WOMEN WHO RESPECT THEIR HUSBAND'S EARNINGS.

A Question Which Every Woman Should Ask Herself at the End of the Week is: "How Have I Spent My Husband's Earnings."

(By Sally Chamberlain.)

Findings in the divorce court to the contrary notwithstanding, there are thousands of men who love their wives in the good old-fashioned way and live up to their marriage vow. "With all my worldly goods I thee endow."

These are the men who at the end of the week or the end of the month turn over to the wives in whom they have absolute faith all of their earnings, save the small amount necessary for their personal expenses. And because there are so many of these men they are hopelessly commonplace and their pictures do not find their way into print along with figures in the divorce court!

Two Irish women, thrifty looking and comfortably dressed, were discussing a death in the neighborhood.

"Sure, O'Shaughnessy was a fine man. O'd always thought O'd a fine man myself, but when Mrs. O'Shaughnessy told me how her man gave her all his wages but tin cents a week, I took off my hat to her."

The following is the experience of a man who makes fifty dollars a week, and is paying for a suburban home on the installment plan. He was standing in a tobacco shop with a friend. Both were admiring an old pipe rack at $1.75. Said Jones:

"I'd like to have that, but—Oh, well, I guess I can get along without it till we have the house paid for, any how."

The next day he came down to the office and remarked to his fellow-worker with grim humor:

"I wish I'd bought the pipe rack. When I got home last night I found my wife had been to a bargain sale and bought me three seventy-five-cent neckties in colors I detest and a silver blotting pad for my desk. Can you beat it?"

This is a question we ought to ask ourselves at the end of each week.

"How have I spent my husband's earnings?"

We fall into a way of thinking that they are our earnings, particularly if we have not worked for our living but have stepped from a sheltered home life into the responsibilities of wifehood. And only the woman who has worked down town side by side with men knows how easy it is to spend a dollar here and there rather than to turn the week's earnings into the household fund intact.

On the other hand, it takes a goodly amount of courage to wear an overcoat that has turned green in the seams because your wife needs a new frock to wear to the women's club meetings and a certain curly-headed boy scuffs out a pair of shoes every month.

There has never been a time when it was so easy to waste money. The conveniences placed at the wife's disposal—the telephone, the grocery boy who calls for orders, the postal carrier addressed to grocer, butcher and baker—all these cunningly invite the husband of the household funds to leisurely and incidentally extravagant methods of marketing.

That is particularly true in large cities, where the dealer does not consider steady customers the secret of his prosperity, but who feels that there is safety in numbers or population, for whenever a dissatisfied customer withdraws patronage a less exacting one appears on the commercial horizon.

The woman who orders by telephone, postal or the order boy who calls at her kitchen door wastes about ten per cent. of the money she pays out. This goes principally into the second cuts of meat when she had ordered a first; into high-priced canned goods when if she were at the store, she would see other grades well suited to her needs at a more reasonable figure.

She should bear in mind that the prime motive of a salesman is to induce each customer to buy just a little more or a trifle higher priced goods than she intended to when she started out.

Now if she telephones that she wants a can of peas, a pound of prunes and a package of macaroni without asking about prices or whether there is a special sale on in these goods she is liable to get French peas instead of homegrown, at double the price; the

WAS THE MAN RIGHT?

Out in Washington State, a discussion started recently which has spread to nearly all the West. It began in a breach of promise suit brought by a young woman against the mayor of a Washington city, and involves a very peculiar question. The man does not deny that he is in love with the woman and that he had intended to marry her, but he discovered that she was a victim of consumption and thought it his duty to humanity to call the engagement off. It is a small point in the affair that the girl found a jury which agreed with her in thinking that the man's reason was no reason at all and gave her a verdict for $5,000.

What the people of the West are trying to figure out is this: Did the man do right? He claims that not only did he have the right to refuse to marry the consumptive girl, but that it was his duty. He dared to face the situation with calmness and argue it out in all its details. Love would have made most men incapable of thought. This man could think, and it brought him to his life's tragedy. His thoughts led straight to the conclusion that it would be a sin against humanity to marry the girl and a wrong that would carry a degree of death to any offspring that might result from the union.

It must be said that public opinion has not yet supported the man to any extent. He has adherents, it is true, but they are much fewer than critics. The latter are unanimous in declaring that he should have sacrificed his thoughts of duty to those whom he did not know, had never seen, and never would see, to give comfort and cheer to the one he loved through the few remaining months or years of her life. But how is one to know that such a course would be the right one. On what precedent is the decision to be made? Would the man be justified in exposing himself to the danger of contagion, with the further peril of transmitting it to others? Here is a condition that must appeal with particular force to those who are in the habit of solving other people's problems. What does the reader think about it?

Thirty-Eight Charges of Wrong-Doing Brought Against the Rev. Hill.

The Rev. John Wesley Hill, formerly pastor of the Fowler Methodist Episcopal church of Minneapolis city, Minn., and now stationed at St. James church, Brooklyn, N. Y., has been charged with a series of offenses that cover all the evils in the calendar, including immorality, lying, perjury, dishonesty, plagiarism and corrupt administration.

Dr. Hill had a church at Harrisburg, Pa., before going to Brooklyn, and while there he gained considerable unenviable notoriety.

The charges have been preferred by the Rev. S. C. Swallow, a prominent Pennsylvania prohibitionist.

There are 38 separate specifications of wrongdoing, written by William C. Miller. It is charged that he has deceived the members of his own congregation by luring them into purchasing large quantities of worthless mining stock, and he is also credited with collecting money for advertising that was never done.

Cheated Through Canadian Mails. Doing business under the name of Elliott & Co., E. R. Carroll, of Chicago, was arrested in Guelph, Ont., on the charge of using the mails for fraudulent purposes. He advertised club rates for leading magazines at ridiculous prices. The mail was seized by the police and his arrest followed.

causing the advertisements in the morning papers and some samples of dress goods.

The wife hurried to the kitchen to prepare her husband's belated breakfast, and came back looking a trifle shamed and flushed.

"What do you think? I forgot all about the gas in the oven," she said to her sister-in-law, and it has been burning ever since we took out the toast at 8 o'clock."

Her husband sipped at his coffee, then remarked quietly:

"I guess I won't go to the office of the gas company. I don't think it is the meter that needs overhauling."

These are some of the little household neglects that in the course of a year make the living expenses formidable. It is not the pretty gown that you buy that discourages your husband. The average man likes to see his wife well dressed—a credit to him in appearance, in bearing. But it is the thoughtless waste in little things that do not show or make for actual comfort in the home that really discourages the man who cheerfully turns over his earnings to his family. It is little pleasure to him to realize that he has sworn off from smoking for six months because he wants to build a new porch next spring, only to hear you wall because the dressmaker overcharged you on your findings, when he knows quite well that if you had taken the pains to select your linings, trimmings, etc., you would have saved at the rate of that good box of cigars which he has been denying himself for weeks.

THE OBJECT OF THE LORD'S DAY ALLIANCE.

They are Endeavoring to Bring About a United Action to Preserve the Sabbath for the Purposes for Which God Made It.

Contributed.

When the Great Teacher said, "The Sabbath was made for man," he meant that it was made for universal man, for man of every age, and nation and clime and color. And, he meant more than that; he meant that it was made for the whole man; for man's physical, mental, moral and spiritual nature.

God has never made anything for man, which is not needed for his welfare, and man cannot misuse anything which God has made for him without injury to himself. The great duty, therefore, is for man to fall in with the Divine intent and use the Sabbath for the purposes for which God gave it to him.

There are dangers of mistake in this matter. The old Puritan Sabbath was a mistake. It is not at all wonderful that in an age when fiddling and dancing and other gaieties were resumed at the church doors as soon as the Sabbath service was ended, there was a reaction to a too rigorous extreme. But, the danger at the present time is in the opposite direction, in using the Sabbath in ways which altogether overlook its highest and most important designs. The danger connected with the Puritan Sabbath was that of leading people to believe that the service of God was one of "shall nots" and "shalls," and therefore repressive and burdensome. But, the danger arising from the laxity of the present time is even greater. One thing which the Puritan Sabbath did was to develop a conscience in men. There are no pages of British history more inspiring than those which speak of the struggles and triumphs of right in the times of the Puritans, and there are none to whom we are more indebted for our present liberty of person, and speech and worship than the Puritans.

But, the tendency of the present laxity of opinion and practice respecting Sabbath observance is to break down the conscience and to make men indifferent to both Divine and human law. And, when there is a breaking down of conscience in one particular, there is generally a breaking down of conscience in other particulars. And when the conscience of an individual or of a people is broken down, then, inclinatio descensus Averni.

On the one hand there is the danger of making the Sabbath a day of amusement, frivolity and entertainment, with no regard to the serious aspects of life. On the other hand, there is the danger of making it oppressive to the laboring classes. Companies and corporations are intended to make money. They must pay dividends to investors. And, those who conduct them, as well as those otherwise interested in them, sometimes lose sight of their individual responsibility. "Corporations have no souls." Therefore, the grinding wheels must be kept busy during the entire seven days.

Such continuous labor makes men mere machines, discontented with their lot and enemies of God and man.

Lovers of their fellowmen in different lands, recognizing the greatness of these dangers, have felt the necessity of united action to preserve the Sabbath for the purposes for which God made it. This is the object of the Lord's Day Alliance. The prominent instrument which it employs is moral suasion. It has two agents who journey from ocean to ocean, seeking by public meetings and private interviews to create and strengthen a correct and vigorous sentiment upon the subject of the Sabbath.

In a number of instances laboring men have entreated these agents to endeavor to bring to bear upon their employers some influence which would enable the employees to enjoy a free Sabbath. In some cases the result of an interview has led to the desired results. But there are some employers who are not amenable to moral suasion. The manager of an important industry in the Province is reported as saying, "No matter what anybody thinks, nothing short of persistent profit-consuming imposition of fines will induce him to discontinue Sabbath labor which he acknowledges to be unnecessary upon that day. Instances such as this show the necessity of law. At present our Sabbath laws are unsatisfactory in their working. Occasions have arisen respecting the jurisdictions of the Dominion government and the governments of the provinces in respect to such legislation. These questions, however, are now pretty well thrashed out, by the Supreme court of the Dominion and the Privy Council, and the Dominion government has promised at its next session to introduce a bill which will meet its own obligations in this matter. When this is done the way will be opened to the provincial legislatures to bring their laws into harmony therewith. However, the Alliance does not rely chiefly upon law for the furtherance of its objects, but, upon the awakening and stimulating of a correct and active Christian conscience upon the subject of the Sabbath. And, it is pleasing to observe that the leaders, clerical and lay, Protestant and Roman Catholic, of the various churches of the Dominion are represented among the officials and active workers of the Alliance and are in hearty accord with its methods and objects.

Religious Intolerance. Australian Millionaire Objected to His Son Going to Catholic Church.

The fact that he has occasionally visited the Roman Catholic church may cause Sydney Jacob Towne, aged 21, of Vancouver to lose an allowance of $6,000 a year which runs until he is 25 and a legacy of $12,000, payable when he attains that age. The young man is a staunch member of the Church of England and only visited the Catholic church with friends. He is one of the children of the Australian millionaire who left such of his money to charities. Not long before his death one of his daughters turned Catholic and this so hurt the old gentleman, who was a stiff Protestant, that he cut her out of his will and inserted a clause disinheritting any of his children who should depart from the Protestant faith.

She also launched 27 ships of war, aggregating 127,175 tons. One, the Caronia, displaced 20,000 tons; and two others, the Victorian and Virginia 14,000 tons, are the largest turbine ships afloat.

The United States last year launched 227 merchant vessels, with an aggregate tonnage of 238,518 tons, and 19 war vessels, aggregating 70,855 tons. France last year produced 76 ships, aggregating 123,600 tons, and Italy 16 ships aggregating 55,662 tons.

Is a Sow a Hog? Whether a sow is a hog is a question that raised great disturbance in court at Toronto, Ont. The action was brought by A. McPhail against the Petrie Manufacturing company of Hamilton. McPhail's effects were sold by the defendant company under a chattel mortgage, and McPhail claimed certain exemptions, such as a cow, a number of sheep and a hog. The sow in question had been sold for $24, and McPhail sued for this amount on the ground that the sow, being a hog, was exempt. Many authorities were quoted in favor of McPhail's contention, but the court finally ordered the case to stand as it was.

OUR WEEKLY SERMON. "CONDITIONS OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE."

By Rev. E. Underwood, Rector of St. James' Parish, Bridgetown.

I Thess. 3: 2—"That no man should be troubled by these afflictions, for you yourselves know that we are appointed thereto."

Just now, in the daily evening second lesson we are following the life of St. Paul in his effort to live to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ.

This evening's lesson brings him to Thessalonica Berea and Athens. At Thessalonica after preaching and converting some, he meets with opposition amounting to persecution, which causes the brethren to send him away by night unto Berea, where the same things are repeated. Now, it is to these and such like persecutions that St. Paul refers in the words of our text, but he is not dismayed or daunted, for he had been shown the conditions of the Christian life—viz., "That through many tribulations we must enter the kingdom," and so he writes to the Thessalonian church "that no man should be moved by these afflictions; for they all knew the appointment thereto."

Possibly one of the very hardest things in life to do, is to keep the golden mean between two extremes.

And we are further told by some that, "the intelligent pursuit of his own happiness is the great work of man's life; and that it is a grand argument for Christianity that it opens the way of happiness to man."

And all this is true up to a certain point. But standing alone and unqualified it is one-sided and false, and has lured many a soul on to shipwreck.

It is true to say that "man was made for happiness." "God means him to be happy—very happy," but it is only in doing the will of God and seeking His glory that man's happiness is to be found. And with regard to this, inasmuch as our nature is so permeated with sin, and the kingdom of evil and darkness is in active opposition, the doing of the will of God and seeking His glory will be met with set with pits and ambushes, which all mean a continual warfare—here active fighting, there careful patrol—in a word, eternal vigilance. One of the greatest mistakes in buying stock is the buying of cheap or second class Trees, because you can get them for $20.00 a hundred, while we can sell you first class stock from the E. D. in Christ Jesus will bring happiness in this life; it will also bring cares, burdens, sorrows—

"If I find Him, if I follow, What my portion here? Many a sorrow, many a labor, Many a tear."

And the apostle writes "that no man should be moved by these afflictions; for yourselves know that we are appointed thereto."

But the question here arises. How do we know that the man who would live godly in Christ Jesus is appointed to afflictions?

It is a remarkable thing that, anxious as our Lord was to make the kingdoms of this world the kingdoms of our God and His Christ, He never once held up a life of happiness as the inducement.

"If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow Me."

"He that loveth father or mother more than Me is not worthy of Me; and he that loveth son or daughter more than Me is not worthy of Me."

"In the world ye shall have tribulation."

"The disciple is not above his Master; if they have persecuted Me they will also persecute you."

These and such like sayings are the inducements held out by Jesus Christ to all who would be His disciples and they give us the keynote of the Christian conditions of life, not only for the early days when Saints and Martyrs resisted even unto blood, but also for these pacific days when a man's chief foes are to be found in the household of his own heart and life.

Here another thought arises. The words of our text like many others in Holy Writ, seem strangely exaggerated

But St. Paul says, "No man should be moved by it, i. e., leave the righteous path, for if he has learned the spirit of Christ, he knows that he is appointed thereto, and these words in their inward meaning are just as true as they were when the apostles wrote. As one has so fitly said: "The first fruit of the advent of the Saviour to the world, and to a soul, is to deepen the sorrow of life and to increase the pressure of its burden. It was no part of Christ's counsel to make a fool's paradise of the world. He came to deepen its experience in every way, its experience of sin, of sorrow, of shame, of anguish, as well as its experience of grace, mercy and redeeming love. He came to make it a more solemn thing to live, by unveiling life's issues; a more awful thing to sin by unveiling God's holiness; a more hopeful and a more blessed thing to suffer by declaring "The sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us."

But the harvest is beyond the pain; and that it may be rich, the tillage is deep and severe. But beneath, working up through the trials and afflictions, is a well-spring of pure and heavenly joy, of which no pagan mind had vision—"a peace that passeth human understanding, a joy unspeakable and full of glory." Suffering and joy in Christ Jesus as yoked together in blessing, and the world's chief sufferers are the world's chief blessed ones, the blessed of life, the blessed of eternity.

And here comes a most stimulating and energizing thought. If the law for the disciple of Christ is "through many tribulations ye shall inherit the kingdom," if the symbol of the new life be the cross, we recall to mind

THE IMPORTANCE OF AN AMPLE ICE SUPPLY AT CREAMERIES.
(BY MR. J. A. RUDDECK, Canadian Dairy Commissioner.)
The season is now at hand when the creameries must lay in a stock of ice for use next summer. The reports of Mr. C. E. Mortureux, Mr. F. A. Knowlton, and other members of the Dairy Commissioner's staff, show that many creameries have in the past been out of ice before the season is finished.

FEEDING FACTS
In ordinary feeding the steer consumes about 3/4 of its ordinary feed; the balance is undigested or wasted.
This undigested balance can be made to give 3/4 to 1 lb. extra gain per day, and at a profit, by adding the "salt, pepper, and gravy" to its food to make it "tasty."

tem at its best. But the success of a few persons in retailing large numbers of newly-hatched chickens, and in hatching eggs supplied them by neighbors, and returning them as chickens at a fixed fee, while worth re-considering as a fact of interest in the poultry world, and even worthy of imitation in some cases, is a risky trade for the amateur to embark in.

THE BITING HABIT.
There is no worse habit a horse can have than biting, and it is curious to notice the pains which some people seem to take in teaching the vice. There are people who are always pampering and petting their horses, rubbing their noses and giving them sugar. There is nothing more foolish than this discriminate petting.

Another way in which biting is taught is the "matton-fisted" farm hand jerking at the bridle when he wants to back a horse that has perhaps a heavy load on. Backing a heavy load is always to be avoided when possible, for it involves a considerable strain upon the horse's neck and quarters. Yet we frequently see it done when it might have been avoided by the exercise of a little ordinary intelligence.

MONEY IN GOOD MILK.
I believe, says John Gould, of Ohio, that an open door to great profit confronts the farmer who will, for whatever purpose, make a milk as nearly as possible, the demand of "certified" milk as possible. There is nothing impossible in this. Certified milk is simply the name given to milk that is clean with no dirt in it.

POULTRY DOTS.
Illness is the mother of lice. Sell some eggs and put the money in pure bred fowls. The second crop of clover hay is best for poultry feeding. Plenty of range for the turkeys always makes hardy stock.

A Jamaican Lady Speaks Highly of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.
Mrs. Michael Hart, wife of the superintendent of Carlisle Island, says that she has for some years used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs, croup and whooping cough and has found it very beneficial. She has implicit confidence in it and would not be without a bottle of it in her home.

PRESERVING OUR GAME.

The necessity of a general and united effort to preserve the valuable game which is to be found in our woodlands and along our shores must be very obvious to all reasonable persons. Statutes and regulations look well enough on the pages of our law books...

It is stated on the highest authority that the destruction of a spawning lobster during the close season, means the destruction of millions of eggs, which in the course of a few years would add immensely to the number of these valuable crustaceans in our coast waters.

The Local Markets. Bridgetown, January 31. Business men generally are complaining at the slackness of trade. They say that too little snow at this season is as bad as too much snow and that people are being kept at home on account of the unpleasant traveling. The warm weather, though, in bringing in butter and eggs freely, in consequence, although there has been no change in prices of butter the market is a little easier. Eggs are still quoted at 20 cents, but in some cases only 18 cents is being offered.

Butter, 20c to 22c. Eggs, 20c. Cheese, wholesale, 13 1/2c. Cheese, retail, 14c. Potatoes, per bushel, 45c. Turnips, per bushel, 25c. Carrots, per bushel, 45c. Parsnips, per bushel, 60c. Pork, per carcass, per pound, 7 1/2c. Beef, 6c. Mutton, 6c. Cows, 5c. Chickens, 12c. Turkeys, 20c. Geese, 18c.

The market in Halifax is still on the slack side and the general tendency, except in cheese, is weaker. There is more fresh butter on the market than usual at this time of year, owing to the open weather and the supply of new laid eggs is larger than usual for the same reason. Neither are in very heavy supply however, and prices here have remained firmer than in Montreal. Lined eggs are still quoted at 21 cents here, and fresh at 24 cents. In Montreal lined are quoted at 17 cents and Trade Bulletin says they will drop to 15 cents today, but this is doubted. Locally, the butter market is dull and in sympathy with the general market. Good rolls are quoted at 23 cents, creamery at 25 and prints at 27, small tubs 25 to 26, and there is more fresh creamery on the market this week. The export market is very dull, and exporters are now offering their stocks to some extent on the Montreal market.

From Far-off Alaska. W. D. Baler, of Nome, Alaska, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Baler, at Outram. He has been at home now almost three weeks and expects to remain until about the first of May. In Nome he is engaged in iron work and in mining, and his extensive business interests are at present in charge of his partner, a Mr. Bonnell, of Turro. Mr. Baler was in town yesterday and told of some of his experience in the frozen north. When he spoke of his partner as being a Turro boy one of his listeners remarked: "A Blue nose, eh? You find them everywhere. Yes, and I want to tell you this, that not only will you find them everywhere, but they also know how to get on everywhere." He then went on to say that in Nome there are many cases of destitution. During the past two years he had fed one or more hungry persons every day, and his expenses from this source alone averaged about a dollar a day. Out of all these hundreds, and they embraced practically every nationality under the sun, not one Nova Scotian had ever asked for a bite to eat. He had always found that a Nova Scotian could get along anywhere and could be depended upon to make a living. Mr. Baler was in Nome during the winter of 1900 when a hurricane had swept the peninsula, and said that during the winter cost was $125 a ton; hay, $200; beef from 50 cents to $1.50 per pound, and other necessities proportionately high.

BREAKING THE ICE

By Sarah Lisco

"If you please, sir," the butler's voice was hesitating. "I please," said Curtis amiably. "What is it?" "A young woman, she says that she is expected."

"Mr. Lance said nothing in his letter to me," declared Curtis, glancing over the note. "Nor to me," declared the butler, "but she declares that she is expected and that she is going to stay."

"That's all right," conceded Curtis. "I shall not mind company." "But this is a young woman," suggested the butler, with an accent on the "young." "I'm sure, sir, that Mr. Lance never invited her, knowing that you were to be here, sir."

"Not at all, sir," agreed the butler, "but you see, sir, the lady declares that you have no business to be here, sir. In short, she wants us to turn you out."

THE ICE

"I hope so, too," he echoed. "I should hate to have to get into a row with the butler. I am invited to stay until Jack's back, I am going to." "Not while I remain here," she asserted. "Mrs. Lance promised that I should have the house to myself."

"I suppose you have her letter?" For a moment the girl searched her pocketbook. "I am afraid I have not," she said slowly. "But all the same there is no question about the matter. This is Pleasantville and the home of John Lance?"

"Both," he admitted. "Then it is all right," she said confidently. "I am in the right place. You appear to have made a mistake." "Not in the least," he insisted. "I am all right. It is you who are at sea."

She crossed to the bell and rang it. The butler appeared with a promise that suggested that he had been in waiting outside the door. "This man is an impostor of some sort," she said coldly. "Remove him." The butler looked hopefully at him. "The master said Mr. Curtis was to stay until his return," he said helplessly. The girl turned toward Curtis. "I suppose it will be useless to appeal to your honor?" she said with a pathetic little gesture.

CATARRH

The true Cause and the true Cure.

How and why "Fruit-a-Lives" completely eradicates this disease from the system. Catarrh means inflammation. Ordinary catarrh is inflammation of the nose cavity opening into the throat. This cavity receives all the air going to and from the lungs.

Because indigestion means an irritated stomach. This irritates the mucous membrane of the throat and nose. Beiching gas keeps up the inflammation. The blood is impure and badly nourished. And nine times in ten, there is constipation and poor skin action.

The only way to cure Catarrh is to cure the cause of catarrh. Digestion must be improved - inflammation in stomach soothed - blood purified - and the liver strengthened so it will give up enough bile to make the bowels move regularly every day.

Fruit-a-Lives

will always cure Catarrh of the throat and nose because these marvelous fruit tablets cure indigestion - sweeten the stomach - and eradicate all impurities from the blood by its stimulating and invigorating action on liver, bowels, kidneys and skin.

Leave sprays, atomizers, powders and snuffs alone. Take "Fruit-a-Lives" regularly - be careful of your diet - and catarrh will soon be a thing of the past. One 50c. box of "Fruit-a-Lives" will prove how effectively these marvelous fruit tablets relieve catarrh - and will do you so much good that you will gladly continue the treatment until cured.

BEAR RIVER.
(Telephone.)
Miss Gertie Alcorn returned from Boston Wednesday.
Messrs. Len and Roy Morgan left Saturday for Boston.
Wm. Nichols, Yarmouth, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Clarke, Wednesday.
Mrs. Phinney and son Frank, of Boston, Mass., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Phinney.
Edward Wentzel arrived last week from New London, Conn. He had sailed in the schooner Severn from this port.
Mrs. J. Goldsmith, Bridgetown, was in town Saturday, the guest of Mrs. P. Donohue, returning to her home Monday.
Miss Ida Wade, who has been the guest of Mrs. F. A. Chalmers the past few days, returned to her home in Granville Saturday.
P. H. Reed, who has been quite ill with quinsy in St. John, was a passenger to this port per S. S. Bear River on Friday last.
Our esteemed townsman, William Reed, is probably the eldest man in Bear River. He completed his 94th year on Monday this week. He is a wonderfully active man for his age, being able to saw his own fire wood, and more remarkable still to file his buckaw. We think this is a record hard to beat.

While returning from service in the Advent church, Sunday morning, John Moore accidentally slipped, fell and rolled down the embankment near Wm. McFadden's. In the fall he struck his head making rather a bad cut in the back of it. Dr. Lovell chanced to be driving by about the time the accident happened and promptly attended the injured man. He was taken to Mr. McFadden's. In the afternoon he was brought home in a carriage. Wonderful to tell he was able to saw some wood Monday, and is likely to be congratulated him on escaping with such slight injury.

DEEP BROOK.
Some of the members of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 95, drove to Centreville, Digby Co., Monday afternoon for the purpose of organizing a lodge in that place, which, we understand, will be the first lodge of the Orange order in Digby county. Ernest Purdy being County Master of the County Lodge of Annapolis, will install the officers of the new lodge.
The funeral of Miss Nellie Toxdale took place Sunday afternoon from the home of her mother. This was an unusually sad occurrence, it being the fifth death in the family in three years. First a daughter about 13 years of age, then an infant son, next the father and one son lost at sea, and now the remaining daughter. Four sons survive to comfort their widowed mother, three of which are still of tender years.

J. Gilchrist was here last week reciting orders for the Magnet cream separators.
Robt. Spurr went to Truro on Monday to attend the Farmers' Association.
James G. Reeves, of Dartmouth, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. J. R. Vroom.
R. J. Adams, of R. J. Adams & Co., St. John, carriage hardware, stopped off here last week a few days, reciting orders here and in surrounding villages.
W. A. Wilson, varnish manufacturer, of Montreal, also favored us with a call.
Miss Sadie Vanbuskirk, of Bloomfield, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Herbert S. Vroom.

GRANVILLE CENTRE.
The Annapolis County Farmers' Association held a meeting in the new hall Tuesday evening, Jan. 23rd. Mr. J. W. Wade, chairman. Mr. S. V. Sanford, represented the King's Mutual Insurance Company, and explained the workings of the company to the meeting. Mr. G. M. Moore, of Middleton, agent for above company, was on hand to do business. A large number of farmers were present. Mr. W. H. Woodworth, of Newrick, gave an address on cultivation, fertilization and spraying of orchards. He also spoke on the importance of selecting good seeds. He read with him charts from which he explained the bacterial relation for disease and commercial value of food. Mr. Woodworth is an earnest and interesting speaker and his address was appreciated by all. A vote of thanks was tendered the speakers, and all expressed the opinion that such meetings held more often would be of great benefit to the farmers.
The W. M. A. S. intend holding a public missionary meeting in Upper Granville Hall, Sunday evening, Feb. 4th, commencing at 7.30. The program consists of addresses on missions, music, etc. A silver collection for H. M. will be taken.
John Palmer, of Tremont, Kings Co. was the guest of his brother, Edward Palmer, last week.

Services for Sunday, Feb. 4th, will be held in the Episcopal church at 10.30 a. m. In the Baptist church at 3 p. m.

The Scott Act Inspector.
To the Editor of the Monitor.
Sir,—In looking over the proceedings of the Municipal Council in the last Monitor, I notice our Scott Act Inspector has been at work during the last year. He reports a surplus of $254, with $322.45 uncollected, part of which he considers good assets. This is a very good showing as compared with former years and will help make up some of the former deficits. Mr. Hall has done so well it seems to me he had better remain in office another year as he seems to understand the business and would probably be a more efficient officer than a new one. I hope Mr. Nixon will be able to report as good if not better work than Mr. Hall. Thanking you for a little space in your valuable paper, I am,
Yours, etc.,
ELIAS B. POSTER.

Our Weekly Sermon.
that the God from whom the law issues, Himself won the kingdom through tribulations, and consecrated the cross as its emblem by a bitter death thereon. And no good soldier murmurs if his captain but leads through the deadly perils, he makes no reckoning of toils and dangers, wounds and death, if his leader but fights by his side. Be, then, the ordinance what it may, He who ordained it for us has already shared it with us.
This brings us to a reason for this appointment.
We might give many subsidiary reasons but the chief suffices.
The Author—the Captain of our salvation—made perfect through sufferings, even though He were a Son, Not that Jesus Christ was ever anything but perfect. But in His human nature He learned obedience by the things which He suffered. As man it was open for Him, as for you and me, at any time to rebel against the God laid down conditions. But perfection lay alone along the path of obedience—a path which involved much temptation, trial, self-sacrifice and suffering, but He learned obedience by the things that He suffered.
"I came to do Thy will, O God," and "Lo, I am content to do it." "It is finished." "Father into Thy hands I commend my spirit," and thus was concluded the sacrifice of a life perfect through suffering for us men and for our salvation. And so they who are heirs to the grace of God, they are perfected through obedience to suffering affliction. This is the one condition of a lofty and fruitful fellowship with God.
Christ today, as of old, is seeking to gather round Him a company of friends who share by His inspiration His struggle against evil,—friends whose manly powers have been exercised in the longest and sternest of conflicts; who have proved that they hate evil as He hates it, and love good as He loves it, by being willing to resist the one and clasp the other even unto death.
The suffering which He ordains is precisely the fellowship of His sufferings. It is just what He has done that He would stir us to do; what He has known that He wills us to know; what He has become that He calls us to be. Perfect through suffering whereby the perfected may converse, commune, conspire with him through eternity. The fellowship of those who have fought and suffered to either for the same great end is the holiest fellowship known on earth, and by the ordinance of sorrow and affliction God would transplant it, to bear fruit of holier, loftier fellowship in the everlasting home of the redeemed on high.
The end of the ordinance—Suffering and perfect bliss. And this so far transcends mere happiness as sunlight transcends mere daylight. They who hunger and thirst after happiness have a maw which can never be filled. But they who lift the cross as their symbol of life, and bear it till God change it for a crown, find in bearing it a blessedness which is kindred with the blessedness of God.
And the end—"To you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, and to be glorified in His saints. This is the promise. Rest where the war-worn veteran can recall the glorious incidents of the battle, and can reap eternally the fruit of the victory which his courage and constancy under his great Captain won. Rest where the purified spirit, escaped from the furnace which consumed nothing but its dross, shall shine resplendent, a jewel in heaven's firmament forever. Rest where rest shall be untiring service, where the powers trained in the field of life's battles shall find hardy exercise, and where the life which on earth was appointed to sorrow and affliction shall bathe itself in the bliss and robe itself in the splendor of the new creation, whence sorrow and sighing shall be fled forever because there shall be no more sin.
