STREETS ARE FULL OF HOLES SOME POINTERS FOR ALDE

Street Railway Rails Are Too High in Many Places-Names of Streets Are Given So That City Representatives May See for Themselves.

The strong letter of Dr. R. Ferguson, concerning the streets in this city, has called the attention of the citizens generally to conditions in London, The average citizen is convinced that his statement of facts is quite true, and that there is need of a general improvement in the streets of the

It may be enunciated as a general principle that wherever the street railway has tracks on a street that street is in bad condition. This is true of South London from end to end. A majority of the tracks are inches above the road, and it is dangerous for both rigs and autos to take these

SOME BAD ONES.

On Stanley street, near the bridge, on Dundas street, where the cars enter the Fair Grounds; on Wellington street south of Horton street, practically to the outskirts of the city; in West London and on Oxford street, there are scores of bad places, so bad that the complaints against them are legion. These streets are, of course, not the only ones in need of repair,

Queen's avenue from Maitland to Adelaide is as full of holes as a Swiss King street, from Wellington to Maitland-that glorious old pavement with a history—makes a corduroy road look like a sheet of glass.

Central avenue is the limit. The entrance to Victoria Park, from the corner of Wellington street, and Dufferin avenue, is the limit No. 2.

The main streets are as a rule beyond words to express their condition. JUST MERE FACTS. These conditions have existed for some time-they are not the product of yesterday. Owing to the false economy, the amount of money appropriated each year for repairs has been reduced to the lowest possible sum, until repairing has become a byword, and improvement a joke. The result of this policy is that the roads have now reached a condition that is simply incomprehensible, and will certainly cause some discussion in

Ald. Richter will press his suggestion that more permanent roadways be laid on the local improvement basis. By this method the city will be equipped with real roads, he thinks, while the waste of money expended each year on fruitless repairs will be saved for better purposes. The board of works will tackle the problem at an early date, and every possible effort be made to improve conditions.

Goderich, June 14.-Following the action of the Ontario West Shore Railway in replacing the crossing of its line at Dunlop, torn up by the farmers of Colborne Township, the township council made application to the Ontario railway and municipal board to have the crossing removed, and Messrs. A. B. Ingram, H. N. Kittson and H. C. Small, secretary, were here yesterday to deal with the matter. The board intimated that the crossing was in the right place, and advised that the dispute be settled, in the meantime witholding a formal decision. A great deal of interest was manifested in the investigation, residents of the town and township crowding the court room to the doors, Fifteen of the men who tore up track are being criminally prosecuted.

Terrible Panic Followed the Collapse and Inmates Were Rescued From Windows by Scores-Pathetic Scenes as Friends and Relatives Search for Their Dead.

Montreal, June 14.—Two bodies were taken out of The Herald ruins up to 11:30. They were those of Messenger Gundy and Ruben Morrison, a stereotyper. These names are not included in the 29 names published in the morning papers as being dead or missing. As there is no alteration in this list so far, this brings the lost up to 31, and it is feared this total is more likely to increase than to diminish.

The names of The Herald fire victims so far recovered are: Laura Amesse, forewoman of the bindery, Doron street; Frank Constitt, printer, 721 Delomier avenue; Pierre F. Quin tal, aged 48, printer, 1881 St. Denis street; unknown girl.

TORONTO PAPER TALKS OF TROUBLE

Says the Irish and French Catholics of Ontario Are at Loggerheads.

CASE OF BISHOP FALLON

Ottawa Incident Is Referred to-Some Discussion of the Matter in the French Papers, ditorially: Uneasiness is felt by many English-speaking Catholics over the invasion in some districts of Frenchspeaking people. The News in a recent article showed how some Separate schools which have been English generations are being gallicised. This article most of the French papers are discussing with some spirit. Le l'emps, of Ottawa, says that the French bishops have never tried to impose the French language upon the people in their charge, and that there is certainly no desire to ostracise English-speaking Catholics. It also asserts that the French clergy always speak both languages, while too often the English clergy are unable to minister to French parishioners in their own tongue. Probably this is true. This points is also made by L'Action Sociale, of Quebec, a newspaper which is under the direct supervision of the Quebec Hierarchy, and, therefore, no doubt, speaks with authority. L'Action Sociale is not particularly kind in its references to the Irish French-Canadians that the time is come to consider their rights and the conservation of their Appeals to Conciliation. They understand that these appeals to conciliation and forgetfulness with respect to the questions of language have no other end but to favor the solution of these questions for the benefit of a turbulent minority. French majorities in some Ontario counties do not desire to proscribe English in their schools. They ask only that the teaching of French should be properly organized." Reference is made also by L'Action Sociale to the minority "which has the audacity to pose as a victim."

Irish in Quebec.

La Patrie asserts that in Quebec Irish clergy have a very large part of the dignities and honors of the church while in Ontario French-Canadians often have difficulty in obtaining pastors speaking their tongue. The demand of the French people in province to have teachers who can speak French is said by La Patrie to ada contentedly believes that no complaints are being made by the Irish Le Devoir, on the trary, attacks viciously the Catholic Register because it has complained of ne gallicising of Ontario schools.

Bishop Fallon's Troubles. It is rather noteworthy that, ough the main argument of The News' article was based on the history of Ottawa College, none of the French papers that referred to the situation even so much as mentioned that institution.

None referred to the difficulties Father Fallon met with, nor to the necessity that drove him to Buffalo. One paper said that Mgr. Fallon had been preferred to Mgr. Meunier for Bishop of London, although nearly half the faithful in that diocese were French-Canadians.

There is a real grievance amongst the English-speaking Careal grievance tholics, not because French is being taught in certain schools, but because it is being taught to the exclusion of English. The fact will not be altered by calling the Irish a "turbulent min-The News has no desire to oppress the French settlers, and, if it is the desire of a majority in any district that French should be taught, no one will object so long as English is not neglected. But no English family should be forced to move away from a home which it has had for years because the children cannot be properly

LONDON, TUESDAY, JUNE 14. THE MONTREAL DISASTER.

The sympathy of the country wil go out to the relatives of the victims of the disaster in Montreal. It will be extended also to Mr J S Brierley and his colleagues of the Montreal Herald. They are likewise the victims of a calamity for which they bear no moral responsibility. The water tank which collapsed had been erected by experts, and only four or five months ago the building was certified to be absolutely safe by a firm of architects called in to examine it. Mr. Brierley is a former Londoner, and began his career at the foot of the ladder, which he has since mounted rapidly through his unaided ability. He took over the Montreal Herald at a critical time, and made it one of the most prosperous and influential journals in the country. It is to be hoped the work of a lifetime has not fallen in ruins, like the

These negotiations do not necessarily foreshadow a compromise. More likely the chief intent is to spare the King in the first few months of his reign. There is a mass of financial mer discussions of the question. The legislation requiring attention at once, including the budget for the current year. Probably the Government and the Opposition will agree to give these less contentious matters preced- to elegize an ass." Punch prints a long ence, in order that the constitutional poem on the late King's favorite terissue may be postponed until the autumn. In that event a general election could be held in January, if the King desired to refer the anti-veto resolutions to the country.

The Government could not recede from its position without forfeiting the support of the Irish and Labor parties. It would alienate also a large body of its Radical supporters. It would become dependent upon the Opposition in the present House of Commons and would go down to defeat in the country. There is nothing in the circumstance of the King's death to impose such a sacrifice on the Liberal party, even in the name of loyalty. It will, in all probability, be found there is no such meaning to almost unique attitude toward a govthe present pourparlers and that the battle upon the constitutional principle is to be merely deferred, not

In the past five years there has been a remarkable expansion of trade with foreign countries and the overseas dominions. #### THE PEAK LOAD.

The principle of the peak load is clearly illustrated in two local cases, in which it works two ways.

If Niagara power were used, ost of pumping at the waterworks, according to Engineer Glaubitz, would be reduced $360 a month.

On the peak load plan the greatest quantity of power used during 20 consecutive minutes on any day in the month-i, e., the peak load-would be the quantity at which the waterworks would be charged for every day of the nonth. Such an arrangement would be advantageous in this particular case, as water could be pumped to the reservoir during the night or during hours in which the demand for power like it? in the city would be at the minimum, and in which it could be sold at the minimum rate. The hydraulic pumps would also aid in keeping down the waterworks peak load. The consumption of power could be spread almost evenly over the whole 24 hours.

The street railway company is in a different position. Its consumption of very simple reason that the bulk of the power is subject to great variation. On Tuesday last, the day of the school picnic, it ran up to 1,380-horsepower. This would mean that if the company used Niagara power on a peak load basis it would be required to pay for 1,380-horsepower—the peak load every day of this month. At the rate quoted for Niagara power, $31 per horsepower per annum, the company's power bill for this month would be $3,565. The average Saturday consumption at its highest point is 1,180horsepower, so that the extra cost for power on Tuesday last would have been $517, a much greater sum than was collected in fares. The company claims that it cannot use Niagara power with profit on such conditions. The hydro-electric engineers say the peak load difficulty could be surmounted by the use of storage batter-

These two instances may serve to make the peak load principle clear to many who have not grasped it in for- One Long Round of Uproarious Merricity itself is buying power on the peak load plan.

WORTHY OF ALL HONOR.

The invitation extended by Mr. McBride to Sir Wilfrid Laurier to accept a public reception in the Parliament building was a very courteous act, and Sir Wilfrid's acceptance was in keeping with it. The citizens will hope that the necessary arrangements can be made, for, without respect to parties, they would like to do nonor to the prime minister.

CHURCH UNION.

The driving force of this movement for church union is the great Canadian West and the religious problems which it has carries with it a waste of men and money, which the leaders of these three churches have felt to be indefensible in the fact of their duty to the strangers within the gates. Spurred on by the needs of this situation, they have come to put first the service of humanity, and without abating a jot of their loyalty to truth, to assign secondary position to mere forms and creeds. This is and will continue to be a great gain to the Dominion, whether the present basis of union is in the end adopted or whether the economy of the spiritual forces is attained by some other

THE QUEEN'S CROWN. London Correspondent New York Sun.]
One of the many matters of detail that King George will have to settle will be the style of the crown to be worn by the Queen Mother. The crown she used at the coronation was broken up almost immediately after the ceremony, for the diamonds of which it was composed were only hired for that purpose.

The Queen's crown, preserved with the regalia and made for Mary of Modena, is not at all likely to be taken into use, and the small diamond crown which Queen Victoria had made at her own expense was her private property. By her will to the Queen Consort for the time being.

A Lesson From the Maritime Provinces.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

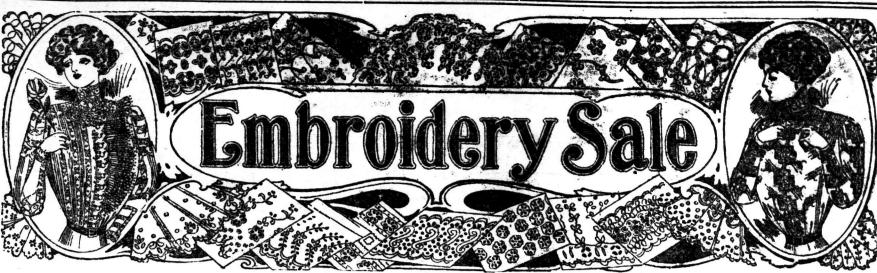

Between the Maritime Provinces and the western portions of Canada there brought. A multiplicity of denominations is much more intercourse than between the former and our own Province of Ontario. It is always a matter of surprise to a resident of either sojourning in the other for a month or two to find how little the people of the Maritimes and of Ontario know of each other. Were there more intercommunication it would doubtless be of advantage to both communities.

"One goes down to the Maritime Provinces prejudiced against these small universities, convinced that they should unite to form one great institution. But he is apt to see and hear things that cause him to change his mind. Doubtless for special work, for giving the really brilliant man a chance, the big univerbrilliant man a chance, the big university, with its costly equipment and its adequate staff, is necessary. But from the side of the immediate community, it is a question if these colleges, scattered all over the country, do not do more to raise the general level of intelligence than the big universities. They teach more people. They render the cost much less. There are hundreds of men and women in the Maritime Provinces who had the advantages of a four-years' college course at no greater outlay of money than is required by the average

A couple of great storks which had built their nest on too of the tower looked down at him with wise eyes. Hundreds of pigeons fluttered about the summit or clung to the ridges of fretted stone, while the only window visible above the doorway was a hundred feet from the base.

But a soldier knows that every position, however impregnable in front, may be turned from the flanks. Before formulating any method of attack, he decided to survey the stronghold from all points of view, and, because Garcia mentioned the "third window on the left." he went to the left side. On that side there were only two windows, and mentioned the "third window on the heriside of the tower.

> The question of joint municipal buildings for the city and county looks like a dead issue at the present time. The county has laid down the definite principle that the buildings must be located on the site of the present county buildings, and the city representatives do not relish the suggestion. Nothing can be done, in any event, until the December session of the county council, but it is not probable that in the meantime a change of heart will come over either the city or the rural representatives.

The city may go ahead and build a city hall on their own account. Some ducted by District Attorney of the aldermen advocate that, but so far no definite step has been taken in respect to this matter.

However, it looks as if a new city hall is somewhere in the very dim and distant future.

Delegation From Middle West Expresses Pleasure at His Action on Rate Matter.

Washington, June 13. - President Taft explained his ideas in regard to the reciprocity which should exist between railroads and shippers to a delegation of shippers from the middle west who called at the White House today. The shippers came to thank Mr. Taft for his prompt response to their request for action when the 25 leading roads of their territory had moved to increase freight rates. Incidentally they called upon interstate commerce commission and asked that they be granted the right to be represented by counsel when that body gives the railroads hearing on the proposed new rates. The shippers told the commission they did not believe the proposed rates were justified, but admitted that if they were found equitable they would not object. The commission promised them

Lake, of Boston, Sent to Bench in the First, and Griffith Put Off Lines in Second.

Boston, June 13.—An even break was the result of the double-header between Boston and Cincinnati, the visitors taking the first game_4 to 2, and Boston the second, 5 to 2. Errors decided both events. Both managers got into difficulties with the umpires, Lake, of Boston, being sent from the field, and Griffith, of Cincinnati, from the coaching lines after disputing the arbitrators' decisions. # GLEN CURTIS IN HIS AREOPLANE

Glenn Curtiss startled the country recently by making the flight between Albany and New York in aeroplane, making only one stop in the distance of 135 miles. This picture shows Mr. Curtiss ready for his flight, with Mrs. Curtiss alongside him. The result of Curtiss' successful cross-country flight will probably be a number of contests between the various cities of the United States. Already prizes have been offered for races between New York and Washington, New York and Chicago, New York and St. Louis, Indianapolis and Chicago,

Every member of the editorial staff escaped unharmed, their quarters being in the front of the building with the local room extending to the rear. John C. Walsh, the editor, was sitting at his desk when he heard the creaking sound. He looked up and from the open door of his room, facing the local room, saw the beams in the ceiling disappearing one after one Mr. Walsh joined the other members of the staff on the window coping, from which he was rescued by the firemen.

There were several miraculous escapes. Fred Mahoney, linotype operator, had a machine furthest from the Victoria Square windows of the room. He heard the creaking and looked up at the ceiling, and when he looked again the machine on which he had been working had disappeared from view. The break stopped just where his chair was placed. James Coady, a pressman, who worked on the second floor, fell through to the first. He thinks that the press fell with him. When he landed on the next floor he found himself next to the glass partition separating the main job room from the business office. Through this he broke his way, cutting his hands badly, and escaped by the front door. There were some of the most striking escapes.

A Miraculous Escape. Mr. Abraham, advertising manager,

The total cost of changes to the Springbank pumping station as recommened by Engineer Glaubitz in his report submitted to the Water Commissioners, including the trans-mission line to Springbank is fixed at $32,000. The saving that will result from this new machinery will be about $4,400 per annum, or approximately $360 per month. The report is a somewhat voluminous one, and covers the whole proposition from beginning to end. The engineer recommends that the Kelly steam pumps be removed and sold and that two three million gallon turbine pumps, driven synchronous motors be installed. The Kelly pumps will be of no use whatever to the city and will have to

> The cost of a 1,000 horsepower transmission line from the Horton street station to Springbank would be about $10,000, the total cost for all the improvements being consequently $32,000. The fixed charges of this amount to $3,800 per annum. Last ear $7,080 was paid for coal, $1,160 for handling it and boiler attendance. a total of $8,240. The introduction of electric power vill effect a net saving of $4,400. Mr. Glaubitz points out that cost of coal is increasing, and advantages of using Niagara power correspondingly increases. Sell to Consumers.

Moreover 500-horsepower can be sold to consumers along the trans-mission line, and the fixed charges to be borne by the commissioner correspondingly reduced. By the installation of Niagara power, the necessity of either steam or hydraulic power would be eliminated altogether. The addition of the synchronous motors will enable the city to so correct its probable power factor as to effect a saving at a peak load of 3,000-horsepower of $3,000 per annum, over and above the saving effected through power factor correction by the synchronous equipment in the Horton street power station. The possibility of power factor correction by the use of the hydraulic machinery at Springbank is a negligible quantity, and not to be taken into consideration. Cheap Power. Properly arranged, the power neces sary for the use of the pumping plant will cost the city nothing. The use of the electric pumps will be eliminated from 4:30 to 8:30 each day during neak load hours.

Mr. Glaubitz recommends that the hydraulic pumps be left as they are. Extensive repairs will have to be made shortly, but that matter is for the future, and will take care of itself. Some minor changes to the present machinery at Springbank for handling water from the low level and high level springs are also advocated.

The engineer speaks in general terms of the Horton street equipment and points out that by means of the pumping machinery to be installed there, the pressure downtown will be at least 30 pounds more than at the present, a fact certain to bring a reduction in insurance rates.

The Water Supply. The total city supply of water will then be from 5,500,000 to 6,500,000 gallons of water. This should be sufficient to supply a city of 80,000 to 90.-000 people, provided meters are installed.

He also recommends the installation of two meters, one at Springbank, and the other at the junction, where Springbank main is divided. That would make for certainty of water pumped daily, and would more easily ead to the detection of leaks. His conclusions are as follows:

In view of the precarious condition of the hydraulic pumping plant, and on account of the monthly saving of nearly $400 a month through the installation of motor-driven turbine pumps at Springbank, no time should be lost in erecting them. Therefore, the sale of the Kelly pumps should be immediately advertised, details, plans and specifications prepared for the new work, and tenders be called for at the same time, the construction of the transmission line to Springbank should be commenced. Also a complete set of plans should be prepared, showing detail the commission's equipment at Springbank, as there appear to be no proper plans and records of the ex-

Ex-Ald. Robert Parsons, proprietor of Parsons' three stores in London, ound himself in court this morning charged with a breach of the motor vehicle act, which occurred under

This happened about 6 o'clock, and when the ex-alderman at once boarded a car in pursuit and got down town, he found the lads stalled, unable to make the car go any further. He at once took possession of it, and started back to his store. As the delivery van is not used as

PROF. TAMBLYN ON BROWNING'S "SAUL"

A Tribute to the Author and a ranges. Eulogy of His Famous Work.

At the Epworth League meeting of ing Prof. Tamblyn, of the Westerr University, lectured on Browning's "Saul."

In his opening remarks Dr. Tamblyr spoke of the happy temper of Browning as man and poet. He was a spiritual epicure, as Stopford Brooke says, and helps his readers to be gay. "Saul" is one of the many poems of Browning open to the charge of obscurity. "James Lee's Wife" may be obscure, "Sordello" may be almost impossible, but "Saul" is easy enough, especially to one who knows his Bible at all. The evil spirit which came at times upon Saul, according to I. Samuel, is interpreted by the poet as a deep despondency, amounting to a trancelike monomania. Samuel, who preached a stern God of justice, had informed King Saul that God had rejected him utterly, and henceforth Saul's strong and semi-religious soul would brood over this. Besides, he was jealous that the youth David was preferred to him by God and by the nation. Yet David was the only one who dared approach the king when he fell into one of his black moods of tranced despair, the only one who could revive and restore him. Browning's poem consists of a soliloquy by David among his sheep in the early morning, after one of his strenious labors with the king's fit. He is thinking the whole matter over, how he played and sang for long without success, and then just when he could do no more, God had helped him with a sudden inspiration to reveal both to Saul and to himself the real truth about God's nature. A loving God, incarnate in human love and suffering, needing man's love and eager to give His. and therefore weak, gloriously weak, for all his power, bowing from the highest place to the lowliest living —such is the God shown by David. Saul need not despair, but only look up and "see the Christ stand," love and be loved in turn, forever.

Browning, of course, sees "the Christ stand" in the person of David himself, loving his treacherous enemy, fearing him not, though Saul had twice or thrice tried to kill him, but ministering to his darkened spirit. The Christ stands also in Saul himself, the objec of love, "the best of these," it is I, said the Saviour: the lowest sinner has the divine spark still that God breathed

In the last stanza of the poem David says nothing of the effect of his appeal upon Saul. Browning is more interested to exhibit the effect upon David himself. The self-sacrificing teacher The National Council of Women will often benefits himself most, while trying to help another. This is part of the law that to save oneself one should serve another. Missionary work does as much good to the missionary as to the converted. To find your life, lose it. Saul's greatest importance was that he served as whetstone for the edge of David's religious imagination.

Prof. Tamblyn's address was listened o with close attention, and a hearty

Another meeting will be held in the same hall a week from Sunday next. Elder Flake explained at some length the doctrines of the Latter Day Saints, including their belief in the true God and his Son Jesus Christ, repentance, remission of sins, baptism by immersion, laying on of hands and the gift of the Holy Ghost. He showed the distinctions between this sect and the Brighamites with whom they are often confounded.

PERE MARQUETTE MAY OPERATE SUNDAY CARS

St. Thomas Story Says Service Will Begin On June 26.

The rumor is revived that the Pere Marquette will operate a Sunday car service to Port Stanley on Sunday,

A dispatch to The Advertiser from St. Thomas, states that the company have selected that date to begin operations for the season, and that during the summer a regular schedule would be continued. It is known that some of the train crews have approached regarding taking out trains on that date, and it is understood that a sufficient number have consented to maintain a regular run. At the local offices, however, they state that no official word has been received regarding the cars.

"We have received no orders as yet," declared an official. "It may be true enough, but we have not received any orders.

For some time this has been expected. Now that a regular boat service has been instituted between Port Stanley and Cleveland no trouble is anticipated.
