easily accessible, and we therefore carnot tell just what their attitude is in relation to the European war. But some of the German-American papers are endeavoring to justify the conduct of Germany and throw the whole of the war on Great Britain. One of them while acknowledging that Germany was the first to declare war, adds, "nevertheless she is not the aggressor. Germany has been the defendent ever since she claimed her place among the nations." Another remarks, "England has strained every effort to obtrude herself into this quarrel." The facts however, are against this charge. A perusal of the despatches of Earl Grey shows conclusively that the aim of the British Government had been to avoid war. It is well known that Mr. Churchill offered to mite with Germany in resting for a while from the building of War vessels, a proposal which Germany refused to entertain. HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 26th. 1913. "I can highly recommend "Fruit-atives" because they did me an awful lot of good and I cannot speak too highly about them. About four years ago, I commenced taking "Fruit-atives" for a general break-down and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollar's worth, but it was money well spent because they did all that you claim for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared Their action is so pleasant, compared with other laxatives, that I found only pleasure, as well as health, in taking them. They seemed to me to be particularly suited to women, on account of their mild and gentle action, and I trust that some other women may start taking "Fruit-a-tives" after reading my letter, and if they do, I am satisfied the results will be the same as in my own case".

The King of the Alphabet called for his men. By means of his heralds, Sir Pencil and Pen; "Now make me a name for the coun-

"Roxey" the Railroad Dog

"Roxey," the Long Island Railroad dog, familiarly known all over the line upon which he travelled for several years, reached his journey's end last month and died in a veterinary hospital. Kind friends, including the officers and employes of the railroad, liberally provided for the dog in his old age and buried him en railroad property. Roxey was a remarkable animal. He loved the "boys," and travelled night and day with them as mough it were a matter of duty. Those who knew and met him on the trains state that he gave the impression that he was a member of the road's staff on patrol duty, going and com-ing through the trains continuously, seldom noticing a stranger, always intent upon minding his own business, whatever that may have been from his point of view.

THE FOE OF GERMS.

Cobacco Gets Away With More Than Than Half the Microbe

While it has long been known that tobacco smoke is a valuable preventive against infection during the mic of a contagious disease, it is only recently that an analysis of smoke-laden air in an East-end dis-trict has been contrasted with equally dense air in which tobacco fumes were lacking. These analyses have shown that more than one half of the harmful germs had been destroyed by the tobacco smoke. This fact has unconsciously been the means of preventing large loss of life, as was noted in the recent cholera epidemic in Germany, when workers in cigar factories were found to be immune to cholera, and wherein the victims were mainly from the non-smokers of the city.

Experiments conducted in a cholera-stricken house, one floor of which was occupied with a cigar factory, led Professor Wencke, of the Imperial Institute of Berlin, to the conclusion that the cholera germs cannot endure tobacco smoke. It was found that saliva containing virulent germs was completely sterilized by five minutes' exposure to tobacco smoke. It was further discovered that, although the water used in the tobacco factory, both for drinking water and in moistening the cigars, was full of septic bacteria, not a cigarmaker d, and the cigars themselves were free of the deadly peril. Determining to put the issue to a drastle test, a few tobacco leaves were noistened with water, a glass tumblerful of which contained over a million active germs, whereupon it was found that within twenty-four hours every one of the bacilli was

It has been a matter of common knowledge that inflammations of the mouth are fended off by the use of tobacco, and that unhealthy conditions of the mouth can never be traced to smoking, unless the habit is excessive. Now it appears that the smoker in a crowded room is truly a benefactor to humanity instead of the selfish brute some people would have us believe.

Steam-Dried Hay Now. Each year finds the farmer more of a mechanic, as machine after machine appears to take the place of the decreasing supply of manual labor. Frequent showers make good grass, but much of this is ruined in the ss of sun-drying. The steam drier is independent of weather, and, moreover, turns out a better product, and can work nights.

Always on Time, A man who is constitutionally late surprised his friends by leaving the house at 1 o'clock to keep a 2 o'clock appointment.

Dancing on Talcum Powder. It has been found by experiment that the best dancing floor is made as follows: Upon the ordinary floor a sheet of rubber half an inch thick is spread; a certain smooth surfaced linoleum is laid over this, and talcum powder is sprinkled upon it every day. The highly polished waxed wood floors of a few years ago are too slippery for the modern dances. The shoemakers soon learned this and introduced pumps with pads of rubber inserted in the soles.

Stifled His Reproaches. There is a touch of savage humor in the old time story of a Spanish pilot captured by Van Noort. GILLETT'S LYE

BOOKS BOUND IN GOLD.

Costly Volumes Which Have Beer

Made For Connoisseurs. thousand four hundred pounds is the value set upon a magnificent specimen of present-day English bookbinding about to be sent to America. The book is an illuminated manuscript of some of Keat's poems, and has just been completed after two years' work. The poems are written and illuminated on vellum, and illustrated with original water-colors, while the morocco cover is elaborately goldtooled, inlaid with over 4,400 pieces of colored leather, and set with over 1 000 precious stones.

This book was designed and bound by Mr. George Sutcliffe, the noted bookbinder of Poland street, London, who has evolved many original ideas in bookbinding. He was the first to use jewelled decorations -pearls instead of white leather, garnets instead of red leather, and on. That such work pays is evident from the fact that Mr. Sutcliffe now employs eighty men.
The illuminated manuscript of Keats referred to is the most elaborate specimen of binding executed by Mr. Sutcliffe since he designed a jewelled Omar Khayyam, which was purchased by the German Government for the Frankfort Museum twelve years ago, and in the decoration of which twenty-one opals were used. Another specimen of Mr. Sutcliffe's art is a sumptuously-bound copy of Shelley's works, each flower on the hawthorn decoration being set with a pearl.

Volumes in modern binding which sell for $1,000 to $2,500 each are by no means uncommon. Not long ago, for instance, a set of Dickens was published, the price per volume being $1,000, each book being bound vellum and enclosed in a casket white silk and leather. It was a marvellous production, scarcely so interesting as Hon. Walter Rothschild's book on "Extinct Birds," which represented. many years of labor and cost its author something like $100,000 to produce. Mr. Rothschild stipulated that the book should be turned out in imperishable form, as it was improbable that the subject would ever be done again and he wished the work to endure for all time. Only 300 copies were printed in English for private circulation, the price of each copy being $125.

Strange Modern Building. One of the most extraordinary uildings erected in modern times is now being built near Dornach, in Alsace. It is called the Temple the Science of the Spirit and will be the mecca for every student of occultism and mysticism in Europe. The temple should be completed by December, when formal opening ceremonies of great pomp are to be performed. It owes its inception and construction to Dr. Rudolf Steiner, a German theosophist, who has at least 4.000 followers. The cost of the building, which is of huge proportions, will be $600,000, which has been raised by subscriptions from spiritualists in many lands.

Symbolism and mysticism are the keynotes of the architectural design, for the greater of the two domes which surmount the building is said to represent the universe, andsince the numeral 7 represents the unrolling of things in time"-it is supported on each side by seven great columns. These pillars are in the form of a pentagram and support ornate capitals representing the planets of sun, moon, Saturn. Jupiter, Mars, Mercury, and Venus. Each column is made symbolically of a different kind of wood, for the whole edifice is built of wood except the basements, which are of "one. constructed in the form of terraces.

Curious Jellyfish. A retired mariner says he saw many strange inhabitants of the sea when he was going about the world in a square rigger, but a sight which impressed him most was the peculiar form of a jellyfish. It was about eight inches long and shaped precisely like How Black Haytian Plucked the Cigar From Mouth of Canadian.

Certain Canadians from whose cheeks the tropical tan has not yet faded are un-Booker T. Washingtonish enough to wish that the colored ruler of Hayti had, like Pharaoh, hardened his heart and refused to pay that little item of $62,000. This was the bill rendered recently by Great Britain for the destruction of a Britisher's sawmill in one of the perennial revolutions. The dusky potentate who rules at Port au Prince was informed that he had until just six o'clock to come across with the coin, Otherwise, the cruiser Suffolk would put one of King George's officers in charge of the custom house. After a very brief deliberation, Hayti's Government touched the National Bank for the amount and paid over the

These Canadian tropical trippers who took in the sable isle on the Panama cruise, have a grudge against Hayti and its native population, hence their expressed wish that the President would dare attempt to beard the Lion.

Hayti, the negro republic, is a land where the white man gets off the sidewalk to let his superior black brother pass. Here the brash colored man is at his brashiest, and gets away with it every time. Negro policemen back him up. Negro soldiers back them up, and higher up still are ebony officials and an Ethiopian President.

Notwithstanding Hayti is a popular port of call and here the Canadian contingent spent a day - and what a day! One of the number was walking up a main thoroughfare with a friend enjoying a perfecto, when suddenly a native sprang out from an alleyway, grabbed the torch from the gentleman's astonished mouth and made off with it.

Just at this time another Canadian was haggling with one of the vociferous crowd of cabbies.

The avaricious Jehu demanded $5 for his fare, whereupon the passenger beckoned a policeman. Clutching the $2 proffered to the driver, this guardian of the peace dashed off with it, followed by the infuriated cabby.

More serious than funny was the predicament that another party from he same ship got into when, after viewing the old cathedral they turned to find the door locked and themselves confronted by a naked dirk in the hands of a ransom-demanding guide.

"Why doesn't the steamship company police this wharf?" angrily asked one passenger who had been jostled by some Haytians. "It's a wonder, (pointing out over the harbor) that that dinky Yankee gunboat of yours wouldn't do something to keep this place in order," retor'ed the steamship officer. All visitors were disgusted with the filth of Port au Prince and the law less disorder of its negro population, one of the Canadian squad commemorating his impressions in verse.

Why He Drowned. Describing the stringent police regulations of Berlin, a citizen of that city by way of illustration told the following story:

"Schmidt and Krauss met one morning in the park.
"'Have you heard,' says Schmidt, 'the sad news about Muller?' 'No. says Krauss. 'What is it?' " 'Well, poor Muller went boating on the river yesterday. The boat capsized, and he was drowned. The water was ten feet deep.' 'But couldn't he swim?' " 'Swim? Don't you know that all persons are strictly forbidden by the police to swim in the river?' "

The Blue Sky. The blue sky which reveals itself as the hemispherical vault of the firmament in the absence of clouds is the far depths of the air sending back to the observer some part of the solar illumination which they receive. The light thus returned to the eye is blue" simply because the particles of the air are of such exceedingly diminutive size that they can effectively deal with only the smallest of the luminous vibrations. There are a few faint interminglings of the other

The giver was Dr. Manini of Naples. who was well known as a petrifier and preserver of the human body. Manini in offering the gift to Garibaldi said that whenever the general looked at it it would brace him up for the last fight, and across the medal were engraved the words, "The Blood of Garibaldi Is Forever

WHEN REGIMENTS RESIGNED.

Curragh Episode Is Not the First One In British History.

The cavalry crisis at the Curragh recalls how, in 1783, the old 77th Regiment, commanded by Col. Gordon, refused en bloc to go to India, and voiced their reasons in a barrack room song:-

If it were to fight with France or Spain With pleasure we would cross the Main: But for like bullocks to be slain-Our Highland blood abbors it.

The question of this wholesale resignation came lefore Parliament, and the regiment was ordered to be disbanded forthwith at Perth. Another Scotch regiment, the Black Watch, being brought to London from Scotland in 1743, on the pretext that George II., never having seen a Highland regiment before, wished to inspect them, turned about and marched home when they found His Majesty not in London to meet them. He had left the previous night for Hanover. They accordingly believed themselves the victims of a trick to reduce the number of Stuart supporters in Scotland. They were overtaken by a superior force in the Midlands and forced to capitulate. The regiment as a whole was then banished to Flanders; 200 of the men-all of good family-were sent into exile, and many were court-martialled, whilst three ring-leaders were shot on Tower Hill.

Another instance of a regiment's desire to be quit of service wholesale occurred in 1807, when 300 men, chiefly Irishmen, of the 28th Foot, stationed at Maldon, Essex, feigned blindness in order to procure their discharges and escape being sent abroad. They bluffed the doctors for a time by applying an irritating ointment to their eyes, declaring they had caught the disease from afflicted soldiers just home from Egypt. But the ruse was discovered, and the ringleaders were tried under the Mutiny

Art and Children.

"What has art done for children?" This question was recently put to Walter Crane, the English illustrator, who has done so much to educate the childish eye for the beautiful.

"When we began to work and inaugurated the change from the dry little wood cuts and too often crude and vulgar illustrations and made as beautiful picture books as we could for children," said Mr. Crane, "we simply followed our personal tastes and delights, working as artists, and we thought chiefly of giving pleasure to ourselves and the children and not of any theoretic good that might accrue to them in after years as a result of what we

"Picture books are a necessity, especially to children. They think in pictures instead of in words and learn from them too. Drawing to a child is a language. Every teacher should be able to draw so that he can illustrate his meaning to his young pupils in the way they understand best. And children should be encouraged and taught to draw before they are taught to read."

Overzealous. If you have ever been annoyed by a too enterprising barber you will appreciate the little incident that left one of them rueful and crestfallen the other day. Having shaved the customer, he ran his hand over the man's head and said insinuatingly:

"Have a hair trim to-day, sir?" "Do you think I need it? "Yes; it looks pretty long." "Well, how is the boss barber on hair trimming? In he pretty good?" "Yes; he's pretty good, all right. But why?" "Well, he trimmed my hair yestezrday.'

Our Insignificant Earth. If the earth should be annihilated the planets Venus and Mercury would fall a little nearer the sun and move around it a trifle faster, while all of the outside planets, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune, would move away from the sun slightly and traverse larger orbits, moving a little slower thereon. The earth is so small, however, that only professional astronomers, armed with very accurate clocks and telemicrometers, could hope to measure the minute disturbances.

His Usual Way. The new waitress sidled up to a dapper young man at the breakfast table, who, after glancing at the bill, opened his mouth, and a noise issued forth that sounded like the ripping off of all the cogs on one of the wheels in the power house.
