Oh, you old jimmy pipe!

"Lead me to it" say millions of men since they've found out that Prince Albert tobacco can't bite the tongue and can't parch the throat.

"Lead me to it" you'll say just as quick as you invest in a tidy red tin and find out first-hand just why P. A. has become the largest selling pipe and cigarette tobacco in the United States.

PRINCE ALBERT

the inter-national joy smoke brought thousands and thousands of old jimmy pipes out of the garrets. It has revolutionized pipe smoking! Today three men smoke a pipe where one smoked before.

That's because Prince Albert is made by a patented process that cuts out the "grouch" and just lets in the sunshine! Never in your life have you hit such flavor and fragrance and freshness!

Play P. A. in a jimmy pipe or roll up the corkingest makin's cigarette you ever put fire to. It's all one and the same thing—just good for what ails your smokappetite! And it rolls up so dead easy. Being mighty fresh, it just stays put and doesn't blow away or run away like the dust-brands.

And, you know, today's the day!

Prince Albert is the largest seller in the United States. It is now being imported into Newfoundland and is sold by all of the leading dealers in one-eighth-pound tidy red tins.

The Earl's Son;

—OR—

TWO HEARTS UNITED.

CHAPTER II.

"Cast a shoe, miss!" he said. "Must a-done it getting over the rail."

She stopped and hesitated. Lord Lynborough disliked her riding without a groom; but the morning was so fine, she wanted a gallop so badly, that she was disinclined to go back.

"You may go home," she said. "Tell his lordship, if you see him, that I shall not go far."

The man touched his hat and led his horse away, and Veronica, rather pleased to be alone, rode on. She left the park presently by one of the lodge gates, and calming the mare into a trot, went down the high road towards Halsery, the market town.

Lynne Court is in the centre of that part of Devonshire which has not yet been blessed—or cursed—by a railway; the nearest station is ten miles distant; and, in consequence, all the district is remote, and, if not melancholy, slow. It is a beautiful country, and as varied as beautiful. At one mile one may easily imagine oneself in the loveliest part of Surrey, at the next the wide stretching moorland is absurdly Scottish, and but a mile or two farther it is possible to come upon a valley which is Switzerland on a small scale.

Veronica had grown to love every inch of it; and now she was going to be mistress of a part of it; for the dower house and estate of Wayneford was but ten miles from Lynne Court.

"To-morrow I'll go over and look at it," she said to herself. "How sordid and selfish that sounds! Riches corrupt most minds. I remember that copy-book heading. Am I almost corrupted, I wonder? Am I different to the girl who stood, not so very long ago, before the great earl, shaking with nervousness and yet quivering with the proud determination not to show it?"

She looked backwards to the eventful morning of her arrival at the Court and saw herself as she was, thin and pale, in her poor cheap, plain black dress; and then recalled the face and figure which the pier-glass had reflected this morning as Goodwin put on the costly, perfect-fitting habit.

"Yes, I am different," she thought. "How could I help being so?"

After awhile she left the road and struck across the moor, and giving her mare its head, raced over the short, springy heather. Suddenly she saw two small objects moving in front of her. At first she thought they were rabbits, then she saw that they were a fox terrier and a puppy. Mamma was sitting on her haunches proudly watching the antics of her offspring, and when she heard the mare she looked up and gave a short yap of warning to the puppy.

"All right, doggie!" said Veronica, smiling; and she was drawing the mare out of the way when the horse started and shied at something on the off side, and was nearly upon the puppy. The next moment a man rose from where he had been lying, and with a movement of amazing rapidity rushed under the horse's legs as it seemed to Veronica, and caught the wee mite up out of its peril.

It was so neatly, so audaciously done, that Veronica's breath came sharply, and the color rose to her face.

"Oh, thank you!" she said, quickly. "Is it hurt?"

"Not in the least," he said. "Down, old girl!" to the mother, who leaped up at her puppy yapping imploringly and anxiously.

"I am glad," said Veronica. "I was afraid I had ridden over it; indeed I should have done so if you had not snatched it up in time. Let me have it, please!"

He handed her the soft little mite, and, of course, she pressed it to her cheek, then gave it back to him.

"It was my fault," he said, holding the puppy to him and cosseting it, evidently with the approval of the mother, who had thrown herself down at his feet, and was gazing up at puppy and man with complacent pride. "I was asleep on the heather and your horse shied at me. I'm sorry, and hope you'll forgive me."

Veronica inclined her head. She was trying to keep her surprise from revealing itself in her too expressive eyes; for though the man's voice and tone and bearing were those of a gentleman, he was dressed like a laboring man; a game-keeper, was her first thought. He was strikingly good-looking, with short, crisp brown hair and lashes almost too long for a man; but they were the only touch of femininity about him; for the rest of the face was masculine enough, and his form was eloquent of strength and the ease that accompanies it.

"Well, there is no harm done," she said. "I suppose the doggie and its bairn belong to the cottage over there."

"Very probably," he said. "I'll take 'em over and see."

He raised his hat—she noticed that he raised it instead of touching it—and was moving away with the puppy still in his hand, when he hesitated and said:

"I beg your pardon; can you tell me the way to Lynne Court?"

"Yes," replied Veronica. "If you follow the road, that way," she pointed with her whip, "you will come to the south lodge. I have just come from the Court."

"Perhaps you'd know then—Oh, but of course you wouldn't; it's absurd of me," he broke off with a smile which lit up a face that had vaguely struck Veronica as rather a sad one.

"What is it that I might know?" she asked, smiling unconsciously; for there was something magnetic in the light that had beamed in his eyes and the flash of the white teeth under the tawny moustache.

"Oh, I spoke on the spur of the moment; it was absurd, as I said; but I was going to ask you if you knew whether they wanted a game-keeper at the Court. Of course you don't!"

"No, I don't," admitted Veronica, rather proud of her guess at his calling; "but they would tell you at the head keeper's lodge. Don't go in the direction I pointed out, but strike across the moor until you come to a small wooden gate. The keeper's house is in a clearing just beyond it."

He looked across the moor uncertainly, and she added:

"If you'll come with me a little way, I'll point it out."

"Thank you," he said, respectfully enough, but again without the servants' touch of the hat; and as he walked beside the mare he eyed it with open criticism and approval.

"You are a stranger?" said Veronica.

"Quite," he replied. "I was never here until this morning. I walked over from Halsery, where I heard that I might get a berth at Lynne Court."

There seemed to be no more to say, and the pair went in silence across the heather to the road. Suddenly he glanced at his right hand, down which a small stream of blood was running slowly. He whipped it behind him and, wiping it stealthily, kept it hidden.

"That is your path," said Veronica, pointing with her whip; "you cannot fail to see the gate."

"Thank you very much," he said. "I'll just take the dogs over to the cottage. Thank you. Good-morning."

He raised his hat again, and was going on, when the Lynne carriage came round the bend of the road, and Lord Lynborough called to the coachman to pull up.

"Veronica?" he said, interrogatively, as he looked from her to the young man.

Veronica rode up close to the carriage, and bending down so that she could speak in a low voice, said:

"This man—I nearly rode over the puppy—he saved it—quite wonderfully—he was right under Sally's feet! He is enquiring for the Court—wants a situation as gamekeeper—it was an awfully plucky thing of him, really."

The earl glanced with his weary, half-closed eyes at the young man.

"All which means that you want me to reward him; but perhaps you have already done so. No?"

Before she could interpose, he had taken a sovereign from his pocket and had beckoned to the man.

"Here is something for you," he said.

The young fellow had come up close to the carriage, but as he caught the glint of the coin he drew back, his tanned face became the color of brick dust, and he said, hotly:

"What the devil do you mean—Then, as if ashamed of his outburst, he bit his lip and smiled grimly. "I beg your pardon, but—but I don't understand why you should offer me money, sir."

At the closer sight of his face and the sound of his voice, his lordship started slightly and leant forward, his dark eyes flashing keenly for a moment; the next he dropped back and, regarding him listlessly, put the sovereign back into his own pocket.

"Drive on, Matthews," he said, impassively.

Veronica, her face almost as red as the young man's, held up her whip.

"One moment, Lord Lynborough," she said in a low voice. "Does—does he quite deserve this?"

The man had turned away, and the earl looked up at her with his faint, impassive smile.

"You seem hard to please, Veronica," he said, wearily. "If the fellow's too proud to accept money—"

He shrugged his shoulders.

"He asked for work, employment, not money, my lord," she said.

"Call that fellow back, Grimes," said his lordship, in exactly the same tone.

When the Chain Chafes.

By RUTH CAMERON.

A young couple came to the verge of serious trouble over a suffrage demonstration. She believed in suffrage and planned to take part in the demonstration. Furthermore, she wanted her husband to take part in it. But her husband didn't believe in equal suffrage and was unwilling to. Furthermore he wanted her to give up her intended participation.

Whereupon she made it an issue. "If you really cared for me you'd be willing to do this." To which he responded, "If you really cared for me you'd be willing to give it up."

The result was an estrangement which came very near being serious. No, I'm not going to talk about the danger of dissension in the home which the question of suffrage produces. Not at all. I believe that people who would quarrel about that question would quarrel just as quickly about others if that were absent.

The reason I related that incident is because of the attitude of the mind it illustrates.

The point is this. Each wanted to curb the other's liberty of action. Neither was content to have liberty for himself and grant it to the other. Each wanted to forge chains out of love and bind his mate down.

Half the unhappiness in married life comes from just that attitude.

Love and freedom are two of the most beautiful things in the world. Can't we have them both? Must we make up our minds which we want most and give up the other?

Many married people seem to want to curtail not only the acts but even the thoughts and opinions of their mates.

To my mind, the right basis for a happy marriage is absolute liberty of thought and the greatest possible liberty of action consistent with a respect for the rights of the other party.

Live and let live.

Remember that chains chafe. But, you say, suppose a husband or wife holds opinions which are absolutely incompatible with the other's ideas of right and honour, and which lead to actions which seriously offend the other party.

Ah, my friend, the time to discover things like that is before marriage not after. Two people who are going to make a compact to live together the rest of their lives should try to understand each other's fundamental principles before they make that compact.

They must remember that a man's or woman's principles are the sources of his or her actions and should refuse to mate with one whose principles are profoundly different from their own.

If we could have less complaisance and willingness to compromise before marriage, and more after we would have fewer divorcees.

War.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old S'wash."

War is an attempt on the part of one country to shoot justice and reason into another.

When the statesmen of two nations have exhausted every effort to agree with each other, the job is turned over to the boys and young men of these countries. After these brave youngsters have argued with each other for a few hours, using smokeless and magazine logic, they are a very sad sight.

Sometimes a hundred thousand young men are used in one of these arguments. The pity of it is they are not useful for anything else thereafter. A battle-field covered with the bodies of fifty thousand citizens is a great indictment of the common or loose-jawed variety of logic used in international diplomacy.

We are still using the brand of logic which was popular two thousand years ago, when the common citizen was of little value except as fertilizer. What we now need is an improved method of logic, which will enable two nations to discuss points of honor without creating standing room only in the orphan asylums.

Nothing can exceed the glory and grandeur of war in literature and history. But a young man who has been torn into twenty irregular fragments is not a grand and glorious thing. He represents the most shocking waste of the greatest natural resource.

There is nothing grander about war than there is about the box car which passes over the citizen who didn't hear the train coming. War is brutal, messy and unattractive. It is more extravagant than pestilence. We laugh at the old-fashioned nations which still thresh wheat by driving an ox over it. But when we desire to settle an obscure point of international diplomacy, we often do it by shooting holes into half a million young men, and spending enough money to pay old age pensions to the entire nation.

War is a big fool performance, because it is such a waste of perfectly good heroes, who are willing to go out and die in defense of a nation which could not be protected by a wornout and back-number system of argument.

The Universities ought to invent some modern system of debate whereby two nations might discuss their affairs without calling in the coroner and the undertaker to take complete charge of the situation.

All nations admit that war is foolish. All we need is to have them admit it altogether in firm tones.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office—its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modernized and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-VERMICKLE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. ## Household Notes

If the zinc lining of the refrigerator looks battered it can be enamelled and made to look like new.

Fruit salads should replace heavy puddings and pies for desserts as soon as warm weather sets in.

Boil apples or potatoes fifteen minutes, then bake them. It takes much less time than the usual way.

If a room is filled with smoke, open windows and wave a towel wet in vinegar and hot water around in it. Potatoes, other vegetables and pork chops are among the edibles that may be cooked in the casserole to advantage.

Heat lemons before squeezing and you will get much more juice. Rolling before squeezing has somewhat the same effect.

Use ammonia water always instead of soap if you are cleaning white paint. It has the advantage of not dulling the surface.

Well-cooked rice and macaroni can well take the place of potatoes when the old ones are too expensive.

If you have a perfectly good garment with poor machine embroidery on it, you can work over the embroidery, using it as padding.

The medicine chest shouldn't be forgotten when the spring cleaning comes around. All empty and old bottles should be thrown away.

To make windows very clean wash with good scouring soap, rinse and rub with a flannel cloth wet with vinegar. Then polish with a dry cloth.

If you have good white silk gloves which have turned yellow, soak them in clear strong coffee and you will have a fresh-looking pair instead.

In working with raffia, especially if it should be soaked and then rinsed in several waters to take the dressing out of it.

Spanish scrambled eggs are made with chopped peppers and an onion browned in butter, a cupful of tomato pulp added, and, lastly, the beaten, seasoned eggs.

A good dahlia support is five or six feet of wire fencing fastened together like a circle and set over the plants when small. Later they can be trained over it.

To remove oil stains from carpets make a paste with fuller's earth and cold water, and spread thickly on the soiled parts. Let it dry, then remove with a stiff brush.

To clean bedroom ware and marble-topped washstands rub well with a rag dipped in turpentine. This method is useful in a sick room where milk, medicine, etc., are apt to be spilled and require to be quickly removed.

Boots should never be allowed to go too far before they are repaired; often a few coppers spent in time will keep them in good condition. Heels should be kept straight, otherwise the boot loses shape and its wearer a good carriage.

To clean black marble clocks, wash marble with warm water, then apply with a piece of flannel a little boot polish. Rub lightly all over with a soft cloth, and the marble will look like new. The less polish used the better the result.

A Good Opportunity.

A delightful story is told of Dr. J. E. Watts-Ditchfield, the recently appointed Bishop of Chelmsford.

On one occasion he was very anxious to get a certain man, a shoemaker, to come to church, and he was arguing with him in the shop one day. The shoemaker met his arguments with the remark that he would not come to church to hear the Ten Commandments read out and have to make the responses, "for," said he, "the Ten Commandments were abolished long ago."

"To argue with such a man was useless," says Dr. Watts-Ditchfield, "but, acting on a sudden thought, I said, 'Oh, I am very glad to hear that the Eighth Commandment (thou shalt not steal) is abolished, for I am in need of a pair of shoes, and I think these are just my size!' And snatching up a pair of shoes as I spoke I tucked them under my arm and hurried out."

Needless to say, the shoemaker changed his mind about the Eighth Commandment and rushed out after the Bishop to rescue his property.

Last Week's Corns

Made these shoes impossible. But Inez told me of Blue-jay.

I applied it and the pain stopped in a moment. In 48 hours all three corns came out. No soreness whatever. I never thought of the corns from the moment I used Blue-jay. And now they are gone, to never return, unless tight shoes cause new ones.

This is the story of millions of corns which have been ended by Blue-jay. It will be the story of your corns when you use this one right method. Don't pare them. Paring never ends a corn. Use the modern method.

A famous chemist, by inventing Blue-jay, has made corn troubles needless. Blue-jay takes corns out, without any trouble, without any annoyance. Apply it in a jiffy, then forget the corn.

It is taking out about one million corns a month. It is the method now used and endorsed by physicians. You owe to yourself a test.

Special Legislation May be Desirable.

Yesterday we made reference to the Court of Enquiry, under Lord Mersey, which is to investigate the casualty to the Empress of Ireland and the attendant loss of life. The Commission is to begin its sittings next week. In the meantime, there has been an inquiry, and a preliminary enquiry is going to prepare matter for the Commission. Moreover, special legislation has been put through to constitute a Court suitable for so great a disaster. On the Commission there are three judges and four naval assessors. All these arrangements have been completed in a short time. The constitution of a suitable Court was possible because the Canadian Parliament was sitting.

There are difficulties in connection with the appointment of a suitable Commission to enquire into the disasters to the crew of the Newfoundland and to the Southern Cross. But unfortunately there is no legislature in session to overcome them by special legislation. The loss of the Southern Cross could be gone into under the provisions of the law on a Marine Court of Inquiry or by the tribunal which may be substituted under the provisions of the same statute. The case of the loss of life in connection with the Newfoundland appears not to come within the purview of this statute. The statute appears to be limited to the loss, abandonment, damage and casualty to a ship, whether attended by loss of life or not. The loss of life of the crew of the Newfoundland did not ensue from any loss, or abandonment of, or damage or casualty to the ship Newfoundland, as contemplated by the Marine Court of Inquiry Act.

The Public Inquiries Statute does not cover the case, as that statute relates to matters of Government, Government Departments and Institutions and the like.

The Governor in Council might of course appoint a Commission to deal with the disaster fully. But they could not confer on the Commission power to compel witnesses to attend, nor compel witnesses to answer questions or produce documents, or to give evidence on oath and subject them to trial for perjury for false swearing. The Commission, it would appear, would be dependent on the good nature of witnesses for attendance and testimony and on their desire to further the investigation.

We may explain that one of the reasons why we made extensive use of the Inquest before Judge Knight to obtain testimony on oath was that we anticipated the difficulty which the Government has placed before the Justice Department.

So far as we can see at present, but we speak subject to correction, the course the Government can pursue is to have a Marine Court of Enquiry into the loss of the Southern Cross, as provided by Statute; then to appoint a Commission to inquire extensively into the whole sealing venture and depend on the willingness of witnesses to testify and to produce documents; or to call the Legislature together to deal with the matter during the fall or wait till next January; or to waive self-government in the matter, a course somewhat objectionable for obvious reasons, and invite British Parliament to put through a special Act speedily as the Canadian Parliament has done in the case of the loss of the Empress of Ireland.

The Sardinian-Adventure Collision Sunday.

The amount of damage done as a result of the Sardinian running into the Adventure on Sunday evening, is greater than at first thought. Not only a section of Harvey's pier was torn asunder, as already referred to, but in fact practically the entire pier will have to be rebuilt as every pile in wharf was removed from its position. Besides the damage to the bow plates of the both ships, the Adventure had four hawseas and other gear carried away on her. It is difficult, we were informed to-day, at this juncture, to even approximately estimate the damage wrought. We understand that right at the very outset the Allan Line Company prepared to assume all liability of the collision. The Adventure has a number of plates loosened almost amidships besides those that were battered in pieces near the forecastle head. She is now undergoing survey so as the extent of the damage to her can be ascertained. To-morrow she will sail for Philadelphia to be dry docked for repairs. Temporary repairs to the Sardinian are now being made. The hole at the bow is being closed by a large plate, which is secured by bolts. The Sardinian will sail to-morrow for Halifax and Philadelphia. It is not known whether permanently or not on the return of the Sardinian to the Old Country, as she is 44 years old, and in a short time may likely be consigned to the scrap heap.

Last night Mr. Dan Cusack gave a very delightful act; his song: "Who Paid the Rent for Mrs. Rip Van Winkle when Rip Van Winkle went Away," being a skit on the Panama Canal; he also sang the "Eviction Song" that made such a stir in the States, and "The Time, Place and Girl," together with one of the finest sand dances ever witnessed in St. John's. Dan Cusack held the championship medal for fourteen years in Australia. For clog and sand dancing every one should see him. The pictures at Rossley's now are splendid. "Our Blood Will Tell," in two reels, last night the large audience just raved over it; a Vitagraph, "O'Hara Helps Cupid," a real comedy with lots of fun and no vulgarity; a thrilling Indian drama, "An Apache Father's Vengeance." All the latest, best and most up to date pictures. A first class entertainment.

The Sale of Work is to start at 3 p.m. and the Concert at 8 p.m. They have arranged to dispense refreshments in the shape of afternoon teas, ice-cream and candy, for which a small sum is to be charged. The whole is to be held at the residence of Mr. J. R. MacLean, 160 LeMarchant Road. Remember that if an enjoyable afternoon and night in the shape of good companionship daintily served teas, songs which bring back to memory the days of Madame Seesary, if such things be desired, then go to this Sale of Work and Concert.—adv.

STEAMER HERE FROM CARDIFF—The s.s. Charterhouse, Capt. Murchie, reached port at 1 p.m. to-day from Cardiff, bringing a part cargo of Admiralty coal to A. Harvey & Co. The trip occupied 12 days and on the whole favorable weather was met. The captain was here before.

FOGO MAIL SERVICE.—The s.s. Earl of Devon sails for the northward on the Fogo mail service, this afternoon taking a full freight and amongst other passengers, who have not booked at the coastal office, the following, Miss Gray, Mr. P. B. Moore and Miss Reardon.

LINTROSE PASSENGERS.—The Linrose arrived at Port aux Basques at 6.20 a.m. to-day with the following passengers in saloon: A. Peterkin, O. E. LeCrown, Mrs. J. Mansow, Mrs. James Vey, Miss O. Williams, Miss K. Fox, Mrs. D. Hodgson, H. Fox, Frank Fride, D. C. Deardon and H. Chisholm.

PERSONAL.—Mrs. (Capt.) M. E. Davidsen arrived from Trinity by the express yesterday, and on the arrival of the Carthaginian from Philadelphia will take passage by her for Glasgow, where she will meet her husband, who has arrived there from Japan. They will then proceed to Norway, the captain's home. We wish Mrs. Davidsen a pleasant voyage.

There are four seamen on the Allan Liner Sardinian who are thankful to Providence for the narrow escape that they had. They had just left the forecastle and come on deck when the Sardinian crashed into the Adventure. The hole that is in the bow of the Sardinian is the best indication of what happened in the forecastle where the seamen's quarters are, but none of whom, fortunately, were there at the time.

Staunch Position of Robin, Jones &
Whitman, Ltd.

The Montreal Financial Times in its issue of May 23rd prints several schedules showing important changes which have been made since the beginning of the present year in the dividend, disbursements of certain Canadian Companies.

Unfortunately, in a number of cases these changes are represented by the deferring or actual passing of dividends.

Conspicuous among the more successful ones is Robin, Jones & Whitman, Ltd., which is included in the schedule of those few Companies having paid an initial dividend during the year on Common Stock—the latter in the case of R. J. & W., Ltd., being still offered as a bonus with the Preferred.

When we also consider that the actual earnings on this Common Stock for the past FOUR years has reached the high average of almost SIX PER CENT. annually, and that reserves now aggregate the substantial total of $127,022.87, we can realize the Company's staunch position.

Hr. Grace Notes

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Parsons on Friday night.
 Congratulations.

The very cruel practice of catching gulls on "glys" is now indulged in by some person in town, and on Saturday two of these, with birds fastened to them, having become detached from the moorings floated out the harbor, the poor birds fluttering about, no doubt in great agony. The method of catching is by placing a piece of tempting bait with a hook embedded in it, on a piece of board, and as the unfortunate bird swallows the bait it is firmly caught. This is bad enough if it could be put out of its misery at once, but to be allowed to remain there any time seems to us and no doubt to others very cruel indeed, and should not be permitted.

Fresh salmon and herrings are on sale each day about town, the former for 15 cents per lb., and the latter for 19 to 12 cents per dozen.

Several of our Labrador men have already left here on the way to the scene of their summer work, and others will be leaving when a favourable time offers. We wish them all much success.

Complaint has been made that some people who were so enthusiastic about the capture of foxes last winter, and had traps set in different parts are not nearly so enthusiastic now as to the protection of cattle from getting caught in these firmly fastened steel fox traps. If there is not a law compelling trappers to remove their traps at this time of the year, there should be one, and it should be enforced.

The Nfld. British Society, through its Secretary, Mr. J. M. Carbery, sends to the Conception Bay British Society a very hearty letter of thanks for what it considers kindness shown by the members of its sister society while on excursion here on Wednesday last. The great friendship that always existed between these two bodies is cemented closer than ever if that is possible by the re-union, and it is very gratifying indeed to hear from the Secretary that it is the intention to make their visit to Harbor Grace an annual event. Harbor Grace generally will welcome them as it does all others who come to this pleasant town to enjoy a holiday.

At the last monthly meeting of the Conception Bay British Society it was decided to hold an excursion to St.
 John's by rail about the first week in July. Look out for it.

Mrs. Fritz Grimm, who has not been in good health all winter was seized with a rather serious illness yesterday, and Dr. Strapp was called to attend to her. She is still in a very weak condition.

CORRESPONDENT.

Hr. Grace, June 8, 1914.

Resumes Charter.

The s.s. Bonaventure is now at the Dry Dock premises being painted and will be ready in a week's time to resume her charter in Hudson Bay waters with the Canadian Government. The ship will leave here about the 20th of this month for Halifax where she will take aboard stores and passengers. Then she will proceed to Sydney for coal after which she will leave for Port Nelson.
 The Bonaventure, we understand, will make a couple of trips from Halifax to Hudson Bay stations but her consort, the Bellaventure, we hear, will make only one trip, after which she will return here and proceed to England to be lengthened.

A Sad Case.

A very pathetic scene was witnessed on the arrival of the local express yesterday afternoon, when two patients from Bonavista Bay, brother and sister, came to enter the Lunatic Asylum.

Both are quite young and for some time past had been mentally deranged but were not violent. Recently, however, both of them showed a tendency towards suicidal mania, and the neighbours being unable to care for them as formerly, owing to the approach of the fishing season, it was decided to have them come on here for treatment. Both were driven to the Asylum yesterday afternoon.

The 1840 Fire.

To-day is memorable as the anniversary of the great fire which swept St. John's 8 years ago. Some idea of the backward state of the season may be gathered from the fact that on this day (9th June 1840) turnip-tops of excellent quality were prepared for dinner in one home at least,
 and now we can't get one till July.
