CHAPTER VII.

"I am sorry for that," said Leicester Dodson, quietly telling a polite falsehood, for he was in reality rather glad than otherwise, and looked forward with no little satisfaction to a tete-a-tete with Violet.

"So am I," said the captain, and, as he spoke, he looked round about the room, as if searching for something.

"Lost anything?" asked the other, in his slow, indolent way.

"Yes," said Captain Murpoint, "a letter. I have dropped it from my pocket, and I fancied I should see it in this room."

At that moment the door opened, and Violet entered.

The captain ceased his hunt immediately, and murmuring softly, "It's of no consequence," turned to Violet and told her that he should be compelled to remain at home.

"I am sorry," said Violet, echoing Leicester's words, and with a slight truth.

And she passed out onto the lawn.

"I don't know whether James has harnessed the ponies properly," she said, doubtfully, as the groom appeared, leading up the pretty pair tandem fashion.

"No, he hasn't," said Leicester, after examining them.

And he quietly explained to the man how the operation should be performed.

Then he handed Violet into the little toy phaeton, and took the reins.

At first the ponies, unused to their novel positions and quite fresh after two days' rest, showed signs of rebellion, and started first to one side, then the other, and at last the leader ventured to attempt the feat of walking on his hind legs.

But Mr. Leicester's iron hand drew him to earth again, and, with a touch of the long whip, hinted to him that a very different driver than Miss Violet sat behind him.

After a few minutes they settled down more quietly, and, as the feathery phaeton was rattled down the well-kept road to the village, Violet's face flushed and her eyes sparkled with pleasure.

"How delightful!" she exclaimed; "and how easy it looks!"

"Come and try," said Mr. Leicester, and he pulled the ponies up until he had changed seats with her.

Then Violet found that tandem-driving was one of those feats which look easier to perform than they really are. Her hold on the reins was not tight enough; the artful little creatures knew her gentle touch, and the leader commenced his old trick, and, in spite of all Violet's skill, insisted upon turning round, as if he meant to enter the carriage and take a ride himself.

Mr. Leicester smiled, and Violet pouted.

"Hold the reins tighter," he said, "and give Master Dot—or Spot? which is it?—a clean, little cut on the left side."

She did so, and Master Dot immediately spun round to the right.

Then Mr. Leicester showed her how to keep him straight by whipping him on the right, and Violet managed to drive him straight for some little distance until they came to a sharp corner.

"Now, take care," said Mr. Leicester; but his warning came too late.

Dot cut the corner rather close. Spot, of course, cut it closer, and the phaeton would have been over, and its contents spilled like eggs, had not Mr. Dodson's hand closed on the small ones of Violet, and tugged the leader round.

For the second time Violet learned how hard and firm that hand was, and involuntarily she uttered a little, sharp cry of pain.

"I am so sorry!" said Leicester, and his voice, naturally so cold and grave, grew wonderfully gentle and anxious. "I did not mean to hurt you."

"No, no; it's nothing," Violet said, coloring with shame at her weakness. "I am really very grateful. You did not hurt me. May I keep the reins a little longer? I don't deserve to after such a silly mistake."

"Yes," he said, "there is a bit of straight road now."

He seemed so genuinely kind that Violet could not refrain from thanking him again.

"You are very good-natured, Mr. Dodson," she said. "I might have thought you proud if I had judged by first impressions."

"Why?" he asked.

"Why?" she repeated. "Are you sure that I shall not offend you?"

"Quite," he said, with a short laugh. "Pray, go on."

"Well, then, if you remember how abruptly you turned away from me that morning when you so foolishly and recklessly, but so heroically, risked your life for my paltry sunshade? You actually refused to shake hands," and she laughed, "and turned away with the cut direct."

He laughed, and looked up at her with a half-amused smile.

"I did, did I?" he said. "Come, I will be candid. I had judged you, not by first impressions, but by hearsay. The unkind things said of one always get repeated—one's friends always see to that. And I have heard some of the mighty civil things your aunt, and perhaps you had said of tallow chandlers in general, and ourselves and the Cedars in particular."

Violet crimsoned, and whipped Dot almost angrily for very shame.

"And," he exclaimed, laughing again, "I thought, when you told me your name, 'Well, she shan't be compelled to know me because I picked up her sunshade,' and so I took myself off with all humility."

"Some one's darling sin is the pride that apes humility," answered Violet, with an arch smile.

"Exactly," said Mr. Leicester, "I did not choose that the acquaintance-ship should be one of my commencing. If you choosed to look down with contempt upon tallow melters—"

Violet stopped him, with a look almost of pain.

"You are unjust," she said, in a low voice. "And you forget that I never thought less of you for what you were. You are not a tallow-melter—and—and—oh, I do not know what to say, save that I am not guilty of the meanness you lay to my charge."

"Forgive me," he said, gently and earnestly. "I was only half serious. I did not think so, really. But," he added, laughing, "it is a fact that we made our money from tallow, and there's no getting over it. Ah! here is Captain Murpoint," he broke off, as the captain's tall and powerful figure stepped out on to the path beside the drive.

So sudden was his appearance, seeming to grow out of her thoughts, as it were, that Violet, who was by no means a nervous or sentimental young lady, half started, and certainly paled.

In starting, she tugged the reins.

Dot and Spot took the jerk as an excuse for a little freshness, and started off with their heads down viciously.

Mr. Leicester smiled, and Violet pouted.

start, and the sudden pallor, caught hold of her hand, and soon pulled the sprightly ponies into a trot again.

But Violet's hands and his had met once more, and the contact had produced a strange thrill, which was as wonderful as that feeling which they had been speaking of, but it was certainly not one of antipathy.

Leicester stepped out, handed Violet to the steps; then, after patting the ponies, held out his hand.

"Will you not come in?" said Violet.

"No, thank you. It is nearly dinner time. I hope you are not tired."

"No," said Violet, giving him her hand, which he kept while she finished speaking. "No, and I am very much obliged. Good-by."

"Good-by," he said, and perhaps unconsciously he pressed her little hand as he released it.

Then he turned, and Violet, watching him, saw him stand for a moment to exchange a good-day with Captain Murpoint, then stride on.

It was nearly dinner time, as he had said, and he sauntered up to his room, and put himself into the hands of his valet with his usual indolence.

Then he came down to dinner, and ate it with rather more than his usual gravity, talking little, save to his mother, to whom he was always the perfection of knightly courtesy.

Once only he seemed cold, and that was when she said, "Leicester, we have been talking of returning the Midway's dinner party. What day would you like me to ask them?" for she always consulted her darling son on every matter, important or trifling.

"I do not care," he said. "I am going to town to-morrow, and I may not return for a week or so. You might ask them next week."

"Going to town?" said Mrs. Dodson, ruefully. "Why, my dear Leicester, you said you would stay a month with us!"

"I must go to-morrow, mother," he said, and she knew that it was useless to contend against the fiat when pronounced in that calm, cold tone.

After dinner he strolled out on to the cliffs and lit a cigar.

"Yes," he muttered, looking at the sea, lying like a great opal in the low sun, "I will go to town; I am better there out of mischief. She is very pretty—beautiful, I think, if any woman's face did deserve the word; and there is something about her—is it her voice, or her look, or that swift turn of the head?—which moves me, never voice or look or gesture of woman moved me yet. She is a beautiful, bewitching snare, and, as I have no desire to be snared, as I am too selfish, too cynical, too philosophical to make any woman happy, I will fly. Yes, I will go to town before the danger grows greater." And, as to resolve and perform were nearly one with Mr. Leicester Dodson, to town he went, and Violet saw his dogcart rattling down to Burfield from her bedroom window.

He went to town, but, as we have seen, he could not be happy, contented, or even satisfied, and before the fortnight had passed, he was on his way back to Penruddle, with Bertie Fairfax accompanying him.

Fate stands at the crossroads of life and beckons with inexorable finger, and man, though he strive against the stern command and struggles to avoid that particular path upon which the great fate beckons him, must yield at last and walk on to his happiness or his doom.

Fate beckons you, Leicester Dodson, and, though you proudly set your face against its decree, you cannot avoid the inevitable.

CHAPTER VIII.

The captain, as he opened his bedroom window, saw Mr. Leicester Dodson's departure, and was rather surprised.

Captain Murpoint was too shrewd an observer of human nature not to have noticed Mr. Leicester's evident partiality for Miss Violet's society, and, although it would seem to be antagonistic to the captain's plans that the young man should be hanging about the house, yet, in reality, he was quite willing that Violet's attention should be absorbed by handsome Mr. Leicester, or any one else, so that it was drawn from the present from Captain Murpoint.

He could not understand Mr. Leicester's sudden flight, and Mr. Starling, when interrogated, could not very much enlighten him.

Jem, or "Starling," as the captain now called him, entered his master's bedroom with the water for the bath, and found the captain still in bed, but with his head resting on one strong hand, and his face turned dreamily to the window.

Starling grunted his morning salutation, and the captain nodded.

"Go to the window," he said, "and tell me if that young Dodson's dogcart has come back; if I have calculated correctly, it has just had about time enough to get to the station and back."

"Here it comes, captain."

"Without Mr. Leicester?"

"Without Mr. Leicester," replied Starling.

"Then he has gone to town," said the captain, springing out of bed and stretching himself thoughtfully. "Gone to town! What the deuce has he gone to town for?"

"That's what everybody wants to know," said Jem, from the next room; where he was spreading out the towels and pouring the water into the bath.

"Did you make friends with the people in the servants' hall at the Cedars?" asked the captain.

"I did, captain, obedient to your commands," said Jem, with a wink.

"And a very nice, genteel lot of people they are, though I prefer the hall here, if there's any choice. Oh, yes, I walked up last night, permissious like, and when they knew as I was your man they made me welcome, drew me some of the best October and would 'a' opened a bottle of Maderly, but I wouldn't hear on it—I allus was so modest, I had a cut of duck and a helpin' o' some sort o' cream with a long, furrin name—"

"Tush! I don't want to know what you had to eat and drink," interrupted the captain. "What did you hear?"

"Not much," he said, laying out the captain's ready-brushed morning suit. "I heard that Mr. Leicester was going to London this morning, quite sudden-like—and he ain't one of your impulsive gents, neither. His man didn't know what was up, and depended to stop here for another month at the least. There wasn't anything awkward between the old people and the young 'un, neither, for the butler—which is a more high and mighty swell, in a bigger shirt front than our old chap—he heard Mr. Dodson beg o' Mr. Leicester to stop. But no, he said he'd go, and gone he has, sure enough."

"And now you can go," said the captain. "Stay! did you find that piece of paper which I told you to look for in the drawing room?"

"No, captain, and I looked everywhere."

"Idiot!" said the captain, between his teeth, "let that be a warning to you never to put your clumsy paw to paper again. How do I know you may have picked that up, with its cursed, teitlate sentence?"

SIR HANS SLOANE died aged 93. It was the purchase of Sloane's library and collection of natural history specimens by the High Government which laid the foundation for the present Museum.
LORD CURZON born 1859. 1st Lord Curzon of Kedworth and 1st Marquis Curzon of Kedworth. He was Viceroy of India from 1899 to 1905. Some friction which arose respecting military control caused him to seek relief from the heavy duties of Viceroyalty before his second term of office had been far proceeded. In March, 1907, he was elected a member of the House of Commons, and in 1908 elected an Irish representative peer.

Conventions at the Hague Futile,

ROOSEVELT SAYS.

New York, Jan. 4.—In an article written for the current issue of the Independent, Col. Roosevelt says under the caption, "Utopia or Hell":
"To violate these conventions, to violate neutrality treaties, as Germany has done in the case of Belgium, is a dreadful thing. It represents the gravest kind of international wrongdoing, but it is really not quite so contemptible, it does not show so shortsighted and timid inefficiency, and above all such selfish indifference to the cause of permanent and righteous peace, as has been shown by the United States (thanks to President Wilson and Secretary Bryan) in refusing to fulfil its solemn obligations by taking whatever action was necessary in order to clear our skirts from the guilt of tame acquiescence in a wrong which we had solemnly undertaken to oppose."

Meant Literally Nothing.

"If I had for one moment supposed that signing these Hague conventions meant literally nothing whatever beyond the expression of a pious wish which any Power was at liberty to disregard with impunity, in accordance with the dictation of self-interest, I would certainly not have permitted the United States to be a party to such a mischievous farce."

"President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, however, take the view that when the United States assumes obligations in order to secure small and unoffending neutral nations against hideous wrong, its action is not predicated on any intention to make the guarantee effective."
"They take the view that when we are asked to redeem in the concrete promises we made in the abstract, our duty is to disregard our obligations and to preserve ignoble peace for ourselves by regarding with cold-blooded and timid indifference the most frightful ravages of war committed at the expense of a peaceful and unoffending country."

"This is the cult of cowardice. That President Wilson and Mr. Bryan profess it and put it in action would be of small consequence if only they themselves were concerned. The importance of their action is that it commits the United States."
Mr. Roosevelt points out to Germany as the wrongdoer, whose acts warranted an interference by the United States.

Eat Cabbage, Fish, Sausage, New Bread
No indigestion, Gas, Sourness or Upset Stomach if you'll take "Pape's Diapepsin"—Try This!
Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, jot this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.
Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. "Pape's Diapepsin" is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.
You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.
Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

CHICAGO REVOLVER BATTLE.
Chicago, Jan. 5.—A policeman and a burglar were shot to death, and an alleged highwayman was mortally wounded in two revolver battles police fought with four robbers caught in an attempted holdup and a burglary here early to-day. The dead, John S. Ruzman, policeman and George Hennessey, burglar.

Young girls' separate coats are high waisted, with full skirts and full sleeves.

'When the Wigs Are on the Green.'

Samuel Verachoye Blake, son of the great Canadian Irish Liberal and Irish Home Ruler, Hon. Edward Blake, has just published a brochure of war verses, the proceeds of the sale of which are to be devoted to the Red Cross and Belgian Relief Funds. The poem "Her Soldier Dead" gives its name to the booklet and in it the sonorous Blake periods of former days are to be found. But it is on his new version of "The Wearing of the Green" that Mr. Blake is happiest. The "boys" have been mustered and are off to the front:
Last time 'twas Boneyparte
We laid upon the door;
And now it's little Willie
Would be smiling for our gore.
So good-bye Tipperary
And the dear old Irish shore,
For we'll fight for King and country
As we never fought before.

I met old Father Healey
And he took me by the hand,
And he asked me how is Ireland
And how does she stand.
"She's the least distressful country
That ever yet was seen,
For Erin's sons are going
Where the wigs are on the green."

'Rory of the Bogs'

The Crescent Irish feature of the year at the Crescent to-day, "Rory of the Bogs," an Irish Romance of the eighteenth century produced in 3 reels by the Rex Company featuring J. Warren Kerrigan. The various scenes are taken in Ireland showing the most interesting places in the "Land of the Shamrock."
Beside two very funny comedies, "The Snake Charmer" and "Nuttie Delivers the Message."
J. O'Neil Farrell, baritone sings a popular Irish ballad.

STERLING CHARACTER.

"Heaven is not reached at a single bound." Neither is sterling character. A man of character had, as a rule, parents, teachers or heroes, who valued character in him in his boyhood, in his infancy. But do not forget that one of the most constant and regular visitors to your home, influencing your growing sons and daughters, is your newspaper. Many parents have testified to the assistance that the Evening Telegram was to them in bringing up good families, healthy of body, mind and soul.

STRENGTH'S EFFORTS TO HOLD CRACOW.

London, Jan. 4.—The Daily Mail correspondent at Petrograd telegraphs:
"Two fresh developments have appeared in the German scheme of campaign. They have sent Prussian and Bavarian troops to aid the Austrians, who have been ordered at all costs to hold ground along the front protecting Cracow, and they are also making efforts to cross to the north of the Vistula, the idea being that with the assistance from the East Prussian army of Gen. Franconi they might threaten Warsaw from this direction."
"The vigor with which preparations for a siege are going on at Cracow shows that no illusion is entertained there about the way the battles are going. The Poles are greatly disturbed by a statement of the Austrians that if they are unable to hold the fortress they will blow up the famous city and its cathedral."

THE RANGE OF NAVAL GUNS.

The descriptions of the distances from which the German warships shelled towns have been many and various. The London News naval expert has compiled this table of the effective range of naval guns:
15 inch..... 15 miles
13.5 inch..... 12 miles
12 inch..... 10 miles (Brit. & Ger.)
11 inch..... 9 miles (German)
9.4 inch..... 9 miles (German)
8.2 inch..... 9 miles (German)
7.5 inch..... 6.7 miles
6 inch..... 6 miles
5.9 inch..... 6 miles (German)
The figures are necessarily approximate, and are subject to favorable conditions and a stable platform: e.g. a 12 in. gun can send its shell about eighteen miles, but shooting would be erratic. The United States 16 in. guns at Panama can send a shell 22 miles; our 15 in. (naval guns) 21 miles.

Nascopie Back

FROM MEDITERRANEAN.

The S. S. Nascopie, Capt. Mettke, returned from Mediterranean ports Saturday night, after an eventful and interesting trip.

From here the ship went to Alicante and landed a part cargo of codfish, thence proceeding in turn to Naples and Patras. After discharging all her cargo the ship visited Torreyevig for a load of salt and got bunker coal at Gibraltar.

The crew reports that at the places visited the people were in favour of the Allies, that Italy was mobilizing and would be entering the conflict soon. Twelve German ships were held at Naples, forty-two at Lisbon and many others interned at Gibraltar. Alicante and Patras. A number of Germans were held at Gibraltar as prisoners of war and one of them in an effort to escape was shot. The "Sydney" which was instrumental in putting an end to the "Emden," left Gibraltar while the Nascopie was there.

The Nascopie left Gibraltar on Christmas Day and was held up by a French cruiser and a British torpedo boat, but was allowed to continue after her destination, nationality and cargo were made known. While returning the ship met terrific weather. A succession of storms forced the ship and a part of the captain's bridge was carried away and two iron ladders badly damaged. No further damage was sustained.
The S. S. Boethic was supposed to leave Gibraltar shortly after the Nascopie.

VICTORY

Over Million Men in English Army

FOR HOME DEFENCE.

London, Jan. 4.—England's home-defence army has grown to a membership of more than a million in less than three months, and apparently the number will be quadrupled before spring.
Occurrences like the German naval raid on Hartlepool and Scarborough in mid-December send hundreds of men, old and young alike, hurrying to take their places in this civil guard, which will have an important work to do if invasion ever becomes a reality.
Drilling is carried on generally three or four evenings a week, in parks, squares and school yards all over England.
The force is to be equipped as soon as possible with grey-green uniforms. It is already outfitted and equipped with engineer, ambulance, transport, signal, bicycle and motor-cycle sections.
Should an invasion be attempted, the home defence army will see that the population of the threatened towns is taken safely away. Arrangements for such an exodus have already been tentatively made in most parts of the kingdom.
If a German force actually managed to land and advanced toward one of these towns they would find the town deserted and all the food stocks, water supply and other material destroyed. That would be the work of the civil guard.
Even if no invasion comes, this well-nigh universal military training is bound to have a great effect on the nation. The physical effects of the methodical outdoor exercises are already apparent to the men themselves.

Germany's Efforts in the United States.

Germany in the United States are most active in their attempts to injure Britain and her allies. They have been most industrious in endeavouring to free Germany from blame in starting the Great War and to throw it on Britain. In this campaign they have met with scant success. They have also followed up their old game of inflaming those Irish in the States with revolutionary tendencies, with a view to turning Irish sentiment there against the Allies and in favor of Germany. The endorsement by the regular Irish societies in the States of Mr. John Redmond's attitude is a sufficient answer to this inflammatory attack on the Allies. Another method of attack is the effort made by them in Congress to get a law passed to stop the export of munitions from the States. Richard Bartholdt makes no disguises of it. He declared that by permitting such exports "the United States is in effect waging war against Germany." He of course ignores the other side of the case that by permitting exports of contraband to neutral countries for re-export to Germany, the United States by a parity of reasoning might quite as justly be accused of making war on Britain. Indeed, so one-sided is the special pleading that they back the Copper Kings in their objections to the seizure of copper of contraband by Britain, as it handicaps Germany in the war. In other words they are using all their efforts to wage war against Britain by causing trouble in the States and they do not mind how they do it, so long as they do something against Britain. They are "agin Britain" anyhow, and their business is to harass her. The fact that the export of contraband is recognized by International law as legitimate for the subjects of a neutral State does not weigh with them. The fact that Great Britain, Germany and the United States have always insisted on such a right in their subjects is of no moment. The fact that Germany is coming out badly in the business is enough to set their propaganda going. Great Britain and her allies have command of the sea, and as belligerents they have a right to seize contraband by International law. It is telling against Germany, as her navy has been practically driven off the seas, and what the German Navy has failed to do on the seas, German agitators hope in some measure to accomplish by the propaganda they have started in the States.

VICTORY Not Built Upon Falsehood.

New York Evening Post.—That the whole effort (of the German professors to enlist American sympathy) has come to nothing is obvious. American opinion remains what it was. Nor was it built upon falsehood. All this mighty attempt to set us right has not produced a single fact, a single document, a single argument which was not known in the United States from the beginning. The trouble was, as Maximilien Harden now states, not that we did not have the truth, but that we were "unable to think as Germans do."

Entertainment at Daniel's Cove.

On December 20th the people of Daniel's Cove, B. D. V., gave a little entertainment, the proceeds to go towards the completion of the new R. C. School there. The entertainment commenced at 7.30 and refreshments were served, after which the younger members of the gathering "tripped the light fantastic toe" until 11.30 when the ladies of the place served a soup supper which was partaken of by all, and to which ample justice was fully done. The affair was kept up until the "wee sma' hours" when the gathering dispersed in search of a much needed rest, and very much pleased with the night's enjoyment. Messrs. Michael Kelly, Jeremiah Howard and Misses A. M. Howard and L. M. Kelly presided at the refreshment table. Three very nice cakes were also "rafted" and were won by Mr. Thomas Martin and Miss Marie Duggan, of Grate's Cove, and Mr. Robert Howard, of Daniel's Cove. Mr. Martin Kehoe, the able violinist of Red Head Cove, furnished the music. Many people from "nearby settlements" were present, including people from Grate's Cove, Red Head Cove, Low Point, Caplin Cove, Job's Cove and Old Perlickan, all of whom felt very grateful to the people of Daniel's Cove for their kind treatment, especially dear old Mrs. Kelly, who attended to the wants of the strangers with the untiring energy and great hospitality. The proceeds amounted to $30. We congratulate the people of Daniel's Cove on their very attractive entertainment, and hope they will organize others in the not distant future, which we assure them will be just as largely attended and greatly appreciated as this.

Fighting Against Exportation of War Munitions.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The two largest German-American and Irish-American societies in the United States joined before the House Foreign Relations committee to-day to fight for the Volmer-Bartholdt resolution to prohibit exportation of war munitions to Europe.

Representing 2,000,000 German-Americans in this country, Dr. C. J. Hexamer of Philadelphia, President of the National German-American Alliance, declared their plea is for "real neutrality and American fair play."

Speaking of the effects the success of President Wilson's note to Britain will have upon United States commerce, Doctor Hexamer declared: "Great Britain's agreement to no longer harass our shipments to Italy, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden will be of no value unless these countries have lifted the embargo on the re-exportation of about 400 articles mostly imported from the United States. It is the undeniable right of the United States to ship to and through neutral countries any and all articles not used in war."

"Britain's attitude on the seas, Doctor Hexamer said, "has absolutely demoralized our legitimate foreign commerce." He declared Britain forced the neutral European countries to place embargoes on all articles imported.

"Every dollar gained by our business in war munitions," the doctor added, "is tainted with the blood of those who have fallen on the European battlefields."

The Irish-American society, the Ancient Order of Hibernians, was represented by Joseph McLaughlin, of Philadelphia, the national president, and Francis G. Clark, of Philadelphia.

The foreign relations committee room was crowded by the German-Americans who came here from large middle western and eastern states.

VON BUELOW'S MISSION TO ROME A FAILURE.
Paris, Jan. 2.—According to a special correspondent of The Temps who has just returned from Italy, Count Von Buelow's mission to Rome has failed. "It is untrue," says The Temps, "that Von Buelow offered Italy any concrete compensation for intervention in Germany's favor, or, at least, disarmed neutrality. He only made vague promises to induce the Italian Government to show a less friendly attitude to Britain, as 'Britain is the sole enemy of Germany.' His mission was principally to convince Italy that her interests should be with Germany as once Britain was ousted from the Mediterranean Italy might become a large Empire."

The Temps adds that the Kaiser sent Von Buelow to Italy charged with such a difficult mission with only a vague hope of success. The Emperor's idea was to exploit Von Buelow's popularity in Rome in case it might lead to the actual benefit of Germany, or should he fail, to let Von Buelow bear the whole responsibility and thus deliver a blow at his political party, which is notoriously antagonistic to the Kaiser himself.

NURSES ENTER A PROTEST.

Say That Untrained Women Went With First Contingent.

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 5.—In a letter sent to Sir Robert Borden the Canadian National Association of trained nurses has declared that incompetent and untrained women have been sent to the front as nurses to accompany the first contingent, and has protested against the selection of nurses to accompany the second contingent on the basis of political pull. Miss Gunn, Secretary of the National Association and Superintendent of the Toronto General Hospital, states that "A non-committal reply has been received from the Premier."

MAY GOD PUNISH GERMAN PERFDY.

Montreal, Jan. 5.—An indication of American feeling in the European war is furnished by the letter received by William Murray, a former Montreal man, and at present a guest at Freeman's hotel, from Sydney B. Vincent, former general manager of the Associated Press on the Pacific coast.

The letter reads as follows:—

"Here I am in eastern Oregon. The Christmas season is here, and we are reminded of distant friends, so here's to you for a merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year. I hope things will go right for you, but above all things I hope for the triumph of the allies, and especially for the success of the British arms. May God bless her soldiers with success and punish Germany for her perfidy."

A HASTY WEDDING.

A young Canadian private, Victor Albert Baker, engine driver on the C. P.R., returned to Salisbury a few days ago after one of the most hastily made matches on record.

Seven weeks ago another Canadian soldier introduced him to his cousin, a Belgian refugee, Bertha Venden Bosh, who was being cared for in a hostel attached to the Congregational Church, Nunhead.

Bertha, twenty years of age, comes from Antwerp, where she was cashier in a hotel. It was a case of love at first sight. The language difficulty was a serious one, but was overcome, and at the second meeting after the introduction, Baker proposed marriage. He saw her twice more after that and was married within six weeks.

The bride's mother and father are stranded on the continent, but hearty approval came from the girl's uncle and aunt, also refugees from Belgium. The bridegroom wore khaki, as did also his father, who is training with him, and the honeymoon was limited to one day. The Mayoress of Cambridge attended the wedding breakfast, at which one of the guests offered the bridegroom the advice: "If you don't learn each other's language, you will be the happiest man and wife in the world."

The bride is coming to the home of her husband's parents in Canada to await his return from the war.

Perils of Life

in Great Cities

At The Nickel Theatre To-Day.

Intensely sympathetic and absorbingly interesting is the two reel feature film at the Nickel Theatre this evening. It is entitled "The Salvation of Nancy O'Shaughnessy" and shows the perils investing the lives of the lowly in great cities. This picture will appeal to everyone and especially those who have travelled abroad.

"The Price of Honour" is a beautiful love story showing also man's fickleness. "When Hazel met the Villain" is a Keystone comedy. "A Cottage by the River" is also a comedy of the brightest quality. "There will be a full reel of Hearst-Selig Pictorial showing all the latest news items. Miss Margaret Ayer has another attractive song, and Prof McCarthy and Joe F. Ross will furnish the latest and best music.

On Friday and Saturday afternoons the Nickel will show "Jack and the Beanstalk" for the benefit of children. It will be shown at the matinee only. It is in two reels.

Legend of the Teapot

Origin of the Beverage as the Tale is Told in China.

The Chinese claim to be the first users of tea as a drink, and now it originated is told in a pretty little legend that dates from 2,000 years before the coming of Christ.

A daughter of a then reigning sovereign fell in love with a young nobleman whose humble birth excluded him from marrying her. They managed to exchange glances, and he occasionally gathered a few blossoms and had them conveyed to her.

One day in the palace garden the sympathizer met, and the young man endeavoured to give her a few flowers, but so keen was the watchfulness of her attendants that all she could grasp was a little twig with green leaves.

On reaching her room she put the twig in water, and toward evening she drank the water in which the twig had been kept. So agreeable was the taste that she even ate the leaves and stalks. Every day afterward she had bunches of the tea brought to her, which she treated in the same way.

Imitation being the sincerest form of flattery, the ladies of the court tried the experiment and with such pleasing results that the custom spread throughout the kingdom—and the great Chinese tea industry became one of the greatest businesses in the world.—London "Tit-Bits."

CAPTAIN NEWTON KILLED.
NORTHERN FRANCE, To-Day.
A special to the London Daily Mail says: Captain Denzle Newton, of the Princess Patricia's Own Light Infantry of Canada, has been killed in the fighting in France. Newton was A. D. C. to Lord Dundonald in 1902, when the latter commanded the Canadian Militia, and later to Earl Grey when Governor General.

THE TURKS MOVE AGAIN.
LONDON, To-Day.

A News correspondent telegraphs from Petrograd: Turks apparently have determined to make an immediate effort to retrieve their disaster in the Caucasus. They are trying to resume the advance from Karaaganz, west of Sarikandeh on the Turkish frontier, where the remnants of the fugitive Tenth Corps are gathered. They have been reinforced by the remaining troops from the Erzeroum garrison, and there are indications that the Turks are bringing very great masses of troops into the theatre of present operations. The urgency for averting a further catastrophe is immediately due to the extremity of the position of Constantinople, where it has been announced that capital punishment will be inflicted upon anybody circulating foreign reports of the operations.

Capt. A. Kean of the S.S. Prospero wired the following to Irving Bros., Ltd., to-day: "Called at all ports from Green Bay to Tilt Cove first and retreated for ice at Cape John. Will load freight at Little Bay Islds. and wait for change of wind. At Tilt Cove to-night; all well; wind N.N.E."

"The Prospero is evidently finding it difficult to get around Cape John" and is coming south to dodge the ice blockade.

Belgium's Heroic Queen.

"Long live Queen Elizabeth, a great Sovereign, but, above everything else, a great, a good, and a true woman," was the toast drunk to Belgium's Queen at a banquet of the Municipality of Brussels, long before the war became a reality.

"A great, a good, and a true woman." It is a phrase which is in no sense an exaggeration of the virtues of the Queen, whose heroic deeds since the War of the Nations broke out were only to be expected from one who was idolized by her husband's subjects, and known among them as the "Angel Queen."

It is fourteen years ago since King Albert wood and won the daughter of Duke Charles Theodore of Bavaria, who was so famous as an oculist. Inheriting that kindness of heart and consideration for the weaknesses of others which led her father to establish a free hospital at Munich, where he performed over 5,000 operations on the poor, Queen Elizabeth has always striven to ameliorate the lot of those in distress.

When still in Antwerp, King Albert said to the Belgian Prime Minister, "If necessary, you, my dear Minister, and I will take our rifles and go into the battle." "So will I," added the Queen, "and with me all the Belgian women." Queen Elizabeth has kept this pledge, for she is constantly on the battlefield aiding the wounded, cheering the fighters, and comforting her husband.

Kept Her Pledge.

No sooner had she placed her three children—Prince Leopold, born in 1901, Prince Charles, born in 1903, and Princess Marie-Jose, born in 1906—in the care of Lord Curzon of Kedleston at Basingstoke, when the Kaiser and his Huns, violating the neutrality of her husband's country, invaded Belgium, than she hurried back to the King's side, insisting on sharing his dangers and discomforts. "I am not a Queen at present. I am a fellow-sufferer and helper," she replied, in a simple, dignified tone, when her husband and his officers urged her to leave the zone of danger.

A Royal Lady Doctor.

As a nurse and the organizer of hospital equipment, Queen Elizabeth has rendered invaluable aid. Before her marriage she gave serious attention to the study of medicine, and after some years obtained a degree of M.D. at Leipzig, being of great service to her father in his many good works, and herself gaining experience in surgical affairs.

Apart, however, from hospital and nursing work, Queen Elizabeth has given further evidence of her practical-mindedness by her interest in the industries of the people, and her endeavours to further their work. After the funeral of King Leopold, who died in 1909, Queen Elizabeth did a patriotic thing in a characteristically womanly way. She gave orders for large quantities of Brussels lace to be used for her robes of State when she came out of mourning, and for her ordinary dresses. This was at a time when, for various reasons, Brussels lace had ceased to please its own country, and the industry required a fillip. And it was Queen Elizabeth who provided that fillip in a manner which gladdened the hearts of the lace-makers of the country.

The home life of the King and Queen of Belgium has always been of the happiest description. Their favourite hobby is the study of the violin, of which they are both extremely fond, and one of the most popular pictures in Belgium is that which depicts King Albert reading while his wife helps Prince Leopold to master the violin.

Netherlands is Neutral

Paris, Jan. 3.—Arthur Hoffmann, the retiring Swiss President, who remains Minister of Foreign Affairs, says that the Netherlands intend to remain neutral, according to the Berne correspondent of the Petit Parisien. Dr. Hoffmann states that to favor one belligerent nation to the detriment of others would be to risk independence, autonomy and national honor, which the country has placed above all friendships and preferences, continues the correspondent.

Dr. Hoffmann says the Netherlands are furnishing France with a large order of shoes and Germany with chocolate, but denies that his country is favoring Germany in the matter of provisions, particularly wheat, saying that Switzerland had scarcely enough for her own needs. He asserts that the government has no control of shipments through Switzerland and that the recent supply of wheat sent to Germany in sealed cars, coming from Italy is not Switzerland's concern.

The Origin of Military Terms

At a time when novel and military terms are in everyone's mouth, it may be interesting to recall their origins. "Captain" is derived from the Latin "captus," meaning a head; "Colonel" comes from the Italian "colonna," a column, the "compagna colonella" having been the first company of an infantry regiment, the little column which the colonel led. The title "lieutenant" comes from a word signifying "holding the place"—e.g., a lieutenant-colonel is a sort of understudy for a colonel, a lieutenant looks after the company in the absence of the captain, and so on. The titles of "lance-sergeant" and "lance-corporal" originated in the fact that in the olden days the holders of these ranks carried a lance instead of a halberd, round the head of which was twisted a slow match. Their duties were to go round the ranks with these torch-like lances and give fire to the matchlock men just before the battle took place.

The word "dragoon" was first used of a regiment of mounted infantry, so called from the "dragoons," or short muskets, with which they were armed; the well-known cavalry call of "boot and saddle" is really a corruption of the old French signal, "Boutelle, or "Put on your saddles." "Admiral" comes from the Arabic "Emir of bugh," meaning "Lord of the sea"; "Commodore" comes from the Italian "comandatore"; "mate" is from the Icelandic, and means an equal; and the term "giving quarter" is believed to have originated in the agreement which existed in the old fighting days, that the ransom of a foot-soldier should be one quarter of his pay for one year.

COLOGNE GAZETTE ADMITS GERMAN REPORTS UNTRUE.

Amsterdam, Jan. 6.—Admitting that the reports of the war given to the public in Germany and to neutral nations have not always been proven truthful by later developments, the Cologne Gazette justifies this circumstance by saying:—
"Circumstances often force one to deviate from the path of strict rectitude; to answer lies by lies. This is the only way to answer liars. When our troops have annihilated them, we shall return to our habit of strict frankness."

NO SUSPENSION OF HOSTILITIES.

Berlin, via London, Jan. 7.—The German army authorities have issued a general order prohibiting in future troops in the field from fraternizing with forces of the enemy as they did at several points in the western theatre of the war at Christmas.

AMERICAN PASSPORTS.

London, Jan. 7.—All passports issued by the State Department of Washington will in the future have to be vided by the American Embassy in London if the traveller passes through London. Furthermore, the bearer of American passports, previous to leaving England for the continent, will have to submit their passports to the Consul in London of the country whither they are going for the Consular stamp.

AUSTRALASIA SENDS 25,000 MORE SOLDIERS.

Honolulu, Jan. 5.—The oceanic liner Venture arrived here from Sydney today with reports that nine troop ships, carrying Australasia's second expeditionary force of 25,000 men, had sailed for England between December 14 and 22 and that a third force of 20,000 men was being recruited. It was said that captured German steamers were being used as transports for cavalry horses.

After God had finished making the rattlesnake, the toad and the vampire, he had some awful substance left with which he made a Knocker. A knocker is a two-legged animal with a corkscrew soul, a water-sogged brain, and a combination backbone made of jelly and glue. Where other men have their hearts he carries a tumor of decayed principles. When the knocker comes down the street, honest men turn their backs, the angels weep tears in heaven, and the Devil shuts the gates of hell to keep him out.

ALLIES SUCCESSES.
LONDON, Jan. 9.
The Governor, Newfoundland:
The French Government reports progress at various points. A German redoubt has been carried north of Soissons. There has been a stubborn infantry engagement near Bethune, and important results have been achieved in the region of Thann and Altkirch in German Alsace.
The Russian Government reports increasingly fierce fighting on the northern bank of the Vistula. Kompolung, an important town on the Bukovina, has been occupied (close to the Roumanian frontier).
In the Caucasus much booty has been captured, including the entire artillery of the 9th Ottoman Cavalry Corps.

HARCOURT.

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.
Official, Jan. 9.
North of Soissons we have captured a redoubt and two successive lines of trenches thus reaching the third line. The German offensive, composed of three attacks, failed. In the Argonne a very fierce German attack on Haute Chevauchée at first compelled us to fall back one kilometre, but we counter-attacked and regained our positions. The Official Gazette, to-day, publishes a report handed over to the President of the Council by the Commission instituted under decree 23rd Sept., 1914, with a view of verifying the acts committed by the enemy, in violation of human rights, on certain parts of French territories occupied by the enemy and now fallen in our hands. The Commission was composed of Messrs. Payelle, President Auditors' Court; Molard, Penitentiary Minister; Maringer, Councilor of State; Pallot, Councilor of Cassation Court. This report, rendering an account of the first results obtained by the commissioners during their mission, is a crushing historical document, a formidable and overwhelming accusal. France thus arraigns the German Army, her soldiers and her Chiefs, before the bar of Universal Conscience. The youngest son of Primo Minister Vivanti died at Moselle on 22nd August, his eldest son is serving in the ranks as Sub-Officer.

FRENCH VICTORY IN CAMEROONS

PARIS, via St. Pierre, Jan. 9.
North of Soissons our progress yesterday was maintained. A second German offensive attempt was repulsed. This morning the trenches captured between Perthes, Le Hurlolans and Heigt 200, were spiritedly counter-attacked, but the Germans were completely thrown back, suffering heavy losses. Elsewhere there is nothing to report.
The Minister of the Colonies announces that Colonel Meyer has gained a brilliant victory in the Cameroons, repulsing a fierce German attack against Edea. The enemy suffered heavy losses.
President Poincaré received a week ago a letter from President Wilson,

PARIS, Jan. 10.
The following official statement was issued to-day: From the sea to the Oise there have been artillery duels. Upon the Aisne, in the region of Soissons, the enemy, in spite of many attacks, has not been able to recapture the trenches which they had lost at the end of the day. He again bombarded Soissons. In the country from Rheims to the Argonne our artillery has shelled German trenches very effectively at several

TURKS THREATENING EGYPT.

LONDON, Jan. 10.

Two British subjects have been taken to Damascus in chains because of an effort to escape.

BRITAIN'S REPLY TO U. S. PROTEST.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.
Britain's preliminary reply to the note from the United States Government, requesting an improvement in treatment of American Commerce by the British fleet, was made public here and in London to-day, by mutual agreement between the State Department and the British Foreign Office. The British communication concurs in the view of the United States that commerce between neutral nations should be interfered with only when imperatively necessary. Officials of the Washington Government construe it as conceding that the principles expressed by the American note were just, and upheld by previously accepted usages and international law. The only formal comment made to-night was contained in a brief statement issued by Secretary Bryan, who said: "This answer being preliminary and not being intended as a complete reply, we will postpone comment until the full answer is received. Briefly, the British note while conceding principles of American Government's contentions, points out the difficulties in actual practice, refers to alleged fraudulent practices by shippers and cites statistics showing an increase, rather than a decrease, in certain neutral commerce, in support of Great Britain's suspicions that Germany and Austria have been indirectly obtaining contraband through neutral countries. The note promises, however, that Britain will make redress whenever the action of the British fleet may unintentionally exceed the limits of international law."

"BUNCOMBE"

If Don't Always Pay to Be Skeptical.
When a newspaper writer and proof-reader that work nights can feed himself out of dyspepsia, which most all that class suffer with, it is worth while to know the kind of food used.
This man says:
"Being a newspaper writer and proof reader, also a graduate in medicine as well, though not practicing, makes a combination that would produce a skeptic on the subject if anything would."
"Day after day I read the proof on the Grape-Nuts advertisements with the feeling that they were all "buncombe." All the time I was suffering from dyspepsia from the improper food I was eating at the restaurant.
"One day I saw a package of Grape-Nuts at the restaurant and tried some with cream. The food took my fancy at once. After a few lunches on it at midnight I noted an improvement in my feelings, and was able to work with less fatigue.
"I have used Grape-Nuts as a regular diet since then, and have improved greatly. The old dyspepsia and bad feelings that I thought were necessary adjuncts to night work disappeared, and I am able to do much more and better work with less effort than ever before."
"I was nearly ready to give up and seek health in some other walk in life but thanks to my change in diet I am now all right." "There's a Reason."
Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Written Some Years Ago.

"If Germany to-day in general is unbeloved and is able so easily to become suspected the first and principal reason for this is the provocative activity of the Pan-Germans, their vain glory and their mania for treating other powers with insulting insolence." These few words were not written in the heat of wartime animosity by an anti-German journalist bought, as some Germans-Americans like to insinuate, with English gold. It was written by Herman Riddor, the most influential German editor in the United States, but it was written several years ago.

Leaving the C. L. B. Armoury under the command of Capt. E. S. Ayre, commanding officer of the day unit, the battalion, headed by the C. C. C. band, proceeded down Long's Hill, where the Presbyterians and Methodists broke off, the former to attend St. Andrew's and the latter continued to George Street by way of Theatre Hill and New Gower Street. The R. C. and Church of England sections continued along Queen's Road and Military Road to St. Thomas's, where the Church of England section broke off. The R. C. boys then paraded to the Cathedral where High Mass was sung by Rev. Fr. Sheehan, the preacher being Rev. Fr. Conway. At St. Thomas's the preacher was the Rev. Canon Bolt, at George Street, Rev. N. M. Guy, and at St. Andrew's, Rev. J. S. Sutherland.
After Divine service the different companies met again near the City Hall, and return to the Armoury was made by way of Duckworth Street, King's Road, Military and Harvey Roads. Rev. Fr. Nangle, who was at one time Captain of the College Co. C.C.C., accompanied the R. C. section in uniform. The general appearance and military bearing of the men elicited much favourable comment from thousands of citizens who witnessed the parade.

A Quiet Wedding.

A quiet wedding took place on the 6th inst., when Miss Tess Shaughan and Mr. John Rowsell were united in Holy Matrimony at St. Patrick's Church by the Rev. Father McDermod. After the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride's mother, McFarlane Street, where supper was served. Only the intimate friends of the bride and groom being present. After which the newly married couple drove to their future home Stewart Ave.

New Pantomime Robin Hood.

Saturday night brought the grand pantomime, Santa Claus, to a close after a record run of thirty performances. The Rossleys were the very first to introduce pantomime here; they are also the first performers who could run one performance thirty times without altering a single word, song, dance or costume, and many hundreds of people were turned away Saturday. Robin Hood is the pantomime now in place of Santa Claus. The costumes are all new and beautiful. The songs were written specially, and the entire play has been written by Mrs. Rossley, and is safe to say its all right; there are many novelties, it's bright, sparkling and up to date.

A Naval Funeral.

(Halfax Chronicle of Thursday.)
The funeral of James Nunney, a sailor of H. M. S. Charbydis, who died at the Station Hospital was held on Tuesday. The funeral was with naval honors, the ship's crew being present to a large number. The funeral was from the dockyard to St. John's cemetery and service at the cemetery was by the ship's chaplain. The firing party was from the Charbydis and was accompanied by the ship's bugler. Deceased was 48 years of age and a native of Newfoundland. There were many floral offerings on the casket.

The Kaiser When A Boy.
 Even when a child the Kaiser was a very precocious youth. The late Mr. W. P. Frith, the famous painter, used to tell a story of the Kaiser's childhood. Wilhelm, when a little boy, was staying with the artist, and on one occasion wiped so much color on his face when in the studio that Mr. Frith had to remove it with turpentine. This painful process annoyed the rebellious young prince, and at its conclusion he administered a violent kick to the surprised artist and then flung himself under a table, where he yelled until he was tired.
 While Mr. Frith's method of removing paint from the Kaiser's face was not altogether unlike our process of Dry Cleaning, we are exceedingly grateful that our patrons do not adopt the Emperor's way of showing their appreciation of our good services.
