Rev. Mr. Smith's Earnest and Encouraging Address at Holy Trinity Church Festival.

A Delightful Evening of Con gregational Reunion-Exquisite Musical Program Presented.

What wonder is it that the church and congregation of Holy Trinity have met with such distinctive suc cess during the past year; what wonder that they have experienced such marked prosperity - material and spiritual! Last evening's delightful parish tea furnished the solution. Everywhere that indefinable yet unmistakable sentiment of loyalty and unanimity was in evidence-loyalty to the church, to the esteemed young rector, and the people, one to the other. It family reunion. Everybody know everybody and everybody enjoyed them-erybody and everybody enjoyed them-selves and assisted in the enjoyment of everybody else. It was one of those bright, spontaneous episodes that endear themselves indescribably to the history of the church.

to the history of the church.

A very entertaining program was contributed—a series of splendid numbers, all thoroughly enjoyed — a delightful evening luncheon was served; but there was no more significantly enjoyable feature than the very hearty "good-night" hand-shake which all experienced from the minister, at the door on their departure.

Rev. T. Beverley Smith, the carnest young minister, spoke briefly at the conclusion of the program. He expressed sincere gratitude to all who had contributed to the success of the occasion and to the harvest festival on the previous Sunday. He paid tribute to Rev. Mr. Thompson, who in a most efficient manner conducted the services on that occasion, and to mater.'

Continuing, Mr. Smith alluded with gratitude and commendation to the work of the choir and paid particular gratitude and commendation to the work of the choir and paid particular tribute to Miss Rose Morrison, the accomplished young organiste, whose musical abilities and unfailing courtesy were so sincerely appreciated, and to Mrs. F. D. Laurie, who so successfully trained and directed the choir for this occasion. He thanked all the ladies who had devoted so much time and energy to the festival, and the conveners of the committees, Mrs. Williamson and Mrs. Stegman, decorations; Mrs. G'Hara, 'program: Mrs. Marx, refreshments; Mrs. Goodland, presiding at the tea, and Mrs. Richardson, reception.

Mr. Smith alluded briefly to the various branches of the church work and unged greater zeal and consecration. In speaking of the work among the young he took occasion to express hearty endorsation of the course of The Planet in its effort to effect a reform in existing conditions which permitted children on the streets at nights, and wished the paper Godin its mission.

Mr. Smith concluded by thanking

The proceedings opened with prayer by the Rev. T. Beverley Smith.

Miss Kathleen O'Hara contributed

Mr. Wilson, "The Crooked Bawbee," was one of the best features of an excellent program.

Miss Rose Morrison, the talented organists of the church, gave an instrumental selection which was warmly acknowledged by all present. Capital addresses were also delivered by the Rev. G. H. FINEST FLOUR IS THE VERDICT

High English Eulogy of the Product of the Canada Flour Mills

Unsolicited Tribute from Com missioner— Messrs. Stevens & Rutherford Much Grati-

London, Eng., Oct. 4. - Canadian Government Commercial Agent Ball at Birmingham, informs me that one of the largest flour dealers in Great Britain, which lately gave a trial order of 500 bags of flour to the Kent Milling Company of Chatham, Ont. says: "We beg to say that this is the finest Canadian patent we ever saw. It makes a splendid loaf, in both bloom and texture. We are try ing to buy a line for shipment, and we feel bound to say that if your Canadian millers can ship us flour of this kind and keep shipping up to this quality they will have little trouble in displacing the fine winter patents on our market that we are now getting from the United States," -

When Mr. Harry Stevens, Manager of the Chatham Mill of the Canada Flour Mills Co., Ltd., was shown the above press despatch he at once expressed his pleasure at the high opinon the English people had formed of the quality of their high grade flour.

"There is quite a unique feature in connection with this shipment," remarked Mr. Stevens. "We have been corresponding with a large firm in Birmingham as regards making a trial shipment of our high grade flour and at the time of this shipment we and at the time of this shipment we were filling a large order for Glasgow, when through an error the order was overshipped and we had to make some disposition of this shipment, so we sent it to Birmingham, and the results are beyond our expectation. The Manager of our Blenheim Mill, Mr. James Ratherford, is highly delighted over the results, as the flour was made at the Blenheim Mills."

Mr. N. H. Stevens, President of the which all experienced from the minister, at the door on their departure. Rev. T. Beverley Smith, the carnest young minister, spoke briefly at the conclusion of the program. He expressed sincere gratitude to all who had contributed to the success of the occasion and to the harvest festival on the previous Sunday. He paid tribute to Rev. Mr. Thompson, who in a most efficient manner conducted the services on that occasion, and to Wycliffe College, his theological alma mater:

(Conpany, said: "We were highly gratified to get so favorable a report unsolicited from such a reliable source as the Canadian Government Agent at Hirmingham. The first intimation I had upon the matter was company, however, has received a number of favorable reports from other sources, and I consider that despatch nearly as important to our trade as the Gold Medel awarded me at the Chicago World's Fair, 1893, for this is a report on a whole shipa report ment of flour and of our regular high grade quality."

CRITICIZING BALFOUR.

THE MINISTRY HAS LOST MOST OF ITS PRESTIGE.

Resignation of the Duke of Devonshire Seems to Have Aroused Premier's Fighting Spirit.

London, Oct. 6.-There is practically but one opinion of the reconstructed British Cabinet, and that is that Premier Balfour missed his opportunity to rehabilitate the character of his Gov ernment and that so far as the Union ist policy at large is concerned the Ministry has lost most of its prestige and authority. This estimate of what is already commonly designated as the is already commonly designated as the "transitional Cabinet" seems largely due to the sense of chaos arising from the unexpected defection of the Duke of Devonshire, as, with the notable exception of the Colonial Secretaryship, the Premier has reconstructed the Cabinet in a manner closely agreeing with public opinion. Austen Chamberlain, Mr. Brodrick and Mr. Arnold-Forster were all some time ago assigned with more or less approval to the posts to which they have been appointed.

In spite of this there is no disguising pointed.

In spite of this there is no disguising the fact that a large rent in the party unity has been caused by the resignation of the Duke of Devonshire, the chief author of the Liberal-Unionist party, and this was amply recognized by Mr. Balfour's letter acknowledging the receipt of his resignation. The Duke's action, however, seems to have aroused the same fighting spirit in Mr.

Balfour which enabled him to triumph over difficulties in the eighties, and there are those who foretell that he

there are those who foretell that he will again come out on top and prevent the collapse of his Government.

All the political parties are preparing for an early dissolution of Parliament. It was rumored to-day that the Marquis of Londonderry, President of the Board of Education, may follow the Duke of Devonshire into retire-

The Conservative Standard voices the Conservative party regrets that within six months a great party and a strong Government have gone to pieces, leaving only chaos, and it expresses surprise that Mr. Balfour has the idea of facing Parliament with his Cabinet so rievously weakened.

She took convulsions on the operating table, and died before any anaesthetic had been given to her. Cor-oner Woolverton was notified, and he de-cided that an inquest was unnecessary.

WALLACEBURG'S CLAIM.

If the facts are such as stated in the letter of Mr. T. B. Dundas, of Wallaceburg, to The Planet yesterday, there is no other honorable course open to the management of the Chatham Lacrosse Club than to hand over to the Wallaceburg team the trophy they have won.

There is no glory to be gained by hanging on tenaciously to a 'championship" that has not been honestly won upon its merits. Such course would only disgrace our club and bring condemnation and discredit upon it from all lovers of clean, sportsman-like athleticism.

The Planet doesn't pretend to know, all the intricacies of the dispute, but it appears to us-if no satisfactory explanation of Mr. Dundas' statemen is forthcoming-that the only manly course for our boys to pursue is to hand the trophy over to the Wallaceburg club for this season.

The question of "ringers"? Yes. something might be said with advantage to both clubs in this matter, no doubt-but that's another story.

NEMESIS.

The Windsor Record contributes following words of wisdom, which, in view of recent developments in the Maple City, should be read with interest by parents here;

The other day the triple execution of the Van Wormer brothers took place in the Dannemora, N. Y., prison. Aged 28, 24 and 22 respectively, these young men were cut off at the threshold of manhood. They each possessed ability, which, had it not been perverted, would have given their native state three clever and useful citizens instead of three criminals, who in their freedom were a menace to life and property. The crime for which they paid the penalty was the murder of an uncle who had time and again befrinded

The circumstances in life that lead to such a deplorable and infamous taking off are not far ito seek. It is the old story of an idle life, for we are told that the three young criminals had not performed three months' wholesome labor in their lives. In spite of this they were always supplied with money and dressed far better than those whose funds and wardrobe were due to honest toil. An active mind is mover satisfied by idleness. If it is not rightly engaged there is great danger of it becoming perverted. Work is the natural condition for man. Perhaps no one has ever preached the divinity of labor more strongly than did Carlyle. Work is the salvation of mankind and in its performance we are carrying out the divine will. Honest industry is one of the main attributes of good citizenship. Records of crime show for the most part that criminals are such by reason of idleness and its

That discipline which should mould the life of every child, was wanting so far as their lives were concerned. They chose the broad way instead of the straight and narrow path. Theirs was an abuse of freedom. Society as at present constituted recognizes man's free will and his right to govern his lown actions, so long as he does not encroach on the rights of others. Personal freedom means personal re-sponsibility, and by it a person may become a self made man, useful and honored as a citizen, or he may become a menace to society and occupy a criminal's cell. The tendency is for greater individual freedom and with it greater personal responsibility.

The 495th day of the North Renfrew vacancy! And no sign of an election date yet.

Only its innate modesty prevents the Toronto Globe from proposing coalition in British Columbia.

Amid all the newspaper changes it may not be amiss to note that the only change in The Planet is that it is becoming better and stronger and more firmly established in the confidence of the people.

BUSY SESSION

Water Commissioners Transact Important Business-City Solicitor's Opinion re Dow sley Water Rates.

The monthly meeting of the Water Commissioners was held Monday evening and a very business-like sesion was the result. Chairman Dr. J. L. Bray, Commissioner W. D. Shel-don, Mayor McKeough, Superintend-ent Jones and Secretary-Treasurer

Weir were present.

It was decided on motion of Mr. Sheldon that a deduction of 25 percent. on lawn rates be made ton account of the rainy season, the deduction to apply on the account of the Wm. Taylor, of the T. H. Taylor

Co., applied for privilege of placing a closet in the tailoring department. It was granted, to cost $4.65. The rate for closets is $8 but Mr. Taylor said that only two or three people would use it and the rebate was given.

A communication from Auditor Macpherson acknowledged the receipt of Secretary Weir's letter.

The cash statement for the month showed $2,878.50 in the bank.

A letter was read from Matthew Wilson, K. C., City Solicitor, which was as follows. was as follows:

Water Commissioners, Chatham Gentlemen,-Re Dowsley: In re-Gentlemen,—Re Dowsley. In reply to your request for my opinion in regard to the charge for water supplied and to be supplied to the Dowsley Company, I beg to say that upon the same matter the city obtained my opinion at the time that they were entering into the contract and I then advised the City Council that they were contracting to give to the Dowsley Company water which was under the control of the Water Commissioners only, and that the city should in such cases first make an agreement with the Water Commissioners so as to know and fix missioners so as to know and fix exactly the worth or value of what exactly the worth or value of what the City Council undertook to give to the company. In the Dowsley case I believe that no such agreement was made because the City Council was fully satisfied that a reasonable was fully satisfied that a reasonable bargain could be made with the Water Commissioners in the event of the Council's by-law being approved by the ratepayers. The by-law of the Council and the agreement made by the Council with the Dowsley Company was not binding upon the Water Commissioners. The Water Commissioners are entitled to charge the Dowsley Company the same as concomitant sins.

The execution of the three Van Wormers raises another question of a sociological nature, namely, to what extent is society responsible for crime? Their mother died when they were 10, 6 and 4 years old respectively, and they were apparently left to grow up to their own liking. That discipling, which should mmissioners to charge the price of the water as agreed upon to the city. If no such agreement could be made between the Commissioners and the City Council then the Commis-sioners could only charge the Dow-sley Company for the water in the usual way, and as the Dowsley Comusual way, and as the Dowsley Company receive the accounts from time to time for the water the company must either pay the amount to the Water Commissioners or procure the Council to pay it to the company. The Commissioners have no power or right to charge the price of the water to the Council or corporation of Chatham unless the Council authorize the Commissioners to do so, but the only remedy would be to charge the amount to the company and then allow the company to look to the Council for payment. You informed me that you put a meter on the pipe which supplied the Dowsley Co., at your own expense, and that recently the Dowsley Co. have required, a greater supply of water than the pipe which they formerly connected with the waterworks would give to them. As you instructed me the company wants more water and your engineer desires to enlarge the present pipe so that the water would all pass through the meter which you put in place, but the Dowsley Co., for their own convenience, desired to have arother nine convented with an have another pipe connected with an-other part or branch of the water-works, and the engineer consented to the company doing this on condition the company doing this on condition that the company purchase another meter so that you would know the amount of water supplied to the Dowsley Company; and the Dowsley Co thereupon got the additional conaction and obtained and put in an additional meter. You are not, in my opinion, liable at all for this meter. The placing of the meter was a reasonable regulation and a sufficient meter was placed by you to measure the water. The Dowsley Co. has no right to ask you to carry out the agreement made by the Council. You were no ta party to the Council's were no ta party to the Council's agreement or the Council's agreement or the Council's by-law. The money which you handle is the money received from those who happen to be water takers, and it might pen to be water takers, and it might create an injustice if you reduce the amount of that money by allowing some ratepayers to take water without compensation. The ratepayers who voted the bonus to the Dowsley Co. were the ratepayers of the city at large, both those who took and those who did not take water.

If you charge the Dowsley Co. and the Dowsley Co. then present your bills to the city, and the city pay these bills for water, then, in my opinion, the proper parties will bear the burden; but (as I advised the the burden; but (as I advised the Council) in all such cases the Council should, before granting a bonus of free water, make a definite agreement with the commissioners so that the Council will know what a burden agreement will place upon the rategreement varies, payers at large.
Yours truly,
MATTHEW WILSON.

FINE CONCERT

The anniversary tea-meeting in St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Harwich, Monday night, was very largely attended. It was after ten o'clock before all had dined. Neil Watson presided during the presentation of the program. The Rev. Dr. Battisby, pastor of St. Andrew's church, was the speaker of the evening. The doctor never made a brighter speech than he did that night. He kept the large audience both amused and interested and they were not at all stinted in showing their delight. Miss Gertrude Somerville rendered a humber of very pleasing solos and was most heartily received. Miss Macdonald, of Ridgetown, and Miss Young, of Harwich, gave readings. There was a frankness about which was very winning, and this, coupled with his attractive face and high intellectual capacity, could scarcely fail to charm a girl so young, so in-experienced, and so impressionable as Mariorie.

TRACED BY A VALENITHE

Marjorie.

The clear, observant eye of Mr. Hyde saw all that was going forward.

He made no attempt to detach his nephew from the society of the lovely young stranger; nay, his countenance even lighted up with benevolent pleasure as he watched them.

It might have been one of the dearest desires of his heart to bring about an attachment between the two. Madeline, on the contrary, seemed displeased by her cousin's attentions When she could keep him apart from her she did so, and seemed, moreover, to find a malicious joy in doing it.

She spoke to him more than once in a tone of asperity, and the glances of her was jealous and mistrustful as she her was jealous and mistrustful as she noted Marjorie's cheek occasionally crimson beneath his glance. When the two girls retired that evening, Madeline called Marjorie into her room.

"Come and sit with me for a few minutes," she said. And, as they sat beside the fire to-gether, she began almost immediately, to speak of her two cousins.

Of Edgar she said little.

The bare mention of his name was enough to bring the flush to her cheek and the love-light to her eyes.

She loved him, and was not yet free enough with Marjorie to speak to her of her love. So much Marjorie was quick to understand.

But Madeline was by ne means equally reticent concerning Charles. Of him she spoke freely enough; and, although she framed no word of actual disparagement, it was easy to see she wished to prejudice the girl against A far less intelligent person than Marjorle would have discovered this.

She could not help a feeling of emharrassment.

It impelled her to touch some of the toilet table.

At first she fingered them abstractedly, and without noticing what they were, but after a minute or two she turned deathly pale, and uttered a gasping cry.

She held in her hand the locket which had been stolen from her father's escritoire on that fatal Valentine morning.

Nine years had passed since that dead father showed it her—nine years. She was then a child; she was a woman now.

But she recognized it the momen her eye fell on it—recognized it as surely as thought she had seen it but yesterday. "What is the matter?" asked Miss

Hyde, startled. "This locket!" And she held it out in her trembling fingers. "What is the matter with the locket, Marjorie?" "I have seen it before. It belonged to my father. He was murdered, and this was stolen from him." Pale as Marjorie's face was, it was scarcely as pale as Madaline's as she heard these words.

She had risen to her feet in her first excitement; but now she was too much agitated to continue in that attitude, Trembling, she sank into her seat agitated herself to notice the agitation "See this little chip ir showed me the locket, and I dropped it on the hearth—only five minutes be-fore he was murdered. Afterwards, my mother found the bit of enamel in the drawer, and I have kept it ever since

"Go and get it," said Madeline.

Her veice sounded strangely hoars and strained, though she was struggling hard for calmness. As to her face, it was shaded by he hand.

Almost wild with excitement, Manjorie went to do her bidding.
The moment the door had closed on her, Madeline drew her hand from be away so carefully that it had taken her ome time to find it.

Those three or four minutes had sufficed to restore Madeline to something like composure. When Mariorie quitted the room was with difficulty Miss Hyde kep herself from fainting; but she had dipped her face into a ewer of ice-cold water, and by that means had brought some slight vestige of color into it again.

It had braced her nerves, and prepared her to think and plan.

"See!" said Marjorie, kneeling down on the hearthrug in front of her, and disclosing a tiny fragment of blue enamel in the corner of an ivory box: "If you put it on the locket it fits ex-11.12 at

It did indeed. How strange it seemed that that do tached fragment should meet with the tached fragment snould meet stolen locket after all those years,

"How long have you had it? did you buy it? Oh, will you tell me please?" cried Marjorie, still in great excitement.

Miss Hyde passed her hand acros her brow, with a gesture of weariness as she said-

"I've been trying to think, Marjorie I have so many articles of jewelry, and have had this particular locket so long that I am not quite certain for the moment where it came from. Ah! I re-member now. I bought it in London it was about five years since, I think— at a shop in the neighborhood of Ludgate Hill. It was a second-hand shop and I saw the locket one day in the window, and went in to buy it. We were living in London, then."

"And the shop was near Ludgate Hill?" questioned Marjorie, breath

"Somewhere near there—in the neighbourhood of St. Paul's, at any rate. It is so long ago, I can't be quite certain as to the exact spot." The look of Marjorie's face, to be replaced by one of sadness. The locket seemed but a slender clu by which to trace her father's murder er, after all.

"And it was chipped when you bought it?" she asked, after a pause.
"Oh, yes," sald Madeline, withou hesitation.

After a moment or two she added"I didn't notice that till I had got iome, and it didn't seem worth while o return it.'

Madeline broke it by saying, very "Marjorie, tell me all about it—your father's death, I mean."

As she spoke she laid one hand on Marjorie's, while the other she pressed to her own forehead, half shading her

"I seldom speak of it," said Marjorie, sadly, "for it is very, very painful to me. I was a little child at the time, and I saw the murderer."
"What?"

Madeline's voice rose almost to a ream, so greatly was she affected by this intelligence.

Marjorie hastened to explain that it was only the shape, not the features, of the murderer she had seen, and then, very briefly and simply, she related the main incidents of the tragedy which had cast so dark a shadow over her young life.

Madeline, still shading her face with fer hand, listened in silence and when the story was concluded she said, very quietly and calmly— "Marjorie, I'm glad you've told me this, because, knowing how much you've had to suffer, I shall be able to sympathize with you—and help you, too, I hope. But I think you are wise in not speaking of it to every one."

"I couldn't do that," said Marjorie, softly, "even after all these years, it is too painful to me. I-did love my father—he was so good to me. Oh, he was kind and good to everybody. I don't think he ever did an unkind act in his life."

A tear had trembled da her long, dark lashes; but now she dashed it away, and her beautiful face was very stern, as she added-

"The man who killed him must have been flendishly cruel! Some day his crime will find him out. I feel it-I feel it here!'

She pressed her hand to her heart. "And would you wish that, Mar-forie?" asked Miss Hyde, with an accent of horror. "You are so gentle Prescott Identified.

Toronto, Oct. 7. — Thomas E. Smith, office secretary of Bewick, Moring & Co., London, representatives of the Great Fingall Consolidated, Limited, came to Toronto Monday night, to determine whether A. P. S. Prescott is Anthony Stanley Rowe, wanted by the English police for extensive embezzlement from the Great Fingall Consolidated.

Yesterday Mr. Smith and Detective Slemin went out to the jail and the officer asked the Governor to bring out Albert P. S. Prescott, who was first brought to the jail about a month ago.

The prisoner, when he appeared, glanced at Smith, but there was no sign of recognition upon his features. To a question by the Governor, Mr. Smith at once replied that the man before him was Anthony S. Rowe.

ILLEGAL SHOOTING

As boys and others have been illegally shooting meadowlarks, doves, robins and other insectionous birds protected by law, it might be well to warn them before they have a heavy fine to pay, that the only birds it is legal to shoot are game birds in their proper season, and hawks, blackbirds, crows and English sparrows. As the insectionous birds act was passed to preserve those birds that destroy insects so destructive to fruit, grain and vegedestructive to fruit, grain and vege-tation of all kinds, and as they are the best friend to the farmer. It is to be hoped that prowling boys with guns who are not happy unless killing useful birds, will be warned off by farmers.

The deputy wardens have been instructed to see that the insectionous birds are protected. The fine is not less than $5 nor more than $25 for each bird killed.

MUNE CABINET CHANGES.

RESIGNATION OF DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE.

Vacancies Filled-Hon, Alfred Lyttleton Colonial Secretary-Premier Balfour's Reply to the Duke of Devonshire, London, Oct. 6.-The Duke of Devonshire, who was reader of the Con-servative party in the House of Lords, as resigned the office of Lord President of the Council, and the King has accepted his/resignation.

The following new members of the Cabinet have been appointed:—

The Right Hon. St. John Brodrick, formerly Secretary for war, succeeds Lord George Hamilton as Secretary for India.

Austen Chamberlain, Postmaster-Chancellor of the Exchequer.

The Hon. Alired Lyttelton, Recorder of Oxford, succeeds the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain as Secretary for the Colonies.

Joseph Chamberlain as Secretary for the Colonies.

H. O. Arnold-Forster, Secretary for the Admiralty, succeeds Mr. Brodrick as Secretary for War.

The Right Hon. Graham Murray, Lord Advocate of Scotland, succeeds Lord Balbour of Burleigh as Secretary for Scotland.

Lord Stanley, Financial Secretary of the War Office, succeeds Austen Chamberlain as Postmaster-General.

The Duke of Devonshire wrote to Premier Balfour giving his reasons for his resignation, which he attributed, among other things, to the Premier's speech at Sheffield and his pamphlet on insular free trade. Mr. Balfour, in reply, says:—"It was fon Sept. 16 that you miormed me of your resolve to remain in the Government. This decision was preceded by much confidential correspondence, much intimate conversation. There was no phase of policy which I was not prepared to discuss and which I did not, in fact, discuss with perfect frankness. The decision arrived at I had a right to consider final. Accordingly I consulted you on the best mode of filling the vacancies in the Government of which you are the most distinguished member. You were good enough to express some weighty judgments on the delicate matters submitted to you. You even initiated proposals of your own, which I gladly accepted. Our last communication on these subjects was in the letter I dictated during my journey to Sheffield on Thursday afternoon.

"Less than forty-eight hours thereafter I received in Edinburgh the telegrams which first ennounced your. intention to resign, and your desire to see the process of resignation consummated without delay and without discussion. The principal occasion for this singular transformation was, you tell me, my Sheffield speech. This is strange, indeed. In intention, at least, there was no doctrine contained in that speech which was not contained in that speech which was not contained in the process of resignation consummated without delay and without discussion. The principal occasion for this singular transformation was, you tell me, my Sheffield speec culated to make harder the hard task of the peacemaker. Again, do you not feel some special regret at having, at this particular juncture, to sever your connection with a Unionist Administration? At the moment of its most buoyant prosperity your absence from its councils would have been sensibly felt, but you have, in fact, left it when in the opinion of your opponents its fortunes are at the lowest and its perplexities at the greatest? I see no difficulty in carrying out the policy, which for a fortnight you were willing to accept by the aid of an Administration which for a fortnight you helped to construct."

TROUBLE IN BRITTANY.

An Anti-Clerical Mob Charged by Cavalry.

Paris, Oct. 6.-According to the correspondent of The Gaulois some disturbance, occurred at L'Orient, a fortiturbance occurred at L'Orient, a fortified seaport in Brittany, where a band of anti-clericals broke through a cordon of troops and attempted to set fire to the Church of St. Louis, but were charged by cavalry, who arrested fiteen of them. Another mob assembled near the church at 10 o'clock at night and threw stones at the troops, who were again compelled to charge. The Ministerial papers and the semi-official agency, however, declare that no disturbances occurred.

Mission Burned at Windsor.

Windsor, Oct. 5.—The Mercer Street Mission, also called the Messiah Temple, was burned to the ground at 4 am., pogether with all the church fixtures and furniture, including the organ and library. The edifice, which was a small wooden structure, was used by the colored people in the neighborhood.

YOU WILL BE ALL SMILES AVAIN

Forget Your Stomach and You'll Have a Santa Claus Face.

HOW TO DO IT.

If there is one thing more than all others that will give a man a forlorn and friendless appearance and make him morbid and "cranky" and diagreeable, that thing is dyspepsia. It makes one forget his friends and become morose and irritable. He is so wrapped up in his own misery that he is inconsiderate of every one else. Relieving of this terrible and depressing ailment, he again becomes a good fellow and a man among men.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are beyond question the most effective and popular remedy ever offered to the sufferers of this terrible disease. The thousands and thousands of cures they have brought about and the enormous increase of their sales fully attest the truth of this statement.

They are, above all, a natural remedy. They possess exactly the same properties that the gastric juices and other digestive fluids of the stomach possess, and they actually do the digestive work of the stomach and ienable that organ to rest and recuperate and become sound and well. They act in a mild, natural manner and cause no disturbance in the digestive organs. They prevent any fermentation of the food which causes sour stomach. In fact, under their influence the subject forgets that he has a stomach and his resulting cheerfulness presents a great contrast to his former dejection.

Millions of boxes of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold annually and they are but in the dawn of their popularity. Every mail brings leiters of thanksgiving from grateful ones who have been cured of this terrible disease. The following is one of hundreds received each week:

Rev. J. R. Hoag, of Wymore, Neb, writes: "For six years I have been troubled with dyspepsia. Last fall I became very much alarmed at some symptoms of heart trouble and came to believe there was a sympathetic relation between the two diseases, or rather, that the stomach trouble was the cause of the heart disturbances. I hi' thon Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets for a remedy and invested a dollar and any kind of food I want and have a good, vigorous appetite. Althoug

Astor's New Hotel. Colonel John Jacob Astor's $5,000,000 hotel, the St. Regis, on Fifth avenue, New York, which it is planned to open next Thanksgiving day, will be nine-teen stories high, with a three story basement. Apparently no expense is being spared in the construction of the St. Regis. The machinery installed in the basement will, it is said, cost $750,-600 and the plumbing $250,000. A million dollars' worth of furniture and bric-a-brac, $150,000 for the decorations of a Roman court and $50,000 for the fur nishings of what will be known as "the royal suit" are some of the other items that go toward making up the $5,000,000. the Cabinet. London, Oct. 6. - Late last evening the Duke of Devonshire's letter to Mr. Balfour was communicated to the press. It says in part :- "I have since we last met felt increasing doubt whether I had been well advised in consenting to separate myself from those of our colleagues whose resignations were tendered and accepted last month."

Referring to the Sheffield speech, the Duke says :- "I was prepared by our discussions for your statemen that you desired to obtain the sanction our discussions for your statement that you desired to obtain the sanction of the constituencies, for a reversal of the doctrine that taxation should never be imposed except for purposes of revenue and this is no doubt the principal and most-definite statement in your speech. I admit that you have succeeded in making this declaration the basis of a great political announcement, but in my opinion that announcement has been extended very far beyond the necessities of the case. "It was unnecessary in my opinion to assert that you desired to reverse the fiscal tradition, to alter fundamentally the fiscal tradition that has prevailed during the last two generations. I had hoped to have found in your speech a definite statement of adherence to the principles of free trade as the ordinary basis of our fiscal and commercial system and an equally definite repudiation of the principle of protection in the interest of our national industries. But in their absence I cannot help thinking that such declarations as those which I have quoted cannot fail to have the effect of materially encouraging the advocates of direct protection, and of discouraging those who, like me, and I hoped yourself, believed that our present system of free imports and especially of food imports, is on the whole most advantageous to the country, although we do not contend that the principles on which it rests possess any such authority or sancity as to forbid any departure from it.

"You have in your speech said that this subject could no longer be left an open question among the members of the Government, and I think have said enough to prove to you that there is no such agreement between open question among the members of the Government, and I think have said enough to prove to you that there is no such agreement between us on the general question as to make it possible for me to be a satisfactory exponent of your views or those of the Government in the debates which must inevitably take place in the next session of Parliament.

"I cannot adequately express the deep regret which I feel in separating myself from a Government with which I believe myself to be in sympathy on all other matters of public policy or the anxiety with which I anticipate the wide division, which I fear must result from the unexpected scope and strength of your declarations, in the ranks of the Unionist party."

Terrible State of Affairs in the North.

Ottawa, Oct. 6.-Mr. J. M. Macour of the Geolgical Survey staff, who has travelled extensively in northern Canada from Labrador to Alaska, says that nowhere has he seen drunkenness so common among Indians and half-breeds as at Lesser Slave Lake and to the north. This is due to the and to the north. This is due to the sale of essences and perfumes made specially for the northern trade, which are really little more than pure alcohol, flavored so as to allow of their being labelled "essence of ginger," "Florida water," "peppermint," "eau de Cologne," etc. No language could exaggerate the demoralizing influence upon the natives of the present condition of affairs. The missionaries and others are in despair.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct., . - The trial of the eleven rioters began yesterday, and, coners began yesterday, and, contrary to expectation, was concluded at 4 o'clock this afternoon. All of the men, through their solicitor, pleaded guilty to the charges, which had been considerably modified. The most interesting case was that against Andrew Dean, who was charged with shooting and also with having incited to riot. The former charge was dismissed, while on the latter he was fined 25. Leonard Lavergne, Albert Robinson, Baptiste Rozon, Edouard Gaissen and Fred Winer were fined 25 or two months is jail at hard labor fer rioting, and 310 or thirty days for assaulting the police. Dupont will be tried on Thursday on a charge of assuiting Feliceman Littlewood. Gfenier and Dault, the two men who were shot in an encounter with the police, were let go on suspended sentence. A distressing case of Fibroid Tumor, which baffled the skill of Boston doctors. Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, Mass., in the following letter tells how she was cured, after everything else failed, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Hayes' First Letter Appealing to Mrs. Pinkham for Help: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I have been under Boston doctors' treatment for a long time without any relief. They tell me I have a fibroid tumor. I cannot sit down without great pain, and the soreness extends up my spine. I have bearing-down pains both back and front. My abdomen is swollen, and I have had flowing spells for three years. My appetite is not good. I cannot walk or be on my feet for any length of time.

"The symptoms of Fibroid Tumor given in your little book accurately describe my case, so I write to you for advice."—(Signed) Mrs. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St., (Roxbury) Boston, Mass.

Note the result of Mrs. Pinkham's advice-although she advised Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, to take her medicine - which she knew would help her her letter contained a mass of additional instruc-tions as to treatment, all of which helped to bring about the happy result.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Sometime ago I wrote to you describing my symptoms and asked your advice.—You replied, and I followed all your directions carefully, and to-day I am a well woman.

"The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound entirely expelled the tumor and strengthened my whole system. I can walk miles now.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth five dollars a drop. I advise all women who are affiited with tumors or female trouble of any kind to give it a faithful trial."—(Signed) Mas. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St., (Roxbury) Boston, Mass.

Mountains of gold could not purchase such testimony—or take the place of the health and happiness which Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought to Mrs. Hayes.

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for all the distressing ills of women; all ovarian troubles; tumors; inflammations; ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb; backache; irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation. Surely the volume and character of the testimonial letters we are daily printing in the newspapers can leave no room for doubt.

Mrs. Hayes at her above address will gladly answer any letters which sick women may write for fuller information about her illness. Her gratitude to Mrs. Pinkham and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so genuine and heartfelt that she thinks no trouble is too great for her to take in return for her health and happiness.

Truly is it said that it is Lydis E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing so many women, and no other medicine; don't forget this when some druggist wants to sell you something else.

Stanstead Junction, P. Q., 12th Aug., MESSRS, C. C. RICHARDS & CO. Gentlemen, I fell from the bridge leading from a platform to a loaded car while assisting my men in unload-ing a load of grain. The bridge went down as well as the load on my back and I struck on the ends of the sleep-ers, causing a serious injury to my leg. Only for its being very fleshy would have broken it. In an hour I would have broken it. In an hour I could not wal k a step. Commenced using MINARD'S LINIMENT and the third day went to Montreal on business and got about well by the use of a cane. THE KING COBRA.

It Is Considered the Most Dangerous of All the Snake Family.

Snakes, venomous snakes, may be di vided into two classes, the cobras and the viperoids. The cobras, inhabitants of distant India, form a class apart. To the viperoids belong all other venomous species, including our ewn splen-did rattler, the moccasin, the fer de lance of the West Indies and the deadly bushmaster of Venezuela and the Diametrically opposite, though equally fatal, are the effects of the cobra and the viperoid poison. Diametrically opposite also, are the two methods of attack. The cobra at times is aggressive, the king cobra being said even to pursue man. Silent, without the least warning and from a place where you would least suspect, the round head darts out of a thicket, a sharp pain causes you to exclaim, and the frightful fangs of the snake are buried in your flesh. Like the grip of a bulldog they flesh. Like the grip of a bulldog they hold fast, while from five to ten feet of animated cable come stretching out of the thicket to coil leisurely beneath the dread head.

For this eternal hold on the victim there is a natural reason. The fangs of the ten foot cobra are but a third of an inch long. It is impossible, therefore, to squirt the venom deep in a single stroke. In order to give the venom time to absorb the snake must retain its hold. The fatal poison contains about 95 per cent of nerve destroying and about 5 per cent of blood destroying elements. Within five minutes the pain leaves the wound, and even the shock of the attack begins to wear off. There is little suffering, nor will there be to the relentless end. Only if by chance the bite is one from a small snake or if a fresh supply of antitoxin happens to be at hand is there a chance for your life. If one recovers from the immediate effects within a week one is as healthy as ever. While the poison of the cobra often kills within an hour, there have been cases where the "strike" of a rattlesnake and a bushmaster have caused death within ten minutes. Naturalists accept, however that the king cobra, owing to its grea size and the consequent quantity and quality of poison emitted, is the most dangerous of all the snakes. - Mc

TURNPIKE SAILORS.

The Term by Which Tramps Are Known Throughout England.

The term "ocean tramp" is known to many landsmen. Its verbal antithesis, "turnpike sailor," is probably less familiar outside thieves' circles, where, Mayhew tells us in his "London Labor and the London Poer," it is used to denote a beggar masquerading in mariner's garb. Among the Wessex peasants, whose vocabulary, if limited, is singularly effective, it bears a racier meaning. Thus they designate a par-ticular class of "traveling folk" who roam the country from place to place as a sailor roams the sea. The name might well be applied to the whole no-mad tribe-tinkers, hawkers, gypsies, itinerant showmen and the like-but for some reason or other it is confined to the tramp proper, the seedy, out at elbows individual who is to be seen slouching along the highroad or begging from door to door in the villages. Sometimes he is alone; more often a friend of his own degree keeps him company; occasionally a depressed look-ing wife and ragged children straggle at his heels. He toils not neither does spin; he "pays no rent," as an aggrieved householder remarked to the present writer, and be seldom puts into port, for longer than a night at a time unless compelled by circumstances be-yond his control, when he is lodged in a spacious mansion, is boarded gratis and is provided with the "job" which he professes to be always anxiously seeking and seldom manages to find. As a rule, he sleeps "rough"—in the open, that is—or in any convenient shed, except when the state of his finances permits him the luxury of the tramps' lodging house, which, on the evidence of a country policeman, is "the noisiest, drunkenest"-he had almost said "the jolliest"—place in the town.—London Spectator.

Chamberlain's Woods.

Here is a story of an amusing in-eldent that occurred at Highbury a few years ago. Mr. Chamberlain had planted a number of young larches about his grounds with the object of about his grounds with the object of ultimately having the place well wooded. One night he gave a dinner party, to which, among others, his son, the present Postmaster-General, was invited. The latter was very was invited. The latter was very late, and the assembled guests were kept waiting for him in the drawing room, to the obvious annoyance of his father. At length, Austen Chamberlain arrived, and in reply to his father's remark as to his lack of punctuality, he said, with a sly glance at some of those present. "Oh, I must really apologise. I should have been here in ample time, but as a matter of fact, I lest my way in your woods." There was a regular outburst of marriment at this, as the "woods" in question were about two feet high at that time.—London Answers.

"The Beer That is Brewed In Glass"

We use the mechanical refrigeration (ice machines) instead of natural ice for cooling both the beer and our cellars because it is the only sanitary method and temperatures are controlled with absolute certainty, enabling a brewer to produce far better beer.

We have duplicate refrigeratoring machines to provide against injury to the beer on account of improper refrigeration, arising from accident to machinery.

We do not manufacture ice and cool with itbut we remove the heat from the rooms thereby producing cold.

The natural ice method is antiquated and unsanitary.

All things being equal, a home industry is entitled in preference but in brewing the investment required to produce a reasonably perfect beer is so large that but few will undertake it providing their intention is to furnish a PUPE, WHOLESOME and PROPERLY AGED BEER.

and PROPERLY AGED BEER.

A properly constructed and equipped plant can hardly be constructed, equipped and operated on an investment of less than $75,000.

We use large necked bottles to permit of cleaning properly. It is almost impossible to throughly cleanse a small necked bottle and if not cleansed the beer is sure to become infected and ptomaine poisoning follows.

Lager beer that is too young or improperly finished will produce bowel troubles, but the expense and risk in carrying beer to a proper age causes many to dedge it and let the consumer pay the penalty.

We have storage capacity for over 200,000 gallons of Lager, Ale and Porter in bulk, exclusive cf our bottle storage cellars, and ship only thoroughly matured goods.

CHAMBERLAIN'S SPEECH.

EMPIRE FISCAL SCHEME OUT-LINED AT GLASGOW.

Colonies Are Willing - History of Protection and Progress of British Trade Dealt With.

Glasgow, Oct. 7 .- Whatever may b the opinion held regarding the great question which Mr. Chamberlain has aised or the probable issue of his campaign, it is generally admitted that ne has opened it in a masterly manner. For nearly two hours last night he had a vast and enthusiastic audience absorbed. As though inspired by the knowledge that the practical collapse and breakup of the Unionist party left him in sole possession of the field, he spoke with more than his customary energy and persuasiveness. It was an acceptance of the field of the fi spoke with more than his customary energy and persuasiveness. It was an inspiring scene within St. Andrew's Hall, where he delivered his speech. Every corner of the auditorium was packed with a crowd cheering, singing and waving handkerchiefs as Mr. Chamberlain went to the platform. A distinguished company of Peers and members of the House of Commons were present. He was greeted at the close with a great demonstration. The points of his speech attracting remarkable attention were his eulogy of Mr. Balfour; his representation of the coming struggle as one greater in its Balfour; his representation of the coming struggle as one greater in its consequences than the Boer war; his description of the American tariff as an abomination.

He proposed to put a low duty, not exceeding two shillings (forty-eight cents) a quarter on foreign corn, but none on corn from the British possessions. He proposed no tax on maize, partly because it formed the food of some of the very poorest among the population, and partly because it was raw material as feeding stuff. He proposed a corresponding tax on flour, and he would give special preference to the miller, with the object of reestablishing one of our ancient industries and of preventing a rush from the country to the town, and also of placing corn, offal and feeding stuffs more cheaply within the possession of the farmer.

A small tax of about 5 pag cent on more cheaply within the possession of the farmer.

A small tax of about 5 per cent. on foreign meat and dairy products would be imposed, excluding bacon, which was the food of so many of the poorest of the population. Lastly, he proposed to give a substantial preference to the colonies on wines and fruits.

Against these increases he proposed some great remissions. He proposed to take off three-quarters of the duty on tea, half the duty on sugar, with corresponding reductions upon eccoa and coffee. The net result of these impositions and remissions would be that the town artisans' food would, according to the most elaborate calculation, cost tewn artisans' food would, according to the most elaborate calculation, cost him two pence half penny (five cents) less per week than it did at present, while that of the agricultural laborer would cost him two pence (four cents) less; but if, as he believed, a great part of the tax on food would be paid by the foreigner, there would be a reduction in the cost of food both for the artisan and the agricultural laborer. The loss to the exchequer he estimated at £2,600,000.

A moderate duty of 10 per cent. on manufactured goods would give to the exchequer £9,000,000 a year, and the would make use of that for remission would make use of that for remission of taxes.

Preceding the policy outlined, Mr. Chamberlain, after a few preliminaries, said: "I do not think it right to raise any exclusive party issues, but, after what has occurred since the meeting at Sheffield, a word or two might be given me to say that, if I am no longer a leader, I am still a loyal servant of the party whose union and strength are essential to the welfare of the empire, and which had found a leader whom every member may be proud to follow."

The speaker paid the highest tribute to Mr. Balfour. He continued: "It aeems as though in this country there have always been men who did not know the meaning of loyalty and friendship. To them I say that nothing they may do will have the slightest menue of affect in the slightest menue."

they may do will have the slightest mfluence to affect in the slightest degree the friendship and confidence existing between the Premier and myself.

"I have invited discussion upon a question peculiarly within my province owing to my past life, and the office I so recently held. Great Britain in the past has played a great part in the world's history. I desire her to continue, and see the realization of the great ideal of an empire such as the world has never seen."

great ideal of an empire such as the world has never seen."

The late Colonial Secretary alluded to the recent collapse of the ancient and historical Campanile at Venice, and continued: "I do not say that I anticipate such a fate for the British Empire, but I do say that I see signs of decay, cracks and crevices showing that the foundations are not broad and deep enough to sustain it. Am I wrong to warn you? Is it not strauge and inconsistent that the same people who indicted the Government for its unpreparedness in the South African war should now denounce me in language equally extravagant, because I want to prepare you for a struggle, so serious that if you for a struggle, so serious that if we are defeated the country will lose its place among the great nations, a struggle which we are invited to meet with antiquated methods and tactics."

Mr. Chamberlain contrasted the modern the struggle with the contrasted the modern than the struggle with antiquated methods and tactics." with antiquated methods and tactics. Mr. Chamberlain contrasted the moderate increase of 7 1-2 per cent. in the export trade of Great Britain and the increase of 30 per cent. in her population since 1872 with the enormous insreases of trade in the United States and Germany, and he asked how the country would expect to support its growing population, with its trade pracetically stagnant for thirty years. He proceeded: "On the other hand the protected countries, which I myself at one time thought were going rapidly to wreck and ruin, have progressed infinitely better in proportion than ourselves, and instead of our remaining the workshop of the world we are sending less and less of our manufactures abroad, whilst the protected sountries are sending more and more at their manufactures here. Thus, our manufactured exports to the protected sountries of Europe and the United States, from £116,000,000 in 1873, have gradually dwindled to £73,500,000 in 1902. In the same period our exports to non-manufacturing countries, like Egypt, China and South America, have practically remained unchanged This loss of trade to the protected countries has not been noticed hither to, because during the same period oue exports to the British colonies have increased in ratio to counterbalance, this loss, and are now more valuable than our trade with the whole of Europe and the United States together. Our colonial trade, in fact, is the most rapidly increasing, important and valu-Our colonial trade, in fact, is the most rapidly increasing, important and valuable of all our trade. Meanwhile, foreign exports to the United Kingdom have risen from £63,000,000 in 1872 to £140,000,000 in 1902. I do not comment on that, but when I am told that we ought to hold the same opinions as our ancestors, I reply to that, we should if the circumstances remained the same.

as our ancestors, I reply to that, we should if the circumstances remained the same.

"Now, what is the history of protection? First, there is tariff and no industries. Then, gradually, primary industries, for which the country has natural facilities, grow up, behind the tariff walls. Then, secondary industries spring up; first of necessaries, then olluxuries, until at last all together is covered. In the United States the process is completed. She produces everything and excludes everything.

"We can intervene now, but it is doubtful whether we could intervene twenty years hence. We can say to our colonies: We understand your views and aspirations, and do not desire to dictate, or think ourselves superior to you; we recognize your right to develop your industries so as not sire to dictate, or think ourselves superior to you; we recognize your right to develop your industries so as not to be dependent on foreign supplies but there are many things you do not know how to make, for which we have a great capacity of production leave them to us; do not increase the tariff walls against us; let us exchange with you for your productions; do it because we are kinsmen, because it is good are the empire as a whole, and because we have taken the first step and set you the example; we offer you a preference; we rely upon your patriotism and your affection that we shall not b losers thereby.

"Suppose we had made such an offeit of the United States and Germany ten or twenty years ago, do you suppose that we should not have been able to retain a great deal of what we have lost, and can not recover? America it the strictest of the protective nations.

that we should not have been able to retain a great deal of what we have lost, and can not recover? Amwica is the strictest of the protective nations. It has a tariff which, to me, is an abomination, it is so immoderate, unreasonable and unnecessary; and, although America has profited enormously. I think it has been carried cexcessive lengths, and I believe that a great number of intelligent Americans would gladly negotiate with us for its reduction. But until very recent times even this immoderate tariff left us the great timplate trade, amounting to millions of pounds per annum, and which we might have kept if we had been able to give some reciprocal advantage. It would not have been worth America's while to put a duty upon an article of which it had no particular use or special aptitude.

"Were we to lose the colonial as we have lost the foreign trade, we should be at the parting of the ways. If the opportunity is not seized now it will not recur. Canada would fall to that level of the United States, Australia to the level of Canada, and South Africa to the level of Australia; and that would be the beginning of a general decline which would gob us of our most important trade."

Mr. Chamberlain said he believed that the colonies "are prepared to meet us in return for a moderate preference. They would reserve to us the trade we already enjoy; also arrange their tariffs, in the future in order not to start industries in competition with those already in existence in the mother country; and not only would they enable us to retain our trade with them, but they would give us preference on all trade done with them by our foreign competitors.

He had spoken with many colonists, who believed that the present colonial relations could not be permanent. The must either he are all looked as a brilliant possibility. He wished to repeat explicitly that he did not wish to tax raw materials used in British manufacturto which they all looked as a brilliant possibility. He wished to repeat explicitly that he did not wish to tax raw materials used in British manufactures. He said he proposed nothing that would add one farthing to the cost of living of any workingman or of any family in the country.

The question was, what would the colonies say? He believed they would treat generously any offer Great Britain might make.

Mr. Chamberlain concluded:—"I warn you, I urge you, I impiore you to do nothing that will tend towards the disintegration of the empire, not to refuse to sacrifice futile supersition and inept prejudice and thereby to lose the result of centuries of noble effort and patriotic endeavor."
