LADY IRIS' MISTAKE;

Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER XXXIII.

"You will not be pleased to hear it, Iris," he said; "but I will tell you. It is a love story; and, like all true love stories, it is sad as it is sweet. I was quite a young man when I married Guinevere Talbot. I was not at all in love, but I admired her very much. She was very beautiful, rich and accomplished. We were happy in a quiet fashion; I do not remember that one angry word ever passed between us. We lived together for two of three years, sometimes at Chandos, sometimes here. When, in London, she, like you, was one of the queens of society. When we had been married four years, her health became delicate, and the doctors advised me to take her abroad; and we went.

"I had no relatives. The family that had once been large had dwindled away; my aunt and cousins were dead, sisters or brothers I had none. And it was almost the same with Guinevere. She had many distant relatives, but none that were near or dear to her; so that when her illness came no friends hastened to see her, and there was no one to help me to take care of her. Thus there was no obstacle to my keeping my secret when the time for keeping it came.

"We wandered half over Europe, but our headquarters were Nice. There an incident happened which influenced all my life. I have told you that I did not love Guinevere; I need hardly add that I loved no one else. One morning I was going along one of the roads running out of the town, when I saw a young girl walking in front of me. She must have been carrying a purse in her hand, for all at once one fell to the ground, and the money in it rolled into the road. I picked up all the coins I could see; and, when I gave them to her, she looked up at me. Iris, I shall never forget the expression that met my gaze. I can see the sweet fair face now just as it looked then.

"I have been a true and loyal man all my life; while Guinevere lived, no thought or wish of mine ever wronged her; but, Iris, when I saw that young girl's fair face, when her sweet eyes met mine with such wistful pleading, my heart seemed to go from me."

"I am sorry to give you so much trouble," she said. "It is very kind of you to help me; I wonder if I have lost any of my money?"

"I think I have picked it all up," I answered. "Sit down on the bank here, and I will count it for you. How much should there be?"

"A hundred and twenty-five francs," she replied. "I should not care if it were my own."

"Whose is it then?" I asked.

"I am Mrs. Tredegar's nursery governess," she said, "and I was going to pay a bill for her."

"Well, some of the money was missing. I looked about for it for some time, but could not find it. It almost brings tears to my eyes to think how simple and trusting she was. I took some money from my own purse to supply what was wanting; and she was so pleased. She thanked me very prettily, and with such sweet smiles."

"It will be a warning for me never to carry a purse in my hands again," she said.

"Being accustomed to Guinevere's stately grace, the girl's sweet and gentle manner had a wonderful charm for me. When I asked for her name, she told me that it was Isabel Hyde, and that, as she had already said, she was living with Mrs. Tredegar as nursery governess. She told me that she was quite alone in the world, having no living relative or friend. She said that her father had been an artist, but an unsuccessful one—that he had always been poor and struggling.

"I do not think," she told me, in her sweet fearless way, "that he was very clever, for there were times when mamma and I were hungry, and he had nothing to give us."

"She went on to say that he died heart-broken from his struggle with a world that seldom tolerates ill-success, and that her mother, like a sensible woman, went out as house-keeper, and by her industry secured to her daughter a superior education. When the girl grew up, they decided to take a school, and they were to have been so happy; but Heaven willed otherwise. When Isabel was old enough to help her mother, her mother died."

All this time, Lady Iris had been listening in unbroken silence. She shuddered once or twice; but she could not speak.

"When her mother died," continued the earl, "the poor girl was left alone, and Mrs. Tredegar took advantage of it to secure her at a very cheap rate as a nursery governess for her children. I remember giving her my card, and telling her that if the Countess of Caledon could do anything to help her, she would. She thanked me, and then went away. Though I was true as steel to the lady who was my wife, all the brightness of my life departed with Isabel Hyde. Ah, that sweet face—now the memory of it used to come back to me! It was ever before my eyes, I thought of it by night and by day, and I felt that I could have loved Isabel Hyde with the love that comes only once in a life-time.

"I knew where Mrs. Tredegar lived, but I never went near the house. A few weeks later I read in the list of departures, 'Mrs. Tredegar and family', and then I knew that the fair face had vanished, perhaps forever. Soon afterward Guinevere died, and was buried, not at Nice, but in a pretty cemetery near to it, where she had once expressed a wish to be buried, and where her white marble monument is one of the wonders of the place. I was grieved to lose her, for I had been happy with her; and I was always pleased to remember that we had never exchanged one unkind word.

"Four months after that," continued Lord Caledon, "I went to Paris. I was staying at the Hotel Maurice, and on the first morning after my arrival, I took a walk through the gardens of the Tuileries. There I again met Isabel Hyde. Her face flashed when she saw me, and the glad light of welcome came into her eyes.

"I have thought so often of your kindness to me, Lord Caledon," she said.

"I sat down by her side. It was the very madness of love that came over me, Iris. A father can hardly tell his love story to his own child, but I loved her so madly that, if she had asked me for my life, I would willingly have given it up.

"For a week I met her every morning in the palace gardens, and by that time my fate was sealed. I knew that I could not live without her—that, unless she would be my wife, death would be better than life. I asked her to be my wife, and she said she would; but though she loved me very much, she hesitated about marrying me in consequence of the difference in our positions. How can one of England's greatest earls, she would say to me, 'marry a nursery-governess?' But I held myself more honored by the gift of her young love than by my name or birth.

"I had no thought at that time of keeping my marriage a secret. I would have brought her home and have married her publicly if she would have agreed to it. It was pure accident that led to the secrecy. My wife had been dead only four months; and, when Isabel promised to marry me it was arranged that she should wait for one year; but Mrs. Tredegar died suddenly, and the children were sent to school by the aunt in whose charge they were left; so that Isabel was homeless, with only a few pounds in her pocket. I asked her to marry me at once, and proposed that we should travel about for some time and keep our marriage a secret; there would be no failure of respect there to my wife's memory, as no one would know when we had been married.

"In recalling this period of my life, Iris, I think the strangest thing I did was to come home here to be married. I could not bear the idea of being married in a French church, beside which, in the after-years I wanted everything to be quite straightforward and right. I asked Isabel if she would accompany me to Fonten Wood and be married in the old church. I knew that I could so arrange that it would never be known."

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Ready and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and add the granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Rubber stopper, if tastes good, keeps perfectly and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membrane, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dried cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes. Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for 2½ ounces of Pinex with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give immediate relief, or money promptly refunded. Tons of Wild Meat On Hoof.

Tens of thousands of wild caribou began swarming over the hills through the suburbs of Dawson for a radius of 50 miles at the end of the first week in October. The great herd which annually treks through that district was moving northward. Large herds swimming the Yukon interfered with the progress of steamers in the river. The herd was so vast that the hunting by men, women and children, who provided nearly every home with caribou meat for the winter, has made no noticeable effect on it.

IF WINTER COMES

If winter comes, and snow abounds, and there are novelties in slippers, some chaps will utter doleful sounds as they traverse the frozen streets. "We didn't lay in wood or coal before the balmy days were past, and now that arctic tempests roll, our beards are frozen hard and fast. We didn't for the cold prepare, we let things slide, as oft they're said; we've only Palm Beach clothes to wear, as through the drifting snow we skid. We didn't fix the holes and cracks through which the fierce winds enter in, we didn't bank our divers shacks, our spuds are frozen in the bin." If winter comes, the prudent man will cry serenely, where the stands, "Now shriek as loudly as you can, I bitter blasts from arctic lands! My larder's stocked with wholesome slaw, and pies, the kind all men desire, and with my bread, and my saw I whacked up wood to feed the fire." If winter comes we'll see once more how prudence wins o'er heedless sloth; it keeps the lean wolf from the door, sustains our aunts with chicken broth. If winter comes the thriftest chap will say our government's a fake; he has no mush to feed his map, the while his neighbor lives on cake.

Feted By Pupils.

ON OCCASION OF SILVER JUBILEE. The many friends of Miss S. J. Carroll for years, teacher in St. Patrick's Institute, Montreal, will read with pleasure the following account of a very interesting ceremony, in which she was the principal figure, which took place in that city a few days ago. The district is from St. Patrick's Mission, the official organ of St. Patrick's Parish, Montreal, of which Rev. Gerald McShane well known to thousands of visitors to Montreal, is the regular and idolized Rector.

TEACHER HONOURED.

"On Thursday evening at the Orphanage Miss S. J. Carroll was feted by the members of the household and a score of the now grown-up children who were formerly her pupils. The occasion was the observance of Miss Carroll's twenty-fifth year's connection with the institution, her association with the institution as a teacher of the little folks dating back to the time of the late Father Quilvan. A jolly playlet by the seniors, some choruses and some cutely-voiced and appropriate verses were contributed to the programme. On behalf of everybody concerned, Father Reid presented an address to the almost confused jubilarian whose services, not in the class-room alone, but in a number of capacities entitled her to the quiet festivity of a silver jubilee. Tangible tokens of the affection in which Miss Carroll is held took the form of a wrist watch, a modest cheque and several other little suitable gifts. A few friends were present as well as the Pastor who joined with the Chaplain in congratulating and in extolling the worthiness of the happy heroine of the occasion."

British Empire Exhibition.

Present arrangements provide that the British Empire Exhibition shall be held during the months of April to November in 1924, at Wembley Park, in the northwestern district of London, England. The general scheme for this exhibition, which was originally put forward by the late Lord Strathcona in 1913, and held over owing to the war, was definitely launched in June 1920, with the Prince of Wales as chairman. The date was first set for 1923, but later it was changed to 1924.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.
Government Fears Another Demonstration.

AFTERMATH OF EARTHQUAKE.
SANTAGO, Nov. 15.—Each hour brings further details of the great disaster to Chile by the recent earthquake and tidal waves, and adds to the list of the dead and the record of damage. Advice from Callao, Province of Atacama, says the total dead recovered so far numbers fifteen hundred, while the adjoining town of Freirina is in complete ruins. But the casualties are not known. An official compilation by the Ministry of Interior gave the number of dead in six towns as 586, and the injured 2,410. This does not take into account smaller places within the radius of the earthquake. Twelve hundred miles of coastline felt, in varying degrees, the effects of great tidal waves, and for a large proportion of this distance seaports, towns and villages were inundated. Thousands of families are wandering about the countryside, with little clothing and few supplies. Again, to-day, severe earth tremors shook the Province of Coquimbo and other places.

TRAGEDY AT BIRD ROCK.
CHARLOTTETOWN, Nov. 15.—Five keepers of the Bird Rock Light, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, were taken on by the Customs' cruiser Margaret, suffering from poisoning resulting from a meal, but less acute. Acting light housekeeper, Albert Bourke, died en route here. Two others, Phileas Richard and Hector Langford are in hospital doing fairly. Two women on the wife of Albert Bourke and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Dorothy Turbide, recovered and returned to the Magdalenes with the body of Bourke.

STEAMER ABANDONED.
HALIFAX, Nov. 15.—The Italian steamer Monte Grappa, which has been in trouble in mid-atlantic, one thousand miles from Halifax, with the White Star liner Pittsburg standing by, was abandoned yesterday, according to a wireless message from Cape Race to C. H. Harvey, agent Marine and Fisheries Department here. The message was timed 1.34 yesterday afternoon. It gave no details, but mentioned that the crew were all on the Pittsburg, and it is presumed that the Monte Grappa crew are aboard the White Star liner. The Monte Grappa was bound from Montreal to Venice. Her position when abandoned was 43.56 north, 39.57 west.

Splendid Entertainment At St. Michael's.
HIS LORDSHIP THE BISHOP SPEAKS.

A very pleasant time was held at St. Michael's Lecture Hall last night when the City Guild gave a profitable and entertaining in aid of the new Rectory. The hall was well filled with an appreciative audience and an excellent programme of songs, recitations and other items was rendered. Mr. H. Willard, the ventriloquist, was particularly amusing. The C. L. B. orchestra, through the kindness of Captain Morris, rendered several delightful selections. Among the patrons present were His Lordship the Bishop, Rev. Canon Field and Rev. Canon Jeeves. During the evening the Bishop spoke some encouraging words to the Guild and expressed his satisfaction at the progress being made at St. Michael's. Before the splendid evening's entertainment came to a close the Ladies' Auxiliary served tea and cakes, after which the National Anthem was sung lustily by all, the audience dispersing at 11 p.m.

The Easiest Way.

Do you know the easiest way to multiply by 8? If you are wise you will not trouble to do it in the ordinary way, but you will try this. First put a nought behind the row of figures you want to multiply, then under these write the row just as it was at first, and when you have subtracted this you will have the number you wanted. Suppose you want to multiply 47,835 by 8, you write 478,350, and under it 47,835. Subtract, and the result is 430,515. The reason, for this is that 9 is just one less than 10, and by putting a nought behind any figures we are really multiplying them by 10.

To multiply by any number of nines we need only put as many noughts as there are nines, and then subtract the original number.

Huge Oil Waste.
EDMONTON, Alberta.—Enough crude oil from the well at Fort Norman, at the confluence of the Mackenzie and Bear rivers, in the Northwest Territories, has already run to waste to supply the entire demands of the north country for a whole year. Government officials are trying to arrange tanks, sunk in the ground, to retain the oil that will otherwise be lost between the freezing of the river surface this season and the opening of navigation next year.

If this can be arranged and sufficient crude oil will be stored to maintain all river steamers and small power-driven craft for next year. Travellers returning from the north state that the surface of the Mackenzie river carries a film of oil for many miles down stream, and that rocks along the shore are slimy with oil that is washed up by the wind, and by the passage of the larger river craft.

The well is now down 1,000 feet, and the oil is stated to be 30 per cent. petrol. River craft have been equipped to burn the crude oil for the past two seasons, and only a little wood has been out this year for fuel for ships' boilers.

Merchant Marine
PROPOSAL OF U.S. HITS SEA FREEDOM.

Legislation to benefit the merchant marine of the United States in the shape of a subsidy, now under consideration, is going to come in for some strong British opposition, if it goes through as at present contemplated. The fact that the measure contemplates assistance to the U.S. shipping lines is not the objectionable feature, but the fact that these proposals extend to the point of discrimination against British and other foreign shipping in U.S. ports is what is arousing the antagonism. This fact was recently brought out by Sir Frederick W. Lewis in addressing the 31st annual meeting of Furness, Withy & Co. He made it quite plain that it was not the intention or the purpose to criticise the U. S. for establishing a merchant marine, stating that he appreciated to the full the circumstances under which the United States became possessed of its present mercantile fleet, and because of these circumstances had watched with sympathetic interest the difficulties with which they are confronted in their endeavors to turn a war-time product into a commercial asset instead of the liability it now is. But just as the United States having acquired its vessels during the war, cannot be expected to scrap them at the end of the war, so we, having by the work of generations built up a large mercantile marine before the war, cannot be expected to give up and sacrifice our trades after the conflict is over. After all, the existence of our pre-war mercantile marine was one of the greatest factors in securing victory for the Allies.

The U.S. proposed to grant preferential railway rates for cargoes carried on national vessels. It is proposed to grant rebates on income-tax to shippers who send their freight by American vessels. It is proposed that a fixed percentage of emigrants brought into the country shall only be admitted by American steamers. It is proposed to double the tonnage dues, and whilst the increased revenue so derived is to be credited to the fund from which the subsidy is to be paid, so that in effect foreign vessels are to be made to contribute towards the subsidy payment by which it is hoped to build the United States marine.

It is proposed to include the Philippine Islands in the coasting trade, although it is a historical and economical fact that two-thirds of the industries of the Philippines were created with British capital prior to being taken over by the United States. British shipping has all along been prepared to welcome the American Merchant Marine, and to proceed along lines of friendly co-operation and friendly rivalry, but that spirit must be reciprocated if it is to be enduring.

Mistakes in Old Bibles.

Some very quaint errors appear in old versions of the Bible. The Bug Bible, published in 1551, makes the Psalmist say, "Thou shalt not be afraid of any bug (terror) by night." Bug is the old English form of the word bogy, in the Essex Bible, Isaiah says, "They shall not drink beer with a song." As wine was little used in England in his time, the translator was probably trying to imply a word that every one of his readers would understand. More curious is the Treacle Bible, in which Jeremiah's question, "Is there no balm in Gilead?" becomes "Is there no treacle?" The Vinegar Bible obtained its name by printing in the heading of St. Luke, chapter XX., "The parable of the vinegar." Instead of vineyard.

The best known of all curious Bibles is the Breches Bible, in which the description of the disillusionment of Adam and Eve reads: "And they sewed fig leaves together and made themselves breeches."

Old Flour Makes Best Bread.

Flour (according to scientists) improves with age, the older flour producing a larger and finer loaf. Freshly milled flours do not produce the best of which they are capable. A great advance was made in the milling art by the introduction of a method for treating flour in the mill whereby such freshly milled flour at once took on the properties of a properly aged flour, so that the flour could then go to the consumer in condition to render at once its highest baking value. This state of affairs is brought about in flour by treating it with chlorine, and the general result is known as "maturing"—i.e., the general effect of "maturing" flour is that which nature produces in aging flour—a whitening effect, together with greatly improved baking qualities. The yellow coloring matter of flour is carotin, which is also what gives carrots their color. Chlorine oxidizes the carotin, which then loses its color.

Personal.

Mr. John Gunn, caretaker of St. Andrew's Club Rooms, entered the General Hospital for treatment on Monday. His friends have every confidence that under Dr. Keegan's care he will soon recover.

The Sad Truth About Fox Farming.

The results of fox farming operations on Prince Edward Island continue to be disappointing. The foxes who a few years ago were led to believe that a new method of getting rich quickly had been discovered. The annual report of the R. J. McNeill Black and Silver Fox Company at Tyne Valley, P.E.I., shows that during the last year only 65 pups were raised, and none of these were sold alive. Besides being considerably behind financially it was impossible for a dividend to be paid this fall. The 1921 anticipated dividend was cancelled on account of the company having the misfortune to lose by disease or in some way 26 young pups and four old breeding foxes.

The annual statement shows receipts for the year of only $4,359 of which a balance of $752 is shown. The company has stock outstanding of $278,490 and of the total assets of $390,785, land, buildings, fences and various farm animals and equipment represent $279,380.—Financial Post.

DRIED FISH.
If you are looking for cheerfulness these days, do not try to find it in the establishment of a dried fish exporter, for if you do, take our word for it, you will be disappointed. In visiting along the waterfront for about 30 years there have only been a few times when we have found as much cheer in the atmosphere as there is today. The last two months have brought an almost continuous string of accidents of a kind calculated to break an exporter's heart. For instance, the exchange situation with Brazil, which nobody seems to quite understand. Although the country's sports today are in excess of her sports yet steadily the miltrens continue to drop. Then there is the Italian situation—a civil revolution, followed by a change of Government, and in consequence a complete upset temporarily of Italian business. It is not more than a month ago that Italy was making inquiries here for supplies, but to-day she is sending cables cancelling orders right and left. To further add to the troubles of the local situation, competition for trade has broken out in a new spot. France has invaded our West India market, and is offering fish at Cuba at very low prices. Probably she is driven to do this by shrinkage of her business in Mediterranean markets. At any rate, whatever the cause, she is now trying to get business on our ground, and just at the time when we need the trade for ourselves. Porto Rico, which was very bad when we wrote our last report, is still in the same condition, and so far as one can see, without much hope for improving in the near future. Newfoundland has been endeavoring to find a market in Halifax, and for a time did stand a poor chance indeed of collecting what is owed them. However, the darkest hour they say is just before the dawn, so it may be that daylight will shortly be breaking. What has happened in Italy, namely, a more or less peaceful revolution, may prove a good thing for the fish trade. Italy during the past two years has been somewhat in the hands of communists and the socialists, and also some others who were even worse than that. The new Government has pledged itself as anti-Bolshevik in the extreme, and also states that it hopes by hard work and honest toil to redeem the country from its financial distress. This is a very fine ambition which if practiced may soon begin to bear fruit, not only in domestic business, but also in connection with foreign trade as well. It may be that while for the next two or three months the export demand for dried fish in Europe will be bad, after that there will come an improvement sufficient to clean up the stocks in this country before the opening of the new season next year.

Evading the Tariff.

The Advocate now has the duty rate down to 11% to fishermen and the only mention, regarding articles under the per centage is given out as fisheries supplies. Well! Well! No sugar or clothes, boots or shoes, utensils or crockery or any needed article is theirs, only the bit of supplies needed to carry on three months' fishery. Perhaps if more examination is made by the Advocate they will find, according to their unbiased eyesight, that the fishermen will not pay any duty at all! First, in their clamour for a new Reform, they said everything imaginable about the Government then in power regarding the high taxation, and we all know that the tariff rates were never as high as to-day despite what the Advocate might say. The Advocate seems to fear and tremble and all the bluff possible is put up to cover up real facts. However, the people can judge as to the real conditions that exist at present, and no matter what any newspaper may or may not say, there is ample proof of the short coming of this Government. If only 11 per cent is the duty on the fishery supplies it is well, but what is that compared to the duty on the necessities of life needed for every family man in this country who must have many articles which carry an actual duty of 45 per cent?—Twillingate Sun.

Sardine a Young Pilchard.

The sardine is now held to be not a full-grown fish, and the name sardine is in the trade applied to the young of the pilchard. The Norwegian bristling of the same family, but of a different species, is the same fish as the English sprat, with the variations brought up on environment. The sprat has many points in common with the young herring and the young pilchard. The sprat is not a sardine. It possesses a rough and somewhat spiny development along the lower or ventral edge, the pilchard and the herring being comparatively smooth. In the can, dressed and preserved in oil, the distinction between young pilchards and young herrings is not conspicuous. In the pilchards the size of the scales is relatively larger. While the industry in this popular food began in France, the word "sardine" is derived from the Island of Sardinia, and is used in modified form throughout most European countries. "Sardine" was the first Latin name to be used among Anglo-Saxons for the herring.

The Sport of Doers

A prominent physician recently probed into the question why men smoke. He turned a deaf ear to glib prejudices and to accepted but half-thoughtout notions. He based his conclusions upon a careful study of the use of tobacco by our men during the war. He diagnosed smoking as being clearly a diversion, which helped rather than interfered with a man's performance of duty. Smoking is not a vicious practice but a happy sport. If it were not, this expert declares, men would long ago have begun taking "My Lady Nicotine" in the form of pills or tablets. That's straight to the point. A man lights up his pipe for a little relaxation, not to interfere with but to improve his work. He feels in need of a moment's let-up which will add to his power. Back he throws himself in the most comfortable position in the old chair; he scratches his match slowly, carefully, not nervously; he lights up the fragrant weed in the old bowl not in haste but lingeringly; he watches as the smoke curls away from his lips with the same peculiar happiness with which he watched Babe Ruth knock a home run, and then— "What was that I had to do?" he asks himself. He plans how best to do it. A good smoke—a good sport. A good sport—a good doer, when things have to be done. Smoking is the sport of doers. Of course, a good smoke depends greatly upon having just the right tobacco. We recommend Edgeworth to you as a tobacco that has pleased many but not all smokers. It may please you beyond words, it may not. We would be very glad to have you pass judgment upon it. Edgeworth Plug Slice comes in fat cakes, cut into thin, moist slices. One slice rubbed between the hands fills the average pipe. Edgeworth Ready-Rubber is simply the same tobacco, rubber up, ready to go into your pipe. You're likely to notice how nicely Edgeworth packs. That means that it burns evenly and freely. Edgeworth is sold in various sizes to meet the requirements of many different customers. Both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Edgeworth Ready-Rubber are put up in pocket-size packages, in attractive tin humidors, and glass jars and in various quantities in between those sizes. Sold everywhere. nov. 15.

To Keep Hay From Heating.

The danger from spontaneous combustion in mows and stacks may be lessened by the use of a box-like ventilator, a skelton tube 12 to 15 inches square and of any length desired, depending upon the size of the mow or stack. The corners are 2 by 4's and the cross pieces 1 by 2's placed close enough together to keep the hay from falling through and blocking the air passage. Diagonal braces are placed in the box at intervals to keep it from collapsing under the weight of the hay. These ventilators are usually placed across the mow at intervals of 7 or 8 feet.

When a mow or stack has become badly heated there is a strong temptation to go in and stir up the hay, but often this is the worst thing that can be done. Admitting air to the hot centre of fermentation may be just the thing needed to start a fire. If air does not get in a part of the hay may be charred without starting a fire; gradually the mow cools and the only loss is the hay that has been carbonized. However, in the early stages when the hay is heating it is sometimes advisable to move hay from one mow to another or to restock. But be sure it is not too hot. Slow combustion inside the mow can be detected by a peculiar sooty odor or by smoke that is irritating to the eyes.—U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The Fishermen's Meeting.

Monday night's vast meeting of the fishermen of the North, and hundreds of their co-tollers from many of the neighboring districts, was reported fairly accurately in all three daily papers yesterday. The organ of the Government, however, deemed the occasion a favorable one to which to give a political twist in its own behalf and against all those who did not agree with turning the meeting into a partisan demonstration. Had that occurred it is beyond debate that a number of uncomplimentary references would have been made concerning the present administration and the gentlemen who comprise it. The fishermen have now experienced how tender and motherly is the attitude of the Advocate toward them. They have also witnessed the solitude of Hon. W. F. Coaker, who obviously believes that "he who runs away, may live to run another day." Hence his hurried departure after having been but a few hours in the city last Friday. All the malice, all the spleen that could be conceived was directed by the Duckworth Street evening paper against the fishermen and against the object of their meeting. These men showed that it was possible to hold a demonstration without giving it a political tinge, but it has been left to the Advocate to openly insult and flout these men and their advisers. Mr. Coaker is held up to the public daily as the one man to admire, the one man upon whom to rely, the only hope of the fishermen and incidentally of the whole Colony. Yet when the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is needed by the very people who elected him, he cannot be found. He—a four thousand dollar a year department head—is at Port Union directing fish shipments and supervising the loading of a steamer for market. With Mr. Coaker's activities as head of a commercial concern the people may have no quarrel, but as a Minister of the Crown, holding perhaps the most important portfolio in the Government, it is part, at least, of his duties to attend at his office in the city some times in order that those who have to discuss matters with him may have an opportunity of approaching the presence. Well, the fishermen have now read, marked, learned and inwardly digested all the literary pabulum dished up to them through the columns of the Advocate. They know now that the policy of that paper is not their policy, hence they no longer regard it as being authorized—if it ever was, excepting through Councils—to speak in their behalf. That they recognize Mr. Coaker's defection is easily discernible in the exchange of messages between Capt. Jesse Winsor, Chairman of the United Fishermen's Committee, and the President of the F.P.U. The latter is arrogant and offensive in his reply, to a respectful protest of his conduct in absenting himself from his official duties. That the fishermen will no longer tolerate despotism and autocracy in any shape or form, from any Minister of the Crown is plainly apparent from the final message telegraphed Mr. Coaker yesterday. The men whose best interests in life are at stake are not in the mood to accept meekly the dictation of either the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, the President of the F.P.U., or even that exponent of the doctrine of "Suam Cuique," the Advocate. The breach is ever widening and ere long the collapse of one time influence and vaunted prestige must come. The fishermen know their real friends to-day, and will stand by those who are giving of the best that is in them—in a supreme effort to ameliorate local conditions. That is as it should be.

Destitute Fishermen Sentenced to Prison.

ONE MONTHS GAOL EACH FOR MEN WHO FORCIBLY TOOK FLOUR TO KEEP FAMILIES FROM STARVING. From Rose Blanche comes the intelligence that a few days ago, three men with families were each sentenced to one month imprisonment by the Magistrate of Chanaan for forcibly entering stores at Rose Blanche and commandeering a quantity of flour. The men broke the law to the extent of their guilt, through a desire to prevent their wives and children from starving to death. The whole particulars of the circumstances are not at hand, but surely this was a case wherein justice should have been tempered with mercy. The commission of the act, in itself, should have been ample punishment, if the grave nature of the offence had been explained to the men who were driven to desperation, apparently, by their aggravated domestic condition. We understand that the men first informed the local Justice of the Peace, who is also the Relieving Officer of their intention, and after taking the flour reported doing so. A great deal of indignation exists in Rose Blanche not alone over the severity of the sentence of the Court, but because of some other incidents in connection with the case. If any blame can be attributed to these—happily sporadic—breaks of the foregoing nature on the West Coast, it can only be laid to the imposition and operation of the infamous Fish Regulations of 1919-20.

No Decision Arrived at.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S SHARE IN EXHIBITION NOT KNOWN—WAITING TILL THE PREMIER COMES BACK. The members of the British Empire Exhibition Delegation, met the Executive yesterday afternoon. For upwards of two hours they explained the aims of the exhibition, outlined the layout of the Park where the exhibition is to be held, and discussed the plans. The Executive intimated that they were not in a position to give any decision as to Newfoundland's participation, but would await Sir Richard Squires' arrival from England, before making any definite announcement. It was further intimated that the Prime Minister would be home from England by the end of the month when the whole matter will be decided. The decision of the conference will be made known by cable. The delegates are leaving by tomorrow's express en route to Ottawa. To clean smoked micas rub it with a cut raw potato dipped into cold water. Dry with a soft cloth. Cranberry sherbet is ideal to serve with roast fowl. Little lemon juice is required in flavoring it. A salad of lettuce or Romaine with French dressing and tart grape jelly go well with broiled squabs.

Magistrate's Court.

A young girl recently released from the penitentiary, was charged with being a loose and disorderly person. Her step-mother, who was in court, promised to look after her in future. A young man was charged with assault and beating his sweetheart. He had been summoned for the assault but failed to appear. Plaintiff informed the police of his whereabouts and had him immediately arrested. He was remanded until tomorrow. A resident of Freshwater was charged with maliciously damaging a fence, owned by a resident of the same settlement. The complainant withdrew the charge, on promise that the defendant would make good the amount. The same defendant was charged with being drunk in charge of a horse on a similar occasion. He was fined $150.00, but there was no charge brought against him to-day. He was freed.

Government Refuses Fishermen's Request.

Will not Consider Matter of Finance—Official Correspondence Needs No Comment.

Dept. of the Colonial Secretary, St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 14, '22. Sir, The Executive Council has had under consideration the Petition dated 11th inst. of the fishermen of Bonavista District, presented by you yesterday, asking for the intervention of the Government in an arrangement for financing a scheme for the disposal of fish now held by them. As this is a matter of an entirely commercial character, and quite outside the ordinary sphere of governmental action, and is, moreover, altogether of a sectional nature, I am to say that the Government regret that they are unable to accede to the requests contained in the said Petition. I have the honour to be, Sir, Your obedient servant, (Sgd.) ARTHUR MEWS, Deputy Colonial Secretary. Capt. Jesse Winsor, Chairman. CAPT. WINSOR'S REPLY. St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 14, 1922. Arthur Mews, Esq., Deputy Colonial Secretary, City. Sir, I am in receipt of your letter of this date, conveying the refusal of the Government to assist in financing a scheme for the disposal of fish. In reply, Sir, I beg to point out, that it is a misrepresentation of our application to refer to it as if made on behalf of the fishermen of Bonavista Bay only. It was made on behalf of all fishermen in the Colony with fish for sale. This was particularly pointed out in reply to the Hon. Dr. Campbell, at the interview of our Committee with the Government. The matter is, it is true, "quite outside the ordinary sphere of governmental action," as that sphere was generally understood before the Great War, but so have been the Government's excursions into pulp cutting, into salt and fish buying, and into the construction of various unprofitable public works. It is true, also, that the scheme is "entirely of a commercial nature," but it has not been unusual here to guarantee commercial schemes, such as dry docks, marine slips, and various more or less kite flying promotions, and there would be very much more solid justification for complying with our proposal than for much the Government has done or plans to do. In 1920, the present Government, without any mandate from the people, not even so much as our memorial in this case would constitute, induced the Legislature to enact The Codfish Exportation Act, and itself made the Fishery Rules and Regulations, and surely these dealt with a matter "entirely of a commercial nature, and quite outside the ordinary sphere of governmental action." Repentance has come, if at all, after great disaster. The Government has recently procured, it is jubilantly claimed, a British guarantee for "a purely commercial scheme, outside the ordinary sphere of governmental action," and it is said that the Government will propose to the Legislature to give a guarantee of the same scheme for an enormous amount. Many reasons for justifying the guarantee we have asked could be given which would not justify the proposed Humber guarantee, and we shall see, Sir, whether the gentlemen responsible for the refusal, conveyed by you, continue true to the high noble principles of objection you enunciate for them. At present it appears to us, Sir, as if the Government, to justify a refusal to us, were simply expressing principles they have never respected in practice, and which are peculiarly inapplicable and unjustifiable under existing circumstances. "We cry for bread, and they give us a stone." I have the honour to be, Sir, Your obedient servant, (Sgd.) ARTHUR MEWS, Deputy Colonial Secretary. A. B. Morine, Esq., K.C., City.

WILL NOT REMIT EXPORT TAX.

Dept. of the Colonial Secretary, St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 14, '22. Sir, In reply to your 'phone message to me this afternoon, respecting the remission of the Export Tax on Fish, I beg to say that, having referred the matter to the Executive Government, I am directed to inform that they regret they are unable to see their way to grant such remission. I have the honour to be, Sir, Your obedient servant, (Sgd.) ARTHUR MEWS, Deputy Colonial Secretary. A. B. Morine, Esq., K.C., City.

S.S. Monte Grappa Abandoned.

CREW TAKEN ABOARD S.S. FITZ-BUDGH. A message was received by Messrs. Bowring Bros., Ltd., Lloyd's agents, this morning, stating that the S.S. Monte Grappa which sent out signals of distress yesterday has been abandoned at sea, the crew having been taken aboard the S.S. Pittburgh, a White Star liner, which ship responded to the call yesterday. The Monte Grappa was bound from Montreal to Venice, and met her fate one thousand miles from Halifax, her position given was latitude 49° 58' north, longitude 59° 57' west. The ship was a steel screw vessel, seven thousand four hundred tons gross, 4,623 net, 464 ft. long, 67 ft. wide, and 22 feet in depth. The S.S. Pittburgh has proceeded on her way to Bremen.

Schooner Ashore at Duck Island.

MATTIE A. HECKMAN LIKELY FATAL LOSS. A message has been received by the Deputy Minister of Customs from the Sub Collector at Exploits, stating that the scho. Hattie A. Heckman, owned by the Union Trading Company, went ashore at Duck's Island, Exploits. The vessel had a part load of codfish for the Trading Company at Port Union, and it is expected that she will become a total loss.

Stranded at Deer Lake.

MEN REQUEST TO BE SENT HOME. Messages have been received in the city stating that a large number of men, without food or sufficient clothing, are stranded at Deer Lake. The men, it appears, arrived there from various settlements in search of work. All the help needed had been engaged and consequently the batch was left stranded. Appeals have been sent to the Government to forward them to their homes. Grand Variety Concert to-night at Grenfell Hall, Seaman's Institute. See the Mystery Man, the greatest wonder seen in St. John's. Burke and Wiseman will keep you smiling in "Casey taking the Census." Songs, Dances, Moving Pictures, etc. Admission 50c, 30c, and 20c. Cooperation Requested.

TRADE ASKED TO HELP. The following communication has been received by the Board of Trade from the United Fishermen's Committee:— St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 14th, 1922. A. E. Hickman, Esq., President Board of Trade, City. Dear Mr. Hickman, I am directed by the Executive Committee of the United Fishermen's Trade to ask if a meeting of the Board of Trade could be held to adopt a resolution against the present excessive rate of public expenditure, and for a decided reduction of taxation. At meetings of the fishermen's resolutions, which you have doubtless notified in the public press, have been passed to this effect. The fishermen feel that they would like united action with those who specially represent the trade of the country, and to whose interest it is so much as the interest of the fishermen that the burden upon all should be decreased. It is intended to call a mass meeting of citizens during this week, and the Committee would like that before that meeting the Board of Trade should have passed some such resolution, and that the Board of Trade should be represented on the platform at the public meeting, so as to show unanimity of sentiment on the point between the merchants and fishermen. Unless unanimity is shown, reform can hardly be expected, and without reform the whole country must suffer. It is time to speak out. Asking the favor of a prompt reply, I am, Yours truly, JESSE WINSOR, Chairman.

Public Meeting of Fishermen, C.L.B. Armoury to-night.

Fishermen Parade to Assemble Multitude. At 8:30 o'clock this afternoon a parade of some five hundred fishermen, headed by the Red Ensign, and led by Capt. Jesse Winsor, passed down Water Street, on a route march through the city, for the purpose of assembling all who sympathize with their reasonable requests to the Government, all of which have been refused, and also to make arrangements for the big meeting to be held in the C.L.B. Armoury to-night. There is more determination and unanimity of purpose behind this movement than the crass stupidity of Government Ministers conceive.

Herring Oil and Fertilizer.

A NEW PROCESS INTRODUCED. Samples of herring oil and fertilizer, manufactured by Mr. F. Howlett of Petty Harbor, under a process patented by him were shown a telegram received by Mr. Howlett stating that his products can be placed on the market cheaply. The fertilizer is well dried and should keep well for export. Mr. Davies, who has been analysed by Prof. Davies, shows that of Free Fatty acids in terms of oleic acid it contains 1.25%. This, says Professor Davies in a foot note to the Analysis Report, is a "good grade of herring oil." It is Mr. Howlett's intention to utilize the large quantities of herring which annually go to waste at the packing centers in his new process. In this connection it is worthy of note that about 16,000 barrels were thrown away at Bay of Islands last year, and messages received during the past few days indicate that there will be a recurrence of this waste again, as the buyers are only taking large and medium fish, and the smaller fish to throw away the matter or small.

ON TENNIS AND REPORTEE.

The ability to make clever repartee is to me the ninth wonder of the world. I suppose we always most wonder at and admire the things we have the least skill at doing.

I am sure one of those people who wake up in the middle of the night and think of some awfully clever answer to something that was said that afternoon. My cousin says he is going to write a book sometime so that he may recreate situations of this sort and use the clever answer that he thinks of in the middle of the night. I imagine a good many of us could contribute repartee for such a book.

A Verbal Tennis Match.
But even if I am that kind of a snob, I love to hear clever people sending bits of clever repartee back and forth.

Just as I love to watch a good tennis match.

One feels swept along and uplifted by the mental agility in one case and the physical agility in the other.

And recently I have had my attention called to another similarity between tennis and repartee.

I was complimenting a man who always seems to have some witty remark ready for any verbal thrust made at him. "I wish I could think of something like a flash the way you do."

Take Your Time.
He disclaimed the compliment, of course, as we always feel obliged to do on such occasions. But then he added:

"If you'll notice, though, you'll see it isn't like a flash that I think of things. You don't have to, you know. That's a mistake people make. They are in such a hurry to say something that they say anything that pops into their heads. The thing to do is to take a few seconds to sort out your thoughts. You're much more apt to think of something worth saying if you do."

After that I watched him and noticed that he didn't answer in a hurry and that his answer lost some of its effect by the few seconds during which his audience waited for it.

Controlled Motives.
It's the same theory of controlled motion that makes the better tennis player walk easily toward a ball and hit it calmly and without undue hurry whereas the beginner would have dashed the same ball and made a wild hit at it.

It is a great thing to get this habit of control, mental and physical. Haste makes waste is a proverb, founded on the lack of this habit. The good tennis player can hurry when he needs to because he saves his strength by not hurrying when he doesn't need to, and because he has his motion under better control than the beginner who rushes around.

There really isn't half the need for hurrying you think there is in tennis or repartee or in innumerable other matters.

Not Quite Ignorant.

"Do you know anything about palmistry, George?" she asked.

"Oh, not much!" he answered with an air of false modesty. "Not a great deal, although I had an experience last night which might be considered a remarkable example of the art you mention."

"I happened to glance at the hand of a friend of mine, and I immediately predicted that he would soon become the possessor of a considerable sum of money; and, sure enough, before he left the room he had a nice little sum of money handed to him."

"And you told that just from his hand?" she said in surprise.

"Yes," he replied. "You see, he had four aces in it."

Increasing the Milk Flow

HOW DUTCH FARMER DOES IT.

Aside from liberal feeding, good care, and continued selection of the highest producing cows, the Danish and Dutch farmers, according to L. Digkstra in Hoard's Dairyman, have submitted their herds to many experiments which might lead to a higher milk production. Instead of milking the cows twice a day, at 4 o'clock in the morning and 4 o'clock in the evening, many farmers have tried and some still follow the method of milking all cows three times a day. The results did not weigh up against the extra labor, time, etc., in such a degree that a general application of it could be recommended. The result is that the twice a day milking method carried its point.

Frequent milking proved to be in another instance successful. It was observed the cows and heifers, of which a good milk production could be expected after freshening but that did not answer the expectation, could be considerably pushed up in the milking capacity by milking them up to eight times a day. To cite here a couple of examples: A heifer was producing, about three weeks after freshening, only 22 pounds of milk daily. Then she was milked eight times a day with the result that after the first week the daily milk production went up to 36 pounds and after another week even to 43 pounds. Then the twice a day milking method was again followed, with favorable results, as she kept on giving this amount for a long time.

Another example is that of a 4-year-old cow that, the 14 days after freshening, was producing only 32 pounds of milk daily. She was then milked six times a day during three weeks with the final result that daily milk production was brought to 56 pounds, which amount she kept on giving for a long period under twice a day milking. At present this method is followed on many a farm, but the main trouble is that it takes "too much time" and time is valuable.

Pickled Fish.

The demoralization of the herring market seems now to be completed. Prices are down to less than fishermen's cost and yet the demand is almost all. East coast Newfoundland herring are netting shippers about $4.50 per barrel. The demand for Spring mackerel is also poor, although the price is $6.50 per vessel. The total quantity of fat mackerel taken this season in Cape Breton and the Magdalen Islands is said to be 6,000 barrels. Cape Breton packers sold at $30 per barrel f.o.b. home ports; the Magdalen catch was bought by American parties at from $20 to $25. The market is now cleaned up.

Life Stories

In Coats of

People who are destined to be the founders of families—that is, families that bear arms, and for whom arms have to be devised by the College—will find many of the "manufactured" arms in the arms and baronetage.

One of the most interesting is the coat of arms of the Strathcona, which shows a canoe rowing towards the North West of Canada, and a nail, an allusion to Lord Strathcona having driven home the completion of the Pacific Railway.

His crest was a beaver maple tree, and the supporter of Strathcona's Herald side and on the other a navy on a railway sleeper was raised, illustrating the dramatic last spike of the C.P.R. in 1885. Lord Atholstan shows his relation with Scotland and Canada, thistles and maple leaves, moose and a beaver for Lord Morris's great coat of arms. Newfoundland is shown in his coat of arms, swimming below a caribou and a caribou on either side.

In many coats of arms the bearers tell their own tale. Lordborne, descended from a master, shows us Valerian and hammer; and Lord Astor, son of Mr. Cubitt, the builder, stonemason and a carpenter, his arms.

Lord Cunliffe, a former member of the Bank of England, selected the gate porters at the Lord Ashfield, head of the ground Electric Railway, and the other with pliers, Lordfordham, the King's private man-at-arms in full armor. Askwith, the great industrial oscillator, has on each side the olive branch of peace in the arms of a father to his sons in Lord Foster, the Governor of Australia. Of his two sons, one was killed early in the war, the younger died from the wounds after it was over.

When he was made a peer, Lord Foster selected to uphold the figures of officers in his arms—the King's Royal Rifle and the Royal Scots Greys.

Approves Fishermen's Stand.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—After a careful perusal of your paper re the movement of the fishermen have in hand just now, I have read with interest the many remarks my brother fishermen made on Monday night. I hear the delegates had called on the Government to get the export tax taken off fish, which would mean an additional 25c per qt. on the fish now in the schooner in St. John's. Now, Mr. Editor, I will not be surprised if this thing goes much farther, to see someone put in the pen for catching fish. I came very near it. I brought home 587 qts. for 6 men, myself included: nearly 100 qts. a man for each. Out of that my crew made $78, so you see I came very near it. I put the schooner on the mud, and said good-bye to floating fishery. I think, Sir, under present circumstances that during the coming year there will be a good many more follow suit, according to Capt. Mark Brazg's statement when he said he would not own the gaff-topsail on the main-topmast. There is great praise due every man on the Committee, not forgetting Capt. Peter Roberts, who said if it is too late to go North in schooner, we will take the Government boats and go in them. Yes, Capt. Peter, you will be able to say boys we are into our own at last. Well, Mr. Editor, to see the way the hon. and siver is treated, you cannot blame anyone for going out of the country. On the contrary you must encourage them. If our young men keep pouring out of the country in such vast numbers we will only have the skimmed milk left. I assure you, Mr. Editor, to prosecute the Seal and Cod fisheries you want good men, faithful men, men in every sense of the word. And if we don't get some good men to handle the state of affairs in the future better than in the past, the only thing will be left to do is to condemn the country for a total wreck. One thing to be regretted is the lateness of the day. Years ago this thing should have been started. And I think when we were salting our fish we must have injected a germ or two in our brains, hence this stolidity. Yes, Sir, our brains were so damp that the fire of our imagination was put out, so that we could not or would not see what was coming. Let me explain myself more clearly. When old Dr. Thomas was practising in Valleyfield, a little settlement below Greenspond, he often talked and urged the masters of those fishing vessels to have what might be called a pool, viz. put the fish together and send a man across to open up a market and dispose of our fish in a fair way, man with man, instead of trusting so much to others. But no, Sir, we were green enough to be twisted and bent so that now we are at the breaking point, and if Dr. Thomas could speak from the cemetery here in St. John's he would say, I told you of it. Now we can see it; then we could only see one man who was going to do great things for us, to use his own words "To every man his own." Every man his own indeed. If we only had half our own we could live, but we can't live under the present conditions, we must die! And die soon, if something is not done.

Thanking you in anticipation, Mr. Editor, I remain,

ONE OF THE SUFFERERS.

It's Early to Talk of Christmas.

But there are so many good things to be said about Richard Hudnut's Perfumes and Toilet Goods as Christmas gifts, that we must begin early in order to tell everything.

Perfume has always been closely associated with the true spirit of Christmas. Most ladies of refinement love good Perfume, and Hudnut's Perfume is good. It has that lasting, refreshing, unobtrusive, odor, which means so much to people of culture.

Hudnut's Perfumes are artistically packaged for the Christmas Season, and you will surely find in the assortment an odor that will appeal as a Christmas gift. You show good taste when you select Hudnut's.

Obituary.

JUDGE ALFRED PENNY.

The announcement in yesterday's issue of the Telegram of the almost sudden passing of Judge Penny of Carbonear came as a surprise to his many friends in the city. The deceased was called on Saturday morning with an acute attack of Angina Pectoris, a malady which caused him much suffering some years previously. He passed to his eternal reward at 8.30 a.m. yesterday. Judge Penny was a man of marked ability and during his years on the bench he commanded universal confidence. A devoted member of the Methodist Church, he ever took a leading part in all its activities, and for years represented his native country in the Conferences held in Canada. For over thirty years he occupied the position of Superintendent of the Carbonear Methodist Sunday School, and in the days of the Carbonear Grammar School, he occupied the position of Secretary of the Board. Judge Penny was a life long abstainer and a convinced prohibitionist. Born at Carbonear 71 years ago, Judge Penny received his early education in his native town, finishing in a college in the United States. Entering business he formed partnership with his brothers, the late Capt. Edgar Penny, and Capt. Josiah Penny, conducting the firm of Penny Brothers. At the age of 27, he was elected as representative for the district of Bay de Verde, and four years later succeeded the late Hon. John Hourke as M. H. A. for Carbonear. This was in 1882. Three years later he was elected and in 1885 became Surveyor General. In 1897 Mr. Penny retired from business and accepted the Judgeship of a District Court, with jurisdiction extending from Briggs to Old Perlican and Heart's Content. Judge Penny was married about 46 years ago to Miss Rose L. Taylor, daughter of the late Richard H. Taylor of Carbonear. His wife, who survives him, is at present as far from being in the best of health, and the bereavement comes to her with terrible severity. Judge Penny leaves no family, and of a large number of brothers and sisters, only one, Mrs. Simpson, wife of Robert Simpson Esq., J.P., Carbonear, survives him. He has many nephews and nieces, and of the former, Speaker Penny, M.H.A. is one. Messrs. Hedley Taylor at Ayre & Sons, Architects at Carbonear, and Ernest W., General Freight Agent at Reids are brothers-in-law. Mrs. W. S. Canning of this city, who passed away last year was a sister. The funeral takes place tomorrow after the arrival of the train from St. John's.

SPLENDID MEETING LAST NIGHT.

Last evening, Grand Master Piccott, Past Grand Master W. H. Cave, Grand Secretary Jordan Milley, and P. G. D. Gordon Bradley motored to Fox Trap and held a public meeting of the L. O. Association. On their arrival, the visitors were met by the officers of the local lodge and entertained at a banquet by the Ladies' Auxiliary. The meeting opened at 8 p.m., the hall being filled to capacity. Mr. Peter Butler was in the chair. Addresses on the aims of the Association, "Equal rights to all, and special rights to none," were delivered by the visiting brethren. After the close of the meeting the visitors returned to the city.

Cochrane Street Adult Class.

WILL ENTERTAIN THIS EVENING.

To-night in the lecture room of Cochrane Street Church, a concert and sociable will be held under the auspices of the Adult Bible Class. An elaborate programme has been arranged for the occasion, which in itself will be well worth the admission. The artists who have kindly consented to assist are well known to St. John's audiences, more especially in entertainments of this kind, and with this in view the success of the evening can be anticipated, while a right jolly time is in store for those who attend. The programme will consist of songs, duets, recitations, dialogues, etc., which will be contributed to by Mesdames Outerbridge, Small and Garland; Messrs Morris, Redstone, Davis, Moores, Wiltshire, Taylor, Murray, Russel and Messrs. Mews, Holmes Canning and Gushue. During the evening refreshments will be served, while little fairy girls. A goodly sum will no doubt be realized, for the worthiness of the cause.

Commercial Bowling League Declared Officially Open.

HIS WORSHIP MAYOR COOK MADE CLEVER SHOT.

The Commercial Bowling League was officially opened in the Grenfell Institute at 7.30 last evening. A large attendance of the supporters and friends from the various Mercantile establishments were present. Promptly at 7.30, his Worship the Mayor, Hon. Tasker Cook, threw over the first ball, declaring the series officially opened. Cheers were then called for his Worship, the League, and the promoters of the affair, which was duly honored by all. The opening game of the series was then commenced with between teams representing Messrs. A. E. Hickman & Co. Ltd., and T. & M. Winters. The former team which consisted of regular adepts at the game won out very easily, although Winters' team pushed their opponents hard for the honors in the second set. The bowling of Mr. Dalton for the defeated team was indeed a revelation to watch, he netted the handsome score of 160 points, which proved to be high flier of the evening. Hickman's team won out by three sets to their opponents nil. The scoring as per sets resulted as follows:

The second game was played at nine o'clock between Reid's and Ayre's aggregations and resulted in a win for the latter by two sets to one. In the opening set, Reid's team defeated their opponents by 23 points, while in the second and third sets, although they improved as the game went along, they were unable to register a win over their more superior opponents, who bowled splendidly in the final two sets. Mr. D. M. Duff for Reid's, and Mr. Frank Watts for Ayre's showed up to advantage. The scoring resulted as follows:

Viking Warship.

VESSEL OF 300 B.C. FOUND.

A warship of the Vikings, the oldest ever found, dating as it does from 300 B.C., will soon be on view at the National Museum, Copenhagen. It was found in the Bog of Hjortpring in Sleisvig, and now the ship and the shields, spears, and swords found with it are on their way by rail in 15 large packing cases.

The ship which is made of a kind of elm, is 42½ feet long and 6½ feet wide. The oval shields are each in a single piece of wood. One of the swords has a bronze scabbard. There are also a couple of balors and two wooden boxes with lids which were used evidently as eating vessels. There were 10 oars in the ship, each about 39in. long.

The ship will be put together on arrival and exhibited in the state in which it sailed the seas.

The motor car escaped with very little damage.

Women Athletes of France Sign Peace Compact.

PARIS.—Peace has been officially signed between the two warring feminine federations of athletic women of France. A temporary truce was declared last July in order to hold at Fernhing Stadium the first of the feminine Olympic Games on record, in which the United States team carried off second honors. Gaston Vidal, Under-Secretary of State for Physical Culture and Sports, acted as peacemaker. Both federations elected officers to represent them in the Union of French Sporting and Athletic Federation of France. The new Federation comprises 144 feminine clubs and athletic organizations throughout France with a membership of nearly fifteen thousand young women and girls.

Coal in England Becoming Dearer.

LONDON.—Coal prices in England probably will reach the highest level in history during the coming winter, according to London retail dealers. A general increase of three shillings a ton was made recently, and another will be announced within the next few weeks, it is expected. The price of the best hard coal is now 57 shillings, about $12.00 a ton, graduating to 45 shillings for kitchen coal. The highest prices last year for the same grades was 61 shillings and 48 shillings. A further increase of six shillings may be looked for. The labor troubles and the forecast for an early and severe winter are given as the reasons for the added cost.

Of Interest to Poultry Farmers.

TACOMA, Wash.—Two world's records for egg-laying were set in the third annual contest conducted by the Western Washington Experiment station of the Washington State College. It is announced here by W. R. Linklater, superintendent of the station. The contest resulted in a white Leghorn pullet owned by H. M. Lutz of Woodland, Wash., laying 325 eggs with a day to go before the year expired. A Leghorn pullet owned by the experiment station also beat the world's record of 324 eggs set last year by a California hen by laying 330 eggs.

Crusade Against Cancer DELAY COSTLY TO THESE PATIENTS.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 15.—A recent review of 519 cases of cancer treated at the Massachusetts General Hospital developed the fact that an average of five months, and, twelve days had elapsed between the time the patient first noticed the disease until he consulted a physician. An average of another three months had passed between the time the patient first visited the physician until the physician advised radical procedure. Therefore, eight and one-half months of valuable time had been lost with the result that a heavy percentage of these patients will die.

The American Society for the Control of Cancer, New York, is making a nation-wide and persistent campaign, not only to inform the public as to the initial symptoms of cancer, but to impress physicians generally with the necessity of a speedy and accurate diagnosis that surgical or medical relief may be immediately obtained. The wide distribution of its literature has already saved an enormous number of lives.

PREPARATIONS FINALIZED.

Preparations for the big indoor sports meet which takes place in the Prince's Rink on Monday night, next, have been practically finalized by the committee. The programme of events which consists of sprints, short and middle distance running, basket ball, walking match, tug-of-war, etc., will be contested for by all our well known athletes. During the past two weeks the various runners have been undergoing stiff training. A notable feature in connection with this movement is that mostly all the boys have a trainer in constant attendance. After a spin has been engaged in by each contestant he proceeds immediately to his room, where he receives good stiff rub down. Many of our athletes until a year ago were very careless in this respect, but now that the boys are becoming properly educated into the proper methods of training, good results have already been obtained. Great rivalry exists between the various runners, who are all keyed up with enthusiasm, and ready for the crack of the gun which will send them on their way on next Monday night. The five mile race will be more keenly contested than ever this year. Notably, O'Toole, Thorburn, Taylor and Cooper are undergoing rigorous training, each being confident in himself that Jack Bell will have to exert every effort right to the very tape before being declared a winner. A dark horse who is at present visiting the city from Upper Canada in the interests of his firm, has signified his intentions of competing. The Canadian speedster has had several try-outs at the rink already and those who have seen him in action, declare he will take some heading. The basket ballers, both lady and gentlemen teams, have had several work-outs at the rink. The event will probably be the most interesting item on the whole programme. The one mile race for the junior boys from 12 years to 16 years old, which proved to be the most exciting race at the annual sports, gives promise of being equally as good this year. The plucky little lad, Augustus Bailey, only thirteen years of age, who was declared the junior champion, will be a contestant next Monday night. Bailey every appearance of becoming a runner of repute, he has a style all his own, and will be a hard boy to defeat for the honors. The junior race has many entries for which preliminary heats will probably be run off on Saturday night. The prizes will consist of gold and silver medals for the sprints, middle distance events, and tug-of-war, while a very neat silver cup will go to the winner in the basket ball competition.

River Ganges Inundates Indian Villages.

CANPORE, India.—The great rise of the Ganges river, which has broken all records of the past thirty years, has led to the flooding of vast districts on the Unao side. Many villages on both sides of the railway line to Unao are under water, and hundreds of hamlets have been washed away. The floods are on the decline now, but the rains continue intermittently, making the lot of those rendered homeless still harder. People whose houses have been washed away have taken shelter in neighboring villages, and some have been accommodated in railway cars. Virtually all the villages situated along the banks of the Ramganga river have been inundated. Houses and cattle have been washed away, and standing crops ruined. In some places the rise of the river was so sudden that people who were in the fields tending their cattle or crops were cut off. Many were compelled to take refuge in trees until the floods subsided. Others were rescued by relief parties. Planks were tied together and let down from railway bridges on the Ramganga, enabling a number of people struggling in the water to be hoisted to safety. The railway connection with Delhi also has been cut. The Lucknow road is still impassable in many places, and no communication is possible with outlying villages. Large supplies of food, sent by the citizens of Canpore, have helped to relieve the distress.

The Truth About SUNLIGHT SOAP

SUNLIGHT SOAP is guaranteed PURE UNADULTERATED SOAP.

Five thousand dollars (1000 pounds) will be paid to anyone proving this statement to be untrue. You will find this guarantee on every Sunlight Soap wrapper.

Ordinary so-called cheap soap does not average more than 70 per cent. REAL SOAP to the bar or pound, the remaining 30 per cent. consists of water and fillers.

When you buy SUNLIGHT SOAP at 15 cents, you get 15 cents worth of REAL PURE SOAP, without any adulterants or injurious chemicals or fillers.

So-called cheap soap sells in 8 ounce bars for 10 cents and in 4 ounce bars for 5 cents. SUNLIGHT SOAP at 15 cents for 12 ounces costs only 10 cents for 8 ounces and 5 cents for 4 ounces.

Consequently SUNLIGHT SOAP costs no more than the so-called cheap soaps; but because SUNLIGHT is REAL PURE SOAP, it costs less than adulterated soap.

When you buy SUNLIGHT SOAP you get 15 cents worth of Soap, but when you buy inferior soap at the same cost, you get less than 11 cents worth of soap.

Therefore when you buy an 8 ounce bar of inferior soap for 10 cents, you really get only 7 cents worth of REAL SOAP. You throw away 3 cents.

In addition to actually wasting money when you buy adulterated soap, you lose several dollars through the damage done to your clothing by injurious soap.

It pays to use Sunlight Soap. Every intelligent woman knows that SUNLIGHT SOAP is purest and best, and cheapest in the long run.

If you do not need a large 15 cent bar of SUNLIGHT SOAP buy a half bar. SUNLIGHT is so pure that it will not injure even a baby's tender skin.

Tell your wash woman to use SUNLIGHT SOAP; if necessary, supply her with a half bar. Don't destroy your expensive clothing with injurious soap.

YOUR GROCER SELLS SUNLIGHT SOAP. ASK HIM ABOUT LEVER'S 1000 POUND GUARANTEE.

Humber Project.

The Humber deal is closed so the News informs and the terms do not seem to warrant much benefit to the people generally, although full details are not known. Much is said in the Advocate but how much Mr. Coaker has done to bring it out remains to be seen. Other capital than that of the F.P.U. is to finance the scheme and while we would welcome the industry so that labor can be given yet if this Government has to give a guarantee, how much will Newfoundland as a whole, fare, except those who get employment? If it is true that England has to get one of her unemployed in, to every one in this country, who will have all the leading jobs?

If the proposition is a profitable one why should the Government be asked for a guarantee in money? England, of course, is better able to accept the burden of interest and would only be doing what she has promised to all her colonies for their help during the war.—Twillingate Sun.

Feather Bonnet.

WILLIAM SOLDIERS HEAD-DRESS.

(Glasgow Weekly Herald.)
The feather bonnet, next to the kilt, is the pride of every soldier who wears the tartan. Nor is it any exaggeration to say that no military head-dress struck more terror into the hearts of the Great Britain on the continent, or been a source of wonder to admirers of the soldiers.
The feather bonnet there is a pretty romance. It dates from the time of the 22nd Gordon Highlanders raised by a former Duke of Devonshire (the Marquis of Huntly) and the beautiful and witty Scotch lady, the Duchess, accompanied her husband to frequent the theatre and when she saw a Highland soldier with a feather bonnet she was ever pacific, and no young beauty there offered that beautiful mouth was worth the price.

Recruiting tours the Duchess a cap which is one of the treasured possessions of the Duke. It is of grey-blue with a long black ostrich feather protruding over the crown. It is somewhat in the form of a military bonnet, although much larger, and it was from this cap that the present Highland bonnet with its plumes was evolved.
The soldiers familiar with the military part of regimental dress are engaged in the making of the bonnet. The business is a good deal of skill. The part of the bonnet to be produced is the "dice" or foundation, the portion that encircles the head, and which is covered with the "dice" tartan of the regiment for which it is intended. The electric wire part of the bonnet is made of cork, about one-eighth of an inch in thickness, and is covered by a strong wire which is made by black gauze, and is called "Kilmarnock hon-dresses are made of various materials but different heads. They are measured for the bonnet on several until it fits. The sizes range from 22 to 24 inches, but a well-fitting bonnet is considered to be one which is 22 inches. Out of every 200 or so about 50 bonnets are made the latter size.

The "dice" having been properly affixed the next stage in the manufacture of the bonnet is the construction of the "cage," or dome-shaped framework. This consists of eight wires firmly fixed into cork and rising to a height of about 10 1/2 inches. The wires cross each other on the top, and are held in position by a horizontal wire passed round the framework about half-way from the foundation. In its skeleton form the bonnet presents a somewhat curious appearance, and the uninitiated could hardly tell from the work in this stage whether a bird's cage or a soldier's head-dress would be evolved.

The framework having been completed, it is covered with black gauze sewed firmly on, and next commences the process of affixing the feathers. These are black, and are the crop of the ostrich. Wrought on two strings, the feathers resemble in appearance a lady's bob, and in this manner they are imported from Africa. The strings of down are sewed on to the gauze covering of the wire framework.

Privates and non-commissioned officers' bonnets have four hanging feathers, or, as they are familiarly called, "tails," while an officer's bonnet has five of these. The hanging feathers, which greatly enhance the appearance of the head-gear, are placed on the right side of the head, and the "tails" are of different lengths. The first one is less than the second, the second is shorter than the third, and the third is shorter than the fourth. The reason of this is obvious. Were the first "hanger" of the same length as the fourth it would obstruct the view of the soldier on parade. When in line and when "dressing," the soldier casts his eye along the line, and were the hanging feather long enough to obscure his view it would, of course, be impossible for him to take his "bearings."

On the left side of the bonnet is the crest of the regiment, and affixed behind it, and rising to the top of the cap, is the white feather, which looks so well in contrast to the black, and which is known in the Army as the "heekle." The latter having been affixed, and the chin strap having been attached, the bonnet is ready for the soldier. The height of a private's bonnet is 10 1/2 inches, while that of an officer's is 12 inches. As already stated, the officer's cap has one "hanger" more than that of the private's, and another point of difference is that instead of the cork which encircles the head being covered with gauze, as in the case of the private, that of the officer's is lined with red morocco leather. In both cases there is a slit in the encircling ring, which is held by a strap and buckle, which can be slackened or tightened at will.
There used to be a secret in connect-tion with the feather bonnet which only those soldiers familiar with all its intricacies were aware of. It is now generally known, however, that in the picturesque head-gear of the Highland regiments there is what is called, in barrack parlance, a "crow's nest." It is an indentation or recess under the hanging feathers, in which a handkerchief, or a pipe, or tobacco, or any other small article may be carried in safety. The "nest" is very convenient for the soldier, who has not a superfluous number of pockets, especially when he is in full kit uniform.

Such is the history of the origin of the bonnet and the manufacture of the feather bonnet. Its fame will live as long as the traditions of the Gordon Highlanders, and will always be associated with the romance of the fascinating Duchess of Gordon, who with her winning smiles and sweet kisses, captivated young Highlanders when they hesitated accepting the King's shilling.
When the stalwart men of the north joined the colours in 1914 they required no such inducement as was offered by the pretty Duchess of Gordon, but those who now form the regiment of the Gay Gordons will no doubt carry the feather bonnet with as much pride and soldier-like dignity as did their comrades of former generations.

An appropriate and delicious confection for the Thanksgiving table is candied cranberries.
To make clear mushroom soup, add the stems and skins of the mushrooms to soup stock.
Slices of celery, onion and smoked sausages all add to the flavor of split-pea soup.

Candied carrots may either be served in syrup or rolled in coarse granulated sugar.
If dry graham or rye bread is graded very fine, it may be used in making bran muffins.
Well mashed bananas and finely chopped pineapple make an excellent filling for short-cake.

If you use breadcrumbs in making plum pudding be sure to use only the crumb of the loaf.
If fresh paint is spilled on the floor pour vinegar over it at once and wipe up with a soft cloth.
To prevent sausages from bursting they should be cooked slowly and well pricked with a fork.

LIFE'S STORY.

To write life's story well one must be wise--
Wise in the beauty of courageous deeds.
The strong clean virtues and the simple creeds.
And though in vice some truth of nature lies
And creatures do those things which gods despise,
Who tints with splendor what is shameful leads,
To baser standards him so blindly reads,
Who loves the mire shall never higher rise.
To live life's story well needs wisdom, too--
Wisdom to pass by grossness undefiled,
To see the worst of nature and come through
Fit to be trusted by a little child,
To know that mud exists and must be seen,
But still to fill your life with what is clean.
Use STAFFORD'S Phoradone Cough Cure for coughs and colds. It will cure.--oct31.11
