scarfs, and embroidered robes, and worked petticoats, and other valuable Indian things that my mistress was always giving her, would have set up any lady's wardrobe. What will he do Phillis shook her head, and pointed to a high chest of drawers. Her heart was full yet when she spoke of her late mistress.

"They are all in there, Jelly."

Are they, thought Jelly. But Phillis was going down now, her occupation ended. Jelly lingered behind, and put her black bonnet out at the window, as if looking at something up the road. When Phillis had descended the stairs, Jelly tried the drawers. All were locked except one. That one, which Jelly softly drew open, was filled with articles belonging to the late Mrs. Rane; none of them, as far as Jelly could gather by the cursory glance, of much

"Yes," she said bitterly. "He keeps these open for show, but he is sending away the best. Those other drawers, if they could be looked into, are empty."

It ever Jelly had been startled in all her life at human footstep, it was to hear that of Dr. Rane on the stairs. How she closed the drawer, how she got her head stretched out at the window again as far as it would stretch, she nardly knew. The doctor came | Myers as captains was the principal event. in. Jelly, bringing in her head, apparently as much surprised as if a rhinoceros had waked into the room, apologized and explained rather lamely. She supposed Phillis must have gone down, she said, while she was watching that impudent butcher's boy; she had made bold to step up to tell Phillis about Ketler's little girl. (To be Continued.)

A Man Made Happy .- GENTLEMEN, -For five years I have been a great sufferer "Cissy was a weak child and required with Dyspepsia; the pain in the pit of my stomach was almost unbearable and life only seemed a drag to me. When I would go to sleep I would have horrible dreams, and my life became very miserable, as there was no rest either day or night. But with the use of only two bottles of Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY this unhappy state has all been changed and I am a well man. I can assure you, my case was a bad one, and I send you this that it may be the means of convincing others of the wonderful curative qualities possessed by this medicine, that are specially adapted for the cure of Dyspepsia. A lady customer of mine had the Dyspepsia very bad, she could scarcely eat anything, and was troubled with pains similar to those I suffered with; and she cured herself with two bottles of Northrop & Lyman's VEGE-TABLE DISCOVERY. I wish you success with your medicine, as I am fully convinced that it will do all you claim for it.

OIL SPRINGS.

(Agent for the ADVERTISER, Thos. Smith.) Nov. 26 .- A storehouse belonging to Mr. R. W. Gorsline, in which was stored about $600 worth of manufacturers' bent supplies, was totally destroyed by fire last Thursday night. This is the second disaster that has befallen Mr. Gorsline from the same cause recently. About two months ago his barn and its contents were rendered a complete loss, resulting from some children playing with matches in the building.

Thaksgiving was generally observed as a holiday in the village. All the stores were closed and business of any nature for the most part was suspended. Special services were held in the Methodist and English Churches in the evening.

A sudden death occurred in this village on Tuesday night. Mr. John Griff, a much respected farmer of this place, although ailing with liver troubles for some time, was not regarded by the doctors as being seriiously ill, and great was the surprise of the community to learn that he had suddenly passed away on the above date. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Daly on Thursday (Thanksgiving) and were well attended, considering the almost impassable condition of the roads.

One of the disadvantages under which Oil Springs has had to labor is the lack of a grain market and flour mill. This want is about to be supplied, as came out at the last meeting of the school board, where Mr. M. Knittle made application for the old school site on which to build a grain warehouse, and states that if successful he will in the near future erect a roller mill. This is an exceptionally good point for an industry of the kind, situated in the center of a tertile district. Oil Springs is a thriving village of over 1,000 inhabitants, where farmers are drawn by a higher price paid for all other kinds of produce than they receive elsewhere. This would be of incalculable value to a mill located here, and we predict that success will crown the efforts of Mr. Knittle.

On Thursday afternoon, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. John Dotterer, Main street, Miss Hannah Dotterer, of this place, was united in marriage to Mr. Williams, of Sayre, Penn., by the Rev. C. Daly, B. A., Presbyterian pastor, of this village. The bride was assisted by her sister, white Mr. John Head acted as groomsman. After the wedding the newly married couple took the evening train for Petrolea, thence to their home in Sayre, where Mr. Williams is a railroad engineer.

MIDDLESEX MATTERS.

A Delaware correspondent writes as follows: Thanksgiving in this vicinity was the scene of much sport. A hunting match with Mr. Fred Eichenberger and Mr. Chris. An enthusiastic hunt ensued all day and until 8 o'clock in the evening, when the game was all collected at the Queen's Arms Hotel for the count. This was the exciting mement. All were anxious to know which side was to pay for the luxurious supper awaiting them. The figures showed a majority in Fred's favor of 1,411 points. The hungry hunters did ample justice to the rich repast, after which the dining-room was cleared and a very pleasant night was spent. All were much delighted at the way the nunt was conducted. The highest count obtained was brought in by Dan Scott, one of the winning side. His count alone was

BOTHWELL.

Nov. 26.-During the past week there has been considerable stir in town, occasioned probably by the many family reunions and social gatherings consequent upon the national Thanksgiving, which brought thither many visitors. We recognized several familiar faces after their protracted absence, some of whom are looking for suitable locations for their permanent return. The few vacant houses which awaited occupants for some months are being picked up, and properties are changing hands. The business outlook is more encouraging, and these facts are causes for thankfulness, apart from the spiritual aspect of things. The beautiful morning of last Thursday brought into town many vehicles filled with celebrants for the Thanksgiving, and the well-filled Presby. terian Church, wherein Rev. Mr. Fansher, of the Methodist Church, conducted union service, evidenced a truly Christian spirit, The occupant of the pulpit delivered a splendid discourse from the prayer of David-Psalms, exvi., 12, "What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits"—which should prompt every Christian to think of the multifarious blessings which our Creator has heaped upon us. Amongst the many visitors, most of whom took advantage of the chean railway fares, we noticed Dr. Orchard, V.S., from Windsor; Mr. Cornish, late school principal here, Sardinia, the object of which no one, from from Chatham, who is sojourning at the Aristotle down, has ever been able to manse; W. Davidson, of Stratford; W. Anderson and wife (nee McVittie), from Detroit; A. Edwards, from Glence; Mr. Lefevre, from Parkhill; Miss Shepherd, of Newbury; — Mills, of Wardsville; Mr. Abbott, of British Columbia, besides numerous strangers, who all had their friends or relatives. Dr. Wilson and wife, from London, were also in town, likewise Mrs. Blair and Mrs. Dalzell, former residents here.

Chewitt, barrister, Sandwich, and W. Eberts, Ceatham. As all west of London at that time formed part of the London district, the article referred to gives the names of the local agents of the Herald in Chatham, Howard, Thamesville, Wallaceburg and Dawn Mills, and adds, "all of whom bave long since passed over to the majority." Mr. Railton being somewhat sensitive on that point, we are authorized to say that he is neither dead nor asleep, and that he purposes shortly to "add an eke" to his reminiscences of London in the early forties. Sholdice pleaded guilty to the offense before Squire Revington, of Biddulph, and was sent for trial. He was landed in jail yesterday afternoon.

Salvation Army Celebration. The Salvation Army is preparing for their annual self-denial week, which will be celebrated throughout the Dominion of Canada from Dec. 1 to 8, inclusive. The proceeds, which have been raised in other years through this concentrated effort, has been a remarkable testimony to the army's development and activity. Every member of the army, as well as the numerous friends of its institutions, are asked to abstain from some or all luxuries, and in some cases officers and soldiers have determined to do without even such expenditure as is ordinarily considered necessary in order to raise funds to support the Salvation Army in its many different branches. The social operations, especially, have been greatly developed during the last twelve months, and, as a natural consequence, the demands upon the funds of the army have increased, which will require greater efforts to raise an increased amount during this selfdenial week. The total amount aimed for is $23,000.

Mr. Martindale as a Baker. The Philadelphia Life thus refers to the latest doings of our former fellow townsman. Thomas Martindale has engaged upon a project no less extraordinary at first sight to the casual observer and no less practical and philanthropic than the numerous other enterprises conceived and conducted by this Napoleonic thinker. There are a great many others who were bad cases that I have recommended the remedy to who have been completely cured.
