

BROKER WINS OUT IN SUIT FOR $500,000

that he might take it up at some future time. Mr. Phippen's reason for advising him to drop it was Sir Donald's poor health, not the fault of the process.

"Now, the circumstances surrounding these two knights, that have been associated since 1887, are worthy of some consideration. They have inaugurated a system of Canadian Northern Railways, and then some years ago a partnership that previously existed between them was formed into a limited liability company. Their relations have been most intimate. In addition to the projects these two knights jointly have carried out, they have their separate speculations and enterprises.

"Now, if Sir William Mackenzie merely took up the work that had been carried on by his partner at the time of his departure, I do not think that there would have been any doubt that Mr. Stewart would have been entitled to recover from him. Now, looking at all the facts, I cannot but reach the conclusion that what was done before Sir Donald Mann left for Europe was continued afterwards with his friend and associate, Sir William Mackenzie. Memory at Fault.

"The evidence of Mr. Ansley, on the contrary, would lead one to believe that the negotiations carried on with Sir William Mackenzie had absolutely nothing to do with those carried on with Sir Donald Mann. Without saying anything about Mr. Ansley, I think his memory is a little at fault, and, having regard to the evidence of Mr. Henderson himself, I think that the negotiations carried on with Sir William were the outcome of those carried on with Sir Donald Mann.

"I find, therefore, that the sale ultimately made to Sir William Mackenzie was the result of the introduction of Mr. Henderson to Sir Donald Mann by Mr. Stewart, and not the result of the efforts of any other parties. It follows that the plaintiff is entitled to be paid a commission."

"Do you think he was summing up his case for the defendant when he interrupted by Justice Latchford on several occasions and in every case an argument followed. At one time Mr. Rowell declared that when Sir Donald Mann left for the old country, Sir William knew very little of what was going on."

"I do, my lord," replied Mr. Rowell. "Mr. Watson spent a large part of his time in referring to the evidence of Mr. Ansley, the secretary of both Sir William and Sir Donald."

"No one," he said, "who could have heard the evidence of Mr. Ansley could have accepted his statements as facts. The feature of the last day for the hearing of the suit apart from Justice Latchford's decision, was the evidence of Sir William Mackenzie, who took the witness box at 9.30 in the morning. Although called by Mr. Watson, counsel for Stewart, and therefore by the rules of evidence regarded as a friendly witness, the examination resolved itself into an encounter of wits between the learned K.C. and the railway magnate, which called for repeated interference from the bench.

"Sir William Mackenzie was in a particularly happy and genial mood. He laughed loudly thru the courtroom almost incessantly. Sometimes it was a laugh of scorn, occasionally it was a laugh of good-natured indulgence. Now and again his voice was inaudible, but the meaning of his answer could always be gathered from the intonation and tone of the laughing accompaniment."

"Quite Hilarious. When it was suggested to him that $100 shares in the new steel manufacturing process company which he organized were now selling at $800, Sir William laughed until the tears filled his eyes."

"I've got a few to sell at that," said he in the midst of his contagious glee. On different occasions Sir William stated that he had never talked to the proposition until Sir Donald Mann had turned down."

"The evidence of Mr. Ansley, his secretary, tended to show that this was the case, and that Sir William and Sir Donald had never talked it over together."

"Mr. Watson's examination of Mr. Ansley was as follows: 'Are you in the service of the Canadian Northern?' 'I am in the service of the C.N.R., Mackenzie and Mann, and all the companies.' 'You are in a special position of trust and confidence with Sir Donald?' 'Yes.' 'More so than with Sir William Mackenzie?' 'I don't think so.' 'I thought you were going to say that Sir Donald was more confiding than others.' 'Yes.' 'In regard to the negotiations, Mr. Ansley stated that Mr. M. J. Stewart, the plaintiff, was well known around Sir Donald's office.' 'You knew that Mr. Stewart was introducing this process to Sir Donald?' 'I did not. I state that positively in face of Mr. Stewart's oath.' 'Did you see Mr. Henderson going into Sir Donald's office?' 'I have no recollection.' 'Your memory is very much of a blank. How does it come that your recollection is so good in other things?' 'I would not take a special note of Mr. Henderson and Mr. Stewart.' 'Knew Very Little. 'Did you know anything of the tools and swords that were in Sir Donald's office?' 'I saw them in Sir Donald's office after Mr. Henderson asked me to introduce him to Sir William Mackenzie. One day Sir William asked me where the tools were that were on his table. I asked the boy and he told me they were on Sir Donald's table.' 'You have no idea how they got there?' 'No.' 'You knew nothing about that whole year's transaction, the you are in closer touch with Sir Donald than anybody else?' 'No.' 'You don't seem to know anything about it at all?' 'That's exactly my position.' 'Then, what are you here for?' 'I was subpoenaed.' 'Are you claiming a commission from anybody?' 'No.' 'Denied Telephoning. Mr. Ansley denied that he telephoned Mr. Henderson in the first instance and asked him to come and see Sir William Mackenzie. The first he heard of the matter was when Mr. Henderson and Mr. J. J. Main came to him and asked to see Sir William. Subsequent to that he admitted he may have called up Mr. Henderson.

"Why did you ask Mr. Henderson whether or not he was free to deal?" "Because I heard that Sir Donald Mann had been dealing with it."

"This admission led witness into a severe cross-examination on his former evidence, and the impression he intended to convey that he knew nothing of the matter till Mr. Henderson called on him. Witness denied that he had intended to convey that impression."

"Did you know in March, 1912, that Sir Donald was negotiating?" That was four or five weeks before Sir William took it up."

"A laugh was the answer given to this question. 'I would advise you not to laugh,' said Mr. Watson, hotly. Explaining why he asked Mr. Henderson if he were free to deal, Mr. Ansley stated that he wanted to make sure that Sir Donald had turned it down."

"And you did all that in your clerical capacity?" "Yes." "A rather interesting clerk. Why didn't you get Mr. Phippen in to administer the oath?" "Because I had other corroboration." "Did you suggest that you should have an interest in the process?" "Yes. I suggested that to Mr. Phippen."

"And then it was that you got one per cent.?" "Yes."

"Who taught that heaven-directed spire to rise?" "The Man of Ross," each hissing babe replied."

"Of somewhat less pleasing kind was the senator's experience of Edward Blake, whom he describes as 'often morose and apparently depressed and discouraged, as if he thought the game was not worth the candle.' On this occasion the Hon. Mr. Ross had been deputed to reopen the question of reciprocity with the United States in the form of a motion asking for correspondence between the governments of Canada and the United States bearing on the subject. His speech of three quarters of an hour had been carefully prepared and he ventured to say to Mr. Blake a few hours afterwards: 'Well, I have done my best for reciprocity. How did you like my speech?' 'My dear boy,' he said, 'I did not hear a word of it. I slept the whole time you were speaking.' Sir George adds the comment: 'Whether to take his repose as a mark of perfect confidence in my ability to do justice to the subject, or as showing a lack of interest in anything I might say, was my dilemma. It was, however, the last speech about which I asked his opinion, either before or after delivery.'"

"Sir George was present on the floor of the House of Commons in 1878 at the moment when it was waiting for Black Rod and Donald A. Smith, now Lord Strathcona, made his attack on Sir Charles Tupper, an incident which ends abruptly in Hansard. He adds that 'neither Sir John Macdonald nor Smith, however, followed the Speaker; both met in the lobby, when Sir John, apparently greatly excited, moved towards Smith in a menacing attitude, declaring that 'he could lick him quicker than he could lick his finger.' A. H. Drymond, who was standing near, and who told the story afterwards, interposed, and the last round in a session militant beyond its predecessors closed."

"The senator evidently has not taken the trouble to verify his quotations. On the first page of his book he observes that the school teacher, he was then one as to politics, 'is apt to say with Hamlet, 'What is Hecuba to me and what am I to Hecuba?' The line occurs in Hamlet's soliloquy after the scene, where he meditates on the effects of fletitious passion: 'For Hecuba! What's Hecuba to him or he to Hecuba?' and similar lapses are not infrequent in later pages."

LARGEST VESSEL EVER BUILT IN CANADA WAS LAUNCHED

Bulk Freighter James Carruthers Took the Water Successfully at Collingwood in the Presence of Thousands of Spectators—Will Be in Commission Next Month.

By a Staff Reporter.
COLLINGWOOD, Ont., May 22.—The largest bulk freighter ever built in the British Empire—the James Carruthers—was successfully launched by the Collingwood Shipbuilding Company here today. The new vessel, which has been built for the St. Lawrence and Chicago Steam Navigation Company, Limited, also bears the distinction of being the largest vessel of any description built in the Dominion. Mayor Gilpin proclaimed a half holiday for the occasion, and the entire population of the town, more than seven thousand persons, and hundreds of people from the surrounding districts witnessed the ceremony. James Carruthers, the man whose name the new boat bears, and who in addition to being a director of the vessel, H. Calderwood, marine architect, of Toronto.

Hours before the time set for the launching of the ship, people began to gather in the vicinity of where the ceremony was to take place, and long before the event took place every available vantage point was occupied. Ladders had been placed to the roofs of the buildings, from which a view could be obtained, and these were soon black with people, who in their endeavor to obtain a good view of the vessel's plunge into the water, climbed to dangerous heights.

On the large boiler-house of the Shipbuilding Company, to the roof of which a temporary stairway against one of the outside walls of the building had been erected, hundreds of women and children were stationed. On this occasion it was seen that spectators in the vicinity of the launching witnessed the event from a height. This was due to the fact that the last time a big vessel was launched here hundreds of the spectators were drenched by a huge wave which followed the boat striking the water. In this case, the vessel being the largest ever launched in the Dominion, the danger from this source was even greater.

Interested crowds. The crowd of people who had gathered early were kept interested watching the active preparations being made to release the vessel for its downward plunge. This took up several hours, more than 150 workmen being engaged in the undertaking. The launching was to have taken place at 3 p.m., but the crew of releasing the vessel from its station proved longer than was anticipated, and the vessel did not take the plunge until an hour later.

A stairway leading to the upper deck of the vessel had been built against its side, and about two hours previous to the launching of the boat an inspection of it was made by the owners and builders of the vessel and their guests. Following this a number of the men who had taken a share in its construction and some of the more adventurous citizens of Collingwood were permitted to go on the deck of the high vessel to remain there during its glide into the water. About two hundred men and boys availed themselves of the opportunity.

Saw Them All. A gaily decorated platform had been erected in front of the boat, and it was from this little Lillian Wright, who was assisted in the ceremony by Capt. P. M. Campbell of Collingwood, a director of the shipbuilding company, who has witnessed the launching of every one of the 38 large vessels built by the company here, performed the christening. After the supports had been removed the signal was given a number of men stationed with axes at the ropes, which at either end of the vessel held the huge boat from sliding. They cut the ropes simultaneously, and the big ship began its slide down gressed timbers to the water. At that moment the young girl on the platform threw the bottle against the ship and cried out the name, the James Carruthers.

With a loud boom the flag-bedecked vessel struck the water, and an instant later a huge wave of water arose that covered the vicinity around it for several hundred yards, and which overflowed into a drydock of the company a good many feet from it. A lake-appearing surface covered all low objects, and with the people stationed on the roofs of the buildings the idea of a flooded town was at once conveyed. A number of men and boys had strolled themselves on the top of a high coal-pile at the edge of the dock, and it was first feared this would be swept away and those on it carried into the water. Although the water did not reach to the top of it a large proportion of the coal-pile was swept away.

After reaching the water the James Carruthers swayed violently from side to side several times and caused some of those on her decks to cry out in fear. She soon steadied herself, however, and to the cheers of those on board and ashore and the tooting of all the town whistles she floated gracefully in the water.

Nearly Finished. All the machinery has been installed in the vessel, and with the exception of

ANGLICANS FORM NEW ORGANIZATION

Its Object Is Promotion of Christianity on Broadest Possible Platform.

Lambeth conference of bishops in 1908, had been adopted. The organization has not committed itself to any particular line of policy, either the original proposal of the circular letter or in any other line. The resolutions printed in at least one of the afternoon papers of yesterday, and which were reported to be brought forward at the evening meeting, were not touched upon.

Addresses were given by Rev. Canon Plumtre, who spoke on the principles of the Church of England; Mr. Ford on the new Church Unity, and Archdeacon Cody on the opportunity of the movement.

After the singing of a hymn and the benediction, many of the visitors left hurriedly to catch their trains.

The movement is not by any means general, nor are results at present very well defined, the one and only standing feature being that a broader platform for the acceptance of those of other communions be established as a result of the conference.

CHARLES BARTLETT BURNED BY POWDER EXPLOSION.

Charles Bartlett, of the "101 Bison" company, had a very narrow escape from serious injury the other day when he was burned in an explosion of powder during the taking of pictures for "The Fighting Chaplain." He had jumped from his horse, which was on the dead run, onto the ammunition on the deck, and a quick trail of gunpowder, and had fired it. It was a hazardous thing to do, but this leading man is not a man to be deterred. After his injuries had been patched up, he did not seem to be any the worse for his thrilling experience.

CARVELL URGES LOWER TARIFF

the sale of fruits. He pointed out that the United States produce would not interfere with the Canadian growers, because when the Canadian fruit was in season, the American fruit was out of season and vice versa.

No Relief for Grain Growers. Referring to the new U. S. tariff measure, Mr. Carvell maintained that it would greatly benefit cattle raisers and growers of potatoes and hay. He said, however, that it would not benefit the grain growing farmers of western Canada.

He then took up the duty on woolens. He said that it was legalized robbery. The people of Canada were paying from 50 to 100 per cent. too much for woolen goods. The same applied to boots and shoes.

In conclusion, Mr. Carvell said that the duty on automobiles should be reduced. Canadians at present were paying one-third more for a car than did the people across the line.

"But automobiles are luxuries," objected Col. Currie.

"No they are not they are fast becoming necessities. The farmers find them most useful," retorted Mr. Carvell.

Must Protect Fruits. Dr. Edwards (Frontenac), who followed, referred sarcastically to Mr. Carvell's parliamentary career. He said that he (Mr. Carvell) had always been the defender of the Liberal government when any discussion arose concerning sawmill wharfs or land deals.

Mr. Edwards said the government was justified in maintaining a high duty on fruits. The early fruit, he said, was a luxury. The rich could afford to pay the extra price.

The produce growers and manufacturers of Canada had to be considered as well as the consumers.

Mr. Edwards said the farmers of Canada were well satisfied with the existing tariff and were heartily in favor of the proposed expenditure for Dreadnoughts. Answering Mr. Carvell's sneer that the Tories were always wrapping themselves up in the old flag, the member for Frontenac declared that he was tired of hearing sneering references by Liberal members to the Union Jack.

No Tory Rebels. "I do not say that all the members of the Liberal party are rebels," he continued, amid loud applause, "but I do say that every rebel in this country belongs to the Liberal party."

Mr. Edwards then reviewed the fiscal history of the last thirty-five years and said that the tariff now in force was substantially the tariff of the national policy as laid down by Sir John Macdonald. Doubtless some changes would be necessary for some time and personally he favored the reduction of duty on implements, but generally speaking the tariff was fair and moderate.

No Need to Retrench. Hon. Frank Oliver, Minister of Finance, Minister White closed the debate. He said that the present financial stringency was no reason for curtailing the expenditures of the government. On the contrary, the government should accept the example of the people who possessed unquenchable optimism.

The house then went into committee of ways and means upon the resolution providing for the tariff changes announced in the budget speech.

About midnight Hon. Mr. White moved the third reading of his bill to revise the Bank Act. After brief discussion the bill passed as reported from the committee.

SUCCEEDS REV. DR. KIDD. Rev. Father Kernahan, assistant at St. Helen's Church, has been appointed secretary to His Grace Archbishop McNeil, to succeed Rev. Dr. Kidd, lately given the presidency of the new seminary.

ELECTION SOON ON RACE LINES

London Liberal Paper Accuses Borden of Fomenting Anti-French Sentiment in Canada.

LONDON, May 22.—(C.A.P.)—The Daily News and Leader, commenting on the constitution of the Canadian senate and its decision to propose amendments to the senate bill, says "without discussion of the question how far the senate represents the real mind of the nation, no Liberal in this country is likely to defend the mode of constitution of that body. The Liberals indeed have condemned as heartily as Conservatives the principle of nomination now obtaining, but, however inevitable the reform of Canada's senate may be, it is highly regrettable a constitutional conflict should have come about over a bill which is put forward as a measure of high imperial importance and which, for good or evil, would revolutionize the relations between this country and the premier dominion. The responsibility rests upon Laurier, but upon those ill-advised counsellors who persuaded Borden to attempt a shortcut to imperial federation. The fact that there should be a constitutional crisis and probably a memorable election arising out of the imperial question is only a half misfortune."

Race Against Race. "The Toronto correspondent of The Times tells us the government are convinced that the whole action of the Liberals of both chambers is to be explained by pride and ambition of Quebec in the party. The result of rejection of the senate bill will be an appeal to the country against the senate and a further appeal against the attempt of Quebec to exercise undue influence in the government of the country."

Englishmen unfamiliar with Canadian concerns may not really appreciate the meaning of these phrases. The meaning is that the Conservatives intend to run an election on race lines. They are going to try to rally the English in Canada against the French. We hope Borden will reject this fatal advice. There should be no more disastrous blow struck at Canada than to make a race line of cleavage in Canadian politics and set the English against the French.

MRS. AGAR ADAMSON IS NEW PRESIDENT

A pleasant evening with the Heliconians, resulted in the election of a new president, the late presiding officer, Mrs. Roberts (Jessie Alexander), retiring, in much to the regret of the members. Mrs. Agar Adamson, another popular member, was unanimously elected to succeed Mrs. Roberts. Mrs. Blight was elected first vice-president, the other officers remaining the same.

Tributes were paid. Mrs. Adamson, Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Barron, Mrs. Dilworth, and Messrs. Blight and Hollingshead for their efficient services at the late summer salon, the proceeds from which netted the sum of $152.25.

CARE WOULD HAVE PREVENTED FATALITY

The inquest before Coroner J. W. Graham on the death of Albert E. Britnell, who was killed in a motor accident at the corner of College and Dufferin streets on April 28, was concluded at the third session last night.

The jury found that if due care had been taken by the motorman on the street car and the driver of the automobile the accident would not have occurred, and they strongly recommended that in future all street cars stop for passengers at the corner of College street and Gladstone avenue and the corner of College and Dufferin streets.

County Crown Attorney Greer, Hartley Dewar, K.C., for the railway company, and Mr. Dunbar for the Britnell family, cross-examined a few witnesses previous to the retirement of the jury, but no evidence of more than ordinary interest was produced.

"CENSOR" COBURN HAS PLAYERS SUMMONED

Continued From Page 1. practice of the censor's eliminating alleged bad scenes in a performance on Monday night and then allowing the play to run the rest of the week. He claimed that if a play was objectionable at all it should be suppressed immediately.

After Hoffmann Show Too. "I would have had the Gertrude Hoffmann show pulled too because of a couple of items," confessed the theatrical crusader. "But I dropped the notion when I found out that they were within the law."

He was asked if any member of the committee besides himself would give evidence against "Deborah," but he refused to answer.

The result of the crusader's activity was apparent when the play was produced again last night. The second act was so changed that even the author, Mr. Legrand-Howard, failed to recognize his own handiwork.

In connection with Mr. Coburn's published criticism of "Deborah," the following letter was received at The World office yesterday:

Editor World: Having read in your publication of the above date, the unjust and peculiarly narrow-minded criticism of the play "Deborah" by a reverend gentleman, who thinks that he, and his associates are going to take certain steps in the matter of dealing with the "damnable" play, (prey to the gauge for the father of a flock—quite Lloyd Georgian), the question must naturally present itself to all people who are competent, as to who is the censor of plays in Toronto, is the censor an official chosen by the corporation for the purpose of defining what is proper, and what is improper, or is it a noble (?) band of ministers who, instead of attending to the work they are paid to do, spend their time in visiting theatres, and other places of entertainment, for the sole purpose of picking holes in everything, and thus thru the press gaining splendid advertising for themselves and places of worship? Have they ever heard of the good old motto "Honi soit qui mal y pense"? In concluding my outburst against such confounded nonsense, I can only liken their minds to cesspools, in which are allowed to stagnate all the questionable details in life which a clean-minded person would quickly pass over.

ROYAL WEDDING IS ALL ARRANGED

Berlin Is All Agog Waiting For the Ceremonies of Tomorrow. EMPEROR WILL SPEAK Booming of Guns Will Announce Close of the Ceremony.

Special Cable to The World. BERLIN, May 22.—(Copyright).—The order of events for the marriage of Princess Victoria Louise and Prince Ernest of Cumberland has been arranged according to the regulations of the house of Hohenzollern, for such occasions.

As is customary, the religious ceremony will be in the chapel of the Berlin Schloss, at 5 p.m. Half an hour before the First Field Battery of the Guard will arrive, its band playing a wedding march, and take station outside the Lustgarten, between the palace and the cathedral.

While the guests are arriving (from 2 to 4 p.m.) the civil ceremony will take place in the presence only of the emperor, the empress and the parents of Prince Ernest of Cumberland, in the Bradenburg hall of the palace. It is probable that this ceremony will be conducted by the minister of the royal house.

In the niche to the right of the altar will be placed the diplomatic corps; on the left the suites of the various princes and royalty.

At 5 o'clock the court marshal will enter the chapel, and after tapping thrice with his staff of office, will announce the approach of the wedding procession.

First comes the Berghof marshal, Count August Eulenburg, with his staff; then a long line of chamberlains and gentlemen in pairs; then three noblemen (in this case probably three princes), called "bride's cavaliers," immediately behind the cavaliers will follow the bridal couple.

The bride's dress will be of Silesian lace, with a long lace veil and a myrtle crown. The lace will be worn over white satin with silver embroidery. She will wear no decorations, except the myrtle wreath and the crown.

The bridegroom will wear the uniform of his regiment, with the orders across his breast, the colors of the royal house of Hohenzollern.

The bride's train is to be carried by four bridesmaids (no pages). The bride's mistress of ceremonies will walk on her right and the prince's court marshal on his left.

After the wedding the number of court functionaries will be attached to the future court.

Then the emperor, probably wearing the uniform of the Brunswick regiment, or else of the Infantry of the Guards. He will escort Princess Thyra of Cumberland, the bridegroom's mother, after him will follow the empress with the Duke of Cumberland, wearing probably either an English regimental uniform, or the costume of the high orders.

Being in half mourning, both Princess Thyra and the duke may be in comparatively simple attire, not gala dress. Princess Thyra's train will be carried, if she wears one, by two pages.

King George will follow, probably with the crown princess or a wife of a German reigning prince.

The czar will escort Queen Mary. Then will come the princes, admirals, Generals and so on.

The empress will stand on the left of the altar and the emperor on the right. The kings, princes and others will form a semi-circle.

Blare of Trumpets. As the procession enters the chapel, the cathedral choir will sing a double quartet from Mendelssohn's oratorio of "Elijah." Then the famous silver will accompany the hymn, "Praise the Lord, Ye Heavens Adore Him."

The Fireless Cooker TRADITION indicates that Moses furnished the children of Israel with fireless cookers to keep their food warm while journeying thru the wilderness. We know that the Chinese made use of them two thousand years ago, and the Norwegian hay-box is familiar to the whole of Europe. Yet it is only recently that the fireless cooker has become a practical invention.

If being a time, strength and money-saver is considered helpful, it is, it proves its worth wherever it is used intelligently. The rules are so simple that any beginner may "go and do likewise" without erring.

The fireless cooker not only cooks without heat, but it acts as a refrigerator. Frozen desserts may be kept icy-cold in the cooker packed in salt and crushed ice. A lump of ice will keep without melting twenty-four hours if a tiny bit of ice, than in an ice chest.

In the cooker is an ideal place to put bread sponge to rise over night, as it is absolutely safe from draught or change of temperature.

These contradictory statements, that seem to state impossible facts, are box itself are as nearly airtight as possible, so the temperature of the contents is kept uniform for hours. That is the whole secret.

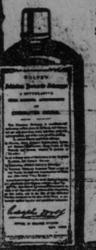

Manufacturers have been hard at work to improve the simple haybox cooker, and while their efforts in many cases have given unquestionable advancement to this mode of cooking, they have increased the cost of the article many times over.

The Philadelphia newspapers have full reports of the inquest. They contained nothing sensational.

"Good!" said Clancy. "Dr. Gilman and the Atlantic City police played the game. Now, I have nearly a clear fortnight before me, and if, within a week, I don't know why Kyrle died, I shall think it is high time I applied for a pension."

He picked up Mrs. Delamar's trail at Atlantic City readily enough. She had taken a room there for the night as "Mrs. Foster" and had hardly been seen by anyone.

Here, then, in addition to two hours at Absecon, were nearly six hours of Mrs. Delamar's time unaccounted for on the evening of the day when Kyrle was last seen alive.

Perhaps he did not put forth his full powers, but beyond the certainty of Mrs. Foster's departure next day, he had not found any other trace of Mrs. Delamar at Atlantic City.

"Hello," said Clancy. "The party you were asking about has just gone across, sir."

"Excellent. You have my address, if you see her again, send me a line."

"The detective's grin thought was, 'So, Madam, you dared not stop in your brave before the servants, all right, but you evidently found the owl a bird of ill omen.'"

"You left in October, sir," said Rice, whose well-regulated face tried to conceal the pleasure with which he heard of his master's sudden resolve.

"Did we? Who was there last fall? Confound that rap on the head I got at Palm Beach! Every now and then my recollections of people and events jumble together in the most extraordinary way."

Rice gave a list of names, and in it figured that of John Stratton. Waverton ticked off each name with a nod, until Tearle was mentioned.

"Do you remember where I picked up that animal?" he asked. "Now, Rice had long since recognized that Waverton was a changed man; but he was not prepared for this scornful repudiation of a special friend and enemy."

"I believe you met him in New York, Mr. Claude," he said in his non-committal way.

"Not likely, poor chap! That is just why I am wondering now why I ever took up with a scamp like Tearle. Of course, no one knows the exact date, and my cousin's death shut down the only source from which they could emerge."

"Well, out with it!" "Have you forgotten your cousin, sir?" "Not likely, poor chap! That is just why I am wondering now why I ever took up with a scamp like Tearle."

"I know; but I must go to New York—and then for the country. I mean to see Lake Champlain gleaming among the trees at the earliest possible moment."

"I know; but I must go to New York—and then for the country. I mean to see Lake Champlain gleaming among the trees at the earliest possible moment."

"On the train between Niagara and New York, Rice was accosted by an elderly man who occupied a seat in the same section."

"Be my god," said the stranger. "But may I ask you the gentleman was to whom you spoke just now? He is in the Pullman car behind."

"Rice was always punctilious in such matters. That is Mr. Claude G. Waverton, and I am his valet," he answered.

ment at his own temerity when his employer's comment showed that he had given more heed to the purpose underlying the valet's words than to the form.

"Before returning to New York, Rice, I want you to understand one thing clearly," he said. "I have broken off entirely with the past. I made an ass of myself for years; but all that has gone before is dead and done with, in so far as a man can ignore bygone evils."

"I shall never resent your assistance. If I don't choose to avail myself of it, that will not be your fault. For instance, I cannot for the life of me remember where I first met this fellow Tearle."

"Oh, that's easy enough to fix, sir. You met him at Mrs. Hemdick's house on the Hudson."

"Ah, of course. There you are—it comes back to me, now. We went from there to the races at Sheepshead Bay. What was the horse I lost such a lot of money on?"

"Rice's face lengthened. This question touched a sore point. 'Why, Jubilation, to be sure, Mr. Claude—Jubilation rolls home at last. No, no thanks. I am going for a stroll in the park. Have everything ready to cross to Lewiston by the afternoon boat.'"

"But, sir," and Rice was so flustered by his good fortune that he could hardly frame the question. "Ave you forgotten that if we go to New York we can't very well get to 'The Dene' before Monday?"

"I know; but I must go to New York—and then for the country. I mean to see Lake Champlain gleaming among the trees at the earliest possible moment."

"On the train between Niagara and New York, Rice was accosted by an elderly man who occupied a seat in the same section."

"Be my god," said the stranger. "But may I ask you the gentleman was to whom you spoke just now? He is in the Pullman car behind."

"Rice was always punctilious in such matters. That is Mr. Claude G. Waverton, and I am his valet," he answered.

FRIDAY MORNING, MAY 23
"DEBORAH" AND HER CRITICS.
 Rev. Mr. Coburn is having some hard things said about him these days, and he is evidently misunderstood by many. He is merely doing what he feels must be done under the circumstances and nothing can be gained by considering his action with prejudice. He represents a committee of forty and has been selected by them to cast the stone at the offender "Deborah." No doubt he recognizes the difficulty and inconsistency of the situation, but it is felt in some circles that the ancient order of ethics is somewhat out of date, and the sooner the tares are whipped out of the ground, the better for the harvest.

We have a somewhat different view of Mr. Coburn's case. He represents a mild or timid union which has had no competition until a century or so ago. Mr. Coburn and his class have had an exclusive monopoly of the preaching interest until the press and the stage began to invade that field. The stage has been preaching better, more effective, and more attractive sermons than the pulpit. But stage preachers are "scabs" and cannot be tolerated by the regular union. This contention will be settled some day, as it has been already in some quarters, but we do not believe that Mr. Coburn's methods will assist a settlement.

"Deborah," the play in question, is a sermon play, and it preaches a great moral. In this it entrenches on Mr. Coburn's union job, and he is bound to suppress it, if possible. The problem raised, he declared, does not exist, and if it did exist, it would be immoral to mention it. The pulpit does not generally deal with such questions, and Mr. Coburn is bound that no other preachers will.

Deborah's doctor in the kindest, gentlest way tells her that if she wishes to avoid nervous prostration, consumption or insanity she should marry and become a mother. She takes, in her everwrought nervous condition, the resolve to become a mother without the usual clerical intervention. After sixteen years of remorse and misery she confesses what she calls her sin. The doctor admits his mistake in giving the advice he did. Two other lives as well as her own are shown to be ruined by her violation of the moral code and the social conventions, and it is shown with distressing fidelity that the path of the transgressor is hard.

Mr. Coburn considers all this immoral, although if he dared to preach on these questions, his moral code would be none other than Mr. Legrand so convincingly sets forth. It is really the competition with his trade that gets on his nerves. There are constantly at the theatre compositions which are really immoral. In "The Merry Widow," for example, some of the characters resort to a summerhouse on the stage for admittedly immoral purposes, and other characters view the proceedings thru the keyhole with apparent satisfaction. But there was no preaching in "The Merry Widow." It did not compete with Mr. Coburn, and he did not protest.

Mr. Legrand's fine tribute to motherhood deserves success. His treatment of the subject is at least less gross than that of Lot and his daughters, and quite as delicate as the tale of Ruth, which we have all heard in church. The Jewish code provided for the marriage of women. Our civilized economies finds marriage too expensive a condition, so the committee of forty, all honorable men in their way, puts up Mr. Coburn to condemn Mr. Legrand's play, which recommends marriage and motherhood.

The Evening Star in a slimy from page editorial last night declares the story to be one which nobody would care to discuss in his home. The writer had evidently not seen the play, as he says if Deborah's "influence were great in this town, morality would collapse."

If the Star has any other standard of morality than "Deborah" upholds, it will explain much.

It is evident, as "The World" anticipated, that the dramatic censorship does not appear to everyone as a success. If the censor's word is to be final, what business has Mr. Coburn butting in? And if Mr. Coburn and the forty immortals are to assume the duties, what is the censor to do?

PROGRESS OF UGANDA.

months continuous travel, and the difference reveals the progress that has been made under British guidance. It was Henry Morton Stanley who first stirred Britain in 1875 to the action which changed the history of Uganda, writes John R. Harris in The London Daily News, and what has happened since the deportation of the cruel Mwanga in 1897 is wonderful testimony to the civilizing power of Christianity. Five and thirty years ago the Christian population numbered about 500 individuals. Today the church includes something like 300,000 adherents.

Uganda has about 3,000,000 inhabitants in its area of 117,851 square miles and its external trade is steadily increasing. Ten years ago the revenue was less than $250,000—it is now well over $1,000,000. In 1905 exports were valued at only $215,000, last year they were nearly $2,000,000. Within ten years the cotton export has risen from $1500 to over $300,000. A quarter of a century ago the people were illiterate, there are today 80,000 scholars in the various schools. It is facts like these and all they denote which bring home to British citizens what the expansion of the empire has done for the good of darkest Africa.

BURYING THE WIRES.
 Evening Telegram: "One thing impressed me very much," said Mr. Gaby. "That was the underground system for wires of all kinds. Toronto and other Ontario cities would be very much finer in their appearance if the wires were all underground. In most of the countries in Europe the wires in all the larger villages are underground and the underground system for everything and the removal of the forest of poles in this country is sure to come some day."

Does The Telegram still think that Mr. McNaught should go to a correspondence school for information on the question of burying wires, or is Mr. Gaby not a good enough authority?

"HOT-AIR ARTIST" IS COL. HUGHES
 LONDON, May 22.—(C. A. P.)—The resignation of Major Gen. Mackenzie as chief of the Canadian militia staff has caused not a little comment here, particularly in the military circles in which Hon. Col. Hughes moved during his visit last year.

OPPORTUNITIES

How many such opportunities there have been since this Corporation was established fifty-eight years ago! How many there have been in the experience of every man, young or old! And in this "growing time" there are, and will be for several years, many more opportunities than there have been in the past. Are you prepared to avail yourself of them? If not, prepare yourself. The Philosopher of Folly
 CLOTHES. EMPIRE DAY.
 In the ages of the past mighty empires had their day—kindoms rich, imperious, vast, rose to might and fell away; yet our empire-fag, still rears thru the smoke of centuries, having braved a thousand years of the battle and the breeze. Other empires sink and wane; nations molder into dust—all their might and valor vain, all their fetters turned to rust. They were held in blood and tears, bound by wars and cruelties thru the dark and bitter years—but her rule is not as these. Not by force of iron might do we pay that flag acclaim—we are bound in chains so light they are but a word, a name! Not as bondslaves ring our chains, not as serfs we bend our knees to the Jack that proudly rears on her battle-argosies. Justice reigns from coast to coast, freedom rings our cheers, not as serfs we bend our knees to the sea; all those things men cherish most hold we from her hand in fee. This her bondage which endears; this the tie which links and frees; this the trust to which she rears daughter empires overseas. Ours this heritage to keep, ours to play a worthy part, ours to defend, ours to stand strong and steadfast heart, with a strong and steadfast heart.

NAVAL POLICIES BOTH UNPOPULAR
 So Says Bourassa, But Admits That Proofs Are Lacking.
 MONTREAL, May 22.—In a bitter attack against Premier Borden today Henri Bourassa affirms, under his word of honor, that cabinet members have confused the unpopularity of the two naval policies. He writes: "Think of it! said one of the ministers, 'what humiliation for Canada that the empire if the people should vote against the contribution. To obtain a majority and even a decent vote in Ontario,' said another minister hailing from the province, 'we would have to drag the voters to the polls.'"

WEST OPPOSED TO BOTH.
 "Mr. Loughheed, minister without portfolio and the government leader in the senate, admitted that in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan the majority would be considerably opposed to both naval policies. Bourassa, "and I cannot give legal proofs, those interested being dominated by party exigencies would deny them," said another minister hailing from the province, "we would have to drag the voters to the polls.""

YOUNG BANKER LOSES FIGHT WITH DEATH
 Walker Maintained Courage to Last—Some Reports Denied.
 MAISON, Ga., May 22.—After bravely facing for a week the inevitable result of his mistake in taking a tablet of bichloride of mercury, B. Sanders Walker, a young Macon banker, died this morning. Members of the family had gathered at his bedside several days ago, when the doctors announced there was no hope for him. When the end came today Walker gave no sign of flinching, but went on to his death with a resignation that has rendered the case more than usually interesting throughout the country. During the last day Walker was under the influence of opiates most of the time, but in conscious intervals gave evidence that he was not suffering.

King's Platers Engage In Their Final Trials

Note and Comment

Tomorrow all roads will lead to the track at Woodbine Park, where, according to official announcement, the great sporting and social event of the year begins at 2:30 p.m.

The King's Plate is the feature, but there are also half a dozen other races on the program that should create interest.

However, it looks like a pretty sure proposition for the Oakville colt with the margin at the finish more as the matter for conjecture.

Robert Davies' four-year-old Gold Bud, that was also run a year ago, and the three-year-old colt Mansoula are the candidates counted upon to furnish the rest of the argument.

And how the mighty have fallen. The president could not be beaten from 1891 to 1901, inclusive, with one solitary exception, when Butterworth from Hamilton, broke the streak in 1892.

As said before, nothing can mar the success of the meeting except the weather and seven days' rain would only partially spoil the sport.

But the great bulk of the hangers-on are absentees. The knife brigade who came with the books and who seem to judge green books with the eye are no longer a menace to the first-class horse.

It is now up to Friday, the sixteenth, and Kelley's Klippers have not won a game during the week. Their trouble looks like a lack of work, which would eliminate these blue Mondays and tough Thursdays.

Nothing of a sensational character was witnessed at the Woodbine yesterday morning, as the track was many seconds slow, the result of recent rains, and for that reason little importance can be attached to the work of the King's Plate candidates, Mausoula, Rockspring and Hollybrook.

Each one of the trio was sent the full plate distance, with weight-up and the first named two ran in 2:10 not so very bad, considering the track conditions.

No effort for a fast trial was made with Hollybrook, as this colt had stepped a mile two days before in 1:45 and it was only at the last minute that her owner and trainer, Charlie Phair, decided to send her to the post.

The King's Plate candidates have all had their final work with the exception of breeding and the following is the result of their performances to date:

Gold Bud, 2:13 2-5 (Robt. Davies) Ondramida, 2:14 (Hy Giddings)

MAUSOULS AND ROCKSPRING THE LAST PLATERS TO WORK

Over a Track Several Seconds Slow This Pair Work in 2.20 - List of Probable Starters in Saturday's Big Race at the Woodbine.

Elfin, 2:15 1-5 (Brookdale St.) Volvoo, 2:15 2-5 (E. Seagram) Maid of Rome, 2:15 2-5 (J. E. Seagram) Mausoula, 2:15 2-5 (H. H. Roberts) Rockspring, 2:17 (Eon Hendrie) Porcupine, 2:20 (J. L. Hamilton) Miss Margie, 2:20 (J. L. Rydale) Hollybrook, 1:40 2-5 (Chas. Phair)

The race was decided on the result of the work done by the horses, of course first and third money would go to Mr. Giddings, but many animals have been good work horses and poor performers, with colors up. It is this uncertainty, however, that makes the spot interesting and this year's King's Plate has not been won by an ordinary sort of animal.

As usual scores of horses were bred and galloped yesterday, but the work was an ordinary sort and nothing was done by any one horse that could have been done by about all at the track.

Popular Cunard Steamers. There are probably no steamers of any line so great that Atlantic today that are more popular than those of the Cunard Line. Two years ago, the company put on the Boston service, the two fine new steamers, Franconia and Laconia, 18,000 tons, to run between that city and Liverpool, calling at Queenstown, and their popularity has been so great that it is difficult to get accommodation unless applications are made a long time in advance.

The Laconia will sail on her next trip on the 27th of May and land in Liverpool June 3. Passengers for this steamer may leave Toronto at 5:20 p.m. May 26, and arrive in Boston next morning without change of cars. A. F. Webster & Co., King and Yonge streets, will be very glad to give information about these steamers and to supply plans, etc.

Swannanoa at Nearly Twenty to One Wins Handicap at Louisville on Sloppy Track.

LOUISVILLE, May 22.—Swannanoa, at nearly 20 to 1, beat out Ten Point, the defeated favorite, for the Kentucky Derby in the handicap at Churchill Downs today. The Asto cow was the favorite again today, but Cowdin's Watercross mare proved too much for him, the sloppy track being to her liking.

WILL PRESS COLE IN MOTORCYCLE MEET

Local Flyer to Have Strong Opposition at Exhibition Park on Victoria Day.

At the Toronto Motorcycle Club's big meet at Exhibition Park on May 23, will be seen some whirlwind finishes. Since it is known that Harold Cole is likely to ride the same machine he had last year, it is believed that Joe Barbeau, the Indian rider, is getting cold feet. The Indian people would like to see Cole mounted on one of their machines, but Harold, believing that they wish to get him so that they can put him on a machine which will be a little slower than Barbeau's, decided to stay by last season's mount, as he does not intend to be robbed of his laurels. However, he may also have stiff opposition in Johnnie Mauer, who has been riding in Europe for the past two seasons, but is now in America.

Captain Art Warwick of the Toronto is confident that the Big Four champions will open the season with a victory tomorrow over the Irish Canadians at the beach, but if reports from Montreal are to be taken as any criterion, the Irish Canadians will spring one big surprise on the Blue Shirts. Jim Kavanaugh is said to have got the Irish Canadians into good condition, and with Donald Cameron to strengthen the defence, the Easterners look a much more formidable team than they were last season. LEAFS FAILED TO HIT UPON PINCHES GRAYS WON OPENER BY A RUN

Kelley Krew Had Plenty of Chances to Pull Out a Victory, But Needed Hit Was Missing—Bailey, a Southpaw, Downed the Leaflets—Graham's Double and Brown's Single Scored Only Run For the Locals.

Wild Bill Donovan and his Providence Grays made their initial appearance of the season at the local ball yard yesterday and crossed the bay to supper with the first game of the series wrapped up in a neat little parcel tied with a 2 to 1 string.

It was the old southpaw again and Bill Bailey, former of big league fame, got by with the victory. It was the failure to deliver the old base knock in the pinch that beat the Leafs. The Kelley Krew had chances enough to pull the game out of the fire, but the expected never happened and they went down to defeat.

Buster Brown went the journey for the Leafs and with a little more timely hitting behind him it would have been a different story. Bailey was never very much of a puzzle and a couple of fast double plays helped him out of holes.

Matty McIntyre, former Tiger and White Sox fielder, was the batting hero of the day with four safe blows. To his credit in as many journeys to the plate, Matty hit them all clean and drove in one of the Grays' two tallies. Graham, McConnell and Holly collected two each for the local outfit.

The Providence team are a wonderfully improved squad over last year and Manager Bill Donovan has them going at a grand clip. Bradley Koehler, the former Leaf backstop, shares up the receiving with J. Onslow for the Grays and looks just as fast as when he wore a Toronto uniform.

Powell, in the middle garden, is easily the hottest looking outfielder that has visited this burg this season. His only failure is with the willow. E. Onslow, who first is a nice performer and a timely hitter. Bauman, McDermott, Pratte and Shean were with the Grays last season.

The fielding was snappy at all stages and the only slip-up of the contest was when Bauman dropped a throw at second on a force out. The Leafs supplied two double plays, the visitors having the same number.

After Brown had disposed of the first two hitters he got lenient and handed Shean a base on balls. It was a disastrous error for Matty McIntyre, who dropped one deep enough in centre to let Shean gallop home. E. Onslow supplied another hit, but Bauman rolled out. McDermott was let on free in the next session, but nothing resulted. McIntyre supplied his second rap when he pooled to centre in the third. Two were out at the time and Graham cut off Matty at second with a perfect peg on an attempted steal.

With J. Onslow out of the way in the fifth Bailey drew a base on balls, after having two and nothing on him. Platte rolled at Holly and the side was stirred with a fast double play. The ex-Boston heaver was liberal once again and Shean went to first on a base on balls. The sixth with one down. Hit number three for Mr. McIntyre was then uncorred, but the next was easy.

After McDermott lifted to Northern in the seventh, J. Onslow came along with a two base rap and free ticket number five was issued to Platte. Powell fell down in the pinch and fanned, much to our relief.

Run Number Two in the Eighth. Brown failed to get thru the eighth so easily. Shean opened up with a single and McIntyre picked out his fourth sacrifice. E. Onslow, who had no such a sacrifice. Bauman's high fly to Fitts let in Shean, but McIntyre was thrown outly rapped into left on strikes on the second poke came along in the third with one out, but it was all over when Bradley hit into a double play. The fifth looked like a sure score, but no such luck. McConnell started with a single and was safe at second when Bauman dropped a throw at second. Onslow followed with a single and then Northern was caught off third on a force out. The Leafs supplied two double plays, the visitors having the same number.
