BRING THANKS HOME

Former Workers, Now in Khaki, Appreciated Comrades Remembrances.

"Christmas boxes, in the form of money orders, sent overseas by the staff of the Grand Trunk car shops to their fellow workers who are now doing their "bit" in France, are being acknowledged in letters received by Superintendant Thomas Trevelyan. More than $500 was sent to the car shops men overseas, and that the car shops men were appreciated is shown by the letters.

Mr. P. G. Povey, in expressing thanks for the remembrances, said to his fellow workers: "I am glad to hear that you will soon have an everlastingly peace, and that we all may be back in God's country soon."

Mr. G. H. Brewster was conversing in England when he received the order. He writes: "I am one of the lucky ones from the car shops. I see that W. Woods and P. Dougherty are reported missing. I had a splendid time at the car shops at Christmas, but I expect to be in the trenches again in a few days. I am glad to hear that you are all well and happy. I give you much pleasure to write thanking you for the letter and money order. I am certainly enjoying it. I hope that my mates at the shops have not forgotten me."

Mr. G. Harding, in part, said: "It gives me much pleasure to write thanking you for the letter and money order. I am certainly enjoying it. I hope that my mates at the shops have not forgotten me."

DAUGHTER GAVE AGED MOTHER VINOL

Now She is Strong and Better Every Day

Pitman, N. J., suffered from a weak, run-down condition. He could not get around to do his usual light duties, for I am 73 years of age and past hard work. My daughter brought me a bottle of Vinol and asked me to try it, and after taking two bottles I have a good appetite, rest well at night and am stronger and better in every way."—Mrs. F. Anderson, Pitman, N. J.

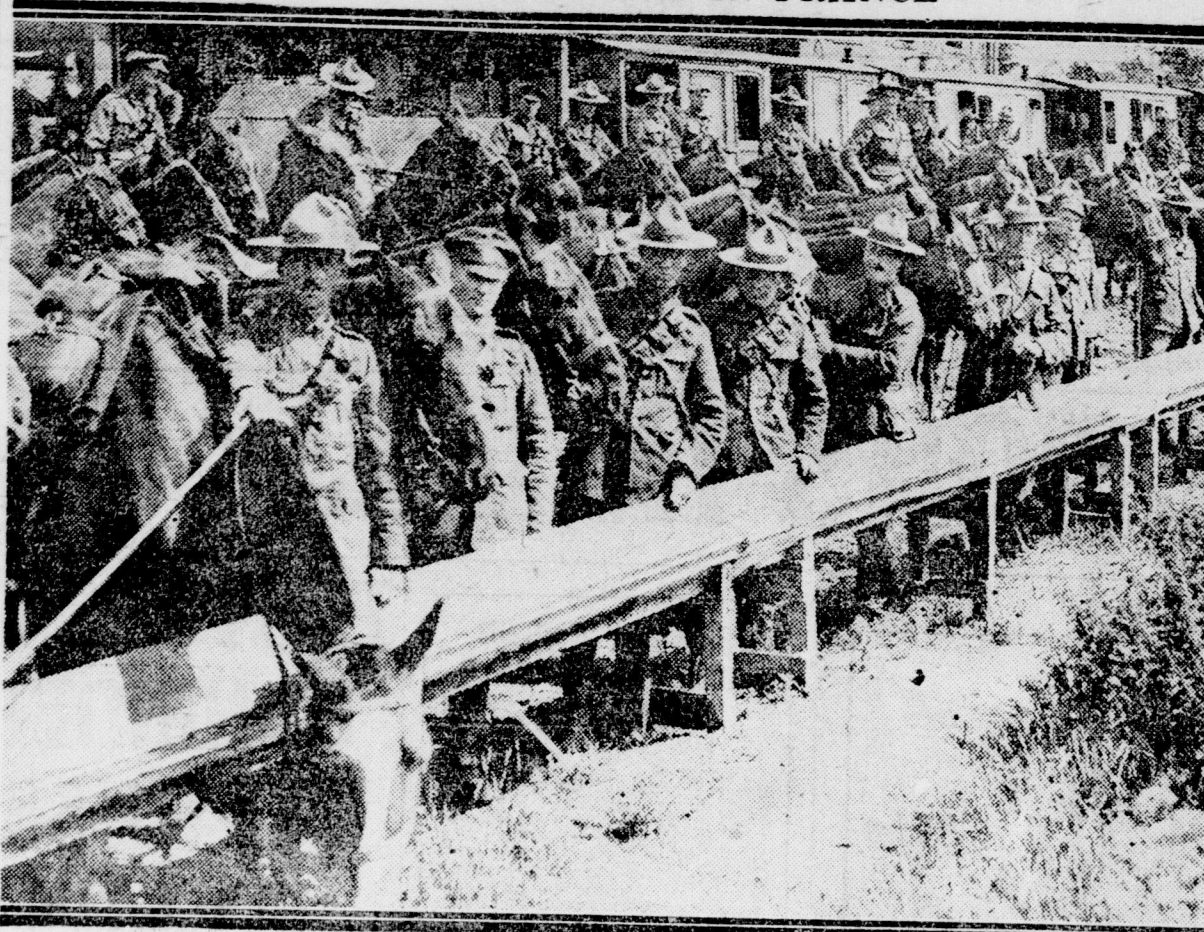

We wish every feeble, aged man and woman in this vicinity would just try this constitutional cod liver and iron tonic on our guarantee to return their money if it fails to benefit. Formula is on every bottle.

MILITARY POLICE LINE UP DA CERS IN SEARCH FOR EVADERS OF M. S. A.

Visit Winter Garden Saturday Night To Round Up Those Who Have Not Obeyed Call To Colors.

That the military authorities mean to leave no stone unturned to round up the last man those who are evading military service in this district, was made plain Saturday night when a cordon of khaki-clad police took charge of the exits to the Winter Garden and demanded to see in writing the reasons that prevented the men present from being in uniform.

The detachment of military police arrived about 10:45, and assisted by two members of the city police, took up their positions at the exits. The announcement was then made that all men present were to come out on the dancing floor. The music was stopped, and the men on the floor were forced to pass before Major Baron O'Sullivan, provost marshal, and those who could not prove to his satisfaction that they were under twenty, over thirty-four, married, or exempt, were retained within the inclosure, while the others were allowed to move out.

Those who could not produce the required evidence were then interviewed, and were asked for their names and addresses. Fifteen or twenty of these were taken to the Armories on Monday night and shown the satisfaction of the military authorities that they were not evading the military service act.

All the men did not go on the floor, but of those who did go on many wished that they had not left their exemption certificates in their other clothes.

Missed the Car.

Nearly an hour had elapsed before the work of interviewing the men who went on the floor was completed, and the men who were not in uniform were taken to the Armories on Monday night and shown the satisfaction of the military authorities that they were not evading the military service act.

Two or three numbers were played after the guard was raised, and the men who were not in uniform were taken to the Armories on Monday night and shown the satisfaction of the military authorities that they were not evading the military service act.

HONOR ROLL UNVEILED AT TALBOT ST. CHURCH CONTAINS 120 NAMES

Gardening Expert Will Speak Here Tuesday Night.

The London Horticultural Society will launch a campaign for 1,000 new members with one for increased backyard gardening for the coming summer. It is offering premiums to new members in the form of bulbs of some beautiful vines, and at the same time plans to purchase many rare flowers which will be distributed among the members at reasonable prices.

The Horticultural Society will put forth its best efforts during the coming spring for increased production, but at the same time it is exhorting its members not to forget to plan their gardens with an eye to the beautiful as well as the useful, by the proper planting of flowers and shrubs.

In launching its campaign for new members the society is doing a step that should be of real benefit to all citizens. It is bringing J. H. Moore, Government Horticulturist of Niagara Falls Park, here tomorrow night. He will speak in the Auditorium on "How to Beautify Our Lawns and City." His lecture will be illustrated, and promises to be of great value to gardeners.

"Make 1918 a better year in the garden than 1917," is the slogan the society has adopted. To lend all possible aid in the work the premium committee has selected some excellent shrubs. It is hoped that gladioli will be distributed in the spring and in the plants that are not generally grown. There are many beautiful and hardy plants that have not been offered for sale. Of course, in connection with the plant premium it must be borne in mind that the chief source of supply is Europe, and at present the Holland market is closed entirely, while supplies from other countries are difficult to obtain.

CHILDREN'S AID REORGANIZING.

A meeting of the Children's Aid Society is in progress this afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. building, Wellington street, for the purpose of appointing committees for the coming year and reorganizing the work.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES ASHAMED TO GO OUT

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face is sadly marred by unsightly pimples, blotches, flesh worms and various other blood diseases.

Their presence is a source of embarrassment to those afflicted, as well as painful and vexatious to their friends.

Many a cheek and brow cast in the mold of beauty have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost, and their possessor rendered unhappy for years.

Why, then, consent to rest under this cloud of embarrassment?

There is an effective remedy for all these defects.

It is Burdock Blood Bitters. This remedy will drive out all the impurities from the blood and leave the complexion healthy and clear.

Mrs. Katherine Henry, Port Sydney, Ont., writes: "Two years ago my face was so covered with pimples I was ashamed to go out at all. I tried several remedies, but they were of no use. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle, and by the time it was used I could see a difference. I then got two more, and when I had used them the pimples were completely gone

JIMMY COON STORIES

By Dr. Warren C. Partridge.
Copyright 1917 by George Matthew Adams.

JIMMY COON PLAYS BLIND MAN'S BUFF AT HOME.

Well, Jimmy Coon still had his head in that tomato can, and couldn't see a wink, and Bobby Skunk was leading him home in the dark night, and they were now close to their home.

Suddenly Jimmy Coon shouted, "Bobby Skunk, have you seen Jimmy Coon tonight?" And before Bobby Skunk could answer, Jimmy Coon was in the direction of Teddy Poosum.

And Jimmy Coon, with his head still inside that tin can, "Poosum, come here, I want to see you!"

And when Teddy Poosum heard that strange and muffled voice out of that tin can, he couldn't believe his own ears, and he was so scared that he ran up his family tree as fast as he could with an evening.

And then Peter Rabbit saw this strange creature, and heard his hoarse and muffled voice, and Peter's legs took Bobby Skunk and the little children took home of Jimmy Coon's tail at the other end, and they pulled and pulled.

DAILY BIBLE QUESTION CLUB

Suggestive questions on the Sunday School Lesson, March 3, 1913. One Text: John 1:1-9. By Rev. T. S. Jackson, D.D.

Jesus Bringing Peace—Mark iv, 35; Mark v, 20.

Questions for Today.

1. Verse 35—On which side of the Jordan Jesus proposed to go?

2. Verse 36—Why would you say or do, that taking Jesus on board our boat, insures a calm and safe passage to our journey's end? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

3. Verse 37—How do you explain that such a great storm could take place while Jesus was on the ship?

Golden Text—Jehovah hath done great things for us, whereof we are not ashamed.

LIFE IS A GREAT THING.

All the truly great things done in the world, and done for us, are the works of Jehovah. Life itself is a great thing; no person, or power, can produce original life but Jehovah. The scientists have been trying for many years to produce life, but they have not succeeded. All our experience of life is that it is produced by previous life. Life is a great mystery even in its humblest manifestation, and human life with its complex condition of body, soul and spirit, is a thing wholly inexplicable. It has always been the marvel of investigators and always will be. The possibilities that are coiled up in the tiniest baby are beyond exaggeration.

And at last the tin can came off the head of Jimmy Coon so suddenly that Father and Mother Coon fell backwards, heads over heels, and Bobby Skunk and all the children fell heels over head backwards in the opposite direction, for Jimmy Coon was pulling back very hard to help his mother get that terrible can off his head.

But Jimmy Coon kept calling for help, and screaming "Mother, mother! Help, help! Don't you know the voice of your own son, Jimmy Coon?"

Jimmy's voice was very hoarse and husky, but at last Mrs. Coon heard that strange voice floating in her apartments in the Henlock Flats, and she rushed out of her room, crying, "Get up quick, Father Coon, I fear that Jimmy is in trouble!"

And Jimmy Coon jumped out of bed and led all the Coon family down the stairs. But when they reached the ground floor, they saw that strange creature blindfolded and heard that muffled, hoarse voice.

But Bobby Skunk called out, "Father Coon, come here quick. This is your son, Jimmy Coon, and he's in awful trouble." And Father and Mother Coon and all the children rushed to help Jimmy Coon out of his trouble. And Father and Mother Coon took hold of the tin can at one end of Jimmy Coon, and Bobby Skunk and the little children took hold of Jimmy Coon's tail at the other end, and they pulled WHEATLEY.—At the weekly meeting of the L. O. D. E., held at the home of Mrs. J. McDonald, thirteen boxes were packed and sent to soldiers.

CARGILL.—The ladies of the Red Cross packed about 40 boxes for the boys in France and England this week. The program consisted of a challenge debate, "Resolved, that the United States is a greater nation than Great Britain," between the Ebenezer Rural Improvement Club and the Robokly Club. The affirmative side was most ably upheld by Rev. Mr. Donley, Frank Lovell and Miss Rutledge, while Mrs. Mack Campbell, Miss McDermott, Stanley Graham, the home team, upheld the negative. The judges, Miss McPherson, Mr. Atkins and Mr. Putt, had a strenuous task deciding the winners, as the two sides were well matched on a little different ground, the negative considering Great Britain and the affirmative side, which was the case of Great Britain only. Their decision was at last made, giving the negative one point.

Then came the selling of the boxes. Mrs. Alex. McLean, wearing the hammer very ably. They sold from $1.25 to $5.50, the 45 boxes bringing $30.20. The tickets for the pair of socks valued at $3.50. Tickets were sold to the value of $3.50, making the total receipts for the pair $13.50, and total box social receipts $32.25.

The Robokly ladies, although few in number, are doing a good work. Their January parcel shipped to Hyman Hall containing 30 flannel shirts and 15 pairs of socks, valued at $22.50.

BLENNHEIM.—The annual meeting of the Marlborough Chapter, L. O. D. E., was held in the council chambers, with a good attendance. The members of the chapter for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

His worthy regent, Mrs. Margaret Story; regent, Mrs. W. H. Beeston; 2nd vice-regent, Mrs. W. D. Samson; 3rd vice-regent, Miss Alma Gibb; corresponding secretary, Miss L. Ferguson; treasurer, Mrs. J. O. Laird; standard-bearer, Miss Adeline Snow.

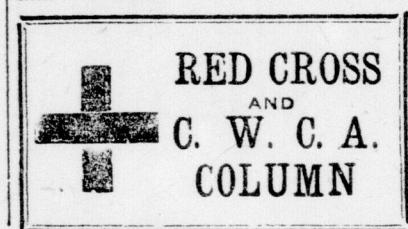

A summary of the work accomplished during the past year was given in the report of the recording secretary, which was as follows:

During the year the chapter has raised money in various ways. At the beginning of the year it secured from the town council a grant of $50 per month

Nicholas Wilson Chapter Still Appeals for Books.

The Nicholas Wilson Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire has been giving the public a splendid opportunity to contribute to the library which is being furnished by them in the Byron Sanatorium, in which it has been holding a public book shower during the month of February. Many books have been coming in, and the chapter is very grateful for these, but feels that many more will be needed. Only a few days remain of the month, and it is hoped that the people of London are merely putting off to the last moment what they have intended doing all the time. The men who have sacrificed so much and who have now a great deal of time on their hands, owing to the disease which they have contracted in the service of their country, should help while away the weary hours, and who could better present this material than those to whom they have been made to suffer.

HURRY OR YOU MAY MISS IT.

If there is any circle of Red Cross workers in Western Ontario who are anxious to contribute to the library, let them be quick. The chapter is now in a hurry to get the books to the hospital. For the men who have sacrificed so much and who have now a great deal of time on their hands, owing to the disease which they have contracted in the service of their country, should help while away the weary hours, and who could better present this material than those to whom they have been made to suffer.

So do not delay, but send along your contribution as soon as possible, and have a part in this blessed work. There is a fine list to choose from at all prices, from the electric light fixtures at $1,000 to a nice little locker room costing only $150. But the list is not long and will soon be smaller. Please make all the checks payable to the treasurer of the chapter, Miss M. E. Cooper, Hyman Hall, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Sunday, or by mail.

That Constant Supply.

We are still being swamped with mail orders for the books. They are continually coming to units in the field and are very useful. Here is what one boy says about the people at home who are working for him:

"The gifts of different kinds that are continually coming to units in the field are very useful. Here is what one boy says about the people at home who are working for him:

"We surely couldn't ever let that supply dwindle after a message like that. It is just what we need to see to it that we have to have a supply of books. But our boys are dying for us."

This is the condition of the prisoners' department of the French Red Cross Society, which is the condition of prisoners in Germany.

It is difficult by letter to give details as to the lot of our unfortunate French prisoners. All I can tell you in this report is that they are in a very poor state of health. They are being returned from captivity—state the same fact, that except for the parcels sent to them, they would not live. The ration allotted them by the German Government is only 150 grams of food.

This is the pitiable condition of the French prisoners, and we may be sure that the British army will probably have worse, if possible, for the hatred of all things British is in the hearts of the German people. We must feed these poor boys of ours. Only $2.50 a month will do it. No Red Cross society should be without a supply of books. They are supporting, and there are many societies who could take several. There is a great need for books, and to your circle is given the privilege of standing between him and starvation. There are surely not many of us who could refuse him food.

And let us not forget that it is not alone the starving soldier boy to whom we are ministering. There is another, the mother of the boy, who will say to the givers of their bounty:

"I was an hungry, and ye gave me meat!" I was in prison and ye came unto me."

Do You Feed Any of These?

possible for them in a short time to produce enough socks to satisfy the urgent demand of the officer at the front.

The matter was laid before the Red Cross and C.W.C.A. executives at Hyman Hall, and instantly things began to move. Cable lines across the Atlantic to C.W.C.A. headquarters in England.

"Send Chaplain Steele, Canadian headquarters, France, 300 socks."

And in a wonderfully short time back came a letter from England, answering: "In accordance with your request, we have sent 300 pairs of socks to Capt. Steele, who, I understand, is the Salvation Army chaplain attached to headquarters."

And not only that: Capt. Steele was requested to continue over to C.W.C.A. headquarters in England for socks every month and for just as many as he wanted.

But, Oh, the Knitting!

Now isn't that infinitely wiser than the popular method of frantically gathering friends together and madly dashing off a few pairs of socks, which will arrive many weeks after they are required? The wise way to work is through the C.W.C.A. headquarters. But can we face the knitting that is required to keep a stock in England to draw from? It means more than knitting when we are doing. And it means giving up all other knitting. It means knitting a pair of socks and a sweater you want. But never mind, you may be saving the life of a soldier boy by knitting him a pair of socks, and surely that is better than all the handmade sweaters which the world's fashion

What About the Trunk Campaign?

Dear Miss Grey—I see in the paper where someone is going to make a collection of all the old trunks and trunks to turn them into coffee for the boys at the front. Now, Miss Grey, I would like your advice about this. It is all right, and will be really good for the boys, but I don't want to give the few little things I have saved up unless the fund is going to be really some good. Do you think they can get much money from it, Miss Grey?

The Electric Mattress an Effective Aid in Pneumonia

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG,
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins University.)

DR. HIRSHBERG

Pneumonia seems to be the super-giant of all the armies of mankind's enemies. Reports indicate that pneumonia as a cause of death would have a run-away race with its nearest competitor, tuberculosis. Medical science has made little, if any, headway against this bacterial infection of the lungs. The collected observations and figures upon pneumonia made at the Johns Hopkins Hospital indicate that pneumonia has killed this year in and out through almost a generation almost one person in every three it attacks.

The only real advance that has been made by human forces against the treacherous, Teuton-like assassinations of pneumococci has been the discovery by Dr. Rufus L. Cole of the Rockefeller Institute, Dr. Cole found that ordinary pneumonia is caused by four different types of the pneumococcus, one of which can be used successfully to make an anti-pneumonia serum for those infected by this particular type of bacteria.

The First Steps.
About 15 or 20 years ago Sir William Osler and his colleagues brought down a storm of criticism upon themselves for treating patients with pneumonia in the dead of winter or on cold days on open roofs.

This seemed to carry enthusiasm for the fresh air a bit too far. The number of "double pneumonia" and pneumonia fatalities appeared to increase—certainly the mortality rate was not reduced.

A little after that time it was suggested that the benefits to be derived from fresh air, so sorely needed by the aged-up lungs, could be better obtained by raising the air to blood heat and the victim required it by cold or already distressed lungs.

How It's Used.
Sir William Osler, the distinguished English physician, announces that a seriously ill patient should be placed in the numbers and percentage of pneumonia victims.

Dr. Dyce Duckworth and Dr. William Osler, with Mr. H. J. Galloway, have installed electric mattresses in all the wards of two wards at the Cripples' Hospital, Alton, England. This has in a manner helped to keep the blood, skin and lungs warm, and the things needed in pneumonia.

A flexible wire enters at the head of the mattress through an electrical terminal. The wire is insulated with glass beads. The mattress is heated in such a way that the hottest area is at the foot, less in the middle, and none at all at the head.

A switchboard at the head of the bed controls and graduates the heat. All told, the plan has worked well and safely outdoors as well as indoors. It is harmless, and cannot injure the victim of pneumonia, although it is too early to state exactly how much good will be done by this method. So far the facts point to several recoveries which seemed hopeless.

Answers to Health Questions

W. X. Y. Z.—Q.—I suffer greatly with severe pain in the arms from the elbow to the finger-tips. Will you please advise a remedy?

A.—You should have an examination made to determine the real cause. In the meantime, Swedish movements, electric battery, manipulation and massage may help to assuage the pain.

ALICE.—A.—If you will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope, with your query repeated, I shall be very glad to give you the desired information.

A READER.—Q.—Is it good to use on the hair for dandruff? I have used it for some time, but I cannot see any improvement.

A.—I am sorry I cannot give you any advice on the article you mention. I make it a rule never to discuss advertised remedies.

W. E. T.—Q.—Will you please tell me what to do for blackheads?

A.—A gentle massage with a sterilized piece of absorbent cotton, followed by an application made up of the following is very good for blackheads:

Puller earth 4 drams
Glycerine 3 drams
Carbolic acid 10 drops
Vinegar 2 drams

MRS. C. B. T.—Q.—Will you kindly tell me what to do to fatten a skinny neck?

2. What will whiten a yellow neck?
A.—Deep breathing before an open window, swimming, gymnastics, standing and walking erect with shoulders back will help to fill out chest. Other aids are an electric battery and massage with olive oil.

3. The following is an admirable preparation for bleaching the skin:
Glycerine 1 ounce
Rosewater 1 ounce
Carbolic acid 10 drops
Tincture of benzoin 10 drops

Dr. Hirschberg will answer questions for readers of this paper on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. He cannot always undertake to prescribe or offer advice for individual cases. Where the subject is not of general interest letters will be answered personally, if a stamped and addressed envelope is inclosed. Address all inquiries to Dr. L. K. Hirschberg, care of this office.

A READER, Chatham, Ont.—Q.—What can I do for crowfoot around the eyes?

2. What causes a slight headache? I get one every night.

3. What is the cause of constipation?

4. What can I do to stop the hands from being so red when coming out of the cold?

5. A swollen face with coccinella, butter or corn oil. A happy, cheerful, non-envious disposition may help to soothe them away.

6. Probably your headaches are caused by your eyes. Have them examined by an oculist. Also eat plenty of fresh green foods and get plenty of outdoor exercise.

7. One of the ways to do away with constipation is to arrange the diet so that plenty of fruits and vegetables are in it, particularly salads and tomatoes. To some, oatmeal is a laxative, but not to all. Bran bread is better than that made from white flour. A fixed hour each day should be set for attention to the demands of the intestines, whether there is a desire or not. This, preferably immediately after breakfast and supper. Massage of the abdomen in a circular motion five to fifteen minutes three times a day helps.

8. Apply a little of the following to the hands:
Pink calamine 2½ drams
Zinc oxide 2 drams
Glycerine 3 drams
Phenol 39 drops
Lime water 2 ounces
Rosewater 2 ounces

9. Mix together the minced chicken and rice, add milk and the seasonings, and when thoroughly mixed the stiffly-beaten white of egg. Pour into a greased baking dish, sprinkle with breadcrumbs and place in the oven to brown.

10. Turkish Chicken.
2 cups of diced, cooked chicken
cupful of cooked rice
2 cups of chicken stock or hot water

11. Cook the rice in the chicken stock or hot water to which salt and onion juice have been added. Cover and let cook until the rice absorbs all the liquid, then add the strained tomato juice and cook until this is absorbed by the rice. Meantime a little butter in a saucepan, add the browned chicken, then pour the chicken into the rice, add butter, cover and let simmer slowly for 20 minutes.

12. If you wish some special recipe for fowl write direct to Isabel Brands, The Applecroft Experiment Station, Greenwald, N. Y., inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a personal reply.

It may be only begun and Easter a far-distant dream—nations may rise and fall and the whole world writhe in chaos—but thoughts of the Easter Hat WILL come. Only a vision now, a tentative, preparatory scheme for SOME hat, soon it will crystallize into just the RIGHT one for HER. And who can deny the message it bears even to the merest mere man when the Easter chimes ring out on the hopeful air and the joy of the realization of her dream is reflected in the radiance of HER face.

WINIFRED BLACK Writes About Poor Mrs. Butterfly

(Copyright, 1918, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

Winifred Black

The butterfly wants to be a bee—poor butterfly!

She came in to see me this morning, and told me all about it.

At first I wanted to smile; then I wanted to be cross, and then I wanted to cry, and then I wished I could take her right in my arms and give her a nice bowl of brood and milk, a nice bowl with dragons on it, or a little bridge and a lot of house and the milk had cream, and the bread home-made, with plenty of crusts, and I think I'd have it salt-rising, at that.

Then I'd rock her to sleep and let her cry all she wanted to, on my shoulder while she was going by—and I'd lay her down in a nice, little white bed, in a quiet little blue and white room, with cheerful yellow curtains at the window and a bowl of yellow tulips on the table.

I'd pull down the blind and let the sun in, and put my finger on my lip and tell everybody, "Sh-h-h!" But first I would cover her up warm and warm, and soft, and soft, with a blue and white edge-down—and I would let her sleep and sleep and sleep—poor butterfly!

And maybe when she woke up she wouldn't be a little girl that looks like a woman any more, but a woman who looks like a little girl, and that's always so much nicer, and so much easier to

"I must do something," said Butterfly. "I really must. You see, the baby is beginning to walk now, and Tom's salary isn't big enough for all the things we need, and I get so nervous about it in the house, and it's awfully hard work taking care of a baby that can run away and toddle into the pantry and the basket of eggs down on his head, and tip over the milk pitcher and throw the clothespins out of the window, and then run into the living-room and put things in the fire, and any minute he might—do you know?"

"Besides, I feel the need of work—myself, regular, systematic work, don't you know—to keep me busy and give me something to think about and let me earn some money—there's a perfectly sweet pair of blue shoes up at the shop on the corner, and a little blue cap to match, and Baby Bunting would look too dear for words in them. No, he doesn't exactly need them. He has a pair of everyday trotters, and some red ones for best, but how cute he would look in those blue shoes!"

"And I want a new record for the photograph, and there's a bid cage at the Japanese shop that would just match the basket of eggs down on his head, and I simply adore to buy it, and besides—"

Butterfly's eyes grew very big and very solemn. "We're in debt, and Tom worries about it. I like to keep just as plain, and I'd like to help, and isn't there something you can give me to do, or get for me, or something? I'd try very hard, and I don't think I'm exactly a fool!"

There wasn't a thing for poor Butterfly to do, not a thing—with me, or with any of my friends. She doesn't know how to work—she just knows how to play, and now, when she can't play any longer, what is she going to do?

Poor Butterfly—at work? Why, she'd turn any office in town upside down in a week. She'd bring flowers for the manager's desk, and a buttonhole bouquet for the cashier and over the cracks in the sidewalk. Others were making roadways, and some were building wonderful houses with underground storerooms. Several were trying out his food and laying them on the ground.

"Our stores got wet when it rained, so the servants are spreading them out to dry," said Red Ant.

They went inside Red Ant's house and several black ants were carrying their food to the kitchen, washing them to go for a walk in the sunshine.

"These are the nurses," said Red Ant. "Not long ago we captured a colony of black ants and took them prisoners of war. Their babies make the best slaves. Our branch of red ants doesn't like to work, so we have to have some one to do our work for us."

Just then a tiny black ant entered and carried Red Ant's son away and put him to bed. So Dicky said it was time to go home, and Red Ant led him up the sand tunnel into the sunshine.

All the way home Dicky was very careful not to step on the little sand houses, for he knew it only meant more work for the little black slaves, and Dicky felt very sorry for them. He wished there was an Ant Lincoln to set them free.

Why Be a Bee?
No one would get a thing done, and everyone would wonder why, and when she had all the flies mislaid and all the addresses lost, and forgotten all the telephone numbers, and called up all the wrong people—she'd take a fancy to go somewhere else to another office where the decorations were more becoming to her complexion—then there we'd be, gasping—relieved and furious at the same minute.

Poor Butterfly—I wish she wouldn't want to be a bee.

She never can be, and there's no earthly use for her to try.

Those whose birthday it is should move with such coolness and deliberation, avoiding litigation. A child born on this day will have many excellent qualities of mind, gaining distinction as a student.

"Well, I never heard of such a thing," laughed Dicky.

"I could tell you a great deal about ant life that you've never heard about," replied Red Ant, and he invited Dicky back into the little sand pile city.

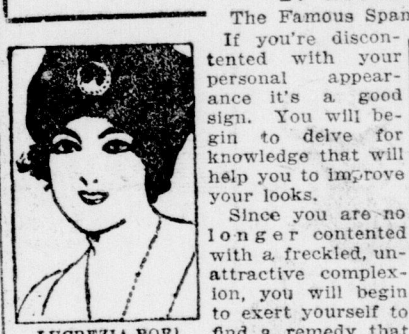

"Have You Seen Any Cows?"
At first the little black ants that stood guard on the branch weren't going to let Dicky up, but Red Ant convinced them Dicky was a friend so they let him pass. There on the rose leaves sat hundreds of tiny grass plant life filling themselves with the sweet juices that came from the rose leaf.

"These are our cows," said Red Ant. "Well, I never heard of such a thing," laughed Dicky.

Discontent--How It Will Lead to the Real Road to Beauty

BY LUCREZIA BORI

LUCREZIA BORI

If you're discontented with your personal appearance it's a good sign. You will begin to strive for knowledge that will help you to improve your looks.

Since you are no longer contented with a freckled, unattractive complexion, you will begin to exert yourself to find a remedy that will remove the freckles and improve the texture of your skin.

The more discontented you are the harder you will try to eliminate your defects. One remedy having failed to bring about the desired results, you will try another and another until you discover the right one for you.

Discontent with an old method of treating your hair and scalp will inspire you to try something new. You may have been using a certain brand of hair tonic for years, but have suddenly discovered that your tresses are losing their lustre and coming out by the handfuls. Not being satisfied with this condition of affairs you try a different tonic and keep on trying until you find one effective in the new condition.

Take Stock Now.
Are you discontented with your appearance when you don an evening gown? You realize that never before in your existence have the bones of your neck been so prominently on your arms so long and scrawny-looking. You may have been the sort of person who, heretofore, has thought very little about cultivating good looks, but discontent will cause you to think differently. You will begin to apply cocoa-butter, almond oil or skin food to the bony portions of your anatomy, hoping to fill the hollows and round the angles with flesh. For the first time in your life you will show some interest in exercising. You may know little or nothing about deep breathing or handling dumb-bells, but for the sake of your hollow chest and narrow shoulders you will learn all about these methods of physical improvement.

The fact that your lips and cheeks are colorless and your skin possesses an unattractive pallor will make you dissatisfied with your appearance. You pay a visit to your family physician, who pronounces you in an anemic condition and immediately prescribes a blood-building tonic and a special diet, and tells you to live out-of-doors as much as possible. The result will be an improvement in health and a decided change for the better as far as beauty is concerned.

Care of the Hands.
Discontent with the unlovely appearance of your hands will prompt you to take better care of them. You will not only pay a weekly visit to the manicurist, but will give your hands the care required to keep the skin soft, white and smooth. This means that each night before retiring you will rub a softening lotion or cream into your hands and when bathing them use a bland soap and soft water.

If you are discontented with your looks—not in a capricious, immature, whining way, but a good sign. Prove to yourself how much well-placed discontent will inspire you to improve your appearance.

Practical Suggestions on Individual Ways to Help Win the War

By ALBERT BARRETT SAYRES

Being a "Home Soldier."
More and more is becoming clear to those whose places are at home that they are an important part of the national defence.

The soldiers at the front must have behind them a closely-knit army of men and women to assure victory. From the units who transport the guns, ammunition, food and all the other things so necessary to the fighting, to the individuals in workshops and on farms, in producing and in saving occupations, each does his part for success as certainly as the soldier who aims the gun and fires the shot. The housewife who saves food in the kitchen, even the children who waste nothing at table are home soldiers.

What sort of a home soldier are you? What are you doing to increase the amount of food available to send to our defenders at the front? The child who refuses to eat wheat bread on weekdays is a better soldier than the man who orders meat and eats it on weekdays.

Is your home—every step from the doorstep to the eating—organized on the basis of a soldier's honor?

Using More Milk.
Those who have their own cows, or who are near a large milk supply—and this includes every one of us who lives in a city near which much milk is produced—may well save meat and increase the health of the family by using milk more.

Children should have milk at each meal. Each child ought to have at least a pint of milk a day, but a quart of milk is better ration. Be sure this is "whole" milk.

Those who don't like milk as a beverage may be given it in other forms. Here is one novel way:

To the quart of milk add a cupful of cooked kidney beans and a cupful of cottage cheese, half a cupful of ground peanuts, a tablespoonful of chopped onion, a cupful of breadcrumbs, two tablespoonfuls of drippings or savory fat, a cupful of cooked tomato, a cupful of cooked rice and salt and pepper to taste. Mold into the form of a loaf and bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes. Serve with plums or green pepper sauce.

Serving Leftover Fish.
What do you do with the fish that is left over? Many who haven't the proper conception of the food value of fish throw it away when it proves more than enough for one meal.

You can serve yesterday's leftover fish in a most attractive way by making scalloped fish. The milk sauce makes it an excellent substitute for meat. The fish and see how delicious it is.

KITCHEN ECONOMIES

Four Novel Ways to Make

methods of cooking try the stew route. For while there are only two or three ways in which chicken may be roasted, there is no limit to the differences in flavor which may be added to chicken stew.

Spanish Stewed Chicken.
1 chicken
1 can of peas
1 can of tomatoes
2 onions
1 green pepper
2 tablespoonfuls of butter
Salt, pepper, flour.

Cut up the chicken, wipe each piece, carefully, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Meit the butter in the saucepan or casserole, and when hot place the chicken in it to brown. When browned, remove the chicken and add to the butter in the pan the chopped onion, cook for a moment, then add tomatoes and chopped pepper. Simmer for 10 minutes, add the chicken and enough cold water to cover. Put the lid on tightly and stew until tender.

Chinese Chicken.
1 chicken
½ teaspoonful of salt
2 tablespoonfuls of sugar
1 tablespoonful of lard
2 tablespoonfuls of chili sauce
2 cups of vinegar

Place the cleaned chicken, boned, in stone crock or casserole and cover with the boiling vinegar. In which salt and sugar have been melted. Cover, and stew in a cool place 24 hours. When ready to cook make a gravy of onion fried in fat. Remove the chicken from the vinegar, cut into sections and place in the onion gravy. Add a little water and simmer for 20 minutes.

Delicious Chicken Stews.
Riced Chicken.
1 cupful of minced chicken
1 cupful of boiled rice
1 White of egg
2 tablespoonfuls of brown bread-crumbs
Salt, celery and nutmeg
Top milk

Mix together the minced chicken and rice, add milk and the seasonings, and when thoroughly mixed the stiffly-beaten white of egg. Pour into a greased baking dish, sprinkle with breadcrumbs and place in the oven to brown.

Turkish Chicken.
2 cups of diced, cooked chicken
cupful of cooked rice
2 cups of chicken stock or hot water
1½ teaspoonful of salt
1½ teaspoonful of onion juice
2 cups of strained tomato juice
2 tablespoonfuls of butter

Cook the rice in the chicken stock or hot water to which salt and onion juice have been added. Cover and let cook until the rice absorbs all the liquid, then add the strained tomato juice and cook until this is absorbed by the rice. Meantime a little butter in a saucepan, add the browned chicken, then pour the chicken into the rice, add butter, cover and let simmer slowly for 20 minutes.

Oats—March, 88 1/2c; May, 86 1/2c.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Big receipts had a bearish effect today on the corn market. Arrivals at Chicago, Ontario, Minn.
and Minneapolis aggregated 1,742 cars, the largest total yet on the crop. President Wilson's action in shutting off any likelihood of a higher guaranteed price on wheat tended also to favor the bearish feeling.

Wheat varied from the same as Saturday's close to 1/4c lower, with March at $1 27 1/2c and May at $1 28 1/2c.
They were followed by slight further setbacks.

Oats gave way under general pressure to sell. The same factors which were effective in the corn market encouraged the bulls in oats. After opening 1/4c to 3/4c down, with May at 86 1/2c, they continued to show a tendency to sag.
