The above facts will convey some idea of the size and success of the great Orange demonstration at West Huntingdon on Saturday. Scarcely had there been a Twelfth of July celebration in this county that there has been a larger attendance and never has there been a celebration in the district where all the arrangements have been more perfectly carried out. There were no accidents or untoward incidents to mar the day's proceedings, and the weather though hot was fair.

From an early hour in the morning all the highways leading to the place of celebration bore the semblance of continuous processions of automobiles and carriages, with an occasional carriage bearing its load of gaily decorated Orangemen. Leading to the grounds were two streets of evergreen and banners stretching across the highway with appropriate mottoes. Mr. James W. Haggerty gave the name of the fine grounds for the occasion. The character of the arrangements would be hard to find. Dinner was served in a capacious tent where nine hundred could be looked after at one sitting. Even at this it required four or five relays of waiters to keep the tables of all who came seeking refreshments.

Shortly after one o'clock the procession formed and marched up the main road and then countermarched back to the grounds for the speeches. There were over six hundred Orangemen in the march and perhaps an additional two hundred distributed about the grounds who did not take part in the parade. The procession presented a beautiful and inspiring appearance. The majority of the lodges wore uniformly clad in natty white tunics and white caps and looked altogether sprick and smart. At intervals the fifedrum bands enlivened proceedings with their spirited rendition of patriotic or loyal Orange airs. Then to come many brilliant modern representatives of King William III. by their gorgeous caparisoned white steeds. And farther along many double-standard banners illustrated by picture and legend the stirring events surrounding of King James in Ireland.

The lodges taking part were: Carter's lodge L.O.L. No. 295, Thomaburg No. 131, Elliott's No. 392, Victoria No. 94, Tweed No. 747, Moneymore No. 898, Hazare's No. 1183, Madoc No. 180, Hallway No. 251, Downey's No. 425, Beulah No. 435, Stirling No. 110. Bands: Foxboro, Hallway, Victoria, Beulah.

THE PROGRAM Upon the return to the grounds the great crowd grouped about the platform where the orators of the day were to deliver addresses. Mr. Sandy Grant M. P. of Tweed was Chairman and confined his duties to a brief introduction of the speakers. Whether it was the oppressive heat of the day or the fact that the Orangemen have tired from the frequent rehearsal of the events surrounding Boyne water, cannot be stated with certainty, but the speeches on Saturday did not reach the accustomed degree of fervor and enthusiasm. This is all the more surprising in view of the imminence of Home Rule in Ireland. The orations were all exceedingly brief and largely confined to the relation of anecdotes instead of the perfrid appeals usually featured on the Twelfth. E. Guss Porter M.P. was the first speaker. He said occasions of this kind served to fill us with hope for the future and pride in the achievements of the past. The price paid for the present privileges and liberties we now enjoy was a very costly one. We have an opportunity to see how indignantly the Catholics crowd themselves into positions of trust. VERY LITTLE TO START

Roblin Will Do Well If He Has a Majority of Two.

WINNIPEG, July 13.—The standing of the parties in the next Legislature of Ontario remains in no doubt, two days after the elections. Liberal and Conservative claims still differ, the Government forces still believing in a 25 to 21 standing, which includes the two doubtful seats in St. George and St. Rose. Last night, however the Liberals, while conceding St. Rose, claim St. George as a Liberal victory, giving Sigtuson, Liberal, over Hamelin, Conservative, by 47 majority, with three polls to come. Of these three polls, two, they declare, will go Liberal and one Conservative, leaving the final result a Liberal victory.

Should the Liberals really be successful in taking the St. George, the standing would be 24 to 22, the Conservatives having previously claimed both those seats in arriving at the 25 to 21 standing. The result cannot be settled with any degree of accuracy, however, until the returning officer's official figures are turned in.

Mr. W. C. Mikel K.C. on coming forward said this was one of the days upon which the lawyer had to work without any fee. He referred to the time of King John of England when that sovereign was compelled to bow the knee and do homage to the sovereign pontiff at Rome. That custom persisted for 150 years after King John's abdication. The Roman Catholic system never changes. They are just as ready today as they ever were to bring the king of England to his knees.

Mr. Geo. A. Kingston K.C., assistant general manager of the Union Trust company, Toronto, gave a very pleasing address reminiscent of the days when he was a lad attending the public school near by. He knew of no man by the name of Kingston who disappointed the crowning of the Boyne in order to give to William of Orange the famous White steed of history. King William's own black horse having been shot from beneath him.

Mr. E. Guss Porter K.C. M.P., as he always does, spoke forcibly, eloquently, and with no trace of sectarian bitterness. He recounted the history of the home rule bills and of the famous defection of John Bright. It was no mistake that at the present time in history has taken place on the 1st of July. The battle of the Boyne and the confederation of the Dominion of Canada. His speech was a model of proper character of the component races of our great dominion and predicted that Canada would yet dominate the North American continent.

Rev. John Coburn, the well known Minister of Orange, of Toronto followed. He was reared in Belfast, the very hot-bed of Orangism. He spoke of the perils of bilingualism and of the aggressiveness of the French race in Canada. He closed with a parody on Campbell's well known poem "There Come to the Beach a Poor Exile of Erin."

Brief addresses by Sir Mackenzie Bowden and Mr. W. S. Martin of Stirling brought the program to a close. NOTES Proceeds which total $2300 will be devoted to the erection of a new two-story Orange hall at West Huntingdon. District Director Ambrose Wright had the procession in charge, and the way it was handled was a matter of great credit. The finance committee, Messrs. Geo. A. Kingston and Jas. W. Haggerty, did over two hours to count the money. The splendid spread at the dinner table a fine tribute to the culinary skill of the Orange ladies about West Huntingdon. It required 3,000 lbs. of meat to satisfy the just appetites of the great crowd. Wm. Kerr of Thomaburg supplied the meat. It was roasted at Tweed. The lodge at West Huntingdon which had the celebration now numbers 60 members and is rapidly increasing in membership. Mr. Wilnot Kingston is the master. West Huntingdon lodge desires to express its gratitude to all who assisted so materially to make the day a success. Just thirty-six years ago yesterday a similar celebration was held in this same grove. The object then as now was to secure funds for the erection of a new hall.

THE G.N.R. STATION AT NAPANEE Napanee has received the plans for the new C. N. R. station. The proposed location is 400 feet west of the existing factory and 1500 feet west of the present station. The C.N.R. at present proposes to move the present old wooden station to the new site. Every town east of Toronto along the new C.N.R. line has been generously dealt with and given stations located in convenient places. Why should Napanee be dealt with in this manner and given a station located in about the most inconvenient place the C.N.R. could find and an old coarction of a station which has done duty for years at the B. of O. station and which is totally inadequate to handle business and a disgrace to the railway and the town of Napanee. The citizens should call a mass meeting and publicly protest against this injustice, both to the railway authorities and its railway commission.—Napanee Express.

PLOUGHING UP FRONT STREET

Farewell to Old Roadway—Contractors Have Big Staff on Job.

The theme of the old balladist and the vaudeville artist, the subject of the knocker's talk for years, the butt of every ruder's joke, is now about to be no more. The old story of muddy Front Street will soon be a thing of the past. Late yesterday afternoon, Messrs. Polley and Casson's men, began the ploughing of the surface of Front Street up to the Dundas. Already the street up to market street is blocked off with "no thoroughfare" gates while Belleville's huge steam roller pulls the plough behind it.

Many carts and wagons are engaged in removing the loosened rock and gravel in preparation for the bed on which will rest the concrete base of the pavement. The Trenton Electric representatives, the city engineer, Mr. Evans, Chairman of Light Aid. A. C. McFee, were busy this morning marking the location for the new electric standards.

That the Board of Health desire to impress on the city council the importance of some proper provision being made to provide suitable accommodation for bathing in the Bay of Quinte. "Suitable buildings should be provided and placed in charge of an efficient caretaker so that a most important educational as well as sanitary requirement may receive some due consideration and that a copy of this resolution be sent to both public and separate school boards and the East and West playgrounds committees and their consideration requested."

This important recommendation was moved by Dr. Yeomans, seconded by Mr. L. E. Hughes and unanimously carried at the yesterday afternoon meeting of the Belleville Board of Health, at which were present Mr. A. McGie, chairman, Dr. H. A. Yeomans, M.I.O., L. P. Hughes and S. Robertson. "That no manure be allowed to accumulate within the municipality of the City of Belleville unless kept in a well-built covered box not to exceed in size 3x3x6 inside measurement or two cubic yards."

This resolution was moved by Mr. S. Robertson and seconded by Mr. L. P. Hughes and carried. Another important resolution was moved by Dr. Yeomans, seconded by Mr. Robertson and carried "That the Medical Officer of Health be instructed to proceed at once to order the going away with all outside closets where sewer connection is available and if necessary to take action to compel this being done."

MISS EDITH HOPE Miss Edith Hope, youngest daughter of the late Dr. Hope (formerly sheriff of the county of Hastings) died at the Belleville Hospital today after a protracted illness. She was an Anglican in religion, and a communicant of St. Thomas Church. Her brother, Mr. Geo. Hope, is expected from Toronto this evening. Her arrangements will be completed for the funeral, which will probably be on Thursday.

EGG MERCHANTS MEET IN CITY

Mr. Porter, government expert in the city in connection with the department. There were three Montreal representatives present—Mr. John Whitton of Matthews Co. Ltd., Mr. Chalmers, and Mr. John Gunn of Gunn, Langlois Co.

At noon the meeting adjourned to meet this afternoon. Mrs. M. A. Bunkin left this morning for Durand, Bay City, and other points in Michigan where she will spend a month's holidays with relatives.

THREE DROWNING ACCIDENTS

Bay of Quinte Claimed Toll of Two—Gladys Bongard Drowned at Massassaga, and Bosa Pietro, Italian, at Zwick's Island—Trent Canal Tragedy.

The cloud of tragedy hangs heavily over the district as a result of three drownings in two of which the victims were residents of Belleville, and in the other a young Frankford man losing his life. Massassaga Park waters claimed Miss Gladys E. Bongard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bongard of this city as the first victim of the Bay of Quinte on Saturday afternoon. Sunday afternoon saw Italians bathing at Zwick's Island and as a result one was drowned at "the deep hole."

EVERETT KETCHESON. On Saturday morning Everett Ketcheson, aged twenty-four years, son of Mr. Thomas Ketcheson, who resides near Frankford was drowned in the Trent River half a mile above the bridge. He was in bathing with two companions, Fred Harrison and Ross Purdy. They attempted to rescue a young Ketcheson, who had got in to a deep hole, but were overcome in the attempt. However, they were recovered and brought to about a quarter of an hour later, Ketcheson was unable to swim. Everett Ketcheson was the assistant to the engineer on the Trent Canal.

GLADYS E. BONGARD. The edrawing of Gladys E. Bongard at Massassaga Park on Saturday afternoon has caused a pall to set in over the city. She went down to camp on Saturday afternoon, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bongard, Church Street, were going to spend the summer with their family. Mr. and Mrs. Bongard were in town at the time of the tragedy securing provisions. Gladys Bongard and her friend, Doris Vermilyea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Vermilyea, went in bathing at Massassaga about four o'clock in the afternoon. This was at a point north of the hotel and just west of the dock. The two girls were playing in the water and came to the edge of an excavation which had been made by a dredge for the purpose of navigation. At this point the shore has a sheer drop many feet to the water thirty-five or forty feet below. Reaching the edge of the hole, the two girls slid into the water. Gladys came up once and made signs of distress with her hands.

Ray Leavitt, son of Mr. Leavitt, the manager of the park, was nearby and dove into the hole after Doris Vermilyea had been in the water three minutes, young Leavitt brought her to the surface. She was unconscious but with the aid of artificial respiration she was brought around. Every effort was made by diving to locate Miss Bongard but failed. A grappling outfit was brought and in fifteen or eighteen minutes her body was brought to the surface. She gave no signs of animation. Word was sent to Belleville for physicians and every effort made to revive her but without avail. Dr. Dolan and Dr. Gilbert arrived as soon after hearing the news as possible, but life had evidently left the body. The remains were brought up by boat to Belleville after all hope had vanished and efforts at resuscitation had ceased. The deceased young girl was a great favorite in the city. She had passed the Entrance this year and was a very clever musician. The deepest sympathy goes out to the bereaved parents and brother, Allan. It is probable, says a physician, that in the fall into deep water Gladys was filled with water which immediately caused her to strangle.

Bolted With Grrp. Edward Murray and James Coccarone who undertook to see James Cameron's grip up to the Metropolitan car, but hiked off when the traveller was not looking, were each sentenced to sixty days in jail at Toronto on Saturday. They were caught when trying to sell some of the jewellery which was contained in the grip. The traveller, Mr. Cameron, is said to be a Belleville man.

Laid at Rest. The funeral of the late Junetta Grace Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Johnston, 263 Bleeker Avenue, was held yesterday morning. Rev. W. G. Clarke conducted the service at the residence. There was a large attendance of friends. The remains were taken to the railway depot and thence to Toronto by train. Burial takes place in Norway Cemetery, East Toronto.

Residence Disturbed. On Sunday night two residences on Ann Street and another on Bridge and Burnham were disturbed by the intruder. The former resides, the own Kennedy, Myrtle—Marmora. Linn, Carrie—Marmora and 2 Marmora. Molroy, Tessa—Bell View. Torrey, Wilfred—6 Marmora. (H) Warren, Earl—Marmora.

TWO WOMEN ARE KILLED

Misses Louisa and Mary Starr Meet Death at Crossing.

TRAIN HIT THEIR BUGGY

In Extreme Haste To Get Across the Track Before C.N.R. Express Near Mount Albert, Sisters Rush Into Danger—Growth of Bushes Hid the Approaching Train From View of Girls.
NEWMARKET, July 15.—A tragedy was caused at the C. N. R. crossing at Mount Albert yesterday morning by the apparent haste of the Misses Louisa and Mary Starr, who lost their lives, when the C. N. R. express crashed into the buggy, in an attempt to pass over the tracks in front of the on-coming train. Two horses were also run to pieces, and the vehicle completely demolished.
The accident occurred at 11.46 a.m. The girls were driving into Mount Albert from the east, and the train was proceeding north. The danger at this point is enhanced by a thick growth of bushes, which precludes the railway traffic from the sight of those approaching the crossing.
In this particular instance it appears that the two girls were aware of the presence of the train in the vicinity, but thinking they could "make" the crossing, continued on their journey, which had such a tragic result.
The train, which was moving at a high rate of speed, reached the crossing as the horses and buggy were squarely on the tracks. Death was instantaneous, the bodies were ut-tered.
Coroner J. H. Wesley and jury visited the scene of the accident shortly after noon and adjourned the inquest for a week. The Misses Starr had managed a farm at Whitechurch since their father's death nearly two years ago.

OBITUARY.

JAMES EDMUND THOMAS.

On June 24th James Edmund Thomas youngest son of the late J. E. Thomas, Esq., formerly of Belleville, passed away at Washington Park Hospital at Chicago, Ill. where he had gone to undergo an operation. Mr. Thomas was 37 years of age and had been connected with the Borden Condensed Milk Company, one of the largest dairying concerns in the world for several years and was held in the highest esteem by his employers and fellow employees. He was a prominent figure in fraternal circles, and had held various offices in several of the fraternal organizations. In all of these societies Mr. Thomas was an active and energetic worker. Large delegations from each of these orders were present at the funeral and the floral offerings from the several societies as well as from family and business friends and associates were numerous and elaborate. One in particular from his fellow employees at Borden was very beautiful. It was a broken wheel and was the work of one of his intimates. The services at the house was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Bright and was most impressive. Mr. Bright spoke at length of the activities of the deceased gentleman, along fraternal and humanitarian lines and referred very feelingly to the loss the community had suffered through the untimely passing of Mr. Thomas. Musical numbers were furnished by friends of the family. Mrs. Florence Erzberg sang, in touching manner "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder," and was followed by Miss Maude Earl Burdette, a former Belleville girl, who occupies a foremost place in musical circles in Chicago. Miss Burdette's deep, rich contralto was heard to splendid advantage in the beautiful old hymn—"Safe in the Arms of Jesus." A large number of people were present at the home 3218 Parnell Avenue, during the hour of services and many accompanied the remains to Oakwood cemetery, where the body was interred beside those of his father and mother who passed on some years ago. Mr. Thomas leaves two sisters, Miss Maude Thomas, and one brother, Festus Thomas, Esq., all of Chicago. The sympathy of a large circle of friends is being extended to the bereaved family.

Carranza Moves On to Capital Whether Huerta Stays or Goes.
WASHINGTON, July 15.—Although the resignation of Gen. Huerta is confidently expected by the State Department and Washington diplomats to occur at any moment, the Constitutionalists, unaffected by the news, are pressing hard their military campaign on Mexico City. Official despatches revealed that Gen. Villa with 15,000 men was ready for a rapid advance on the Mexican capital, and that Gen. Obregon's forces at Guadalajara were prepared to step onward within a few days. Although officials have not been given much to prediction, they now firmly believe the Constitutionalists will be in Mexico City in two or three weeks regardless of what the Huerta Government may do.
Huerta Enjoys Himself.
MEXICO CITY, July 15.—President Huerta was the guest of honor of the French colony at a celebration at Chapultepec Park yesterday, in commemoration of the fall of the Bastille. The President was also seen during the course of the day in various public places, and so far as could be learned, no preparations are being made for his possible departure from the capital.
The Gen. has been joined with the French residents in celebrating the holiday. Most of the stores were closed, and the buildings in the principal streets were decorated with French and Mexican flags.

Steamer is Still Stuck Despite the Efforts of Tugs.
QUEBEC, July 15.—All efforts of the wrecking tug Lord Strathcona, and the Canadian Government steamer Lady Evelyn to dislodge the steamer Canada of the Gaspe and Bale des Chaleurs Line from the rocks on which she is stranded have proved ineffectual, and the two boats returned yesterday to Rimouski. Her situation is said to be serious as she may have to wait for the high tide, and until that time the northeast wind will be dangerous.
The lady Evelyn and the Strathcona are said to have developed about 3,000 horsepower while engaged in their operations.

CUPID'S COURT

COWAIN-BATEMAN.

A pretty home wedding was celebrated at 1030 this morning at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bateman, Ponton street, when their second daughter, Miss R. Goldie Bateman was united in marriage to Mr. William Richard Cowain of South Porcupine.

The young couple were unattended, except by a flower girl, little Miss Hilda Countryman, of Tweed, niece of the bride. The bride looked charming in a dress of cream duchess satin trimmed with lace and in the customary bridal veil with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of roses. The wedding march was rendered by Miss Lillie Bateman, of Thornesburg.

The Rev. S. A. Duprau was the officiating clergyman. During the signing of the register, Miss Ferns Moran sang a nuptial song. After the ceremony had been completed, the party which included a number of relatives sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Cowain left on the International Limited at 1:50 this afternoon for Toronto, Rochester and other cities. They will reside at South Porcupine. The best wishes of all friends follow them for a successful wedded life.

BILL PASSES LORDS

Home Rule Amending Measure Gets Third Reading.

ADOPTED WITHOUT A VOTE

Marquis of Crewe Says in Closing Stage of Debate that an Agreement Will Be Easily Reached Regarding the Elimination of the Time Limit - Morley Discusses Durnaven's Plan

LONDON, July 15.—The House of Lords yesterday passed the third reading of the bill to amend the Irish Home Rule Bill, and sent it across to the House of Commons for consideration.

On suggestion of the Marquis of Crewe, the bill was read a third time without a vote being taken. In the closing stage in the Upper House the Marquis of Crewe, Liberal leader, took part in the debate on the bill, and indirectly promised that the attainment of an agreement in regard to the elimination of the time-limit, by which the counties of Ulster were allowed to vote on the question of their exclusion for a period of six years from the operation of the Home Rule Bill, did not prove difficult.

He said, however, that the area of the portion of Ireland to be excluded had been so greatly enlarged by the Unionists that it would be a vexed and critical question. The Unionists, he argued, had failed to explain how they proposed to meet the inevitable objections to exclusion of the Roman Catholic counties of Ulster and their friends elsewhere in Ireland.

BEAVERS OFF FOR LONDON.

In re-inforced crates carefully sheathed with metal, nine Algonquin Park beavers were despatched recently from Riverdale Zoo, Toronto, to London, England.

They are to be traded for other animals. Supt. Good has suggested a pair of zebras. The beavers are in fine condition, being some of those annually trapped to prevent damage being done in Algonquin Park by their tree-felling faculties.

Each one has his own burden, his own faults; no one can do without the aid of others. Therefore we must assist each other by consolation, advice and mutual warnings.—Leo Tolstoy.

LORD MORLEY OF BLACKBURN.

By asking for the exercise of patience and forbearance and firmly hoping for a successful solution.

The Marquis of Lansdowne, the Unionist leader, reiterated that nothing short of the Ulster amendments could avert the imminent peril that was threatening the bill.

Before the passage of the third reading of the bill, the Earl of Durnaven moved the insertion of a new clause providing that the King might by an order-in-Council, suspend the operations of the Home Rule Act until a commission should have reported on the constitutional relations of Ireland to the other parts of the United Kingdom.

Lord Morley of Blackburn, in behalf of the Government, described it as a purely academic proposition brought forward at the moment of the crisis, for which there was no precedent. With regard to the amendments adopted by the House of Lords, he said their effect would be to embitter relations and increase the difficulties of a settlement.

He pointed out that the amendments would have the effect of making the Government responsible for the success or failure of the bill. He would have been far more straightforward, he declared, if he had voted for Lord Willoughby de Broke's motion for the rejection of the amending bill.

CARSON HURRIES TO LONDON.

BELFAST, July 15.—Sir Edward Carson left unexpectedly for London last night by the Liverpool steamer, having been recalled by a telegram from Westminster.

Addressing the Ulster volunteers at a tattoo in the grounds of Crags-road, he said: "I am returning on the one and main business of my life. I have made up my mind to carry out the covenant to the very end, and I hope you will do the same."

TO WATCH CHAUFFEURS.

Ten New Provincial Constables Will Be Sworn In. TORONTO, July 15.—Ten more constables are to be appointed by the Provincial Secretary's Department on Friday to assist in enforcement of the Motor Vehicles Act.

While all infringements of the act will be watched for, what was especially provocative of these appointments is the boast of a good number of chauffeurs, some with much experience, that they have taken out no license and will not do so.

Other drivers have passed parts, but not all of the necessary examination, and are driving motor vehicles.

OTTAWA, July 15.—It is learned here that Valentine Shortt, the Volneylied, Que., murderer of years ago, now in Kingston Penitentiary, has developed insanity, though of a harmless form.

THE END IS IN SIGHT

Rarely if ever has a party in an election made so creditable a showing as did the party headed by Mr. Norris in Friday's election in Manitoba. Never were more unscrupulous forces arrayed against a political leader. The Roblin-Rogers machine is the most perfect invention for winning crooked elections, on earth to-day. It is the masterpiece of past-masters in the arts of chicanery, cupidity, cheating and corruption.

In addition to the machine Norris had to contend with the fierce and not always scrupulous forces of liquorism, for Norris like Rowell is a believer in temperance reform. The liberal party in Manitoba did not go so far as to say that their election meant the abolition of the war, but they proposed if elected to let that matter be determined by a provincial referendum.

Besides the Rogers machine and the whiskey machine there was the opposition of the French Canadian population, a powerful factor in several constituencies. And lastly there was the opposition of the foreign population and of all the loose purchasable class.

Following the unfortunate and disappointing results of appealing to the electorate with an advanced policy of reform in Ontario, it was freely predicted that Norris would do an extremely well to retain his meager following of eleven. That he came near to defeating these arrogant and impudent debauchers is a great tribute to his sagacity as a leader and to the incorruptible good-sense of the people of Manitoba.

Roblin may by winning the deferred elections be able to retain his precarious hold on power for a little time longer but it will be at best a stay of execution and not a reprieve. Once a bully gets on the toboggan his finish is sure. Many who were covered or cajoled to his side when he was in the hey-day of his power and popularity will assist in the kicking down process once it is certain the slippery one has started to speed down the spill-way.

The end of Roblin and his ignominious band is within measurable distance and cannot be deferred more than four years at the farthest.

SAFETY FIRST

The deplorable drowning accidents of Saturday and Sunday again emphasize the necessity of learning to swim well, and of not taking undue chances with an ever treacherous element. These warnings and admonitions have been repeated so often that it would almost seem useless to urge them again. But so long as the lure of the water exists, just so long will people be found to disregard its dangers. Then there is besides the other great portion of the population who must use the water as a means of travel or of communication for business purposes.

It therefore becomes a necessity and a duty to minimize as far as possible the dangers and risks that are ever present when man essays to move about in an element with which he is not fitted by nature to contend.

Everybody should learn to swim. This is trite advice, but until everybody has acquired the art, which is by no means an easy one to master, the necessity will exist to continue to urge it upon the public.

Mr. W. C. Mikel had a letter in Saturday's Ontario in which a number of excellent suggestions were made. It is an unpardonable oversight on the part of nature that there is no proper bathing beach within convenient distance of the bulk of population in this city. Here we are with water all about us, but with no place where children and non-swimmers may go with safety and from a gradually receding sandy bottom acquire the rudiments of the natatory art. There is the Y. M. C. A. swimming pool, but that is patronised by only a fraction of the youth of the city. In the summer season people like to be out in the open and get acquainted with nature.

With an inconsiderable expense dressing rooms could be erected, and a safe bathing pool or beach arranged at Zwick's island, and an instructor engaged for the summer season. Money is spent upon things less necessary. Perhaps some thing might also be done on the east side in the vicinity of the new docks. A submerged platform or artificially sanded bottom with a few dressing rooms would not be matters of prohibitive cost.

The majority of our boys learn in various unauthorised and mysterious ways how to swim, but with the girls it is different. Except for a few who go to the summer resorts, they rarely master the art.

Learning to swim a little is better than not being able to swim at all, but one cannot really be said to have learned to swim until he is able to stay afloat in the water an indefinite length of time without undue exhaustion. One should also learn what to do in emergencies, as for instance when he is precipitated into the water fully clothed.

Learning to swim a little often leads the amateur into taking undue risks. Safety first should be the motto on water as well as on land. It is frequently stated and is probably true that almost as many swimmers as non-swimmers are drowned. This, however, is not an argument against learning to swim, but rather a warning against foolhardy experiments such as resulted in the death of Sir Denys Anson in the River Thames a few nights ago.

All that we have been saying here is very commonplacé. The advice we have been tendering is already quite as much a matter of general acceptance as is the advice about rocking the boat. But as long as valuable lives are being sacrificed, just so long will exist the necessity for its repetition.

Therefore we rebat this hackneyed admonition—let everyone learn to swim well, and let no swimmer forget, "Safety First."

WEALTH OF THE NATIONS

An interesting article on the wealth of the great nations recently appeared in the London Statist from the pen of its editor, Sir George Paish, who estimates that the increase in wealth in Great Britain, France, Germany and United States, during the last century, has been 580 per cent. 400 per cent. 700 per cent. and 8,500 per cent. respectively. The United States not only leads in percentage of increase, but in the sum total of its wealth, the figures for the four countries being:

United States	$150,000,000,000
Great Britain	85,000,000,000
Germany	80,000,000,000
France	50,000,000,000

In population the United States shows an increase during the last century of 1,125 per cent; Germany comes next with 180 per cent, and Great Britain with 130 per cent, while France shows only 33 per cent. In the annual savings of the people of these three countries the standing is as follows:

United States	$4,000,000,000
Great Britain	2,000,000,000
Germany	1,500,000,000
France	1,000,000,000

Sir George Paish estimates that at least twenty billion dollars of British capital is yearly invested in colonial and foreign countries, and that in North and South America there is now invested twenty billions of foreign capital. Of this amount $6,000,000,000 is invested in the United States and $1,500,000,000 in Canada.

SAFETY AND COST

Less prominence is given to the services which wireless telegraphy can render to ships at sea, than to the occasional disasters which it has been unable to prevent. Even in the worst of these, such as the sinking of the Titanic and the Empress of Ireland, the wireless equipment saved many lives, and public opinion not only supports but demands its installation wherever possible. Up to the present compulsory installation has been confined to passenger ships, but there is now before the British Parliament a Government Bill which will make a wireless equipment compulsory for ships which carry fifty or more persons, including the crew.

It is perhaps but natural that this measure should meet with some opposition, not, of course, from the public but from interested parties. The directors of the Marconi Company, for instance, who are not quite disinterested critics, complain that it makes an arbitrary limitation, and they would substitute another equally arbitrary, by which wireless will become compulsory on all ships which sail fifty miles or more from the coast. What is said to be a more serious objection is urged by Mr. Allen Burgoyne, M. P., a distinguished naval authority, who points out that the Bill as it stands will not cover the vast mass of merchant ships and will, perhaps designedly, operate almost solely in favor of passenger carrying vessels. The substitute which he would propose is a standard of tonnage and not of crew and passengers.

The Manchester Guardian declares that perhaps that would be a better solution, but it urges that whatever kind of standard is adopted the important question is whether it shall be framed so as to include the great mass of cargo-carrying vessels, or only those which are chiefly concerned in the passenger traffic. The safety of human life is the first consideration, and it was natural, therefore, that the number of persons on board should decide whether or not "wireless" should be made compulsory. But there is always a danger of a disproportionate regard being paid to the liner at the expense of the tramp. Mr Burgoyne puts the cost of installing and working a "wireless" apparatus at about £400 a ship a year. If that is correct the expense could not, probably, be borne by many owners of small merchant vessels.

"It is extremely difficult," as the Guardian points out, "to say where the line should be drawn, for it ultimately comes down to putting a cash value on human life. It is hard to say that so many lives a year shall be lost be the cost of saving them would be too great. We would like to say that no cost would be too great. That, practically, is what we do say in the case of the big ocean liner. How nearly are we to say it in the case of the merchant marine?"

THE FIRST HOME RULE BILL

In the early hours of the morning of June 8, twenty-eight years ago, took place the historic division on the second reading of the first Home Rule bill. The bill was rejected in a very full and excited House by a majority of thirty, 313 voting in favor of it and 343 against it. Of those who took part in the division, Mr. Balfour and Mr. Chaplin still occupy places on the Front Opposition bench, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain recently passed away and Lord St. Aldwyn has retired from active politics. Lord St. Aldwyn, as Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, was at that time the Conservative leader in the House of Commons, and wound up the debate for the opposition in a vigorous speech. On the Liberal side Lord Morely was Chief Secretary for Ireland, and he thus watched over the Home Rule policy from start to the finish. Mr. Asquith entered Parliament at the election that followed the defeat of the Bill Mr. Lloyd George entered Parliament four years later, and Mr. Bonar Law fourteen years later.

Mr. Gladstone's speech at the close of the debate was one of his greatest Parliamentary efforts, and his peroration has become famous: "Ireland stands at your bar expectant, hopeful, almost suppliant. Her words are the words of truth and soberness. She asked a blessed oblivion of the past, and in that oblivion our interest is deeper even than hers." And then in speaking of the "traditions" of Irish policy, to which Conservatives had appealed, he exclaimed: "What traditions? By the Irish traditions. Go into the length and breadth of the world, ransack the literature of all countries, find if you can a single voice, a single hook, in which the conduct of England towards Ireland is anywhere treated except with profound bitter condemnation. Are these the traditions by which we are exhorted to stand?" Even although he anticipated the defeat of the Bill Mr. Gladstone fought with all his power to the very end to convince waverers of the wisdom of his policy.

When Hon. Dr. Montague joined the Roblin government it was expected he would be a tower of strength to it. His majority in Kildonan and St. Andrew's is four, and it may melt away under a recount. There are some men who, once retired from public life, had better stay retired. Hon. Mr. Montague is one of them.

—Whig.

The people of the United States are rejoicing over the fact that the celebration of the 4th of July this year was the "sanest on record," the total casualties amounting to only 12 killed and 879 injured. This is a considerable improvement, as compared with even last year, when 25 were killed and 1023 injured. There is still room for improvement. Accidents, of course, will happen, but it is a matter of congratulation that Canada celebrated her national day this year without the loss of a single life and without any serious accident of any kind so far as reported.

This relegating of the things of God to another world is, however, a deadly doctrine which has benumbed the church for sixteen centuries. It is a night-mare from which the church is happily awakening. The church, in its revolt against the control of spiritual things by the State, has abnegated its primary function on earth, if it has divorced itself from its task of renovating the State and bringing in the Kingdom of Heaven on earth. The idea of denouncing a minister as a demagogue because like the prophets of old, he makes war upon evil custom, and seeks to banish from his country the people's worst enemy, reveals a singularly low sense of the duty of every citizen, and particularly every citizen who is placed as a guide to public opinion. The reply of the ministry thus called a demagogue is: "You are a demagogue yourself." If there is anything wrong in appealing to the people to pass laws for their own protection, surely the arch-sinners are the arch-politicians.

On the contrary there is no more holy work on the part of either, in so far as it is rightly promoted and rightly directed, than this work of winning the people into right paths. If there is any opprobrious meaning in the word demagogue, it is when it is understood to mean that a man, in order to gain support, appeals to the people's ignorance or their lower nature. And Sir James by calling names did that.—Montreal Weekly Witness.

In regard to newspapers, two kinds of independence are recognized. A paper may hold itself independent of all political parties, reserving to itself the right of supporting or condemning either party or both. Few papers are really independent in this respect, and fewer still are given credit for independence. It is laid for human nature to avoid imputing motives to a newspaper that supports one party to-day and another to-morrow. The paper may be perfectly honest and perfectly intelligent and consistent in its course; but it requires some time to establish a reputation for honesty and consistency of that kind. For the great majority of newspapers independence means a recognized party association in which the newspaper reserves to itself the right to extend or withhold its approval or even to condemn where mere silence is not regarded as a sufficient mark of disapproval. Of this kind of independence there is a good deal to be found in the press of Canada. And it is growing. The number of newspapers that feel bound to follow their party through thick and thin, through right and wrong, is growing small, and the influence of the papers correspondingly light. Most newspapers now claim the right to such a measure of independence, and many of them exercise it in a greater or less degree.

Sir James Whitney is not himself free from this condemnation of calling opprobrious names. His expression, "demagogic clergymen," was somewhat vigorously responded to by one of the accused, a Methodist minister. It raises the whole question whether a minister should ever take any part in politics. Since the party system became despotic, it has become the common assumption that he should not, and certainly, such is the power of party allegiance, that the minister who under ordinary circumstances should publicly show a preference would split his congregation, and would under the assumed rule just quoted, be protested by those with whom his sentiments differed. There was a notable case of that kind in Kingston. There has been no such reticence in England or in Ireland with regard to the many recent vital political questions into which religious sentiment has entered. The British Nonconformists have at all times been in politics against the church establishment, with small danger of protest. Even those members of congregations who are Conservatives, consider that in that matter they are within their rights. The church clergy are equally accounted free, even by their Liberal adherents, to denounce Welsh disestablishment to their heart's content. In Ireland, Protestant ministers and bishops have been the leaders of the new covenanters as were their predecessors in Scotland in the days when "prelacy" was being forced upon the country by Laud.

Many of them are ready not only for politics, but for war. The Roman Catholic clergy have always been active in politics so far as prudence would allow, and often much beyond. The very ascendancy which their teachings give them over the conscience causes their sphere to be very strictly limited in the minds of their people. These say: We must obey you with regard to the things of the next world.

—Montreal Weekly Witness.

Before the Manitoba election Sir Rodmond Roblin said the liberals were only sure of one seat. Now he is worrying whether he is really sure of his own. It is only a question of time—perhaps of days—until something happens, and it won't be in Sir Rodmond's interest.

"P EBSNESS vhas pad mit me when dot little tailor comes in and says: 'Hans, you vhas a good cobbler, but a poor peesness man, and if you don't do defferent you vhas a failure and der porhouse!'" For two days I don't know what to buy, but den I pelief it vhas shob-lackin'g. I buy feffy boxes for 4 cents apiece and put 'em in der window, and der painter makes me a sign to read, "One box free to Eafery Customer." I look into dot window and vhas pleased, and my wife says we shall be rich in two weeks. Purty soon a man comes in to get a patch on his shoe. He sees my sign and says: "Mayps you take me for a cheap man who lives on der sixth floor?" "But how vhas it?" says I. "How vhas it? Vy, you had better go around among some cobbler shops and see how it vhas. Don't you know dot der man on der next block is gifin' avhay a shobbrush, a box of blacking and a pair of shobstrings to eafery customer? I will take my job down to him!"

He goes avhay, and I vhas hurt in my feelings, and while I vhas trying to figure out how a cobbler can gif avhay 25 cents on a fifteen cent job a woman comes in. She wants a child's shoe fixed for 10 cents. She sees dot sign and says: "Do you pelief I shall gif you my work and take a box of blacking when other cobblers are offering granite ware, tea and coffespots? Gif me back dot shoe!"

Der next caller was a man who wants a pair of shoe strings. I make shust a cent on dot pair, and I vhas almost happy when der man sees dot free blacking and says: "Vhell, vhell, so it vhas a box free to eafery customer! Vhell, it vhas a good idee. Busy Trenton

OUR daily news letter from this thriving town furnished by The Ontario's special representative. Trenton, July 9—We are informed that two taxicabs will be placed on the roads soon by prominent business men. They are needed and should be a paying investment from the start. We have been requested to register an objection in these columns against the exchanges, and sometimes where the matter appears to be a fair one, we take exception to the fair ones of our town wearing X Ray skirts. We balk most decidedly Backwoods towns like Montreal, Toronto, and Kingston, who are kicking against the innovation, but there will be no kick made in Trenton. We noticed a team of X Ray horses craning a long Dundas street a few days ago, and we felt sorry for them, their boxes showed up so disgracefully. A large number of young people attended the dance held at the O'Clock Point last evening. A Belleville contingent also dropped in from a moonlight and gave the Trentonians an exhibition of the Tango, as they danced it. Dr. Ireland of Brantford, is visiting his parents here. The new film show man is in town, making preparations for the erection of his new picture house on Dundas street. Looking out our window we feel compelled to mention the old chestnut "waste paper," once again. Bixton and Ellis apparently forgot to make their usual bon-fire last night. The monotony of the scene is relieved here and there by a bunch of green peas. Clarence Sharp, formerly of this place, is now pitching consistent ball for Stratford, in the Western Ontario Baseball League. On Wednesday Stratford defeated Guelph 2-0. Sharp is kicking out 12 men. Miss Mary Jessie O'Rourke, daughter of Barrister T. A. O'Rourke, who has been ill for many months, passed away today at her residence away from Marlborough street. The funeral will take place on Friday morning at 8 o'clock. Mrs. R. E. Davis and Miss Marion Foster, of Prince Albert, Sask., are visiting their parents here. M. G. Murphy, D.P.A., W. Marshall, Supt. of Telegraphs, and J. J. Murray, Supt. of the Express department, are in town. The business situation Mr. Murphy stated that he was very favorably impressed with Trenton. Mr. and Mrs. Davis Hawley of Cleveland, O., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Spencer. Trenton, July 10—Ald. Edward Edward is fighting in Manitoba today for his political life. It is he does as well as Sir James White did in the recent Ontario contest he will have nothing to complain of. We are beginning to believe that many people talk one way and vote the opposite. Reports from farmers of the Prince Edward and Hastings districts, regarding the conditions of the crops, is most contradictory. One man told us yesterday that nothing but immediate rain would warrant farmers in looking for even an average crop, and he stated that he was inclined to believe, from his personal observations, that an average crop, under any circumstances, was not probable. Hay is admitted to be generally short, and poor crops must have rain without a doubt, to make the yield at all what it should be. Mrs. Mary Mountney, fifty-three years of age and an old resident of Trenton, died on Wednesday, at her residence on Barton Street. The remains were interred at the Front of Sidney cemetery today. Mrs. C. R. Richmond, of Prince Albert, Sask., is visiting relatives here. Miss Madeline Wilder of Ottawa, is visiting her mother, Mrs. H. A. Thomson. A number of Dr. McElliott's friends were upon his invitation, guests at a very jolly picnic dinner, held at Presque Isle, yesterday. This is an annual affair of the doctor's, and is held forward to by all the young people. Rev. Canon Armstrong brought this party of young people safely back to port today from the yacht races at Prinyer's Cove. The darling water dogs of the town are performing this afternoon by diving from the top railing of the swing bridge. Mr. Glen White was in Brantford last week on business. Cole and the world's fastest motorcycle riders will be in attendance at the Big Motorcycle Meet, to be held in Fireman's Park, here, on Wednesday August 5th. This is expected to be Trenton's big day of sports so don't forget the date. Trenton, July 11—Mr. Morrow, C.P.R. Real Estate Adjuster, settled with Mr. B. W. Powers last evening for a good round sum, for the land purchased in East Trenton for the freight spur line. Hydro-Electric engineers are driving over the town and vicinity, making what looks like an inspection, of the latter part of the Canada Steamship line to call at Pelee's dock, as they did in former years. They think a few of the passengers might get off and look over our nice clean streets. It is possible that business will be upset this fall by the bringing of the Dominion elections. WOMAN WEAK AND NERVOUS

Finds Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Creston, Iowa.—"I suffered with female troubles from the time I came into womanhood until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would have paid if I ever worked or lifted anything heavy, and I would be so weak and nervous and in so much misery that I would be prostrated. A friend told me what your medicine had done for her and I tried it. It made me strong and healthy and our home is now happy with a baby boy. I am very glad that I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and do all I can to recommend it."—Mrs. A. E. BOSCAW, 504 E. Howard Street, Creston, Iowa.

ANOTHER CANAL IS IN SIGHT

U. S. Secretary Says Erie-Ontario Waterway Will Be Needed.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Removal of restrictions upon the importance of electric power from Canada and retention of the present limit of 15,000 cubic feet per second upon the amount of water diverted for water power purposes from the Niagara river above the falls on the American side were advocated by Secretary Garrison in a letter to the House foreign affairs committee, made public yesterday. With the letter Mr. Garrison sent a report by Brigadier-General Kingman, chief of the army engineers, declaring that the enormous commerce on the great lakes probably soon would demand a ship canal between Lakes Erie and Ontario on American soil.

As to the situation below the Falls, Secretary Garrison said there seemed no reason for an express limitation upon water diverted there. He said that in a general way the pending Smith and Cline bill, which, he said, "closely approached the legislation needed for the protection of the Niagara river, and for the best and most economic use of its waters for power developments not inconsistent with navigation interests."

The Secretary's letter will be before the committee to-day, at a meeting called for a general discussion of the Niagara water-diversion problems, which have vexed Congress, the War Department and New York State authorities for years. Representatives of the Seneca Indians are expected to appear to support the Senecas' claim to rights in the Niagara, under the Pickering treaty.

Mr. Campbell St. Charles is in the city.

M'CORMICK IS ELECTED

Recount in East Lambton Goes in Favor of Liberal.

COUNTERFOIL ON BALLOTS

One Hundred and Twenty-Three Votes Were in Dispute Because Numbered Sections Had Not Been Removed From Voting Slips — Conservatives Say They Will Appeal Decision

SARNIA, July 15.—By the decision of his honor Judge MacWatt, rendered at the close of the recount proceedings late last night, the East Lambton seat in the recent Ontario contest has been awarded to Robert John McCormick, the Liberal candidate. Conservatives say they will carry the decision to the Court of Appeal. No less than 123 ballots were found in the ballot box with the counterfoil and printed numbers attached, which has been held to be against the law in a number of previous election cases. Of those, 77 ballots are marked for Martyn, and 46 are marked for McCormick. The 123 ballots with counterfoils attached are from the polling subdivision of Theford. If these ballots were counted they would give Dr. Martyn a majority of 31 in that polling subdivision. If, however, on the other hand, they were declared illegal, it would give Robert McCormick, the Liberal candidate, a majority in the riding of about 25. Then again, if these disputed ballots are allowed, Dr. Martyn, the Conservative member-elect, will have a majority of nine or eleven in the riding. Judge MacWatt held a count at his chambers last night, when the case was argued by the legal representatives of the respective candidates, and decided in favor of Mr. McCormick.

Judge Reserves Judgment.

WOODSTOCK, July 15.—County Judge Wallace yesterday morning reserved judgment in the South Oxford recount, and it is probable that the case will not be decided for some days. W. A. Sinclair, Conservative candidate, has a majority of four, and both sides are hopeful that the final decision will be in their favor. Col. T. B. Mayberry was the defeated Liberal opponent.

RESTITUTION TO BE ASKED

Southampton Railway Will Be Made to Refund $40,500.

OTTAWA, July 15.—When the report of A. R. Pringle, K.C., who investigated the cost of the Southampton Railway of New Brunswick, is made the Government will take steps to force restitution of the subsidy which the commissioner states was fraudulently obtained from the Dominion.

The ordinary subsidy is $3,200, but where the cost of the road runs up to $21,000 a double subsidy is paid. In the case of the Southampton Railway the figures of cost were padded so as to make it appear $21,000 a mile and $6,000 a mile on the recommendation of Mr. Johnson was paid the road. The road is some 13 miles long, and the total subsidy paid was $81,000. The Government will take force restitution of half this amount, or $40,500. The Department of Railways and Canals accepted the recommendation of its engineer, E. V. Johnson, who has been suspended.

Madoc, July 14.—Our High School has to its credit 20 successful candidates out of a total of 28 in the recent examinations. The eldest daughter of Robert McGeer obtained the highest number of marks, thus passing with honors.

Madoc lodge, L.O.L. No. 160 went to West Huntingdon by train on Saturday morning. All report fine weather a good time, excellent accommodations and first-class speeches.

A few Orangemen attended the celebration at Marhona on Monday. Madoc-on-the-Lake is the scene of great activity these days. There is only one motor boat left there, all the others having been sold off. The camps and cottages are all filled and all seem to be having a good time.

Many who formerly were patrons of the resort are now deriving their pleasure from the use of the auto. Mr. Frank Smith, the local representative of the Ford Company has disposed of 24 cars the present season. Excellent progress is being made with the new residence of Mr. W. J. Atkins. It will soon be completed.

The Dale family have now all moved from Madoc and will reside elsewhere. The Dale residence has been rented to the manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce who will shortly move in.

The hay harvest is now in full swing. Farmers report a light crop. Owing to the hot dry weather corn and roots are not doing well.

The front of the new bank premises has been considerably improved. Mr. Jackson of Edorado was the contractor.

A want ad campaign will sell that automobile—or that carriage—or that machinery, or those fixtures—at small cost of time or money.

"MILITARY OF JULY" PARADE BY ORANGEMEN AND OTHER SOCIETIES TO CHRIST CHURCH

Rector Rev. R. C. Blagrove Delivers Discourse to Assembled Brethren—The Magna Charta, Reformation and Revolution of 1688.

"The Glorious Twelfth" was celebrated in Belleville yesterday by the annual parade of the Protestant Societies to Christ Church. The turnout was the largest witnessed in many a day. Headed by the Highland Pipe Band in command of Pipe Major A. Johnston, was a long line of brethren of the Orange Lodges, Grenadiers, True Blues, and Sons of England, and other societies from all parts of the district were in procession. The new Orange Lodge, L. O. L. Belleville 2519, was well represented.

The weather was very warm for marching but the heat did not daunt the brethren.

The visiting lodges occupied nearly the whole of the nave of Christ Church. Rev. R. C. Blagrove, B.A., B.D., rector officiated at the service which was an inspiring one. The short form was used and the hymns were the favorites. "Onward Christian Soldiers," "Stand Up, Stand For Jesus," and "The Church's One Foundation," Miss LaVoie, chorale leader, sang a contralto solo very effectively and the choir was augmented for the occasion.

The sermon was based on Roman III, 26—"That which might be just and the justifier of him who believeth in Jesus." The preacher said in part:

Every virtue and every excellence we know of find their highest expression in the Son of Man. Those things that are most requisite to the best national life, and the finest type of citizenship receive their full measure and their inspiration in Jesus Christ. It is vain to seek elsewhere for a model. If we are to elevate our nation, to lift it to a purer social life, we must look to Him for our ideal and incentive. Jesus Christ furnishes our time balance and equips for our life. If life interests, if life would point you today and about Him I would have you constantly think. There is no quality more essential to a righteous life than a high sense of justice. And Jesus gave us the example of it, and it is the interpretation of His life and precepts that has contributed everything to the truer and finer elements in our civilization. There is a sense of justice divinely placed in the human breast, that recognizes and responds to the perfect, and this faculty is the guarantee of social righteousness. The human race strives incessantly after justice and correspondingly resents injustice. The evolution of national and individual liberty, the objective of the throes of the ages, has been due to the specially prominent fact that Britons have realized "righteousness exalteth a nation." The Bible and Christianity have in the past, at least, been their instructors.

It was a consciousness of justice that brought about the first great revolution against oppression, partly political, partly ecclesiastical, the outcome of which was the "Magna Charta." Britons were molested in their rights. They had been called upon through long years to fight vigorously for their political and ecclesiastical independence, and in their long struggles, internal and external, had been successful. But European powers were not content with that, and ecclesiastical influence still maintained its ascendancy. This influence of authority centred in Rome, a foreign city, and was as great a danger to the rights of Britons as any other. The feeling of resentment against such alien and foreign authority and its charter of British liberties, and let us not forget that the signing of that document was forced upon a renegade king by the organization known as the Church of England at the head of which was the Archbishop of Canterbury, and that a time when England was, as our school books are pleased to tell us, Roman though and though this was the outcome of a national feeling of just and righteous resentment against a great national wrong. It was a sense of justice in activity.

Class on over three hundred years ago you find a universal organization known as the Roman Catholic Church, in spite of the protests of Britons and by political intrigues and manipulations. This ecclesiastical body was the sole exponent and representative of Christianity in all the West. The sublime righteousness and justice of Jesus Christ were repudiated to the world in personal and individual oppression of vulgar and coarse immorality, and of selfish ecclesiastical aggrandisement. Surely this was the character of the church of the time shown by her own feeble attempts at reformation from within, of which Erasmus was the finest and noblest leader, and he suffered for his pains. Against this worldly organism the human sense of justice revolted, enlightened as it was by the new learning, not only in England, but on the continent as well. And though this revolt went too far in many ways it brought in at least a better interpretation and more righteous and adequate representation of the spirit of Jesus Christ. The reformation was due to an injured sense of justice on the part of those who learned Christ and loved their fellow man.

Come on down again one hundred and fifty years and you will find that despite all that had gone before, a British King, through sincere conviction, no doubt, threatens to impose upon the British peoples a religious system against which they had lived in protest so long. Backed up as he was by a minority of Britishers, he had still greater support from continental powers, civil and ecclesiastical, and it was this factor of foreign interest as well as the imposition of a repudiated religion that roused the feelings of all lovers of justice, and that placed William III on the British throne and sent into exile and disgrace, after the decisive Battle of the Boyne, which we celebrate today, the monarch, who if he was sincere was also ill-advised and injudicious. The final success of what was called the protestant religion in the British Isles was due to a righteous motive and a sense of justice. The motive was religious and patriotic and the real aim was to move truly represent to the world, in what was the established Church of England, the Christ of the gospels, and no political expediency. This sense of justice, which has so largely contributed to the evolution of the life and liberty of our time and our country, was in Canada the truest and most Christian sense.

A "Jesus" interpretation of justice in which he seemed to fail was a generous one. He used no weapons of worldly warfare and no political expedients. He could have delivered Himself but He would not. He wished righteousness to vindicate itself, which it has done eternally from Him. He proclaimed the truth and was willing for the world to see the triumph of the truth, Jesus' justice was generous but true "He that justifieth His life shall save it." This is all that must be just to our minorities. There is much talk about the rights of minorities. They have rights but not privileges. The majorities have as much right to privileges as the minorities. There is a great deal of talk about the rights of minorities. They have rights but not privileges. The majorities have as much right to privileges as the minorities. There is a great deal of talk about the rights of minorities. They have rights but not privileges. The majorities have as much right to privileges as the minorities.

This morning there opened at ten o'clock in the armouries here the eleventh annual convention of the Canadian Association of Master House Painters and Decorators. The sessions will last for four days, concluding on Friday.

Some two hundred delegates are expected to be in today. Hotel Quince is the headquarters' hotel.

At ten o'clock President Metcalfe called the meeting to order in the armouries lecture hall, and called on the Rev. A. S. Kerr of St. Andrews for the opening prayer.

Mayor Wilkes delivered an informal address of welcome to the Master Painters and their lady friends and extended to them the freedom of the city, which was warmly applauded.

After the roll call of officers the president delivered the following address: Ladies and Gentlemen—

It gives me great pleasure to welcome you to this the eleventh annual Convention of the Master House Painters and Decorators, Canada.

I desire also at this time to thank you for the honor you conferred on me in the City of St. Catharines one year ago by electing me as your President.

The selection of a meeting place for the 1914 Convention you left to your Executive Board and they at a meeting held on the 15th of February, after due consideration of the merits of different places, decided that the City of Belleville would be an ideal place to meet in during the warm weather of this holiday.

The fact that this city has the facilities for an outing, good hotel accommodation, boating, bathing and fishing, etc., keeping in view the fact that this is about the only holiday in the year when the members get during the year.

I have written to a number of Master Painters in various localities and called on some, advising them as to the benefits to be derived from attendance at our conventions and membership in our Associations.

The thanks of our active members are due to the associate members for their support and assistance during the year and we can best show you I think in buying all goods from them as far as possible, remembering that it is the associate members who make it possible for us to hold these conventions. At the executive meeting held in Toronto in February the associate members through their representatives consented to an increase in their annual dues to twenty dollars thus placing our finances on a good solid footing.

We have made fairly good progress during the year a matter which our secretary will inform you of, and we all look forward to a greater increase in membership during the coming year than ever, thanks to the very energetic work of our secretary, Mr. Money Donalson, Vice President and General Manager of these Associations.

Concrete Tanks and Troughs Never Rot or Leak

THE most practical tanks, whether for water or sewage, are built of concrete. They never rust, rot, dry out or leak. They never need new hoops or paint. They last a lifetime and seldom require repairing, which makes them the cheapest tanks that can be built.

Clean, Sanitary Watering Troughs are just as necessary as the animals that drink from them. The farmer's best interests are being served when his stock is insured a plentiful supply of clean, clear water from a trough that is permanent and sanitary.

"What the Farmer can do with Concrete" is the name of a handsome free book that tells all about concrete tanks, watering troughs and other uses of concrete that will save every farmer many dollars. Write for it to-day.

If publishers of daily newspapers were to cease issuing their papers during the summer months, saying, "It's too hot in July and August to publish papers," and anyway, "people don't read papers in summer," what a cry of protest would go up all over the land!

The public would say to publishers—"We must have the news and you must give it to us. You are our servants in this matter—our news gatherers—and scatterers. We are ready to pay you for this service. You have no right or liberty to take it upon yourselves to cease publishing your papers at our pleasure or convenience."

Think of it! The Daily Newspaper exists by the mandate of the people. It alone among all publications may not continue or cease at its pleasure; for it holds its charter from the people whose servant it is.

Have those other servants of the people—the merchants who supply them with their daily necessities—any right to be silent with respect to the news they have for those who depend on them? Has not the public a right to demand that the news of the stores shall be published along with other news of value and interest?

We put it up to the people of this community: Is the news of this community necessary news and should it appear regularly in the public press at all seasons of the year. Think of this, you merchants of this city.

SENT TO THE MERCER REFORMATORY

On Saturday and Sunday three girls who have been residing in the village for some time were taken into custody, as vagrants, as a result of complaints aid by a number of citizens. They were given a hearing before Magistrate H. R. Pearce, Wm. Bonter, B. C. Hubbell and Reeve Hubbell, the case occupying the greater part of Monday and part of Tuesday.

The hearing was conducted behind locked doors the general public being excluded.

The stories of these girls revealed a depth of depravity scarcely believable in girls of their age. They also revealed a condition of immortality which came as a distinct shock to many citizens of the village.

All three admitted having improper relations with a number of young men around the village and also implicated a number of married men. One girl claims to be under sixteen years of age.

As a result of their evidence warrants were then issued for a number of men, some of whom practically admitted their guilt by suddenly leaving town even before the warrants were issued. The others appeared before the magistrates and were remanded until Wednesday of last week.

The girls were sentenced to five months and fifteen days in the Mercer Reformatory and were taken to that institution on Wednesday by O. R. Jones. One girl laid her downfall to a married woman in the village and as a result of that woman will be given an opportunity to leave the village.

It is to be hoped that this probe will result in a very great improvement in this village.—Marmora Herald

LAWN SOCIAL

A very enjoyable lawn social was held at Roslin on Thursday evening last under the auspices of the Presbyterian church. W. C. Mikel, K.C., was chairman and a splendid entertainment was given consisting of instrumental music by the Foxboro band, Wm. McKay with the bagpipes, vocal music by Miss Moore and J. G. Gow. Addresses were given by Rev. Mr. Lyons and Rev. Mr. Creickshanks. Delectable refreshments in great profusion were served by the ladies of the Roslin church.

The 24th annual pilgrimage from the Archdiocese of Kingston to the Shrine of St. Anne de Beauspre, will take place July 21st, 1934, under the patronage of the Most Rev. M. J. Spratt, D.D., Archbishop of Kingston. This promises to be the largest pilgrimage that has ever left western Ontario.

Four special trains will run as follows—A special from Myrtle and East on the C.P.R. a second special from White on the new lake shore C.P.R.—Miss Special G. R. B. trains from White, Highgate and Peterboro. A special from Brooklin and east on the C.N.R. connecting with all branch lines of the Company and running through Ottawa.

Colonel W. N. Ponton, K.C., left last night for the Clifton House, Niagara Falls, where the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of Canada is to be held next week.

Col. Ponton is chairman of the Standing Committee on the Constitution of Masonry and Vice-President of the Board of General Purposes. Others who will go from Belleville are W. Bro. Harry J. Clark, B.A., Inspector of Schools, who will probably be the District Deputy for next year; also Dr. J. M. Wilson, W. H. Hudson, A. R. Walker, C. J. Symon and others representing the three Belleville Lodges, Moira, Belleville, and Eureka, and of course representatives from all the surrounding lodges of the district. This year's gathering will be particularly interesting as the Grand Lodge of England, of which the Duke of Connaught is Grand Master, will be represented with the Grand Master, most of the States of the Union, in a grand peace centenary celebration on the historic battle grounds about Niagara.

Mr. John W. Taylor, B.A., who almost captured the Prince of Wales' Scholarship in Matriculation, and who is silver medalist of Toronto, has been appointed to the staff of Albert College.

Miss Burleigh who has so successfully taught in the B.B.C. will teach in the Commercial Department of "Albert" this year.

The results of the examinations so far have been very gratifying. The candidates in the musical department and Piano and vocal have all been successful, nearly all passing with honors. In the Lower School examinations the returns just in show that 75% of those who wrote have been successful.

Mr. Harry Thompson, who drives Col. S. S. Lazier's automobile reports to the police that yesterday as he was motoring along the Madore road having as passengers Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, Chancellor of the King's Bench, who is presiding at the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court and Lt-Col. S. Lazier, he was anxious to pass a team and wagon, driven by a man. It is stated that the driver refused to give the road and Mr. Thompson was compelled to approach the ditch in order to get by. As the large seven-passenger McLaughlin was passing it is said the driver of the wagon gave vent to fairly strong language for no apparent reason. The police were asked to arrest the employer, to see that his employee was more careful.

Mr. Oscar Latta telephoned the police about midnight, that there were two men in his barn on North Front Street. A search revealed none whatever.

ROBLIN GOVERNMENT ON THE VERGE OF DEFEAT

Incomplete Returns From Manitoba Indicate That the Administration Has Been Sustained But by a Slender Majority—Returns and Deferred Elections May Change the Result—Rogers Machine Begins to Wobble.

WINNIPEG, July 11.—Reports received thus far have not definitely decided the standing of the parties in the next Legislature, but they indicate clearly enough that the Government will have a small majority, may be increased to a working efficiency by the three bye-elections yet to be held in the deferred northern seats.

The Liberals claim a tie of 21 seats each, with four to hear from. These four are claimed by the Government, who also claim several of the seats placed by the Opposition in their own column. A detached estimate might put the final standing at 25 Conservatives and 21 Liberals, with three deferred elections, making the total of 49. What the Government side now claims is 27, as against their opponents' 19. Liberals claim that results in six seats now standing in the Government columns are so close that recounts are inevitable, such seats being Kildonan and St. Andrews, where Hon. Dr. Montague has at present a majority of but four, whereas at the recent bye-election it stood in the hundreds.

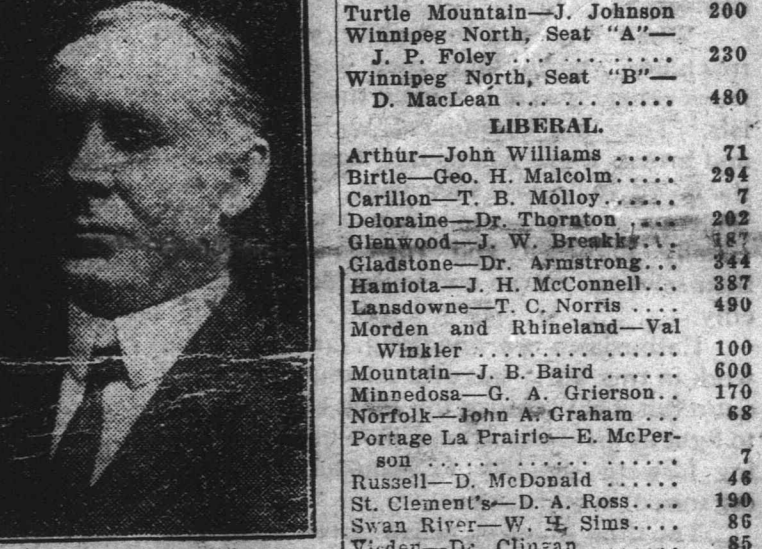

The Liberal sweep in Centre and South Winnipeg is one of the most surprising things of the campaign, from a Catholic children in the public schools, and the abolition of the bar. The lining up of the Orangemen to "save the little red school-house" is believed to have been the most potent influence.

The results now in hand are as follows: CONSERVATIVE. Assiniboia—Haig 816 Brandon City—Hon. G. R. Goldwell 181 Beautiful Plains—Hon. J. H. Howden by small majority. Cypress—Geo. Everything is going on very satisfactorily at the Cadet camp at Barrieffield and the boys are having a fine time and doing splendid work in their drilling and on parade. Yesterday afternoon and evening was one day that will rest long in the minds of the Cadets. They were royally entertained and all had the time of their lives. About 600 took in the trip down the river on the steamer America and enjoyed themselves finely. The boat left Forter's dock at two o'clock and making a tour of the islands down as far as Alexandria Bay, returned to the city shortly before eight o'clock. It was a rare treat for most of the boys, as very few of them had been down the river before. The scheme was a good one and everything went off to the entire satisfaction of all. The young lads were all well pleased with the trip and many of them said afterwards that they would not have missed it for anything. The boys had supper on board the boat and on landing at the dock formed up in companies and marched back to camp. The other crowd of cadets, who preferred Lake Ontario Park to the island trip, numbered well over a thousand, and they also had a good time. Several special cars were put on by the Street Railway Company and the boys were taken to the Park for the afternoon. By an arrangement between the camp officers and the Street Railway Company, a special show was put on for their benefit and the pavilion was packed by the young soldiers, who seemed to be enjoying themselves to the utmost. The entire vaudeville bill was put on for their benefit, and the actors' audience was a delighted one. They applauded the strong work of the Sander Bros. on the trapeze and horizontal bars, but when Texas

CADETS GIVEN FINE OUTING

Some Went Down River and Others to Park—Benson Cup for Williams-town KIDIES.

After their outing yesterday, the boys turned in to-day drilled all morning. Both company and battalion drill was carried out and one of the battalions were at the rifle ranges. While there, they were instructed by Lieut Swaine, of the 14th, who gave them quite a lecture on musketry and many instructions on rifle-shooting. Although it was very warm for the young fellows drilling and marching in the sun, they stuck to it well and showed that they had considerable grit.

This afternoon will be another big time for the cadets. The sports will be on and every cadet in camp will be given a chance to clean up one or other of the prizes which has been offered. The sports will consist of games of all kinds as well as running races, hop-step and jump and other features.

The camp will break up to-morrow and to-day's drilling will be the last that young fellows will get. The first corps to go out will be one from Cornwall. They will go this evening. A number of the boys in camp are Hebrews. They will also leave this evening for their homes, as to-morrow is the Jewish Sabbath and their parents are averse to their travelling on the Sabbath.

The Williams-town KIDIES won the Benson Cup for efficiency and general appearance on parade and drilling. They are without doubt a creditable organization and deserve no little praise—Friday's Standard

THE TIME TO BEGIN

The lesson that should be impressed upon both temperance men and liberals as a result of the recent provincial election is the uselessness of fighting campaigns without thorough organization.

For this Abolish-the-Bar contest there was one of the best platform campaigns ever put up in the province of Ontario. The usual staff of political orators were ably and effectively assisted by large numbers of earnest and eloquent clergymen and of laymen who usually took no active part in elections.

The campaign on the platform was seconded by another campaign carried on no less convincingly by the newspaper press of the province. The educational work both by platform and press was however, largely rendered abortive by lack of any proper organization to reach the individual voter.

As The Globe remarked "the only ballots that count are those that reach the ballot box." In West Hastings the temperance party left organization off till less than a week before polling day. Even then there was little effective committee work done.

Public meetings, eloquent addresses, enthusiastic applause, and newspaper articles are all right as allies in a campaign, but none of them nor all of them can take the place of the organization that gets the voter to the place where he puts the cross on his ballot paper.

The hotel-keepers and the liquor interests deserve great credit for the manner in which they handled the late campaign, and the election machinery generally. They knew where their men were long before the time of polling. Then on election day everything was carried out as methodically and systematically as the movements of a well trained army.

That is the way that elections are won. We are not discussing or excusing some of the things that were done. We are speaking only of their extremely practical business-like campaign.

When it comes to dealing with election machinery, temperance men, and worthy citizens generally, are too often theoretical idealists. They are enamoured with their cause and intend when polling day comes to rush to the booth and record their vote. They cannot understand why other men should not be equally enthused and rush headlong like themselves to put an end to the detestable enemy.

Enthusiasm is a fine thing, and no great work in this world was ever accomplished without it. But it is too much the habit of enthusiasts to fight as an undisciplined mob instead of going forward shoulder to shoulder in serried, organized, united ranks.

The time to begin active preparations for the election campaign, that must be fought out less than four years from to-day is NOW, and not six days before the time of polling.

PRAISE FOR WILSON

The London Spectator, one of the most influential weeklies of the British metropolis, pays a warm tribute of praise to President Wilson for his repeal of the clauses in the Panama Canal Act which infringed the spirit of the treaty made by the United States when the Bulwer-Clayton treaty was abrogated. In doing this, it considers he has done his nation a service of incalculable worth. "We care little or nothing," it says, "about the mere commercial question whether the United States coastwise shipping should or should not have a preference in the matter of canal dues. The material point is not important. What is important, and what we as friends and admirers of the United States have troubled ourselves about very greatly, is the honor and good faith of that great republic. The inviolability of the national honor is as vital to a democracy as to any other form of government. The popular leader who, risking his own popularity and refusing to obey what may seem omnipotent influences, obliges the nation to turn its attention to the point of probity and good faith, is worthy of the highest praise that men can give him."

What the Spectator says will be heartily endorsed by every right-thinking journal in the Empire. President Wilson had every excuse for leaving the matter alone. The act was not passed by him or his party, but by his predecessor. He might very well have taken the ground that he was sorry for Mr. Taft's action, but that it was no use crying over spilt milk, and that with so many other great and pressing things to be done, he could not waste time over the invidious task of repealing an act of Congress. For the problem was one in which it was especially easy to create prejudice. Nothing was easier or sounded more patriotic than to declare that the man who proposed to repeal the toll clause was trying to ingratiate himself with the jealous dominating power of England and that repeal would be merely an act of toadyism, a cringing to London, a humiliation of the American Eagle before the haughty British lion. Lastly—and this was a consideration which would especially move the party politician—the most vigorous opponents of repeal, the most fervent upholders of the principle that what was favorable for England must be bad for America—were to be found in President Wilson's own party. Opposing a large section of your political supporters is a thing which, whatever be the merits of the question at issue, the modern political leader regards with special horror. Yet—to quote the words of the Spectator—"President Wilson, with every sort of excuse for doing the wrong rather than the right thing, faced a malevolent press, a sulky party machine, and a cynical and suspicious Legislature, and with a steadiness and perseverance which are far more difficult to maintain than dash and daring refused to rest until he could clear the national honor and uphold before the world the sanctity of a treaty. He did not want to vindicate his own virtue, but to maintain at whatever cost to himself, the good name of his country. . . . We have dealt with President Wilson's achievements as an American, and with what the best Americans and the best friends of America owe to him in making known to the world that the plighted word of the United States is a rock upon which men and nations may build in safety. . . . He has proved himself above all things the man of honor, the man who has shown to the world that a democracy like America can be, and is, as careful of its good name as the most venerable and punctilious of Old World states."

WAR AND PEACE

An upheaval seem to threaten the whole civilized world to-day. Great Britain is menaced with civil war and the Ulster volunteers are getting ready to carry arms openly. France has just passed through a serious crisis over the matter of militarism. Italy has passed through strikes and labor riots to open denunciation of the ruling monarch, who is being held responsible, though rather unjustly so for the war with Tripoli. In Austria, the assassination of the heir to the throne and the fact that Francis Joseph cannot live much longer, together with the resentment of its conquered peoples, constitute a problem of the gravest character. The factors making for trouble between Austria-Hungary and Russia on the other are so numerous that open conflict in the near future would not be surprising. In Albania fighting has been going on for some time and war between Greece and Turkey may be declared at any minute; apparently the sale of the United States warships to Greece is the only thing that has prevented it already. Serbia's king abdicated the other day, ostensibly on account of his health, but that expression may be taken in a figurative sense.

Outside of Europe the unrest, though not so acute still exists. In South Africa the labor problem is complicated in racial and immigration questions. India is seething with discontent and the refusal of Canada to accept more Hindus is likely to accentuate the discontent. In China a shaky republic has succeeded a shaky monarchy. Japan too, has her worries over emigration. And we all know what is happening in Mexico. If the United States can get out of the country without warfare, it will be very lucky.

This warfare and threatened warfare come at a time when individual men are more peaceful and greater efforts in behalf of peace are being made than ever before in the world's history. People are considering as never before the economic side of war and its effects upon the markets of the world. They are recognizing the fact that the high and constantly increasing cost of living is due in a large extent to the money spent upon war. Thus has been bred a large class of pacifists who are moved not by humanitarian or moral motives, but purely by self-interest. They know that every man off to the wars means a man taken away from agriculture or some other productive occupation. They know that every dollar put in a warship means a dollar taken out of some industrial enterprise. The great body of socialists throughout the world are opposed to the war. The labor organizations are opposed to war. The financiers, the men who have to raise the money to conduct the wars, are growing more and more reluctant to invest their money in something so uncertain and damaging as a great conflict between nations. And with all this utilitarian sentiment has kept pace the moral and religious sentiment of the civilized world, crying out against the horrors of war.

How, then, account for the seething unrest, the wars actual and threatening among the nations? It might be difficult to say. But one thing is notable in connection with the majority of these disturbances—they are nearly all caused by the growth of the spirit of democracy. The love of independence is so deeply implanted in man's breast that he will not be content until he is as near freedom as possible, the rule of individuals or cliques is supplanted by that of the people. That must come without turmoil or with it.

HIGH TARIFF PENALTIES

The expected is happening and the United States because of its lower tariff is already beginning to have an increased influence in the markets of the world. The New Zealanders are shipping their produce to the United States and not to Canada as in the past, because the United States has no tariff upon food and Canada has a high tariff upon food. And the New Zealanders, being human beings, have decided to sell their produce where they can do the best with it. They declare that they would prefer the Canadian dollar to that of the United States, but they much prefer a United States dollar to three Canadian quarters of a dollar.

But that is not all that there is to it. When the New Zealand ships comes to the United States with New Zealand produce, it is the best business to return to New Zealand loaded with goods greatest in demand, which happens to be United States manufactures. That is the way of trade.

The New Zealanders recognize the force of this, and are already planning to reduce the duties upon United States manufactured goods. That is not hearsay. It is so probable that it has alarmed the Canadian Commissioner to New Zealand, who has made a report to the Canadian Government.

That, as the Calgary Alberian says, is the usual trend of affairs. It is the natural outcome. If our tariff wall, is placed so high against outside manufacturers that we close out the products of other nations, we can expect no favors from those nations.

Canada has more miles of railway per capital than any other country. We have 30,088 miles in operation; 8,826 miles under construction; and several thousand more miles in the brains of promoters. This is a magnificent achievement for the railway builders of this country. But the people of the country have also done their share in completing these huge enterprises. In cash subsidies, the Dominion Government, Provincial Government, and municipalities have given in cash up to date the immense sum of $208,072,074; $6,052,055 acres of land, and guarantees aggregating $245,070,045.

For 1912 the increase in cash subsidies over 1911 amounted to $5,892,818; in land 6,000,000 acres, and in guarantees, $96,733,687. In addition to this, the Government is constructing the eastern division of the Grand Trunk Pacific at a cost which the Minister of Finance announced in Parliament would probably reach $243,000,000; of which the expenditure of $117,000,000 has already taken place. These items added together make $696,142,119 without placing any money value on the land grants. It is impossible to say what the latter are worth but the holdings of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern Railways in the West would realize not less than $150,000,000 at prevailing prices. Yet the transportation problem remains the greatest national problem of Canada. High transportation charges are one of the chief causes of our high cost of living. We have given generously to our railways. They have been allowed to fix their rates. They are prosperous enterprises. We want service. We have paid for it and will continue to pay for it, but we must have it. There will soon be three great transcontinental railways completed from ocean to ocean. We want no more for the present. The time has come when the railways should stop building main lines and devote their attention first to covering the country with a network of branch lines, which will serve the vast areas waiting for settlement; and second, to the improvement of their service. By ceasing the construction of main lines for the present, the companies will save money to buy engines and cars, to build terminals and sidings, and to make other improvements in their service, which are the crying needs of this country.—Industrial Canada.

M. Rowell in his address at the opening of the Provincial campaign, asked his audience as to where the responsibility would rest if through defeat of the Liberal party on June 29 the bar were not abolished in Ontario. He received a chorus of answers: "On the churches!" Taking the term, "the churches" to signify those elements in Ontario's life which profess to work, and which do work, for the uplifting of humanity and the advancement of moral reform, the responsibility for the defeat of the "banish the bar" policy would have rested admittedly on their shoulders if they had been at all lax in their efforts. For many decades the churches and temperance organizations in Canada have never ceased passing resolutions pledging themselves to war against the liquor traffic and calling upon their members to "vote temperance" regardless of party affiliations. They would certainly have had ceaseless blame from those who are now scolding their activities if they had failed to do their utmost in the matter.—Montreal Weekly Witness

Medical literature tells of a woman in Silesia who became the proud—and busy—mother of 62 babies, all of whom lived to maturity. They came in showers, once six at a time, often four and five, only one unitarian.

There were no flats in Silesia, with children barred. This mother lived in the open country, where the kiddies had room to play and to grow.

Most of the time they went barefoot. Otherwise pa mightn't have been able to foot the shoe bills.

They ate the simple fare which was obtainable from fields and forests—brown bread, nuts, wild fruits, the flesh and eggs of domestic fowls, fish from a friendly stream and hares and partridges.

Their clothing was homespun, not fancy but serviceable. They were not afraid to sleep outdoors.

Their's was a happy example of the simple but bounteous life. They never saw a railroad train, a street car, an automobile or an aeroplane, and when they traveled it was by that best of ways, shanks' ponies.

But they ate well and slept well and were strong and hardy; they were not peevish and fretful and crazy for a new sensation, for they had nerves of steel.

They missed a lot of the pleasures and advantages of civilization.

Yet how much would a millionaire dyspeptic give, think you, for health and strength and contentment like theirs?

Missouri is changing its laws and into its new scheme of society a St. Joseph club woman is trying to inject a provision requiring all couples desiring to marry to show at least $200, "Poverty, shiftlessness and a failure to save, cause more divorces than anything else," she argues.

She may be right, but the chances are that the little winged god is not worrying over the attempt to weight his arrow with a few ounces of gold.

It may be foolish to rush into the responsibilities of matrimony minus cash, but the world has grown on such foolishness.

Shall thoughts turn to saving of money when the most glorious girl of the ages smiles and gently intimates a desire for flowers or candy or picnics or trifles?

When a simple "Yes" makes a universe too small a gift in return for that confidence?

When the generosity of soul is boundless and only capacity limited?

Later it is true that $200 might come in handy. Later life may become more real—but the glory of real love is that it doesn't stop to count its pennies; it doesn't stop to consider consequences; it never pauses to glance at back accounts, but lifts those to whom it visits to such realms of ecstasy, such heights of courage, such empires of generous thought that nothing else matters.

Cupid in chains to a $200 keeper? Some day, perhaps, but not in this year of our Lord 1914.

—Wichita Beacon.

The Aquitania on her maiden trip exceeded all expectations as to stability. She is undoubtedly a triumph of naval architecture, and although not quite the largest, is probably, everything being considered, the finest ship afloat. But a question is arising in many minds as to whether or not the construction of great ships is wholly advisable. The huge German vessels lately launched, although they were everything that could be wished when at sea, proved exceedingly troublesome in port, and it was only with very great difficulty that they were prevented from doing enormous damage when they were being docked in New York. Some of the marine authorities are taking the position that smaller vessels would be more satisfactory, as well as less costly and really safer in case of danger. It is pointed out that much of the space on these leviathans is taken up with luxuries which might very well be dispensed with on the short transatlantic run. Only a comparatively small proportion of the passengers care anything about the superfluous luxury of travel. There has been a great rivalry as to size, but now that everything possible seems to have been provided on the newer vessels, except a race track and a cow pasture, perhaps the companies will be content not to try to do so much. The fate of the Titanic and of the Empress of Ireland shows that size may sometimes only mean a greater disaster.

TWO BROTHERS

Along in September, when chill was the weather, Two ballots were cast in a box together. They nestled up close like brother to brother, You couldn't tell one of the votes from the other.

The Sunday school man—no man could be truer, Kept busy all summer denouncing the brewer, But his fervor cooled off with the change of the weather, And late in the autumn they voted together.

The Sunday School man had always been noted, For fighting saloons—except when he voted, He piled up his prayers with a holy perfection, Then knocked them all down on the day of election.

The cunning old brewer was cheerful and mellow, Said he, "I admire that Sunday School fellow; He's true to his church—to his party he's truer; He talks for the Lord, but he votes for the brewer."

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson III.—Third Quarter. For July 19, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Mark x, 46-52. Memory Verses, 51, 52—Golden Text, Isa. xxxv, 5.—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Causing the blind to see, the deaf to hear, the dumb to sing and the lame to walk were samples of what will be more fully when His kingdom comes Isa. xxxv, 4-6. The blind and all other afflicted ones were physical illustrations of Israel's spiritual condition, and He was ready to open their eyes as He was literally to open the eyes of a few individuals. But the great ones among them preferred their blindness because all the time they thought they saw clearly. Our Lord called them blind Pharisees, blind leaders of the blind (Matt. xxiii, 26, 27, 28) and when they asked Him, "Are we blind also?" He said unto them, "If ye were blind ye should have no sin, but now ye say, We see; therefore your sin remaineth" (John ix, 40-41). In their case, as in the case of multitudes today, the god of this world blinded their minds, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine into them (II Cor. iv, 4).

Our lesson story is found in Matt. ix, 29-34, as well as in Mark, and is the record of a healing as He left the city of Jericho. He healed another man who was blind as He entered Jericho, and that man glorified Him, glorifying God as He entered and passed through Jericho (Luke xviii, 35, to xix, 1). Matthew and Mark both say that the healing of our lesson took place as He departed from Jericho, and Matthew says that there were two blind men, who were not to be reckoned and nothing to be reckoned. He healed a blind man as He entered Jericho and two more as He left the city, and one of the two was called Bartimeus, and no doubt there were many more blind people healed at different times (Matt. xi, 15; xii, 22; John ix), and we cannot but rejoice with every poor fellow who received his sight, feel sorry for those who did not, and pity the spiritually blind who fancied that they did see, because they were wise in their own estimation.

When the kingdom comes we shall see the King in His beauty, and we shall then think that we never knew Him before. He will be so glorious (Isa. xxxiii, 17, 24; John iii, 1, 2). Every eye shall see Him, either to adore Him and enjoy Him forever or else to see Him and hear Him say, "Depart from me; I never knew you." The cry of the man who was healed as He entered Jericho and that of the others healed as He left the city is so similar that some cannot think that Luke is telling of a separate incident (Matt. ix, 30; Mark x, 47; Luke xviii, 35). In each event Jesus stood and commanded the man or men to be brought unto Him or called them to Him. Mark says that those who called him said, "Be of good comfort; rise; He calleth thee." That which we have in eight words here is just four words in the Greek.

I envy those who can read the Greek and Hebrew readily; there is such a fullness of meaning in those languages which it is difficult to express in English. There is something very remarkable here, and it is this: The words "Be of good comfort" (Greek "tharse!") are used by our Lord on five different occasions, all exceedingly interesting and helpful, four while He was on earth and once after He returned to heaven (Matt. ix, 2, 22; xiv, 27; John xvi, 33; Acts xxiii, 11). They make a beautiful, helpful Bible study on forgiveness, peace, victory and the purpose of God. The remarkable thing is that this word, used only elsewhere by our Lord, is used in our lesson by those who called the blind man. I wonder why they should use one of our Lord's special words. I do not understand it. I only note the fact. If it was the disciples who used the word they did it as His representatives, and we think of a later word of His, "As my Father hath sent Me, even so send I you" (John xv, 21). If some of the multitude used the word, then I am perplexed.

Casting away his garment, he came to Jesus, and I expect that he did so very quickly. He knew his need and that there was a deliverer at hand, and he did not hesitate nor make any excuse. He was poor, empty, helpless, ready to receive. In the song of Mary it is written, "He hath filled the hungry with good things, and the rich He hath sent empty away" (Luke, i, 53). It is also written, "Blessed are ye that hunger now, for ye shall be filled" (Luke ix, 21). The poor and the needy are those who obtain help speedily (Ps. lxxii, 4). The rich and the self-sufficient and self righteous are the ones whom it is impossible to help.

"What wilt thou that I should do unto thee?" This is the question ever coming to us from Him in whom all fullness dwells, for has He not said, "If ye shall ask anything in My name I will do it." "If ye abide in Me and My words abide in you ye shall ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you" (John xiv, 14; xv, 7). How brief and definite is the blind man's request, "Lord, that I might receive my sight." He did not want five things, nor three nor two—just one. He knew well what he wanted, and he asked for it. If we knew our need as well and were as definite in our asking, what might we not receive! The longer I live the more clear it seems to me that we have but one great need as believers, and that is to be filled with and controlled by the Holy Spirit.

DEATH OF T. M. HURST.

On Wednesday morning at the home of his son-in-law, Mayor Milton Adams Ferguson Street, the death occurred of Thomas M. Hurst. Mr. Hurst was in his 79th year and has been living retired for a number of years. He was born in Philadelphia but had lived in Prince Edward county for many years in the early days Mr. Hurst conducted singing schools in different parts of the county. He was in mercantile business for a number of years at Cherry Valley and Cressy. His business venture was a grocery in Picton. A family of three daughters survive—Beatrice, wife of Milton Adams, Ethel M. Sheriff of Rochester, and Miss Rhea Hurst, all of whom were at their father's bedside when he died—Picton Times.

HOT WEATHER ILLMENTS

A medicine that will keep children well is a great boon to every mother. This is just what Baby's Own Tablets do. An occasional dose keeps the little stomach and bowels right and prevents sickness. During the hot summer months stomach troubles speedily turn to fatal diarrhoea or cholera infantum and if Baby's Own Tablets are not at hand the child may die within a few hours. Wise mothers always keep the Tablets in the house and give their children an occasional dose to clear out the stomach and bowels and keep them well. Don't wait till baby is ill—the delay may cost a precious life. Get the Tablets now and you may feel reasonably safe. Every mother who uses the Tablets praises them and that is the best evidence that there is no other medicine for children so good. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams, Brockville, Ont.

The cause is a disordered liver—the cure Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. To the Small Apple Grower Within Teaming Distance of Trenton Cold Storage.

The prospects are for a very large apple crop this year and high prices for barrels and to the small grower this means such prices for their apples as the evaporators will pay, or feeding them to the hogs, or leaving them to rot on the ground as they fall.

We have leased the Trenton Cold Storage and offer our services to help you to realize for your apples as much money as will be realized by the largest and best growers and packers in the Dominion of Canada.

We will furnish you with barrels at market price and you can pick and pack your apples in the orchard and draw them into the storage. We will grade and pack them, send them out under our own brand and will make an agreed price charge for our service for our service for grading and packing, attend to the insurance, shipping, etc., and when the returns are received we will deduct from same the amount due us for the barrels and the agreed amount for our service and use of brand and pay you the difference.

We can show you in our office letters from some of the leading firms in the Old Country Markets quoting our brand as the finest packs of apples shipped out of the Dominion of Canada.

If you desire to take the chances of a later market, we will furnish you with barrels and you can grade your apples, do the shipping and insurance, ship under our brand and when returns are made will deduct the amount for barrels, storage charges and the agreed amount that we are to charge for our service in repacking, grading, use of our brand and insurance and a charge of 6% interest for the cash outlay that we have made for barrels.

In the two propositions we have given you the chance to realize for your apples all that the best packers and growers in Canada receive for their apples.

Call at our office, at such times as is convenient when in Trenton at the Trenton Electric building and let us talk it over together.

As to our standing and character we refer you to our Bankers—The Standard Bank of Canada.

Yours very truly,

Fell From Barn.

Mr. Wm. Dafeo, of College Hill, had a narrow escape from death on Tuesday last while working on a new barn in the 7th Con. of Sidney, belonging to Jas. Ryan. Mr. Dafeo was carrying a load along a scaffold about twenty feet above the ground, when his heel caught the projecting end of a board. He stumbled and fell to the ground. Fortunately he landed upon his feet, but received a bad bruise. Medical aid was summoned. Dr. Faulkner brought him home in his car, and he is under the care of Dr. Connor. No bones were broken, and it is thought he will be able to resume his duties in a few days.

Broken Leg.

Mr. Fred Bird, aged about twenty years, son of Mr. Robert Bird, of Fobxboro, suffered the fracture of his right leg on Tuesday evening while playing a practice game of football on the church lawn. DEPARTMENTAL EXAMINATIONS

The Department of Education on Thursday announced the results of examinations as follows—Entrance into the Model schools, senior high school entrance, senior public school graduation-diploma, lower school entrance into the Normal schools and faculties of education. The certificates of successful candidates and the statements of marks of those who failed that have not already been issued to principals of inspectors will be sent in the course of a few days.

The appeal examiners have already re-read the answer papers of each candidate whose marks appear to justify an appeal. Where such candidate has failed his statement of marks will be stamped as re-read, and no further appeal will be allowed. In all other cases of failure appeals will not be refused, if made before September 1st, and accompanied by the fee of $2.00. In view of all the precautions taken, however, it is most likely that such appeals would succeed. Candidates are recommended to consult their principals as to the advisability of entering appeals.

ENTRANCE INTO THE MODEL SCHOOLS, 1914.

The candidates named below have passed the examination for entrance into the Model schools. They are reminded that the Model schools at Chatham, Clinton, Cornwall, Guelph, Hanover, Kingston, Madoc, North Bay, Orillia and Renfrew will open on August 18th next, and that those who wish to enter in order to qualify for limited third-class certificates should make an application before August 15 to the Deputy Minister of Education on a form to be supplied by him. Applications will not be accepted from those who will not be 15 years of age before December 31st, 1914. Candidates for admission to the North Bay Model School may ascertain from the Deputy Minister of Education the terms on which they may be admitted.

VICTIM OF ACCIDENT DEAD

Gilmour Youth Passed Away Here Yesterday.

John Oscar Dafeo, aged eighteen years and son of John Dafeo of Gilmour, died yesterday afternoon in the general hospital here. Some days ago he was injured by being kicked by a horse which he was passing in a stable, in which his skull was fractured.

The remains were shipped this morning by Messrs. Tickle and Sons Company to Gilmour. The father and sister of the deceased youth were in town this morning.

KRAFCHENKO IS HANGED.

He Insists to the Last That He Did Not Kill Arnold.

WINNIPEG, July 10.—John Krafchenko, convicted of murder, was hanged at 6.53 yesterday morning in the provincial jail. He died as he had lived, a man of iron nerve, and went to death unflinchingly. John Krafchenko died penitent. He proved to his spiritual adviser, Rev. Bertal Heenev, during the last night of his life, that he had wished he could have left his cell, could have broken out as he had out of the "old kitchen," and a bent, battered old teaspoon was the simple implement he used to pick the massive lock of his cell before the eyes of the astonished clergyman.

Mr. Heenev entered Krafchenko's cell at 11 o'clock Wednesday night, and throughout the night he and the prisoner prayed every hour. At 6.55 he was brought from his cell to the place of execution by two guards. He mounted the twenty or so steps to the scaffold, and when half way up he sadly smiled and murmured to one of the guards that he did not feel very well. He took his place on the drop. In a moment the black cap was in and the noose adjusted. Mr. Heenev began to recite a last prayer, and within a few brief seconds and while the clergyman's lips were still moving, Arthur Ellis suddenly threw over the lever, the drop was sprung and Krafchenko died.

Krafchenko maintained his innocence of the actual murder to the last.

AN UNUSUAL COINCIDENCE

Spiritual Adviser and Also Victim Were Former Bellevillians.

The Rev. Bertal Heenev, of Winnipeg, who attended John Krafchenko in his last hours as spiritual adviser, was at one time rector of Christ Church of this city.

An unusual coincidence it is that a former Belleville resident, H. M. Arnold, of Plume Coulee, was the man Krafchenko murdered on December 3rd last and that the murderer should have as his spiritual adviser a former Belleville minister.

DROWNED IN THE SOURIS

Mrs. Samuel Sills of Aronville has received the sad news of the death from drowning of her nephew, Percy Clindinin. He was drowned on July the 2nd while bathing in the Souris river, near Minto, Sask. He was in his 9th year, and was the only son of Mrs. Sills' sister, Mrs. Clindinin. In addition to his father and mother, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Warren Powers of Brighton, Ont., and Miss Anna of Regina, Sask.

Will Lower Part of Sewer.

Front Street sewer from Victoria Avenue, 150 feet south, will be dug up and lowered seven inches, so the authorities decided this morning, whose a blast for the drain destroyed part of the sewer. It had been originally intended to lower the sewer here as at Victoria Ave., the levels of the sewer above and below are seven inches different. The officials consider this lowering necessary.

Both sides of the street are being covered with debris so that traffic above Ritchie's to Victoria Avenue is impossible.

Lost a Toe.

The eight-year-old son of Mr. David Lawrence of Canifiton, was the victim of a painful accident on Monday last which caused him the loss of one of his toes. He was fishing in the Meira when a large stone fell on the third toe of one of his feet almost severing the member. Mr. Ed. Shorey placed the little fellow in his auto and took him to his home where medical aid was summoned, and an amputation later performed.

REFUSE NOT THE VOICE FROM HEAVEN

Only Those in Harmony With Head of Church Can He Use.

THREE CLASSES IN THE CHURCH

The History of Man's Rebellion Against God — To Israel Alone God Spoke. Through the Law and the Prophets. God Now Speaks Through His Son. To the Church Alone — Only the Spirit-Begotten Can Discern Spiritual Things — The Proper Attitude of Heart — Consecration a Most Reasonable Step — The Responsibility of the Consecrated Child of God.

July 12. — The Photo-Drama of Creation is now being produced daily in more than eighty cities, both here and abroad. From all sides come commendations. The Bible is being opened up to popular understanding as never before. Pastor Russell's text today was, "See that ye refuse not Him that speaketh from Heaven." — Hebrews 12:25.

The Pastor introduced his discourse with a comment upon the opening verses of the Epistle to the Hebrews. There the Apostle is contrasting the Message which God sent through the Lord Jesus Christ with those messages sent previously through His servants — Moses and the Prophets of Israel. The Apostle elsewhere tells us that God speaks peace unto us through His Son. This statement suggests that previously there had been war. Away back in the days of Eden, when Father Adam and Mother Eve were on trial, Mother Eve was misled by Satan's suggestion and disobeyed God's command. Then Father Adam, leaning to his own understanding, sinned wilfully, that he might have fellowship with his wife — rather than with God. Thus the entire race were brought into rebellion against the Creator and were condemned to death in Adam.

Then the Pastor went on to trace the history of the rebellious race of man. Cut off from fellowship with God, falling deeper and deeper into sin, degradation and death conditions were set up as called children of God. About twenty-five centuries after the fall, the Almighty gave the Israelites opportunity to come into harmony with Him. There He spoke to them especially, through Moses and the Prophets, directing that whoever would hear Moses and obey might come closer to their Creator. So we read, "They have Moses and the Prophets; let them hear them." God had not spoken to mankind in general; only the little nation of Israel had He given a Message. To them He had not spoken in any other way than through the Law and the Prophets. The Apostle tells us that those who disobeyed Moses' Law died without mercy. Moses was God's mouthpiece; and therefore whoever disobeyed him came under the penalty of death.

The Apostle's argument, the Pastor declared, is this: Now, brethren, review the history of Israel, and see how from time to time they neglected the messages which God sent them at the mouth of angels and of Moses, and note how disasters came on them because of that negligence. If, then, there was such a penalty inflicted for negligence respecting the words of Moses, what should be the result of refusing to hear Him who speaks from Heaven itself? If those who rejected Moses' Law died without mercy, how much severer punishment should they receive who would count the blood of the Covenant wherewith they were sanctified a common thing, and who would do despite to God's spirit of favor? Surely we may expect that there would be nothing further for those who reject God's arrangement for man's salvation!

The Pastor next showed that the consecrated people of God will finally be found in one of three classes. The Little Flock, to whom our Lord declared it is the Father's good pleasure to give the Kingdom, is a limited number — so far as we can judge probably 144,000. Then comes the Great Company, "whose number no man knows" — God not having revealed it — a class unworthy of a place in the Little Flock, but yet loyal in heart to God and the principles of righteousness. Last of all, is the class that do despite to the Covenant of Grace. Formerly the Pastor was inclined to think that this class would be very small, but of late realizes that according to the experiences of the typical people the number will be much larger than he once had thought; for many Israelites fell in the wilderness on account of having rejected the testimony of the Lord, and their death was typical.

No one is on trial for life, the Pastor declared, except those who have gotten free from the sentence of Adam's death. No one has a standing with God except those who have turned from sin and have presented their bodies in full consecration to Him. Those who have taken these steps have been accepted by the Lord Jesus, in harmony with the Father's great Plan. Immediately after our Lord has accepted them, He coun-them as His flesh; and then the Father also accepts that flesh; for, as the Scriptures point out, the flesh of Christ has been in offering throughout the Gospel Age. Jesus first offered His own flesh. When He had finished that work, He appeared in the presence of God and made satisfaction for the sins of the Church, beginning with the Apostles. Then the Father indicated His acceptance of their sacrifices by giving them the Holy Spirit.

Throughout the Gospel Age, the Pastor continued, all believers have received the Holy Spirit just as soon as they have been accepted of the Father, through the great Advocate. All through the Age the members of the Body of Christ have been coming to Him; and the flesh of the Church, the consecrated ones, has been counted as the flesh of Jesus. This flesh has been suffering for nearly nineteen hundred years — Christ suffering in the flesh.

Thus we see the fulfillment of the Scriptures which declares that the Church is filling up that which remains of the afflictions of Christ. "If we suffer with Him, we shall also reign with Him." And "the sufferings of the present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed" in the Church which is the Body of Christ. The Prophets of old, says St. Peter, spoke of the sufferings of the Christ and of the glory that shall follow. All who share the suffering will also share the coming blessings — glory, honor and immortality.

Then the Pastor pointed out that those who are received of the Lord are in spirit all one as New Creatures. There is one Body of Christ in the flesh of the Church. Then there is the other Body of Christ, the New Creature Body, composed of the new natures of all who are begotten of the Holy Spirit as New Creatures; and these New Creatures inhabit this flesh of Christ. Here are two Bodies of Christ then — the Body of Christ in the flesh, and the Body of Christ spiritually, which is dwelling in these earthly tabernacles and seeking to bring them to the sacred point of entry in everything. He also showed that the final Body of Christ beyond the veil will be composed of the "more than conquerors" only — Jesus, the Captain, and all who voluntarily lay down their lives in following His example.

Thus there are three Bodies of Christ. The final one is taken out of the other two. Those who are left constitute the Great Company and those who go into the Second Death. But those who constitute these Bodies are the only ones with whom God is dealing — the only ones whom He has yet received. And even these were not received until they had come to the full point of consecration as New Creatures. Therefore it is the New Creature that is on trial, not the flesh. Throughout the entire Gospel Age, only the New Creatures in Christ have been on trial for life or death eternal.

The Pastor then explained that no one can reject Christ in the full sense of the word and go into the Second Death unless he had fully come into Christ and had become His disciple. This means here that those who have been drawn toward Him, yet until they offer themselves to God in consecration and receive the begetting of the Holy Spirit, they do not really hear Him who speaks from Heaven, those who are begotten of the Holy Spirit get a new understanding, a new hearing, new ears as it were, and new eyes. As New Creatures they see, hear and understand differently from what they formerly did. As St. Paul says, "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." No one can discern spiritual things until he has been begotten of the Holy Spirit.

But there is such a thing as rejecting Christ after one has heard about Him. One may turn his back upon the world, and turn his face toward God and stand in the right direction. Every step of the way he will receive a little blessing. But if, when he has progressed to the place where he sees consecration clearly, he should turn back because of that negligence, his former progress in the right direction has not done him harm.

The Pastor illustrated this point by referring to the Tabernacle in the Wilderness. If one going toward the Tabernacle had seen the Court had recognized the sacrifice of atonement upon the Brazen Altar, had progressed to the Laver, representing the purification of the flesh; and had halted, he could not see the beauties of the Tabernacle. Even if he had come up to the very door of the Tabernacle, if he should then stop, all his previous progress would count for nothing.

So if one should seek to put away the filth of the flesh — to live as moral a life as possible, to become cleaner and cleaner in his daily conduct — unless he present himself in consecration to God, his morality is of no avail in the matter of bringing him into covenant-relationship with God. Only by faith in the blood of Christ can he approach the Mercy Seat. There is none other name given under heaven amongst men whereby we must be saved.

Any one who gets a glimpse into the future — when the Millennium of Christ and His Church shall have begun — and who hears of the goodness of God, but is not melted by his own imperfections and his need of a Saviour, will, the Pastor believes be much disadvantaged. Whoever hears the voice of God speaking peace through the Lord Jesus Christ should press on to know the Lord. If ever a little glimpse of the coming Restoration, when the whole earth shall be like the Garden of Eden and when all men will have the privilege of coming to perfection, does not appeal to one, that one is not in a very favorable condition of mind. Who ever does not love the God who has made so loving a provision for man kind is not in a favorable condition for further knowledge.

The Pastor clearly pointed out that those who have never heard of the goodness of God have very little responsibility in proportion to those who do hear. The heathen millions who have not heard of God could not present their bodies in sacrifice. Our Lord declared that those who knew not would be beaten with few stripes in comparison with those who did know. Whoever therefore has heard, and who knows the will of God and the difference between right and wrong has a responsibility, and will receive stripes for disobedience, even if he does not now come into a full test or trial for life eternal.

The proper attitude of heart, the Pastor declared, is that of appreciation of God's mercies. As the Psalmist has said, "When I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me? I will take the cup of salvation and call upon the name of the Lord." Whoever hears of God's loving and merciful salvation of mankind should feel like removing from his heart every thing that would hinder the love of God from flowing in freely and bringing forth the fruit-fullest of love, devotion and appreciation to those who are spectators here. God and desire to know His will he has offered a cup, which represents His providences for that special class. Jesus Himself drank that cup, and set us an example.

The Pastor then discussed the subject of consecration, and showed how reasonable it is for one who has come to a knowledge of the goodness of God to offer himself to the Lord. He declared that whoever carefully considered the matter would realize that all one has to offer is far too small. But God says to such, I know that you have practically nothing to give; but you must give all that you have — it might be little. In comparison with what Jesus gave, you have nothing; for what you have is imperfect and sinful, whereas His offering was holy and undefiled. But He will impute His merit to your offering, and thus make it acceptable.

In the typical Tabernacle and its sacrifices, the Pastor declared, this matter of consecration is represented by the offering of the two goats on the Day of Atonement. The goat represents the flesh of the one offering himself in consecration. Consecration is the tying of the goat at the door of the antitypical Tabernacle. Then the High Priest kills the antitypical Lord's goat, and the New Creature, begotten of the Holy Spirit at the moment when the sacrifice was accepted, is represented in the Body of the High Priest.

Then, as members of the Body of the antitypical High Priest, the consecrated and spirit-begotten ones are privileged to enter the antitypical Tabernacle, the spirit-begotten condition. There they may have fellowship with God as they partake of the things which are offered, and as they walk by the light of the antitypical Golden Candlestick, which gives them light respecting the deep things of the Word of God. The things in the typical Tabernacle were hidden from the sun; they were dark as respects outside light, but they had the interior light. Those in the antitypical Tabernacle condition have also blessed association with the Incense Altar, that they have something to do with offering the incense, for that which was offered by the great High Priest of their Order was sufficient for all the members of His Body and makes them acceptable in the Most Holy.

The Pastor then dwelt on the responsibility resting upon all who have offered themselves as living sacrifices and have been accepted and begotten of the Holy Spirit. These have come under the Headship of Christ. His will is to be their will. His Spirit is to be their spirit. When they were baptized into that one Spirit — when their spirits, their minds, were immersed into that of the Lord and He accepted them as members of His Body, they recognized themselves as under His Headship. This is what produces the oneness of spirit — the sympathetic heart-oneness — of all the members of Christ.

As long as the Headship of Christ is recognized, there must of necessity be much harmony among these members. But should any member get out of harmony with the Head, he is proportionately unable to get a blessing himself or to do good to others. The greatest blessing and usefulness comes from co-operation with the Head in whatever work He is doing.

In conclusion, the Pastor declared that only in proportion as we are in harmony with our Master, the great Head of the Church, can He use us as His members. The voice of the Lord is being heard throughout the earth today. Therefore, if you hear it should not be to it that they do not refuse the Message of the hour. To all those who do refuse — as most of them are doing and will do the tribulation that will come will be all the more severe — a Time of Trouble such as never was since there was a after.

The Very First One.

The visitors in the historical museum gazed curiously at a small feathered pillow which nestled in a glass case.

"I don't see anything unusual about that pillow," remarked one of the visitors, turning to the guide. "It's a very valuable pillow," replied the guide. That is Washington's original headquarters.

STRANGER IS UNDER ARREST

Detectives Took Man Into Custody at Peterboro.

Detectives Newhall and Meagher of Peterboro landed a stranger who claimed his name to be Harvey, Wednesday afternoon on Simcoe Street. The local authorities received word that a piano-tuner in Belleville had suddenly seized with the affliction which marks kleptomanias and carried off a suit-case. He then headed for Mayor Buller's beautiful city. When arrested this afternoon he was searched and several articles said to be those missed in the railroad city were found on his person. A special court was held and magistrate Dumble reminded him for a week. His finger prints were taken and his 'trap' looked up. The suitcase was reported to the Belleville police as missing from a downtown hotel.

SUPREME COURT OF ONTARIO

Boyle vs. Boyle.

Before Chief Justice Sir Glenholme Falconbridge an interesting case regarding the administration and division of an estate was heard, between two brothers from Bangor. Wellington Boyle, plaintiff, represented by E. G. Porter, K.C., and James Boyle, defendant, represented by W. N. Ponton, K.C. The action was brought to enforce a settlement in a prior action arrived at in December last, the parties offering us to terms. Held that while defendant must endorse the notices in question he may do so without recourse, and while he must execute quiet claim of the mill site to the plaintiff, he need only do so if appropriate by his solicitors and with the consent of the Minister of Crown Lands. The plaintiff asked for $11,000 damages but was only awarded $40 for goods retained by defendant with directions to the court costs to have judgment against the plaintiff for Supreme Court costs of the action set off against plaintiff's Division Court costs.

Conductor vs. G. T. R.

The attention of the Supreme Court, His Lordship Sir Glenholme Falconbridge presiding, was yesterday and today taken up with the suit of Smith vs. G.T.R. for damages for an accident, whereby it is claimed Conductor Smith is permanently disabled. The alleged cause was a step of the ladder of an engine car in which he was engaged in his duties and the accident resulted. This was in December 1913. Mr. Porter for plaintiff, Mr. Tilley of Toronto for defendants.

Cowper-Smith vs. Evan.

This case came on for trial Tuesday afternoon at a preliminary sitting and argument was completed Wednesday noon, when judgment was reserved. It was an action for balance of salary, damages for wrongful dismissal and for arrears, in all $28,515. The defendant disputed the amount and counterclaimed for $3000 damages for wrongful taking of defendant's goods and negligent work. W. C. Mikel, K.C., for plaintiff; E. G. Porter, K.C., for defendant.

KINGSTON PONIES DEFEATED.

From Thursday's Daily
Yesterday the Ontario's of this city proved their superiority over the Kingston Ponies in very apparent fashion, defeating them by 5 to 2 at the Driving Park diamond. There was a fair attendance of fans. The Ponies it will be remembered, played here with success on June 3rd, and were undoubtedly relying on that victory for at no time yesterday did they look formidable. For eight full innings it looked like a clean whitewash, but the ninth saved the visitors this humiliation. They now recognize that there are a few ballplayers in this "quinte village." Goyer was superb in his death dealing fans. The sphere vanished into thin air like the fabric of a dream to the Kingstonites as it neared the plate. Naturally they failed to connect. Scott behind the bat played an excellent game, while the third baseman, Watkins made a few players envious of his batting ability. Goyer was flawless on the Ontario's first. Smith played second with credit to himself. Morrison on short was there when needed and the fielders LaVoie, Goyer, right; and Symons left excellent support. Mills caught the last part of the game. The Ontario's were assured of the game all the way through. The Ponies "want to come back" and Belleville ought, some think, give them a chance to redeem themselves. That part of the game was unimpressive. The game was one of the best witnessed here in a long time.

Lost $125. A man named Kane on Mill Street, has brought to police notice the loss of a pocket-book containing $125.00. This occurred on June 3rd, but he did not until this week that he made the report to the police. His reason was that he thought the money had been taken at the Citizen's Celebration. Lately he has come to the conclusion that he had a clue. This was his purpose in reporting to the police.

MAJ FACES SERIOUS CHARGE

Arrested For Heinous Offence After Stiff Fight.

David Green, aged 60 years, a hunter and guide living at Bedford Mills, on the shores of Lac Seul, was brought to the city this morning by County Constable Smith and Police Constable Marshall Armstrong. He is charged with a serious offence. When the prisoner was taken to the city, he was in a fight and the constables had quite a time in subduing him. Green is a big, husky man, with a shaggy beard. It is said that this is the first time he has been in a city. He has three daughters, the youngest of whom is 13 years old. He lives with his family in a small hut, about 30 miles from the city, and back in the country, in a very poor settled section. It is said that he had been expecting a visit from the police as his hut was stocked for a siege, being fitted out like an arsenal. When the police arrived they got at least 100 shots as the prisoner engaged his services as a guide. When the got him outside the house, they placed him under arrest. The prisoner resisted and it was some time before they could put the handcuffs on him. It is alleged that one or more daughters are involved in the case. It is said that Green is a man of low morality and that the family has been living in a state of equal terror. The prisoner is of a surly temperament, and refused to have much to say to his captors. The two constables lost little time in effecting the capture. They left here yesterday morning, taking the train for the nearest station. They travelled some distance before they reached their destination. The case will be heard in Police Court tomorrow morning, but the prosecution are not ready to go on with it, and the prisoner will be remanded after being arraigned. It is stated that one of the daughters has made the complaint. It is understood that she confessed to the authorities that her father terrified the whole family. The accused maintains a stolid front, claiming that he is innocent.—Kingston Standard.

CHURCHES AND POLITICS IN PROVINCE OF ONTARIO

Anglicans Probably Seventy and Methodists Sixty Per Cent. Conservative—Presbyterians, Baptists and Congregationalists Mainly Liberal—Catholics Normally Conservative.

At the Provincial election just over the organized influence of the churches, as a whole, found expression on the side of the liberals. But "it was not ever thus." How do the churches and their members in Ontario ordinarily align themselves in party conflict? The Toronto Star weekly put this question to one second to none in his knowledge of political conditions in Ontario, and, indeed, in this country. His reply was as follows: "While any estimate must be speculative, I should think that, normally in Ontario, the conservatives get at least 70 per cent. of the Anglican and 60 per cent. of the Methodist vote. "Probably the liberals get something more than 50 per cent of the Presbyterian vote—and would be inclined, on the face of things, to say a good deal more than that, were there not some reason to think that, of late the Presbyterians not having supported an outstanding leader of the George Brown or of equal the Oliver Mowat type in their dominion or provincial politics, a certain proportion of old-time Presbyterian Grits silently use their vote and influence on the other side. Of the Baptists and Congregationalists, about 80 per cent possibly, are Liberals—but the numerical adherence to these churches is comparatively small. The Roman Catholic vote is the most uncertain factor of the morning, but goes one way, sometimes another. It is the natural tendency of the Roman Catholics to vote conservative unless they have been particularly 'bailed' by the Orangemen. Reasons Are Historic. There are historic reasons for the way in which the various churches align themselves in politics. The early conservative party in Ontario was largely Anglican and held the view that "the episcopal system was interwoven and connected with the monarchical foundations of our government." Bishop Strachan, a Tory of the Tories, was a great church-and-state man. He and those who thought with him supported the maintenance of the act of 1791, which provided that there should be reserved for the "Protestant clergy" in Upper and Lower Canada "a quantity of land equal in value to a seventh part of the grants that had been made in the future or might be made in the future." The law was unjust. Even Fred H. Campbell, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Campbell, of Foxboro, the ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. Fenkin, of West Huron, and took place on the veranda, which was most tastefully decorated for the occasion with flowers and evergreens. The bride party stood beneath a prettily arranged arch of evergreens from the centre of which hung the typical marriage bell. Promptly at the hour of seven-thirty the bride appeared leaning on the arm of her father, and joined the other members of the wedding party while the beautiful wedding march from "Lohengrin" was very sweetly rendered by Miss Edna Mitz of Holloway, cousin of the bride. Another cousin, Miss Stella Mitz (Vranhos), acted as bridesmaid and looked very charming in a dress of pale blue silk, trimmed with lace and brilliants. She carried a large bouquet of pink carnations and ferns. The bride, who is one of Moira's most popular young ladies, looked charming and winsome in her wedding gown of white duchess satin with lace and pearl trimmings. She also wore the customary bridal veil surmounted by a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white carnations and maiden hair fern which only ornament being a sunburst of pearls, the gift of the groom. The groom was ably supported by his cousin, Mr. Arthur McInnes, of Midway. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold brooch set with pearls; to the pianist, a necklace; to the groomsmen, a set of gold cuff links. After the ceremony the guests repaired to the dining hall, in spacious marquee on the lawn, where dejeuner was served. The tables were prettily decorated with roses and ferns. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly gifts in cut glass, silver, cheques, etc., too numerous to mention. Noticeable among other gifts was a fine Amborgy music cabinet presented by the congregation of the Moira Methodist church of which the bride had very officiously filled the position of organist for the past two years. Among other useful and costly gifts from the bride's parents, is included a Heintzman piano. The invited guests numbered over one hundred and included only the immediate relatives with the exception of the choir with whom the bride had been intimately connected during the past two years as organist. The invited guests included friends from Ottawa, Toronto, Belleville, Picton and other places. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell left amid showers of rice and confetti, motoring to Belleville and from there to the G. T. R. for Ottawa and other eastern points. The bride's travelling suit being of Copenhagen blue whipcord with white hat trimmed with pink rosebuds and ostrich plumes. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will upon their return reside at Foxboro. The congratulations and best wishes of a host of friends are extended to the very worthy and popular young couple. Mr. A. Kirk of Hungerford is in town today. Mr. J. A. Moore of Queenboro is in the city today. Three excursions from Deseronto are today at Massassaga Park.

WEDDING BELLS AT MOIRA

One of the prettiest and most interesting weddings of the season was celebrated at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George Hollinger, Moira, on Wednesday evening, June 24th, when their youngest daughter, Florence Pearl was united in marriage to Mr. Fred H. Campbell, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Campbell, of Foxboro. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. Fenkin, of West Huron, and took place on the veranda, which was most tastefully decorated for the occasion with flowers and evergreens. The bride party stood beneath a prettily arranged arch of evergreens from the centre of which hung the typical marriage bell. Brown and Presbyterians. George Brown was a Presbyterian and his sturdy opposition to the Orange platform or in the columns of his newspaper, to the exclusive claim of the Anglican church and to the pretensions of the dominant caste, which adhered to it, made a powerful appeal to the independent spirit of Presbyterians, although as regards the question of the "clergy reserves" a minority of them would have acquiesced in a settlement of the question which would have given part of these to their church. Sir Oliver Mowat was a Presbyterian, and Presbyterians have always been the backbone of the liberal party in the province.

The "Clergy Reserves" question aroused almost as much ire among the Methodists as it did among the Presbyterians. And Egerton Ryerson, whenever that question was raised, was in the forefront of the battle for religious liberty and civil rights against a state church and a political oligarchy. Also he took up the cudgels against Bishop Strachan when the latter took occasion in public sermons, not only to advance the claim of the Anglican church to be the established church of Canada but also to disparage other religious bodies as being inimical with republican and leveling opinions. But Egerton Ryerson was no radical. While he sought equal rights for all churches, and efficient education for all the people, his political sympathies were with a moderate conservatism. As a United Empire Loyalist, he viewed with distrust the radical wing which he considered Canadian liberalism to have developed. It was his boast that not a single member of the Methodist church in Canada was implicated in the rebellion, and it was his object to awaken the loyal fears of Methodists to what he thought the dangerous objective of a section of Canadian liberalism. It was largely owing to his influence that, once equal religious rights were established for the majority, the Methodist joined hands with the conservatives.

Catholics Attacked. Despite the fact that, in later days, the Hon. Sandfield Macdonald, the first premier of the province, was a Roman Catholic, the Roman Catholics were at first arrayed against the conservatives. But George Brown's anti-papery correspondence drove them into the ranks of the conservatives. For a good many years were even, Edward Blake and Sir Oliver Mowat were both always very conciliatory and diplomatic in their dealings with Roman Catholics, not in 1883, the conservative party, probably still held the majority of them. In 1886 the conservative party made a rather ill-advised attack on the Mowat government not only for giving special privileges to the Roman Catholics in separate schools, but also for trucking to them in other schools—a lot was made of the exclusion of "Marrion" from these schools because it was alleged of passages in it offensive to Roman Catholics. At the same time, Mowat's Presbyterian support never wavered, and he urged that as a defence to the charge of trucking to Roman Catholics—for instance, Principal Cameron of Knox college, was staunch in his support, as were the two Blakes, who, though Anglicans, were regarded as leaders of Protestantism.

Sir James Whitney, on becoming conservative leader, dropped the anti-papist attitude of his predecessors and there is little doubt that at each provincial election he receives a large measure of the Roman Catholic support. The Baptists and Congregationalists of Ontario, while almost unanimously liberal, are so rather by reason of their general outlook on life and doctrine than by reason of any historic association, although it is true that the Hon. Alexander MacKenzie was a Baptist. In the maritime provinces, however, for various reasons, a very large proportion of Baptists are conservatives.

NIGHT PROWLER TOOK A MEAL Remnants of Loaf of Bread, Six Eggs, Tea, Etc., Were Left on Kitchen Table. Last night Mr. John McGregor, 24 Russell Street, unknowingly entertained a visitor. He did not know it until this morning, when his wife found a cup and saucer, a plate of bread and fork, and half a loaf of bread on the kitchen table, and a basin of bread, butter, and jam, a dozen eggs lying from the pantry. Some one had come in during the night and after helping himself, walked away without saying good-bye or than you.

Mr. McGregor works at night, and shortly after he left the house, Mrs. McGregor retired. Some time during the night the visitor gained access by means of an open window, and helped himself. He had six eggs, made some tea and even got his share at the table. He did it so quietly that not a member of the household heard him. After his repast he washed himself, and made his exit. Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. McGregor said that he was tramping the country and had nothing to eat for a couple of days. He was given some money to go to two places, but it is thought that he came back to replenish his larder before moving on to the next town. The matter was reported to the police.—Kingston Standard.

The RETURN of TARZAN By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS Copyright, 1913, by W. G. Chapman

Behind them stood Tarzan of the Apes...

Then Tarzan wheeled and passed on into the depths of the temple. From room to room he went until he came to one at which a rude barred door still stood, and as he put his shoulder against it to push it in again the shriek of warning rang out almost beside him.

Then Tarzan wheeled and passed on into the depths of the temple. From room to room he went until he came to one at which a rude barred door still stood, and as he put his shoulder against it to push it in again the shriek of warning rang out almost beside him.

At any rate, the very fact that this strange, invisible guardians of this weird place had some reason for wishing him not to enter this particular chamber was sufficient to trouble Tarzan's desire to do so, and though the shrieking was repeated continuously he kept his shoulder to the door until it gave way before his giant strength to swing open upon creaking wooden hinges.

Within all was black as the tomb. There was no window to let in the faintest ray of light, and as the door upon which it opened was itself in semidarkness, even the open door shed no relieving rays within. Feeling before him upon the floor with the butt of his spear, Tarzan entered the stygian gloom. Suddenly the door behind him closed and at the same time hands clutched him from every direction out of the darkness.

The ape-man fought with all the savage fury of his preservation backed by the herculean strength that was his. But though he felt his blows land and his teeth sink into soft flesh, there seemed always to be new hands to take the place of those that he fought off. At last they dragged him down, and slowly, very slowly, they overcame him by the mere weight of their numbers.

And then they bound him. He had heard no sound except the heavy breathing of his antagonists and the noise of the battle. He knew not what manner of creatures had captured him, but that they were human seemed evident from the fact that they had bound him.

Presently they lifted him from the floor, and half dragging, half pushing him, they brought him out of the black chamber through another doorway into an inner courtyard of the temple. Here he saw his captors. There must have been 100 of them—short, stocky men, with great beards that covered their faces and fell upon their hairy breasts.

The thick, matted hair upon their heads grew low over their receding brows and hung about their shoulders and their backs. Their crooked legs were short and heavy, their arms long and muscular. About their loins they wore the skins of leopards and of lions, and great necklaces of the claws of these same animals depended upon their breasts. Massive circles of virgin gold adorned their arms and legs. For weapons they carried heavy, knotted bludgeons, and in the belts that confined their single garments each had a long, wicked looking knife.

But the feature of them that impressed the most startling impression upon Tarzan was their white skins—neither in color nor feature was there a trace of the negroid about them. Yet, with their receding foreheads, wicked little close set eyes and yellow fangs, they were far from prepossessing in appearance.

During the fight within the dark chamber and while they had been dragging Tarzan to the inner court no words had been spoken, but now several of them exchanged grunting, monosyllabic conversation in a language unfamiliar to the ape-man, and presently they left him lying upon the concrete floor while they trooped off on their short legs into another part of the temple beyond the court.

He had lain within the court for several hours before the first rays of sunlight penetrated the vertical shaft. Almost simultaneously he heard the pattering of bare feet in the corridors about him, and a moment later saw the galleries above him fill with crafty faces as a score or more entered the courtyard with him.

For a moment every eye was bent upon the monkey man, and then in unison the people in the galleries and those in the court below took up the refrain of a low, weird chant. Presently those about Tarzan began to dance to the cadence of their solemn song.

For ten minutes or more they kept up their monotonous chant and steps, and then suddenly and in perfect unison they turned toward their victim with upraised bludgeons and snaking fearful howls, the while they contorted their features into the most diabolical expressions, they rushed upon him.

At the same instant a female figure dashed into the midst of the blood-thirsty horde, and with a bludgeon similar to their own, except that it was wrought from gold, beat back the advancing men.

After a moment or two the girl drew a knife from her girdle and, leaning over Tarzan, cut the bonds from his legs. Then as the men stopped their dance and approached she motioned to him to rise. Placing the rope that had been about his legs around his neck, she led him across the courtyard, the men following in twos.

Through winding corridors she led, farther and farther into the remotest precincts of the temple until they came to a great chamber in the center of which stood an altar. It was that Tarzan translated the strange ceremony that had preceded his introduction into this holy of holies.

He had fallen into the hands of descendants of the ancient sun worshippers. His seeming rescue by a votress of the high priestess of the sun had been but a part of the mimicry of their heathen ceremony—the sun looking down upon him through the opening at the top of the court had claimed him as his own, and the priestess had come from the inner temple to save him from the polluting hands of worshippers—to save him as a human offering to their flaming deity.

And had he needed further assurance as to the correctness of his theory he had only to cast his eyes upon the brownish red stains that caked the stone floor and covered the floor in its immediate vicinity or to the human skulls which grained from countless niches in the towering walls.

The priestess led the victim to the altar steps. Again the galleries above filled with watchers, while from this arched doorway at the east end of the chamber a procession of females filed slowly into the room. They wore, like caught about their waists with rawhide belts or chains of gold, but the black masses of their hair were intricately braided and composed of many circular and oval pieces of gold ingeniously held together to form a metal cap from which depended at each side of the head long strings of oval pieces falling to the waist.

Each priestess bore two golden cups, and as they formed in line on either side of the altar the men formed opposite them, advancing and taking each a cup from the female opposite. Then the chant began once more, and presently from a dark passageway beyond the altar another female emerged from the cavernous depth beneath the chamber.

The high priestess, thought Tarzan. She was a young woman with a rather intelligent and shapely face. Her ornaments were similar to those worn by her votaries, but much more elaborate, many being set with diamonds. In the right hand she carried a long, jeweled knife, and in her left hand a slender wand in lieu of a bludgeon.

As she advanced to the opposite side of the altar she halted and the chanting ceased. The priests and priestesses knelt before her, while with wand extended above them she recited a long and dreary prayer.

When she finished her prayer she held her eyes rest for the first time upon Tarzan. With every indication of considerable curiosity she examined him from head to foot. Then she addressed him and stood waiting, as though she expected a reply.

"I do not understand your language," said Tarzan. "Possibly you may speak to me in another tongue. But she could not understand him, though he tried French, English, Arabic, Waziri and, as a last resort, the mongrel tongue of the West Coast.

CHAPTER XXII. La, the Priestesses. At her signal the priests rushed upon the ape-man and, lifting him bodily, laid him upon his back across the altar, his head hanging over one edge, his legs over the opposite. Then they and the priestesses formed in two lines, with their little golden cups in readiness to capture a share of the victim's life blood after the sacrificial knife had accomplished its work.

In the line of priests an altercation arose as to who should have first place. A burly brute with all the refined intelligence of a gorilla stamped upon his bestial face was attempting to push a smaller one ahead of him, and the smaller one appealed to the sign priestess, who in a cold, peremptory voice sent the larger to the extreme end of the line. Tarzan could hear him growling and grumbling as he went slowly to the inferior station.

Then the priestess, standing above him, began reciting what Tarzan took to be an invocation, the while she slowly raised her thin, sharp knife aloft. It seemed ages to the ape-man before her arm ceased its upward progress and the knife halted high above his unprotected breast.

Then it started downward, slowly at first, but as the incantation increased in rapidity, with greater speed. At the end of the line Tarzan could still hear the grumbling of the disgruntled priest. The man's voice rose louder and louder. A priestess near him spoke in sharp tones of rebuke. The knife was quite near to Tarzan's breast now, but it halted for an instant as the high priestess raised her eyes to shoot her swift displeasure at the instigator of this sacrilegious interruption.

There was a sudden commotion in the direction of the disputants, and Tarzan rolled his head in their direction in time to see the burly brute of a priest leap upon the woman opposite him, dashing out her brains with a single blow of his heavy cudgel.

His screams of rage were frightful as he dashed hither and thither, dealing terrific blows with his giant weapon or sinking his yellow fangs into the flesh of some luckless victim. And during it the priestess stood with poised knife above Tarzan, her eyes fixed in horror upon the maniacal thing that was dealing out death and destruction to her votaries. Slowly he crept toward her and now he sprang to his feet, brandishing a language he could understand; the last one that he would ever have thought of employing in attempting to converse with human beings—the low guttural barking of the tribe of great anthropoids—his own mother tongue.

And the woman answered the man in the same language.

He was threatening, she attempted to reason with him, for it was quite evident that she saw that he was past her authority. The brute was quite close now—creeping with clawlike hands extended toward her around the end of the altar. As the brute leaped past Tarzan to clutch his victim the ape-man gave one superhuman wrench at the things that held him. The effort sent him rolling from the altar to the stone floor on the opposite side from that on which the priestess stood, but as he sprang to his feet the things dropped from his freed arms, and at the same time he realized that he was alone in the inner temple—the high priestess and the mad priest had disappeared.

And then a muffled scream came from the cavernous mouth of the dark hole beyond the sacrificial altar through which the priestess had entered the temple. Without even a thought for his own safety or the possibility of escape, which the rapid series of fortuitous circumstances had thrust upon him, Tarzan of the Apes answered the call of the woman in danger. With a little bound he was at the gaping entrance to the subterranean chamber, and a moment later was running down a flight of age old concrete steps that led he knew not where.

The faint light that filtered in from above showed him a large, low celled vault from which several doorways led off into inky darkness, but there was no need to tread an unknown way, for there before him lay the objects of his search—the mad brute had the girl in his grasp, and she was fighting with her hands and feet as she struggled to escape the fury of the awful thing upon her.

As Tarzan's heavy hand fell upon his shoulder the priest dropped his victim and turned upon her would be rescuer. With foam flecked lips and bared fangs the mad sun worshiper battled with the tenfold power of the maniac. In the twinkling of an eye the creature had undergone a sudden reversion to type, which left him a wild beast, for smaller one appealed to the sign priestess, who in a cold, peremptory voice sent the larger to the extreme end of the line. Tarzan could hear him growling and grumbling as he went slowly to the inferior station.

Then the priestess, standing above him, began reciting what Tarzan took to be an invocation, the while she slowly raised her thin, sharp knife aloft. It seemed ages to the ape-man before her arm ceased its upward progress and the knife halted high above his unprotected breast.

Then it started downward, slowly at first, but as the incantation increased in rapidity, with greater speed. At the end of the line Tarzan could still hear the grumbling of the disgruntled priest. The man's voice rose louder and louder. A priestess near him spoke in sharp tones of rebuke. The knife was quite near to Tarzan's breast now, but it halted for an instant as the high priestess raised her eyes to shoot her swift displeasure at the instigator of this sacrilegious interruption.

There was a sudden commotion in the direction of the disputants, and Tarzan rolled his head in their direction in time to see the burly brute of a priest leap upon the woman opposite him, dashing out her brains with a single blow of his heavy cudgel.

His screams of rage were frightful as he dashed hither and thither, dealing terrific blows with his giant weapon or sinking his yellow fangs into the flesh of some luckless victim. And during it the priestess stood with poised knife above Tarzan, her eyes fixed in horror upon the maniacal thing that was dealing out death and destruction to her votaries. Slowly he crept toward her and now he sprang to his feet, brandishing a language he could understand; the last one that he would ever have thought of employing in attempting to converse with human beings—the low guttural barking of the tribe of great anthropoids—his own mother tongue.

And the woman answered the man in the same language.

He was threatening, she attempted to reason with him, for it was quite evident that she saw that he was past her authority. The brute was quite close now—creeping with clawlike hands extended toward her around the end of the altar. As the brute leaped past Tarzan to clutch his victim the ape-man gave one superhuman wrench at the things that held him. The effort sent him rolling from the altar to the stone floor on the opposite side from that on which the priestess stood, but as he sprang to his feet the things dropped from his freed arms, and at the same time he realized that he was alone in the inner temple—the high priestess and the mad priest had disappeared.

And then a muffled scream came from the cavernous mouth of the dark hole beyond the sacrificial altar through which the priestess had entered the temple. Without even a thought for his own safety or the possibility of escape, which the rapid series of fortuitous circumstances had thrust upon him, Tarzan of the Apes answered the call of the woman in danger. With a little bound he was at the gaping entrance to the subterranean chamber, and a moment later was running down a flight of age old concrete steps that led he knew not where.

The faint light that filtered in from above showed him a large, low celled vault from which several doorways led off into inky darkness, but there was no need to tread an unknown way, for there before him lay the objects of his search—the mad brute had the girl in his grasp, and she was fighting with her hands and feet as she struggled to escape the fury of the awful thing upon her.

As Tarzan's heavy hand fell upon his shoulder the priest dropped his victim and turned upon her would be rescuer. With foam flecked lips and bared fangs the mad sun worshiper battled with the tenfold power of the maniac. In the twinkling of an eye the creature had undergone a sudden reversion to type, which left him a wild beast, for rending at one another like two bull apes, while the primitive priestess stood fatted against the wall, watching with wide, fast fascinated eyes the growling, snapping beasts at her feet.

At last she saw the stranger close one mighty hand upon the throat of his antagonist and as he forced the brute-man's head far back rain blow after blow upon the upturned face. A moment later he threw the still living from him, and arising, shook himself like a great lion. He placed a foot upon the carcass before him and raised his head to give the victory cry of his kind, but as his eyes fell upon the opening above him landing into the temple of human sacrifice he thought better of his intended act.

The girl, who had been half paralyzed by fear as the two men fought, had just commenced to give thought to her probable fate now that, though rescued from the clutches of a madman, she had fallen into the hands of one whom but a moment before she had been upon the point of killing. She looked about for some means of escape. The black mouth of the diverging corridor was near at hand, but as she turned to dart into it the ape-man's eyes fell upon her and with a quick leap he was at her side and a restraining hand was laid upon her arm.

"Wait!" said Tarzan of the Apes, in the language of the tribe of Kerchak. The girl looked at him in astonishment.

"Who are you?" she whispered, "who speaks the language of the first man?" "I am Tarzan of the Apes," he answered in the vernacular of the anthropoids.

"What do you want of me?" she continued. "For what purpose did you save me from the mad?"

"I could not see a woman murdered," it was a half question that answered her.

"But what do you intend to do with me now?" she continued.

"Nothing," he replied, "but you can do something with me—you can lead me out of this place to freedom." He made the suggestion without the slightest thought that she would accede. He felt quite sure that the sacrifice would go on from the point where it had been interrupted if the high priestess had her way, though he was equally positive that if Tarzan of the Apes, unbound and with a long dagger in his hand, a much less tractable victim than Tarzan disarmed and bound.

The girl stood looking at him for a long moment before she spoke.

"You are a very wonderful man," she said. "You are such a man as I have seen in my day dreams ever since I was a little girl. You are such a man as I imagine the forebears of my people must have been—the great race of people who built this mighty city in the heart of a savage world that they might wrest from the bowels of the earth the fabulous wealth for which they had sacrificed their far distant civilization."

"I cannot understand why you came to my rescue in the first place, and now I cannot understand why, having me within your power, you do not wish to be revenged upon me for having sentenced you to death—by having almost put you to death with my own hand?"

"I presume," replied the ape man, "that you but followed the teachings of your religion. I cannot blame you for that, no matter what I may think of your creed. But who are you—what people have I fallen among?"

"I am La, high priestess of the Temple of the Sun, in the city of Opar. We are descendants of a people who came to this savage world more than 10,000 years ago in search of gold. Their cities stretched from a great sea under the rising sun to a great sea into which the sun descends at night to cool his flaming brow. They were very rich and very powerful, but they lived only a few months of the year in their magnificent palaces here, the rest of the time they spent in their native land, far, far to the north.

They were very rich and very powerful, but they lived only a few months of the year in their magnificent palaces here, the rest of the time they spent in their native land, far, far to the north.

"Many ships went back and forth between this new world and the old. During the rainy season there were but few of the inhabitants who remained here, only those who superintended the working of the mines by the black slaves and the merchants who had to stay to supply their wants and the soldiers who guarded the cities and the mines.

"It was at one of these times that the great calamity occurred. When the time came for the teeming thousands to return home. For weeks the people waited. Then they sent out a great galley to learn why no one came from the mother country, but though they sailed about for many months they were unable to find any trace of the mighty land that had for countless ages borne their ancient civilization—it had sunk into the sea.

"From that day dated the downfall of my people. Disheartened and unhappy, they soon became a prey to the black hordes of the north and the black hordes of the south. One by one the cities were deserted or overcome. The last remnant was finally forced to take shelter within this mighty mountain fortress. Slowly we have dwindled in power, in civilization, in intellect, in numbers, until now we are no more than a small tribe of savage apes.

"In fact, the apes live with us, and have for many ages. We call them the first men—we speak their language quite as much as we do our own; only in the rituals of the temple do we make any attempt to retain our mother tongue. In time it will be forgotten, and we will speak only the language of the apes; in time we will no longer banish those of our people who mingle with the apes, and so in time we shall descend to the very beasts from which ages ago our progenitors may have sprung."

"But why are you more human than the others?" asked the man.

"For some reason the women have not reverted to savagery so rapidly as the men. It may be because only the lower types of men remained here at the time of the great catastrophe, while the temples were filled with the noblest daughters of the race. My strain is cleaner than that of the rest because for countless ages my foremothers were high priestesses. The sacred office descends from mother to daughter. Our husbands are chosen for us from the noblest in the land. The most perfect man mentally and physically is selected to be the husband of the high priestess."

"From what I saw of the gentlemen above," said Tarzan, with a grin, "there should be little trouble in choosing from among them."

The girl looked at him quizzically for a moment.

"Do not be sacrilegious," she said. "They are very holy men. They are priests."

"Then there are others who are better to look upon?" he asked.

"The others are all more ugly than the priests," she replied.

Tarzan shuddered at her fate, for even in the dim light of the vault he was impressed by her heavy, staring eyes, but in the end he thought that he would look upon her.

"You have been chosen by the flaming god as his own," she answered solemnly. "Not even I have the power to save you—should they find you again. But I do not intend that they shall find you. You risked your life to save mine. I may do no less for you. It will be no easy matter. It may require days, but in the end I think that I can lead you beyond the walls. Come, they will look here for me presently, and if they find us together we shall both be lost. They would kill me did they think that I had proved false to my god."

"You must not take the risk, then," he said quickly. "I will return to the temple, and if I am caught my way to freedom there will be no suspicion thrown upon you."

But she would not have it so and finally persuaded him to follow her, saying that they had already remained in the vault too long to prevent suspicion from falling upon her even if they returned to the temple.

"I will hide you, and then return alone," she said, "selling my way to freedom here for you. They will kill me, and that I do not know whether you escaped."

And so she led him through winding corridors of gloom, until finally they came to a small chamber into which a little light filtered through a stone grating in the ceiling.

"This is the Chamber of the Dead," she said. "None will think of searching here for you; they would not dare. I will return after it is dark. By that time I may have found a plan to effect your escape."

She was gone, and Tarzan of the Apes was left alone in the Chamber of the Dead, beneath the long dead city of Opar.

CHAPTER XXIII. The Castaways. CLAYTON dreamed that he was drinking his fill of water, pure, delightful drafts of fresh water. With a start he regained consciousness to find himself wet through by torrents of rain that were falling into the open boat upon his body and his upturned face. A heavy tropical shower was beating down upon them.

He opened his mouth and drank. Presently he was so revived and strengthened that he was enabled to raise himself upon his hands. Across his legs lay M. Thurau. A few feet off Jane Porter was huddled in a pitiful little heap in the bottom of the boat—she was quite still. Clayton thought that she was dead.

After infinite labor he released himself from Thurau's pinioning body and with renewed strength crawled toward the girl. He raised her head from the rough boards of the boat's bottom. There might be life in that poor, starved frame even yet. He could not quite abandon all hope, and so he seized a water soaked rag and squeezed the precious drops between the swollen lips.

For some time there was no sign of returning animation, but at last his efforts were rewarded by a slight tremor of the half closed lids. He chafed the thin hands and forced a few more drops of water into the parched throat. The girl opened her eyes, looking up at him for a long time before she could recall her surroundings.

"Water?" she whispered. "Are we saved?"

"It is raining," he explained. "We may at least drink. Already it has revived us both."

"M. Thurau?" she asked. "He did not kill you. Is he dead?"

"I do not know," replied Clayton. He raised his eyes from the body of the man, and as they passed above the gunwale of the boat he staggered greatly to his feet with a little cry of joy.

"Land, Jane!" he almost shouted through his cracked lips. "Thank God, land!"

The girl looked, too, and there, not a hundred yards away, she saw a yellow beach, and beyond, the luxuriant foliage of a tropical jungle. They set about reviving Thurau, but it required the better part of half an hour before the Russian evinced sufficient symptoms of returning consciousness to open his eyes. By this time the boat was scraping gently upon the sandy
