CHAPTER XIX.
A LITTLE SURPRISE.

With the first word her soul seemed to leap into her voice, and she sang as only those who feel what they are singing can sing. Then she played one of Chopin's nocturnes, and her soul went into her fingers, and when she got up she had to resume her place at the instrument, and this time she sang "Remember or Forget," with a pathos and passion which exalted the somewhat commonplace words into real poetry.

When she arose and went back to her seat, Kenneth looked up and saw a mist of tears in her eyes, and understood why she had sung the song.

During the first week in September the little party broke up. Lillias and her aunt went back to their flat in Othello Mansions; Mercia returned to Liverpool to begin again the management of her father's household and endure with what patience she might his remarks on what he had told her; and Kenneth considered a breach of duty; and Kenneth installed his mother and sister in the modest but cozy little home that he had made ready for them in Bedford Park.

Then she went away to Norway to enjoy the Indian summer, which is often the most delightful time of year in Scandinavia, and also a time when those who want to be by themselves, as he did just then, can almost have the country for their own.

He came back a week before the courts opened, to get himself back into harness, as he put it, though, as a matter of fact, he had put in a very considerable amount of thinking among the fords and mountains.

The Eversley will case stood second on the list. The first was a somewhat highly flavored divorce case which was expected to provide pleasant entertainment for the smart women of London for about three or four days, the principal reason for this being that the respondent was one of the prettiest and had been one of the most popular women in society.

As the day of the trial approached, Lillias' days of anxiety seemed to grow longer and her night of self-torture darker. Three days before the one for which the trial was set down, she was sitting alone in the drawing-room of the flat, just after breakfast, considering for the thousandth time the possibilities of escape from the fate which was looming dark on her life's horizon, when the maid knocked at the door and brought in Arthur Ashley's card.

She did not rise to receive her guest as he entered; she merely waved her hand toward a chair with an almost royal gesture, and said, in a low but sweetly clear tone:

"Good morning, Mr. Ashley. Be good enough to take a seat."

"It was not an invitation, it was an order, and Arthur Ashley stared at her for a moment in sudden surprise, but he obeyed.

"Good morning," said he, with an audible little snort of surprise. "You'll allow me to say that this is a rather curious reception, Lillias—"

"I must ask you to remember your manners, sir, if you have any, and address me by my proper title. If you are guilty of that familiarity again, I shall find means to make you regret it."

The imperiousness of her tone and manner absolutely astounded him, and he had an uncomfortable idea that something serious must have happened, but he replied, with just a suspicion of a sneer:

"Oh, very well, Mrs. Ashley, if you wish it so, I am, as you know, the last one who would wish to be rude to a lady. And now, as there is no need to waste either your time or mine, will you do me the favor of telling me why you have asked me to come and have a tete-a-tete talk with you after what you were kind enough to say to me that afternoon at Hampstead?"

"Because I wanted to see you on business," she said, in a voice so cold that he felt a little shiver in his nerves. "Because, in short, I wish to tell you that what I may perhaps call our partnership, must be dissolved at once."

"I hardly follow you," he said, his wonder still increasing. "Permit me to remind you that a dissolution of partnership requires the consent of both partners; or, in this case, of all; and I think it will be rather difficult to obtain the consent of the others."

"I don't think you will have very much difficulty in doing that."

"Yes, you, Mr. Ashley. I propose, in short, to ask you to become—well, my agent in the matter. No, don't interrupt me, please," she continued, as she saw her guest open his mouth and start in his chair. "When I have done, you may give me your opinion of the situation. I need not refer to the past; you know it as well as I do; but I must remind you that I am now approaching a great crisis in my life, and I propose to approach it alone. A few weeks ago your friend, Mr. Walter Redman, sustained a serious loss, apparently by burglary."

The shot went home; Ashley's lips became white, and his skin turned ashen.

"Ah," she continued, before he could speak. "I see that we shall soon understand each other. Now tell me this, what would you and your friends give to know where those documents are?"

"I—I—well, to tell you the truth, Mrs. Ashley," he stammered, "this is such an utter surprise to me that I could not answer that question without consulting my—our—colleagues."

"Well, then," she said, with a little exasperating laugh, "I will tell you for nothing. They are in the hands of Inspector Edward Burnett, of Scotland Yard."

"Great heavens, Lillias, don't tell me that!" he exclaimed, starting to his feet. "I don't believe it! You couldn't possibly know it!"

"Sit down, Mr. Ashley, and don't get frightened before the time." She laughed again. "I do know it, whether you condescend to believe me or not. Naturally, I overlook your insult, considering the fact that you are in the habit of dealing with liars! Now listen. Inspector Burnett got hold of those documents by a lucky chance, but he does not know where they came from, or who fabricated them. Your confederate has so far kept faith with you. But Scotland Yard would give a good deal for that information, and I can give it."

"And ruin yourself!" interrupted Ashley, with another sneer.

"Certainly," she replied quietly.

"But my ruin would involve the ruin of the whole lot of you, for after this would come exposure after exposure, and I should think the resulting sentences would come to a considerable term of years. Now my proposal is this: Release me absolutely from the partnership, take no hostile action whatever against me, and I will keep my bargain with you, provided I win the case, and hold my tongue. But at the first sign of hostility, I will tell everything, and ruin myself to ruin you. You know me well enough to believe me. Those are my terms, neither more nor less. Discuss them with your accomplices as soon as possible, and let me know the result. Good morning."

She got up and put her finger on the bell button beside her.

The maid opened the door, and with a muttered "good morning" Mr. Walter Ashley walked out.

CHAPTER XX. A NOBLE ACT.

As soon as he reached a post office, Ashley sent Redman a telegram:

"Must see you at your office two o'clock without fail. Most urgent."

Then he took a cab to his club, thinking, as the French say, furiously, all the way, and had a hasty and uncomfortable lunch, which he washed down with brandy and soda instead of his usual half bottle of light wine.

When he reached the offices of Redman's Detective Agency, he found the chief sitting in his armchair, smoking a cigar and reading the racing news in one of the evening papers that are published early in the afternoon.

When your brain works like a dog with three legs walks—you need BEECHAM'S PILLS

An active brain must have pure blood, not poisoned with products of indigestion—or liver and kidney laziness.

AFTER THE "FLU" OR ANY SEVERE SICKNESS

You Need Vinol to Enrich and Revitalize Your Blood and Restore Your Strength

There is Nothing Like It, So Nothing Else Will Do

There is just one great drawback to recovery for a person who has been sick, and that is poor, devitalized blood and consequent weakness, and this condition is characterized by prostration, nervousness and depleted strength.

We believe our non-secret red liver and iron tonic, VINOL, to be the best remedy in the world to hasten recovery and build up health and strength.

In a natural manner VINOL creates red corpuscles and enriches the blood, quickens circulation, increases the appetite, promotes sound, refreshing sleep, and soon the entire system is filled with renewed life, vitality and energy.

Mrs. C. J. Sanday, of Moosemin, Sask., writes: "I am a farmer's wife, and keep house for my family of six children. I suffered from a constitutional breakdown and a weak, nervous run-down condition. My daughter recommended VINOL, and it built me up so I enjoy my meals and feel like a different woman."

"For all run-down, nervous, anaemic conditions, weak women, overworked men, feeble old people and delicate children there is no remedy like VINOL."

"Well, my dear Ashley," he said, putting down the paper, "what's the meaning of all this? I hope you're not exaggerating matters, for I've put off a very important appointment to see you."

"You'll find this a precious lot more important, whatever it was," said Ashley, putting his hat and umbrella on the table and taking out his cigar case. "I've been to see the fair Lillias this morning. She sent me a note last night, asking me to call. I wondered what the deuce she wanted me for, and when I got there I found that my lady had sent for me to make terms, and she did me the honor to appoint me her agent for the making of them."

"Well, of all the internal impudence!" exclaimed Redman. "What the dickens does she want to make terms about? She's made 'em, and what's more, she's got to stick to 'em."

"You just wait till you've heard what I have to tell you," replied Ashley, "and perhaps you will take a different view of the matter. The thing's almost incredible, but I'm afraid it's true."

"All right, then, get along," said Redman, a little uneasily, for there was no mistaking Ashley's earnestness.

"Well, to begin with, I believe you lost, a short time ago, some documents which you accounted pretty valuable."

"Did I, really?" said Redman, taking the cigar out of his mouth and staring him straight in the eyes. "And may I ask how you know that?"

"Lillias told me. And, what is more, she told me where they are now."

"Look here, Ashley, what kind of a fairy tale is this you're giving me? If I have lost any papers, I should think you know more about them than any one else, to tell you the truth."

"Thanks!" laughed Ashley. "You can think just what you please about that! But to come to business, Lillias must know, simply because she cannot possibly have known of their present whereabouts unless she had also known that you had lost them."

"And where might their present whereabouts be?" asked Redman, with visible uneasiness.

"At Scotland Yard, in the keeping of Inspector Burnett!"

"They—they are!" exclaimed Redman, jumping to his feet. "Look here, Ashley, I don't care whether you stole them, or whether you had them stolen, though I believe you are responsible for the theft, but this is a serious matter. The things are gone, and if Burnett has got hold of them, and he can trace them to me, it'll give him just the very hold of use that he's been looking for for years, and then the devil only knows what will happen!"

"Exactly," said Ashley; "but don't get excited over it, and I'll tell you the rest."

Redman sat down, biting the end of his cigar, and Ashley went on and told him the terms that Lillias had proposed to him.

Newfoundland Politics Interests England.

London, April 11.—The Times of Saturday prints the following despatch from Newfoundland:

Legislature opens April 20th, and an extraordinary situation exists in local politics. In January a petition complaining of the undue return for the Harbour Main Constituency of Mr. Woodford was filed in the Supreme Court. Petition was set for hearing March 18th. That day Counsel for petitioner moved for withdrawal of the petition and informed the Court respondent had resigned his seat. Court required affidavits showing if there has been any collusion, and on March 24th respondent filed affidavit deposing to an unlawful agreement between himself, the Prime Minister and another member of the Legislative Council. Nothing since has been done to investigate the charges. No denial of them has been made by any of the parties implicated. Public sentiment is roused to the highest pitch and the whole country looks confidently to the Governor to make a full investigation.

The work of restoration of the R. C. Cathedral will shortly begin on a big scale. At present a number of workmen under the supervision of architect Jonas Barter are engaged at the preliminary work. His Grace the Archbishop thought it advisable that some first class man be invited here to consult with Mr. Jonas Barter, the local architect, with a view to both making definite and minute examination of the Cathedral, and to draw up plans and specifications for the necessary repairs. Mr. Grieshaber, of the firm of Delano and Aldrich, and Charles H. Higgins, Associated Architects and Engineers, New York, was engaged and left by the last sailing of the Rosalind for here. Mr. Grieshaber comes with many recommendations, and will assist Mr. Barter in what promises to be a big undertaking.

Hr. Grace Notes.

(From the Standard, April 9.) Mr. George Hierthy, of Bay Roberts, has had his schooner Rattler rebuilt from the water-line up this winter, and she will be a solid vessel fully finished.

On Tuesday evening the Masonic fraternity held their annual dance. It was largely attended and under the capable management of Messrs. P. Higgins and T. G. Ford, proved very enjoyable, terminating at 1 a.m.

The ladies of St. Mary's Alumnae held a very successful sale of work in the Academy Hall on Monday evening. Some fine fancy work was on sale and with teas, ice-cream and fortune-telling the evening was pleasantly spent. It closed with a dance which lasted until after midnight. The proceeds amounted to $153.00.

The annual Masonic children's festival was held on Tuesday afternoon at the Masonic Hall from 3 to 6. Quite a goodly number of kiddies were present and with games, rings, etc., spent a very pleasant afternoon. The British band was present and rendered selections, and fruit and candy were distributed among the children at the close.

Capt. John E. and Mrs. Tucker came here from St. John's on Monday on a brief visit, returning to the city on Wednesday morning. Capt. Tucker leaves for New York by the S.S. Kyle and will there take over the charge of a new steamer for the Susquehanna Steamship Co. Her route is between New York and Marshfield, with general cargoes—railway iron, food stuffs, etc. Capt. M. Connors, formerly of Riverhead, has been given charge of the Susquehanna, Capt. Tucker's former charge. The "Standard" wishes both our young friends a full measure of success in their new positions.

Messrs. W. Dawe & Sons sent out from their mill at Bay Roberts a carload of the birch and wicheazel veneering that the firm has manufactured. The carload was despatched to St. John's yesterday, and will go to Liverpool by the S.S. Sachem this trip. The grain of the veneering is of splendid marking thoroughly dried and pressed, and packed in crates. Another carload will be despatched shortly for the same market. The samples forwarded have been approved of, and there is no reason to doubt but that the first shipment will be found fully up to the standard of the sample. Messrs. Dawe deserve success in their enterprise.

Wedding Bells.

PEARCEY—QUIRK.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the R. C. Cathedral on Monday, April 5th, when Mr. Richard Quirk, of St. Lawrence, led to the altar Miss Mary Pearcey, one of the most popular young ladies of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mons. McDermott, in the presence of a large number of friends. The bride was given away by her brother Mr. W. Pearcey, 2nd engineer s.s. Prospero, and was handsomely attired in a travelling suit of blue broad cloth with pink georgette hat and ermine furs. She was attended by Miss Margaret Cuddihy, of the employ of J. J. Mulcahy, who wore a dress of champagne silk with hat to match. Mr. Charles Pearcey, brother of the bride, performed the duties of best man. After the ceremony supper was served to some fifty guests at the residence of the bride's parents, Bond Street, and dancing was subsequently kept up until the wee sma' hours of the morning. The groom's present to the bride was a pair of pearl ear drops, to the bridesmaid a gold pendant and to the best man cuff links. The presents received were numerous and costly, including several pieces of silver and several cheques from friends abroad. The happy young couple left by s.s. Prospero on a trip to St. Lawrence to spend their honeymoon, taking with them the best wishes of their many friends for a long and happy life over the matrimonial sea.—Com.

A sheet of heavy board had been put in position to temporarily replace a broken pane of glass, and the burglar or burglars forced their way in through and took the money which had been left in the till—a small amount. Considerable quantities of goods were thrown about, but it is not known if any was stolen. Enquiries are being made.

Nourishing and Delightful.

From the Well-Stored Mines of the Traditions of Newfoundland.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

Newfoundlanders are essentially a sea-faring people, and from time immemorial have been remarkable for their risks and daring. No adventure on the high seas was ever considered too hazardous for a Newfoundland-seaman to embark in. From the earliest times that we have any recollection of, the traditions of our people have been rich with the hair-breadth escapes of the sons of Newfoundland, and this record has been kept up unbroken until the present day. The spirit of rivalry has always been kept alive amongst the fishermen and the sailors in the mercantile marine, and as exemplified in our Annual Regatta and the racing across the ocean, the same spirit prevails to-day with as much vigor and force as it did a century ago.

PROLIFIC RECORDS.

I have always contended that there is no country in the world in which the historian, the poet or novelist could procure such material for writing up the charming picture of life than in the sea-side villages of Newfoundland. There is also to be found the tender and beautiful romance of the idyllic, and charming picture of an interesting and by no means familiar scene of the life and manners of our people, in which the humorous traits are rich enough to enliven and brighten the whole. But it is in the accounts of the everyday life of adventure and thrilling escapes—the dangers encountered on the local fishing grounds, and more so on the coast of Labrador that the historian of the future will find the subject interesting and enthralling to fill the pages of his volumes. And these adventures and escapes are to be found related by the patriarchs of every town and village in our country. There would be nothing of fiction about those stories of adventure, because the writer would ascertain the fact from those who were participants in those events, or, at least, handed down from their ancestors, who prosecuted our great industries in the days long past and gone, when the fisheries and commerce generally were conducted far differently from what they are to-day.

REAL WRITERS WANTED.

To get at the real source of the adventures, escapes, agility, hardships and manners and customs of our people, the would-be narrator of events should visit the various outposts and strike up an acquaintance with some of the grey-headed patriarchs of the respective villages—those human repositories of local tradition and I am sure they will be well-pleased with their excursion. Of course I do not allude to those "birds of passage" who come amongst us to write up our history, and after partaking of the hospitality of our people, produce caricatures of their homes, criticize their pronunciation and endeavor to burlesque their entire mode of living, speaking and general surroundings.

THE YARN OF THE 'BEAVER HAT.'

Many years ago I heard the following interesting reminiscence from an old friend of mine, which was handed down in his family, and which I think will interest the readers of the Telegram. About seventy-five or eighty years ago, the schooner Sarah Jane, which was rigged in that style of craft, euphemistically known as a "beaver hat"—that is—with three yards on the foremast, sailed for the seal-fishery from Hant's Harbor, Trinity Bay. She was commanded by Capt. Froude, and carried a crew of about twenty-five men. At that time the vessels sailed about the first of March, or, in fact, whenever they pleased, as there was no specified date. Everything went well until about the twenty-fifth, and they had three thousand seals stowed away under the hatches, when a heavy gale sprung up from the North East with a heavy sea, which broke up the ice, and drove the little ship South towards the Wadham's Islands. The ship was drifting through the storm when the man from the look-out cried, "land on starboard bow!" The ship was in a terribly dangerous position, and the master asked if any man would go aloft and cut loose the fore topsail, and one man quickly responded and went aloft to do so. At the time he was cutting, the vessel struck the rocks and the foremast went overboard. In falling the foremast fell across the rock, and the man leaped from the spar to the rock and thus saved his life, being the only survivor of the crew. The rock is on the Northwest side of the Wadham Islands, and is about fifty or sixty feet on the round. After the second day he gave up all hopes of being rescued, and to leave a record of the melancholy event and his deplorable condition, he cut the names of his lost comrades upon a piece of board that was thrown upon the rock, after the vessel had broken up. By some means he managed to light a fire (probably with the now obsolete flint and steel, which the Newfoundland fishermen in the old days always had in their possession) from the wreckage and fed the fire with seal fat which he managed to secure. On the fifth day, he became utterly exhausted and laid down to die. Another schooner happened to be in the neighborhood, saw the smoke from the fire and sent a boat ashore and rescued him from the rock. He was taken on board the schooner, kindly treated by the captain and quickly recovered from his terrible adventure and miraculous escape. The crew of the schooner also managed to save quite a number of the seals, brought them to St. John's and gave the rescued mariner his proportionate part of the voyage.

A TRANSIENT POPULATION.

At that time there was no light on the Wadham Islands. Everything has now changed, and during the summer months quite a number of fishermen and their families have erected fishery rooms there. There is almost an entire scarcity of water on the island during dry weather, and in wet weather they secure rain water. In winter months the light-house keeper melts the snow in a tank which he always has on hand for the purpose. "From the sublime to the ridiculous is but a step," said the Great Napoleon, and the same may be said with regard to tragedy and comedy. It sometimes happened that comedy played an important part in the prosecution of the seal-fishery in the old days—the days of the great fleet of sailing vessels. It was no unusual occurrence for the crews to "maun" in those days, and it has been known when the crews took charge of the captain and brought the vessel back to port. Such occurred during my early days. But there is one case in point in which comedy played its part and this is how it happened.

UTILIZING THE DOG.

About sixty years ago, a certain brigantine belonging to McBride & Keer, sailed from St. John's for the ice-fields with a crew of fifty men. The captain was not very popular, being something of a martinet. However they managed to get North as far as White Bay, but unfortunately the seals were very scarce, and the captain became very domineering and abusive towards the crew—compelling them to perform unnecessary labours and making everything quite uncomfortable. At last, patience ceased to be a virtue, and the crew decided to hold a council to decide upon the best means to remedy the existing state of affairs. At first they thought of adopting the well-known plan, so often adopted by mariners, of providing a "round robin" to the captain announcing what they intended to do. But after consideration they thought this would not do, so a happy thought entered their minds and they quickly put it into execution. Although the captain was of a most tyrannical and disagreeable disposition, there was, at least, one thing upon earth he was very fond of, and that was a middle-sized black dog, which was always to be seen at his heels afloat or ashore. The crew decided to use this member of the canine species to convey their decision to the captain in the cabin. They induced the dog to enter the fore-castle, and rigged him up with a canvas jacket, pants, and on a little cap, printed in large black letters was the word—manns. The moment the dog was released, he bounded dancin' around his master, who immediately saw the ominous word—manns—printed on the little cap. He saw that it was all up with him, and knowing that the crew were determined to take extreme measures, he ordered the ship to be steered South, and arrived in St. John's in due course. Whatever his reason was he did not bring the crew to court. Probably he thought that such a course would have given him an undesirable notoriety, and subjected him to the shaft and contempt of the other skippers who were always held in the most profound respect by their crews. (to be continued.)

First Female Military Nurses.

Thursday, April 13, 1848, is the date assigned to what was probably the first instance of women volunteering and being allowed to attend the wounded upon the field of battle. It was the new Republic of Venice which then accepted the offer of a female battalion to serve in this manner. From 1798 Austria obtained possession of that remarkable city on the north-east coast of Italy, and was confirmed in it after the European peace that succeeded the battle of Waterloo. But in 1848 the inhabitants revolted, the insurrection commencing on March 22 of that year; and, although the city was surrendered to the Austrians on August 22, 1849, it nevertheless afterwards, in 1856, became part of the present kingdom of united Italy. It was not long before the example was followed, through the Crimean War breaking out in 1854, during which Miss Florence Nightingale rendered such eminent service to the sick and wounded soldiers; thereby leading many other women to follow her noble example.

MRS. AUBORE BARRETTE, popular New Hampshire woman, who says Tanlac brought about a wonderful change in her condition and that every suffering woman ought to know about this wonderful medicine.

"Tanlac is a grand medicine, and I think every suffering woman ought to know about it," was the statement made recently by Mrs. Aubore Barrette, at her residence, 133 Second Street, Manchester, New Hampshire. Mrs. Barrette, is a well known and highly respected resident of that city.

"I have not felt at all well for the past year or more," she continued, "I haven't been sick enough to be in bed, but I was far from being a well woman. At times I thought I had kidney trouble, for I suffered almost constantly from severe pains across my back, just over my kidneys. Whenever I tried to do any house-work at all that dull pain would be there, and if I attempted to stoop over I just felt as though my back would break several times a day, and I felt tired all the time."

"This condition made me awfully nervous, so that I rarely ever slept well at night, and every now and then I would jump in my sleep, as if in a fright, and the condition was really becoming serious. 'Only two bottles of Tanlac have brought about a wonderful change in my condition. In fact, the results I have received from this medicine have really surprised me. Those terrible pains in my back which used to trouble me every day have almost disappeared, and I am going to keep on taking Tanlac until they leave me entirely. I have lots of energy now, and am not only able to do my house work, but I get through the day without feeling the least bit tired. I am no longer nervous like I was, and I sleep well at night. 'I shall always be thankful for what Tanlac has done for me.' Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and by the leading Druggist in every town.—adv.

Farmers Complain.

Farmers are complaining of the difficulty they experience in disposing of cattle (for butchering) at satisfactory prices. This no doubt is due to the fact that cold storage meat is easily procured and offers better profits to the butchers. The country butchers who formerly bought cattle from the farmers, now find it more to their advantage to procure their supplies from the cold storage warehouses, later retailing the meat from their carts with the implied assurance that it is "fresh, country killed."

WHY PRIVILEGES ARE LOST.

I have a neighbor who does not believe in either lending or borrowing. "I won't borrow," he says, "because I don't want to lend."

When I asked why he did not want to lend, he said he had had too many bitter lessons.

from the hotel. In the end, the hotel had to change its policy and charge for all privileges.

In the library in the town where I was born, a wise librarian put up over the lending desk a little reminder. I cannot quote it exactly but the sense was, "This book is loaned. Treat it just a little better than if it was your own."

That injunction is equally good for any article that is loaned. It does not seem as though people of any breeding and education could need such a reminder, but I think they sometimes do.

Fashions and Fads.

The pump with straps seems to be the most popular kind. Tucked points appear as decoration on wraps and dresses.

Black and cream lace are used together for evening gowns.

Straw and fabric are a much liked millinery combination.

The popular French shoe is seen worn with very sheer hosiery.

Crepes, satin, soft silks and tricot-lette are used for blouses.

Black satin frocks are apt to have girdles of brocade ribbon.

Soft coils of self-fabric form sleeve, girdle and collar effects.

Spring furs often appear in cape form and mole is a favorite skin.

Tricorn hats are now so soft they might almost be period hats.

Tulle, roses, feathers and swan's-down are used for Summer scarfs.

Elaborate and exquisitely designed are the French head-dresses.

Quaint embroideries in brilliant colors are seen on silk Jersey blouses.

The most delightful of slipovers are made of figured pussy-willow silk.

"I used to be as generous as the next man about lending," he went on, "but let me tell you some of my experiences. I have a library and I used to like to lend it—but what happened? I lost several single volumes and there are expensive sets in my bookcase that are incomplete because someone didn't bother to return one of the same. I had a pretty good golf outfit at the club and I loaned my golf clubs freely until two clubs disappeared, and one was broken by a man who never carried out his promise to replace it. I loaned some furniture to the club committee to help in a play they were giving, and there were some bad scars on our table when it came back. Nowadays I don't lend if I can help it. Can you blame me?"

Don't Entirely Exonerate Him But I am not sure whether I can or not. I am sure of this thing: I can blame the people who, by their outrageous carelessness, denied the benefit of this man's natural generosity to others.

Do not think there is anything "fancy" than careless treatment of other people's property, especially when you are in possession of it through the kindness of a loan.

It is bad enough to be careless with something you are renting. It is a shade worse to be careless with something you have borrowed.

WHAT ONE OF THE BEST KNOWN TRAVELLERS IN CANADA SAYS.

"Now I am going to give you an unsolicited testimonial, as they say in the patent medicine advertising. Herebefore I have had a profound contempt for patent medicines, particularly so-called liniments. Perhaps this is due to the reason that I have been blessed with a sturdy constitution, and have never been ill a day in my life. One day last fall after a hard day's tramp in the slush of Montreal, I developed a severe pain in my legs, and of course like a man who has never had anything wrong with him physically, I complained rather boisterously. The good little wife says: 'I will rub them with some liniment I have.' 'Go ahead,' I said, 'I just to humor her.' Well in she comes with a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT and gets busy. Believe me the pain disappeared a few minutes after, and you can tell the world I said so."

WHAT HOME'S INTENDED FOR.

When the young folks gather round in the good old-fashioned way, Singin' all the latest songs gathered from the newest play.

Or they start the phonograph an' shove the chair back to the wall An' hold a little party dance, I'm happiest of all.

Then I sorter settle back, plumb contented watchin' her.

An' I tell myself most proudly, that's what home's intended for.

When the laughter's gaily ringin' an' the room is filled with song, I like to sit an' watch 'em, all that glad an' merry throng.

For the ragtime they are playin' on the old piano there Beats any high-toned music where the bright lights shine an' glare, An' the racket they are makin' seems to make my pulses stir.

So I whisper in my gladness, that's what home's intended for.

Then I smile an' say to mother, let 'em move the chairs about, Let 'em frolic in the parlor, let 'em shove the tables out, Jus' so long as they are near us, jus' so long as they will stay.

By the fireplace we are keepin', harm will never come their way, An' you'll never hear me grumble at the bills that may occur, For the damage they are doin'—that's what home's intended for.

THE TEACHER.

The teacher's is the noblest stunt a mortal can pursue; and yet to-day we see her hunt for something else to do. She loves her high, uplifting trade, and quits it with a sigh, but she can't live on what she's paid, and can't afford to die. For years she studies night and day, to qualify to teach; and we behold her on her way, and say she is a peach. We hand her nosegays when they're cheap, and call her Buttercup, and say the blessed schoolrooms keep our bulwarks right side up. Without her this enlightened age would sadly be bereft; she guards the priceless heritage our well known fathers left. We hand her taffy with a spade, but when she makes complaint about the measly wage she's paid, we sweat some blood and faint. We may confess to spend-thrift ways, hold miser greed a crime; but when the schoolroom asks a raise, we're tightwads, every time. And so she's going from the school to seek some other trade, to carve her way with some new tool, a corkscrew or a spade. She cannot thrive on nosegays sweet, or flourish on hot air, for she must have a prune to eat, and decent rage to wear.

Essex Almost Doubles Small Car Endurance.

ESSEX has performance like the costliest fine cars—its world endurance record has never been rivaled.

The most important thing that ESSEX has proved is that weight and size are no longer necessary to finest car quality.

All concede average ability in any modern car.

So it was to prove ability far beyond what any light car ever has shown that ESSEX made its famous endurance tests.

Its 3,027 miles in 50 hours is a world's endurance record. The test was official. Supervisors of the American Automobile Association certified the ESSEX stock chassis in every detail.

Never before was a car driven at top speed for 50 hours. The grind was more severe than years of road use. Yet at the end the ESSEX showed no measurable wear. Indeed, the same stock chassis in three trials was driven 5,569 miles, at an average speed above a mile a minute.

Ouija Boards Are Made by Millions.

THEY KEEP SIX MEN BUSY IN ONE MAINE SHOP.

BRIDGTON, Me.—The pine trees of Maine contribute to the magic of the ouija board, for in Bridgton a wood-working shop is busy from morning till night making pine boards into the small table of the ouija, called the traveler, on which the fingers rest when talking with the spirits. In fact, the peculiar charm of the Maine pine is communicated to the mystic, illustrative quality of the ouija and adds its part to the general fascination of this wonderful medium of the spirit world.

The last order of the shop is for half a million of the little travelers, five men beside the proprietor being employed, and for several years past the entire output of the shop has been the ouija board travelers. The small, heart-shaped board and the tiny legs are made by special machinery, which can turn out a great many in a day. The name Ouija has been printed on those previously made, but the latest design has a tiny glass inserted in the wood.

The pine trees must be of the best and they are obtained from the woodmen in the vicinity, the logs brought to the shop, where they are sawed into boards from which the special machinery cuts them into the heart-shaped travelers which have brought so many secrets from the spirit world. It is believed by some that the pine trees, which have been caressed by the soft breezes of summer and buffeted by the wild storms of winter, have made the spirit of the elements a part of themselves and have passed this magic on to the ouija heart.

Has Written 600 Hymns.

Fanny Crosby, the blind writer of more than 6,000 religious hymns, had an interesting if uneventful career, according to a recent sketch in Along Broadway, the Edison musical magazine. She lost her eyesight when only 6 years old and 12 years later, at the New York Institute for the Blind, she met and fell in love with the blind musician Alexander Van Alstyne. They were married and lived happily. Mrs. Van Alstyne afterwards became a teacher at the institute.

Many of Fanny Crosby's best known hymns are to be found in the popular Moody and Sankey gospel hymn books. The simple earnestness and true religious spirit of her hymns make them as popular as ever. Fortunately some of the best, including "Jesus is Calling," "Only a Step to Jesus," "Come, Great Deliverer" and others have been beautifully sung by the Calvary choir and recorded for the phonograph.

The Public Impatient

The Woodford affidavit was sworn to on March 23rd, nearly three weeks ago, and so far no word of official denial has been made by the Prime Minister or Hon. M. P. Gibbs, the persons concerned in the conspiracy of purchase. The agreement was entered into by the parties mentioned on March 17th, therefore a month has elapsed since the piece of "political jobbery" was arranged and no word of confutation has come from either of the public men involved. Is silence, in this case, an acknowledgment of guilt? It was not the wont of the present Prime Minister to remain under a cloud when he was innocent. The Team 16 episode of 1919 is an illustration of his haste to prove purity of motive. The Woodford affidavit does not appear to produce a similar haste of repudiation. Why is it? Must the public assume that there is guilt indelibly stamped upon the Prime Minister, in the Woodford purchase case? Until a disclaimer is made—under oath—belief in the affidavit of the ex-Minister of Public Works, must be publicly held.

In order that the electorate may have another opportunity of reading the document, wherein the alleged integrity of the first Minister is discounted, and his real political characteristics are made known and incorporated in the charge of "political jobbery," we again publish the famous Woodford affidavit, with the glaring accusations in which should be sufficient to bring the Prime Minister to his feet—if innocent—in scathing denunciation of the whole statement:

"In The Matter of The Election Act 1913 And in The Matter of The Petition of Richard Kelly Complaining of The Undue Return of William Woodford as a Member for The Electoral District of Harbour Main at an Election Holden on the 3rd Day of November, A.D., 1919.

"I, William Woodford, of St. John's, Newfoundland, the above named respondent, make oath, and say as follows:—

"1. That I did not make any arrangement, agreement, terms or undertaking with the said Richard Kelly in relation to the withdrawal of the said petition or otherwise in respect of same.

"2. That I did make and enter into an arrangement or agreement with the Honourable Richard A. Squires, Prime Minister of Newfoundland, and the Honourable Michael P. Gibbs, a Solicitor of the Court, at their request, in relation to the withdrawal of said petition.

"3. That the said arrangement was entered into on the 17th Day of March now present and was as follows: On condition that I would forthwith resign my seat as a member for the District of Harbour Main, the said Squires and Gibbs were to cause the said petition to be withdrawn, and the said Squires was to procure my appointment to a position in the service of His Majesty's Government at a salary of two thousand dollars per year with a further allowance of five hundred dollars per year in lieu of perquisites. The said appointment was to be deferred until the close of the next session of the House of Assembly, but the salary was to begin as from the first day of April next, and I was to receive on the 19th day of March now present a payment amounting to three months' salary in advance.

"4. In accordance with the said arrangement I tendered my resignation as a member of the House of Assembly on the morning of the 18th day of March now present.

"5. The said payment on account of salary has not been paid to me, nor has any payment on account of same or otherwise been made to me.

"6. The said Gibbs, on the said 19th day of March told me that the payment would be made according to the arrangement, but would have to be deferred until the completion of the proceedings for the withdrawal of said petition.

"(Sgd.) WM. WOODFORD.
"Sworn at St. John's, this 23rd day of March, A.D., 1920, before me, Shabby Treatment.

A correspondent, writing from Great Paradise, Placentia Bay, calls attention to the paltry dole of seven dollars per quarter which is being paid widows and orphans, by the Department of Public Charities, the same, he contends, being a disgrace to Newfoundland. Whilst all other votes were increased, that for the Widows and Orphans, "God's Poor," was not advanced to the utter discredit of whoever was responsible. When the Hon. H. J. Brownrigg is making up his estimates for the ensuing financial year, it is to be hoped that he will make an extra allowance on Permanent Poor account. Should he fail to do so, this subject will be introduced into the press again, and the Minister of Finance and Customs cited before the bar of public opinion to answer for the omission.

Fancy Prices at Auction.

Several hundred people were attracted to the auction of the effects of the late Hon. John Harvey in Caddy Street this forenoon. The prices fetched were in every case fanciful. Mr. Kenneth Prowse was a heavy buyer. Four pieces of ivory cost one buyer $50. Two whale tusks sold for $28 each. A harp brought $20. A musical instrument fetched $63. A 30.30 rifle sold for $40, and a pair of lady's snow shoes for $10. A leather travelling bag sold for $58, and a small leather grip for $38. Three suit cases were knocked down for $35. Two small card tables brought in $15 each, and some motor rugs sold for $30 each. Mr. R. K. Holden was the auctioneer.

Gross weight, 64 tons, 14 cwt., 21 lbs.; nett weight, 62 tons, 10 cwt., 2 qrs., 3 lbs. Total value, $12,576.59. The crew of 141 men shared $31.68 each.

Mother Very Ill.

Honest "Bill."

About two weeks ago, honest "Bill" Cawdon, the popular iceman of the Prince's Bldg, picked up a purse containing seven gold pieces on Prescott Street. "Bill" waited awhile to see if the owner would advertise his loss, but not seeing it, decided to announce his find through the columns of the "Peoples Paper," with the usual result that within a few hours the rightful owner claimed his property and rewarded honest "Bill."

ELECTION PETITION.

Kelly vs. Woodford.

Mr. Costello, who was called yesterday forenoon and examined by Mr. Mews, continued his evidence at the afternoon session. He said he received $25 from Mr. Woodford for work on a garden road. When cross-examined by Mr. Higgins he stated: The road is about three-quarters of a mile long. Used by 9 or 10 families. Was talking to Mr. Woodford about the Old Age Pension. Mr. Murray assisted him. Got the cheque with return sheets, etc., in an envelope. Have done the work and sent the returns into the Board of Works' Office.

Re-examined by Mr. Mews:—The work was done in November. Did not work between Nomination Day and Polling Day. He named the families who lived on the road in question.

Wm. J. Morgan of Seal Cove.—Examined by Mr. Mews:—He remembered the names of the candidates and met Woodford and Jones. Met Woodford at his own house. Had conversation concerning Seal Cove bridge. There was money owed to the men who worked on the bridge in August. He had charge of paying the men. Wrote to Mr. Hibbs, Chairman of the Road Board, for the money, but did not get any; then wrote Mr. Woodford. He called and asked me for the pay sheet. This amounted to about six hundred or seven hundred dollars. Mr. Kelly of the Board of Works' Office came up to pay off the men, who numbered 13 or 20. He got three hundred dollars and seventy-five dollars last October, the latter for Indian Pond Road about 15 or 16 days before Polling Day, and the former for a wharf in Seiki Cove River. He was a member of the Road Board. In his opinion the best time to repair the roads was between the 1st of May and 1st September. He went to the Board of Works' Office to get the three hundred dollars. He took some letters up to Seal Cove to deliver to other people, six or seven of them.

Cross-examined by Mr. Howley:—Member of Road Board for four years, the only member for Seal Cove section. Mr. R. Hibbs was the chairman, the man who is now M. H. A. for Fogo. Indian Pond Road wanted repairs, and he as the member of the Road Board asked for the amount of seventy-five dollars to spend on a badly neglected road. The three hundred dollars for a wharf were given him also as a member of the Road Board. The wharf was badly needed. He was foreman on the bridge. Every dollar paid was honestly earned.

Stephen Doyle.—Examined by Mr. Mews:—Remembered the election last fall. Met Mr. Woodford. Spent forty dollars on the Harbor Main Line. Mr. Bonia, Inspector of Public Works, brought it to him with instructions to repair the road.

Cross-examined by Mr. Higgins:—The gentleman who gave him instructions was Capt. T. Bonia, the Public Road Inspector. He had often repaired the roads. His instructions were to repair the road from Maloney's Bridge South. The road badly needed repairs. The amount was all worked out and he sent in the returns. It was not enough to put the road in good repair. He employed men and horses.

The Court then adjourned until Wednesday.

HYNES vs. JONES.

The hearing of this petition was resumed before Justices Johnson and Kent this morning.
Mr. Mews calls James Whelan, of Colliers, who deposes to taking an interest in the Harbor Main elections; he met both parties; met Woodford and Dr. Jones while working at a job. This was during the summer. He was building a wharf at the north side of Colliers. He did not remember the date of the meeting but thought it was in October month. Had a conversation about money owed him on the job. He told Woodford the job was in debt $21.60 to himself and seven other men, but the debt was due to building a road to the wharf. Dr. Jones was present at the conversation. Mr. Woodford remarked that the wharf was a good job and promised to pay him for the road. He (the witness) was told to call on Dr. Jones on the next Thursday and get his money. The money was owed them about six or seven weeks. Witness said he had applied to Mr. Kennedy several times for this money. He called on Dr. Jones on Thursday (this was in October) at Avondale, but did not see Dr. Jones. Jones and Woodford were at Conception Harbor and the witness went there. Saw Mr. Woodford and was told to apply to Dr. Jones the next day. Witness went to Dr. Jones the next day and asked for the money. Dr. Jones said Woodford did not leave any cheque there but that he supposed that he would have to pay him. He paid witness the amount $21.60 in cash. This was on Nomination morning at 9 o'clock. Never spoke to Jones or Woodford after, until the former sent for him two or three weeks after Polling Day. Witness stated that Dr. Jones wrote him twice before he went to him, but that he did not know if he could find the letters now. When he went for this money he saw Dr. Jones and his surgery; he gave him $21.60 and 40 cents extra as (he was informed), the cheque sent in by Mr. Woodford called for $22.00. Witness stated he saw the cheque in the Doctor's hand. Witness stated he made out the return sheets and sent them in to the Board of Works. The amount allowed for building the wharf was $500, but had no grant for a road to it. The witness told Mr. Kennedy that there was no way to get on the wharf and that he supposed he would have to do it at his own expense. Kennedy said, "go ahead, I suppose you will get paid for it." This was in September.

Cross-examined by Mr. Howley witness stated he asked Kennedy 12 months ago for authority to build the wharf. He received his cheque and returns sheet in an envelope from the Marine and Fisheries Dept. The returns were sent in to the Auditor General's Dept. It was in September that the road was made; there was no money left from the building of the wharf. He undertook the road building on Mr. Kennedy's word. He made a declaration that he was on the side of the present Government; he declared the same after receiving the money. At Dr. Jones' he had a conversation. The conversation was about the payment of the $21.60, and that it was needed to pay the men. He gave Dr. Jones a receipt for it. The receipt was produced and put in evidence; it was dated October 23, 1919, and was for $21.60. Asked if he remembered the contents of Dr. Jones' letters, the witness said No. He did not remember if he had endorsed the cheque held by Dr. Jones. The cheque was produced and put in evidence. The witness did not recognize it at first, and when shown the back he said he was not sure it was his writing but he would not swear that it was not. He sent in returns for the money he received from Dr. Jones, but not for the cheque.

Re-examined by Mr. Mews, he stated he told Dr. Jones he wanted the money to pay the 8 men who did the work on the road.
Stephen Doyle, Hr. Main, was next called. He stated he saw Mr. Woodford and also Dr. Jones, the latter being on professional business. Mr. Bonia brought the sum of $400 to his house and explained to him how it was to be expended.
At this juncture the Court took recess.

A voice of gladness—there is veiled a face,
Whose parting left a dark and silent place,
By the once-joyous hearth.
A smile hath passed, which filled his home with light,
A soul, whose beauty made
That smile so bright.

Summary of Foreign News.

BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.

HORSEA, April 13.

An Exchange Telegraph message from Paris describes the French communication as "of a most conciliatory nature, and most happy results are expected from it." The Daily Chronicle diplomatic correspondent, writing before the French reply was received, says the chief point in the latest British communication was the affirmation of the determination of Great Britain to participate in the enforcement of the treaty, including the disarmament clauses, and also to that may be called the principle of concert. The correspondent continues, "the British view still is that permission might safely have been given to the German Government to the police measures in the Ruhr, subject to guarantees, for instance, for their termination in some such period as a fortnight, which we were prepared to reinforce. France thought that no guarantees would suffice and since took her independent action, and she still justifies it, but the opinion of London, far transcending this particular instance, is that the success of the alliance, now and consequently, must depend upon such action. Until, therefore, independent action is no longer contemplated in Paris, it can hardly be said that the question has been cleared up, and while one of the Allies is acting independently, it is evident that the position of the British Ambassador in Paris in a conference of Ambassadors, which exists only for the purpose of concert, would be ambiguous and useless." The correspondent adds that he hoped that the French note will be found to contain assurances as to future intentions of the French Government. In any case there will be opportunities of discussing the matter set, at San Remo, and it cannot be doubted that it will then be fully settled. Meantime it may be positively stated that the British Cabinet, after full consideration, is united in the opinion that the execution of the treaty depends upon, firstly its being reasonably enterprise, and secondly its being unanimously endorsed. Independent action of one power upon its own opinion and initiative would be death to any alliance. A Paris message says Millerand has replied that the French Government do not contemplate such a step. In view of the good behaviour of the population of Frankfurt, the French commanding general has, said a Reuters Berlin message, cancelled the demand for a thousand marks in fine, which was the fine for a demonstration against French soldiers whose accoutrements were taken.

The British Minister of Education expressed the view of the Council of the League of Nations regarding a treaty for Armenia at the Paris meeting of the Council. The mandate, he said, depend partly on the military measures for the protection of the state, and partly on finance, and the council is not competent to determine the military situation, and to take measures to be taken for the maintenance of peace, he was of the opinion that there would not be any insuperable difficulties in finding a mandate, if the state that undertook it was relieved of financial liability. What the council is prepared to do is to submit it to the League say if its constituent members consider the provision of the guarantee, and to the Supreme Council will be communicated such financial arrangements as can be made to facilitate that solution of the problem.

The number of war prisoners in Siberia is set at between one hundred and twenty thousand and two hundred thousand and the mortality among them is heavy. Doctor Mansen will be appointed, on behalf of the League of Nations, to investigate facts and to report on measures to be taken for the repatriation of these prisoners.

It is considered probable that communications between the British and French Governments, regarding the independent action of the French in occupying Prussian towns, will be concluded with the last French note, which is stated to be phrased in highly conciliatory terms. Lloyd George is on the way to San Remo, and Millerand will leave Paris to proceed to the Conference there on the 19th instant. Various outstanding points may then be discussed between the Premier's, but it is not expected any further notes will be exchanged. The Evening Standard says "Yesterday the British Ambassador at Paris had received clear assurances from Millerand that the suggested lines of action and mutual co-operation laid down in the British note should be followed in future, and that these assurances would be put into writing forthwith. The French note, received to-day in London, bears out that the French Government is in highly conciliatory mood. It is expected that after this statement made by Millerand in the Chamber, the incident will fade away. Especially is this belief warranted by virtue of the fact that it is confirmed that the German Reichswehr have begun to withdraw from the disordered district of the Ruhr. It is hoped that by the middle of the week the withdrawal will be completed, and that French forces at Frankfurt and in other German towns, recently occupying, will at once be withdrawn, conforming with the covering French diplomatic note at the time of the advance." Lord Derby, British Ambassador, called on Millerand to-day for further information, which the French premier was able to give him. The Exchange Telegraph says: "As a result of this interview, it is understood that there is now a complete understanding between the two Governments, and that Bonar Law will be able to make a declaration in the House to-morrow. If such is the case, Millerand will make his statement in the French Chamber."

The schr. Herbert Fearn left Falmouth Friday for Newport to load coal for Spain. It will be remembered that the Herbert Fearn was in collision on Oct. 27th last, was abandoned, and subsequently picked up by the S.S. St. Michael and taken into Falmouth, where repairs were made. The crew were also landed at Falmouth by the S. S. Tiogo, this being the steamer which was in the collision. The owners of the Tiogo have admitted their liability.

Police Court.

A 12 or 13-year-old girl was charged with loose and disorderly conduct and for assaulting 5 young women and making the nose of one of them bleed. When arrested, on New Gower Street last night, she used very bad language. Inspector Noseworthy, of the Force, told the court that he had on previous occasions helped her, even securing her a good home. Her parents are dead, and she spends all her time on the street, especially at night time. She would not remain in the home. Inspector General Hutchings also spoke of the girl, remarking that it was a pity that some of the charitable workers did not take care of the unfortunate girl. The court agreed. Efforts will be made by the court and the I. G. to secure her a home.

The young married man who was arrested about a week ago on a very serious charge applied, through Mr. L. E. Emerson, to be released on bail. He had to give bonds of $10,000 and two good securities were also asked for. Up to dinner hour the latter had not offered. Investigations in this case have finished and it will come up on Thursday afternoon at 3.30. Four witnesses will be called.

A Sale of Plain and Fancy Work will be held by the ladies of St. Andrew's Church, in the Presbyterian Hall, on next Friday afternoon, April 16th, when they will offer for sale Dainty Dresses & Underwear for children from 1 to 12 years old; Bibs and Tray Runners to match, Silk Dress Patterns, China Silks and Wash Satins, Boudoir Caps, Fancy Bags, Black Satin Tea Cosies, Sachets, Camisoles, Aprons and Towels, and so many other beautiful things too numerous to mention. Mainly About People.

The Prince of Wales will be the first member of Britain's royal family to set foot on the West Indian Islands as a formal visitor. As it may now be taken for granted that King George's globe-trotting is at an end, and since at least two other visits for the Prince of Wales are projected, he is likely to set up a mileage record that will remain unbroken for many a day.

The record altitude biplane flight—36,000 feet—was made by Major R. W. Schroeder, U. S. A. This is 6000 feet more than the world's record, and to make it the major flew into such a cold zone when seven miles from earth that his oxygen tanks became exhausted and he became unconscious in a 100-mile gale that almost froze him to death. His plane, uncontrolled, shot down and the major recovered in time and brought his ship to a landing safely. He was dressed heavier than any Arctic explorer.

To-day's Messages.

PUBLIC GETTING TIRED.
NEW YORK, April 12. Throughout the day there were indications that there was no break in the ranks of the strikers and that railroad officials were straining every effort to man the few trains still operating, caused the citizens of Englewood and Tenafly, N.J., to hold indignation meetings to-night, at which they called the Erie railroad to furnish trains which they themselves would manage. At the mass meeting of indignation committees in Orange, N.J., to-night, fifty men, all of whom had seen some service in handling locomotives in France, volunteered to run a special train into New York to-morrow morning. Princeton University students also have volunteered as strike breakers.

WEAK FROM HUNGER STRIKE.
LONDON, April 12. The Attorney General for Ireland, in reply to a question in the House of Commons to-day, said that according to the latest information hunger strikers in Mount Joy Prison at Dublin were all weak and some were nearing the danger zone. The Attorney General added that they had all been forewarned of the consequences of their conduct.

FROM GERMAN SOURCE.
BERLIN, April 12. Military action in the Ruhr Basin is about to come to an end, said Chancellor Mueller in the course of a declaration before the National Assembly to-day, and all troops, not indispensable, will be withdrawn. Negotiations are going on with the Allies for a three months extension of the convention of August 1919. The occupation of Mainz cities will end shortly. The Chancellor's declaration was a bitter attack on French militarism and justified the German action in the Ruhr district by arguments already advanced in German notes, and maintained that a Democratic Germany was possible only if the Franco-German duel ceased and economic collaboration was undertaken seriously, instead of merely announced.

VERY UNSETTLED.
CHICAGO, April 12. While the unauthorized strike of railroad employees, which started in Chicago two weeks ago, with a walk-out of seven hundred switchmen on the Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad to-day, appeared gradually to be waning, in the Middle West and Far East the situation in the territory East of Cleveland it took on a more serious aspect. The centre of developments in the walkout of the insurgents had definitely shifted to the East, which additions to the ranks of rebel railroad workers had caused a severe stoppage of freight and passenger traffic, and the closing of several industries which depended on the railroads for supplies.

PLEGGED TO BREAK STRIKE.
NEW YORK, April 12. Union Laborers co-operative in an effort to break the unauthorized strike of railroad workers here, was pledged by the representatives of four big railroad brotherhoods in a conference, which characterized the strike as a mob movement, and asserted it was "bound to break."

WHEN GERMANY DOES.
PARIS, April 12. Premier Millerand answering the sixth note of the British Government with regard to the occupation, by France, of the Rhineland, assured the Earl of Derby, British Ambassador, that the evacuation of the cities recently occupied would take place simultaneously with that of Germany and that conditions existing when France intervened would be restored.

LOOKING MORE FAVORABLE.
LONDON, April 12. An authoritative statement, issued to-night, indicates that the British situation is even more favorable than represented by Bonar Law, Government spokesman in the House of Commons to-day. The statement intimates that a French note is expected, accepting the British view, and agreeing to evacuate occupied territories rapidly on the withdrawal of German troops from Ruhr, which has already commenced.

PREFER OVERALLS TO TAILORS' BILLS.
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 12. Birmingham newspaper publishers have flatly denied the request of the Committee of Retail Clothiers that news of "Overall" movement throughout the south be suppressed on the ground that it was damaging the retail clothing business. Publishers informed the clothiers' business committee that the papers would continue to report the "Overall" movement, which they considered legitimate news. The idea of wearing overalls as a means of fighting the cost of living has entered many cities throughout the south, where business and professional men as well as other workers are going about in blue overalls.

MEETING THE MANUFACTURERS.
OTTAWA, April 12. Protesting against several clauses and the provisions of the Food and Drugs Act, now before the House of Commons, a large deputation of manufacturers from Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto waited on Hon. Mr. Rowell, Minister of Health, last night, to place their objections before him as a result, it is understood that some changes be made in the wording of the Act to meet these objections. The manufacturers ask for a delay of eighteen months in bringing the Act into force, to enable them to get rid of their present goods and to use up their present labels.

STARVE OR SUBMIT.
DUBLIN, April 13. (By the Associated Press.)—The Mount Joy prison hunger strike has now assumed the dimensions of a struggle between the people and the authorities. The Government, however, cannot be moved from its refusal to enter into a compromise, and Field Marshal, Viscount French, again declined to intervene yesterday, although an appeal was made by the Lord Mayor of the city.

AMATEUR OPERATIVES.
PASSAIC, N.Y., April 13. The Board of Trade of Passaic, numbering 200 members, last night volunteered its services to the railroad officials in any capacity, for the purpose of keeping trains moving.

GERMAN KULTUR.
BERLIN, April 13. Demands for an apology and an indemnity from the German Government for the recent arrest and maltreatment of a correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, by Lieut. Linsenmeyer at Essen, were presented at the Foreign Office yesterday by Lord Kilmarnock, Charge d'Affaires at the Embassy here.

BACK TO WAR TIMES.
PARIS, April 13. France's wheat stocks are so low that a greater amount of flour substitutes must be used in bread, at least until June, when, according to the Government's program, importations of more wheat will be received.

BUT THE CONSUMER PAYS.
NEW YORK, April 13. Anthracite mine operators in defending their system of profits yesterday, presented several volumes of data, refuting the figures submitted by the mine workers, purporting to show that their wages were not responsible for the high price of coal to the public. The operators denied they were making unjustified profits, and questioned the accuracy of the miners figures.

NEARING SETTLEMENT.
LONDON, April 13. The verbal assurances, given by the French Government in answering the sixth note of Great Britain, relative to the occupation of German cities by the French, were discussed by a Cabinet Council yesterday. They are expected to be followed by the formal note, which will mean a satisfactory solution of the difficulty. France is said to recognize that the opposition to its action was based upon the immediate question involved.

BY ORDER OF THE SULTAN.
CONSTANTINOPLE, April 13. Dissolution of the Chamber of Deputies has been ordered by the Sultan, and in obedience to this command the members of the House have dispersed without disorder.

English Divorce Reform.
Many good people conscientiously maintain that there can be no reform in making divorce easier by increasing the number of causes for which it may be granted, yet in certain European countries when such an increase is made it will be really a matter of reform. In England it involves the righting of a wrong to injured wives. Under the English law a husband may obtain a divorce on the ground of his wife's unfaithfulness. That is a sufficient reason. A wife may obtain a divorce on the ground of the husband's unfaithfulness combined with cruelty, prolonged desertion, bigamy, rape or unnatural offences. The law is therefore unequal as between husband and wife and the defense of Simply say H.P. to your grocer—he will hand you a bottle of the most appetising sauce in the world.

But be sure you DO say H.P., because you want ferred for the inequality has always been that unfaithfulness throws doubt on the legitimacy of the children of the marriage, while unfaithfulness on the part of the husband does not. But the popular opinion has come to be that the harsh discrimination against the wife is an injustice to be remedied.

As long ago as 1912 a judicial commission reported in favor of equality of the sexes in grounds for divorce, the new grounds to include desertion for three years, cruelty, incurable insanity lasting five years, habitual drunkenness for three years after a separation order, and commutation of a sentence of death to imprisonment. Only now is effect given to these recommendations in the bill to which the House of Lords has given a second reading by a majority of more than two to one. After the signal defeat of the opposing bishops of that House, the bill is not a doubt that when the bill reaches the House of Commons it will be passed into law. It does not apply to Scotland, because in that country, ever since the Reformation, the courts have decreed divorce to either husband or wife on the one ground of unfaithfulness.—Boston Sunday Herald.

Fads and Fashions.

Very popular is the little sleeveless blouse worn under the Spring suit coat.

Organdie and dotted swiss are used for some of the most attractive neckwear.

Charming boutonnieres of small French fruit and flowers are used on girdles.

The dolman wrap still obtains in favor, but is somewhat freer in line than hitherto.

The new overblouses are unbelted, have very short sleeves and deep cut necks.

A novel pair of black satin mules have little straps which fasten with rhinestone buckles.

A suit of citron gabardine has plaids set in above the pockets on its straight, belted coat.

Only a hip belt can be worn under a backless evening gown—corsets of any kind are impossible.

The severely simple "little dress" is of black velvet or satin, with round shallow neck and extreme simplicity.

Egypt As An Airplane Junction.

Speaking at a recent meeting of the Royal Geographical Society in London, Sir Frederick Sykes dwelt at length upon the extensive projects which Great Britain has under way for the development of commercial aviation. During the eight months of last year which began with May 1 he declared that the total number of hours flown by their machines engaged in civil aviation, exclusive of the competition flights from England to Australia, amounted to 8,368, that the number of flights exceeded 35,000, that the mileage almost reached 600,000, and that the exact number of passengers carried was 64,416. Also that during that period there occurred 18 accidents, causing the deaths of four pilots and one passenger and injuries to six pilots and ten passengers. These figures show a ratio of one accident to nearly 33,000 miles flown.

In the development of her aerial system the speaker said that Egypt must for a long time be the "Hub" or the "Clapham Junction" of the routes to India, Australia and Cape Town, the heart of the system. There are various complications awaiting solution before the utmost freedom of communication will be possible between England and France, problems international, meteorological and technical. Malta probably will be made an intermediate landing place between London and Alexandria. Aviators find the weather conditions stable on the whole between Egypt and India, and while the sea voyage from Port Said to Bombay requires nine days under normal conditions, the distance is made through the air flying only in daytime in four days. To reach Bagdad from Cairo by the routes now used requires three or four weeks; the fliers do it in ten hours. Through the co-operation of the Dutch government in Holland and the governor-general of the Dutch East Indies, an air route from India to Australia is likely soon to be opened. The routes from Egypt to the Cape and from Egypt to Australia have been plotted, and experimental flights have been made to the down under land while that over Africa is now under way. The last link of the world chain which England expects to forge will be that between London and Montreal, across the Atlantic. Reading attentively the long address of this authority the dreams of Tennyson, Jules Verne and Kipling do not seem so very distant after all.—Boston Sunday Herald.

The Burning of Magdala.

On Easter Monday, April 13, 1858, Magdala, the chief city of Abyssinia, was stormed with great force, and captured by a British army, which lost only two killed and twenty wounded, while the defenders lost about five thousand. On the 17th of that month Magdala was burned to the ground by the British Abyssinia is a very remarkable country, extending southwards from Egypt and the Red Sea, along the east coast of Africa, covering 300,000 square miles, and with a total population of 7,000,000. Its Hebrew name is Cush (meaning "black"), but the Greeks called it "Ethiopia," or "burnt faces," each referring to the complexion of its natives, but where that latter name first occurs in the English Bible (Gen. 10, 14), it could not refer to this African country, but means the country, still called Khuisistan, on the east bank of the rivers mentioned in that chapter, when they have united before entering the Persian Gulf. It was from Abyssinia that the Queen of Sheba travelled to visit Solomon at Jerusalem where she was so astonished at his wisdom that she thought his wives must be the happiest of women, and afterwards returned and became one of the thousand; thus the King of Abyssinia claimed descent from Menelik, his son by her. A statesman of a Queen of Ethiopia, after worshipping in the temple at Jerusalem, was reading the prophecies of Isaiah while riding home in his chariot, and was convinced and baptised by Phillip, the Christian deacon (Acts viii, 27-40). But it was not till the sixth century that Abyssinians in general became converted to Christianity through monks from Egypt. About A.D. 1633 they expelled from their country the Jesuits, who, under Portuguese rule, attempted to introduce the Palal power of the Bishop of Rome. But in 1855 they received Protestant missionaries, until in 1863 their Negus, or Sovereign, Theodore, sent a letter to Queen Victoria desiring alliance against the Turks. As no reply was received, Charles Duncan Cameron, a British military officer and Consul, and all British missionaries and subjects there, were imprisoned and chained; Henry Aaron Stern, a Jewish Church of England clergyman, being beaten and tortured. Then the British invasion began, and on April 11, 1868, all the European prisoners were set at liberty; but the Emperor Theodore, while sending a letter of apology and offering a present of cattle, refused to surrender himself and died, by his own hand it was believed. The British army had been commanded by Field-Marshal Sir Robert Cornelius Napier, who was created Baron Napier of Magdala, and lived till 1890, succeeded by his son.

King George has lately been wearing trousers with a crease at the sides instead of down the center. This was a fashion set long ago by King Edward. It was widely followed at the time, but of late years has been almost entirely abandoned, surviving only in the dress of some of the gentlemen of "the old school." Of these Lord Beresford, who retained the fashion to the time of his death, was the best known.

Does Prohibition Prohibit?
 The Case for the Moderates.

(By WARWICK SMITH.)

WHOSE WHO WILL DECIDE THE ISSUE.

Public sentiment has expressed itself so strongly against a return to the open saloon, with the attendant misery that results from the manner in which that institution was run, that to-day the opposing forces are composed of persons who desire to see a temperate country. The people are divided between the total prohibitionists and those who would modify somewhat the harshness of total restriction.

There are many on each side who believe it to be a question of right or wrong. Some contend that the use of intoxicants as a beverage is wrong. Others believe it is wrong to take that attitude. Between these lie the great number, who do not regard it so much a question of absolute right or wrong, but as a matter of expediency. They say all things are right, but all things are not expedient. They are divided on both sides.

First, there is the man who votes for Prohibition, not that he believes wrong to use alcoholic beverages, but because he thinks it wiser to see all to abstain in order to force the saloon to reform. If he finds that Prohibition does not do what he expects it to do he will look around for other expedient. Then there is the man who would not vote for Prohibition, simply because he did not believe it to be the best expedient. If he could find that, after all, Prohibition put a stop to drunkenness, he would change his mind and vote for those who believe in the absolute right or wrong of Prohibition. It is almost a waste of time to try and convert them from their respective beliefs. The appeal of both sides is to the subject as a matter of expediency. They do not regard Prohibition as wrong nor they regard Prohibition as the institution of the evil one. If Prohibition the work they will support it; if it does not, they will look around for other means to remove the curse of intemperance. To this class nothing will appeal except FACTS.

The greatest fact that will satisfy this large number of people consists in the correct answer to the following question:

"DOES PROHIBITION PROHIBIT?"

Now, this question must be faced fairly and squarely. It depends on how this question is answered that will really decide the issue. The wets will be wet and the dries dry. Those who are prejudiced one way or the other will more or less balance each other. The question will be decided by people who are not enthusiastically "wet" or "dry." These people include both total abstainers and moderate drinkers. The former suffer no personal hardship, whatever the decision, and the latter are prepared to curtail their own liberty for the general good.

If Prohibition does really prohibit drunkenness and intemperance, these people will vote for prohibition. Their minds are not swayed by prejudice; they can judge facts.

Now, two other questions will have to be asked in order to arrive at the answer to the first question. "Does Prohibition Prohibit?" These questions are as follows:

(A) "Can any law be enforced without the strong backing of public opinion?"

(B) "Has Prohibition the backing of public opinion?"

No sensible person will deny that laws cannot be enforced in democratic countries unless the public approves of them. Even in countries ruled by despots it is exceedingly difficult and costly to enforce laws of which the people do not approve. The conclusion arrived at by Samuel Gompers in reference to Russia is one worthy of consideration. He contends that Prohibition is one of the causes, if not the main cause, that brought about that restlessness which resulted in revolution. Everyone will agree however that even if Gompers is wrong about Russia, you cannot enforce legislation in democratic countries without a strong public opinion behind it.

Let us consider question B again: Has Prohibition the backing of public opinion? The question is not "Did it have public opinion behind it in 1915?" The question is "Has it public opinion behind it now?"

To answer this question we must get at the facts, and these facts must not be merely the citation of exceptional cases. It is possible for most tyrannical laws to be enforced in one or two isolated cases. But you cannot enforce them generally. As soon as you do, the politicians begin to get nervous and they are the masters of those who administer the laws. If they find that they are likely to lose votes, they take steps so that only a bluff of carrying out the law is the result. The officers of the law will prosecute in a few glaring, bare-faced violations of the law or where, in particular cases, the offender has personally incurred the hostility of a large and influential portion of the general public.

"Let Justice be done, though the heavens fall!" is a motto that appeals to most men. But we must not confuse "justice" with "law," because some laws are unjust.

An Expressed Doubt.

(From the Harbor Grace Standard.)
 The latest proposition of the Re-establishment Committee is that of affording returned Soldiers and Sailors an opportunity of settling on the land and the Government is prepared to consider the question. Certain conditions are laid down; the applicants will be required to work on a farm under an approved farmer for the summer and early fall; take an agricultural course in some approved Agricultural School for 1920 to 1921; work on the farm under an approved farmer for the summer of 1921, and then the men, if they have shown themselves to be capable and of good conduct would be furnished with capital by the Government to secure farms of their own.

The action of the Government will depend upon the number of applications received, and according to the advertisements of the Committee, applications must be sent in before May 1st.

We fear that this effort will not be successful, and for many reasons. Where is the land to farm? What prospects are ahead for those who will go into the work? How many men to-day can support themselves solely by work on the farm? Farming is a help to those who have some business to supplement their income, Forty-One Years in the Public Service—the Evening Telegram.

Methodist Educational Report.

A copy of the "Report of Public Schools under Methodist Boards" for the year ending Dec. 31st, 1919, is to hand. In it the Telegram finds many facts and figures of interest. Three hundred and eighty five (385) schools, an increase of 7 over the year previous, were in operation; 391 teachers—an increase of 7—were engaged; 15,890 pupils—an increase of 79—attended school. The amount of fees collected in the 385 schools was $10,502.15, and in both departments of the College, $5,458.31, or a total of $15,960.46, showing a decrease of $666.35. In other words, the College, with 551 pupils, pays fees amounting to $5,458, and all the other schools, with 15,890 pupils, pay $10,502 a year. In other words, the pupils of the College contribute, on an average, $10.50 per year each, and the 15,890 other pupils contribute 66 cents per year each. The total number of passes in the C. H. E. Examinations was 724 out of 1,770, or 40.9% of the whole.

"The cost per pupil to the Government has been increasing somewhat rapidly," says the Report, "and last year was $9.41 as against $7.62 in the previous year—an advance of $1.79. In 1913 it was $6.11 per pupil." A total of $133,328.21 was paid in teachers' salaries, an increase of $29,677.00 over the year previous. For first grade teachers, male, the highest salary is $1,395; the lowest, $477 and the average $751—or $26, $14 and $9 per week respectively. That is male teachers, first grade. The weekly salaries of first grade female teachers are: Highest, $15; lowest, $5 and average $8. Then there is a second grade. The weekly salaries of Third Grade teachers are: Highest, male, $7; female, $8; Lowest, male, $5; female, $3; Average, male $5; female, $5. That means that the average salary of the three grades of teachers, (and there are three sub-grades for each grade) is about $400. To be even more explicit, the teachers' average yearly salary in Newfoundland is $400—or $7 a week. And flour is $17.25 a barrel and sugar 25 cents a pound. In 1919, 67 teachers retired, mostly permanently; in 1918, 74 retired—141 teachers in 2 years. And new recruits are not arriving in numbers sufficient to make good the loss.

Beaumont-Hamel Appeal.

"LEST WE FORGET."

To The People of Newfoundland:
The Great War has been over some 16 months, Peace has been signed, but the ravages of war still remain, and our work is not finished. No doubt you have all lately read in the newspapers the vivid account of the field of Beaumont Hamel, the scene of the heroism of our Newfoundland Regiment, and of the greatest self-sacrifice of the flower of the youth of this Dominion. This land in France, this last resting-place of so many gallant sons of Newfoundland was to be taken over for agriculture, but was saved this desecration by being secured for $10,000.

We are all now given the great privilege of making good this purchase, and of honouring our dead by unitedly contributing to defray this expense. Our boys lie there and we cannot fall them. As Rupert Brooke says:—
There's none of these so lonely and poor of old,
But dying, has made us rarer gifts than gold.
There laid the world away; poured out the red
Sweet wine of youth; gave up the years to be
Of work and joy, and that unhopd serene
That men call age; and those who would have been,
Their sons, they gave, their immortality."

We can never forget that day, four years ago, when the blow fell, and we heard that on July 1st the Newfoundland Battalion was practically wiped out at Beaumont Hamel, not ten escaping death or wounds. Impossible at that time to see to the burial of the dead, there they lay, and that is their present resting-place, and we are now asking to help to hold sacred this corner of Newfoundland in France.

Again I quote Rupert Brooke in his poem "The Soldier," who says:—
"If I should die, think only this of me
That there's some corner of a foreign field
That is for ever England."

We will substitute the word Newfoundland for England; we will shelter our sons who lie there and make this corner of a foreign field for ever Newfoundland.

We, the Ladies' Committee of the Great War Veterans' Association, are asking for dollar subscriptions, but all subscriptions of any amount are welcome; perhaps sometimes two or three of a family will unite in giving a dollar. We would like to receive all subscriptions not later than the first week in June, so that on the next Memorial Day, July 1st, we shall know that Newfoundland had not forgotten her sons who fell that day, that she has gathered them into her arms, and that their resting-place is hers forever.

Yours faithfully,
ADELINE E. BROWNING,
Chairman.

"Harmony" on "Caution."

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—A writer in yesterday's Telegram, signing himself "Caution," and dealing with the demand of the Longshoremen and others for increases in wages, states "the time has now arrived when it is much cheaper to ship fish from the outports than from St. John's." This is intended to frighten the Longshoremen from pressing their reasonable demands and should not be taken too seriously.

It is a fact that on two or three occasions within the past eighteen months, Longshoremen of this city had to go to outports to load and unload vessels for which they were paid the Union rate of wages plus meals and their expenses to and from. Again, the past winter has demonstrated very forcibly that shipping fish from some outports is not as costly as "Caution" would have us believe. With cargoes of fish frozen up and vessels requiring to be cut out by steamers, which in the case of one firm means the payment of fifteen or twenty thousand dollars on one cargo alone, it demonstrates that shipping fish for some outport merchants is a rather costly affair.

Apart from all this, Mr. Editor, it must be admitted by right thinking people, that when we see the many donations given out by our merchants for churches, orphanages, hospitals, colleges, monuments, etc., and which total many times more than what the Longshoremen are asking, and on which we hear no complaint from the merchants for the giving, surely any request for wages that will bring greater happiness and comfort to hundreds of homes and brighten the lives of some thousands of men, women and children, should be given at least equal consideration. I venture the assertion that there is not a merchant on Water Street who would not be the happier for having thought less of himself and more of his workmen, and who would not be the richer in heart, mind and soul for his thoughtfulness. His income may be affected, but that may be questioned. Most, if not all, our merchants have investments other than the fishery, rope-walk, tanneries, biscuit factories, butter factories, boot and clothing factories, etc. Now the larger the wages paid to workmen the more money they spend and the greater the

Hon. H. J. Brownrigg

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—I do not want to pose as a supporter of the party of which Hon. H. J. Brownrigg is an Executive Member, but personally I hold a high opinion of him as a man who will stand for nothing that is unclean or shady in politics. That opinion is generally held by his supporters and non-supporters. Up to the time of his election he had no opportunity of proving that he possessed these qualities that go to make up a sterling man in public life, but nevertheless the opinion was that when occasion called for independent action in doing the square thing, H. J. Brownrigg would not be found wanting.

Within the past two or three weeks grave charges have been made against Mr. Brownrigg's colleague and leader, and also against Hon. M. P. Gibbs, a member of the Upper House, with promise of being its leader. These charges have been made by Mr. Woodford, who was elected to the Assembly at the recent elections, and have been made under oath. Mr. Brownrigg must know by his connection with the Premier, whether the charges are true or not. If he knows them to be true, the only decent course for him to take is to resign from the party immediately. If he knows the charges to be false he should immediately insist upon his leader proving his innocence before the country. No good is being done by silence. Hon. Mr. Squires stands to-day in an unenviable position. The entire country awaits with the greatest interest his answer to the charge. People are in earnest, more so than ever they have been in my experience, and no shuffling will be permitted to pull the wool over the eyes of the electorate. Public spirit is not dead in this country, and it is indeed refreshing to find that the people of both sides of politics want a cleaning up of any trickery that may exist in public life to-day.

I therefore respectfully ask Hon. Mr. Brownrigg to insist upon his leader, Hon. Mr. Squires, to give the facts of the case publicity immediately. If Mr. Brownrigg refuses to do this he must, of course, only expect to be classed with those politicians who are already known to us as pawns. I await his answer.

Yours truly,

SINCERITY.

Poultry Association Meeting.

The Poultry Association met last night in the Board of Trade Building with Mr. H. W. LeMessurier, C.M.G., president, in the chair. The usual routine business was gone through, after which arrangements were made to advertise the sale of hatching eggs in order to distribute pure-bred fowl all over the Dominion. Last spring this Association distributed nearly 1,000 eggs by this means, and besides a very large number was sold and distributed to the individual members on their own account. The price will be twenty cents an egg, and Secretary Calver will have charge of the sales. The Association was pleased to hear of the progress being made by the Bell Island Poultry Association, who are ready to send in a big exhibit to this year's show. Good news has also been received from Grand Falls where some very hatches are being carefully looked after, as Grand Falls is anxious to gain last year's trophy. The egg-eating contest of the Government College at Truro is making great interest to the members of the Association, who note that the Rosecomb Rhode Island Reds have laid the largest number of eggs to date amongst the thirty pens entered. The Association is writing Professor Cumming to send them full details, feed used, etc., so that Newfoundland poultrymen can profit by their example. The demand for good poultry and fresh eggs is increasing, and a larger number are becoming interested in this fascinating and profitable industry.

Thankful to Placentia People.

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space through the columns of your paper to sincerely thank the true kindness of the people of Placentia in presenting me with an address and cheque in appreciation of my services on the soldiers' memorial.

My connection with the monument was merely in fulfilling my duty and the trust placed in me, and in no way merited the generosity extended me. I am therefore all the more grateful. At all times during my stay in Placentia I experienced the benefit of the kindness and goodfellowship of the people, who were only too willing to aid and entertain me in every way; and I am desirous to express openly my sincere appreciation.

Again thanking the Memorial Committee, the Star of the Sea Society and all who were so kind to me in Placentia, I remain,

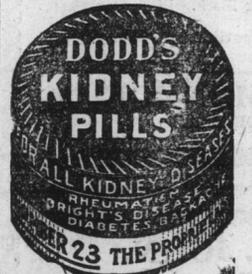

Yours sincerely,

Lectured to Llewellyn Club.

Last evening, at Canon Wood Hall, Llewellyn Club was lectured to by Rev. Canon Smart. Rev. Dr. Jones presided and a large gathering attended. In a very interesting manner Rev. Canon Smart related his experiences on the trip and described many of the places visited and persons met with. The lecture was illustrated with excellent pictures, including those of His Lordship Bishop White, Rev. Canon Bolt, Bishop White, of the American Church, Bishop Lloyd, the T. Eaton Co.'s works at Toronto, and the Memorial Church, scenes at Lake Ontario, the Church Mission House at New York, the Board of Missions in session, the Cathedral at Washington, the Peace Cross at Mt. Baldwin, the Missions House at Washington, National Girls' and Boys' Schools, the White House, the Capitol and many others. He also described his meeting with Rev. Mr. Dawe, of Hamilton, Ont., a son of Capt. Hy. Dawe of Bay Roberts, and with Mr. Shears, formerly of this city, but now residing near Washington. The former is held in the highest esteem by all denominations in Hamilton and is generally known as Father Dawe. Mr. Shears, who is eighty years of age, was working in his garden when located by Rev. Canon Smart. The lecture, which was greatly enjoyed, was interspersed with hymns, Mr. J. Lawrence playing the cornet accompaniment. The lantern was operated by Rev. Mr. Moulton. At the close a hearty vote of thanks was moved by Rev. Dr. Jones and heartily accorded Rev. Canon Smart.

May Secure "Old Fat" Trips.

A message to Bowring Bros. from Capt. Kean last night, said that his crew killed 1500 old harps and bedlamers last week, and intimated that if a couple of fine days offered, prospects were good for getting a load. The Viking reported having taken 50 bedlamers yesterday. Her position was 50 miles E. by N. of the Funks. As stated in Capt. Kean's message, the opinion of the sealing captains in port is that there is a splendid chance of the Viking and Terra Nova picking up good trips of "old fat."
