RE SCOUT RALLY AND CIVICUS

Editor Daily Courier,

Sir,—In reply to "Civics," and in fairness to the Brantford Headquarters Patrol of Scouts, I beg to make the following statement regarding the competition for the Challenge Shield. This shield was given for the most efficient troop of patrol of scouts on parade.

The judges were as follows: H. G. Hammond, Assistant Commissioner for Ontario, Commissioner Garfield Gibson of Ingersoll, Commissioner C. W. Heming, Hamilton; Commissioner C. B. Robinson, Paris; Capt. Colquhoun, Brantford and Scoutmaster Houten of Hamilton.

We regret that the above gentlemen, even although they are considered authorities in scouting throughout Ontario, lacked the knowledge of what efficient scoutcraft really is (according to "Civics," who in his own opinion at least has so much). The final judgment was awarded for the following reasons: the Headquarters Patrol, which came first, had given six distinct and perfect displays of scoutcraft, including Royal Life Saving Society, firemen, ambulance, signalling, compass direction and skirmishing signal work. The next best troop in line had only given three displays. The Headquarters Patrol was wearing 280 efficiency badges, while the greatest number worn by any other troop was 250.

This excellent showing made by ten Scouts compared so favorably with any troop on parade, whose numbers ran from twenty to thirty—that the unanimous decision in favor of the Headquarters Patrol was quickly and justly given. Commissioner Gibson of Ingersoll and the judges agreeing that its work, appearance and scoutcraft was perfect and unequalled in quality or quantity. If the gentleman who is the Scout-like author of the effusion signed "Civics" had used the non deplorable "officials," it would doubtless have been better understood and appreciated, as he is known to the local troops despite his pen name. ANTI JEALOUSY.

The Boy Scouts

The final catch in the Brant Chapter I. O. D. E. rifle competition will be held on Monday or Tuesday afternoon, at the B. C. I. rifle range at 4.30. Scoutmasters will kindly notify the commissioner which day will be most convenient for their team to shoot on.

Colborne street church troop was selected as one of the five troops and patrols which underwent a rigid inspection in the final decision for the Challenge Shield at the rally, and its scouts are to be congratulated on the fine showing which they made. IT'S A GO

Brantfordites are noted for the vim and the cordiality with which they take up any enterprise, or scheme, providing the same can be shown to be of benefit not only to the individual, but also to the community.

It was this spirit which kept the place to the forefront, notwithstanding the fact that for long years we were sidetracked—yes, ostracised, as far as main line railway facilities were concerned—and it is the same spirit which has led to the hearty endorsement of the project to establish a branch of the Imperial Home Reunion Association in this community.

The benefits are threefold: 1. To reunite worthy British families. 2. To help build up the homes of this city. 3. To have money earned here spent here, instead of as now, in very large part, going to the upkeep of the absentee loved ones in the Old Land.

On all grounds, and from every aspect, it is a most worthy cause, and one well calculated to strengthen the mutual bonds of citizenship in this good place.

THE CANADIAN PARLIAMENT

In view of the crisis which at present exists between the House of Commons and the Senate, it may be of interest to outline the nature of the Canadian Parliament.

At one time this vast Dominion was known as Upper and Lower Canada, and then it drifted into separate Provinces, which in 1867 were merged in the present federation. Of the noted men who brought this about Sir Charles Tupper is the only one now living.

Under the British North America Act, as the enabling provision is entitled, the constitution consists of a Governor-General named by the British Government, but who has to act upon the advice of the Canadian Cabinet of the day, and two Houses, the Senate and the Commons.

The Upper Chamber, when complete, consists of 81 members appointed from the different Provinces, and when a vacancy occurs it is filled by the party in power without the appointee having to go through any election. Members must be at least 30 years old and possessed of a minimum property value of $4000. They each receive $2500 a year and free travel on all Canadian railroads. They are appointed for life, with this exception, that although they may be absent one session without deduction in pay or enquiry, if either of them is away two sessions running he automatically loses his seat. The Senate has co-ordinate powers of legislation with the House of Commons, except in the case of revenue, taxation or money bills. Though it cannot introduce or amend said bills, it may reject them.

The House of Commons consists of 215 members. They must be of the age of 21 and British subjects, not disqualified by law. Their remuneration is the same as that of the Senators and they must go through a popular election at least every five years. Quebec has a fixed number of sixty-five members for all time, and the division of its population by said number, fixes the basis for the rest of the representation in the remaining portions of the Dominion.

SHEEP BREEDING

The Ontario Department of Agriculture has been looking into the question of "Sheep Raising—Does It Pay?" It was found that while every other class of live stock has increased and received more attention, sheep have been receiving less notice each succeeding year, and have fallen off from 1,797,213 in 1900 to 1,040,243 in 1911.

Eight demonstration stations were established, and the following is the report of the one at Paris under charge of W. A. Crichton, who started with ten grade Shropshire ewes worth $8 each, and a Hampshire ram. These were the results:

First Year—The flock was fed during the winter 5120 pounds of hay, $23.04; 82 bushels roots, $8.20; 9 bushels oats, $3.60. The pasture for this flock was valued at $17.50, making a total cost for the year of $52.34, or $4.76 per head. The sheep were not dipped. Seventy-seven pounds of wool was sold at 14 cents, amounting to $10.78. The ewes were in particularly good health in the spring, and considerable credit for this was thought to be due to the exercise they got. This was attained by having a feed rack at each end of the yard, and with feed in both, the sheep were continually running back and forth.

The lambs numbered 16. One was sold in November and the balance kept until May 1st. The winter feeding of the lambs consisted of 2250 pounds of hay, $9; 13,500 pounds roots, $18; 3000 pounds oats, $30; and 2250 pounds ensilage, $3; total, $60, or $4 per head. The lamb sold in the fall went away before feeding commenced, and brought $8. The remaining 15 when sold weighed 2150 pounds, and sold at 7 cents per pound, bringing in $150.50. Total receipts for lambs, $158.50, an average per head of $9.91. It is the charges for pasture and should be noted that at this Stables for some of the feed are high. Total receipts, $169.28; expenses, $118.64; profit, $50.64.

Second Year—During the winter the flock was fed 4915 pounds of hay, valued at $18.40; 4680 pounds roots, $5.46; and $3.60 was allowed for 360 pounds grain, making a total of $27.46, an average of $2.49 for winter feeding. The pasture for the flock was valued at $15.75. In all 18 lambs were dropped, one ewe raising two pair of twins during the year. In January she dropped a pair, which were sold for Easter, bringing $11. In October she dropped another pair, which were sold in February for $15. The other lambs were not fed over winter, but sold at various times in the fall, $97 being received in all. The flock yielded 73 pounds of wool, which sold for 19 cents per pound, $13.95. Total receipts, $107.95; total expenses, which include $8 for a ewe which died, and $2, for the value and insurance received on one killed by lightning, were $60.11; profit, $47.84. Profits for two years, $110.75.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Now then, bring on your June brides.

With a comprehensive scheme established, there should be many Old Country women and children brought to Brantford within a few months.

The indications from the Old Land are that the Liberal Government there is just about tottering to its fall. The Grits there have now had control for some years, and have far exceeded the average in continuity, for Johnny Bull has quite a habit of clearing his political house at comparatively short intervals.

In Goderich the Liberals gave a big demonstration to Proudfoot, who on flimsy grounds tried to besmirch the characters of Sir James Whitney and Hon. Mr. Hanna, two as honorable men as Ontario public life has ever seen.

"Let the people rule," says the Hamilton Spectator. So does the Senate—Toronto Globe.

No, it doesn't, for it is bossed, body, boots and breeches, by Laurier.

Mrs. Pankhurst has again been released from prison, after a second hunger strike, and now Horace Fletcher, the noted expert on foods, comes along and says that it is a good thing to keep from taking food at quite frequent intervals, and that he quite frequently imposes a hunger strike on himself for two or three weeks at a time and finds the results most beneficial. Horace, you are a marked man, and the Suffragettes will get you if you don't watch out.

Guelph Mercury: The city of Brantford is having a particularly unfortunate year in regard to fire losses, which for the first five months of 1913 amount to about $200,000. Some years Brantford has got through on losses not much past the $2000 mark, and as a general thing the fire loss there is very moderate. The city has the same fire-fighting apparatus—probably more of it, too—as when the loss was small. The fire department has the same chief, and it cannot be said that the personnel has deteriorated. The fire loss some other worthy will write a work increased loss simply goes to show that fire losses are not entirely within the control of fire departments. A good fire department may have a very heavy loss chalked up against its very best efforts, in the other hand conditions may be such that a very ordinary, or inferior, brigade can point to a remarkably low fire loss.

Military Notes

With the Dufferins. Capt. Colquhoun inspected the Dufferin Rifle recruit class at the armouries last night and passed 10 men into the regiment.

The Dufferin Rifles to the number of about 50 will shoot at the Mohawk ranges this afternoon.

With the adets. The B. C. I. Cadets fired their third Rifle League match at the Mohawk ranges this morning. In the rifle shooting for the school pennant the fifth form won out. Five men composed a team with the exception of the fifth form, the team being handicapped to four men.

What the Other Fellow Thinks.

Ross Rubbish. Hamilton Herald (Independently). "I am an imperialist," says Sir George W. Ross, smiting his breast proudly; "but I don't wish Canada to help the mother country defend the country because it may be unconstitutional."

Human Nature. Ottawa Journal: The man in the streets scowls at the motor car which threatens to run him down, but him at the wheel of a speedy car and he will scowl just as darkly at the pedestrian who gets into his way. A lot depends on the point of view.

The Powers Speak. Buffalo News: Sir Edward Grey, the English Foreign Minister, has taken the Balkan question in hand, representing the great powers, and has told the allies that they must sign the treaty without delay.

It appears that all the features of settlement have been adjusted and remains to do no more than accept what is given the smaller powers by the larger ones for they do not wish to have Europe set on fire on account of the Balkan blaze, neither do the business interests of Europe look with indifference on the disturbance that has gone already very far toward wrecking a settlement of some sort and fear that has been of great harm.

Municipal Jail Farms. Guelph Herald: There is to be a conference at Woodstock to consider a joint move of five nearby municipalities in the direction of establishing a "farm" for short term prisoners. The counties interested are Waterloo Oxford, Wellington, Perth and Brant.

Undoubtedly the fact that Wellington county has only recently spent considerable money in remodeling its jail will serve to make this county go slow in the matter of any further schemes of a like nature, but nevertheless the "farm" idea is so good that Wellington and the city of Guelph could well ally to join in with the scheme if only for the sake of the unfortunate men who would thus have to work out their punishment in the midst of better surroundings and with the fresh air to assist in improving their physical conditions.

Especially could a jail farm be used in the working out of the redemption of drunkards. Instead of heavy fines which accomplish little good and are often paid by the unfortunate wife rather than see her husband go to jail, men who cannot resist drink might be sent to such farms and given every chance to swear off, besides working out the cost of maintenance in the work they do on the farm.

Under the Ban.

Hamilton Herald: Queen Mary puts the ban on the tangy turkey trot, the bunny hug and the other negro dances which are among the latest products of American culture. And further, the queen ostracizes all hostesses who contenance these dances. As society leaders in England cannot afford to remain under the frown of royalty, the tabooed dances will disappear from the houses of the "best" families; and as fashionable people generally can't afford to encourage what the "best" people will have nothing to do with, the objectionable dances will become unfashionable and "bad form" and that will be the end of them in England. Thus is monarchy justified.

Voting on Women Suffrage.

London Advertiser: The voting on the woman suffrage bill in the British house of commons stood as follows: For. Against. Liberals.....146 74 Nationalists..... 7 54 Healyites..... 6 34 Labor..... 28 140 Unionists..... 28 140 Total..... 281 268

If the women suffragists can't get a majority in a house of that complexion, what hope would they have under a Unionist government? A Suggestion. St. Thomas Journal: Sir George Ross, in his new book on "Getting Into Parliament and After," gives many entertaining glimpses of political life in the House of Commons. And yet there are Liberals who argue that Canada owes nothing to Great Britain, and grudge the benefit offer to share the burden of self-protection which Borden's Government has proposed.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTES VISIT GRAND VIEW

Mrs. S. G. Kitchen and Mrs. Wm. Kerr, St. George, district officers of the North Brant Women's Institutes, held on the 23rd inst. a meeting was held in the "Shenstone" Memorial church, at the close of which a branch institute was organized, bearing the name of the Terrace Hill Grand View Women's Institute. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. W. L. Bayless. Grand View; 1st vice pres., Mrs. J. Arnold, Grand View; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs. J. Hurdley, Grand View; secretary-treasurer, Miss J. E. Dean, Directors, Mrs. (Rev.) J. Chapman, Mrs. Wm. Eastcott, Mrs. G. T. Wood, Mrs. Ernest Alderson, Auditors, Mrs. S. G. German, Mrs. M. Savage. Musical directors, Mrs. M. Savage. The first meeting of the above organization was held at the home of the president, on Thursday, 29th inst. at 3 p.m., when a most excellent program was rendered by members of the Moyle Tranquillity branch. The president, Mrs. J. C. Hurley presiding. A few well chosen remarks were given by Mrs. Hurley, also the newly elected president, Mrs. W. L. Bayless, both of which were most complimentary and encouraging.

A paper by Mrs. G. Crawford, and read by Mrs. Greenwood, on home nursing, giving many practical hints on caring for the sick, changing and removing the sheets, attention of the room, recipes and method of preparing nourishing foods for the patient, all of which were very instructive and much appreciated. A vocal selection entitled "Home is where your heart is," by Mrs. M. Savage was heartily enjoyed. Mrs. Savage possesses a very full, sweet voice, with perfect articulation, making her numbers most pleasing. A paper by Miss Good on reading, was a gem, showing deep thought and rare knowledge of her subject. She was showered with thanks by her appreciative audience. A vocal selection was then given by Mrs. S. Sayles, in her usual sweet voice, and always receives a most cordial welcome among the old friends, and members of the institute.

A recitation by Miss Marjorie Osborne entitled "Mine Children," was well given in the true German dialect, and was very interesting and amusing. It was decided to hold the meeting on the third Wednesday of each month at 3 p.m. The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. Eastcott, Grand View. The large audience of so ladies were served by the president, to ice cream and cake, being a pleasant closing social hour and profitable time spent together.

Western Trade.
 R. G. Dun and Co., reports trade in Western Ontario as follows: Retail trade is a little backward in those lines that require fine, warm weather but conditions generally are satisfactory. It is too early to prognosticate the crops except that up to the present indications they are unusually good and this causes optimism, but collections are backward and the the wholesale houses feel this keenly. Three failures in the district, two of considerable size. Bradstreet's: No new development has occurred in the condition of business there. Almost all branches of wholesale and retail trade have been active. Circulation of money is free and expansion of business is satisfactory. Crop conditions are on the whole excellent and the outlook for heavy yields is bright. This reflects on trade, fall placing orders being large.

Royal Templars
 At the close of the usual routine business of Council No. 24, a very pleasant part of what was planned for a social evening, was the presentation by Sister White, on behalf of the lodge, of a beautiful clock to Sister Reed and Bro. Dunningham on the eve of their approaching marriage. Bro. Fennel read the address which spoke of the high esteem in which the young couple were held by their fellow members, also the way the Deputy Herald's past services were appreciated by the officers. The recipients expressed many thanks for the unexpected kindness, and in future hoped to be of greater service to the cause of temperance. Many thanks were due to Sister Sidsworth, Sister Steele, Bro. Williams and others for their part of the programme, following the games, which were much enjoyed by all. Lunch was served by the young ladies, bringing to a close one of the most pleasant evenings held.

The Old Old Question

By RUTH CAMERON

Is the servant question quite so terrible a problem as we have been led to think it?

Some weeks ago I wrote a little article giving my opinion that it was not, and that a woman who would treat those who served her reasonably and considerately need not pay exorbitant wages or change maids every few weeks. I expected nothing but criticism for this stand, as the opposite has so often been claimed in women's columns and women's magazines. Therefore I was more than happy to receive the following corroboration of my article in a letter which evidently came from a woman of education, refinement and position.

"Will you allow me to thank you for your very sane paragraphs on 'the servant question,'" writes this woman.

"Between my own and my mother's houses, in winter and in summer life, in small and in large families, I have come closely into contact with many servants. And I have never known one whom I did not both respect and admire. They have been, in no sentimental way, whatever, among my most loyal friends. In trouble they have helped me as no one else could, by taking all care off of me. Over and over they have shown the same self-control, the same kindly wish to be of service, the same dignity that we prize so much among ourselves. I am in a constant state of gratitude to my servants, not only for their skill but for their spirit. This spirit is not due to any magical thing I do for them, but simply to their own fine characters."

Can the servant problem be so absolutely hopeless as many mistresses would have us believe when one woman has found it so very simple?

"This spirit," she says, "is not due to any magical thing I do for them." Perhaps there are some women who ordinary the use of courtesy and consideration toward those who serve her, and a habit of remembering that they are human beings like herself, with good qualities that deserve appreciation.

There are many women to whom such an attitude would seem most extraordinary and magical. Such women will always have a servant problem. They will always be writing to the magazines about the rudeness, the unreliability and the inefficiency of their servants, and will never reflect that it is barely possible that these servants are a mirror of those with whom they live.

You think I am prejudiced in favor of the servant side of the question. Only as I am always prejudiced in favor of that side which has not the opportunity or the ability to speak for itself.

$3.50 RECIPE FREE FOR WEAK MEN.

SEND NAME AND ADDRESS TO DAY—YOU CAN HAVE IT FREE AND BE STRONG AND VIGOROUS.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men, and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together. I think I owe it to my fellow-men to send them a copy in confidence that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated ailments may stop dragging himself with harmful patent medicines, securing restorative, rebuilding, SPOT TOUCHING remedy ever devised and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 3785 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

JUST ONCE MORE WOMAN RISES

To Tell Her Sisters They Can Find Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs John Cabot After Six Years' Suffering, Tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and Found New Life and Energy.

WHITE HEAD PERCE, Que., May 26—(Special)—One more woman has risen to tell her suffering sisters they can find relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. That woman is Mrs. John Cabot, well known and highly respected here, and she expresses her enthusiasm in these words: "I certainly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills. There is nothing better."

Asked to give her experience, Mrs. Cabot continued: "My trouble started in a cold, and I suffered for six years. Rheumatism, neuralgia, stiffness of the joints, cramps in the muscles and heart fluttering were among my symptoms, and finally Bright's disease developed. It was then that I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. After taking four boxes I feel like a new woman."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the kidneys. Health-kidneys strain all the poisons and poisons—all the seeds of disease out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills not only cure the disease but by ensuring good blood give new life and energy to every part of the body.

The Gilbert and Sullivan Opera Company revival of "Iolanthe" has literally taken New York by storm. In fact many of the newspaper authorities insist that this is "undoubtedly the best of the revivals made about "Iolanthe" is that it was supposed to be weak as compared to the other Gilbert & Sullivan pieces received by this company. "The Mikado," "Pirates of Penzance," "Pinafore," and "Patience," and instead, it has turned out to be one of the very best of them all. Indeed if the success of this production is any criterion, "Iolanthe" must rank with "Pinafore" and "The Mikado," and distinctly above either "Patience" or "The Pirates." Although "Iolanthe" attained a substantial success when it was first produced in 1882, and though there have been numerous revivals of the work since that time, the piece was, commonly rated as one of the less important achievements of the two famous collaborators.—Toronto Saturday Night.

AN ENTERTAINMENT BY ST. LUKE'S BOYS
Splendid Work Was Praised By Visitors at Concert.

St. Luke Boy Knights gave a very unique entertainment last evening that furnished wholesome amusement for the large number who were present. Songs, recitations, physical and pyramid military work, old fashioned games, military work, with a number of speeches, made up the program, which was concluded by an elaborate display of fireworks, in which all the boys took part. Prof. Hunt gave a most interesting talk on the cadet movement. He said that there were a great many people who did not understand the movement and therefore was opposed to it. But when we considered that such men as Ven. Archdeacon Cody, Rev. Miner Gordon, Principal of Queen's University, Rev. Crawford Brown, Maurice Hutson, James L. Hughes with numerous other clergymen and men occupying prominent positions in our country supported the movement. Men like these must have strong reasons before they would advocate the movement. Some of the general advantages of cadet training were: It provides excellent setting for boys' teachers, parents and physicians have tried earnestly to train for sit up and stand properly without success; in most cases respond at once to drill and become new physical types. It trains them to be prompt, efficient, obedient and intelligent. It reveals, law to a boy, not as a restraining force merely, but as a guiding force. In many parts of Canada large numbers of foreign boys are making their homes. There is no better process by which they can be made proud of their new country, their flag and their King, and develop them into Canadian citizens of worth. The Cadet movement is a help but raise the standard of the boys of Canada, both morally and physically. St. Luke's Boy Knights had acquired a high character for their good work, and the behaviour of the boys. Their rules, though strict, had not kept boys from joining. They had able, efficient and faithful officers. It was contemplated work, and in order to do so they needed the support and encouragement, not only of the parents, but of the citizens generally. St. Luke's Boy Knights had not always received the support they should have, and their work had certainly been productive of a great deal of good, and with proper support and encouragement, the work of the future would be made far more successful.

The programme was: Song, Earl Matthews' dialogue, W. Mills, and Hugh McDonald; physical work by class of boys; song, Charles Bonneson; Henry Rogers' military drill; square fencing exhibition, H. Rogers and E. Vansickle; Keep the Pot Aboiling, 6 boys; wrestling on horse back, C. Snowden, A. Vansickle; address, Prof. Hunt; Chicken Fighting, H. McDonald, Earl Johnson; recitation, Herbert Cocksbutt; duet, E. Matthews and H. Rogers.

SPORTING COMMENT

St. Thomas took a wallop from Guelph yesterday. That helps! Poor old Ottawa! London did it again. Wish we had you here now!

Incidentally Peterboro beat Hamilton. Yesterday was Brantford's revenge day all round. There should be another Tennyson to chronicle the event.

Tesch's work at short this week has been brilliant. Fans can well afford to forget his errors in the article of ball he has displayed recently.

As a third baseman Ernest Club Coose has a grand chance of becoming another Frank Baker. He is hitting the ball hard.

First thing they know down at Ottawa the Senate will be throwing out the ball club.

Both Ivers and Lamond have thumbs as big as their wrist, but they are playing good ball. There is no better catcher in the Canadian League than Lamond.

Buster Burrill is rounding into form. He is getting faster on his feet and still has the faculty of hitting the ball.

Bear Brundage can't bunt. We are convinced of that. Because First Baseman Sweeney threw his glove in the air at a ball yesterday. The official scorer wanted to give him an error, but you can't give two errors on one play, the pitcher already having one for throwing the ball over Sweeney's head.

Wagner accepted it chances yesterday and got three hits. First thing we know some one will be calling him Hans instead of Clarence.

Small But Potent--Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are small, but they are effective in action. Their fine quality as a corrector of stomach troubles is known to thousands and they are in constant demand everywhere by those who know what a safe and simple remedy they are.

We have always contended that Mr Harry Donovan, the good-looking young right hand pitcher had the stuff. Yesterday he held Berlin to one hit, rather a lively hit too as it was good for three bases. However, Duff Slemm tried to make the catch, and to get Donovan by the good fellow he is, endeavoring like the good fellow he is, to get Donovan by with a no-hit game to his credit. Duff hesitated somewhat and the ball got past him. Probably this would not be considered good baseball where a club had only a few runs lead, but with eleven runs to the good, Slemm would have appeared to be throwing Donovan down, had he played the hit safe. Manager Kane and the writer had an argument over the incident and we respect Kane's judgment in almost everything. But here was a chance for a fielder, had he gone after it without any hesitation to have put his pitcher in the "no-hit" hall of fame. We admire Slemm for it.

One thing occurred at the ball park yesterday, however, which did get the writers goat and that properly. About the seventh innings a member of the Red Sox bench sent the ball boy to the scorer's box to enquire how many hits he had been credited with. Of all the silly-tom fool things on a ball field is a player figuring out his own average. If we had our way, we would set him down for a week and fine him $25.

The reason we do not publish this player's name is because some one might charge us with being prejudiced against him. He is a good ball player, and he may be a good mathematician as well, but he should be in mind in future that he is on the ball field and not in the school room.

Del Orcutt yesterday had a fine day at bat and in the field. The attendance in his benefit was gratifying. If it is any consolation to a man to know that the proceeds for him will cover the cost of an operation and several more, then Orcutt had that consolation yesterday. Personally we desire some different brand ourselves, but it was a deserving tribute to a good ballplayer and a good fellow. Incidentally a large gathering of ladies was on hand.

Incidentally Peterboro beat Hamilton. Yesterday was Brantford's revenge day all round. There should be another Tennyson to chronicle the event.

Canadian League

Dorbeck Good. GUELPH, May 31--"Lefty" Dorbeck was the whole works against St Thomas team yesterday. He not only pitched the Leafs to a 7-4 victory, but hit the ball on the nose for a triple in the scoring. He was touched up for three hits in the first innings, but after that was invincible. His bases on balls were costly, however. The whole Guelph team played better ball than the Saints all the way. Clemens was hit freely at times and the Leafs won out in the eighth innings by sending three runs across the plate on four hits and a passed ball.

LONDON BEAT OTTAWA. LONDON, May 31--A hit or more in every innings of the former Providence International League pitcher, defeated the Ottawa team here yesterday by a score of 8 to 2. Deneau's London club have hit their stride, both in fielding and clouting, and it will take an exceptionally good club with high-class pitching to stop them at the rate they are going. The Ottawas with a two run lead, looked good in the early stages of the game, but ball games go longer than one or two innings.

Fitzpatrick, who was in the box for the locals, held Shaugnessy's "discontents" to two scattered hits after the initial innings, when they grabbed off two in the start and mingled with two errors, scored their only runs.

Bingles off Renfer when they were needed most were as readily secured as the lady fans on "Ladies Day" at Tecumseh Park. One of the largest crowds of the season on a Friday witnessed the game.

Peterboro Won Again. PETERBORO, May 31--Peterboro made it two straight, from Hamilton yesterday by winning a most exciting game by a 4 to 3. The Kelts were ahead 3 to 2 up to the eighth, when the homesters squeezed the tying run over. They won out in the ninth. Tracey who replaced Brodie after the eighth innings winning his own game with a timely hit, which scored the winning run from second, Donohue pitched a fine game for the Kelts, and might have won with perfect support.

Scottish Home Rule. LONDON, May 30--The Scottish Home Rule bill passed its second reading in the House of Commons today and was then referred to committee. It follows somewhat the lines of the Irish Home Rule Bill and was introduced by Wm. Henry Cowan, the member from East Aberdeenshire.

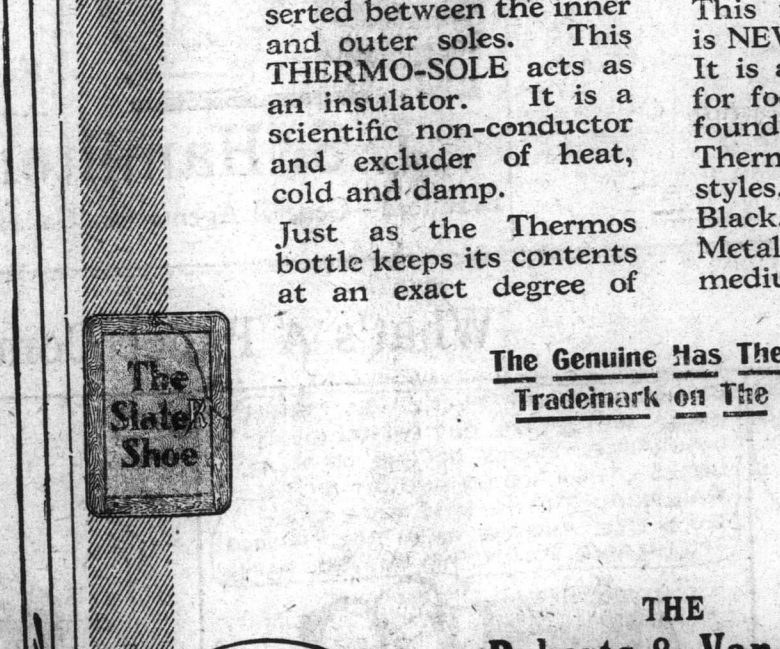

Joe Keenan allowed Mr. Kehoe to remain yesterday and take his medicine. We don't know whether Kehoe needed any medicine or not. We do know that he got it, and it was a health producing dose. Probably Keenan is some doctor.

Look! According to the official scorer, 50 men faced Kehoe, the Berlin pitcher. 41 were charged with a time at bat. 7 walked. 1 sacrificed. 1 was hit by Kehoe. Total 50. In nine innings only 3 Berlin players came before Donovan. 27 were charged with a time at bat. 3 walked. 1 sacrificed. Total 31. Good boy Donovan. Hurrah for Brantford.

Airman Killed. BOURGES, France, May 30--Lieut. Jean Ferdinand Kreyder, a French army aviator, belonging to the 54th regiment of artillery, was killed today by a fall from his monoplane, which turned turtle in a sudden storm while he was observing the effects of the artillery practice of his regiment.

Humors Come to the Surface in the spring as in no other season. They don't run themselves all off that way, however, but mostly remain in the system. Hood's Sarsaparilla removes them wards off danger, makes good health sure.

TRAIL OF CITY VICE TOLD BY BUREAU OF SOCIAL HYGIENE

First Report Made by Organization Founded by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Traces Cause of Immorality and Shows Little Due to Low Wages.

$2,000,000 YEARLY PROFIT IN THIRTY HOUSES

Conditions of vital importance are set forth in a book on the commercial social evil in New York City by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., founder of the Bureau of Social Hygiene, founded by John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Rockefeller himself writes an introduction to the work, in which he explains the starting of the bureau out of the investigation of the white slave traffic by a group of thirty houses which he explains, this volume, which is one of four to be printed in any definite manner is proposed for dealing with the problem of the white slave traffic. That some of the police in the year 1912 and until after the Rosenthal murder were closely identified with the keepers of ill repute is asserted. Mr. Kneeland gives conversations which his ten men and women investigators had with denizens of the underworld, which show how the police in certain sections collected their toll of graft. The investigators found many vice resorts that the police records reveal in this city, although it is set forth in the law that the commanders of precincts must have a list of these places. There are revelations, too, of the relations of men in learned professions abetting the illegal traffic, and of the mysterious man "higher up" of a king of the submerged and of the existence of a syndicate. These are more evidence apparently than was presented to the Grand Jury concerning the "trust" or group of men who operate in the white slave traffic.

Causes for Immoral Lives. Many reasons are given to the causes which lead women and girls to adopt immoral lives. This portion of the work will probably be read with interest because of the assertions made recently that girls are drawn into evil associations by starvation or by lack of proper wages. The experts, however, find that the reasons have little part in the matter, and that wages and conditions are not linked. A supplementary chapter written by Katherine Bement Reformers' Women as well as a memorandum of the bureau, contains the results of many inquiries made from hundreds of women and girls, which have an important bearing on present-day discussion. The book is an intimate study of the life of the unclassied, its business administration, its gradations and its relations to the world at large. Resorts of the old type in which whole dwelling houses are shown to be growing fewer, whether or not the owners could proceed with the nefarious business. The king of this set has the reputation of being able to do on friendly terms with the "sec" the right person. When a member is "in wrong" or wants to open a house the king must be consulted. Daughter Hears the Conversation. In this part the proprietor of the store permits his family to hear the talk and his daughter to be on friendly terms with the "sec" the right person who assembles there, it is declared by the author. One group of twenty-eight houses is operated by a syndicate consisting of thirty-eight men. The receipts of thirty houses which were investigated are given as $2,000,000 exclusive of indirect sources of income, such as the sale of liquor. Beginning in Manhattan, between January and August 1 of last year, the police reported the places as suspected or disreputable. Seven complaints were made against them in the Oak Street precinct, according to Mr. Kneeland, forty-six against nine places in the Mercer street precinct, and 100 against thirty-five places in the West Thirtieth street precinct. The investigators of the Bureau of Social Hygiene report that three months ago such places, and also 379 saloons and other similar resorts.

Of the 300 massage parlors they report 75 as vice resorts. In co-operation with the forces of the social evil the report includes certain saloons, concert halls, burlesque shows, amusement parks and excursion boats. The rear rooms of saloons are declared to be the means of flagrant demoralization. The agents found that in the 765 they inspected there were 208 in which were found women believed to lead immoral lives, while in 107 of these there was indisputable evidence to that effect. Of seventy-five public houses only five were characterized by the investigators as decent. The others were the meeting places of vice characters of both sexes. One of the most noted clearing houses for the social evil, Mr. Kneeland declares to be a delicatessen store in Stuyvesant Avenue, where shares in vice resorts are bartered. On April 6, 1912," the book says, "a group of owners were parading up and down Seventh Avenue in front of the above mentioned delicatessen store discussing business. They were all dressed in their best and looked prosperous. One, a large man with a black moustache, wore a very heavy fine English suit and a hat which was said to have cost $8. A large diamond ring sparkled on his fat hand, diamond horseshoe pin flashed in his tie, and a charm set with precious stones hung from a heavy gold watch chain. His brother partner with him in a house in West Twenty-fifth street, also was dressed in the height of fashion, a smart suit, a black derby hat and patent leather pumps. A third partner presented an equally dignified appearance. There were eight other owners in the group, making a very imposing appearance as they eagerly waited to talk over matters of business with the representative of the boss a certain official who, as the men said, was this day to send word to the police. Another of the agents saw a memorandum of expenses amounting to $331, in the underworld, in which the policeman, as receiving $160; sergeants, $30 plain clothes men $104, club; $200 boss, $25, and various small items. One personal conversation an agent heard was between a uniformed member of the underworld, in which the policeman, asking for a certain notorious owner, said: "I'm broke; he hasn't seen me for a few nights, and I would like to have some sugar." The lookout of a Sixth avenue resort declared that $200 a month was paid out to the police. One of the schedules which the investigators report is for women who have been arrested in the streets. One lawyer collects $50 in each case, or which $10 goes to the bondsmen, $15 to him and the $25 to the policeman making the arrest so that he will fall to give some vital point in his testimony. References are made to city officials being bribed, and physicians do not escape. A chapter devoted to "The Exploiter" tells how men and women promoters reap large profits from the social evil in a cold blooded manner and through shrewdness and by the use of money, sell the law. The women and girls are declared to be to all intents and purposes white slaves receiving only a pittance of what they gain. "This does not mean," says the writer, "that the girl is necessarily imprisoned behind locked doors and barred windows. It means that she is thoroughly effective even if not actually or mainly physical. Uneducated, with little or no comprehension of her legal rights or the powers which could be invoked to aid her, often an immigrant, or at least a stranger, she is soon cowed by the brute to whom she has mistakenly attached herself. Should she make an effort to break away she is pursued and hemmed in by concerted efforts of those who are skillful enough to play to her sentimental loyalty so that she becomes the greatest obstacle to her own freedom and rehabilitation. The investigators declare that in Manhattan there are 14,926 women who live by the social evil and that of these 6,759 were found in the streets. Histories of the Women. One of the most significant parts of the book consists of the studies made of the history of 1,100 women and girls, their approximate accuracy of truthfulness of which may be inferred from the fact that in a general way they follow the lines of the intensive studies made under the direction of Miss Davis at the Bedford Reformatory. Only twelve per cent of the girls declared that they had fallen into the evil ways for economic reasons. Thirty-three of the 139 who ascribed their status to pressure of poverty put it this way: "I could not support myself;" fifty-five declared that they could not support themselves and their babies, sometimes their parents; forty-five said they were out of work and could not get it; nine were in ill health or had

Richard III

By HOWARD L. RANN

RICHARD III was an English king who put in most of his time removing relatives from the line of succession with a brocade. He was one of the meanest kings England ever had, and if it had come to a popular election he couldn't have carried his own ward. He was continually shedding the blood of somebody who would rather be let alone, and when he died the florists did not notice any access in business.

When Richard grew up and decided to reach for the English throne, he found that several people stood in front of him, among whom were quite a sprinkling of uncles, nephews and fourth cousins on his mother's side. Whenever Richard saw these people blocking the path to the throne, simply because they were born closer to the family tree, he would bite his lower lip impatiently and hire somebody to smother a few in a feather bed. This was Richard's favorite method of murdering unreasonable relatives who refused to step out of the line and let him get up to the pie counter.

When Richard saw himself deserted he grew desperate and offered to trade what was left of his kingdom for a good, sound saddle horse that was not afraid of automobiles. He made this offer twice, but nobody took him up, as his kingdom was considered about all in. He was unable to run on account of owning a game leg, and finally was stabbed in the cuirass and other vital spots so much earnestness that he expired in some of Mr. Shakespeare's best blank verse.

ZIG ZAG NOTES

By "The Rambler"

The question as to what extent is the corporal punishment of boys admissible has been troubling my mind for the past few days. At Eton College, which Wellington, Gladstone and Byron, among others, attended, the birch has always been used without stint, and there was nothing between the birch and the boy. I believe. When he had been properly attended to, the aim of the boy was to own that birch hanging in a desk in his room. Probably Eton College is old fashioned, it is certain that if desks in any Canadian school, there would be a tremendous noise in the papers about it. It occurs to me that the boys displayed the birches much as men display any scars they may have, not so much as a trophy as to give point to an incident. If you are too careless with a buzz-saw, you will have scars to show in the future, most probably; if you transgress the law of the school you are likely to get hurt. Boys have not as much respect for a school master as they have for a buzz-saw, because the buzz-saw is so absolutely impartial. At the same time boys will make experiments with a buzz-saw, but not twice with the same buzz-saw. Those who have come into physical contact with a buzz-saw know its implacable and impassive justice, and nobody dreams of having a personal quarrel with a buzz-saw. I see no reason at all why school justice should not be nearly as impartial as a buzz-saw. "Go beyond a certain defined point, and retribution swift and sure is your portion." This seems to be the motto, both of British law and the buzz-saw. Ignorance of the law is no excuse; and the buzz-saw does not take ignorance as an excuse either. But it is an undoubted fact that when a buzz-saw is not kept tight in its appointed place, there is reason to fear unnecessary suffering; and where punishment is left to the discretion of a school master, there is also fear of unnecessary suffering. For where a thing is left to the discretion of a man on earth, he is apt to use the best man on earth, he is the power of discrimination. No one has the power of irritating a young man so much as a small boy or a young woman (especially his own sister). They can make him shake with rage; and he knows they enjoy seeing him mad. Therefore it is a good idea for the young man to possess a dog, and the dog will forget him direct and gloriously delight in his master's returning good humor. And though I have started with a buzz-saw and finished with a dog, without arriving at a logical conclusion, I sincerely believe that it is never right to administer corporal punishment to a boy, unless you can do so without giving the boy the slightest reason to believe that you want to.

Which is the best hour of the day? There are very few who will not say "The hour before we get up." And it is so. We may go to sleep worrying over the events of the day that is ending, but we do not begin to worry about the events of the day that is beginning until we are fully wide awake. As we wake gradually, some critical period drifted or plunged into immoral lives. The last chapters of the book are devoted to descriptions of the preventive reformatory and correctional agencies in New York, and it is shown that they are inadequate to the task.

"PAIN COMPLETELY LEFT ME"

So Says Thomas Stephenson after Taking GIN PILLS

O those who have suffered, year in and year out, from the dragging misery of Kidney Disease, anything that will relieve the pain is a blessing indeed. That is just what a well-known resident of Lachute Mills, Que., and his wife both found in GIN PILLS.

Lachute Mills, P. Q. "I was troubled for many years with Kidney Disease, and a friend told me to take GIN PILLS. After taking a few boxes, I was greatly relieved, and after finishing the twelfth box, the pain completely left me. My wife is now using GIN PILLS and finds that she has been greatly relieved of the pain over her kidneys. I can safely recommend anyone suffering from Kidney Trouble to give a fair trial to GIN PILLS." THOMAS STEPHENSON. Would you welcome such a relief? Then take GIN PILLS. They go right to the spot—neutralize the pain almost at once—neutralize the Uric Acid which is causing all the trouble—strengthen the kidneys so that they will be able to keep the blood pure—and quickly take away that weakness and tenderness of the back which undermine the energy and vigor of manhood and womanhood. Don't pass GIN PILLS without a trial. Every box is sold on the positive guarantee that if six boxes, used according to directions, do not help you, your money will be cheerfully refunded. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50. Your Furs are Safe in our Vaults!

Why send them out of town when they can be stored just as well in Brantford?

Furs are so highly prized by everyone, it follows that great care must be taken to protect them from the ravages of moths. It is a fact that more furs are ruined by these pests than by actual wear.

The cold, dry air system of storage is a positive safeguard against moths. Much work and worry can be avoided by simply telephoning us at 619, and we will call for your furs and other winter apparel. You place your own valuation on each article, and we are responsible to you for that amount in case of loss by fire or moth. Our charge for storage and insurance is 3 per cent. of the value—a moderate charge when it is remembered that we carefully dust each article, and hang them in a vault that is intensely cold.

Nothing is packed or folded. Everything is kept on hangers, so that the most delicate article will not become creased or matted, and will carry no odor of moth preventative.

PEACE DESIRED; WAR NECESSARY. A Vexed Question Viewed From a New Angle—A Reasonable Statement.

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

Washington, D.C., May 25.—Pastor Russell, addressing the Western Temple Congregation, made some statements which seemed startling and yet reasonable.

There is no conflict between this particular and common view of the matter and the teachings of our Master, said the Pastor.

Jesus gave His followers no assurance that a peace policy would be successful and bring them earthly prosperity.

When Jesus said, "Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God."

I fear that I shall be misunderstood, said the Pastor, but there is so much confusion upon the subject that the Truth needs to be stated plainly.

(1) By converting the world of nations from a condition of hardness of heart, selfishness, sin, to a condition of righteousness, tenderness of heart, generosity; or.

Next came the era of financial combination, giant trusts and corporations controlling the destinies of the human family.

They will never forget, and which will prove valuable to all eternity. Pastor Russell declared that what he had said should in no way be construed as a slight to the peace party.

The Pastor had only kind words for Mr. Carnegie and his fellow workers of the Peace Society.

These will have a terrible experience in the approaching time of trouble, because they will not understand how and why the Omnipotent Jehovah will allow the storm of human passion and strife to work such terrible havoc in the world—even as they do.

So long as money has its value and political combinations can hold control, the social structure will remain intact, and exercise itself, nation against nation, through fleets and armies.

Man's only remedy is now too late. A complete turning of the hearts of men to God was much more nearly possible fifty years ago.

The picture I am painting you, dear friends, would only narrow your eyes, and not be worth the while, had I not a good message of encouragement to give in offset, said the Pastor.

When I was a boy and first took to my calling, heaven knows I should have been only too glad of a rehearsal club.

Evolution in Poultry Industry

A. C. McCallloch, B.S.A., Demonstrator Poultry Husbandry, O.A.C. In this short article, no attempt can be made to give a detailed account of the changes which have taken place in the systems under which poultry has been bred and raised since early times.

Our grandparents kept poultry but usually in a crude manner indeed, poor housing or none at all was frequently the shelter supplied.

Relative to feeding problems, our present knowledge is little greater than was ours in the past. It has long been known that a variety of food is more satisfactory than any single food.

The question of disease in fowl is worthy of consideration. In a general way poultry men of the present time know little more than did their predecessors about general methods of prevention.

At the Doré Galleries is a set of paintings by Mr. Edgar Thomas, an artist who has under the guidance of the late Prince Albert, and Paris. He is a good draughtsman and a sound painter.

Perhaps the deepest note "The Poor of the Village" by Josef Israels. The so fitting group of the best of the "Antony" standing on a dingy for the charitable disposal of valuable fish from a vessel ashore. The kindly manner makes the picture attractive.

More cheerful in sentiment are two more pictures, by J. S. Bernard de Hoog. Both at the stations and association "Mother's Joy" and two cradle pictures by the Dutch painter, by the taken as typical.

THE fine collection of Persian arts and crafts formed by Mr. John Richard Preece, who for many years was British Consul General at Ispahan, are now on view at the Vincent Robinson gallery, Wigmore street. Mr. Preece's residence in Ispahan afforded him excellent opportunities for obtaining choice examples of Persian art. Lustrous ware in particular is splendidly represented by a magnificent mehar, a prayer niche, from a mosque at Kashan, containing a great number of tiles in relief, painted in blue and brown lustre on a creamy white enamelled ground. The inscriptions seem fantastic, and the arabesque scroll work is extremely graceful in design. This large piece is dated 1228 A. D.

Although this may be regarded as the most important specimen, there are many very beautiful ones. Some showing Chinese influence, and two representing a man's face, indicate a knowledge of Western art. Vases and ear bottles of celadon and translucent glass, metal work and the striking spirals, one of which decorated the ceiling leading to the royal stables at the Sefarain Palace, Ispahan, and the other to the royal apartments, about 1,600, are among the other treasures in the collection. There is also on view an extremely handsome Hispano-Moresque amphora (about 1320) found under a floor in the Alhambra; and as you view the collection you walk over a carpet which cost £5,000, similar in character to those first designed for the Sassanid Kings in the sixth century.

At the Doré Galleries is an exhibition of paintings by Mr. Edgar Herbert Thomas, an artist trained in London under the guidance of the late Sir Lawrence Alma Tadema, and in Antwerp and Paris. He is a good academic draughtsman and a sound colorist, but what appears to interest him most is what he calls "the human element." His still life, such as "Gold Fish" and "Flower Studies," or such as have a human character, such as "Autumn" and "A Study from a Doorway," and "The House and the Human Window." Some studies of a river under varying conditions of light show that Mr. Thomas is a sensitive observer.

Mr. J. D. Innes, who shows paintings and drawings at the Chert Galleries, King's road, Chelsea, may be described as of the school of Mr. Augustus John with an attractive manner of his own. His landscapes, generally of mountain scenery, possess great beauty of color, some of the best being scenes in North Wales. The two most important are "Garn Lake" and "Arenik." The latter is a study of the lake surrounded by many-shaped, many-colored hills that make elaborate rhythmic against the pale evening sky. A formal tree is sharply outlined against the sky, and equally formal plants occupy the foreground. "Arenik" represents a grassy hill, with a small peak catching the glow. A hazy edged cloud is lifting from a clear green sky above the dark blue, rippled lake or sea. Both pictures are singularly fascinating.

From time to time the directors of the French Gallery in Pall Mall have held representative exhibitions of works by the painters of the modern Dutch school. This year they round off the exhibition by presenting some of the younger artists whose names are being called to the attention of the public. The four works by fifteen artists, Human Interest is the general note of the exhibition.

Perhaps the deepest note is sounded by "The Poor of the Village," a large canvas by Josef Israels. The picture represents a group of a dozen or so figures, from age to infancy, standing on a wet beach waiting for the charitable disposal of the less valuable fish from a vessel just come ashore. The kindly manner of the sivers makes the picture attractive in spite of the sadness.

More cheerful in sentiment are the works of two genre painters, J. S. H. Kever and Gerard de Hoop. Both are interested in the situations and associations of motherhood. "Mother's Joy" and "Double Dutch," two cradle pictures by the former, and "A Drink for Baby," by the latter, may be taken as typical.

F. P. Ter Meulen is a pastoral painter, with Mauve as the obvious inspiration. "Funch Pastures" is on the whole his best canvas. It is a large picture representing a flock of sheep feeding on the sand hills by the invisible sea. The "problem" pictures of this year's Royal Academy, "A Fallen Idol," by the Honorable John Collier, and "Out of It," by Mr. Alfred Priest, have not much of the problem in them after all when one looks what the creators of the pictures themselves have to say about them. Asked for a solution of "A Fallen Idol," Mr. Collier said frankly: "I do not know the problem. I merely paint little scenes from my own life and try to make them as simple and obvious as possible. No picture can be quite definite as a story, and it is possible to make problems out of anything. I had a portrait of my wife once which I called 'The Aurora of the Breakfast Table,' and the newspapers said that was a problem, and wanted to know what it meant."

COMTESSE GREFFULHE'S NOVEL IDEA FOR A FLOATING ART EXHIBITION

THE FRANCE

The France, Splendid Steamship of the French Line, Will Be Used for Education.

TWO GALLERIES OF MODERN ART WORKS

Changes Will Be Made Frequently, the Idea Being to Prove Worth of the Artists of To-Day.

(Special Dispatch.) PARIS, May 31.

The steamship France, of the French line, has on board her present trip from Havre to New York and return an exhibition of French decorative art in showcases fitted in two galleries. This charming and novel idea was originated in Comtesse Greffulhe, who has done much to encourage the development of a national modern style in France. Her projects are not easy to realize, and credit must be given to the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique for the cordial manner with which it has greeted the idea and has offered the hospitality of its ship to the French decorators, giving them an occasion to prove the diversity and wealth of their creative facilities. This floating exhibition will show that there still exist artists who in all branches of the applied arts, ceramic, jewelry, crystal, bronzes, embroideries, lacés and liques, Methey, Decœur, Faizé and others.

It is proposed to change the exhibits on each trip of the steamship in order to give artists to as great a number of French artists to become known as is possible.

KING ALFONSO CHEERED BY HOSTS ON HIS RECENT JOURNEY TO PARIS

(Special Dispatch.) PARIS, May 31. RIDING the best thoroughbred from the Saumur Cavalry School, King Alfonso, on his recent journey to Paris, was greeted by the French troops in exulting manoeuvres carried out by a large force of cavalry, artillery and infantry in the valley of the Solle, near Fontainebleau. The young monarch witnessed a realistic sham fight, riding amid the charging squadrons in company with the general Gallah; saw batteries of machine guns and quick firing guns. Accompanied by President Poincaré, who called on him at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, King Alfonso drove to the Gare de Lyon through crowds of cheering Parisians and left by a special train for Fontainebleau. The Presidential train reached Fontainebleau station, which was gayly decorated with French and Spanish colors, an hour later. There the King was received by the Prefect of the Department of the Seine-et-Marne, the Mayor and the local authorities. Escorted by a detachment of dragoons with colored pennants gayly flying from the tips of their lances, Don Alfonso and the President drove through the famous forest of Fontainebleau to the manoeuvre ground five kilometers away. With the May sun filtering through the green arch of trees, the drive was a delightful one, and the picturesque country called forth the admiration of the Spanish sovereign.

The valley of the Solle, in which the manoeuvres were held, is nothing but big clearing in the woods some two kilometers wide by three or four kilometers long. While the bands played the Spanish national anthem and the "Marseillaise" and the troops presented arms, King Alfonso and the President drove along the front of the brigade, each regiment dipping its colors to the two chiefs of State.

Sentiment Figured in the Purchase of the Robert and Elizabeth Browning Love Letters

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, May 31. Mr. Sabin Says He Holds Missives for Ransom, but Will Not Be Extortionate. ROMANTIC reasoning which admits of no element of doubt. From the dealer's point of view I recognized that the purchase would give me a monopoly of the love letters. I obtained them all, consequently I shall face no competition in disposing of them.

"How do I propose to dispose of them? Well, it would be a pity to spread them broadcast all over the world. I am sentimental enough to think they should be kept together, and for myself, I shall endeavor to sell them in one lot. I shall hold them for ransom—perhaps by the nation. I am not a brigand, and shall not be extortionate, but I do think that such treasures should rightly be numbered among the nation's heirlooms.

England Making Progress in Naval Air Machines

Cruiser Selected Fitted with Platforms for Launching Aeroplanes and with Appliances for Repairs, and Chain of Air Stations Being Established Around Coast.

WAR SHIP BUILDERS CONSTRUCTING AIR CRAFT

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, May 31. THE agitation about what is called the air peril threatens this country more than any other. It is a somewhat lame and ineffectual conclusion with the meeting at the Mansion House. Public opinion refuses to be unduly alarmed or excited by statements to the effect that since Bleriot crossed the Channel Great Britain is no longer an island, that Germany has conquered the air, and that as a result the command of the sea is of little value to England. It must be admitted that the flamboyant resolutions originally drafted for the Mansion House meeting were considerably toned down before being proposed, and that a more reasonable judgment, born of fuller knowledge, was reflected in the speeches that was apparent in the early announcements about the meeting.

The fact is that it is beginning to be more generally realized that the naval and military authorities are making steady progress in aeronautics and are best calculated to provide machines suitable for war purposes and an organization for them which will harmonize with the defence policy of the country. The commissioning of a parent vessel for hydro-aeroplanes is a sign of advance. The cruiser Hermes, which has been selected for this duty, will not be a nominal headquarters for the aeroplane section of the naval wing, but a seagoing tender, fitted with platforms for launching machines into flight, and with appliances for repairing air craft. Captain G. W. Vivian and Commander F. R. Scarlett, who have been appointed to the Hermes, have both taken aerial pilots' certificates.

Difficulties Easily Overcome. Any delay in regard to the acquisition of machines has been mainly attributable to the difficulty, first, in deciding upon types most capable of naval and military work, and secondly, in getting such types of craft manufactured. These difficulties appear likely to be quickly surmounted. The War Office has evolved an aeroplane which some authorities assert to be the best of its kind for military purposes. The Admiralty is working in the direction of providing an efficient naval machine, but a type which satisfies it sufficiently to warrant its multiplication in large numbers does not yet appear to have been found.

Experiments must, therefore, continue with such alacrity as are available. These include many varieties, and new machines are constantly being obtained, not only hydro-aeroplanes, such as the Borel and Farman machines added recently, but biplanes and monoplanes of the Deperdussin, Canard, Sopwith and Avro types, all to be tried from a naval standpoint. The Admiralty has also been allotted the naval wing of deciding which of the several types of dirigible airships is best suited for combined land and sea warfare, in which connection the co-operation of the big war ship building firms, like Vickers & Armstrong, will be of great assistance. Besides an Astra-Torres airship, the Admiralty are purchasing a Parseval through Messrs. Vickers, who, taking the Parseval design as a basis, may be expected to evolve a new naval airship in the same way that they produced the successful British submarines from the original Holland designs. With their valuable resources in capital, research laboratories, and experience of what is required for naval and military purposes, these large manufacturers of war material are at an advantage in deciding to undertake air craft construction. Several of them, including Messrs. Vickers Limited, the Country Ordnance Works and Messrs. White Limited, the torpedo boat builders of Cowes are already aeroplane or hydro-aeroplane constructors.

Chain of Air Stations. Meanwhile, a chain of air stations is being established around the coast of Great Britain, each in charge of a flight commander of the Royal Naval Corps, and the stations at Grain, in the Medway; Calshot, on Southampton Water; Great Yarmouth and Harwich are already in use, while others are being rapidly provided. It was recently remarked in the Army and Navy Gazette that the need of the navy is for hydro-aeroplanes that can be carried conveniently in a ship, and for airships that can carry sea boats. The fact that in Great Britain, France and Germany hydro-aeroplanes are to take part in naval manoeuvres during the summer will invest the latter with added interest, and some valuable lessons should be learned by all three Powers.

Huth Library Sale Is Near

Third Portion, To Be Sold This Month, Contains Many Rare Volumes. (Special Dispatch.) LONDON, May 31. THE catalogue of the third portion of the Huth Library, which is to be dispersed by Messrs. Sotheby in nine days, beginning next Monday, was issued last week. It comprises 1,325 lots under letters E to R, inclusive. To mention all the treasures enumerated would be impossible, but there is to be noted a single Caxton, Gower's "Confessio Amantis," of which Blades records only five perfect copies. This copy has been bound in eighteenth century leather, and is in fine condition. In general condition it is described as clean and sound, and free from stains and wormholes.

Among the Erasmus entries there is a Wynkin de Worde, "A Lytell Booke of Good Maners for Children," 1525; and other works from the same press are Bishop Fisher's "Treatise Concerning the Fruitful Sayings of David," 1525 edition; his funeral sermon on Henry VII., 1530; "Fruit of Redemption," an unusual 1530 edition; Walter Hilton's "Scala Perfectionis," the 1581 edition, the second book printed by De Worde in his own name, and also that of 1533; and Stephen Hawes' "Example of Virtue," 1530. In specially high type appears another "Gallant," possibly by John Lydgate. The only other copy known is in the British Museum; this one is mutilated and restored, and several pages facsimiled, having originally been taken from the covers of another book. Of great names besides Erasmus falling in this portion of the library, Fielding, Goldsmith and Holbein head long series, including first editions of "Tom Jones," "The Vicar of Wakefield" and the "Hollandia" series. There are also later laborious editions of "Euphrosia," "The Vicar of Wakefield" and "The Vicar of Wakefield." There are also later laborious editions of "Euphrosia," "The Vicar of Wakefield" and "The Vicar of Wakefield." TO TEACH RUSSIAN DANCES IN ENGLAND

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, May 31. THE triumph of the Russian dancers in England is about to have a practical result in the establishment of what is called a university of dancing and miming. The London Opera House has initiated the enterprise, and the university will be under the supervision of Mr. Theodore Kozloff, of the Imperial Russian Ballet.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

SLEEPY-TIME TALES FOR THE LITTLEST ONES

Aunt Margaret and the Telephone

JUST as Mamma was putting little Dorothy to bed the other evening Papa came in to tell her that some one wished to talk with her on the telephone. So Mamma left the room and, after a while, came back and told Dorothy that she had been talking with little Margaret Ayers' mother.

Now Margaret was Dorothy's very best friend and playmate and her Mamma was going to give her a birthday party on Saturday afternoon. More than that, she had asked Mamma, on the phone, if Dorothy could come to it. Mamma said that she could, for Dorothy had been a good little girl for ever so long and, besides, there was no school on Saturday, of course.

"Oh, oh, oh!" cried little Dorothy, clapping her hands and jumping up and down in bed until it bounced her around as though she were in a ham-

I held her up to the phone so she could talk to Father. and I in the same breath. "Come out and jiggle." "And, Mamma," she cried, "can't please, tell Margaret tomorrow that I'll come to her party? Can I tell her on the telephone?"

Mamma assented and smiled. "That reminds me, Dorothy," she said, "of a little girl named Margaret who once talked over the telephone in a most amazing fashion. She'd grown-up now, but when she talked on the telephone for the first time she was almost as little as you are, Dorothy. I was much older and, in fact, I myself held her up to the phone so she could talk to Father—your Grandfather, you know—who had been called off business to a city nearby."

"It was the very first time Aunt Margaret had ever talked over the phone, remember, and she was just as delighted as you were when you did. Remember how strange it sounded to

Queer Feats of Animals

THE next time you witness a dog or cat to the circus stand in front of the cages of certain animals and see for yourself what remarkable things they can do. Perhaps, at the time, they will not perform for you; but do not doubt, for that reason, that they are capable of doing some very strange things.

New you would never expect an animal to act like a prize-fighter, would you? Well, the kangaroo does. He has little short front legs, you remember, and very long, powerful hind ones. And he fights with these hind legs, being able to hit a blow hard enough to break a man's leg or even a horse's.

But the most peculiar thing about it is that, when he fights, he stiffens his thick, strong tail, sticks it in the ground and supports himself on it, thus leaving him free to strike out with his hind legs. Now isn't that strange?

More than that, a kangaroo can jump, with those same powerful hind legs, over twenty yards at a single jump. Of course he doesn't cover that distance always, but as for that, kangaroos have cleared that measured at a single bound. No doubt you have seen a mouse scurry across the floor and into his waiting? Well, there are such mice and, mind you, they not infrequently wait in pairs, almost like real people.

Now a turtle is not an impressive looking creature, at best. But when you learn that he can support and carry a load that weighs three times as much as he does, then you just can't help having a better opinion of him, can you? Think about it a moment. Can you carry a thing that weighs three times as much as you do?

It is surprising what wonderful athletes can be found in the animal kingdom, aside from the turtle which can "swing rings" and "right-ropes" and coll each other over and over to quite the most approved fashion.

And when it comes to thrilling feats on "flying rings" and "right-ropes" surely none can equal the jumping, darting, chattering monkey! Stand in front of a cage of them some day and see for yourself!

Boyhood Stories of BIG MEN

A Narrow Escape

LONG while ago—for the little boy in this story is now a grown man—a lad named James, in the town of Jacksonburg, Ohio, came near having to spend a most miserable Christmas day—fall because in his excitement he got up too early to see what Santa Claus had brought him.

He and his little brothers and sisters were all on tip-toe about the Christmas presents they expected to receive—like all children are—and they received stockings full of oranges and nuts and the kind of candy that every child knows as an "all-day-stucker." And then, too, there was always a toy or two for each of them.

Long before this particular Christmas Eve, their little hearts sank within them. And, sobbing aloud, they crept moanfully up the stairs again. Oh, what a sorry little family they were! And you would have been, too, if you had been one of them! They were so disappointed that they cried them-

They fled slowly down the stairs, a sorrowful, forlorn procession, mas Ebe, as they were dancing about and listening to see if they could yet hear the tinkle of old Kris Kringle's sleigh-bells even in the distance. Their parents seemed to be very sad, and nearly their Mother told them that she was not certain Santa would visit them this year. And Papa, too, shook his head doubtfully.

Even on the night before Christmas, Papa and Mamma could offer but little more encouraging news. Perhaps Santa would drive over their roof without stopping. But maybe, after all, he would remember to climb down their chimney!

You can imagine how miserably unhappy they must have felt! So, when they went to bed, they tossed and tossed about in the covers and wished and hoped and prayed—oh, how hard they wished!—that old Santa would not forget them. And can you blame them for not being able to go to sleep, with Christmas morning coming on and no presents? Just think of it!

Well, after a long, long while, they finally dropped off, one by one, to sleep and dreamed terrible dreams of a Santa Claus, with a bag full of toys, who merely laughed at them and passed by without giving them so much as a bag of candy out of his sack.

And then, after a while, James woke up. He was sure it was Christmas morning. So he called the rest of the children and told them it was time to go downstairs and see if Santa had at last relented and filled their stockings.

So, with James in the lead, they fled slowly down the stairs, a sorrowful, forlorn procession. Step by step they went down and down, nearer and nearer to the door of the room where

The President's Newsboy.

AN example of what can be accomplished by persistent effort and promptness is given by little Sam April, a Washington newsboy who serves papers at the White House. He is now eleven years old and has been official newsboy to the Executive Mansion since he was nine.

Not that anybody appointed him to the position. Sam saw that there was such a vacancy, nominated and elected himself to it and has held it against all the other "newsies" who would like to have the honor of handing the President his newspaper each afternoon. He has performed his duties so well that no matter what other changes may be made it is very unlikely that he will lose his job.

To read about it makes it appear a mighty easy place to fill, but like all good jobs it took energy and determination to get. Before Sam took over the privilege of this distinctive paper route, whichever newsboy reached the White House first had the honor of selling four copies of both afternoon papers. This meant eight cents to the young vendor and also that he had beaten all the other city newsboys in their race for the entrance to the Mansion. For, in order to avoid a riot in the grounds, it was decided among the boys them-

The Brave Color-Bearer

DID you ever hear the story of the brave lad, a color-bearer in the Union Army, who held aloft the Stars and Stripes at the Battle of Gettysburg during the Civil War, amid a perfect storm of shot and shell and kept his soldier comrades from retreating in disorder? There is a marble monument to him now in Gettysburg, and it shows him with the flag clutched in one hand while he stands shaking his other fist at the enemy. But here is the story:

He was in the front of the line of Union outposts—on the very spot where his monument now stands—and he had the sight of the Flag would do more to keep the soldiers from falling back, before the advancing superior body of Confederate troops, than anything else. The Union forces were far outnumbered but they had to hold the position until more troops could be rushed up from the rear. One by one the men were falling around him and a general panic seemed imminent. But the brave lad stepped right out in front of the line, held his flag aloft and waved it wildly. He seemed to bear a charmed life, for the bullets whizzed past him, chipping pieces off the flag-staff, he held and rattling the flag. The sight so inspired his comrades that they

The Dutch Concert

AN indoor game for little folk. In this game all the players sit down. Each person takes a selection of an instrument, say, a guitar, a violin, a drum, etc., and each makes the player appropriate for playing the instrument he has chosen, and imitates to the best of his ability the sound of the instrument. The leader of the band has been chosen before the beginning of the concert, and as soon as all are seated, he rises, gives the director's signal to begin, and starts playing a familiar tune, such as "Yankee Doodle." "A Hot Time in Old Town Tonight," "On the Rhine," and other old songs. As the playing proceeds, the moment that he ceases to play, the player from whom he has taken the instrument must immediately take his instrument again and resume playing. If he is not prompt in doing so, he is excluded from the band, and at the close of the concert he must pay a forfeit. In the case of the leader making a mistake in playing the instrument he takes from one of the band, he must pay a forfeit at the end of the game. But he continues as leader throughout the game running or till those participating are tired and wish to play at something else. It is a jolly game, and a noisy one as well, and unless the consent of the parents is granted, the little players may look for an interruption very soon after the concert has begun. However, most parents love to have their children and their children's guests enjoy such lively games.

They fled slowly down the stairs, a sorrowful, forlorn procession, mas Ebe, as they were dancing about and listening to see if they could yet hear the tinkle of old Kris Kringle's sleigh-bells even in the distance. Their parents seemed to be very sad, and nearly their Mother told them that she was not certain Santa would visit them this year. And Papa, too, shook his head doubtfully.

SOLUTION OF FRUIT PUZZLE.

A Brave Retort

OW a boy says no, think much of his little baby brother—that yelling, squalling little bundle of pink, mostly flying fists and kicking toes deep down in his heart; but when it comes to an outsider saying unkind things about him then it is a different matter indeed. Little Bobbie found it so only the other day and rose to the occasion like the fine, loyal little man he is.

He was playing with Freddy in the front yard when Suroe came out on the porch holding, baby, by his dress and trying to teach him to walk without falling. Freddy caught sight of the baby and stopped in his play, and "Shucks!" he exclaimed. "He's old is that old baby of yours, Bobbie?" "One year old," replied Bob, looking up at the speaker with a wonderful fort he had been building of small stones.

"Shucks!" exclaimed Freddy again. "Shucks! why, I've got a little dog that's only a year old, too, but I can walk twice as fast as that ugly little brother of yours."

Bobbie stood staring at him a moment and his face flushed with anger. "Shucks! why, I've got a little dog that's only a year old, too, but I can walk twice as fast as that ugly little brother of yours."

"Well," he replied presently, "why shouldn't that dog of yours go twice as many legs?" And Freddy hadn't a word to say!

Not Fresh

NOBODY likes a "fresh" child. He's a nuisance, aside from his being extremely impolite. But when little Bertha answered a question asked her by Teacher the other day she had no intention of being "fresh," though it certainly did sound that way. Judge for yourself:—"Bertha," asked Teacher during the spelling lesson, "how do you spell needle?" Bertha rose from her seat and stood by her desk in the correct attitude. But her little brain was all awash that was one of the words she simply couldn't remember how to spell. "N—e—e—d—l—e," she began. "Yes—t—t—t," said Teacher encouragingly. "N—needle!" declared Bertha, in a mighty effort to remember. "No, Bertha," replied Teacher patiently. "That is incorrect—it has no 't' in it." Bertha looked up instantly, her face aglow. "But, Teacher," she cried, "then it ain't a good needle!"

A BAD START.

"You shouldn't take apples to do teacher. It's wrong." "How's dat?" "A man was just sent to do penitentiary for bribing a judge, and dey say he started dat way."

British News Budget Over The Courier Wire

LONDON, May 31.—The crash of London windows in London has been heard across the Atlantic with disastrous results. It reads an appeal for world-wide "constitutional agitation" for woman suffrage, issued by the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies. The appeal sets forth that any letters of protest against the strenuous militancy of the English suffragettes have poured into headquarters from across the seas.

"The actions of the militants are putting the cause of the world over the burden of these protests, according to the appeal. Most of the protests come from America and the Dominion of Canada—from countries and states where women have already won by patience and tact or where there is now a vigorous campaign along peaceable lines under way," says the appeal.

"Letters from officials of suffrage societies from America, Europe and our overseas Dominions constantly reach the National Union expressing the strong belief not only of the harm which militancy is doing the cause in England, but also of its disastrous effects abroad. Those women especially who have already won the vote in the colonies express themselves strongly on this question. They won their victory by tact and patience and by a stern refusal to put themselves in the wrong, however great the provocation.

"In respect of methods, with the exception of China, where the movement has been accompanied by one or two instances of acts of militancy from Chinese female soldiers, the militant movement in Great Britain stands isolated; yet it was inevitable as the New York press affirms, that the cause in America should suffer from the outrages perpetrated in the name of woman suffrage by British suffragettes. "The crash of broken windows in London has been heard across the Atlantic with disastrous results."

Critics and enemies of the House of Lords seldom view it in the light of a champion for popular rights, yet there is not a discordant note in the public and editorial praise for its decision providing for "the open court" in divorce cases.

The law, which the Lords, as the final court of appeal of the United Kingdom, established, settles two questions of the utmost importance. They are that divorce and nullity cases must be heard publicly, and that a person adjudged guilty of contempt of court may appeal the question of contempt to a higher tribunal. On both points the Lords over-ruled the Court of Appeals. In the Scott case, which was one to declare a marriage null, the hearing was secret, and Mrs. Scott was afterwards adjudged guilty of contempt for circulating a report of the decision among her friends.

The Court of Appeals, by a vote of four to two, upheld the right of the judge to hold the hearing in camera, and also declared that there could be no appeal from a ruling that a person was in contempt of court.

The Lords went even farther than reversing the lower courts. They decided that the questions were of such importance to the public that the government should pay all costs. Mrs. Scott incurred in fighting the case before the Court of Appeals and the House of Lords.

The tendency of English courts of late years has been towards secrecy in divorce cases, and the order for closed doors was most apt to be made when parties were of high position and thus able to bring influence to bear. The recent suit by the Countess of Yarmouth, formerly Miss Alice Thaw, for the nullification of her marriage was tried secretly. In other cases the judges have ordered spectators to leave the court at certain stages of the trial and have ordered the reporters not to mention parts of the evidence. Witnesses also have been instructed to mention people who figured in the testimony only as "X."

Under an act of 1857 three classes of cases may be held behind closed doors. Those concerning the affairs of children who are wards of lunatics and cases where trade secrets must be discussed. There is also a law empowering judges to order spectators from the court when children have to give evidence of a certain nature. But the law specifically states that reporters of newspapers cannot be excluded.

In the trial of several suffragettes recently judges have ordered all women from the court. The Lords' decision appear to make that impossible. Under it, except for the three classes included in the act of 1857, all hearings must be public. As many subjects of the King as the court room will accommodate have the right to enter and to stay so long as they behave.

A model of the second Drury Lane theatre has been sent to America where it will be placed in the Columbia University museum among the famous collection of models illustrating the history of the stage. The model is the work of J. P. Maguire, who recently constructed a representation of the Fortune theatre for Columbia.

It depicts Drury Lane as it was in 1776, when Sheridan, Linley and Ford became the proprietors of the patent. A century before this the theatre had been constructed by Sir Christopher Wren and a century later Robert Adams reconstructed the interior. The stage in the model is set for the scene in the "School for Scandal."

All honor to the peerless Bryan, who, customs obsolete defying, cemented dope eschews, and thereby shocks the red-nosed stickler who wants to swallow some good pickler, some rich imported booze. Wine, men once thought, at meals was very important, even necessary; they had their daily toots, and diligently, at the table, poured down as much as they were able, and slumbered in their boots. But we've outgrown this silly custom, and others of the kind, dad bust 'em, which make our fathers sick; and with no alcoholic quiver we wash down onions and fried liver with water from the creek. When we attend a big swell dinner we find that coffee is a winner; it warms us to our toes; we ask for drinks that leave us sober as are the heavens in October, and no peruna goes. And when the long drawn feast is ended, we seek our couches feeling splendid and the night; and rise when we have had our slumber without that taste, the hue of amber, which makes the mouth a sight. When men who have exalted places against Old Booze shall turn their faces, the nation should applaud; there is no time or place or season when man can find a decent reason for drinking forty-rod.

Much Anxiety About Conditions of St. Paul in London.

The report shows that the cathedral is in real danger unless it is taken promptly to the assistance which is steadily on. The dome and walls have found to be out of plumb and in a southwesterly direction divergence would be unimpaired, the building would be steadily increasing, and the point must be reached sooner or later.
