DIRECTORS OF UNITED FRUIT COMPANIES MET ON TUESDAY

May Establish Permanent Office in England—Estimates for Year Voted

A meeting of the directors of the United Fruit Companies of Nova Scotia was held at Kentville on Tuesday for the purpose of voting estimates for the ensuing year. All companies were represented and estimates voted according to the recommendation of the board of management.

An exceptionally good feeling prevailed throughout the meeting with no adverse criticism whatever. It was deemed advisable to send the president, F. W. Archibald, to England, to look thoroughly into the conditions in connection with marketing and report as to the advisability of establishing a permanent office for the benefit of the organization.

DEATH OF FORMER WOLFVILLE RESIDENT

Older residents of Wolfville will be sorry to learn of the death on Tuesday of Milton S. Cox, of Truro, which occurred at the Victoria General Hospital, Halifax, where he had gone a few days earlier for treatment. Mr. Cox was born at Upper Stewiacke 62 years ago and when a boy came with his uncle, the late William F. Cox, to reside in Wolfville. After attending school here he served his time in the harness-making establishment of the late James G. Patriquin and for a time worked at that occupation after returning to Colchester county. For many years past in his capacity as commercial traveller he visited different parts of the province and was well and favorably known. A prominent member and worker of the Baptist church, he was active in social service, temperance and all other activities for the good of the community in which he made his home, and will be much missed.

"Merton of the Movies," Starring Glenn Hunter, to be Shown Here

MERTON OF THE MOVIES, the deliciously satirical comedy-drama of Hollywood's movieland, is "the picture with the perfect cast."

Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation in charge of production, made the statement after announcing the complete roster of noted players to appear in the screen version of Harry Leon Wilson's popular novel and play.

Glenn Hunter, the man who made "The Covered Wagon" and other notable recent Paramount successes, directed "Merton." It is a story of a movie-struck country youth who goes penniless to Hollywood, meets adversity and indifference, but eventually wins stardom through the guidance of a picture-wise girl.

REDUCED POSTAGE TO WEST INDIES

OTTAWA, July 13—Hon. Charles Murphy, Postmaster General, announces that the rate on letters to the British West Indies has been reduced to three cents for a one ounce letter and two cents for each subsequent ounce, effective July 1. This is the rate which applies within Canada itself and to the United States and Mexico.

The new rate applies to letters for Bermuda, St. Kitts, Antigua, Montserrat, Dominica, St. Lucia, Barbados, St. Vincent, Grenada, Trinidad, Bahamas and Jamaica, British Guiana and British Honduras.

Mr. Murphy also recently concluded special parcel post conventions with St. Vincent and Grenada which provide, among other things, for the insurance of parcel post to these places.

LAD TO REST

The funeral of Miss Sara Prescott, whose passing was recorded in THE ACADIAN last week, was held on Thursday afternoon from the home of her parents, and was very largely attended. Among those present were a number of old friends and relatives from Hants county and New Brunswick.

A quartette composed of Miss Ruth MacDonald, Miss Frances DeWolfe, Mr. W. A. Jones and Mr. L. W. Sleep rendered favorite hymns and Miss MacDonald sang "Let Not Your Heart be Troubled" with her usual effectiveness. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful and testified, as did the attendance of sympathetic friends, to the popularity of the deceased and the high regard with which the sorrowing family is held in the community. Prominent among them was a beautiful anchor from the friends at Evangeline Beach, where Miss Prescott spent last summer. The interment was in the beautiful Willow Bank Cemetery, the pall-bearers being Messrs. J. R. Black, J. A. Macpherson, Brighton, Fielding, Binney Parsons, Arthur Parsons and Ronald Keirstead.

LOCAL ARTIST RECEIVES COMMISSION

Mr. Robert Chambers, son of Mayor Chambers, former pupil of Lewis Smith at Acadia Seminary and at present a student of the Art Students League, New York City, has been given the commission to illustrate, by drawings, the new Book of Better English Games by the Rev. J. C. Stead. These games also illustrate the photographs of her 1924 King's English Kindergarten Class, are to be incorporated in the 8 vol. set—The Human Interest Library (Midland Press, Chicago) to which Mr. C. Stead, the Canadian author, and Miss Archibald are the only Canadian contributors among a galaxy of American writers of note.

As a concession to the campaign for Better English now well underway in Canada, the editor of The Human Interest Library has graciously offered to publish the Book of Better English Games separately, also that it may be available for Canadian parents and teachers and used in connection with the King's English Drill which, in an enlarged form, is shortly to appear in its fifth edition.

GOD'S ACRE

To the Editor of THE ACADIAN—Dear Editor,—Will you grant me a small space in the columns of your valuable paper? A great many times in my life I have been led to ask why is a cemetery or grave-yard called God's Acre. But lately I had occasion to visit a small cemetery in the village of Cansu and what I saw there has given me the explanation I sought (especially why this grave-yard should be called God's Acre). The answer to my mind is that the people who should be the most interested are willing that it should be God's Acre and that he should take care of it, up-keep and all.

I do not wish to take up too much of your valuable space so will confine my remarks to a few instances of needed improvements. The fence which incloses this God's Acre reminds one of a fence of a herring weir than it does a fence. The grass and weeds grow in luxuriant profusion in this God's Acre, except where pigs, sheep or other animals have cropped it off to some extent. Directly opposite and across the mountain road is a dump of colossal proportions containing rock and stumps in different stages of decay, an unsightly mass facing God's Acre and that there by a prominent farmer of Gasperaux. In the driveway which leads into God's Acre is a great unsightly stump of huge dimensions uprooted from another prominent farmer's premises, where it marred the scenery, and dragged to its present location, where it necessitates a detour by the hearse when occasion requires the presence of that vehicle. This was also placed there by the authority of another prominent valley farmer. Should any one who has friends buried there need water to water plants or shrubs placed there to keep their memory green he would have to either go up the mountain side through woods and pasture to obtain it or else go down the mountain to some house in the village and then carry it back up the hill, which is no easy task I can assure you.

It does seem to me that in as wealthy and prosperous a place as Gasperaux and vicinity something should be done to make God's Acre a respectable looking acre at least, and if anything in this article leads to any improvement in this God's Acre I shall feel amply repaid. Thanking you, dear Editor, for this space, I am

MOURNER. New reduced prices on Counter Check Books are announced. If interested please phone 217. THE ACADIAN.

KENTUCKY VISITORS

Mr. Daniel Bowmar, publisher of The Sun, of Versailles, Ky., who brought a party of tourists to Nova Scotia, last summer and visited Wolfville, returned on Tuesday evening with a "house party" composed of twenty-three lady and one gentleman tourists.

The visitors were guests at the Acadia Villa Hotel while in Wolfville, remaining until the Bluenose today. They returned via Yarmouth and Boston. During their stay in Wolfville the party was favored with ideal weather conditions. The visitors motored to different points of interest westward and were filled with delight by the beauties which they saw on every hand. THE ACADIANS was favored with a call from Mr. Bowmar and was very glad to renew the pleasant acquaintance of last summer. We wish him and those under his care a safe and pleasant continuation of their trip and trust that they may carry home with them such pleasant recollections of their sojourn in our province that they may look forward to returning some other time. Following are the names of those who composed the party:

Frankfort, Ky.—Mrs. Margaret J. Taylor, Miss Margaret D. Reading, Miss N. A. Newman, Miss Elizabeth Meagher, Miss Claire Rioran, Miss Julia Sullivan, Miss Florence Lutkemeyer, Miss Laura L. French, Mrs. William O'Donnell.

Versailles, Ky.—Mr. George B. Minary, Mrs. George B. Minary, Miss Lena Graves, Mrs. Wade H. George, Miss Lucille Howard, Miss Gladys Mahin, Daniel M. Bowmar.

Richmond, Ky.—Mrs. Bertha H. DeJarnatt, Miss Geneva Haden, Miss Leslie D. Million. Harrodsburg, Ky.—Miss Gladys Seay, Miss Mary Smock. Pine Bluff, Ark.—Miss Betty Berry. Owenston, Ky.—Miss Janice Rees. Danville, Ky.—Miss Ruth Tucker.

HAVE YOU PAID YOURS YET?

Our "Pay Your Subscription Week" appears to have met with approval by many of our patrons, a goodly number of whom have taken advantage of it to make themselves square with the home paper. The winner of the lady's prize was Mrs. J. F. Herbin, who received a nice box of stationery, while Mr. Starr Fullerton carried off the gentlemen's prize, a fountain pen. The privilege will be continued to all indebted to the paper until Saturday evening, and as there are still many whose subscriptions remain unpaid it is expected that our staff will be kept fully employed. Although the weather is hot, they are well paid and those who desire to pay up need have no hesitation in presenting themselves at any time after 8 a.m. during the remaining days. It is amazing how many there are to whom the policy of the publishers of THE ACADIAN is no "dead-heads" and we were under the impression that we were keeping well after our collections, a casual glance over our books reveals that in this town and sections surrounding alone a sum not far short of five hundred dollars is due us. And we do need it badly.

THE TOURIST CAMP

Wolfville's tourist camp-ground has been taken advantage of by a number of parties so far this season and all have been most appreciative of the facilities furnished. Some improvements are now being made that will add materially to the accommodations and if plans which have been made are carried out in the course of a few years this town institution will have become a real beauty spot and a credit to citizens. A fine pavilion is now under construction which will contain a kitchen and furnish shelter for camping parties when the weather is unfavorable. Considerable of the material has been gratuitously furnished and the work is being voluntarily supplied. When a representative of THE ACADIAN visited the grounds last evening active operations were in progress. The working party included Policeman Crowell, Supt. of Streets, Dakin, Mr. A. N. Perry, of Evangelical Cottage, Mr. Edson Graham, President of the Board of Trade and Mr. Winfield Spicer, who furnished the technical knowledge for the undertaking. The grounds present a very different appearance than when taken over last year, and this season will be well lighted and supplied with all the requisites necessary for visitors.

To raise the funds necessary to provide these improvements it is proposed in the near future to hold a community gathering, when music and refreshments will be provided and a general good time is promised. Look out for further announcement in a future issue. A bad fire occurred at Windsor early Tuesday morning when the foundry, machine-shop and large of the Windsor Foundry and Machine Co. Ltd. were totally destroyed. The loss is estimated at $300,000, about two-thirds covered by insurance.

RED SOX WIN TWO CLOSE GAMES

In Town Baseball League—Now Have Big Lead

The Red Sox further increased their lead in the Town Baseball League during the past week. On Friday evening they won their first game with the High School by the close score of 5 to 4, and on Monday evening defeated the Braves by the score of 6 to 4. This gives the Red Sox a commanding lead in the series and the High School will have to win all their remaining games in order to come out ahead.

In their game on Friday the High School were greatly weakened by the absence of their two best pitchers. Regan, however, filled the gap in a creditable manner and held the Red Sox to three hits, striking out three and allowing one in the five innings played. His team mates, not playing in their usual positions, made numerous errors. Dick, pitching for the Red Sox, struck out five, walked three, and allowed only two hits. The score by innings was as follows:

Score by innings: High School 1 1 1 0 4, Red Sox 2 0 2 0 1-5

The teams: High School—Pick, cf; Williams, 1b; Regan, p; Eaton, 3b; Cohen, ss; Johnson, c; Mahaney, 2b; Gould, lf; Harrington, rf.

Red Sox—Dick, p; Rudolph, 3b; Saunders, 2b; Kenne, 1b; McLeod, cf; Elderkin, c; Rand, ss; McDonald, lf; B. Regan, rf.

On Monday night the Red Sox took a lead in the first innings when two hits, and a number of errors on the part of their opponents, brought in three runs. If the errors could be eliminated in these games they would be more interesting to the fans. We would suggest more practice. Munro pitched a splendid game striking out nine and allowing only four hits, but he had poor support from his team mates. Dick struck out six, walked two and allowed four hits. Only five innings were played due to the late hour in starting. The score by innings:

Score by innings: Red Sox 0 2 1 0 4, Red Sox 3 0 1 2 x-6

The teams: Braves—Spinney, cf; Baird, 1b; C. Munro, c; Evans, lf; D. Munro, 3b; Patriquin, ss; Gould, 2b; Angus, rf; Wallace, 3b; Herbin replaced Angus in the fifth.

Red Sox—Kenne, 2b; Rudolph, 3b; Dick, p; Elderkin, c; Parker, 1b; Rand, ss; McLeod, cf; McDonald, lf; Pineo, rf. The stand of the teams is now as follows:

Standings: Sunken Lake, July 14, 1925. Won Lost. Red Sox 5 0, High School 1 2, Braves 1 5

GIRL GUIDE CAMP

Another glorious day, our sixth in camp! We hate to see the days slipping away, for never did girl guides enjoy camp life better. From 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. we sound like a long day, but it is filled with all sorts of fun, and it would seem as if time fairly melted away.

With swimming, boating, hikes, nature study, flag-raiding and basketball, with an occasional pause for a meal (among other things we consume just 25 leaves of bread daily), and our day is brought to a close with the camp-fire at sun-set.

This is truly the loveliest part of the day. As the sun settles down in the west and a quiet hush falls over all, save for the silvery notes of the hermit thrush in the woods beyond, we gather round our camp-fire for an hour of song and story.

TO HAVE A BUSY SUMMER ABOARD

Dr. Benjamin Rand of Harvard University has sailed for Europe to Continue Research Work and to Carry Out Other Important Plans

(From the Boston Transcript) Dr. Benjamin Rand of the department of philosophy at Harvard University sailed from New York on Saturday on the Royal Mail liner Orca, with several important things to do this summer in the line of philosophical publication and further research. For many years consecutively, Dr. Rand has gone abroad on various scholarly missions in the field of philosophy, to which he has given the chief energies of his life, and his achievements in this field have been notable. This summer he plans to bring out two hundred hitherto unpublished letters of the great John Locke, and to continue a search he has been diligently pursuing for the long-missing diary of the Scottish philosopher, Sir William Hamilton. In a recent visit abroad, Dr. Rand made an important discovery in a nobleman's house, of a painting of the founders of the Colony of Georgia, and these individual founders he hopes this year to identify. He intends also to be present at the meetings of the Aristotelian and Mind associations, at Oxford, in July.

Mr. Karl Borden and family have moved into the residence formerly used by the president of Acadia, and which recently housed the offices of the university.

BUY MORE CANADIAN GROWN PRODUCTS

THE LACK of a proper measure of loyal support to the producers of their own country on the part of Canadians has been a serious obstacle to economic advance. In the matter of the consumption of imported fruits and vegetables statistics indicate that we are cultivating an extravagant taste for out of season and tropical varieties to the serious disadvantage of those produced within our own borders.

During the month of January of the present year Canadians bought from the United States 2,086,665 pounds of ordinary potatoes valued at $25,372, in a year when there were ample supplies of Canadian potatoes available, many of which failed to find a profitable market. In the corresponding period of 1924 we bought but 95,865 pounds valued at $2,341. We bought $2,342 worth of cabbage in January this year, against $1,730 last January. In the past fiscal year we bought outside of Canada 1,034,866 bushels of ordinary potatoes, valued at $835,497, and cabbage valued at $253,379, or more than a million dollars spent outside of this country for these two vegetables, while he had plenty of them at home.

For canned vegetables, such as beans, peas, corn and tomatoes, we spent $601,675 in the twelve months outside of Canada. In fruits, we bought in the United States in the twelve months 172,101,064 pounds of dried apples, worth $32,906, or $900,832 for imported apples while Canada holds the world's record for quality, and has ample supplies. Other fruits which we bought in large quantities were, plums, $835,212; strawberries, $764,593; pears, $807,959; peaches, $609,318; grapes, $862,298. For bananas we paid $4,194,071, for oranges, $6,409,805 and for lemons $1,058,569.

Canada is geographically so situated that for a portion of the year our people are dependent for variety in fresh fruits on more southerly countries, but there appears to be a decided tendency to unduly cultivate the taste for imported fruits at the expense of those produced in our own country. If a great portion of the money sent out of Canada for these products could be spent with our own fruit and vegetable growers the prosperity of the industry would not only be enhanced but the country as a whole would be greatly benefited. The launching of a campaign to intensify the demand for home-grown produce among our people could not but result beneficially.

NO CANADIANS IN CANADA

A VERY peculiar condition exists in this country which in the interest of a sound and sane national spirit should not longer be permitted to obtain. It is now necessary for a Canadian to cross the border into the United States in order that his or her identity may be established. Ostensibly while in this broad Dominion there are today more than nine millions of people, none of these are Canadians. Every race under the sun is duly represented, but Johnny Canuck is a minus quantity. When in this country a proud father applies for a certificate of registration of birth at any district registrar in Canada he observes a marginal note informing him that: Racial origin will be described by stating to what people or tongue each of the parents belongs, whether English, Irish, Scotch, French, German, Russian, Ruthenian, Slovak, Galician, etc. The words "Canadian" or "American" should not be used, as they express nationality but not a race of people.

Even a casual analysis of this remarkable statement, on the part of any fair minded person—it matters not from what country—will, we feel sure, furnish convincing proof as to its fallacy. More than anything else it is responsible for that lack of patriotic sentiment which is all too often apparent, and without which no country can truly prosper. A country without a soul! A people without a national spirit! Nine millions of beings drifting upon the tide of Yankee jingoism and time-worn Imperialism.

British statesmen are alarmed over present conditions in Canada, fearing a breaking away from the Empire. They need have no fears about Canada's loyalty so far as the Empire is concerned. The trouble with Canadians is that they are loyal to everyone but themselves. The people of the Dominion will neither be used as a buffer for the annexation bogey of the United States nor the tail-end for British Imperialism. Canada's best destiny is to remain within the Empire, using her status as a nation and building up a new Canadianism—the only reasonable hope of the Dominion.

THE KIND WE ARE ENTITLED TO

IF MERCHANTS and their helpers were not a pretty good natured class of people, whose rough edges have been worn away by much contact with their home folks, they would have reason to get irritated at times.

There are some people who will send off or go to distant cities and make important purchases of clothing and house furnishings. Then when they find that they want some little trifling article in a hurry, they will rush down to the home store and demand that it be supplied them instantan, and blame the store if it does not have precisely what they want. They expect these stores to keep stocked up all the time on a wide variety of goods, yet they will not help supply the all around patronage which is the only basis for keeping such a general stock.

It is a tremendous convenience and advantage to have a fine group of retail stores in a town. Such establishments connect a community with sources of supply that deal all over the world. A good store supplies the comforts and essentials of civilization, and it is a wonderful benefit to have it close by where you can call on its service at any moment, and get its supplies and its advice.

But people can not expect to have the kind of stores their community is entitled to on the basis of its population and wealth, if they are constantly running off to other places to buy goods. Unless they give their patronage to their home stores, the home stores can not serve them efficiently.

It is well to remember that the home stores and the men who own and operate them are a tremendous force working all the time in Wolfville to provide this community with all forms of modern equipment, to improve its civic advantages and to advance its prosperity. When you support them, you back up and help your community.

THE HOME TOWN PAPER

The little country paper
From the old home town
Makes the city man smile
When it comes around.

For he lays down the daily
And irons out his frown,
When he reads all the news
From the old home town.

No slanders or murders
Are on the front page;
No crimes or vulgarity,
No passions or rage.

But a mirror-like reflection
Of a peaceful, sleepy town,
Is stamped upon his memory
When the paper comes 'round.

He reads about a melon
Grown by Farmer Hatch;
Remembers he used to sneak them
From the same melon patch.

And then the paper pictures
Big catches in the creek,
Where he spent hours fishing
Every Saturday in the week.

Across his mind there flashes
The combination train,
And he's standing at the depot
A barefoot boy again.

There sweeps across his memory
That cat never grow dim
The old, pine spring board
And the place he used to swim.

You can talk about the daily
The newsboys cry around,
But it's punk besides the paper
From the old home town.

PLEASURES OF BEING AN EDITOR

Yes, the average editor lives a quiet life 'midst peace and plenty.
Has it ever occurred to you—

That the more he labors to uplift his community, the more are his motives questioned?

That if he takes a hand in local politics, he is accused of being crooked?

That if he does not, he is accused of being a coward?

That if he advocates public improvement, he is condemned and his motives are under suspicion?

That if he stands for law and order, he is charged with truckling to the preachers?

That if he takes a stand for prohibition, he is denounced as a fanatic?

That if he advocates light wines and beer, he is branded as a drunken sot?

That if he pays attention to a girl, the gossips say he should know better?

That if he roasts the mail-order houses, he is told to mind his own business, that the people have a right to buy where they please?

That if he publishes mail-order advertisements, the merchants land on him with both feet, but fail to advertise their own business?

That if he loses his temper, he is called a "crank" and "touchy"?

That the life of an average editor is indeed made exceedingly pleasant?

That if the people would only realize the truth, they would boost the editors?

That they are the greatest community leaders we have, though the writer knows he is a poor specimen?

That the growth of not only the community but the whole country means your success?

That you need him as much as he needs you?

That this is enough for this time, but he hopes it will be taken to heart by all, and that justice will yet reign triumphant.

RAISE YOUR OWN FIELD ROOT AND VEGETABLE SEED

Despite the careful and earnest supervision, exercised by inspectors and seedmen, in the buying and inspection of field root and vegetable seed, much of the seed offered for retail sale in Canada is not as represented. It often turns out to be another variety entirely, or is badly mixed and the resulting crop contains a high percentage of undesirable types. Of two hundred and twenty-nine varieties of field roots obtained from seedmen, and tested during the past four years at the Dominion Experimental Station, Lennoxville, Que., only twenty-three have shown a reasonable truthness to type. Of the remaining two hundred and six, a few proved to be merely incorrectly named, but the majority were composed in part, or were wholly, of types entirely different from the recognized type of the variety they were supposed to represent. This unreliability of ordinary commercial seed is also found to a somewhat lesser extent with many species of vegetables.

The result of mixing, careless selection of seed stock or incorrect naming of seed is often more serious than would at first be supposed. Where a crop is composed of mixed types it is usually found that the majority of the foreign types are of an inferior nature and seriously depreciate the yield and quality of the crop. As an instance of this, of two lots of Half Sugar White manget grown at Lennoxville in 1924, one that was about ninety-five per cent. true to type gave a yield of thirteen tons per acre more than the other, the crop from which was composed largely of roots representing other varieties and intermediate forms. And it should be added that the feeding value and keeping quality of the mixed lot was far the inferior of the two. Incorrect naming, although not so serious, usually results in a crop of lessened value.

Mail Contract

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the Postmaster General, will be received at Ottawa until noon, on Friday, the 7th August, for the conveyance of His Majesty's Mails three times per week over the proposed GASPÉRAU No. 1 RURAL MAIL ROUTE under a proposed contract for a period not to exceed four years commencing at the Postmaster General's pleasure. Printed notices containing further information as to conditions of proposed Contract may be seen and blank forms of Tender may be obtained at the Post Offices of Gaspé and Davison Street, and at the office of the undersigned.

By growing his own seed of field roots and the common vegetables, the farmer, or gardener, has the matter of selection in his own hands. By careful, yet not laborious, attention he may not only maintain a high standard of purity and value in the seed he uses, but each variety may be gradually improved to suit the particular requirements of his farm or garden. Therefore, apart from the saving incurred by producing, instead of buying seed, it is quite possible to produce larger and more profitable crops by growing seed at home for home use.

Detailed information on this subject may be obtained from any of the Dominion Experimental Farms or Stations. F. S. Browne, Assistant to Supt. Experimental Station, Lennoxville, Que.

The Wolfville Creed

I believe in Wolfville and its possibilities; and I shall do my part to make it a better place in which to live.

I believe in good government for Wolfville, and I shall assume my share of the civic responsibility that rests on the shoulders of all our citizens.

I believe in supporting local enterprises that make for community development, and shall contribute my moral support and energy to any worthy cause championed by them.

I believe in patronizing home merchants, for they are greatly responsible for our having good schools and churches, better roads and promotion of the general welfare of this community.

I believe in making Wolfville clean and attractive, for a healthy atmosphere is an inducement to honest and right-thinking citizens.

I believe in boosting my home town at every possible opportunity; that thinking, talking and acting progress is the quickest and surest way to bring permanent prosperity to Wolfville---the best town in Canada---because it is MY HOME!

This is Our Creed. Make it YOURS!

THE BETTER PRAYER

I thank Thee, Lord, for strength of arm To win my bread, And that beyond my need is meat For friend and foe. I thank Thee much for bread to live, I thank Thee much for bread to give, I thank Thee, Lord, for snug-thatched roof In cold and storm, And that beyond my need is room For friend and foe. I thank Thee much for place to rest, But more for shelter for my guest. I thank Thee, Lord, for lavish love On me bestowed, Enough to share with loveless folk To ease their load, Thy love to me I'll hold dear, Yet dearer is Thy love I share. —Mrs. Elizabeth Morgan Dornbush.

FIREWORKS ARE SAID to have been invented by the Chinese in remote ages; but it is also claimed that so far as the Western World is concerned, they were invented at Florence in northern Italy about the year 1360, and exhibited as a spectacle in 1588. Macaulay, in his history of England states that at the conclusion of the peace with France by the Treaty of Brétigny in 1360, during the reign of Richard III., the fireworks let off in England cost 12,000 pounds, a sum fully equal to $60,000 at the present time.

ALL THROUGH

A working-man got a job at a mine siding running wagons down an incline. There was only a sleeper at the bottom to stop the wagons, so the man told him to be careful and keep the brake on. On the third day four wagons went down at a terrific speed and the sleeper in the canal hit the incline. The boss saw all that happened and came rushing to the scene with a checkbook. "You needn't come grumbling at me," he announced. "I ain't working you." —Chicago Continent.

PRINCE CRIPPLED BY HANDSHAKING

By reason of too much handshaking during his visit to Cape Town, the Prince of Wales contracted a swollen wrist. The Prince is shown laying the Foundation Stone of the New Cape Town University with Sir J. C. Beattie, Principal, just behind. Note the Prince laying the stone with his left hand as his right hand is bandaged.

BIG WESTERN DRAMA FOR EU-GENE O'BRIEN

Film fans are accustomed to seeing Eugene O'Brien as the polished, urban man of fashion. In "Frisulous Sal", his latest First National picture, however, he has an entirely different role. He rides madly over mountain trails, chases a band of robbers into a huge ice cave and finally battles the ring-leader as the two shoot across a mountain gorge in the bucket of an aerial tramway.

The picture, love drama of the pioneer Western mining camps, affords O'Brien an opportunity for some rapid-fire and thrilling action. Mae Busch, Tom Sant- schi, Mildred Harris and little Ben Alexander also are in the cast. "Frisulous Sal" will be shown at the Orpheum Theatre next Monday and Tuesday.

EDITORIAL

Hantsport needs a new railway station and it is one of the needs that should be supplied at an early date. The present edifice has done service since the road was constructed over fifty years ago. It is understood that a request from the town authorities has gone in to the management of the road for a new building and has been promised due consideration. Meantime repairs which are now in progress on the old structure seem to indicate that unless some pressure is brought to bear the work on a new building is not likely to be undertaken during the present summer. Hantsport is an important shipping centre and a large amount of business is done at the station here every year. Our people are certainly not unduly urgent in asking that our town should receive some attention in the matter referred to and are quite within their rights if they insist that their case should receive prompt attention. We would suggest that a delegation of representative citizens wait on the railway management as soon as possible in support of our claim.

The Mayor and Councilors have undertaken a new method of collecting the town taxes that is apparently meeting with public favor and is likely to result successfully. Arrangements have been made by which the police officer in his capacity as tax collector calls upon each of the delinquent ratepayers twice every month. They are invited to pay what is convenient for which they receive due credit. By this means the taxes are paid much more readily and with less effort than if called for at any time in one payment. The result will inevitably be that when the end of the year comes the taxes will have been paid in full and no one inconvenienced. Citizens are recognizing the wisdom of the new plan and are co-operating with the civic authorities in assisting in making it work.

Miss Burnham, who is a graduate of the Boston School of Expression, will be assisted by Mrs. Millegre Oulton, of Stellarton, who will be in charge of the musical part of the program.

ANNIE LAURA BARKHOUSE

The demise took place on Tuesday, July 7th, of Annie Laura Barkhouse, aged 49 years, wife of Capt. Charles Barkhouse, after an illness of eight months duration. The deceased was of a most genial and cheerful disposition and bore her sufferings with great Christian fortitude. No matter how intense her sufferings, she always had a smile for those around her. She was an adherent of St. Andrew's Anglican church, and greatly beloved by all who knew her.

She leaves behind her a sorrowing husband, and an aged father, Mr. John Patterson, of Falmouth; five brothers, William R., Falmouth; Reuben and Charles, New London, Conn.; John and Millard, in Boston. The funeral services which were largely attended were held on Thursday afternoon from St. Andrew's church, conducted by the rector, Rev. Mr. Cribb. There was also a short service at the house. The hymns sung were "The Resurrection Morn" and "A Few More Years Shall Roll". The floral

FORMER HANTSPORT MAN IN CALIFORNIA QUAKE

Mr. Norman Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Smith, who for some time past has been residing at Santa Barbara, was one of those who had a narrow escape during the recent severe earthquake shocks in that city. Mr. Smith holds the position of secretary of District Superintendent of the Passenger and freight department of the Southern Pacific Railway, the officers of which are on State street, where the greatest damage was done. Owing to the early hour at which the "quake" occurred Mr. Smith had not gone to work. His boarding-place, however, was badly shaken up and a dresser in his room was thrown across the floor. The inmates of the building rushed from their beds to the lawn, thinking that the building was being thrown down. In a letter recently received by his father, Mr. Smith described the living as well as the business conditions of the people of Santa Barbara as being under great difficulties.

DIARY OF MARGARET D. MICHENER

Jan. 25th, 1851. Saturday night again. How soon time flies. There was a prayer meeting here tonight, but only a few present. I thought Rebecca Elder would be here to stop with me but she did not come. Abigail and family were here today. I have felt sad most of the day as I read Simeon's journal and some of his letters to her. Rebecca Haley called in a while this afternoon. Some of my scholars have stopped with me every subject of religion. John Michener has come in also.

25th. Mother came down to Mary's this morning and spent the day. I took tea with them and then went as far as the meeting house with her when she went home. I heard Wm. Davidson speaking about our Saviour, and I have been thinking about it since. Mercy and Emily spent Monday evening with me. Last evening there was a great noise of blowing horns, firing guns, etc., to celebrate the marriage of Rachel Shaw to Nathan Davidson. Emily Ann got a letter from her father last night. I think I will write to him tonight, as he wishes to hear from me. He is in Fredricksburg, at Capt. Anderson's. A year ago last night Rebecca Tracy died. How sad I felt when I heard it, but I knew not I should feel sadder before the year closed. Who goes the coming year we know not, but may God prepare us all for that great change.

7th. The weather has turned very cold. Sister Ann has been here today helping me teach. She and Jane Elder were at Mary's yesterday. I have just finished a letter to brother Robert. Dear boy, I wonder where he is tonight. I have had over 30 scholars this week and had to send several applicants away. I took a walk early in the morning down to the beach. The vessels all lying in a row frozen up till Spring, looking rather dismal, did not cheer me up—but the walk did me good.

"And, you mean to say," said Piccolo, "that when you started out trailing after Bantling and Greer, you did it all the time with this crazy idea? You did not start out to—"

"To what? See them find the place and then plug them? It is not done, Piccolo. As a matter of fact I never thought of staking the claims for you until I had the actual specimen in my hand. That was a sudden brain wave. I wanted to be around, Piccolo, in case you and MacPherson were hazed by them, or had your claim jumped. I thought it likely that in this year of grace it would be a case for a witness rather than for a six gun; but I brought shooting irons all the same. I could just see a darn fine dust-up if Bantling and Greer and you met up here."

Piccolo having been the one chiefly explained to, he having had the baffled enquiries to put, Movie Bill, thus ending, sat staring and smiling at him. Piccolo shook his head.

"And now I'll be jiggered if I can understand, seeing none of us were there, and seeing you found it—and b'goah, just in the same way as I did—"

"That's history repeating itself," Angus put in.

"I'm darned if I see why you didn't stake it for yourself!" said Piccolo.

"I don't see either that there was any need for you to be so quixotic," said Angus. "It is a hard world. It was up to us, as ye might say. You are a better friend to me than I ever supposed, or that I deserve."

He looked at Movie Bill thoughtfully. And as he looked Bill seemed put out, self-conscious, fumbled forth a tobacco sack and wheat papers, and rolled a cigarette.

"Well," said Angus, "confession is good for the soul. When Pic dusted out his pocket and left some specimens of ore with me, all unconscious of what he was doing, I thought I would hit out my lee-lane, as they say in Aberdeen, to look for the place. I could never decide whether I went and told him what he had found so as to be sure of getting the right location, or so as to feel I was being honest and straight with him."

"There generally is what the French call an arriere pensee," said Movie Bill. "We don't know why we do the right thing sometimes."

"Yes, that's it: An arriere pensee, a thought behind the thought we acknowledge to ourselves or, as the Scripture says: 'Our righteousness is filthy rags.' Well, I've decided that the main reason I went and told Pic what he'd found was that I doubted if I could find the place without him!" said Angus. "But you are all quixotic, Bill. There was no arriere pensee with you, despite all you say. You did it just out of real friendship."

Movie Bill lit a match. Lit his cigarette, and blew so great a cloud of smoke that he hid his eyes from the gaze of Angus MacPherson.

"Oh shoot!" he said. "That's all right."

To change a conversation not at all to his mind, rather than because he was urgently anxious to know, he turned to Greer, asking:

"What did you and Bantling intend to do if you found the vein? It's a question that's been in my mind all the way, as I followed you camp by camp. And, by the way, you did not douse out one of your fires very well. Back there three camps you'd left it smouldering away among some old roots and moss. But what was your idea? You are not miners. Was one of you to sit right at the place and hold off everybody else with a gun till the other went out to Nelson, or Rossland, or somewhere for a license?"

Greer laughed.

"Oh, we have miners' licenses all right," he said.

"For B.C.?"

"Yes sir. We've had miner's licenses ever since we went into the boot-legging business. Mark Bantling and me—licenses for both sides. They are fine for allaying suspicion in mountainous countries. When any bull got dubious of us, and began instituting enquiries, we explained we were miners—prospectors. 'Oh, you are! He say, glad to have us pigeon-holed. Might be said your licenses? Not that I don't trust you, but—you understand.' Sure we understood. Policeman must do his duty!"

Movie Bill nodded his head, smiling slightly.

"Very interesting," he said. "It is all interesting, the ways of all trades, the little ins and outs of this old world. Well, where is your last camp?"

"Just on a little way," said Greer.

"Mine is just back a little ways. You really came up too far north. That rock-slide over there sent you coasting down it and up again, too far north. I looked at it and saw it was mighty recent, and thinks I: 'I'll coast up it to south and get above them.' Also I was getting darn hungry—but I've told you all that." He turned to the silent, still astounded Piccolo and to the marvelling—it might be said admiring—Angus. "What's the matter with going over now to that claim and putting the numbers right?" he suggested.

He was the only one to whom there was not something of the quality of a dream in that last short march. But he was accustomed to his own craziness. Piccolo could not fathom it at all. He had met many different kinds of men with unexpected facets to their natures, but never any one like Movie Bill.

Angus MacPherson wondered if Bill would have acted as he had, on their behalf, a knight errant in a high station, had there been no Margaret in the background—and was of the opinion that he would.

of land, four small men dwarfed by the scene! Over them a hawk, a mile above, poised in the ambient space, volplaned and returned, and trembled the tips of his wings. He dropped and swept over them so that they could see the under pattern of his feathers.

They were high enough to look over a great stretch of the West Arm of Flat-Bow Lake, four thousand feet below to north. It shimmered like blue silk between the greeny-red hills. They were high enough to see the Olsak range in all its length, like a cloud descended to rest on the lower mountains. Far south they saw the cone of Mount Jaffery (like a Japanese print of Fuji Yama) in the blue haze of utmost distance. It looked much the same when seen from just outside Colvalli. They could pick out the ranges that divide these border valleys over hundreds of miles: the peaks above Arrow Lakes; the Valhalla range with its wedge of glacier opposite the town of New Denver. They could see the dome of Mount Nelson over Kootenay Lake. But up there they were cut off from humanity.

Greer stood looking at the corner and discovery posts that Movie Bill had driven in, glum, motionless. Movie Bill sat on a cut-bank, a look of interest and right at the torn aspect of the scene.

"There's been a silver-tip around here recently," he remarked. "It has either been after roots or digging here in the belief there were gophers underneath."

Piccolo (like a lean Sancho Panza) followed Angus (like a short broad Don Quixote) up and down, clambering around. Angus smote with his short heavy prospector's hammer that he had brought along with him. He took up specimens in his hand.

"Yes," said Piccolo, "this is the place. The hens I potted were in that tree there."

"Man, man," said Angus. "Look! The bits you picked up had just been strewn by some gale, maybe in a cloud-burst up here, from your projecting rib. Ay, ay, Movie Bill. I see you have staked it fine. You've got a bit of the visible ore within both the claim boundaries. It's in place, all right. This slide here reveals the lead. I wish I had some dynamite to put a shot or two in."

He stepped it out, counting from stake to stake that Movie Bill had driven in, making the claim. He took the paper out of the inverted tin, and atop one of the stakes, which Bill had left as record for any who might come there.

"You have a characteristic hand to write," he said. "It is the first time I've seen it." And to himself he muttered: "It is not at all like Mark Bantling's—not at all."

Then he turned to Piccolo and with a backward jerk of his head and a droop of his lids indicated that he desired his presence. Together they conferred, pacing it out again, examining the papers left by Movie Bill.

"I should certainly say he has secured the claims for us," said Angus. "What is additional to the regulations would not make these papers null and void. We'll put the right numbers in. But we should have a name for them; that is one of the regulations, though as I say the lack of it would not be executed. I should think, for a body jumping the claims. You see, a name is a great help for identifications. A man might get an erroneous measurement and have his north and south and east and west kind of dubious; but a name is a name."

They stood talking quietly. Movie Bill, glancing in their direction, saw them standing there and saw how Angus's hand fell on Piccolo's shoulder and gave a venerable and kindly brief clap. They had, it would appear, come to some understanding that pleased the old prospector.

"In a very little while there will be houses all dotted here," said Movie Bill, gazing round the scene again. "You'll put in your assessment on her, you'll sell her easy if I'm any judge, look at the easy transport. It must be no more than five miles in an air line to the Flat-Bow lake arm down there. You notice that I've given that as location: . . . a height of land south of Flat-Bow arm . . . ? Look at the power in that creek down there for a compressed air plant."

"Quite so! Quite so!" came MacPherson's voice.

Greer, mute the while, now rumbled in a low voice to Movie Bill: "It's yours more than theirs. You found her. You must be bugs to go and do a thing like this for that batty old man and for the squeaky voice. I would not stake a porcupine pasture for the squeaker anyhow. Not on your tinfoil!"

Movie Bill might not have heard. He sat considering the scene.

"Yes," said he, "first a shack where they'll live to put in their assessment, and then all kinds of houses—bunk-houses, cook-houses. And the stamps will rub-a-dub; and the drills will roar into the rock; and they'll have a city down on Flat-Bow Lake where their wives will come. Progress!"

Angus came back to them, Piccolo astern, and abruptly held up a hand. "I have a brain wave," said he. "I am going to Kokanee to register this, Piccolo, you will convey Greer back to Colvalli."

"Shucks! I'm not going to Colvalli!" said Greer. "I won't go. You have no case against me."

"Case! Why of course not. But I just don't trust you. Long before you get to Colvalli I'll be at Kokanee and the claim will be registered. That's all. I see."

"How are you going to get to Kokanee all alone?" asked Movie Bill.

"I'm going with some Indians who are fishing down there," and he pointed towards the lake. "They will paddle me there for five dollars, you bet. They will still be there. They were mending canoes too, and there is no speeding up in the dockyards when Indians are working. They take things easy."

"Pic can go with you," said Movie Bill. "I'll see Greer south."

"We are already sufficiently beholden to you," replied Angus. "Though to tell you the truth I was hoping you would go south with Pic too. It sounds a rude way to speak of a gentleman; but I do not trust that Mr. Greer, Piccolo is a wonderful man, an experienced boxer though you might not think so. By aid of the ju-jitsu of it, and the knack of it, he can throw cattle, but Greer is a big and powerful man, and he nodded to their prisoner and even smiled."

THEY ALL ADVERTISE

A hen is not supposed to have Much common sense or tact, Yet every time she lays an egg She cackles forth the fact.

A rooster hasn't a lot Of intelligence to show, But none the less, most roosters have, Enough good sense to crow.

The mule, the most despised of beasts, Has a persistent way, Of letting folks know he's around By his insistent bray.

The busy little bees they buzz, Bulls bellow and cows moo, The watchdogs bark, the ganders quack, And doves and pigeons coo.

The peacock spreads his tail and squawks Figs squeal and robins sing, And even the serpents know enough To hiss before they sting.

But man, the greatest masterpiece That nature could devise, Will sometimes stop and hesitate Before he'll advertise.

Who can remember the good old day when every man, woman and boy knew how to hitch up a horse?

Salesmen are harvesters, but their work cannot be accomplished if the crop to be harvested has not been prepared by careful planting and cultivation in the shape of Service and Advertising.—Northern Furniture.

The surprising thing about people is that most of them have just as much sense as you have.—Kingston Whig.

To test the power of a new type of Pacific locomotive, the Southern Railway of England, pitted the new giant against two older models. The three engines were placed together and after putting up a stubborn effort the two old engines gave way. The new engine has a speed of 80 M.P.H.

How To Write Want Advertisements

What to say---and how to say it---facts that influence the results you are after.

Results from classified advertisements depend largely upon how the advertisements are written. The following are suggestions that might prove helpful in properly writing a classified advertisement:

Don't try to save space by abbreviating or leaving out words. Use plain English and enough of it to tell all about the proposition.

Point out in your proposition the things in which you think the prospect would be most readily interested.

Select the strongest selling point; this may be the price, the opportunity to make or save money, the exclusiveness of the proposition or location, the size, the terms or any one of a hundred things.

Emphasize this point or points to arrest the reader's eye as he glances through the classified columns; this can be accomplished by placing the most important features at the head of the advertisement or by the use of large type.

Inasmuch as the amount of money involved is a vital factor in all transactions prices should be given.

A man does not want to waste time looking up a proposition when he does not know whether it is within the range of his pocketbook. He answers those advertisements he knows come within the price he has in mind. Many people will not answer an advertisement that omits the price, feeling that the advertiser intentionally did not mention the price because it is too high.

The number of replies lost because the price is too low or too high is more than made up by the response gained from those to whom the price is right and who probably would not have replied at all if the price had been omitted.

Make your classified advertisement specific. If it is sold on terms, point out the specific terms, not just "easy terms", but "$10 down and $5 a month".

Always bear in mind that what is "easy", "desirable", "convenient", "good", "beautiful", "wonderful", "close", "cheap", for one person may not be for another.

The pulling power of the classified advertising lies in the directness with which important details are specified.

It is always well to impel action at the end of an advertisement. Often a person will have a real want and need for the thing advertised, but the wording of the advertisement somehow lacks the power of suggestion to induce action.

To overcome this it is advisable to use a phrase that helps the reader to respond at once. "First caller gets this." "This will not last long at the price." "This is a special offer, see Mr. Smith before noon." "Telephone us and we will call for you in our car," and other such phrases often stimulate immediate action.

Another element that invites immediate response is to make it easy for the person answering the classified advertisement to find you.

A telephone number is usually very easily called and many people dislike to call personally unless they can determine further details by telephone conversation beforehand.

On the other hand, street addresses should be given wherever possible.

Some people have no telephone, others dislike using it and therefore prefer calling in person.

Not only make it easy for the reader to answer your advertisement but always be on hand to answer calls when they come.

This seems like rather foolish advice, yet experience in classified advertising proves that many people expect a classified advertisement to bring returns when they are not even present to receive the answers or will depend on a person to receive the answers who knows little or nothing about what is advertised.

Repetition has a certain strength. Classified Ads that readers pass by the first week receive interested attention and response the next.

One of the peculiarities in classified advertising is the fact that an advertisement may run several weeks and not bring a single result, yet the following week, possibly from least expected, answers will come from every quarter. For this reason, experienced advertisers order their advertisements to run a number of weeks.
