The reception committee will preet at the city hall tomorrow night and prepare for the visit. large and representative attendance is, of course, much desired, and the work f preparation will be taken up energetically. DEATH OF PAMES F. McDONALD.

Ingersoll, Sept. 19.—The death of James F. McDonald, barrister, occurred at his home. Wonham street, on Wednesday morning, after about three months' illness. Deceased was in his $2nd year, and enjoyed the best of health until about three months ago, when cancer of the tongue developed. He was down town on Tuesday during the day, and while his death was expected, it came very sudden. The late James F. McDonald was born in the township of Zorra, and came to Ingersoll with his father, the late John McDonald, when a boy. He received his early education in the Ingersoll schools, after which he graduated Dr. W. F. Pratt, who had his office on Bank street, and lived on Vittoria street, was found dead in his bed at the latter place this morning. Heart failure was the cause of death. Deceased was son of Wm. Pratt, boot and shoe dealer on Sparks street. He was prominent in Order of Foresters.

THE OZONE Co., LTD., TORONTO, ONT.

Gentlemen: For the past year my daughter has suffered from kidney disease. This sickness came by degrees, until she was bleated to a great size. She appeared to be growing very fleshy and every joint was full of rheumatism. We tried a good many of the patent medicines called blood purifiers, but received no benefit. We also had a good doctor, but he failed to do any good. At last we were advised by a neighbor to try "Ozone," which we did. The "Ozone" seemed to go right through the whole system and she felt worse, but we were told this was a good sign. We continued the use of it, and soon we noticed the swelling reduced in her hands and feet, and it seemed to reduce the swelling in her whole body.

My daughter also had female weakness. The organs were weak and did not work regularly. The "Ozone" regulated these organs perfectly. She now enjoys perfect health, which Lentirely attribute to "Ozone."

THE ROYAL PARTY!

Were Received by Enthusiastic Thousands on Their Arrival at Montreal.

Reply of the Duke of Cornwall and York to the Address of Welcome---Magnificent Illuminations and Banquet.

Duchess of Cornwall and York made their entry into Montreal shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon, and were received by enthusiastic thousands. The governor-general's train, with Lord Minto and Lady Minto and suite, which preceded the royal train, arrived at 2:30 o'clock. The royal train, with the duke and duchess and suite, steamed into the C. P. R. station a few minutes before 3 o'clock. When the royal train arrived salutes thundered from the shipping in the harbor. The royal party was welcomed at the station by the members of the civic reception committee, and escorted to a beautiful canopy which had been erected on Place Viger station, opposite the depot. Here hundreds of prominent people in Montreal professional, financial and commercial life were assembled to greet the royal visitors.

WELCOMED.

Mayor Prefontains officially welcomed the duke and duchess on behalf of the citizens of Montreal. Grouped on the platform were the Gevernor-Ceneral and Lady Minto, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Roman Catholic and English archbishops of Montreal, representatives of parliament, the bench and the bar and the general public. The duke and duchess took their places on a raised dais, and the mayor read a formal address of welcome in French.

REPLY OF THE DUKE. His royal highness, in reply, said: "Gentlemen,-The kind, affectionate, and, in one instance, sacred, words of your addresses have indeed touched our hearts, and the duchess joins with me in offering to you and the people of Montreal our sincere gratitude for the warmness and loyalty of your greetings. I feel that I do not come amongst you today entirely as a stranger, for I have the pleasant-est recollection of the two previous visits to your fair city, and it is an additional pleasure that on this occasion the duchess is with me. I deeply appreciate your expressions of loyalty to the throne, and to the person of my dear father, the King. Your kindly reference to his visit here in 1860 recalls to my mind significant words spoken by my revered father, which seem specially interesting at this time, as they allude to visits to this country and to the shores of South Africa, which I have just hence will regard our methods of travel left. Speaking in 1860 of the almost and our recent inventions as primitive simultaneous presence of the Prince of Wales in Canada when he was about to open your celebrated Victeria bridge, and of Prince Alfred at Cape Town to lay the foundation of the breakwater in Table country are brought to our minds in of light, all the principal buildings bethis simple fact! It is gratifying to hear that in this commercial metropolis of Canada two great races form one happy and united community, and that you joyously accept the obligations of your proud membership of the British Empire. Following the duke's reply, several P. R. especially for the occasion. ties were read and the duke was presented with a fine gold-headed by the Antiquarian Society of Mon-treal. One of the most interesting features of the proceedings was the presentation to the royal visitors of delegation of chiefs and squaws from the Iroquois or Five Nations, of Caughnawaga, near Montreal. Montreal, Sept. 18.-The Duke and troop of escort, interval of 50 yards; one sergeant, interval of 50 yards; two troopers, interval of 50 yards; two troopers, interval of 50 three mounted police.

An impressive feature was the lining of the streets on both sides along the entire route of the procession with militiamen. They stood out about two paces from each other.

OVER THREE MILES LONG.

The route of the procession was over three miles in length to Lord Strathcona's home. In addition to the militia, policemen were stationed behind the soldiers at short distances. The sidewalks were left free, but no one could stand on the road. soldiers were about three feet from the sidewalk on the road. It was behind them again that the policemen stood. By this order of things it will be seen that every precaution was taken to prevent interruptions, and also to prevent any strangers from the carriage where the royal couple sat.
There were scenes of great thusiasm along the route, and their royal highnesses were apparently royal highnesses deeply moved by the greatness of the welcome. At several points on the route were beautiful arches through which the royal couple passed. In front of Mount St. Louis College on Sherbrooke street, was a large platform, on which were grouped the students, several hundred in number. and their loyalty was shown by enthusiastically cheering. In front of the high school, on Peel street, on seats in front of the extensive buildings were between four and five thou sand from the senior high schools the high school and other schools. In the center of the building was a platform erected above the ground on which the scholors sat, and on this were also seated the principals of the schools. Every boy and girl held a Union Jack, and as the royal carriage swept past the five thousand emblems of the empire's greatness and unity were waved aloft. A might cheer was raised, and the children shouted followed by "God Save the King," were heard from the soldiers.

IN THE RAIN. As the procession approached its final stage the storm which had been threatening all afternoon broke, and the rain commenced to pour down. Viger about 3:30, and the residence Lord Strathcona, on Dorchester street, was reached at 4:10 p.m. The escort drew up across the street, while the guard of honor from the Victoria Rifles was drawn up on the right of the entrance to the house and the Royal Scots were on the left. As the royal carriage drove up, Lord and Lady Strathcona advanced to meet the royal visitors and welcomed them. So ended the triumphant

There was a torchlight procession, in which four or five thousand members of the athletic organizations took part. There was also a grand display of fire-works from Mount Royal and the harbor front, and the spectacle was magnificent. A dinner ws tendered to their royal highnesses tonight at Lord Strathcona's residence, at which a number of Montreal's leading citizens were invited to meet their royal highnesses CIVIC RECEPTION CANCELED.

The big civic reception, which was to have been held, was canceled, out of respect to the memory of the late President McKinley.

Owing to the assassination of President McKinley, extraordinary police precautions were taken to safeguard the persons of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall. The royal party was guarded by a special guard under Sheriff Wood, of the Dominion po-lice; Chief Detective Carpenter, of Montreal, and Inspector Stark, ronto. The dais on which the addresses were presented was surrounded by police, and the streets through which the procession passed were lined with troops. The royal party reached Lord Strathcona's residence without any other incident. They had spent previous night on the royal vacht Ophir and reached Montreal on the magnicent new royal train provided by the C.

A DISAPPOINTMENT. Halifax, N. S., Sept. 19.-The lieutenant-governor has been informed from Ottawa that the presentation of colors to the 66th by the Duke of York cannot take place. The Ophir leaves at 5 a.m. on Monday, Oct. 21, and cannot delay, as the duke desires to arrive at St. Johns. Nfld., on schedule time. This gives the royal party only half a day here outside of Sunday. Disappoint-ment is keen, especially with the 66th Fusiliers. The governor has again written Major Maude on the subject.

Semething Worth Knowing. [From the Arthur Enterprise.] [From the Arthur Enterprise.]

Catarrh is more prevalent than it formerly was, and many people are afflicted with this dangerous disease long before they are aware of it. Then it has developed into the worst form, and the sufferer rushes for a doctor, from whom he gets little or no relief. A special study of the disease was made by the Catarrhozone Company, and their labors have been rewarded by the discovery of a true specific, "Catarrhozone," which they guarantee is a sure cure. The Enterprise can vouch for "Catarrhozone," as a member of the editor's family used it with most satisfactory results; it is pleasant to use, and gives instant relief.

THE RAILWAYS

The Rainy River Railroad will be opened from Port Arthur to Winnipeg

next month, and a rush of settlers into that fine agricultural and timber dis trict is expected.

Some time ago the plans of the Fort Erie trolley extension to Chippewa were rejected by the Government engineer because allowance was not made for a roadway along the bank of the river. Sufficient provision has now been made for the roadway, and the plans have been approved. The Ontario Provincial engineer has approved of the plans for eighteen miles of the Manitoulin and North Shore, from Sudbury to Vermillion River, and sixteen miles from Bruce Mines to Rock Lake, on the Algoma branch of the Clergue system. Con-struction work on these lines will begin Woodstock Sentinel-Review: some years the building of a railway line from Brantford to Woodstock to join the Canadian Pacific here with the T. H. and B. in the Telephone City has been mooted. It was this road that the famous railway projector, R. L. Middleton, started in to construct. But other and more responsible parties have kept the project constantly in view. Early in the year it looked for a time as if the C. P. R. might take it up in order to be able to get a share of the passenger traffic from the west to the Pan-American. But for some reason or other no definite step was taken. There is now another possibility that the line may go through. A week ago Saturday Frederick F. Backus, of Hamilton, general freight and passenger agent of the T. H. and B. railway, and another gentleman from that city were in Woodstock and registered at the Hotel Oxford. The object of their visit was a matter of considerable speculation, but they kept their secret very strictly to themselves. After inquiry, however, in Hamilton, we are able to state that they were here for the purpose of gathering what information they could in regard to the feasibility of the con-struction of the line to Brantford. Mr. Backus stands high in the confidence of the officials of the Vanderbilt system of which it is understood the T. H. and B. is now a part. If he reaches the conclusion that it would be well to build the line, he will recommend to the Vanderbilts that it be gone on with. We understand that so high a regard have they for his opinion, that if is favorable to the project the sche will be very favorably considered.

Toronto Day Will Be Celebrated on the 27th

Buffalo, Sept. 19.-Toronto day is the last addition to the list of special days at the Pan-American Exposition. Sept. 27 is the date. On that day the mayor Toronto, O. A. Special features will be presented during the day to mark the occasion.

Crime and Justice in Two Countries.

Czolgosz has been indicted for murder in the first degree, and will be brought up for trial in Buffalo next week for the murder of President Mc-Kinley. So far the wheels of justice have been speeding with exemplary promptitude. Will it be so to the end?

The case of Guiteau, the slayer of President Garfield, is naturally revived in this connection. Not until Nov. 14, 1881, two months less a few days after the death of his victim, did the trial of Guiteau begin. It was not completed until Jan. 25, 1882, and on Feb. 4 Guiteau was sentenced to die on June 30, the law of the District of Columbia compelling this delay.

On May 22, an appeal on legal exceptions was denied in the Supreme Court of the district and the verdict was sustained. All other legal expedients to save the neck of the assassin having failed, an appeal for executive reprieve was made to President Arthur, and denied on June 24. Six days later, or almost a year after the shot was fired that caused the death of President Garfield, the assassin paid the penalty of his crime on

This great delay was in large measure due to the defense of insanity which was raised, and the bringing forward of the novel legal question arising from the fact that though the President was shot in Washington he died in Long Branch.

The case of Colzgosz, albeit he has he is entitled to, for only the unreasmeted out.

There is, however, a difference between a fair trial, where all that can be said in favor of a culprit is permitted to be said, and the vexatious delays and attempts to evade punishment for crime that are too often permitted in the United States. It is just such delays and the miscarriage of justice that so often comes from them, which brings the law into contempt in the United States, encourages lynch law, and who can say that it may not, in some degree, give incentive to the assassin of the stamp of Czolgosz.

Far be it from us to boast of our Canadian institutions, but we think we can fairly claim that in the Dominion our judicial authorities act promptly; that accused persons, while given a fair trial, are not permitted to use our courts, and to resort to all sorts of irrelevant quibbling and appealing on side issues, in order to de lay the doing of justice, or to secur a positive miscarriage of it. The result is that the laws with respect to property and life are respected in this land with a care witnessed in but few civilized countries. We have few murders, and lynchings, which are an every-day occurrence in the neighboring republic, are scarcely ever heard

When our neighbors so reform their laws and court procedure that justice, while at all times dispensed in an orderly manner, shall be swift and sure, for the protection of the innocent and the condemnation of the guilty, there will be far less serious crime than there now is in the United States, and a much higher respect for the law will be everywhere entertained than is possible where the law's delays are so

"The Blunder of Modern Education."

The present age is nothing if not crit-Ical. We are sometimes inclined to think that there is too much criticism and too little construction. Education is a favorite subject for critics, amateur or professional, to flesh their swords upon. Harold E. Gorst, writing some time ago, in "The Nineteenth Century and After," says: "The asertion that our entire system is totally wrong from beginning to end will probably scandalize both the conventional conservative and the progressive-minded educationelist." Rather! This is certainly a staggering statement. We all naturally hope that it is not so bad as that. We hardly like to accept even on Mr. Gorst's authority "that most of the great educationists and teachers of the past have expended their genius in building up this system upon altegether wrong lines." According to this gether wrong lines." According to this Much trouble has been caused by a writer all our systems are bent upon vein of water which supplied 150 quarts killing the sense, rooting out the imagin- per second.

ation, and, in fact, completely crushing the real life out of our children. "Thousands of young men and women are turned out every year by our schools and universities upon an exact nattern, like sausages from a Chicago factory." "The imagination was killed in early childhood; ideas have been allowed no time to expand; the mind has been forced to remain within rigid limits, like a fowl's beak bent to a chalk line," and this accounts for a lack of great men, and if it does not ston we are all undone. "Even if we grapple with the evil at once, generations may pass before its effects cease to exercise a baleful influence on the lives of thousands of capable men and women." Is it not a wonder that any capable men and women are now left? If it had not been for this system, perhaps Mr. Gorst would have been great enough to give us some construction with all

The Special Postal Delivery.

It is not going beyond a statement which cannot successfully be disputed. to say that neither Canada ner probably any other country, has ever had a more capable Postmaster-General than the Hon, William Mulock. The system of imperial penny postage now in operation, under which a letter may be sent to almost any part of the vast Pritish Empire at the uniform and barely more cause Mr. Mulock's name to stand forth prominently in the records of the important peaceful achievements of the nineteenth century.

But in a dozen ways, even if less pro minently than in the scheme for imperial penny postage, Mr. Mulock's great ability in getting things done, and in organization and administration, has been felt. The present Postmaster-General has a genius for promoting efficiency by discarding red-tape and proceeding along lines of simplification of method.

We refer to the Postmaster-General and his Department at this time to suggest an extension of the system of rapid delivery inaugurated by Mr. Mulock. At present the system applies in Canada only to the following postoffices: London, Halifax, St. John, Fredericton, Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, Toronto, Brantford, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Victoria and Vaucouver.

We would suggest also to the Postmaster-General the inquiry whether it begun to act as if he, too, would plead would not be possible to make a conveninsanity, when he comes up for formal tion with the United States for reciptrial can surely give rise to no such rocal interchange of rapid delivery fadelays. The method has won for him when put on trial. A fair trial the progressive Postmaster-General no small degree of commendation. We oning and unthinking would say that trust Mr. Mulock will be able to see vengeance, and not justice, should be his way to extend the benefits of the special delivery in the directions above suggested.

A City of Fatalities.

Of the 330 deaths in Chicago, 257 were caused by steam cars and 73 by street cars. This percentage of deaths from railway accidents is remarkably large in comparison with other cities which the above table indicates.

A writer in the London, England. Daily News, in dealing with the subject of plagiarism and coincidence. gives some novel illustrations. In his opinion, sheer forgetfulness is to be charged for much unconscious quotation. He goes on to state as follows:

We have known a clergyman to copy part of a fine sermon by Newman or South. Then he incorporates the whole thing into a sermon of his own. Some one in the congregation has an inconvenient memory and a good theological library, and there is an awkward quarter of an hour for the preacher. Very similar things have happened to political speakers. It may have been in some such way that Disraeli annexed a great part of Thiers' article on Marshal Saint-Cyr in his funeral panegyric on the Duke of Wellington, which gave rise to a very happy epi-

Shelving Young Men of 50.

[Saturday Evening Post.]

We hear a great deal in these days about "the dead line" in the ministerial calling. At 50 years of age, or even 40, a preacher is said to have reached this imaginary line, at which he is supposed to be superannuated, although he should be, and commonly is, at the very flood-tide of his power. Churches of all denominations want, therefore, young pastors. If they are but newly fledged from their nests at Andover, Newton and Princeton, so much the better. But can the student who graduated at a theological seminary one, five or ten years ago have the learning, pastoral experience, know-ledge of men, wisdom, tact, caeteris paribus, which the gray-headed pastor has accumulated by thirty or forty years of study, sermonizing, trial and pastoral toil? Our "slow" forefathers, who lived before the days of steam and electric travel, telephones and short-cut courses of education, thought not. Of course, they knew well enough that there were exceptional men, a Jonathan Edwards, a Jeremy Taylor, a Nathaniel Emmons—as at a later day there was a Buckminster, a Channing, a Bushnell, a Summerfield, a Starr King-in whom genius could supply the place of years of study and But, for the preacher of average natural gifts, they deemed these prerequisite to success.

"Old" and "young" are purely relative terms. It is not the gray hairs on a man's head, the crow's feet about his eyes, or the wrinkles on his face that prove him old, but the lack of force and fire, of elastic hope and faith, of mental and spiritual power. When the pastor of the First Congregational Church in Boston died, in 1663, the church resolved to supply his place by a "young man," and acc ingly elected Mr. Davenport, of New Haven, then 70 years old.

There are men of sixty and seventy, and even eighty years, who are brimming with enthusiasm and energy, and there are others but thirty years old who are bankrupt in both. "The dead line," which is supposed to threaten clergymen chiefly, exists as really in every calling; but it is one which is fixed at no age, but is continually providence, but by each man for himself. The preacher draws it when he is self-satisfied and stops growing mentally and spiritually: ceases to keep abreast with thought, science and improved processes of his time. Chalmers. Robert Hall. Bush-Wayland, Edwards Park never reached the line in question. And Charles A. Dana, at eighty, was the youngest journalist in New York. not, at any period of their They did lives, lay down their oars and float with the current. They knew that mentally a man cannot simply mark time; that, like Virgil's boatman, si brachia forte remisit-if he relaxes his efforts he is carried backward. They continued to the last alive in every fibre, interested in every new advance of thought: and if they had each lived and studied for a century they never would have thought of tying up at any time their respective stocks of knowledge, and labeling them complete. Many of the livest, most energetic, most receptive clergymen we know-men who keep all the windows of the mind open to new ideas-are past sixty. Of course, there are languid, spiritless old men in the ministry, as in all other callings: but, in the great majority of cases, old age found them-it did not make them-such. If it was a preacher of this stamp whom a venerable father in Israel is said to have taken by the whiskers and warned: had better dye these, for, if you leave your present charge, nobody will call you with such a badge of advanced life," the advice was not the sagest. It was his brains that needed dyeing, not his whiskers.

The Hired Man.

[New York Tribune.]

It is in the degrading idea, fostered by demagogic politicians, that the president is only the "hired man" of the people that the practice of miscellaneous hand-shaking finds its chief support. To the upholders of the hired man theory it seems only natural, of course, that any citizen, however disreputable or dangerous, should claim the right to take the hand of the preident, and to enjoy thereafter delights of an appeased and triumphant curiosty, comparable only to those of the man "who shook the hand that shook the hand of Sullivan." But to the American people, as a whole, such a view of the president's personal dignity and tinent." personal obligations is as unworthy as it is offensive, and we believe they will gladly join in abrogating a custom not only cheapening to the president's official character, but involving fatigues, discomforts and the ever-present peril

what you will, is not an unusual, but [Goldwin Smith in Weekly Sun.] This strife between employer and employed brings down from capitalist organs a heavy indictment of trade unions. Too much of the indictment is true. Trade unions have fallen into bad hands and been betrayed, not into error only, but into crime. They have sought by violence or intimidation to create a monopoly of labor. They have tried by regulations not less insensate than unjust to hold down the good workmen to the level of the bad, thus reducing the product of industry, and sometimes ruining the trade. They sometimes ruining the trade. They have killed trades by unjustifiable strikes. They have broken contracts, as some of them are apparently doing now. All this must be admitted. But might not an indictment be frame against capital also? Has not capital been guilty of tyrannical greed? Did it not too often take advantage of its union and its staying power while the laborer was isolated and defenceless? Look at the British colliery reports. You will see laborers reduced to a state as bad as plantation slavery, women used as beasts of burden, children most cruelly treated, women and children made to crawl on all fours in the passages of the pits dragging carts by a chain passed from the waist be-tween the legs, while moral as well as physical beastliness filled the scene. A bill moderating these abominations was opposed by Lord Londonderry, the great coal-owner. It is vain to coatend that union has not helped the laborer to justice. The failure of a kindly intercourse between employer and emly be laid to the charge of the work-ingman. Change in the scale of industries has brought with it a change in social relations. The man of the villa can scarcely consort with the man of the cottage. Society cannot afford the exclusive ascendancy of either of the parties to this most unit is to be feared, is the best to which we can look at present. The Red Cross Flag of St. George. half-masted on the square tower of Carlisle Cathedral, was the first thing that caught my eye as I crossed the border frontier of the Solway that divided England and Scotland, which has long since lost all political and military significance.

Today we feel that the broad At lantic has equally lost the power to sever the two great sections of our common race. See how closely are united by a common sorrow! In London the same sentiment finds the same expression that drowns oll voices. In all our towns two sister nations stand hand in hand with bowed heads over the bier of the American president. The last reported words of McKinley as telegraphed to us were the broken utterance of the opening lines of that old, familiar hymn. The fact is another reminder of the closeness of the ties which unite our people. Six years ago Sir Francis Knollys wrote to me on behalf of the present king, then only heir apparent, saying that the Prince of Wales "directs me to mention that among the serious hymns he thinks there are none more touching, nor one 'Nearer, My God, to Thee.' Not a trace of resentment, even among the most sordid advocates of trade interests, is felt today against tariff. So far as business influences public feeling, it tells entirely in his favor. His first public utterance had led some of our people to hope that he might be the Sir Robert Peel of the United States. W. T. STEAD. LARGEST TIMBER SALE IN ONTARIO

Nearly 400 Square Miles Disposed Of for

Toronto, Sept. 18 .- The largest timber sale in Ontario since 1892 took place yesterday at the parliament buildings, when limits of an area of 3991/4 square miles were sold by auction for $732,787 50, an average of $1,- 835 per square mile. The result of the sale was regarded with a good deal of satisfaction by the department of crown lands, as the limits offered yesterday were not of the choicest character, being scattered, and their sale rendered necessary by danger from fire and by the opening of Algoma north of Sault Ste. Marie by the construction of the Algoma

Central Railway.

Commis sioner-General Powderly still clings to A POSER FOR HIM.-He-I have always said that I would not marry his theory that Czolgosz was the instrument of a society. In confirmation of this, he calls attention to the fact that Czolgosz has taken pains not only to avoid all reference in his statement since his arrest to any person known to have been in the same neighborhood with himself of late, but to lay particular stress on the influence over him of Emma Goldman, who would have no difficulty in proving an alibi. This is all in accordance with the of the anarchist fraternity, which require a man, after being selected for a bloody deed, to throw the authorities upon a false scent knowing no one in his neighborhood but professing acquaintance with members at a distance. As soon as the murderous work is done, the group to which the murderer belongs dissolves at once and has no more meetings. Meanwhile, however, members of the higher degrees are required to be present where the blow is to be struck, so as to see that the assassin performs his task properly. Mr. Powderly believes that the man who immediately preceded and who was noticed as holding the president's hand an unusual time ould tell a great deal more about this case than any one has yet told, if he could be apprehended. over it is regarded by many here as a significant fact that, although his tions have received so wide an adverwho stood close to the scene taken pains to contribute their servations of what took place, this one person has kept his identity a secret, as if he were ashamed or afraid

Now that it is definitely known that the royal party will come to London it is more necessary than ever that the Seventh Band should be unexcelled either in appearance or quality of music. It is not saving that the band, as it is, is not an excellent one, to say it may be improved; and it is to do this that Mayor Rumball, Sir John Carling, Mr. James Egan and others are now working.

There is no doubt that they will succeed and place the band in an enviable position. Many citizens of prominence are taking the matter up. The difficulty at present is this: The gov-ernment provides only for a limited regimental band of 28 or thereabouts. By means of the generous spirit displayed by the Seventh officers, it has been maintained, with a much larger number in it, in a state of great effi-

It is now desired to equip it with new uniforms, new instruments and music and to keep in it about 40 skilled musicians. To do all this a fund of about $2,000 is aimed at. Many citizens whose interest has already been aroused have agreed to give regular employment to competent musicians who may be induced to come to the city; others have agreed to subscribe liberally, and it is expected that the proposed concerts will swell the fund considerably.

It is confidently expected that the Seventh Band will soon occupy a better position than it was ever in before, and that it will again be known as one of the best organizations in Canada.

Mr. Whitney's Policy

[Saturday Night.] Mr. J. P. Whitney, leader of the Provincial Opposition, occupied the platform at Victoria Hall for three hours last Monday night, in order to set clearly before the delegates to the Ontario Conservative Association his exceedingly low opinion of the Ross Government. The audience was small and the speech was not of the large variety-in fact, added nothing to the copious literature developed on the hustings and in parliamentary de-bates. Like the Liberals when they were in opposition in the Dominion, Addresses were also made by Dr. Ra- he was able to draw up a lengthy and chel J. Davidson, of Michigan; James resonant indictment of the party in Ower, of Newark, N. J.; county engineer of Essex county, and John but nothing was developed of a character which would make an elector be told that Mr. Whitney and his colleagues in their own estimation have been the only statesmanlike people in the Provincial Legislature, nor anyone aching to hear how little Mr. Whitney himself thought of his opponents. Of course the old charges were all reiterated, together with the one now made against the Ottawa Liberals that all the good things in their programme were stolen from the Conservatives. It is really wonderful how little the Liberals have ever been able to think out for themselves, and yet with what judgment they have appropriated the best things produced by the gigantic and bulging brows of who for many years have been unable to obtain power in Ontario and not able to hold it at Ottawa. Mr. Whitney, as a precautionary measure, is not going to wash out the set of principles for his policy until it will be too late for the Liberals to rob his clothes line. It is said that some very pretentious people never have their washing hung out in the back yard till after dark so that none of the neighhore will be able to see how little there is of it and how ragged that little is in important places. The leader of the Ontaria Opposition, however, tells us that this is not his reason, but, like Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, whom he quoted, the opposition "are not going to lend him (Ross) our prescriptions while he takes the fees." I do not agree with the local Conservative paper which thinks this is a very smart saying. If Mr. Whitney and his followers have a policy which would benefit Ontario and have been concealing it about their persons for the last three or four years, they have not been doing their sworn duty to the constituencies which they represent, or the provinces generally. Doing the greatest possible good to Ontario should be a higher aim than the obtaining of "fees" by being able to seize office. If these men are in the legislature in the hope of making money by snatching the reins of government, we have the right to suspect them of being mercenaries, not patriots. It is well known that when the then Mr. Meredith was leader of the opposition all his legal knowledge, foresight and ability were devoted to the obtaining of the best possible leg-islation and strict enforcement of islation and strict enforcement laws. He never held back as if he had a patent right on his ideas of how the legislature and executive machine cu should be run. I have always contended that much of the good government we enjoyed during the time of Mr. Meredith's presence in parliament was owing not so much to the ability of Sir Oliver Mowat and his colleagues, as to the high statesman-like attitude of the leader of the opposition. True, he did not obtain office, largely because he was surrounded by men who took the same small view of ing the Pan.

Dr. C. Y. Laurie, of London Junction is about to leave for a northern point, having secured a splendid medical position with the C. P. R. During his sition with the C. P. R. This, however, he admits he is holding back in order that he may collect the fees if any cure is made or if the medicine sells well. If two doctors are engaged to look after the health of a patient, as Mr. Whitney and Mr. Ross both are, what right has the former to let the patient languish night unto death, as Mr. Whitney would have us believe Ontario is doing, rather than that by his skill and knowledge of a cure for which his opponent could obtain the greater fees, though prob-

BATHING IN THE BOYNE!

Marvelous Curative Virtues Attributed to the Waters

a Michigan River—Rheumaism

and Other Ailments Said to Vanish

After Paddling in the Stream.

Up in the northern part of Michigan, where Little Traverse Bay washes the shores of Charlevoix county, there flows a crooked stream to which some exile from the old sod gave the name of Boyne, River. It rises a limpid trickle of water, among the rocks of a wild valley, hemmed in by precipitous hills. Minor currents, dashing down through the forests, augment its volume until, within a few miles of its source it has swollen to a strong and rapid stream, making a broad path down the valley. For many years it has been known to a few wideranging sportsmen, who have been drawn thither by the fighting qualities of the speckled trout that swarm, alone of all fish, in its waters, and by the abundance of game—grouse, woodcock and duck, fox and deer—that range its unpeopled forests. But now Boyne River is gain—thereoff and the bathers gather on the bank, a favorite place being "The Filmen," where the water pours down over a sharp incline of glistening white rock into a deep pool. The men wear old stockings, and the women dress usually in gingham. Out into the swift, cool current is rippling around their knees. This is all that is necessary. There they stand for five minutes absorbing the virtues of the stream. Some sit down in the water, or plunge under and wallow; but the knee bath is regarded as sufficient for most cases. It would naturally be supposed that after this they would hurry home, have a good toweling and get into try clothes. Not at all. The important feature of the bathing is that the clothes, with shoes and tockings, and the women deep pool. The men wear old suckings, and the women dress usually in gingham. Out into the evictings, and the women dress usually in gingham. Out into the swift, cool current is rippling around their knees. This is all that is necessary. There they stand for five minutes absorbing the virtues of the knees that is necessary. There they stand for five minutes absorbing the virtues of the knee that is necessary. There or same—grouse, woodcock and duck, or and deer—that range its unpeopled orests. But now Boyne River is gaining fame that bids fair to become national, and to attract so many persons hither that it will no longer be a sportsnan's paradise. If the reports of scores there are no feet the chattering teeth of a no dice; the regulars never shiver on the coolest days. Not until they are thoroughly dry do they change their bathing clothes; and there is no case on record of a cold having been contracted there. uonal, and to attract so many persons thither that it will no longer be a sportsman's paradise. If the reports of scores of people, both native and pilgrims, are to be believed, this Boyne Water of the north is a natural elixir of life.

THE INDIANS KNEW IT. Traditions of Boyne Falls, the principal ettlement on the stream, has it that he Indians have known for hundreds of cears of the curative and invigorating qualities of the water. War parties of the Ottawas, it is said, journeyed to its anks to plunge before going into battle. There is a record of two refugees from the massacre by Chippewa Indians at the old Mackinaw Post, more than two hundred years ago, who flying southward to Detroit, stopped to bathe in its waters. to Detroit, stopped to bathe in its waters, and went on so refreshed and invigorated that they were ready to ascribe miraculous qualities to the stream. Since the region has been settled by whites the population has been remarkable for sturdiness and longevity. The definite modern instance, however, whence the growing repute of Boyne River started, is the case of George Keyes. And, if the experience of Mr. Keyes reads somewhat after the order of seductive epistolary literature put forth by patent medicine literature put forth by patent medicine companies, it may be stated as an offset that he has no property in the region of the river to dispose of, that he doesn't own a hotel or seek the elusive summer own a hotel or seek the clusive summer boarder, nor has he any intention of bottling Boyne water and disseminating it for a consideration over the face of the nation; in short, he has no interest in it beyond that of a man who, at 74, was a tottering wreck, and at 82 skips on sprightly foot daily to take his dip in the waters.

CURED BY ACCIDENT. Of the most unpremeditated nature was Mr. Keyes' initial dip into the Boyne. Mr. Keyes' initial dip into the Boyne.
On a certain bright day, eight years ago, when his rheumatism was giving him a little respite, as is the custom of that wet weather demon, he hobbled on two canes three miles along the road to the nearest point of the river to see how the trout were biting. They bit well. Mr. of a big projecting log over a deep pool and lured the spotted beauties out until the old man forgot age and stiff bone bank, shaking with cold.

On reaching home he was greeted by a horror-stricken family. He waved them off, got into dry clothes and called the hired man.

"Silas," he said, "I lost my bait can matism, rheumatic gout, muscular stiffness and similar aliments, and its rejuvenating effect upon old people was astonishing. Fame of the water began astonishing. Fame of the water began to spread, and people came from other towns to bathe in it. This summer there have been big bathing parties every day, going into the Boyne either to be cured of rheumatic troubles or as a tonic.

IN UNCONVENTIONAL GARB. At no other watering place in the world is the manner of bathing so picturesque. Special apparel is tabooed; one must take the water in his or her ordinary garb. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon the bathers gather on the bank, a favorite place being "The

A CHEMICAL COMBINATION. The extraordinary properties of the Boyne River water are probably due to a chemical combination, the full nature of which is not known. Geological investiwhich is not known. Geological investigations have shown that under the entire valley is a deposit of mica quartz, alternating with a fine gray clay, which yields a large percentage of lithia. Analysis of the water shows that of 37.1 grains of solids in the imperial gallon, 30 per cent is carbonate of lithia and 52 per cent common salt. In the stones is found evidence of iron and other chemical agency. For miles the stream is almost choked with water-losged cedar, spruce and with water-logged cedar, spruce and tamarack, through which the water per-colates, forming a sort of tincture on a huge scale. Supposably it is this com-pound of mineral and vegetable agencies that gives to the water its wonderful

The awe-stricken crowds, upon their arrival, all moved as by a common impulse toward the old familiar McKinley cottage, where the remains were lying. The window shades were down. A long border of black, which was put in place after the body was removed to the house last night, fringed the roof of the porch from which President McKinley had spoken to delega-tions from every state in the union, and where he had met and talked with all the chieftains of his party. No badge of conventional mourning was on the door. Instead, there was a simple wreath of palms bisected by a beautiful band of wide purple satin

Sorrowfully the throngs turned away, the people to take up their posi-tions at the church, the representatives to seek their places in the imposing procession which was to follow the remains to the cemetery. Mrs. McKinley's condition is exciting grave apprehension among those caring for her, and it is feared that the dreaded collapse may come at any moment. Consent was reluctantly granted, and for half an hour the stricken woman sat in the dim light beside the flower-draped bier. Then she was led away to her room and has not left it since. Through this morning she wept piteously hour after hour. Owing to her condition she was

THE SERVICES The services in the church were simple. They began with the rendition of March, played by Miss Florence Douds. As the last notes of the prelude were stilled, the Euterpan Ladies' Quartet of Canton sang "The Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." Rev. O. B. Hall, of the Trinity Lutheran Church of Canton, and that portion of the fifteenth chapter of I. Corinthians him? included between the 41st and 58th verses, was read by Rev. E. P. Herbreuck, of the Trinity Reformed Church of Canton. The favorite hymn of President McKinjey, "Lead, Kindly Light," was then rendered by a mixed quartet. When this hymn had been finished, Dr. C. E. "I learn." says the Brussels correspondent of the London Post, "that an international congress to discuss measures for dealing with anarchists will be arranged before the end of the year."

The Virginia constitutional convention has cut out the words "Freedom of speech" from the state's bill of rights. The members declare such a provision in, state charters is responsible for the president's murder.

The Western Society of the Army of the Potomac adopted this resolution on the death of President McKinley: "We demand that adequate legislation be enacted wherein liberty of speech and right of assembly shall be clearly defined and regulated, the alien doctrine of anarchy suppressed and all supporters of this political heresy banished from the United States and its territories forever." EMMA GOLDMAN AND HER GANG Forcible Letter to the New York Sun.

To the Editor of the Sun: During last winter and spring I sys tematically followed up Emma Gold-man and her gang. The community, in a frenzy of righteous anger, desires the lynching of Czolgosz, but there would be no compensation in this. Why not get at the more capable, responsible

Under the names of Liberalism, Science and Sociology, many clubs and organizations now existing in this city are open advocates of assassination and incendiarism. I have made a critical study of these movements at close range, and while I found most of the members in a condition of moral obliquity, they are not by any means deficient in certain literary qualifications. The woman to whom Czolgosz attributes his inspiration is the highriestess of the cult. She is an excelent type of her class, a Louise Miche in embryo, a sexless being with a canine code of morals. In domestic relations she practices and expounds the to be the proper standard. She proudly and defiantly announces her desire to destroy life and property because, forsooth, "all government is invasion and all capital is theft," all respectability odious, all womanly virtue is disreputable; physical force is her insive civil, military and naval observances here today in honor of the late assassination her propaganda. Yet she President McKinley. The mourning and those who stand with her are allowed to pour this torrent of infection from public platforms into the ears of degenerate men and women, who applaud her to the echo because of her violence. The temporary incarceration which made a martyr of her has turned her into a veritable flend incarnate.

Why not locate these people, systematically identify them, register them, then deport them or otherwise put them carefully away where they may be compelled to work and can do no harm? Nobody is safe while they are at large. It is useless for self-compla cent New Yorkers to try and derive consolation from the belief that Chicago and Paterson are the only hot-beds of treason. The largest conservatory of sedition in America is right here on this island, and if many of the Memorial Services Held in Many Places easy-going inhabitants of Manhattan heard the utterances which I have listened to, they might toss uncomfortably on the powder magazine over which they nightly repose. I am not an alarmist. I know where-of I write, and when I assert that there is a well-organized, intelligent gang in this city which, if a fair chance offered, would promptly loot and burn up the accumulated result of one hundred years of industry, I merely report what is advocated without reserve by these self-appointed exponents of philosophers of the morgue. Thomas F. Byrnes in former days knew this element, and with an iron hand eradicated it, but it is back again in a corrupt and congenial atmosphere. Within a century twenty rulers have fallen by the hand of the assassin, and eleven of the victims have been presidents of republics. We are foolishly super-sensitive about interfering with the rights of the individual, but how about the safe-guarding of the community? Yellow journalism is entitled assume its share of responsibility for the overt acts of anarchy which it incites and encourages. Russia sends her Nihilists to Siberia or to America. Germany sends her Socialists to jail or to America. France sends her Reds to the galleys or to America. Italy stands her Mafia up against a blank wall with bandaged eyes in line with a platoon of infantry or sends them to America England, by penal servitude, impounds the dregs of East London or sends them to America, and so on ad infini-tum. Here they find their opportunity, while we do nothing until our president is assassinated, and then in a spasm of indignation we advocate lynch Sound public opinion, however, would demand and insist upon measures prevention; and they are relatively easy, can be made singularly effective, and, above all, civilized.

JOHN J. O'RORKE.

New York, Sept. 9. When "Teddy" Was Afraid of Big Game.

Harper's Weekly tells the following characteristic anecdote of the boyhood days of the new President of the United States:

Vice-President Roosevelt was not always the mighty hunter he is now. He had his day of being afraid of big game. But that was many years ago, when he was a wee little boy in short trousers, and used to play tag in Madison Square in New York. Opposite the square, on the east side, stood a Presbyterian Church; and the sexton, while airing the building one Saturday, noticed a small boy peering curiously in at the half-open door, but making no move to enter.

"Come in my little man, if you wish to," said the sexton.
"No, thank you," said the boy, "I know what you have get in there "I haven't anything that little boys mayn't see. Come in. "I'd rather not." And the juvenile Theodore cast a sweeping and somewhat apprehensive glace around the pews and galleries, and bounded off to play again.

Still the lad kept returning once in a while and peeping in. When he went home that day he told his mother of the sexton's invitation and his unwillingness to accept it. "But why didn't you go in, my dear?" she asked. "It is the house of it quietly and looking about." With some shyness the little fellow confessed that he was afraid to go in because the zeal might jump out at him from under a pew or somewhere.

"The zeal? What is the zeal?" the mother inquired. "Why," explained Theodore, "I sup-pose it is some big animal like a dragon or an alligator. I went there to church last Sunday with Uncle R—, and I heard the minister read from the Bible about the zeal, and it frighten-

All the horses were away at livery stables until the return of the Hardcastie family from Elsie now remembered to have heard that fact mentioned by one of the gentlemen visitors at Charteris.

The stable windows stared at her blank-In stable windows stared at her blank-ly; the place seemed like a yard which she had read of in some curious old tale—a stable-yard which at night would wake up into action, peopled with the phantoms of grooms, and gentlemen rid-ers, and noble horses, which had been moldering bones and buried dust long centuries ago

"Oh! I must get out—I must get out!"
Elsle said aloud. "I must find some door!
I would break a window even, anything, to get out of this hideous, horrible place."

and tried the door—locked, locked, locked we are very hungry most of us are very unamiable. Elsie felt positively savage with her newly-found friends. "They have done it on purpose," she said, in an unreasonable burst of wrath "They got tired of having me there, andand—and it's a plan, a cruel, wicked plan to get rid—rid—rid of me. If I get out I won't go back to Charteris again. If I am only a schoolgirl, whose father is an exile, I am not a slave, and I have not a slave's spirit, I will let them know what I think of them; every one of them."

Dusk was coming on now so fast that this parler, with its half-way shutters, was almost dark. Elsie arose and found her way out into the entrance hall—that was the way she had entered this prison, and she had a faint hope that if she remained there somebody might come and et her out. It was not dark vet in this hall; but the pictured landscapes looked unreal, dreamy, dreadful, in the twilight. There was one which represented a flock of sheep being driven across a bleak, desolate moor, a sullen sky overhead; the herdsman was a bent, withered old peasant in a white smock; on a little eminenc grew two gnarled, distorted trees; a few leaves yet hung on them, and seemed to quiver in the wind, the red glow of a stormy sunset tinging them with a lurid, mystic-light. Seen even by day, and when the summer sunshine came like a spirit of gladness, a messenger from heaven, into this grotesque old hall of Gower House, this picture, called simply "The Sheepwalk before a Storm," had "The Sheepwalk before a storm, had its element of the somber, the ominous; but now, when a real winter sunset was looking through the high, church-like windows, the effect was almost terrible. Elsie fancied that she saw the trees bend in the wind, the sheep rush over the dark ground, and the herdsman throw up his arms. It was only the shadows, of course, but then Elsie was about to pass course, but then Elsie was about to pass long hours of hunger and hopelessness amid these shadows; and they seemed, for the time, to fill her whole life, and to mean more to her than anything that had gone before or was to follow after. There close to the sheepwalk, the picture of a lady, blooming, fair, buxom, dressed in black lace, with a rose at her breast, her dark hair arranged in a frizz of soft curls on her low brow, much in the present fashion; yet if that lady had been alive she would have been 150 years old, and this Elsie knew. Suddenly it seemed to

"I won't look at those pictures any more. It is nothing but the shadows, and the fading light, and the—"
She started and trembled in every limb. A sound which made her blood run cold and her heart beat like a mad, imprisoned bird, was in her ears. Not fancy, not nerves, not shadows—nothing of the kind. A real—real dreadful noise, and it was one that she had heard within that very week when she had awakened from sleep before the schoolroom fire at Coome Hill House-filing, hammering, sawing! Yes, somebody cutting their way through a shutter, or a door, or a paneled wall. Housebreakers! What more natural than that housebreakers should come to a large mansion filled with pictures, and rich draperies, and ornaments of gold, silver and ivory, and what not? Only a most wonderful thing that they had never come before—that was the astonishing that ing thing.
Elsie thought of the escaped tramp.

Elsie thought of the escaped tramp. Now he would find her and kill her! How feeble and filmsy were those ghostly terrors of five minutes ago compared to the wild fear of savage hands at her throat, fearful curses in her ears! Hide? Yes—yes, she must hide if she can—if only she can, but where? They will find her wherever she hides, for they will search the house for plunder; she feels sure of it. Upstairs in one of those ghostly rooms—under one of the beds—or here, crouched behind the thick crimson curtain that hangs before those entrancy doors leading to the other wing while she hesitates she hears a door burst open, and then a laugh—a loud, boisterous, most reassuring laugh—a woman's laugh, hearty, somewhat unmusical, but not in the very least ghostly or man's laugh, hearty, somewhat diffusi-cal, but not in the very least ghostly or unearthly or uncamy. No, it is a laugh of the same kind you would be almost

Good heavens! A woman—a young woman—a lady—a young lady—yes, yes, as ladies go, a real, living young lady, with an abundance of flesh! A very short, very stout, very loud young woman in a riding habit, came in some unaccountable way through some quite unsuspected door, and stood in the midst of the hall, laughing, screaming rather with laughter. Elsie felt that she welcomed her as if she had been a ministering angel.

CHAPTER X. An angel is always good and kind, and always beautiful. Angels are painted in flowing robes; they have wings—soft, great, glorious wings. If some lovely celestial being—some painter's conception of an angel—had come into the dim old hall, it is likely that poor Elsie would

"Good gracious!" said the lady in the chimney-pot. "Wouldn't I let them hear of it when I got back to Charteris! Do you hear that, Owen? Come here and listen to a story respecting your d ariybeloved titled relations at Charteris."

"Nobody will come again today," she said to herself. "I suppose that gardener must come every day to attend to those plants in the conservatory; but how does he lets himself in? It seems to be surrounded by rooms on both sides; it does not lead off into the grounds."

Elsie made up her mind to try and get out of one of the windows on the ground floor. She found them all inaccessible, with bars outside, through which it would have been impossible for her to pass. FOOTBALL CLAIMS ITS FIRST VICTIM.

Chicago Youth Fatally Injured in a Sunday Game Scrimmage its first victim for the season on Sunday, when Charles Bueckman, 887 Kedzie avenue, was crushed and bruised almost beyond hope of recovery. He lies now in the Tabitha Norwegian hospital with his legs and arms paralyzed, a painful reminder of last year's gruesome list of casualties. The doctors say that his case is a most serious one and that there is little chance of his ever getting well.

Bueckman was captain last year of the "Humboldt Tigers," a team that won local reputation on the northwest side. He is 19 years old and a graduate of Central Park Grammar School This year Bueckman joined the Northwest team. On Sunday the eleven met the Social Vans. During the second half young Bueckman got the ball and was making a spectacular run, when he was tackled and thrown. There was a scrimmage, and half a dozen stalwart fellows piled on top of him. Bueckman's head was turned under his body upon his breast, and his spine sustained a terrible

THE BIG FAIR AT STRATHROY!

Exhibits Were Not Numerous, But of Great Excellence.

Showing of Live Stock the Best in Many Years-Hon. J. I. Tarte Unable To Be Present.

The fact that the Hon. J. I. Tarte. minister of public works, whose presence had been advertised, failed to open the Strathroy fair yesterday, did not detract materially from the success of the exhibition. Of course, when it became known that Mr. Tarte could not be present, the disappointment was very general, for the minister of public works is always a welcome visitor in the west; but those who knew the cause of his absence were satisfied to swallow their disappointment. Mr. Tarte was one of the prominent figures in the reception to their royal highnesses, and, of course, it was manifestly impossible for him to come to Ontario.

Nothwithstanding this, the big

Union Fair was a splendid success. True, the exhibits in some depart-ments showed a slight falling off, but their general excellency made up for that. The attendance was almost, if not quite as great as that of last year, this despite very unpleasant weather.

In the absence of Mr. Tarte the fair was formally opened by Mr. W. S. Calvert, M. P. for West Middlesex. Mr. Calvert made a brief speech in which he explained why Mr. Tarte had been detained in Quebec. At 12 o'clock the directors sat down to a luncheon at the Queen's Hotel, with them being the following guests: W. S. Calvert, M. P. for West Mid-dlesex; Malcolm McGugan, M. P. for dlesex; Malcolm McGugan, M. P. for South Middlesex; W. H. Taylor, M. P. P. for North Middlesex; John Farrell, of Forest, president of the East Lambton fair; Sheriff Cameron, of London and Col. McEwen, of Byron. Mr. R. F. Richardson, of Strathroy, president of the Union Fair, presided, and among the other members of the board were Vice-President Grigg, of Cara-doc; Second Vice-President Dowling, of Adelaide; A. Campbell, Adelaide; Richard Dunlop and Henry Gough, of Metcalf; James Ferguson, Caradoc; John McPherson and James Healey Strathroy; Henry Hardy, of Caradoc and James Lee and L. Fertner, Strath-

As before pointed out the exhibits, although not quite so extensive as last year, were of a superior quality. There were in all about 2,400, as against 2,800 last year. The live stock exhibits, on the other hand, were greater than ever before. The show of thoroughbred cattle was particularly good, the entries in the department being 113 strong There were 250 entries in horses-the largest in years. A silver medal was offered for the best team by the Canadian Bank of Commerce, through the manager of the Strathroy branch, Mr. L. H. Dampier. There were over 150 entries in sheep, 75 in swine, 300 in poultry, 125 in grain and seeds, 325 in roots and vegetables, 400 to fruit, 200 in plants and flowers, 75 in dairy articles, 75 in domestic manufacture, 250 in ladies' work and 25 in fine arts.

There was a falling off in the exhibthe prize list, made since last year, with a view of preventing prize - winning articles being shown year after year, and bringing out new goods. Mrs. and Miss Pincombe, of Strathroy, who never fail to compete at the Western Fair. were possibly the largest exhibitors of ladies' work. They were also among the chief exhibitors in plants and flowers, a department in which Mrs. J. T. Payne, of Strathroy, distinguished herself by capturing 35 prizes.

In roots and vegetables, Gordon

Whyte, of Strathroy, who is but 14 years of age, and who was consequently the most youthful competitor, captured eight prizes out of ten entries.

The special attractions were excellent, among them being the clever acro-batic work of Desbro and Parker. Good music was furnished by the Strathroy Citizens' Band, under the direction of Mr. Kohlman. The three speeding events excited great interest. In the single roadster event, Starlight, a Sarnia horse, won three straight heats with ease. In the first heat Texas Josie and Lillian ran foul of the fence and failed to finish. As the mishap was Chicago, Sept. 19 .- Football claimed purely accidental, the judges allowed both horses to start in the next heat. Summary:

Time-2:30, 2:30, 2:32. The inn-keepers' purse was competed for by Paddy D. and Paddy R., owned respectively by W. B. Rowe, Blenheim, and R. T. Roach, Watford. The race was in mile heats, best 3 in 5, and was the most warmly contested event of the day. In three of the four heats the horses kept together throughout the mile and passed the stand with but a foot or so between them. Paddy R. won the first heat, but the next three and the race went to Paddy D. The time vas 2:25, 2:23, 2:23, 2:21. The running race, half-mile heats, was unfinished, only one heat being pulled off. Helen Hume was first, High Life second, Bridal Tour third, Red Rose fourth and First Whip fifth. The starter of the races was J. W. Prangley, and the judges were Dr.

Whitehead and James Cox. The judging this year was in the hands of the following gentlemen: Col McEwen, Byren, draft and agricultural horses; George A. Scott, Ilderton, general purpose horses; Wellington Watterworth, of Glencoe, carriage horses; John McKerricher, Botany, roadster horses: Stephen Nicholson, Sylvan, Durham and grade cattle: John O'Brien, London, Jerseys, Ayrshires and Holsteins; John Wiley, Wiseach, and Frank Woodward. ECHOES OF THE Steamer Athabaska Had a Rough Experience.

Lumber-Laden Barge Lest-Icebergs Sighted on the Atlantic.

Owen Sound, Ont., Sept. 19.-The Canadian Pacific Line steamer Athabasca (Capt. George McDougall) arrived here vesterday from Fort William, after encountering on Lake Superior one of the heaviest gales of the season. The steamer was obliged to lay seven hours under cover off Keewenawan Point. So steamer was obliged to lay seven hours under cover off Keewenawan Point. So severe was the storm that the two stays to the forward mast were sprung. Sceres of vessels took shelter under the White Fish point. So far as could be learned no wrecks have been reported. The Athabasca had on board 55 first class transcontinental passengers, all of whom are loud in their praise of the excellent seamanship displayed by Capt. McDougall and his officers.

Alpena, Mich., Sept. 18.—Lightkepeer Garrity, of the Presque Isle light, early today sighted the lumber-laden barge C. W. Wesley, water-logged and drifting down Lake Huron in the heavy gale that was blowing. The Wesley drifted ashore near the light, and will be a total loss. The crew of the barge were taken off by the tug Castle.

Harbor Beach, Mich., Sept. 18.—The Canadian steamer Bannockburn was released from the beach yesterday noon, leaking slightly in one compartment. She will resume her voyage.

Fort William, Sept. 18.—The overdue steamers City of Collingwood and Manitoba got here last night after going through one of the worst storms ever seen on Lake Superior. The Collingwood laid up under Keewenawan Point on Sunday morning, and stayed there until 8 o'clock yesterday morning. The Manitoba, after plunging in the teeth of the storm for several hours on Sunday, making only one knot per hour, laid up at Michipicoten Island. Capt. Bassett, of the Collingwood, reports coming through a quantity of wreckage, consisting of the bulwarks and part of the cabin of a freight steamer.

Quebec, Sept. 18.—H.M.S. Indefatigable, on her way to Montreal, went aground near the site of the future Quebec bridge, on the Quebec side of the river, about 3:30 a.m. She was successfully put affoat two hours after by the wrecking boats of Mr. Davis, but it was found that she had been considerably damaged. After having been thoroughly examined, the vessel was put in the graving dock at St. Josephs to be immediately repaired.

considerably damaged. After having been thoroughly examined, the vessel was put in the graving dock at St. Josephs to be immediately repaired.

Father Point, Sept. 18—The steamship Memnon (Elder-Dempster Steamship Line), from Bristol inward (Capt. Sheldrake), reports having met an Iceberg in latitude 52.49 north, longitude 52.44 west, and passed several large bergs right in the track of vessels near Belle Isle, and considered very dangerous on dark, rainy nights.

FLAT ON HIS BACK. New York, Sept. 19.—Sir Thomas Lipton is on the flat of his back on the tender Porto Rico, Sandy Hook. He slipped on the Erin's steam launch on Monday, and sprained his ankle. The shock was considerable. Dr. Mackay, his physician, insisted he must lie up for repairs. ONLY FIVE RECRUITS.

THE UNITED STATES CABINET. Washington, Sept. 18.—It was stated on excellent authority today that all the members of the cabinet had accepted the reappointment tendered by President Roosevelt yesterday. The manner in which the president made the tender rendered it almost impossible to take any other course, as the members were already in the positions and could not decline, but must resign their portfolios themselves if they desired to leave the cabinet. More than this, they all believe in the sincerity of the president in desiring their services, and in return they wish to assist him to the full extent of the late President McKinley, which Mr. Roosevelt has adopted for his administration. Another feature of the relations of the new president with the relations of the new president with the relations. tion. Another feature of the relations of the new president with the last administration became known today, to the effect that Mr. Roosevelt had been fully advised and had approved of the negotiations in progress relative to the proposed Isthmian Canal treaty with England.

Iron River, Mich., Sept. 19.-Andy Bovington, who lost one arm in the defense of his country during the war of the rebellion, is just new the hero of the town.
