Local Items

By adv't this week it will be seen that the real estate of the late Duncan Fisher is to be sold by auction on June 17; also all stock and tools connected with his carriage business.

On his departure from Brockville, Judge Fisher of Pembroke was presented with a valuable gold watch and an appreciative address by citizens of the town. Mrs Fisher was similarly honored by General Brock Chamberlaine, Daughters of the Empire, of which she was Regent, and received as a parting gift the emblem of the order inset with pearls.

Ford Hockey of McIntosh Mills was shocked by lightning during the storm on Monday and has since been in an unconscious state. He was standing in the door of the school watching the storm when he suddenly fell to the floor. Ford is remembered here as a candidate at the entrance examinations last year.

A report gained currency last week that Mr J. H. Sexton had been engaged as principal of Goderich Collegiate Institute. We are pleased to be in a position to correct this erroneous report. Mr Sexton has re-engaged as principal of Athens High School for next year and students may rely upon the efficiency of the school being fully maintained.

The Customs Department at Ottawa intend to rigidly put down smuggling at the St. Lawrence ports and at Brockville and other points officers have been instructed to be at the wharves and to open and search any baggage, large or small, which is being brought into Canada and which may contain articles on which duty should be collected. A lady officer is now stationed at Brockville.

The annual lawn social of the Ladies Aid of Christ's Church is an event that is always anticipated with pleasure by the people of Athens and vicinity. It is to be held this season on the spacious lawn of Mrs Loverin and Mrs Shook. Strawberries will be served at supper and there will also be an ice cream booth on the ground. Tickets, 25c. The proceeds are for the rectory fund and there should and no doubt will be a very large attendance.

Dominion Day will not be observed as a holiday by the stores of Brockville this year. At a recent meeting of the Merchants, it was decided that on account of the visit of the Peterboro regiment 400 strong to Brockville on that day, it would be advisable to keep the stores open. Coronation Day, June 22nd, will, however, be a holiday in Brockville. The merchants also decided to hold their annual picnic at Delta Park on civic holiday, Aug. 7th.

Two dogs died mysteriously in the South ward last week. On Friday morning a mongrel hound was found dead on Elgin street and on Saturday morning the dead body of another dog, of collie lineage, was found on Church street. The last dog was the property of Mr H. Redford. The residents of that section are unable to account for the mortality.

Rev. Dr. D. V. Lucas, one of the oldest and best known ministers in the Hamilton district of the Methodist Church, died at the City Hospital on Saturday after a week's illness. He was well known as a pulpit orator. He was born near that city 77 years ago, and after his ordination went to Victoria, B.C., as a missionary. Since that he had travelled extensively and was well known throughout Canada, both as a preacher, temperance lecturer, and an author. For a time he lived in St. Catharines with his son, Dr. Lucas. The body will be sent to Grimsby for interment in Woodlawn Cemetery.

On Monday members of the Epworth League enjoyed a very pleasant social evening, as a result of a mission ary fund contest, the losers entertaining the winners. Rev. F. A. Read presided and after devotional exercises recitations were given by Miss Ethel Mansell and Miss Mina Donnelly, and a vocal solo was sung by Miss Culbert. Refreshments in abundance were served. Mr Farr was victorious in a floral contest and was presented with a handsome shower bouquet. All interludes were filled with choice selections on Mr Cornell's gramophone, and the gathering voted the event a success despite the charges necessitated by unfavorable weather conditions.

Farm and Dairy and the Athens Reporter will be sent one year to any address in Canada for $1.50.

A GREAT STORM

A fierce storm passed over this section on Monday, continuing for about an hour. The thunder was continuous and the flashes of lightning were most vivid. In the midst of the storm a flash of lightning and sharp clap of thunder coming simultaneously indicated that the electric fluid had come to earth in the vicinity. Great quantities of rain fell and all water courses were flooded. When the storm subsided it was learned that a flag-pole erected on the store of G. W. Beach had been struck and shattered. The four guy-wires appear to have divided the current, which did no damage to the metal roof of the building. Sulphurous smoke prevailed in the vicinity for some time.

Several telephones were burned out and both the Rural and Bell centrals were put out of business.

The house of Thos. Matthews, situated on Moore's hill, at the western confines of the village, was also struck. The lightning wrecked the chimney, passed down through the stove pipes, opened the doors and removed the lids of the stove, and then passed into the cellar by way of a trap door.

Mr Albert Sheffield had a valuable Holstein cow killed by lightning. It bore no mark of the fluid, but the rails on a fence near where it was found were splintered for a considerable distance.

IN BAD CONDITION

About a year ago, the writer, (an old Athens boy) visited the old home after an absence of 15 years, and was delighted at the various improvements of your beautiful little city and surrounding country until we visited the cemetery, the last resting place of our departed friends, where we found dilapidated conditions. The brush, grass and weeds, with the old undergrowth makes its condition disgraceful.

Many wealthy families have relatives and friends buried there, (some lots are well kept) fathers, mothers, sisters, daughters, and wives. There seems to be a lack of interest to clean up and keep the cemetery in good condition, which can be done with very little expense, if properly managed.

Lisbon has one of the most beautiful little cemeteries to be found in the U. S. or Canada, and I would suggest that the good people of Athens would awake and do something to make the Athens cemetery a credit to your beautiful little city.

Somebody or some institution must own this land, and I would suggest that you incorporate a cemetery association (it appears to me that Oakwood or Oaklawn Cemetery Association would be appropriate, with those beautiful oaks at the south), elect your proper officers and put your cemetery in a prosperous and beautiful condition, with very little expense to each individual.

In a few words I will outline the beginning of our Cemetery improvement. The women's club put a notice in the paper, "Why Not Beautify Our Cemetery" (or if you have not Women's club the W.C.T.U.) and the consequence was that the Club put on a home talent play for the benefit of the cemetery association, advertised its purpose, and the net receipts broke all records of the opera house, as nearly as $500.00 was realized. Our cemetery is planted, and lots sell from $10 to $100, according to location and size. Each lot owner pays the small sum of $1.00 to $3.00 annually to maintain and keep the grounds in fine condition. I hope in the near future to hear of some marked improvement in Athens, "Oaklawn" or Oakwood Cemetery.

Yours for a better kept cemetery,
C. D. Clow.

District Meeting

The district meeting of the Women's Institute, held at Newboro on June 2, was highly successful. Darling, Lansdowne; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs (Dr.) Elliot, Seeley's Bay; sec.-treas., Mrs Geo. Godkin, Oak Leaf; directors, Mrs H. W. McNally, Westport; Mrs R. Grothier, Newboro; Miss Laura Bracken, Seeley's Bay; Miss M. Barlow, Delta; Miss N. Donevan, Melcombe. Auditors, Mrs E. G. Adams, Westport; Mrs W. H. Whaley, Newboro.

INDOOR AIR AND HEALTH.

WAYS OF THE MORE ORDERLY.

An industrial commission appointed by Congress was conducting certain investigations with reference to the operation of mills and factories in various parts of the country, and the members became especially interested in the working of one mill in a Southwestern State. The investigators were in one room when the whistle blew for noon. The operators put up their tools and vanished as if by magic.

A GENTLE REMINDER.

(The Bells.) It was midnight. The burglar had entered the house as usual. He had just reached the door of the bedroom when he heard someone moving in the bed as if about to get up and he paused. He heard a woman's voice, "It's all right," she said. "If you don't take your boots off when you come into this house," it said, "there's going to be trouble, and a whole lot of it. Here it's been raining for three hours, and I've got to sweep over my carpets with your boots on." Go down stairs and take them off this minute!"

ALAS! THE WORKING MAN.

A KINGLY FASHION.

(New York Herald.) It is reported that King George appeared at the course wearing a high white hat and carrying in his hand a gold-headed cane. The late King Edward set many fashions, not a few of which were excellent ones. He is said to have loved soda lemonade, and in his later years he did much to popularize the straw hat and other informal and comfortable articles of summer apparel. It is largely owing to him that the silk hat, once an object of idolatrous worship in the eyes of the English, is now nothing more than a head covering, and not a universal one either. If the complaints of the haters are well founded, among other things that he helped to make popular in England were Americans and some of their early going customs.

King George's tastes differ in many respects from those of his lamented father, and perhaps the high white hat and gold-headed cane are forerunners of a return of the greater austerity and formality of Victoria's times, and remains to be seen whether his influence will extend to this side of the water. The last high white hat disappeared with the straw in the horse cars and among the few cases carried nowadays the gold-headed one is rarely to be effective. The nap of the high hat should be brushed the wrong way; in that it was always worn during the reading of the Declaration of Independence on the Fourth of July.

A MOTHER'S PRAISE OF BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. Allen Mason, Carleton, N. B., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets ever since I have had children and that is going on fifteen years. I have always found them entirely satisfactory for all the ailments of little ones and feel that I cannot praise them too highly." Mrs. Mason's praise is just that of thousands of mothers who consider Baby's Own Tablets the only safe and sure remedy to keep in the house for their little ones. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GUARD YOUR I. L.S.

How true it is that without a vision the people perish, says Orison Sweet Marden, in "Success Magazine." Where the pursuits are sordid, where the highest aim is the all-absorbing ambition to make money, everything that is finest, cleanest and most beautiful in life evaporates; the nature coarsens. This is the threatening picture of American character to-day.

The vast resources and great commercial prizes of this country are so tempting, so fascinating, that by the time they are ready for active life our youth are so saturated with commercialism, so ambitious to coin every bit of their ability, their education, their influence, their friendships, almost everything into dollars, that all else is neglected. They lose their ideals, which are the true test of character.

At the Yarmouth Y. M. C. A. Boys' Camp, held at Tusket Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sun burn, and immediate relief for colic and toothache.

BREAD CAST ON THE WATERS.

When the conductor came to collect the young lady's fare she discovered that she had left her pocketbook at the office where she works as stenographer. It is a predicament not uncommon with city dwellers, but the rest of the story as told takes a new and agreeable turn. "Why, I'm afraid I have any money with me," she said, looking very much embarrassed. The conductor said nothing, but stood there and waited. "I guess I'll have to get off," said the girl. "I have left my pocketbook at the office."

GIRLS RUN THE ELEVATOR.

Milwaukee boasts of something new—girl elevator operators, duly licensed by the municipal inspector and certified to be competent not only to run lifts but to make ordinary repairs on them. There are two of them and they have solved a problem for the Young Women's Christian Association managers, who stroked up against a combination of a building with elevators and a rule against men employees. "The elevator man" was not allowed "to set foot" in the Young Women's Christian Association, the officials had the two young women take a course in elevator running and repairing, and now everything is lovely. —St. Louis Times.

"Love makes the world go round," quoted the Wise Guy. "Yes," assented the Simple Mug, "provided you have enough rocks for ballast."

THEY ONLY WEPT LIKE PENITENTS.

A typical old-time "circuit rider" died recently in Alabama—a man whose godly, unselfish life will long be remembered. Many were the eccentrics of this rugged old man, and many anecdotes are current among the Methodist ministers of the State concerning him. He was noted for two things—his nomenclature of sin in no uncertain tones and the familiarity with which he addressed the Lord in prayer.

THE PUBLIC TOO OFTEN FAKED.

Unscrupulous dealers, actuated by large profits, often recommend corn cures as good as Putnam's. There is only one genuine Corn Extract, and that is Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extract, which in twenty-four hours cures warts, corns, callouses and bunions. Putnam's is a miracle of efficacy and promptness. Try it. 25c a bottle.

ACIDULOUS MARGARET FULLER.

Margaret would fain please those whom she held worthy or whose woes she could relieve, but she had an indifference which often acidulated into scorn or compassion, neither of which are usually endearing traits. It was therefore only after an interval of preliminary events, apparently, that those who were afterward her friends became such, while to those whose virtues she had deeply and not always unconsciously wounded she appeared a harsh vixen, somewhat of a poet which he resented, but that she ought to have spared so good natured and generous a person as Longfellow.

This was true, so she ought; but if she had, it would have cost her still more of her own grievance.—From an address by F. B. Sanborn.

If allowed to roam over your house those few innocent-looking house flies may cause a real tragedy any day, as they are known to be the principal agents for the spread of those deadly diseases, typhoid fever, diphtheria and smallpox.

LESSER OF EVILS.

The late Phil May delighted in telling how he turned the tables on a friend at a time when he was "on his uppers" in a small town in Australia. He prevented nothing else, but found employment as a waiter in a fourth-class eating house. One day a man who had known the famous Black-and-White artist in London dropped in and took a seat to take his order, mutual recognition followed. "Phil May!" the visitor exclaimed. "And compelled to work in a hole like this!"

"That's true," replied the artist; "I have sunk pretty low, I'll admit, but I haven't yet got so far down that I have to eat here."—Metropolitan Magazine.

A FAMOUS FISHING WELL. Near Boston, Spa, in Yorkshire, England, there is a so-called wishing well, which is called upon for a combination of a building with elevators and a rule against men employees. "The elevator man" was not allowed "to set foot" in the Young Women's Christian Association, the officials had the two young women take a course in elevator running and repairing, and now everything is lovely. —St. Louis Times.

A HARD ONE.

"Of what famous novel are you reminded by the extra charge rich people are willing to pay for the privilege of riding on a special train?" "Gee, that's too continuous for me. What's the answer?" "Vanity Fair, of course."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

AN AUTO FEAT.

Motor Jumping Extraordinary in British Columbia.

(Victoria Colonist.)

One of the most remarkable accidents in the annals of motoring occurred during a race at the Brooklands tracks recently, when a car dashed up the embankment at the rate of ninety miles an hour and cleared a ravine forty feet wide. The driver, Mr. G. Wilkinson, was seriously hurt, his skull being fractured.

Mr. Wilkinson was driving a 27 h.p. Benz car, owned by Mr. A. T. Craig, and he had just passed the post at the end of the seventh race when, to the dismay of the onlookers, instead of slowing down his car he tore up the side of the banking, which at its highest point is sixty feet from the ground.

It was obvious that the clutch had jammed and that Mr. Wilkinson, an experienced motorist, was helpless. Arrived at the top of the track the car leaped into the air, and taking its direction from the upward slant of the banking, shot upward with a momentum which carried it over the telegraph wires, which are ten feet above the top of the track, and over a chain sixty feet deep and forty feet wide. With the driver still clinging to the wheel the car cleared an iron railing on the other side of the ravine, and then plunged into a maze of treetops, tearing away branches and twigs.

One of the boughs swept Mr. Wilkinson from his seat, and he fell twenty to thirty feet on to some bracken in loose soil soft. He was unconscious, with a cut chin and a fracture at the base of the skull.

Finishing its parabolic motor-car came to earth twenty feet beyond, pitching on to its radiator, and turning a complete somersault. It was found on its left side imbedded in the soft sand among the trees, its wheels and metal body a shapeless mass. Considering the height of the fall it is remarkable that the chassis itself was little damaged.

ACCORDING TO SIZE.

(Exchange.) The pronouncement by an English medical authority that a probably big man is ten times likely than a small man to become particularly prominent in any sphere of his work will, perhaps, be received by the public with some surprise. The question is one that has been repeatedly raised, but perhaps it has never been answered so definitely as now. There is a simple explanation for the short as opposed to the tall man. It is that the height of the latter is not developed in proportion to that of the former. Those who have grown to a man of six feet realize that they are relatively, with men of five feet in height, they are handicapped, because their brain and lungs have not grown correspondingly in size.

LITTLE MISS SIX O'CLOCK.

Just at the edge of the night and the morning, Little Miss Six O'Clock comes to my door. A sweet laugh is her musical warning that that time is here and the night night time is fled. And I am so sleepy and I am so weary, I want to doze for an hour or two more. But Little Miss Six O'Clock, bright-eyed and cheery, Has come to announce that the sleep time is o'er.

Little Miss Six O'Clock, that's what I call her. As brim full of fun as a rose is of dew, And as sweet as a rose, only plumper and taller, Comes to the bounce that the night time is through. Smiles that are brighter than May sun-beams dandling, Already out there on the velvet lawn. Over the counterpane, bounding and prancing, Little Miss Six O'Clock heralds the morn.

"Wake up, lazy daddy! wake up, it is day about dawn, and we roll and bump and jump. And under the covers I hide away. And over the top of my old red turp. Ont in the woods where the fairies play. Till over her face comes the traces of a pout, And Little Miss Six O'Clock shows signs of weeping. Then "O, my goodness, is that you?" I shout.

We bounce and we roll and bump and jump. And under the covers I hide away. And over the top of my old red turp. Ont in the woods where the fairies play. I've forgotten that I was a tired old man. Who wanted to sleep, and I'm trouble free. And every morning my heart is glad. When Little Miss Six O'Clock comes to me.

ALL'S WELL. He had full many theories about the cause of all disease, he felt convinced that he could cure all ills that mortal ever bore. He felt that were he so inclined some new contrivance he could find to reach the highest mountain peaks and through the air serenely soar, he could make gold out of tin, that he in many other ways could banish want from off the earth.

A book he thought that he could write that would bring the world would value it at more than libraries were worth. He thought it was an easy thing to teach a rabbit how to sing; he had no doubt that he could make a rose's fragrance years remain; it would not be so great a feat to turn pork into turkey meat, and with little effort he could make beer taste just like champagne.

Some magic potion he'd prepare to cover bald heads thick with hair, and other man's sustenance one need a fort-night would suffice; He would not find it very hard to change a prosaic to a bard, and he a patent had in mind to write an epic in a trice.

No doubt you think that men were quick to say the fellow made them sick, and other names that you may guess. No doubt you think that he was sad with all the theories he had, and buried in weeping bitter tears and buried in unappiness. But he was the gay and happy man at the liveliest day; he cuddled all his fancies queer and hugged the joys they brought about. The prospect seemed in no way dim for no one knew, and he'd worked him- self his notions to himself and never kept his problems out.

AMERICAN RAINFALL.

A vivid picture of the amount of rain that falls upon the United States in the course of a year is given by President C. R. Van Hise. It is equivalent to ten Mississippi Rivers flowing constantly. Otherwise measured it equals thirty inches of water for the entire area, making a total volume of 152,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. But this is only half the amount that would be necessary to maintain the full productivity of the soil of the whole country. One-third of this amount runs down to the sea in rivers. The problem for engineers is to utilize to the utmost the supply that nature furnishes.

DELIVERED AND PAID FOR.

The book agent approached respectfully the deal of James S. Sherman, the Vice-President of the United States, saying: "This set of books is for you, free of charge. There are a few celebrated men to whom we wish to give a set, thus affording you pleasure and giving the books valuable advertisement. Please sign this receipt."

Mr. Sherman signed and smiled, says the Popular Magazine. The books were handsome. Three months later another agent appeared, asking payment for the books. "But they were presented to me," objected the Vice-President. "In return for this receipt and promise to pay," explained the agent, smoothly, producing the paper Sherman had signed.

The Vice-President sighed, made out his cheque for the required amount, said something about being stung, and was about to hand the cheque over. On second thought the drew it back, and wrote on it this endorsement: "This cheque is in full payment for a set of books which are not worth a darn, but the money is cheerfully paid in acknowledgment of the smooth way in which a gentlemanly book agent came it over on your Uncle Jim."

FORETOLD IN A DREAM.

A fatal accident that was foretold in a dream was described yesterday at an inquest at Old Hill, near Birmingham, on the body of a miner named Benjamin Westwood, who was killed at the Fly Colliery.

His brother, William, said that on Tuesday night he had a dream, and in it he saw his brother killed. He added: "I did not go to work on Wednesday morning, for my dream made me so ill that I was unable to leave my bed, and have been unable to do any work since. In my dream I saw a considerable quantity of coal fall from the roof on to my brother, knock him down and kill him, and from what those who witnessed the accident have told me, my dream was fulfilled. I did not go to my brother's house to warn him, as I was too ill to leave home."—London Chronicle.

POWER OF NIAGARA.

A recent estimate of the amount of energy derived from Niagara Falls places it at 274,140 horse-power, divided in its applications as follows: Electrochemical industries, 128,000; railway service, 50,200; lighting, 36,400; various industrial purposes, 59,540. The total energy of the falls is estimated at 5,000,000 horse-power, so that not much more than 5 per cent. is at present utilized.

PRESBYTERIANS ARE PROSPEROUS

Rich in Material Things But Poor in Spiritual Things.

Presentations of Reports From Colleges—Men Are Scarce.

Proceedings of the Presbyterian Assembly at Ottawa.

Ottawa despatch.—The old Scotland of our forefathers is no Scotland about so much of its spiritual power and Divine energy.

Strange, strong words, spoken to the highest court of the Auld Kirk in Canada, listened to by a great body of silent sympathetic men.

It was a profoundly impressive scene at the sitting of the General Assembly this afternoon.

That the propaganda of the last few years was bearing fruit in an increased number of students entering the ministry, was the statement of Principal A. Gandier, in presenting the report of Knox College, Toronto.

Perhaps the most important event of the home mission year was the preparation by a committee representing the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational Churches of a plan of co-operation which, if loyally carried out, will put a stop to the unnecessary duplication of missionary effort and the appearance of unseemly rivalry in religious work by the churches concerned.

Two deaconesses were appointed during the year, one at Prince Rupert and the other in Winnipeg. Their work justified their appointment.

Last year the Assembly decided that the principle of Synodical instead of Presbyterial representation on the Home Mission Committee should be made applicable to the three eastern Synods.

One hundred and twenty-five new auxiliaries and mission bands were organized by the Womens Home Missionary Society during the past year, and the total number of auxiliaries and bands is now 540.

Prof. J. W. Falconer, who seconded the adoption of the report, spoke of the studies and the high standard that was maintained. There were men who desired to go into the ministry who were handicapped owing to insufficient education in the primary courses, but these special cases should not be allowed to prejudice the normal students.

The expenditure for the year was $1,058,96 more than the receipts. A year ago the college fund was in debt $3,777.67. On March 1st of this year it was $4,816.63.

THE CORONATION

Principals in the Ceremony Were Present in Westminster Abbey.

London, June 12.—The Coronation preliminaries occupied much of the attention to-day of the officials who have the ceremonial in hand.

ACCIDENTS IN CAMP

Toronto Soldier Severely Injured By Fall of a Pole.

Y. M. C. A. Has an Important Part in Proceedings.

Niagara-on-the-Lake despatch.—Camp proceedings yesterday were marred by a serious accident, when Private John Hooper, of Toronto, a member of the 2nd Engineers, was so badly crushed by a falling telegraph pole that he had to be sent to the Toronto General Hospital for treatment.

Pte. S. Johnson, of the 20th, was sent home, suffering from Bright's disease. He, Birchell, of the same regiment, fell and injured one of his arms.

Owing to the illness of Mr. J. Fraser, the camp post-office is now in charge of J. J. Kelly.

The parade states of all units were finally completed to-day, showing 2,110 men of all ranks.

The Engineers got down to real work to-day, and started the construction of an observation tower. This is built with telegraph poles bound together with ropes, and must pass inspection by the officer commanding.

On Sunday morning the regular official church parade will be held. The athletic and sporting events which are being held under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. are proving so attractive that General Cotton has appointed Capt. Hendrie as athletic officer, and the assisting T. F. Best, of Hamilton, who is in charge of the Y. M. C. A. More than a thousand men watch these events each night, and it has a great deal to do with the decrease in the amount of drinking in camp.

On Saturday evening Mr. Charles Walters, champion fencer of Canada, will referee the fencing bouts, and will also give an exhibition.

TOWNS WRECKED.

Earthquake Shocks and Volcanic Eruptions Destroy Towns.

Guadalajara, Mexico, June 12.—The volcano Colima in the southern part of the State of Jalisco, say that Zapalan suffered severely from yesterday's earthquakes. The number of victims is said to be large. A church and a number of houses were thrown down, and other dwellings places rendered unsafe. Thousands of persons are homeless.

HIS SAD END

Body Found by Attendant of Gleason Health Resort.

Elmira, N. Y., despatch.—Some time between midnight on Wednesday and noon to-day Rev. H. S. Magee, a well-known divine of Toronto, Ont., strolled into the woods from the Gleason Health Resort, on East Hill, and hanged himself, the body being found by an attendant, who was walking in the woods about 11 o'clock this morning.

Rev. Mr. Magee was well known at the resort, having visited the place on other occasions, and on the afternoon before his body was found cold in death he had taken a pleasant automobile ride about the streets of Elmira with Mr. Gleason.

Mr. Magee appeared to be in a normal condition when last seen by those about the resort. Mr. Gleason stated that his guest had not let drop the slightest hint of contemplating suicide, and that he did not come to breakfast this morning some of the attendants went to his room and found that his bed had not been occupied during the night.

No particular attention was paid to the absence of the guest, as he said something about having to return to Toronto to attend to some business. No search was made, but an attendant walking in the woods south of the house about 1:30 o'clock o'clock came across the body, which had evidently been there for several hours.

Coroner Loop was notified and took possession of the remains, which are being held pending the arrival of relatives from Toronto.

Toronto despatch.—Rev. H. S. Magee, was a prominent member of the Methodist Church of Canada.

Mr. Magee was at the sanitarium in Elmira on advice of Dr. Moore, as he was in a state of neurasthenia, partly due to hard work, for he was untiring in his zeal, but partly also to financial worries occasioned by misfortunes to a relative in mining matters.

He was well known all over the Dominion, having travelled in the interests of moral and social reform, conducting institutes and addressing meetings from Newfoundland to British Columbia.

BURNED AT STAKE

Middlesex Man Consigned to Horrible Fate By Mexican Bandits.

Wife Driven From Home By Desperadoes—Word From Comrade.

London, June 12.—That Robert Swaisey, who was born in Middlesex County, within ten miles of London, was burned at the stake in Mexico, by bandits during the revolution because he refused to give them money they knew he had, is the information sent to the Free Press by I. C. Whiting, of the Hotel St. Francis, Vancouver, B. C.

The story of the burning in all its horrible details was related in despatches received some days ago and a newspaper clipping sent by Mr. Whiting tells that at Trinidad, Col., a sister of Mrs. Swaisey had received confirmation from Mr. Swaisey.

Mrs. Swaisey states that at the time her husband was captured she was driven from her home and without food and shelter for fifty hours, but finally reached the camp of friendly Americans.

Mr. Whiting writes that he was associated with Mr. Swaisey for many years in Mexico, and that he (Swaisey) had told him that he was born and lived until a young man near London. The two men were on the same railroad, and Swaisey had been for several roadmaster of the Inter-ocean at Pueblo. Later Swaisey was sent to Irapuato, about 300 miles north of Mexico City, to build a new piece of road.

Mr. Whiting writes that he knows Swaisey has relatives in the vicinity of London and that he thinks his old comrade's death should be made known to them. It was in the County of Middlesex that Swaisey was born.

Mr. Whiting left Pueblo about one year ago and went to Vancouver, where he is now living. He was born near Savina.

MARYS' GIFTS.

Part of Them to be Devoted to One of the Queen's Charity.

London, June 12.—The Queen at Buckingham Palace, to-day was presented with a cheque for £12,500, which was subscribed in small sums by her namesakes of the empire as a coronation gift. The Queen wished to devote the amount to charities.

The collection committee was insistent that the gift was a personal one, and the Queen therefore consented that a part of it should be devoted to the purchase of a diamond insignia of the Order of the Queen's Service, King George and the Prince of Wales. In her letter of acceptance of the gift the Queen says:

"I look forward with special satisfaction to devoting the remainder of the noble gift to a charitable object in which I am greatly interested."

The Queen has not divulged the name of the charity. Subscriptions are still coming in. The greater part of the money was subscribed in England. The over-seas contributions were headed by Canada, whose Marys sent £700.

NERVY CENSUS MAN

Toronto Enumerator Tried to Kiss the Servant and Make a Date.

Toronto, June 12.—The census enumerators have their troubles all right, but so have some of the questionnaires. At least one recent arrival in the city has her own opinion of the class of men employed by the Dominion Government.

The incident occurred on one of the good residential streets in South Parkdale. The members of the family were all out, and this fact was communicated to the census man by the young Scotch domestic when she answered his peal at the bell.

As she afterwards reported to her employer and through him to Census Commissioner Ryan, the young man then pushed open the door and entered the house, endeavored to engage her in conversation, asked how long she was out from the old country, tried to make an engagement with her to visit one of the amusement parks and wound up by trying to kiss her.

When he was finally persuaded to leave the house the young man intimated to the girl that it would be wiser for her not to mention that he had called and he would call to-day and see her missus.

"I am alone in the house this afternoon, and if that man calls again I will certainly not open the door to him," said the lady of the house in transmitting the maid's story to Commissioner Ryan, who promised to have the complaint investigated.

MR. MACAULEY

Elected Chairman of the Congregational Union of Canada.

Rev. Mr. Margrett's Statistical Report Showed Growth.

Kingston despatch.—At the fifth annual meeting of the Congregational Union of Canada to-day the election of the chairman for the year took place and the address of the outgoing chairman, Rev. Frank J. Day, Montreal, was delivered.

On the first ballot, Rev. George Selery, Sherbrooke, recording secretary, received fourteen votes, and Mr. T. B. Macaulay, Montreal, twelve. A number of other votes were scattered among several other candidates.

The statistical report was presented by Rev. A. Margrett, Toronto, who explained that the returns were incomplete as a number of churches had not been heard from. He remarked upon the decrease shown in Ontario as against the large increase in the Western Provinces.

The number of churches in Ontario was 58; Quebec, 46; Western Provinces, 36; Maritime, 32; United Brethren, 197. Membership—Ontario, 5,505; Quebec, 2,658; Western, 1,978; United Brethren, 1,120; Maritime, 1,053; total, 12,204; increase, 908. Value of property, $1,547,005; increase, $325,000. Total debt $68,788; decrease, $11,563. Money raised from all sources, $210,689; increase, $11,770; average, $17 per member. Sunday school scholars, 9,458; increase, 876. Young people's society membership, 1,780; increase, 63. Raised by scholars, $10,000; increase, $150. Received into church membership, 1,041; from schools, 186. Raised for home missions, $2,700; foreign missions, $13,000; for colleges, $2,796.

These figures, Mr. Margrett said, were a decisive answer to those who declared it was either union with other churches or death for Congregationalism.

"There is no such thing as bankruptcy in our church," he added. "If we can't make our mark in Canada with these statistics we ought to die."

Five-minute reports from home and foreign missionaries occupied the next session.

The address of the chairman, Rev. Frank J. Day, dealt with the spiritual renaissance.

CHILDREN'S DEFECTS.

Inspections Have Revealed Serious Conditions Among Pupils.

Toronto, June 12.—Medical inspection of 14,740 Toronto school children has revealed the fact that 642 have physical defects, 300 have excessively developed tonsils, 30 have defective teeth, 110 defective vision, 28 defective hearing, 90 defective nasal breathing, and a number affected in other ways. There were 677 diseased children, 62 having measles, 16 chickenpox, 23 mumps, 17 ringworm, etc. and 169 were excluded for contagious diseases.

The nurses' inspection showed 402 young children examined. Of these 127 had abscesses in their teeth, 100 had defective molars, 2,093 had cavities in temporary teeth, and 195 had unclean mouths. The dental inspection showed that 1,195 had tooth felled, and 9,221 had defective teeth.

GUELPH'S NEW HOSPITAL.

Guelph, June 12.—P. H. Secord & Sons, of Brantford, who have opened an office in this city, are the successful tenderers for the erection of the Isolation Hospital, including all trades in connection with it, except the heating, which has been awarded to Stevenson & Madill, of this city. The contract was for nearly $110,000.

Foreign corporations desiring to do business in Corea must obtain the consent of the Government-General, and then establish their offices in that country.

ICELAND IN SUMMER.

When the Glow of Sunset Greets the Golden Glow of Sunlight.

Iceland! The name itself is a barrier to tourist travel. But let the tourist ignore prejudice and embark at Copenhagen or Leith and he will find a delightful voyage over a smiling summer sea if he should go during June, July or August. He will be hardly more than two days out of sight of land—the far-reaching rockbound coast of Scotland or the snow-crowned peaks of Iceland—but the journey across will occupy about four days. For his amusement the dolphins will tumble, the whales will spout, the seal will swim and the sea birds will fly, and there will be glorious sunrises and sunsets, with hardly more than two hours of night intervening. When he finally reaches Iceland he will see the sun set about 11:30 o'clock and rise again shortly after 12 o'clock, the golden glow of the sunset mingling with the golden glow of the sunrise.

All these delights cannot be assured to the winter traveler to Iceland. In fact, he will be obliged to keep his lamp burning until 10:30 in the morning and then light it again at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.—Mrs. W. F. Crafts in Christian Herald.

A VOLCANIC MONUMENT.

Wonderful Old Balancing Rock Near Portland, Ore.

One of the most remarkable rocks in the world is that known as the "balancing rock," which stands on the bank of the Willamette river a short distance above the city of Portland, Ore. Rising from a broad base is a small column roughly round in shape. Just above this is a huge mass of rock bearing a tree on the summit, the total height of rock and column being about a hundred feet.

Although a great deal larger and heavier than the pillar on which it stands, the big rock is very accurately balanced. For how many centuries this odd freak has stood not even the wisest scientists are able to determine, but it has evidently been there for a very long period.

The entire rock is of a volcanic nature, and the most singular thing about it is the fact that the knob and pillar are entirely disjointed from one another. Wind and weather no doubt are slowly wearing the "balancing rock" away, but the process is so imperceptible that, falling some unforeseen catastrophe, the monument will probably endure for many centuries.—Wide World Magazine.

Making Up an Actor.

In making up an amateur actor should remember that a little paint as possible should be used, for, while it is easy to disguise by a thick mask of pigment, the heavier the makeup the more difficult it is to convey sensitive emotional variations by the changing expression of the face. If it is possible to arrange one's own hair in a way suitable to the character so much the better, for, though it may in no way seem more real than a wig, it will prove infinitely more comfortable. When the actor looks as much like the part as he possibly can without the aid of artificial disguise he begins to apply nose paste, paint and powder, obliterating one characteristic and accentuating another, painting the eyebrows out and redrawing them, changing the color of the skin, putting shadows around the eyes and similar lines running from the nostrils. He adds a roughly shaped beard or mustache of crape hair if the character demands it.—Harper's Weekly.

Wonderful Hats.

On one occasion Lincoln was presented with two fine hats, each by a different hatter, neither knowing that the other had made such a contribution. In the course of events they called upon the president, and it so happened that both called at the same time. When both found themselves in the presence of the executive they asked how he had liked the hats they had sent him, and, taking advantage of the opportunity of securing a statement of superiority of one or the other make, the president was asked to state his preference. To many men such a question would be very embarrassing, but to Lincoln not at all. He took the hat, one in each hand, and then replied gravely, but with a mischievous twinkle in his keen eyes: "Gentlemen, your hats do mutually surpass each other!"

An Honored Pig.

A four footed discoverer is honored in the town hall of Lunenburg, Prussia. It is a memorial to a pig that breathed its last 300 years ago. This consists of a handsome glass case enclosing a ham in excellent preservation, and underneath a black marble tablet with the following inscription in gold letters: "Passersby, here you behold the mortal remains of one of the which required for itself imperishable glory by the discovery of the salt springs of Lunenburg."

Harvest Time.

Teacher—Now, Earle, tell us when is the harvest season? Earle—From November to March. Teacher—Why, Earle, I am surprised that you should name such barren months. Who told you they were the harvest season? Earle—Pa. He's a plumber.—Milwaukee News.

Both Recovering.

Friend—Ah, doctor, how did you make out with that cranky patient of yours? Doctor—Oh, we're both on the road to recovery. He's able to be out and I am suing for my bill.—Change.

ture fits all her children with thing to do.—Lowell.

CENSURED THE COLPRIT.

But the Judge Took Him Into His Private Office to Do It.

"You allege cruelty, madam," says the court. "What particular form of cruelty?"

"Your honor," says the complainant, "my husband got mad and threw things at me because I tried to please him with the meals I fixed for him."

"What have you to say?" asks the judge of the defendant.

"I'll tell you, judge. Maybe I was a little too hasty, but it's this way: She is always trying new salads that she finds in the recipe columns of the papers, and after I had tried to eat nasturtium salad and hickory nut salad and carrot salad and eggplant salad and dried beef salad and spaghetti salad I did lose my temper when she handed a dish of shredded chrysanthemums with olive oil on them."

"I will not grant a divorce, but I will censure the defendant in my private office," says the judge, leading the way. Once the door is closed on him and the wondering defendant the judge says:

"Shake, old man! I did the best I could for you. I have to put up this bluff about censuring you because my own wife will read of the case, and she is now making delicious dessert from cold mash and left over breakfast foods." Clapping each other's hand, the two men weep silently.—Life.

FUNERAL EFFIGIES.

A Queer Custom That Was Followed in Bygone Days.

At the funerals of great personages, the old chronicles tell us, "his lively effigy," dressed to imitate life, was carried in a chariot before the corpse to the grave, then there set up under a "hearse" or a temporary monument in the church. Such effigies were often left in a glass case standing over the vault where the interment had taken place. Some statues were of wood, with heads of plaster, but the more modern ones were of wax.

In the olden days laudatory poems or epitaphs were affixed with pins or wax to these "hearses" and were even thrown into graves on the coffins in a similar manner to our modern custom of flowers at a burial. When Sikelton, poet laureate to Henry VIII, "took sanctuary at Westminster to escape the displeasures of the then all powerful Cardinal Wolsey" it is said that he substituted on what he earned by writing epitaphs for use at funerals in the abbey.

Ben Jonson's well known epitaph to the Countess of Pembroke: Underneath the noble hearse Lies the subject of all verse, Sidney's sister, etc.—was evidently thus attached to her "hearse"—Westminster Gazette.

She Didn't Want Tickets.

There was a number of ticket buyers in the theater lobby. Following the unwritten law, they had formed in line and were being waited upon according to precedence. Suddenly an overdressed woman, ignoring the line, rushed up to the window and tried to engage the attention of the box office man.

"The box office man shook his head at her. "Madam," he said, with some emphasis, "you must take your place at the foot of the line." "Foot of the line?" she repeated. "None!" "You will not get any tickets," declared the man, "until all these people in the line have been served." "Tickets?" replied the woman. "I don't want any tickets. All I want is change for a dime. Two nickels will do. Thanks."

And she hastily rustled out.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Conscience.

It was De Quincy who likened conscience to the whispering gallery in St. Paul's, London. A word spoken ever so softly on one side of the vast dome is loudly re-echoed on the other. In youth conscience chid him in sultra whispers; in old age, at the other end of his life gallery, the same conscience spoke to him in peals of thunder. The still small voice which the boy would not hear returned to the old man like the crack of doom in terrible self reproaches. Even Nero, the monster, had to fly from the spot where he had caused his mother to be murdered. He fancied he was haunted by her angry ghost; that he heard the blowing of a ghostly trumpet and wallings over her tomb. What a terrible discoverer of sin conscience is!—Christian Herald.

See Bagged From Afar.

Like most oriental cities, Bagdad looks her best from a distance. You miss the filthy, narrow streets where two horses can hardly walk abreast and behold a vision of luxuriant date groves, out of which rise little islands of green domes and graceful minarets. In the days of its splendor the East India company maintained in the city of the caliphs a resident, with a generous establishment. Nowadays we are content with the usual modest consular service.—London Spectator.

Seeing and Feeling.

Bill—Which do you think the most reliable sense, seeing or feeling? Jill—Why, feeling, of course. "Why so?" "Well, when you look at a girl's feet you think it is dandy; when she steps on your toe you change your opinion."—Yonkers Statesman.

They Eat Them.

"So you are raising chickens?" said the city friend. "Yes," answered Mr. Crossroads. "What do you find the greatest increase to the welfare of poultry?" "Sunday company."—Suburban Life.

BROCKVILLE'S GREATEST STORE

The current issue of the Canadian Dry Goods Review contains an illustrated article describing Brockville's "Big Store" and the early recollections of the head of that concern, Mr Robert Wright. The cuts are excellent specimens of the engraver's art, showing different departments of the store, the store itself and a drawing of the main floor. The article follows: Robert Wright Esq., proprietor of what is known all over Eastern Ontario as "Brockville's Greatest Store," recently celebrated the fifty-fourth anniversary of his business career.

Mr Wright is probably the only merchant in Brockville now in business who has been continuously so for this long period. In fact there are possibly very few merchants in Ontario to-day who have a similar record behind them.

Eighteen years ago Robert Wright & Co moved to their present handsome store which was built especially for their own use. Some idea of the expansion of the business during this latter period may be obtained when it is noted that at the time of removal the store staff numbered less than twenty, while at present nearly a hundred people are employed. The store has also been enlarged three times to meet the requirements of an expanding business, and at present about 30,000 square feet of space are used, covering the four floor.

The business is well organized and systematized and there are some thirty-five separate departments, including most of the lines carried in a modern department store.

Two of the departments, the cloak room and the millinery parlors, are known as among the handsomest in the country. The former occupies a space 25x100 feet in the west annex main floor and is furnished entirely with handsome mahogany wardrobe and show cases and carpeted with axminster. The millinery parlors occupy 50x40 feet on the second floor all fixtures being white and the aisles carpeted with rugs.

The top flat is given over to the furniture and upholstering departments and the dress-making rooms.

The entire basement is devoted to housefurnishings which includes besides the rugs, carpets, etc., a complete kitchen department, also china, cut glass, silverware, cutlery, etc.

The dress goods and silk department has an ideal location in the rear annex of the main floor and has windows on both sides and a large skylight overhead.

Besides the regular lines of dry goods on the main floor, there is a splendid stationery and book department, one of the most attractive and successful sections of the establishment.

During the past fifteen years Mr Wright has been a direct importer of European goods, making the foreign trip personally each summer. Last year this duty was delegated to Robert Wright jr., who will in future make the trip and fill the position of buyer for the store. Mr Wright has also three other sons in the business, George A. Wright, who is manager and advertising man, A. I. Wright, manager of men's department, and W. D. Wright, manager of house furnishing section.

STEVENS-ARMSTRONG

The home of Mr and Mrs D. F. Armstrong, Mallorytown, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, Wednesday of last week, when their only daughter, Miss Bessie Lenora, was united in marriage to Mr William Chester Stevens, son of Mr and Mrs Archibald Stevens of Phillipville, by the Rev. C. E. A. Pocock, Presbyterian minister of Lyn.

The bride was attired in white satin with pearl and lace trimmings and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. Miss Ethel May Stevens, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and was attired in Alice blue silk and carried pink carnations. Mr Stevens was ably supported by Fred G. Armstrong, brother of the bride.

After the ceremony the guests sat down to a sumptuous repast, when the health of the bride was proposed by Rev Mr Pocock and ably responded to by the groom. Mrs Stevens' popularity was testified by the number of useful and costly presents she received. The gift of the groom to the bride was a diamond and pearl pendant and to the bride's maid a pearl ring, and a tie pin to the best man, and to the pianist Miss A. McLean, a gold necklace.

Mr and Mrs Stevens left on a honeymoon trip to Chicago, in their new automobile, and on their return will reside at Phillipville. Mrs Stevens left in a blue serge tailor made suit with hat to match. Mr Armstrong gave her a piano and Mr Stevens a substantial cheque.

JUNE ROD AND GUN

The most interesting portion of the fine story of the trip to Hudson's Bay via the Albany River, by W. J. Malone appears in the June issue of the Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Turner, Limited, Woodstock, Ontario. The trip was quite an adventurous one and is written in a spirit of thorough appreciation of the beauties and allurements of the wild and of the advantages enjoyed by one able to go so far from the beaten track. The interest is deepened by Mr Malone's treatment of the theme and the fine illustrations accompanying the narrative. As maskinonge fishing opens in the middle of the month, two papers dealing with the maskinonge fishing in the Kawartha Lakes and in the St. Lawrence are most appropriate. The vacationist will turn to Summer Holidays and Where to Spend Them, while many lovers of firearms will read Comparing 12, 16 and 20 Bore Guns by F. H. Conover and note the illustrations with interest born of enthusiasm. A paper on Game Law Violators who commit offences in one province and escape punishment by going to another, raises a question that will have to be settled sooner or later and which, in the interests of the game, should be settled without undue delay.

Grateful Appreciation

Through the medium of the Reporter, Mr R. Finley of Charleston desires to express his gratitude to friends and neighbors for their practical sympathy when his barn was destroyed by fire and for their ready response when their help was required at the raising of the new barn.

Mrs Finley is also gratefully appreciative of the many acts of kindness of which she has been the recipient from the ladies of the neighborhood.

A New Firm

Brockville Times: Attention is called to the new firm of Johnston & Boyce, who have taken over the house furnishing business until now carried on by Charles E. Johnston & Co. Mr Johnston still continues the senior member of the new firm. By the addition of the new partner, the business has added materially to its financial strength. Mr Boyce is well and favorably known. He is a native of Athens, and for a number of years was a commercial traveller, but for last six or seven years has been successfully carrying on at Williamsburg, Ont., a furniture and undertaking business which he leaves to go into partnership with Mr Johnston. Mr Johnston is a Brockville boy and one of its brightest young business men. We predict a prosperous future for this enterprising young firm.

LESSON XII—June 12, 1911.

The Downfall of Samaria.—2 Kings 17:1-18.

Commentary.—I. The reign of Hoshea (vs. 1-4). Hoshea—The name is the same as that of the prophet Hosea, and the name by which Joshua was at first called, and means "salvation." Hoshea had conspired against Pekah, king of Israel, had slain him (2 Kings 15: 30), and probably after a few years' struggle secured the kingdom. Nine years—From B. C. 720 to B. C. 721. 2. Did Hoshea—As all his predecessors, he did not as the kings... before him—Perhaps he heeded the words uttered by the prophets, yet the kingdom was ripe for destruction and his moral superiority over former kings could not save the nation. 3. Shalmaneser—The son of Tiglathpileser and his successor. He made Israel tributary to Assyria. 4. Found conspiracy in Hoshea—The king of Israel made a final feeble effort to throw off the Assyrian yoke by making an alliance with So (Shebek of Sabsco), which act brought the wrath of Assyria upon Israel. Bound him in prison—It is very common with the Hebrew writers to record the results of an expedition before the details are told; and so verse six implies that Hoshea was king when Samaria was taken, and verse one declares that he reigned in Samaria nine years, we adopt the opinion that his imprisonment was subsequent to the capture of Samaria, and when he was no longer king—When-

II. Israel taken into captivity (vs. 5, 6). Throughout all the land—The king of Assyria was determined upon a thorough subjugation of Israel, and therefore went through the country subduing the towns and cities of importance that Samaria. Besieged it three years—The city must have been well fortified and well provisioned to be able to withstand the powerful Assyrian army for so long a time. 6. Took Samaria—It seems from the records that the city was not taken by the Assyrians during the reign of Shalmaneser, but in the beginning of the reign of Sargon, his successor. Com. Bible. Placed them in Hainon—On the Euphrates in northern Mesopotamia, not far from Nineveh. On the River. The river of Gozan (R. V.).—The river Habor is now known as Khabour, which flows through Gaucuzitis. In the cities of the Medes—The captives were scattered, some being taken far east of Assyria to Media. "These deportations of a whole population, with their women and children, their wagons and flocks, are depicted on Sargon's series of tablets in his splendid palace at Khorsabad." Farrar, Sargon's records show that he carried into captivity 27,280 persons. II. The cause of Israel's downfall (vs. 7-18). 7. For so was, that it was, so because.—R. V. Israel had sinned.—The cause of Israel's overthrow is stated briefly and pointedly. It was not because they were surrounded by enemies, but because of their sin. If they had kept themselves from sin, God would have kept their enemies away. Out of Egypt.—This was the beginning of the remarkable series of deliverances which God wrought for His people. Feared other gods—A violation of the first commandment. 8. Whom the Lord cast out.—The original inhabitants of Canaan were idolaters and they were driven out that the Israelites might occupy the land. 9. Did secretly—They covered their idolatrous worship under the pretense that it was the worship of the true God. Built high places—God had appointed Jerusalem as a place for worship, but the people followed the practice of the heathen about them and established shrines on the hills in large numbers. From the tower... city—Towers were erected in lonely places so that shepherds might protect their flocks. This expression means that they built high places everywhere, in lonely places as well as where there were many inhabitants. 10. Images and graves.—The images were stone pillars set up as objects of worship. The graves were wooden images of a goddess. The worship performed here was most impure. 11. Wrought wicked things.—The people of Israel had a knowledge of the true God, hence they were the more culpable for giving themselves over to the abominable practices of the heathen about them. God had chosen them to be His peculiar people, but they chose to be like the nations from whom the Lord had separated them. To anger.—This was not passionate anger, but indignation at sin. 12. They served idols.—The worship of the true God carried with it an observance of all the commandments and ordinances which He had given, while the worship of idols, as performed by the heathen and idolatrous Israel, gave loose rein to every evil tendency. It is but natural for idol-worshippers to attribute to their gods their own depraved tendencies; and having gods whose characteristics are debasing, they can worship such gods with serenity that permit them to carry out the wicked purposes of their own hearts.

13. Testified against Israel. The Lord sent messages repeatedly to this nation as well as to Judah in an effort to induce them to turn from their evil ways. They had the law, and therefore were not in utter darkness. Prophets... seers. The two words while differing slightly in meaning came gradually to be applied to the same class of men. The seer is literally one who sees; the prophet (Nabi) is one who speaks forth, like a fountain, or the one who speaks, but they both see and speak under divine influence.—III. notes. Elijah, Elisha, Amos, Hosea, and Isaiah were among those who had warned the nations of Israel. 14. Would not hear. They were bent on pursuing their evil course and refused to listen to the words of encouragement and warning. One's responsibility is proportionate to the knowledge he has or has refused. Hardened their necks.—The figure is that of oxen that set their necks firmly to go in the direction they desire, not to be turned by any efforts of the driver. Israel is frequently referred to as a stiff-necked people (Exod. 32:7; Deut. 10:16). Did not believe in the Lord. This laid the foundation for all their sins. He did not believe in God's prophets, but hearkened to deceivers. 15-18. The people were charged with following after "nothing," as the gods of the heathen are looked upon by worshippers of Jehovah. "They are nothing and could do nothing. Therefore to have regard unto them is of no avail, and their worshipers in consequence use prayer in vain to them." Bible. In verses 16 and 17 there is a powerful arraignment of Israel's wickedness. They abandoned themselves to every idolatrous practice observed by the grossest heathenism. They sacrificed their children to the god of Molech. "They sold themselves to do evil." They sold themselves to do evil, as did Ahab (1 Kings 21:25). For all this evil the Lord "removed them out of his sight"; that is, he permitted them to be taken from their own land into a strange country and placed them in Hainon—On the Euphrates in northern Mesopotamia, not far from Nineveh. On the River. The river of Gozan (R. V.).—The river Habor is now known as Khabour, which flows through Gaucuzitis. In the cities of the Medes—The captives were scattered, some being taken far east of Assyria to Media. "These deportations of a whole population, with their women and children, their wagons and flocks, are depicted on Sargon's series of tablets in his splendid palace at Khorsabad." Farrar, Sargon's records show that he carried into captivity 27,280 persons.

II. The cause of Israel's downfall (vs. 7-18). 7. For so was, that it was, so because.—R. V. Israel had sinned.—The cause of Israel's overthrow is stated briefly and pointedly. It was not because they were surrounded by enemies, but because of their sin. If they had kept themselves from sin, God would have kept their enemies away. PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic.—An historic review. I. Of a nation's opportunities. II. Of a nation's degradation. III. Of a nation's destruction. I. Of a nation's opportunities. "Out of the land of Egypt." God keeps an exact account of man's advantages as well as of his sins and his temptations. When the day of retribution arrives he will produce the whole account. Egypt, the very power out of whose hand God wonderfully rescued his people, Hoshea employed to help him against Assyria. God guarded the kingdom of Israel two hundred and fifty years in patience and long suffering. He warned, threatened, taught, chastened and sent messengers to summon them to return. His anxiety to save them was very great. He anticipated their temptations by sending messages of warning and of guidance, but those who preached repentance were laughed to scorn or ill-treated and ignored. Their forbearance and mercy were very great. Whether men like it or not they can not escape God's claim upon them, yet if they fail to use their opportunities and privileges they will certainly be taken away. Calamity is never causeless. Israel was under covenant with God on the express condition of keeping his statutes, testimonies, commandments and judgments. A breach of their covenant with God was the special cause of their fall. II. Of a nation's degradation. Upon Hoshea and his age there came down the corrupting influence of no less than eighteen princes, all of whom were steeped in wickedness. The whole nation had become completely immoral and idolatrous. Luxury, oppression, lewdness, drunkenness and idolatry prevailed. Ho-shea and his people were not only inheritors of the corruptions of past generations, but they themselves became agents in propagating and perpetuating the wickedness. Hoshea began by making his way to the throne by conspiracy and murder. He trusted not in God, but in an alliance with Egypt. He relied on treachery, double-dealing and on clever intrigue to get him out of his difficulties. He played a desperate game. He learned how vain it was to make covenants with the ungodly and to neglect the true God. His end was disgrace, misery and imprisonment. The source of all these evils is traced to Jeroboam's actual step in setting up the two images which logically means the overthrow of the theory. One step in the wrong direction carried many others in its train, the consequences of which stretched far beyond the results immediately seen. Israel began with neglecting Jehovah and finished with the faithful sacrifices of divine worship the same day. Israel fell into unbelief and superstition. III. Of a nation's destruction. When neither judgment nor mercy were regarded and the cup of Israel's transgression was full God "cast them out of his sight." The ten tribes sinned themselves into slavery and a crisis inevitable. They sinned away liberty, property, country and national existence. Crime ruined their kingdom. The outcome of two hundred and fifty years of idolatry was retribution, stern, vigorously and crushing. Corruption had reached its height, which made a crisis inevitable. Man's folly and blindness brought a bitter fruit. They who forgot God were themselves forgotten. They who buried to be like the nations were buried among them. They who would not serve God in their own land were made to serve their enemies in a strange land. They were torn from their own land, exiled from home, forced to eat "unclean" things in Assyria, their national existence extinguished, ruled by heathen, separated from one another, all because when they knew God they would not glorify him as God, but they gave his glory to dumb idols and defiled his land with their abominations and misused the gifts he had so richly bestowed upon them. Here is the beginning of the dispersion of Israel. Here is a solution warning against the neglect of God-given opportunities.—T. R. A.

GIFTS TO KING.

South Africa Sends Birds and Beasts in Plenty as Coronation Presents.

Cape Town, June 12.—A hundred and twenty cages and crates littered the quay alongside which the Comrie Castle lies previous to her departure to-morrow. They are all labelled "His Majesty King George's Game Collection." Some had come 1,000 or more miles from the north, others from the east and west, and they contained live animals and birds as representative of South Africa as has been possible. Not one of the animals was purchased, and they all may be regarded as coronation gifts to the King from South Africa.

A mountain zebra and foal—the case was included in the Cape collection—went on board. One case, which contained what the label described as "tatungas"—a sort of "bok"—was marked "Presented by Lewanika." There was another containing "Spur-winged geese," the donor being given as "Leitla Lawanika."

The Cape sent a very varied collection. There was a blesbok, a bushbok, a steinbok, a blaauwlok, Egyptian geese, Cape partridges, rock pigeons, black-tailed jackals, ground squirrels, a porcupine, a baboon, a python, a tortoise and a cockatoo.

Northwestern Rhodesia sent a beautifully marked leopard among its collection. Allowance has been made for a voyage lasting 28 days. The provisions provided for the animals include 2,250 pounds of oat hay, 2,250 pounds of lucerne, 800 pounds of crushed mealies, 1,000 pounds of mealies, 200 pounds of oats, 600 pounds of chilled mutton and various quantities of sweet potatoes, pollard, crushed oats, carrots, fresh eggs, rock salt and bird seed.

KING'S VISIT.

May Come to Canada on His Way to Coronation in India.

Montreal, June 12.—A special from Ottawa to-day says: "It is reported here, from a reliable source, that a visit will be made to this country by His Majesty King George. The King will visit Canada en route for India, where he will be crowned as Emperor. His Majesty will visit all important cities in the Dominion during his journey across the country, and will sail for India from Vancouver." Should this report prove to be true, the event it forecasts will make King George's reign epochal, establishing, as it would, the precedent of the Sovereign of the Empire visiting the outlying portions of the British dominions after his accession.

King George will tour Canada before the end of this year, for he is to arrive in Bombay on Dec. 2, and make his State entry into Delhi on Dec. 7. He is to be crowned on Dec. 12. Plans have been made to enable one hundred thousand persons to see the ceremony. The King is to reach Calcutta on Dec. 30. If the reciprocity deadlock materializes the parties will probably endeavor to have the general elections over before the coming of His Majesty.

The journey from Paris to Tokio soon will be shortened from 15 to less than 12 days by the completion of a new railroad in Manchuria.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the offerings this morning were 500 cattle, 200 sheep and lambs, 825 hogs and 800 calves. There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle, prices being fairly well maintained on account of the fact that the supply was not large, and the demand was ample to take care of it. The attendance of buyers was fairly large, and a good trade was done. Choice steers sold at 6 1/2c; good at 5 1/2c to 6c; fairly good at 5 1/4c to 5 1/2c; fair at 4 1/2c to 5c, and common at 4 1/4c to 4 1/2c per pound. There were some thousand cows among the offerings, and good, and a fairly active trade was done. Sales of selected lots were made at $6.75; very heavy weights at $5.75, and stags and sows at $5 to $5.25 to $5.50 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars. Supplies of small meats were rather larger, for which the demand was good and more active.

The tone of the market was steady, and values were unchanged, with sales of old sheep at $4 to $6; spring lambs at from $3.50 to $5, and calves at from $2 to $6 each.

The Montreal Stock Yards west end market there were 236 cattle, 200 sheep and lambs, 900 hogs and 850 calves. The market was fairly active for all lines, and the prices realized were much the same as those quoted, with the exception of hogs, which sold a trifle higher, at $6.85 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars, for selected lots.

Terrible Eczema for 25 Years Cured by Cuticura Remedies

"I have been treated by doctors for twenty-five years for a bad case of eczema on my leg. They did their best, but failed to cure it. My own doctor had advised me to have my leg cut off, but I said I would try the Cuticura Remedies first. He said, 'try them if you like but I do not think they will do any good.' At this time my leg was peeling from the knee down, my foot was like a piece of raw flesh and I had to walk on crutches. I bought a case of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. After the first two treatments the swelling went down and in two months' use of the Cuticura Remedies my leg was cured and the new skin grew on. The doctor could not believe his own eyes when he saw that Cuticura had cured me and said that he would use Cuticura for his own patients. But for the Cuticura Remedies I might have lost my life. I am truly grateful for the wonderful cure that Cuticura wrought. I have many grandchildren and they are frequent users of Cuticura and I always recommend it most highly as a sure and economical cure for skin troubles." (Signed) Max. B. Edwards, 277, Mentana St., Montreal.

166 KILLED.

Fatal Effects of the Earthquake at Mexico City.

Mexico City, June 12.—One hundred and sixty-six persons were killed, seventy-five wounded and property worth $100,000 wrecked yesterday by an earthquake which shook the Mexican capital and injected a note of tragedy into what was to be a day of pure rejoicing over the arrival of Francisco I. Madero, Jr. The property loss estimate is based on calculations made by owners and contractors. Little of the loss is covered by insurance. More than half the dead accounted for were soldiers. They were caught beneath the falling walls of the artillery barracks in San Cosma. Another place where the earthquake took its toll of death in considerable numbers was at the city power plant of the street car company. There six persons were killed and six wounded. In the barracks where the soldiers were killed, twelve women also lost their lives. They were the wives of artillerymen, who have the privilege of the barracks as an old structure. Seventy-two soldiers were sleeping in the house. The bodies of 30 have been recovered. Three are missing and sixteen are wounded, a few severely.

JAPS BEATEN.

Ferrosan Tribes in Revolt Annihilate Force Sent Against Them.

Victoria, B. C., June 12.—News was brought by the steamer Kamakura Maru yesterday of the annihilation on May 8th of a Japanese force in Formosa by the rebels against whom the Japanese have been campaigning for the last three years. It seems that three tribes which made peace were incited to fresh rebellion by two tribes which remained obdurate. Forty men of a force sent against the Formosans were annihilated, and after fierce fighting, but ten escaped. The dead were mutilated, their heads being carried off by the head hunters. Inspector Ikemoto, who commanded the party, was found with his head missing, and a broken sword bit clutched in his hand.

Montreal, June 12.—Judge Delorme, rendered justice to-day in the case of L. A. Caron against Joseph Beggs, publisher of La Croix. The defendant is condemned to pay $50 as exemplary damages and $50 costs. The action was entered because La Croix had published the name of L. A. Caron as being a Mason, and in the other article that all the Masons were worshippers of the devil, and the enemies of the Deity. Mr. Caron claimed that he was a good Christian, though a Mason, and his position was upheld by the court.

Sweet Miss Margery

"I shall look to you, Cousin Stuart," Miss Charteris observed, as she fastened her gloves again, "to initiate me into the mysteries of country life. I intend to dabble in farming, milk the cow, toss the hay, picnic in the fields, and get quite burned and brown."

Stuart laughed a little constrainedly. He was thinking of his picnic for next Wednesday, and wondering whether he could induce his cousin to be kind to Margery. His mother, for some unaccountable reason, did not appear to like the girl.

"We must get a native of Hursley to act as cicerone," he responded, breaking off a jest from sheer wantonness. "I have been away so long, I have almost forgotten my home."

"What are you going to do, now you are back?"

"Nothing—that is, nothing definite. You see, my father, as I told you, and I must believe him of some of his duties. My mother has a strong wish that I should stand for Chesterham."

"A parliamentary career?" questioned Vane. "How would you like that?"

"Not at all," Stuart answered, frankly. "Legislation is not my forte. I am, if anything, a sportsman."

"English to the backbone!" Cousin Stuart. I am disposed to like you."

"Is that so?" Stuart asked, gravely. Vane turned and met his gaze, then laughed softly.

"True? Of course it is; are we not cousins?" The liking, however, must not be altogether on my side."

"Have no fear," the young man began, but at that moment the dinner gong sounded, and his sentence remained unfinished.

Vane was led by her cousin, and they were even yet more amicable during the meal. Mrs. Crosbie's intense satisfaction. She made no effort to interrupt the merry conversation of the young people, and contented herself with now and then joining in the flow of reminiscences in which her husband and Lady Charteris were indulging.

Squire Crosbie was a tall, thin man with a worn, almost haggard face. His prevailing expression was kindly, but weak, and he turned instinctively to his wife for moral support and assistance. Stuart dearly loved his father. The gentle student disposition certainly was not in harmony with his own nature; but he had never received aught but tenderness and love from his father, and grew to think of him as a foolish plant that required warmth and affection to nourish it. His feeling for his mother was entirely different. He inherited his strong spirit from her, the blood of an old sporting family flowed in her veins. She was a powerful domineering woman, and Stuart had been taught to give her obedience rather than love. Had he been permitted to remain always with his mother, his nature, although in the abstract as strong as hers, might by force of habit have become weakened and altered; but, as soon as he had attained his majority, he had expressed a determination to travel, and in this was seconded for once most doggedly by his father. Those two years abroad did him an infinite amount of good; but to Mrs. Crosbie they did not bring unalloyed delight. Her son had gone from her a child obedient to her will, he returned a man and submissive only to his own will. Lady Charteris resembled her brother the squire; but the intellectual light that gleamed in his eyes was altogether wanting in hers. Her mind was evidently fixed on her child, for even in the thick of a conversation her gaze would wander to Vane and rest on her. She was heartily pleased now at her daughter's brightness, and whispered many hopes to Mrs. Crosbie that this visit might benefit the delicate nerves and health.

Mrs. Crosbie nodded absently to these remarks, she was occupied with her own thoughts. Stuart must marry; and whom could he find better, search where he might, than Vane Charteris for his wife? Beautiful, proud, a woman who had reigned as a social queen—in every way she was fitted to become the mistress of Crosbie Castle. She watched her son eagerly, she saw the interest and admiration in his face, and her heart grew glad. Of all things Mrs. Crosbie had dreaded during those two years' absence, the fear of an attraction or engagement had been most frequent, and now there was plenty of room on the front seat, but Mrs. Crosbie would not have dreamed of bidding the girl to sit there—she relegated her to what she considered her proper place—among the servants.

Margery's face flushed a little.

"If you will allow me," she said, with her natural grace, "I will walk up to the castle, thank you very much."

"Do as I tell you," commanded Mrs. Crosbie, quietly. "Thomas, make room for Margery Daw."

Margery bit her lip and hesitated a moment, then the memory of the poor sick woman at home came to her, if she offended madame, mother would have no more delicacies, so, without another word, she stepped in and was driven briskly out of the village. She sat very quiet beside the shy groom, and, opening her book, a collection of short German stories, soon lost her vexation in their delights.

Mrs. Crosbie was unduly pleased with herself for bringing this girl to her level, and she was determined to lose no opportunity of continuing it in the future.

"As they stepped at the lodge gates she turned to Margery, and said, "Let down and go along that path to the back part of the house, and wait in the kitchen till I send for you."

Margery obediently descended, and turned down the sidelpath as the ponies started off along the sweeping avenue to the castle entrance. Why was Madame so stern and Mr. Stuart so kind? Margery pondered as she walked on. Had she done anything wrong? Her mind accused her of no fault; she could therefore arrive at no solution of the mystery.

The path she was following was one used by the gardeners, and she soon arrived at a small gate which, on opening, led her to the paddock and kitchen-garden. Margery toiled through the heat gate, Margery had learned her lesson by heart. The heat was quite as great as it was on the afternoon she walked to Farmer Bright's, now four days ago; and she looked round anxiously at the sky, dreading a cloud until Wednesday was gone and the picnic with Mr. Stuart a thing of the past.

Somehow Margery found her lesson not so delightful to-day; her attention would wander, and Miss Lawson had to repeat a question three times in one of these moments before she got a response. The governess put down the girl's absence of mind and general listless manner to the heat, and very kindly brought the lesson early to a close and dismissed her pupil.

Margery for the first time gave vent to a sigh of relief when she received permission to go home, and she sauntered through the village almost wearily. She was gazing on the ground, ignorant of what was going on about her, when the sound of ponies' feet and the noise of wheels behind her caused her to turn, and, looking up, she saw Mrs. Crosbie seated in her small carriage, close at hand.

"Good afternoon, Margery," Mrs. Crosbie said, in her haughty, cold manner. "I am glad to have met you. How is your mother?"

"Good afternoon, madame," replied the girl, calling Mrs. Crosbie by the name the village always used, and bending her head gracefully. "Thank you very much, but I am afraid mother is very bad to-day; I did not want to leave her, but she insisted. She grows very weak."

"Has Dr. Metcalf seen her to-day?"

"Yes, madame, but he said nothing to me—he looked very grave."

"I was going to send her down some beef tea and jelly, but as I have met you, it will save the servant a journey. Get in beside Thomas; I will drive you to the castle, and you can take the things to your mother."

Mrs. Crosbie pointed to a seat beside her. She was for some reason always annoyed when she came in contact with this girl. In the first place, Margery spoke and moved as her equal; she never dropped the customary courtesy, nor appeared to grovel for an instant the magnitude of the caste dignity. Mrs. Crosbie was wont to declare that the girl was being ruined; that Catherine Coningham had behaved like an idiot; that, because the child had torn down cats' clothes and the dead woman had seated in every way a lady, Margery should be brought up and educated as such was preposterous. It was all absurd, Mrs. Crosbie affirmed, a mere shadow of romance. The letter in the mother's pocket had plainly stated her position—she was a maid, and nothing else; and all speculation as to an honorable connection was ridiculous and far-fetched. Mrs. Crosbie did not quarrel with Lady Coningham for rescuing the baby from the work-house—charity she upheld in every way—but she maintained that Margery should have been placed with the other children in the village who should have learned her A, B, C with Mrs. Morris as her child, and that school, and that the story of the railway accident and her mother's death should have been carefully withheld from the child. Now the girl's head was full of nothing but herself, the mistress of a lady, forbore even to express this fit for no station, and consequently would come to no good.

Margery was ignorant of all this; but she was never entirely comfortable in Mrs. Crosbie's presence. This was with her the germ of pride every whit as great and strong as that possessed by Stuart's mother. Hitherto she had had no reason to trench herself in this natural fortress, for all the village loved her; the simple-minded folk looked upon her as their own, and she was as happy as the lark, save when a wave of mournful thought brought back the memory of her mother.

Mrs. Crosbie frowned her. Margery had not a spice of arrogance in her composition—she had only the innate feeling that she was not of the village class, and, with the true delicacy and instinct of Crosbie Castle, she knew that she was a woman of a higher rank than the village. There was plenty of room on the front seat, but Mrs. Crosbie would not have dreamed of bidding the girl to sit there—she relegated her to what she considered her proper place—among the servants.

Margery's face flushed a little.

"If you will allow me," she said, with her natural grace, "I will walk up to the castle, thank you very much."

The path she was following was one used by the gardeners, and she soon arrived at a small gate which, on opening, led her to the paddock and kitchen-garden. Margery toiled through the heat up to the court-yard, and after crossing this, entered a large door standing wide open.

The cook and her handmaids were indulging in five o'clock tea, and the mistress of the kitchen rose with genial hospitality to press her visitor to the parlour of some, too.

"How do?" she asked, as Margery shook her head. "You look fairly fagged out."

"No, thank you, Mrs. Daw," Margery said, simply; unconsciously she recoiled from accepting anything that came from Mrs. Crosbie. "I am not really tired, madame has driven me here from the village, and I am taking some things back to mother. If you don't mind, I will wait outside—it is rather hot in here."

"Ay, do, child," the cook answered; and she handed out a large stool. "Put this just in the doorway, and you'll catch a little draught."

With a smile Margery took the stool, and, placing it in a shady corner, sat down and began to read. The court-yard stretched along a quadrangle leading to the stables, and, looking up now and then from her book, Margery caught glimpses of the castle windows, and the writhing tails of the comfortable boxes. The pony-carriage was driven in while she waited, and she watched with much interest the small, sturdy ponies being unharnessed and led away. It was a quaint, picturesque spot—the low-roofed stables, with the wicker coach and the portion of the gray-stone jutting out in the distance, with a background of branches and faintly-moving leaves. Margery shut her book and let her eyes wander to the clear blue sky seen in patches through the trees. She felt cool in her little white dress and her red hat. The groom had discarded his smart livery, and in company with another lad, was busily employed in cleaning the pony-carriage, the hissing sound with which he accompanied his movements not sounding unusual from a distance; and Margery found herself smiling at his exertions and the confidence that had succeeded his bashfulness. Suddenly, while she was watching them, she saw the groom and his companion draw themselves up and salute some one; and then the next moment a figure came round the corner—a figure in white tunic and hose, with a sword at his side and a large, flapping hat. Margery felt her cheeks grow warm, then they as quickly cooled. Another figure stood beside the tall one of the man, a dainty, delicate, lovely form in a dress of ethereal blue, holding a large sunshade of the same color above her head.

Unconsciously Margery felt her heart sink. Never had she seen so fair a vision before; and the sight of those two figures, so well matched and so close together, brought a strange, vague pain to her, the nature of which she could not guess. She dropped her eyes to her book again, and shrunk back into her corner, hoping to escape notice. She was too far away to hear what was said, and she began to breathe freely again after a few minutes, when the faint sound of a musical laugh was borne on the air and the tones of a deep, clear voice she knew well came near. She knew it was her aunt's voice, and she felt her eyes and bent still lower over her book as the voices drew closer.

"If you are ill after this, Cousin Vane," she heard Stuart say, "I shall never forgive myself. The heat is terrible, you know. Are you quite sure you can manage it?"

"Quite," answered the woman's voice. "I want to see this poor doggie; besides, you tell me it is just as far back again as just this way."

"Just as far. Well, here we are! Poor Sir Charles, I hope the old fellow is better."

The two figures came into sight; they were about six yards from Margery, and were walking slowly. She could see the delicate blue drapery, the slender gauntleted hand, though she did not raise her eyes; and she drew back into her corner with a nervous dread such as she had never felt hitherto.

Mr. Crosbie led his cousin to a small outhouse immediately facing the kitchen door, and was about to open the door, when, looking round, he saw Margery. His face flushed for an instant, and before his cousin could perceive it, his embarrassment was gone.

"There, Vane," he said easily, opening the door and pointing to a large colly lying on a heap of clean straw. "Don't be afraid; he won't hurt you. Poor Sir Charles—poor old fellow! He stooped and took up a bandaged paw. "I shall have you about in a day or two. He wants some fresh water, Margery," he left the country's side a little and looked straight at the girl sitting in the corner—"Margery, will you kindly ask one of the maids to bring me some water for Sir Charles?"

Margery got up, took the book without a word, and indoors brought a jug, then walked to the well a little to the left, and, having filled the jug, approached him.

"Thank you. Why did you trouble, Margery?" said Stuart, courteously.

"How is your mother to-day?"

"She is no better, Mr. Stuart, thank you," returned Margery, in her clear refined voice. "I am waiting for some things madame is kindly going to send her."

Vane Charteris had turned at the first sound of the girl's voice, and she was almost alarmed at the beauty of the face before her. Beside the golden glory of that hair the depth of pathos and splendor in those eyes, the pale transparency of that skin, her own prettiness simply faded away. She noted the grace and ease with which Margery moved, and immediately conceived a violent dislike to this village girl.

"Vane, let me present to you one of my old playfellows—Margery Daw. You were wanting some one to point out all the beauties of Hursley. I am sure no one could do that half so well as Margery."

Miss Charteris bent her head and smiled at her cousin.

"Many thanks, Stuart; but you forget we have planned to discover the mysteries of the country together without any assistance—a spice of adventure is always charming."

Margery turned away, with a bow to Stuart—she did not speak, or look at his companion—and she overheard Miss Charteris say, as I did and I will gladly recommend your medicine to them. You may publish this if you think it will help others.—Mrs. F. E. Cook, Maple Creek, Sask.

FISHERMAN TELLS INTERESTING STORY

Dodd's Kidney Pills cured his Rheumatism and Lumbago.

Strain and exposure brought on troubles that caused five years suffering, but Dodd's Kidney Pills fixed him up.

Clam Bank Cove, Bay St. George, Nfld, June 12.—(Special)—Among the fishermen here Dodd's Kidney Pills are making a name for themselves as a remedy for those ills that the cold and exposure bring to these hardy people. The kidneys are always first to feel the effects of continued strain on the body, and as Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure the kidneys, they are gaining a wonderful popularity. An example is the case of Mr. J. J. Greene.

"My trouble," Mr. Green states, "was caused by strain and cold. For five years I suffered from Rheumatism and Lumbago. I was always tired and nervous. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing and the pains of neuralgia added to my distress.

"I was never had shape indeed when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, but I am thankful to say that they gave me relief. It is because I found in them a cure that I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to my friends."

Others here give the same experience. They were worried with pain and feeling that life generally was a burden. Dodd's Kidney Pills made new men and women of them.

looked up again, the housekeeper was handing her a basket, and the cousins were gone.

"Madame sends your mother some beef tea, a bottle of brandy, and some fruit and jelly," said the housekeeper, closing the basket lid. "It is rather heavy; and mind you carry it carefully. Can you manage it?"

"Yes," said Margery steadily. "Thank you; I am much obliged."

She turned with her heavy load and walked across the court yard, her heart no lighter than her basket.

"That lovely looking stranger had made fun of her—fun—and to Mr. Stuart! Perhaps he had laughed too. The thought was so painful. And was she not a sight? Look at her old pink gown, well washed and mended, her clumsy boots, her sunburned hands. The memory of that dainty figure looking like a fairy in her delicate garments rose to her mind, and her head drooped. Yes, she was a common village girl—madame treated her as such; and now Mr. Stuart would turn too. Oh, why could she not tear aside the veil of mystery and know what she really was? Could that face treasured in her locked heart be only the face of a maid, or did her heart speak truly when it called that mother madame's?"

TO-DAY'S JOKE IN BLACK AND WHITE.

"I once asked a little New York girl," said Mrs. Philip Snowden the English suffragette, "if she knew what leisure was? 'Sure,' she replied, 'leisure is the place where married people repent.'"

MADE WELL AND STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto.—I gladly give you my testimonial in favor of your wonderful medicines. Last October I wrote to you for advice as I was completely run down, had bearing down sensation in the lower part of bowels, backache, and pain in the side. I also suffered terribly from gas.

After receiving your directions I followed them closely and am now entirely free from pain in back and bowels, and am stronger in every way.

I also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my baby was born, and I recommend it highly to all pregnant women.—Mrs. E. WANDYB, 92 Logan Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Another Woman Cured

Maple Creek, Sask.—I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I am now in perfect health. I was troubled with pains every month. I know other women who suffer as I did and I will gladly recommend your medicine to them. You may publish this if you think it will help others.—Mrs. F. E. Cook, Maple Creek, Sask.

If you belong to that countless army of women who suffer from some form of female ill, don't hesitate to try Lydia E. Pinkham Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

A Novelty on the Burlington Railroad Fitted With Electric Grills.

By providing a car, exclusively for women, on two of its through trains of the Chicago-St. Paul-Minneapolis service the Burlington Railroad claims to have introduced a novelty for the comfort of passengers. The new cars are more than eighty feet long and are divided into two apartments. The larger of these is called the women's car, a place where the women may retire and rest in the luxurious easy chairs. The color scheme of the decorations is a delicate shade of green and the apartment is kept comfortable by an automatic ventilating system.

For passengers who have a hobby for cooking or whose health requires that their meals shall be prepared in a special way, an electric grill has been added to the women's car. The newest and most complete electric appliances, with a hood and fan to carry away any fumes, allow a lady to cook and prepare the dining dish in their own homes. Officers of the Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company say this innovation, contemplated for some time, has been hastened by the constantly increasing patronage of women travellers. The simple part of the new cars is a lounge car for men.

The two trains on which the women's cars have been installed are the Minneapolis Limited, which leaves Chicago at 6:30 in the evening, and the Chicago Limited, leaving St. Paul every evening at 8:30. If the innovation proves as popular as it is expected will be extended through the entire Burlington service. The new plan is already being watched by other railroads which are considering the installation of similar exclusively women's cars.

It is suitable alike for recent injuries, diseases, and for chronic sores, ulcers, etc. Test how different and superior Zam-Buk really is. All drug stores and stores at 50c. box. ## FAMOUS ENGLISH CLOCKS.

Some in Cathedrals—Others Are in Private Houses.

A curious astronomical clock is to be seen in Exeter Cathedral. Below the works is a cabinet which when opened displays a miniature burry with ringers, and the background is painted to represent a number of old buildings in Exeter. This was built by Lovelace, took thirty years to construct and rivals the famous clocks of Wimbome Minster and Wells Cathedral.

At Wimbome is an old clock that has in the centre a globe which represents the earth and the sun and the moon, and the phases of the latter are variously depicted. The clock still goes and the works, which are in a room above, cause a figure outside the tower to strike the quarters. This was the work of a Glastonbury monk early in the fourteenth century.

Wells has a wonderful clock, one of the oldest in the world, which dates from 1325. When it strikes the hour, says the Queen, four knights on horseback go riding round, and the seated man kicks two small bells with his heels, as he has been doing every fifteen minutes for nigh on six centuries. This clock was the work of Peter Lightfoot, another monk of Glastonbury.

There is a clock at Windsor Castle known as the globe clock. The globe is enamelled in royal blue; a vertical bar shows the hours and a scythe the minutes. The Isaac Harbreecht clock is on view at the British Museum, and two clocks well worth a visit may be seen at the Soane Museum. The upperworks of one of these revolve once in twelve months and require to be wound only once in every two years.

Interesting old clocks are to be found in private houses. One of these may be seen at Lutterworth. This is a long clock, which has an oval face, a hand that points to the days of the week, completing the round in seven days, another which shows the true dead beat, and a third which points to the chimes and quarters. On the upper part of the clock is a small orchestra, which includes a flute, a cello and two violins, and a boy and girl and also three singers. The hours and the quarters are struck, every three hours a tune is played, three times over, while the three figures beat time and the boy and girl dance to the music.

There is a music in the beauty, and the silent note which Cupid strikes, far sweeter than the sound of an instrument.—Sir Thomas Browne.

FADING AT THIRTY

When Woman Should be in the Prime of Charm and Beauty.

At thirty to thirty-five a woman should be in the prime of charm and beauty, and yet many women begin to fade before then. Wrinkles appear and the complexion grows sallow. Dark rings surround the eyes, and headaches follow, with backaches and low spirits. The cause of this is simply need of blood nourishment. Good, pure blood is the life of a woman's beauty and health. It is good blood that brings the glow of health to the cheek, brightness to the eye, and elasticity to the step, and the general happiness of good health.

When women feel jaded and worn out, her blood supply needs attention, and the one unrivalled and sure remedy is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which supply the rich, red blood that repairs the waste, dispels disease and restores the brightness and charm of womanly beauty.

Mrs. H. G. Hart, Winnipeg, Man., is one of the thousands of sufferers who owe her present health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says: "I had suffered for a long time, not knowing what the trouble was. I had consulted with several doctors, but only seemed to be growing worse. The last doctor I had told me the trouble was anemia, that my blood was turned to water and that my condition was serious. But his treatment, like the rest, did me no good. I got so bad that if I excited myself, or went upstairs, I was completely out of breath and felt as if I was going to suffocate. My heart would palpitate violently, and at times I would suffer with terrible pains from it. I had a yellow complexion, my lips had lost their color, and I had no appetite and could not eat. I grew so weak I could hardly drag myself along, and my feet seemed to have weights on them. I was so completely run down that I thought I was going into consumption. At this time a friend urged me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking a few boxes I found my health improving, and after taking the Pills for a couple of months I was entirely well and have since enjoyed the best of health and feel that I can never say enough in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

These Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BATHS.

Tonic and Bracing, Sponge and Plunge.

A woman bordering on hysteria one night calls up her physician by telephone at a late hour, beseeching him to give her something to help her get to sleep, so that she could sleep. He directed her to run hot water into her bathtub, to sit in it and particularly to dip a Turkish bath-towel in it and let it rest over her entire spine. She was amazed, and felt that it could do nothing to help her, but she tried it, and found it the most comforting and the highest degree.

A good pure water bath is a tonic all can afford. The home woman who has reached a "lifeless" feeling of weariness, take a bath as a trigger "before dinner. Business women whose life is fatiguing appreciate its stimulation in the morning. Women with uncertain circulation should never jump into a tub of cold water, as the shock has a tendency to weaken the heart.

Sea salt makes a strengthening home bath. A handful of salt crystals should be put in a covered vessel of hot water and let remain to dissolve over night. In the morning pour it into the freshly-drawn bath. The camphorated bath is bracing. This is made by mixing two parts of camphor to one of tincture of benzoin and one of cologne in the tub, by shaking it well. Keep it tightly corked. When a bath of warm water is ready add enough of this mixture slowly, drop by drop, to make the water slightly milky.

Toilet ammonia and various fragrant bath lotions and mixtures can be bought at any reliable drug store, only it is best to be informed concerning the ingredients in the compound.

As a rub down after a bath, a mixture of three-fourths whisky and one-fourth hot water is more strengthening and less drying than alcohol.

After making a most careful study of the matter, U. S. Government scientists state definitely that the common house fly is the principal means of distributing typhoid fever, diphtheria and smallpox. Wilson's Fly Pads kill the flies and the disease germs, too.

THE DIVINE SARAH'S RULE.

Mme. Bernhardt, at a supper in New York, according to the Detroit Free Press, smiled sympathetically over the story of a young actor who had applied vainly for the post of secretary to a rich widow.

"He failed, I understand," said Mme. Bernhardt, "because he didn't wear his best clothes. Now a young girl, applying for a secretaryship to an elderly millionaire would never make such a mistake as that."

"I believe, do you know, that the one great difference between men and women is this: "When an important step is to be taken a man asks, 'What shall I say?' a woman, 'What shall I put on?'"

THE FLY NUISANCE.

(Niagara Falls Gazette.)

This is the time of the year when they arrive upon the scene of much annoyance and disease. Neglected garbage cans, manure boxes and exposed dirt are common breeding places for the annoying insects. All such should be covered in or cleaned up. If manure boxes are made tight, or screened, flies cannot get in to lay their eggs. Keep covers up all places where flies may be born. Put screens in windows and doors. If there are nuisances in your neighborhood report them to the health board. Flies spread consumption, diphtheria, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, summer complaints and fevers of babies by carrying disease from one to another.

FOOD - FOR THOUGHT

Who pays the enormous expense of those show-rooms in our towns and cities? Is it not the people who buy pianos there?

Why buy from them when you can get just as good, and in many cases better, from me, delivered free from the factory to your door? This is one of the reasons I can sell you a piano for less money than you pay at any show-room.

All kinds of instruments taken in exchange. We defy competition for the money in all grades. Get my prices before purchasing, for they are certainly very low for strictly high grade pianos.

Also agent for Raymond, New Williams, and New Home Sewing Machines.
