WALTZING WICKED

A Dancing-Master and some Clergymen Considered for What is to Be.

Prof. James P. Welch, dancing-master, is about to begin a crusade against the waltz as at present danced, which he pronounces to be immodest, vulgar and generally demoralizing.

"Do you hear many objections to waltzing?" "Oh, yes, any quantity of them; and I think the time is ripe to begin a crusade. I don't think my efforts or those of the clergymen who will take part in the good work will have any immediate effect, but when the people begin to think, which they will do when the subject has had a little agitation, they will soon act, and the voluptuous waltz will gradually disappear.

"You speak with much force, Professor, with regard to the morality of the waltz. Do you speak from personal observation or from hearsay?" "From personal observation. I have made it my practice for years to attend balls and parties in order to keep pace in my teaching with the popular demand. I have no hesitation in saying that I attribute much of the vice and immorality now prevailing to the insidious influence of the waltz. This may seem an overstraining of the point, but it is my honest conviction. I tell you that in the higher circles young ladies at parties and balls are absolutely hugged by men who were altogether unknown to them before the music for the waltz began to inspire the toes of the dancers.

"There are six (?) dances now in vogue that involve the hugging principle of the waltz. They are the plain waltz, which was introduced by the Germans who seldom, by the way take part in square dances; the glide, a very fashionable and pretty dance; the redowa, which has held its own for many generations of dancers; the Danish (half march and half waltz), and the three-step gallop. I entered upon this crusade, first, because I thought the waltz an immoral dance, and, secondly, because the clergymen whom I consulted thought the initiatory steps in the matter should be taken by a member of the profession most deeply interested."

Notices of Thoughtful Men.

They always talk who never think. [Pope.] Whatever's lost, it first was won. [E. B. Spurgeon.] Health and cheerfulness mutually begot each other. [Addison.]

Be generous by choice; where knowledge leads to woe. [Beattie.] Censure is the tax a man pays to the public for being eminent. [Swift.] He who tenders doubtful safety to those in trouble refuses it. [Seneca.]

True friendship between man and man is infinite and immortal. [Plato.] Trust that man in nothing who has not a conscience in everything. [Sterne.] Occasions do not make a man frail, but show what he is. [Thomas A Kempis.]

We love in others what we lack ourselves, and would be everything but what we are. [Stoddard.] To tell men that they cannot help themselves is to fling them into recklessness and despair. [Broude.] Education is the only interest worthy the deep, controlling anxiety of the thoughtful man. [Wendell Phillips.]

He that wrestles with us strengthens our nerves and sharpens our skill. Our antagonist is our helper. [Burke.] Travel makes all men countrymen, makes people noblemen and kings, every man tasting of liberty and dominion. [Alcott.]

Confidence is that feeling by which the mind embarks in great and honorable courses with a sure hope and trust in itself. [Cicero.] In life it is difficult to say who do you the most mischief, enemies with the worst intentions, or friends with the best. [Bulwer-Lytton.]

We ought not to look back unless it is to derive useful lessons from past errors and for the purpose of profiting by dear-bought experience. [George Washington.] Humility is to make a right estimate of one's self. It is no humility for a man to think less of himself than he ought, though it might rather puzzle him to do that. [Spurgeon.]

Whoever the number of a man's friends, there will be times in his life when he has one too few; if he has not one too many. [Bulwer-Lytton.] Truth comes to us from the past, as gold is washed down from the mountains of Sierra Nevada, in minute but precious particles, and intermixed with infinite alloy, the debris of centuries. [Bovee.]

As for jest, there be certain things which ought to be privileged from it, viz, religion, matters of state, great persons, any man's present business of importance, any case that deserveth pity. [Bacon.] As ships meet at sea, a moment together, when words of greeting must be spoken, and then away into the deep, so men meet in this world; and I think we should cross no man's path without halting him, and if he needs, giving him supplies. [Henry Ward Beecher.]

Mints for Poor sleepers. Poor sleepers will find it advantageous often to raise the head of the bed a foot higher than the foot, and then to sleep on a tolerably thick hair pillow, so as to bring the head a little higher than the shoulders. The object is to make the work of the heart in throwing blood to the brain harder, so it will not throw too much. A level bed, with the head almost as low as the feet, causes an easy flow of blood to the brain and prevents sleep.

Persons who find themselves restless and unable to sleep at night, would do well to place the head of the bed toward the north, as it is undoubtedly a great conducive to health. A hot mustard foot bath, taken at bedtime, is beneficial in drawing the blood from the head, and thus inducing sleep.

Sponge the entire length of the spine with hot water for ten or fifteen minutes before retiring. This will often insure a good night's sleep. A hearty meal, and a seat near a warm fire, after a long walk in a cold wind, will induce deep sleep in the majority of persons no matter how lightly they ordinarily slumber.

Active outdoor exercise, and avoidance of excessive and long-continued mental exertion, are necessary in all cases of sleeplessness. When these means fail, such remedies as are known to diminish the amount of blood in the head should be resorted to—of course, under the direction of a competent physician. Opium, chloral, etc., increase the quantity of blood in the head, and are highly injurious. Their use should never be resorted to. [L. H. Washington, M. D., in Phrenological Journal.]

A Plucky Messenger. TUSCAN, A. T., Aug. 23.—The stage robbers who killed Messenger Hall and stole $5,000 had breastworks beside the road, and commenced firing as soon as the express came in range. Hall had eight bullet holes in his body, all in front. When found he was a mile from the trail, with his pistol empty. He followed the robbers ten miles alone, fighting them. Parties are on the trail of the murderers.

A furred tongue, bad taste in the mouth, nausea vomiting, variable appetite, alternate diarrhoea and constiveness, faintness, weariness, yellow cast of eyes and countenance, indicates serious biliary trouble. Jaundice is a dangerous disease, it is an overflow of bad bile in the circulation, any of these symptoms should be remedied without delay, and Burdock Blood Bitters is the remedy.

Remembrance of Things Past.

One of Jonathan Edwards's daughters, who had some suitors of her own, had a proposal of marriage. The youth was reverent to her father. "No," said the stern individual, "you can't have my daughter." "But I love her and she loves me," pleaded the young man. "Can't have her!" said the father. "I am well to do, and can support her," explained the applicant. "Can't have her!" persisted the old man. "May I ask," meekly inquired the suitor, "if you have heard anything my character?" "No!" thundered the obstinate parent, by this aroused; "I haven't heard anything against you; I think you are a promising young man, and that's why you can't have her. She's got a very bad temper and you wouldn't be happy with her!" The lover, amazed, said, "Why Mr. Edwards! I thought Emily was a Christian. She is a Christian, isn't she?" "Certainly she is," growled the conscientious parent, "but, young man, when you grow older you'll be able to understand that there's some folks that the grace of God can live with that you can't!"

The Springs Did No Good. The following item is given for the consideration of those of our readers who are in search of just such an article as that referred to in the following statement of Mrs. Geo. A. Clark, a well known lady of St. Catherine's: "I cannot refrain," says Mrs. C., "from bearing testimony to the wonderful effects produced by the use of the very best remedy in the world, St. Jacobs Oil, for rheumatism. I had rheumatism and dropsy and did not walk a step for fifteen years. I tried nearly everything our most skillful physicians prescribed—Clifton Springs—St. Catherine Springs, etc., residing with a celebrated German doctor who pronounced my case incurable. Thinking every day of no use I was induced to try St. Jacobs Oil, and in it has certainly done wonders for me. I heartily recommend it to any who may be suffering as I did. I have not had any use of my right arm for more than a year; now, however, I can raise it very nearly to my head."

Phosphatine. Is a wonderful thing, yet so natural, so reasonable. Why! if you have feelings of goneness; too weak and dragging to rally; too nervous to sleep; an appetite hardly sufficient to keep body and soul together; headache, with pains across the back; the whole system relaxed; perhaps coughs and sore lungs; and will use one to six bottles of Dr. G. L. Austin's Phosphatine as the case may demand; it will not fail to make you an enthusiastic friend. Why do we say thus? Because Phosphatine supplies a want, the very principle of the system is lacking, and yearning for it. It is not a medicine, but nutriment instantly converted into blood, bone and tissue. It is also delicious to the taste. Try it. The result is as certain as that cause and effect go hand in hand. All druggists. Low-Dex & Co., Sole agents for the Dominion, 55 Front St. East, Toronto.

A large number of American tourists and others who have been fishing in Canadian waters in the Kingston district have been compelled to assist by the Dominion Fisheries Inspector.

A 4-year-old daughter Alexander McGurkin, of Mt. Vernon, O., was playing with a piece of twine, and had tied it to the front door catch, when, in some unknown manner, the door, shutting, the cord caught around the child's neck, and caused strangulation. When found the little one was dead.

THE EXPERIMENTS OF PROFS. Dusari and Raife, of Paris, and Dr. Anderson, of London, and other eminent physiologists demonstrating the function of PHOSPHATINE as excitant of nutrition and nerve power having brought these agents into general use. It ought not to be necessary to call the attention of invalids to WHEELER'S Phosphates and Calisaya, the best combination of these food elements, with Wild Cherry Bark, in its value in promoting the condition of the system is obvious, and its prolonged use in obstinate cases that have resisted all ordinary treatment, will clearly demonstrate its extraordinary merits.

It may save you days of sickness, and you will find it is more valuable than gold. Be sure you buy the genuine FERRY DAVIS PAIN-KILLER, and take no other mixture.

COBORG, Ont., March 3, 1880. I have been selling Perry Davis' Pain-Killer for the past six years, and have much pleasure in stating that its sale in that time has been larger than any other patent medicine that I have on my shelves, and in those years I have never heard a customer say aught but words of the highest praise in its favor. It is an article that seems to have combined in it all that goes to make a first-class family medicine, and as long as I have a house and store, Perry Davis Pain-Killer will be found in both.

Yours, &c., J. E. KENNEDY. Beware of Counterfeits and Imitations.

Provide yourselves with a bottle of PAIN-KILLER at this season of the year, when summer complaints are so prevalent; it is a prompt, safe, and sure cure. It may save you days of sickness, and you will find it is more valuable than gold. Be sure you buy the genuine FERRY DAVIS PAIN-KILLER, and take no other mixture.

SELLING YOUNG GIRLS.

Female Slavery not a Thing of the Past.—The Trade in Turkey.

The other day a girl about 13 years old was publicly sold in the courtyard of a mosque situated in the heart of Galata, and through which hundreds of persons hourly passed. It has since transpired that two female children are missing from their homes, having probably been kidnapped by dealers in human flesh. A short while back a wretched girl escaped from the harem in which she was confined, and carried her scarred and bleeding shoulders to the nearest police-station, where it was proven that she had been stolen by a Circassian during the refugee panic and traded away for a few pounds to an exceptionally brutal mistress, and the authorities of Salonica quite recently rescued four young negroes from a caïque, just on the point of landing them. These unhappy beings, who were lying in the bottom of the boat, declared they had belonged to a party of ten; that after a year's captivity at the port of the Nile had been bought by the dealers on board a coasting steamer, and crammed, half naked, into a small, stifling cabin, in which they had to be packed so close together that they were almost piled on top of each other. After enduring the horrors of that passage they were smuggled at night into the barque as described, but they could give no information relative to their six companions, who are doubtless now in hopeless bondage.

An English lady of my acquaintance as taken by a black driver to a palace at Stamboul, into which she walked without the slightest difficulty, caddy, with his smattering of French, acting as interpreter through a grating in the door. When she entered the saleroom: a large barely-furnished and very light apartment, the mistress of the establishment conducted her to a divan, and slaves fetched sweets and coffee. No astonishment was betrayed at the intrusion of a Giasour woman on such a scene. A number of white girls, of ages varying from 12 to 18, were then led up to her, one after the other, each in her turn standing motionless before the sofa till signed to yield her position to her next fellow. They are described as for the most part clumsy and heavy, with cowed, sullen faces and muddy, yellow complexions. Their dress consisted of a gauze cap and a loose frock, with short sleeves, and reaching to the ankles, and fastened down with strings. Declaring that her husband desired to present an odalisck to a pasha, the visitor asked to see some prettier maidens, and was told there was none on hand, though a selection would very shortly arrive, when she certainly could be suited.

Two Turkish women were during this time selecting slaves. No sort of consideration was paid to the feelings of the poor girls. Under examination they untied their single garment, according to the requirements of the purchaser, or threw it off entirely if so wished. Their teeth were looked at and, hair let down, their persons punched and pulled about. The buyers, wanting sound, useful articles, tested their strength and searched for blemishes in the same, unconcerned manner as is done at a horse fair. As for the girls, their attitude was invariably that of absolute, uncomplaining submission. They stood with downcast eyes and drooping limbs, simply doing what they were ordered, and never losing for a moment their look of stupid, hopeless indifference.

Farm and Garden.

The Clover Plant.

Dr. Byron D. Halstead presents in the American Agriculturist for September the following important facts in regard to the agricultural value of the clover plant:

The clover plant is a close and deep feeder, sending its fine roots far down into the soil, filling the sub-soil with a network of rootlets. It exposes a large leaf surface, and is thus able to concentrate weak solutions of plant food, and prepare them for the formation of vegetable substance. The clover plant grows throughout the whole season, and is thus able to take up the nitrates as they form. These compounds of nitrogen are produced in large quantities in hot summer months, and, being very soluble, would be washed out by the rains, were it not that the clover plant absorbs it. This is one great advantage which clover has over all the common grains, that finish their growth and are harvested before the time for the most rapid nitrification arrives. It is a well-known fact that clover prepares land for the production of large crops, and this is explained in large part by the long season of its growth, and its deep and close feeding, and the storing up of compounds of nitrogen. The clover plant is largely below ground, so that removing the tops takes away only a part of the vegetable matter that has been accumulated. The roots of clover are large and numerous: when they are turned over in plowing, and decay, they yield a good supply of plant-food to such crops as feed near the surface, and must grow rapidly for only a few weeks. In this way the clover crop will help the succeeding wheat crop, and has given rise to the saying that "clover seed is the best manure a farmer can use." If the whole crop is turned over, as a green manure, a much larger amount of plant food is put into the soil. This is one of the quickest, cheapest and best methods of increasing the fertility of a piece of land.

Ensilage and Silos.

J. P. Roberts, Professor of Agriculture at Cornell University, has made a practical test of the silo system of storing fodder, and from his condensed article in the Scientific American for September we here give some of his conclusions:

I believe the greatest utility of silos will be found to consist in the means they furnish in preserving forage plants, in a green and palatable state, which may be easily grown in abundance in May and June; but if not then secured, they would become dried up and nearly worthless, or, if dried and housed, the animals appear to have but little relish for them in the hot, dry days of August. The reasons for building silos with small compartments are manifold: a small compartment may be finished and sealed up in a single day, thereby not seriously interfering with the regular work. Each forage plant may be taken when in its best condition. One compartment may be filled early with rye and clover, which is showing a tendency to spoil by lodging, or is full of weeds that it is desirable to eradicate; a second with oats and a second cutting of the former clover field, or a weedy, belated piece of timothy. A piece of fodder corn and aftermath would fill a third compartment later in the season.

If the compartments are small they may be uncovered entirely and fed from the top, and if not all consumed they can be filled up with new material; or, if one or more compartments are entirely emptied, they may be refilled in September, thus securing a two-fold benefit from them. From my experience, I judge that a compartment not entirely emptied in the spring, if disturbed only on the top, would sustain little less till June if re-sealed, or it might be left open, and daily a little of that exposed to air fed to the horses as cut feed. Our horses thus fed last winter relished it very much.

There are many problems in regard to ensilage that are still unsolved; but, should everything be found favorable to the new method, there are still men who would have no more use for a silo than for a trotting horse. There are men having so little energy and skill that, should you give them the best herd of Shorthorns, they would have little better than scrubs in ten years. Under certain conditions, the new method, I believe, can be adopted with profitable results, but he who rushes thoughtlessly into it will find, I fear, that ensilage is too "Frenchy," unless mixed with a liberal allowance of brains.

THE HUMAN RACE.

Some Things About the Past and Present.

THE DEAD OF CHINA.

In view of the myriads of human beings which have lived in China from time immemorial, scientists say that every ounce of soil must have passed through the bodies of human beings of that empire not only once but hundreds of times. China is a densely populated country, and its records are very, very ancient. If all born were still alive they would cover the country completely and extend miles into the air. It is a suggestive idea that the soil of every populous country must represent the remains of myriads of animated beings who once lived and loved.

TREE-PLANTING.

93,000 acres of land have been planted with trees in Kansas under a new law relating to arboriculture. This is done to supply wood to the future generation, and, if possible to increase the moisture of the atmosphere. This example ought to be followed very extensively, for, since the country was settled the waste of woodlands has been enormous. Immense sections of the earth's surface are barren to-day, because of the removal of the ancient forests, and the droughts and freshets of this country are in a great part due to the same cause. Every farmer and land-owner should regard it as a duty he owes to his country and posterity to plant more trees than he cuts down. Then every municipality and every State, and the nation, should combine to encourage tree-growing, and to check the reckless cutting down of wood.

THE EMPIRE OF THE DEAD.

According to M. Maspero, the soil of Egypt is thick with mummies. Dig in any part of the country and the preserved corpses of the ancient Egyptians are brought to light. Indeed at some distance from the Nile the soil is rendered unproductive and therefore cannot support population because of these artificially preserved dead bodies. It is after all a wise provision of nature which decrees that the body shall moulder away after death. The preservation of the body is unnatural and if universally done, would in time make the world uninhabitable except by dried corpses. The cremationists have a new lesson taught by the burial of the Egyptian dead, but after all would it not be better to place the bodies at once in the earth, so that the component parts would assimilate naturally with the soil to which it belongs. Cemeteries and graveyards violate the intentions of nature as much as did the burial customs of the Egyptians.

ANTIQUITY OF THE AMERICAN MAN.

How long has man been on this planet? is a question often asked, but the answer is always unsatisfactory. The remains of implements and articles used by man have been found in strata hundreds of thousands of years ago. Ages must have passed since the savage man first emerged from a semi-brute condition. Mr. Wiggins, of Waverly, New Jersey, found on the top of the Alleghany Mountains in Perry County, Pennsylvania, a piece of metaphoric limestone upon which was clearly visible the print of the right foot of a human being. The impression is about an inch deep and shows the five toes and the perfectly formed foot of a man. This piece of stone has been sent to the Smithsonian Institution. The rock is of great antiquity and must have antedated the oldest monuments of Egypt. It certainly is the earliest trace of man in America.

IS THE CONDITION OF THE POOR IMPROVING?

Mr. Mulhall says it is. He has been looking over the list of the income tax-payers, as well as other legal and trade documents, and he has reached the conclusion that while the number of very rich have increased, the number of well-to-do have also increased, while the very poor have been cut down. His figures are exhaustive, and a summary of them cannot be given here, but he declares that the working classes have decreased from 74.6 per cent. of the whole population to 67 per cent. In Scotland the working class has diminished from 89 to 87 per cent., and in Ireland from 95 to 82 per cent. Since 1840 the average wealth per family has increased from $220 to $330—that is, it has nearly doubled. Forty years ago Scotland swarmed with beggars, and the average wealth per inhabitant was $400; it is now $1,386, while beggary has greatly abated. Even in Ireland there has been an improvement. Three-fourths of its population were bare-footed forty years ago, and the average wealth was $190 per inhabitant; now shoes are worn and the average wealth $419. In France wealth has multiplied three-fold in forty years. Since 1840 the large estates have diminished by 10 per cent. No less than 1,536 large estates have been cut up in 425,000 peasant holdings. It is very certain that in Western Europe the apparent wealth of the lower classes has increased, but then its purchase power is not so great as it was.

THE GREATNESS OF ANCIENT INDIA.

In our abounding prosperity we are apt to believe that the past has nothing to compare with it. But historians believe that the people who lived under the sway of the Roman Empire about the time Christ was born, and for a century afterward, were in more comfortable circumstances than those who came before or after them. The civilized world was rich in gold and silver, wars were unfrequent and comfort abundant. But there were other epochs in the world's history of a still more ancient date, when vast masses of human beings were in very comfortable circumstances. At the recent meeting of the Concord School of Philosophy, Dr. H. K. Jones spoke of the former glory of Hindostan. We are apt to forget, he said, that there were once in that country empire, wealth and civil government that has not since been equaled. The Hindoo of seven thousand years ago was finely cultivated, not all idolatrous, and they worshipped one God. Dr. Jones traced the glory of a Hindoo Empire, one city of which had 675 towers. For years the wealth of the world poured into her lap, exceeding computation and belief. They possessed a standing army which made use of 6,000 elephants of war. These reports are not at all incredible when we consider the absorption of the wealth of China, Japan and other countries which was going on. The amount of her commerce, for which Carthage, Greece, and Egypt entertained great projects, was simply stupendous. The arts were also in a very fine state. In the polishing of the diamond, an art which is generally supposed to be of modern growth, they were proficient. They were an agricultural, commercial, and manufacturing people. However low and debased the Hindoo may now appear, there can be no doubt that he then surpassed in civilization and glory. We are apt to disparage the past, because we only see present.

Against Horse-Shoeing.

Colonel M. C. Weld's noteworthy views on the abuse of shoeing horses, have attracted deserved attention abroad as well as at home and called out one striking statement, of favorable English experience, the points of which we quote from the Mark Lane Express:—

"About three years ago, I was led to give the non-shoeing system a fair trial, commencing with a pony constantly driven, and extending the experiment to the young farm horses, all of which had, however, unfortunately been shod before the trial began, and am now able to endorse the observations of Colonel M. C. Weld in almost every particular, except as regards travelling on paved surfaces, as in Southampton, where there is a tramway, it is found that the pony prefers the paved stoneway to the macadamized part on either side. The time that elapses before the 'dead horn' of the hoof grew out was six months, and it was fully eighteen before the insensibility of the frog had lost its callousness and grown soft, like India rubber. The pony does not work on the farm but goes out nearly every day, the greatest number of miles run in any one week being eighty, and in any one day thirty-two.

Before the shoes were removed it was somewhat of a 'daisy cutter,' had been down once or twice, and stumbled much going down hill; since discarding shoes it has never stumbled once, and I have driven it full trot down a hill covered with snow and ice. The farm horses are young and strong, and have been bred on the farm, and though mostly employed in the fields, are frequently engaged in hauling corn, timber, bricks or manure, for home or hire purposes. No roads than those around Winchester can be more trying, repaired (if) as they are with flints, which have been broken just enough to make them cut like razors, and are a cruelty to horses shod or unshod. I find no difference in the capability of drawing full loads. There is no stamping in the stable or when standing out; asphalt or icy pavements there is no slipping; the feet do not ball up over snow.

The great drawback is that against which all who try any new groove have to contend, namely, the unyielding prejudice of all classes, more especially those who have to look after the horses, who, rather than aid in any change, will throw every obstacle in the way, but to my brother farmers I say emphatically, the man who cuts the frog or shoes his young horses is committing a great error. With a little care you may work them on roads or fields, probably healthier, and yourself be in pocket by the change, and with an occasional rasp the appearance of your horses will be far better than the torn, jagged, heavily ironed and nailed feet, of one-half the wretched animals it is painful to see about the country."

Major and the cat.

A gentleman in this city owns a fine large dog named Major. Major's hatred of a cat appears to be deep-seated, and he will kill all that come in his way to vent his spite on his enemies. His master's wife had a cat that she determined he should not harm, and she took great pains to impress the big brute with this idea. She would take puss in her arms, carry her up to the dog, and while stroking or petting her would talk to her in a reprovingly. The intelligent dog seemed to understand every word she said, but for all that he would keep his eyes fastened on puss with a longing and hungry look, as though anxious to bring the pressure of his ponderous jaws to bear upon her spinal column. But his mistress conquered and made him understand he must live on friendly terms with puss. More than once he had been seen watching the cat with a look of evil intent, but out of respect to his mistress he conquered his nature, and would throw himself upon the ground with a sigh expressive of his deep disgust at his situation. The cat was disposed to be on friendly terms with her enemy, but Major would not tolerate the slightest familiarity. Whenever puss approached him he would get up and go away with a melancholy look, which seemed to say: "I am dying to kill you, and it's dog-gone hard luck that I can't do it."

Thus matters went on for some months and puss began to incur the displeasure of her mistress by sneaking upstairs every opportunity and making trouble by curling herself up and taking naps on the snowy counterpane, and doing other such untidy acts as would rouse the ire of a neat housekeeper. One morning the lady told her husband that the cat was getting so troublesome that she guessed it would have to be killed. A few minutes later a rush and a struggling noise was heard, and as the lady of the house hastened to the door to see what had happened, Major walked up to his mistress and laid at her feet the dead body of puss, then looked up with an air of triumph, and wagged his tail with intense satisfaction. He had heard his mistress express the wish that puss might be killed, and this was so in consonance with his own feelings that he went right out and finished the cat.

In Boone County, Iowa, Monday night infuriated citizens put a rope around the neck of an old man named Delaine, and dragged him to jail, for soliciting and receiving subscriptions to a magazine and then failing to send the book.

THE PROTEST IN WEST HURON.

After much discussion and earnest cogitation on the part of the wire-pullers of the Tory party in West Huron, a petition has been presented to Court against the return of Mr. M. C. Cameron, the member elect for the constituency.

BICYCLES are becoming more popular every day. Medical men are beginning to use them in making professional visits, and we expect to shortly see ministers doing circuit work on the mazy wheel.

Now that the Canada Presbyterian has taken to original jokes, its editorial page will probably be more eagerly scanned than ever before.

THE spectacle of Mr. Bub McRory, of Kingsbridge, the partisan returning officer of No. 2, Ashfield, stuffing the ballot box with tendered ballots in behalf of Mr. Cameron and to the detriment of Mr. Porter's cause, must have been a sight to make angels weep.

A LIVE rattlesnake, twenty eight inches long, is on exhibition at the Park House. He is kept in a large glass bottle or jar, has had nothing to eat or drink for five weeks, and still keeps up to fighting weight.

MR. O'DONOVAN ROSA, has started another skirmishing fund. The last fund was entrusted to the care of a set of trustees, among whom was Mr. John Devoy, editor of a Fenian newspaper.

THE editor of the Star recently sneered at Archbishop Lynch because that dignitary expressed his belief in the genuineness of the miracles at Knock.

THE Tories of West Huron must be a marketable lot, if we are to take any stock in the terrible indictment made against them by the Tory petitioner in West Huron.

WHEN Sir John A. Macdonald heard that a protest was to be entered against him, he fled to the adjoining province of Quebec, in the hope of escaping service.

There is very little sound morality among those who travel upon the question of paying custom duties.

THE ordinary affairs of life have no hesitation in cheating their country out of the duty upon articles that they may have bought abroad.

THE New York Tribune states on a patent fact and offers good advice when it says that it is a curious fact that an American family who will cheerfully pay an extortionate foreign hotel bill rather than make a fuss about it, reckoning the dishonest overcharge as the price of avoiding trouble.

The McCaffrey Murder.

OTTAWA, Aug. 27.—One of the most cold blooded murders ever committed in the county of Carleton took place at Gouldbourne, about eighteen miles from this city, last evening. The victim, Robert McCaffrey, was a young farmer of 28 years of age, unmarried and lived near his father's home, quite close to which he came to an untimely end. The circumstances of the shocking affair are as follows: On Friday morning McCaffrey came to Ottawa with the intention of purchasing a horse, which he intended presenting to his parents, to whom he had always been extremely kind, although making an independent living for himself and living in his own house. On Saturday evening between 3 and 4 o'clock he left for home in a buggy, having made the intended purchase, for which he was to have returned to town on Monday. The murdered man was last seen alive at about 9 o'clock last night about half a mile from his own home by his hired man, who says that he passed McCaffrey while the latter was in conversation with a neighboring farmer named Chester Spearman, who was also seated in a buggy, accompanied by his sister. Spearman and McCaffrey had evidently met on the road, for, with their horses heads turned in different direction, the two men were engaged in low and apparently earnest conversation. Without speaking to either, McCaffrey's hired man walked on in the direction of his employer's house. When about a quarter of a mile distant, he was startled by a pistol shot and shortly after McCaffrey's horse and buggy came rattling along the road, the vehicle being empty and the horse having evidently been started by the shot. Securing the animal, the servant drove hastily back and reaching the spot where he had lately seen McCaffrey in conversation with Spearman, he was horrified to find the body of the murdered man lying in the centre of the roadway and bathed in a pool of blood. Frank McCaffrey, the victim's brother, was notified of the occurrence and he at once left for the scene of the murder, which was about a mile from his house and but two hundred yards from the gate of a farm house owned by a man named Todd. Dr. Bentley of Richmond was sent for and examined the wound, which was in the region of the heart and must have caused instantaneous death. Shortly after Frank McCaffrey left the house it is said Spearman called and asked McCaffrey's wife if she had "heard what happened Bob," and she answered "no; what's the matter?" He replied "You'll know in the morning." The murdered man's brother drove into the city this morning and there being no county constable, induced Detective McVeilly to take the case in hand and he, accompanied by Sergeant Major Connors of the Dominion police force, left for the scene of the tragedy this afternoon. On the murdered man's person in an inside waistcoat pocket, near where the fatal bullet penetrated, were found $150 in cash, so that it is impossible that the murder was committed for the purpose of robbery. Since the story of the murder has been circulated in the district in which it occurred, rumors have been set afloat connecting the names of the murdered man and Spearman's sister with a scandal and the common belief is that this is what led to murder. It is also reported that Spearman is to be arrested on suspicion.

LATER.

Marie Spearman, the girl who was lodged in goal yesterday on a charge of having murdered Robt. McCaffrey, still persists that she fired the fatal shot. At first the medical men and others disbelieved her confession, thinking that it was impossible that a woman standing on the ground, as she alleged she did at the time the shot was fired, could have shot a man in a buggy in such a manner that the ball would enter the left breast and pass downward to the right side of the intestines. It has, however, been since clearly shown that owing to the position of the two vehicles, a shot fired from the one occupied by the Spearman's could not possibly have struck the victim in the manner in which it did. On the other hand, if the girl was standing at the head of McCaffrey's horse, as she states, and he was leaning forward and downward to speak to her when she made her fatal appeal, she could easily have shot him in such a manner that the ball would take the course above described. It is now stated that McCaffrey, the victim, promised to marry the girl, but postponed the ceremony from month to month. Finding at length that she was evasive, and that he was to be married to another girl, she was grieved to desperation. She now appears to be utterly unconscious of her surroundings, and to care little whether she lives or dies.

Death of Charles J. Kickham.

Dublin, Aug. 24.—Charles James Kickham, a leading Fenian and author, is dead. [Charles James Kickham, whose death a cable despatch has this day announced, was a leading character in the Fenian troubles of '68 and was one of those who co-temporarily with James Stephens, Clarke, Luby and others, figured prominently in the State trials which so agitated the public mind at that period. He was sentenced with the remainder to a long term of imprisonment, but owing to ill health and the influence of his many friends of all shades of opinion, clemency was extended and he was released. Kickham, during those troublous days, stood out in bold relief, due principally to his superior education and gentlemanly demeanour. His love of country was sincere and genuine, and his pen worked unceasingly in her cause. To the national papers of that day he was an untiring contributor, and a poet he will live in the hearts of that section of his countrymen who followed with ardent but mistaken zeal the same ignis fatuus. Very few Irish homes are unacquainted with the evidences of his poetic genius, and his touching lines breathing nought but love of country and detestation of her oppressors have been read or sung at many a cabin fire-side for years. The "deaf man," as he was called,—from an infirmity which afflicted him for the greater part of his life—had for a considerable time retired from active working in the cause to which he had devoted himself, but his memory, aided by the fruits of his pen, will be ever green in the hearts of his countrymen.

By casual observation, we find all land speculators have a clear head and watch the rise and down of property, thus making large fortunes. But the whole secret is, they keep the system in a healthy condition by the use of THE PRIDE OF THE VALLEY MEDICINE. We can safely say that hundreds come to us for the great lung and blood purifier before going west. Read the following statement. "I could not sleep often troubled with dull, lifeless feelings, pains in the chest and back. After giving hundreds of dollars to doctors, and giving up all hopes, I tried the PRIDE OF THE VALLEY, and am now able to do my work after seven years' sickness."

Why I Disobeyed Orders.

Mr. Singleton, the manager of the banking house of Sterling, Cash & Co., came up to my desk with a pleasant smile, and handed me an envelope. "I suppose you would like your holiday now, Frank," he said. "You have drugged the year through without murmuring or shrinking from your duty, and the firm gives you four weeks—a whole month my boy."

My face was aflame. "I promised Mr. Singleton," I said, gaspingly, "before I left him not to fall in love." Maggie, on hearing this, fairly crowed with laughter, and I could not help noticing the quiet smile that for the moment illuminated my mother's dark sober eyes.

"I couldn't help falling in love with an old friend, and—marrying her." "What, sir?" he cried; "a benedictio soon?" I told him quietly my little romance as I have you, reader. A Good Digestion. The largest measure of human happiness, it has been truly said, results from a perfect digestion. In the race of life, a sufferer from dyspepsia (indigestion) is not only heavily burdened, but the infirmity of temper begotten by the ailment so overshadows and warps what may naturally be a fine disposition, that he oftentimes becomes a nuisance not only to himself, but to his friends.

into another cup, so as to dispose of the leaves, which will remain behind—the tea is made. Sugar is added to taste, and lastly milk—and very little, if any, of it. Tea made in this manner is not only most deliciously aromatic, but most digestible; for the bitter tannin, which is apt to harden—literally to tan—the food in the stomach, is left behind. "THE BEAR IS A BEAST," says a quaint old book, published in London three centuries ago, "whose flesh is good for mankyad; his fat is good, with laudanum, to make an ointment to heal baldheaded men to receive the hayre agayne." We know of many "bald-headed men" who would be glad to "receive the hayre agayne," but we do not desire to encourage them in a trial of bear's fat and laudanum. Far from it. We, however, do not hesitate to commend Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.'s Hair Vigor, which not only has the effect in some cases of making the hair grow on heads once bald, but cleans the scalp and restores gray and faded hair to its original color and vitality, imparting to it the glossiness and softness of youth. The evidences of its utility are too numerous and of too high a character to admit of any doubt. It required years of study and scientific experiment to decide upon the combination of ingredients that would accomplish what Ayer's Hair Vigor now does.—[The Interior, Chicago, Ill.]

Bright Thoughts.

We ought in humanity no more to despise a man for the misfortunes of the mind than they are such as he cannot help.

So far is it from being true that men are naturally equal that no two people can be an hour together but one shall acquire an evident superiority over the other.

Overwork at School.

Faith Rochester, in the September number of the American Agriculturist, gives a valuable article on "Over-work at School," from which the portion given below is selected:

Actual insanity may result from over-work of the brain. Sometimes the bright precocious child becomes almost idiotic from combined over-work of the brain, excitement of feeling, and neglect of the body.

But the child is not "crowded" with study, the parents and teachers say. It learns easily, and has plenty of time to play. Just such children I have seen break down—those who never needed to be urged to their lessons, who conscientiously performed all their piano practice without a murmur or an expressed wish to play out-of-doors instead.

The Wild Strawberry plant possesses rare virtue as a cleansing, cooling, astringent, antiseptic, and healing medicine, and when combined with other valuable vegetable extracts, as in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, it is an unfailing remedy in all bowel complaints.

A good article that has achieved success, and attained a world-wide reputation by its true merits and wonderful results, is always imitated. Such is the case with Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds.

Who's the Best Physician. The one that does most to relieve suffering humanity of the thousand and one ills that befall them, is certainly the best of all physicians. Electric Bitters are still doing this, curing where all other remedies failed.

It is generally considered a pretty difficult task to outdo a physician, but the following will prove conclusively where mine were completely outdone. Mrs. Helen Phlarvis, 331 Gayton St., Chicago, was treated for Consumption by nine physicians, and all pronounced her case incurable.

THE EGYPTIAN WAR.

SERIOUS ENGAGEMENT AT MAGHAR.

General Wolsley in a despatch to the war office, recounts an engagement at Maghar on Thursday, in which he held his ground the whole day against 10,000 Egyptians. His forces numbered about 2,000 men. General Wolsley says: I advanced this morning before daybreak with the Household Cavalry two horse artillery gun, 30 mounted infantry, 1000 men from the York and Lancaster regiments and marines. After some skirmishing I took possession of the dam which the enemy constructed across the canal between the villages of Maghar and Mahuta. During the operations two squadrons of the household cavalry charged the enemy's broken infantry very gallantly. He soon found that the enemy were being largely reinforced from Tel el Kebir. I could see the trains arriving, and I thought it inconvenient with the traditions of the queen's army to retire before any number of Egyptian troops, so I decided to hold the ground until reinforcements arrived. All day long I had the Egyptian force of 10,000 men with ten guns in my front and right flank. The precision of the enemy's fire was good, but fortunately they fired common shell nearly all day, and when they did fire shrapnel, their fuses were badly adjusted. The enemy had their cavalry regiments in his line and the horses having been recently on board ship were not in a condition to gallop much. Two horse artillery guns were sent to the front. Capt. Hamilton was wounded in the leg. Lord Melgund received a wound through the hand. Capt. Barr's mounted infantry distinguished itself. All the troops engaged did well. To-morrow (Friday) I shall attack the enemy's position at Hokene and hope to take possession of the dam they have constructed there this morning. In the telegram Gen. Wolsley adds: I omitted to say that I had with me yesterday two Gatling guns, worked by the seamen, who did their duty admirably.

THE ENEMY REPELLED. Post Said, Aug. 28.—Last evening Arabs attacked the British position at Kassasin, and were repulsed with heavy loss. The British lost twenty men. Eleven of the enemy's guns were captured.

London, Aug. 28.—Wolsley telegraphs from Ismailia this morning: "Just received news from the front that General Graham was heavily attacked last evening by a large force of Egyptians. The British cavalry from Mahasneh went to his assistance, and he had a brilliant success, taking eleven guns. Only a few British were killed, but over a hundred wounded. I am proceeding to the front."

London, Aug. 29.—Further advices confirm the report of the battle and repulse of the enemy at Kassasin. Fighting took place by moonlight. The British lost from 120 to 150 men.

London, Aug. 29.—Wolsley telegraphs from Kassasin Lock: Gen. Graham, commanding this post, was attacked yesterday evening by about twelve guns and eight battalions. Our men behaved extremely well and inflicted severe loss upon the enemy. At first Graham had five guns, two and a half battalions, a small detachment of cavalry and mounted infantry. Being reinforced by another battalion he attacked the enemy in front, whilst the First Cavalry Brigade, under Russell, charged them in the flank, bringing a considerable number. Graham's dispositions were all that they should have been. His operations were carried out with that coolness for which he has always been well known. Arabi was on the field during action. The cavalry charged by moonlight, but were unable to secure the rebel guns, which the enemy withdrew during the night. They left all their ammunition. Our killed are: Surgeon-Major Shaw, six marine artillery, and one infantry sergeant. Wounded—One major, two captains, two lieutenants and fifty-six men.

London, Aug. 30.—The Telegraph's Ismailia despatch of the 28th says: When morning came great excitement prevailed in camp at Kassasin in consequence of Egyptians showing themselves in considerable force in various directions. General Graham sent Major Hart with an escort of mounted infantry under command of Lieut. Pigott, to ascertain the strength and exact position of the enemy. Hart proceeded in the direction of Tel-el-Kebir and had gone forward two miles when the enemy opened fire with two guns. Pigott dismounted and his men returned the fire briskly, his men holding their ground well for some time, though eventually obliged to retire upon our camp. At 10 o'clock 4,000 Bedouins appeared on our right and front, extending two miles, but on the guns opening fire on them they retired. About three o'clock their infantry advanced in open order upon our left, bringing up several guns, which they placed at short distances from each other, and presently showed several pieces of artillery on our right. Our guns opened fire and our men turned out to face the attack. The fight now waxed warm, and during the whole afternoon the gallant little garrison made good defence. Meanwhile the cavalry which was five miles in our rear had been twice signalled by Graham to support him, and had advanced almost to our position without encountering the enemy. By 7:30 p.m. the whole force consisting of the First and Second Life Guards, Horse Guards, Seventh Dragoons, part of the Fourth Dragoons, Nineteenth Hussars, with four guns, set out to support our troops at Kassasin. The march had to be made very cautiously. Colonel Stewart, who directed the course of the brigade, disposed of his men so excellently that he was able to pivot them safely to the point of contact without coming under the fire of the guns, which were pounding the Kassasin camp. He led the way along a path which the horsemen had cut through the enemy and turning his position. Col. Russell brought his men over four miles of heavy ground, so that by nine o'clock, when they silently halted on the stony line, they found themselves so close to the Egyptians that shells went over their heads in quick succession, landing nearly half a mile in their rear. From the position the cavalry had now reached they could see the enemy close on the horizon in very large numbers, whereupon Russell dismounted the cavalry, and ordered them to open sharp musketry fire, but they found the enemy closer than they anticipated. Just then Gen. Lowe dashed up and gave the command to "Mount!" "Eyes in line!" "Charge!" Scarcely had the words been uttered when the Household Cavalry and Dragoons rapidly obeyed the order and with suppressed but ominous murmurs swept on to meet the foe with drawn swords and stern determination. In a few moments the horsemen had charged the enemy with great bravery, and our guns having by this time ceased firing, mingled with the Egyptians, and cut them up seriously. A general rout hereupon ensued, Arabi's artillerymen getting their guns away, while his infantry fell into a disordered mass upon the banks of the canal, a few dashing into the water to save themselves. It is difficult to imagine a more complete success than was now seen. The bulk of the cavalry in thus bravely clearing a blind position, the strength of which it was impossible to tell, rendered the enemy almost panic stricken. Russell's horse fell dead, but he seized another, and before the enemy's position was gained was well in front. No more the enemy fled rapidly. No wonder, then, that he was wondered at, when the race between the various regiments of English cavalry is considered, in which the Seventh Dragoon Guards exerted themselves beyond description by first plying their spears with considerable alacrity. In this way our position at Kassasin was secured. We now command the country leading to Tel-el-Kebir. Great bravery and pertinacity were shown during the day by the mounted infantry, and the detachment of the Fourth Dragoons with Lieut. Pigott was wounded. All about the line the greatest care has been taken to provide for emergencies, which shows how judicious are the arrangements of Wolsley. For the sake of fitness I should mention that the men and horses who took part in this gallant achievement had worked for nearly twenty-four hours on empty stomachs, but never dreamt of grumbling. The British cavalry charged straight at the guns, sabring gunners as they passed, cutting down flying infantry beyond the trenches. The Egyptians came on with great bravery, and in spite of the heavy fire of our men, were rapidly gaining ground, and would soon have rushed upon our entrenchments, when the rear of our guns on our left, followed by the rush of our cavalry, proved too much for them, and from that moment they thought only of flight. About ten o'clock the cavalry came in in high spirits over their brilliant achievement. Many are missing in the darkness, but will no doubt turn up in the morning. Upon returning from pursuit they were unable to find the guns over which they charged, but these will doubtless be discovered at sunrise.

REEL-HAULING. Alexandria, Aug. 29.—Those aloft in the harbor to-day witnessed the unusual sight of keel-hauling three Arab sailors on board the Egyptian frigate, Sourat, mutiny. They were first flogged, then tied to a rope and hauled up to the port side yard arm. They were then dropped into the sea, dragged under the keel, and hauled up to the starboard yardarm. They were soon dead.

London, Aug. 30.—Another account of the battle of Kassasin says that the enemy appeared in the morning, but halted a considerable distance from the camp, where they kept up a continual shell fire. The troops were out all day under a terrific sun, but the Egyptians made no advances. Scarcely had the cavalry unsaddled their horses and the men began to eat, when artillery firing was heard again, and by the heavy and continuous rain it was evident the attack was in earnest. The weary men saddled their tired horses and prepared to advance. The sun was still beating down fiercely, the hot wind throwing the sand clouds so high that it was impossible to see what was going on. As the cavalry moved away, followed by the horse artillery, the cannonade increased in violence and did not cease for a moment. The general repeated the tactics of the previous fight, by getting round to the enemy's rear. It was a striking evidence of his confidence in the troops that with tired horses and night approaching he should attempt these manoeuvres against an enemy unknown in strength and with fresh horses. Against any other enemy it would have been rash. It was nine o'clock before the cavalry got in rear of the Egyptians, and the advance was then made slowly to allow of the artillery to come up. When the cavalry were observed by the Egyptians, the sky seemed to pierce by a mighty hurricane of shells which screamed and burst. Shrapnel and bullets tore up the sand on either side. The cavalry advanced in echelon form, the Seventh Dragoons leading. Under cover of these came the Life Guards formed for the charge, and at a word the Dragoons opened right and left to allow them to pass. Those who remained in the rear had the full benefit of the storm of shot and shell which greeted the advancing horsemen, of whom from this moment no more was seen till the battle was over.

THE WORLD OVER.

Leprosy, says a physician of San Francisco, is revealing itself about the lips and tongues of boys who smoke cheap cigarettes made by Chinese lepers. The disease, though fatal, is slow in giving tokens of its first approach. No less than one hundred cases of leprosy, caused by infection by cigarettes, have come under the physician's notice. Let all and other boys who do this kind of smoking regard this warning in time.

A CONTRAST.—Stratford Public School Board offer a reward for the conviction of persons caught trespassing on the school grounds before or after school hours. In Listowel the school grounds are thrown open to the public, who are park-like grounds. Perhaps if our big brother to the south would follow Listowel's example and beautify the school grounds with flowers and shady walks, he might discover in them a powerful influence to check vandalism.—[Listowel Standard.]

A merchant in the city was accustomed to demand an excuse of his clerks whenever they arrived late. The excuse given, he invariably added, "Very well, but don't let it happen again." One morning a married clerk, being behind time, was promptly interrogated as to the cause. Slightly embarrassed, he replied, "The truth is, sir, I had an addition to my family this morning and it was not convenient to be here sooner." Very well, said the merchant, in his quick, nervous manner, "very well; but don't let it happen again."

The Duke of Teck, the husband of the Princess Mary of Cambridge, who has permission to go to Egypt, will be welcome in the British camp as a snow scall in harvest or a cat in a game of tennis. The Army and Navy Gazette has voiced the opinion of professional soldiers with regard to the presence of royal enclosures and inns in time of war. It is suggested that the Duke's anxiety to seek laurels in Egypt has been inspired by his desire to get away from duns in England.

A Berlin newspaper mentions the case of a boy who fell sick, and was found, after further treatment for a long period, to have worms in one of his lungs that had unquestionably come from a pet dog which he had been accustomed to fondle. Two dangerous surgical operations were necessary for the removal of the parasite, and the lad barely survived them. The journal advises parents generally to take note of this case, and not allow their children to kiss their pet animals or fondle them too freely.

The following capital umbrella story is told by the Detroit Free Press: During the shower yesterday a citizen carrying a very wet umbrella entered a hotel to place his umbrella where it might dry, he wrote upon a piece of paper and pinned to it the sentence: N. B.—This umbrella belongs to a man who strikes a two hundred and fifty pound blow back in fifteen minutes. He went his way upstairs and after an absence of fifteen minutes returned to find his umbrella gone, and in its place a note reading: P. S.—Umbrella taken by a man that walks ten miles an hour—won't be back at all.

A Self-Defused Murderer.

Brookville, Aug. 28.—Yesterday afternoon an elderly stranger entered the police station and stated that he wished to be placed under arrest for having five years ago, in London, England, murdered three men. He gave his name as James McGinnis, 47 years of age, born in London, England, about five years ago he was employed as a waiter in the Grosvenor Hotel, London, and one day visited a tavern in the vicinity. While there, and after drinking somewhat two strangers asked him to accompany them for a drive. The trio went to a low tavern on one of the back streets, where he was made to get down on his knees and swear to assist them in murdering three men, and was to receive fifty pounds for the job. The men were shown to him, and the first he shot with a revolver. The second was strangled, the two men who had employed him acting as assistants. The third was poisoned, which McGinnis administered. Later he was offered money by a friend to come to Canada, and accepted it. The crime had been weighing on his mind to such an extent that he could neither sleep nor eat. He then resolved to give himself up, and acting on the impulse surrendered him to Chief Mitchell, a sergeant. He was committed to jail, and a sergeant will at once be made to ascertain the truth of his statements.

Mr. John Bright has announced his intention not to visit America. Had he chosen to come, he would have received as warm a welcome as any Englishman who ever crossed the Atlantic. A devoted friend of the North in the war against slavery, he would be warmly received, while he would be none the less welcome among many of the best thinkers of the Republic because of his trade views.
