THE EVENING TIMES.

ST. JOHN, N. B., JUNE 1, 1907.

The St. John Evening Times is published at 27 and 29 Castelnau street, every evening (Sunday excepted) by the St. John Times Printing and Publishing Co., Ltd. a company incorporated under the Joint Stock Companies Act.

PROF. LEACOCK

The Times prints to day the paper on Medical Inspection in Schools, which was recently read by Dr. William F. Roberts before the St. John Medical Society, and which that body deemed of so much importance and value as to ask for its publication in the press, and to adopt resolutions urging the board of education to take action along the lines suggested.

PROF. LEACOCK

Prof. Leacock is being unnecessarily laboring for having written a facetious article to the London Morning Post, in which John Bull is not treated with the traditional reverence. The professor is charged with an exhibition of bad taste, and it is even asserted by some papers that as a lecturer on behalf of the Rhodes imperialism he is not a success.

A very important point is made by Dr. Roberts when he states that compulsory school attendance should involve compulsory medical inspection, to protect all the children from danger of contagion or infection. This point cannot be too strongly emphasized.

The Montreal Transcript devotes much space to an effort to prove that no practical test is needed to show the relative merits of Halifax and St. John as winter mail ports. In reply it is only necessary to state that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has declared St. John the best port and asked permission to prove it.

PROVINCIAL POLITICS

Hon. Dr. Pugsley's term as premier of New Brunswick has been brief, and he resigns to enter a wider field of political activity. During his short term at the head of the provincial government he displayed fine gifts of leadership, and what is most important, the faculty of initiative in matters of public policy.

School Superintendent Bridges expresses the opinion that in connection with the grant law an industrial school for incorrigible boys may have to be provided. This is a very satisfactory proposal inasmuch as it is a matter of fact, there should also be an industrial establishment or farm to which might be sent those inebriates who are continually before the police court for drunkenness.

RALPH CONNOR

This paper has more than once remarked that visits to this part of Canada by representative men of the west are a source of inspiration to our people that should be heartily welcomed. It is observed that when a man from the east goes west and returns, he brings back with him a degree of enthusiasm that before was foreign to his habit.

GOLDWIN SMITH SAYS

HE ABHORS ANNEXATION
Montreal, May 31.—A London cable says: Dr. Goldwin Smith, in the course of a letter in "The Manchester Guardian" on Canada and the imperial conference, says: "I abhor the word annexation, as it implies submission. I heartily deprecate anything violent, precipitate or injurious to the interest or honor of our mother country."

MONTREAL CUSTOMS RECEIPTS

Montreal, May 31.—Customs collections at the port of Montreal for May break all records, being $1,558,075, an increase over the corresponding month last year of $34,023. The previous best month was November, 1906, when $1,488,068 was collected.

CRITICISM

The critic eyed the sunset as the amber slow fading in the somewhat foggy west; To the critic's mind the sunset was a very dull display. "That's not good as sunset as he offered yesterday," he murmured, as he sadly turned away. "The sunsets can't be always at their best." —Charles Perkins Station.

"Freddy, you shouldn't laugh out loud in the schoolroom," exclaimed the teacher. "I didn't mean to do it," apologized Freddy. "I was smiling, when all of a sudden the smile busted." —Harper's Weekly.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Fair Devotee:—"I don't see any way to raise our church debt except to have a lottery." Minister (shocked):—"That will never have my sanction, madam, unless you call it by some other name." —London Tatler.

WORKS BOTH WAYS.

"The appetite," said the physician, "is always a consideration of great importance." "Yes," answered the man who is painfully economical, "if you have a poor one you waver about your health, but if you have a good one you worry about the expense." —Washington Star.

A PARTRIDGE TEST.

An English squire was examining an Irishman on his talents for the position of gamekeeper. At last he asked the latter to tell him an old bird from another of later birth. "By the teeth, sorr!" "But partridges have no teeth." "Begorra, I have!" —Judge's Library.

EXPLAINED.

"Why did you charge $1619.20 for a bootblack stand worth $90?" a capitalist was asked. "Because I thought there would be a lick if I charged any more," he replied pleasantly. "Anything else you're wanting to know today?" —Philadelphia Ledger.

AN IDIOT'S LOGIC.

It was a hot summer evening, and the minister preached for an interminable time, pausing to look around, he found everybody had gone to sleep but the village idiot. "Nobody," he exclaimed reproachfully, is listening to me but one poor idiot." The idiot immediately arose and said: "If I were not an idiot I should not be listening to you," and marched out of the building.—Correspondence of the London Spectator.

THEATRES AT THE OPERA HOUSE

The Lyceum Stock Company's engagement will close tonight. This afternoon A Night Off will be given its final presentation. Mr. Jelenko will appear in his excellent characterization of "Marcus Brutus Snap." A final reception will be held on the stage in honor of Miss Eleanor Hicks, the leading woman, and Frank Powell, leading man, who are to be married. Amherst next Wednesday. The fair bride-elect will serve those who attend with wedding cake. The members of the company will assist the young couple in receiving.

AT THE NICKEL

Drama, humor, pathos, athletics and scenic education is the story in a nutshell concerning the Nickelodeon programme of motion pictures this afternoon and evening. Tracked by Bloodhounds, Burglars and Poisoners, Scenes in Burnham, Football Game and When Friends Meet are the titles of the long and interesting films, and when the new illustrated song, "Never Seemed So Far Apart" Before, is added to the list an excellent menu is afforded. This is the big day for children, and with warm weather crowded performances should rule up to closing time at 10.30 p. m.

There's no "Shoddy" in Hewson Tweeds

As mentioned in the first of these talks, in Hewson Tweeds only choice, pure, raw wool is used.

"Shoddy"—coming from worn-out worsted, rags and clippings—consists of short, broken fibres, with a breaking strain of $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ pound. There's no elasticity, no life to it. It's dead and worthless.

Hewson Tweeds, with their long, sound, pure-wool fibres, have a breaking-strain of 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ pounds. Try the scale-test for yourself and see the difference.

When one realizes that 90% of the so-called woollen goods contain cotton and shoddy, it is well to know what brands are pure wool. A well-known expert states that in the "heavy woollen district" of Yorkshire, there are dozens of manufacturers who never buy a single bale of raw wool, and yet are known as leading manufacturers of woollen goods.

The best of shoddy is made from the sweepings of tailor-shops and the emptying of rag-bags. The worst is woven from the rotten, cast-off rags of beggars. This is the actual statement of a report given at the last convention of The International (American) Live Stock Association.

Apart from the danger of disease contained in unsavoury shoddy materials, there is no economy whatever in buying such fabrics. They won't wear—and they'll never look right.

But Hewson Tweeds wear long and well—pure, soft, rich, clean wool to the last—each thread having from 7 to 14 times the strength of a thread of shoddy.

Don't take any risk. Don't buy goods that have no trademark. Look for the Hewson brand of quality. Insist on your dealer supplying it—for it means pure, healthful all-wool. If he will not get these beautiful, strong tweeds for you, send us his name, and we'll be glad to mail you samples, at the same time getting him to stock up in Hewson Tweeds.

THE AUTHOR OF SKY PILOT DELIGHTS LARGE AUDIENCE

Rev. C. W. Gordon "Ralph Connor" Gave Readings From His Works Last Evening—A Chat With the Talented Author.

Known to thousands of St. John people as "Ralph Connor," the writer of such stirring tales as The Man from Glengarry, Black Rock, The Sky Pilot, The Prospector, The Doctor and Others, Rev. C. W. Gordon, pastor of St. Stephen's church, Winnipeg, arrived in the city yesterday and at the Opera House last evening delighted a large audience with readings from The Sky Pilot.

"Ralph Connor" looks a man in the forties with a speckled beard grizzled with grey, and thin dark hair, of medium height and rather slight in build. Dressed in clerical garb with the unassuming manner of the clergyman it needed not his assurance that his business was to preach, not to write books.

Rev. Mr. Gordon arrived yesterday at noon and is at the Royal. In the afternoon he was given a drive about the city in Jack Pugsley's big automobile, accompanied by the mayor, Rev. David Lang and others.

Speaking of matters in the west, Mr. Gordon said that although the season was late a good wheat crop was looked for. He referred to the great need of increased transportation facilities and spoke of St. John as the grain port of the west.

He thought the dominion was getting good crops of immigrants and said that there was room for all.

Rev. Mr. Gordon's lecture at the Opera House last evening was attended by a large and cultured audience that listened with close attention to a number of readings selected from his works. That "Ralph Connor" works are popular with St. John readers was evidenced by the close attention given to the reader and the hearty applause that followed each selection.

There was hardly a seat vacant on the

THE VALUE OF MEDICAL INSPECTION IN SCHOOLS

DEFECTIVE HEARING.

In London, Dr. Cheate examined 1,000 of the Haxwell district school, with the following results—

Normal hearing 432
 Middle ear 518
 Adenoids 434
 Enlarged tonsils 231

In Stuttgart, Germany—5,000 examined. 28 per cent. had defective hearing.

In Glasgow, Scotland—600 examined. 23 per cent. had defective hearing.

In Chicago about one-fourth of the school children are as defective in hearing as to interfere with school work.

When we remember that some of the causes of deafness are removable, especially in childhood, and that, as in the case of adenoid growths, other great evils, such as mouth breathing, may at the same time be removed, we can see that we have here more good work for the school medical officer to direct.

THE TEETH.

The condition of the teeth is closely connected with the question of physical degeneracy. Dr. Oler in presenting the prizes to successful students at the Royal Dental Hospital of London, last October, told them he thought there should be a dental surgeon attached to every public elementary school.

INFECTIOUS AND OTHER DISEASES.

Finally, there is the question of transmissible diseases of the kind spoken of here. There is no quicker and surer way to spread disease and death than to let light, incipient, or unrecognized cases of diphtheria, measles, or scarlet fever attend school. House epidemics of children's diseases are usually traced to a child who has been infected at school, and fatalities under three years of age are often the result of infection from an older child going to school.

From another table of statistics representing 806 children examined, only 218 were without defect of any kind. The remaining 588 had one or other morbid conditions.

The principal causes were as follows:

Rickets 118 cases
 Affections of the nose 165 cases
 Gland enlargement 165 cases
 Eye disease or refractive error 361 cases
 Affections of the nose and throat 426 cases
 Spinal curvature 61 cases
 Lung diseases apart from consumption 47 cases
 Ear diseases or discharges 91 cases

In Berlin of 32,992 children examined on their first entry into school, 3,056 were put back, that is, not allowed to come to school for a certain period of time.

The causes were anaemia and general debility, scrofula, rickets, nervous trouble, and defective intelligence. Of the children admitted, 7,330 required continuous supervision because of their eyes or ears or general weakness or slight tuberculous trouble.

ADVANTAGES OF MEDICAL INSPECTION.

Investigations conducted by well trained experts have demonstrated again and again that many children attend school suffering from contagious disease. In the first month of medical school inspection in Boston 437 sick children were found at school, 37 being ill with diphtheria and 104 with scarlet fever. Such children are as capable of infecting the things with which they come in contact as if they were suffering from severe attacks. Medical inspection would at once exclude these from school and have the rooms disinfected.

Investigations regarding the eyesight and hearing of children show that there are many in the schools who are handicapped in their progress by defective sight, or hearing, or both. The mild forms and early stages of these ill often escape the unaided observation of the teacher—a thing not to be wondered at, when it requires special skill on the part of the physician to discover the defect. In the majority of cases of defective hearing neither parent, teacher, nor child is aware of the defect. When it is understood that defective eyesight, imperfect hearing, and growths in the vault of the naso-pharynx are all too often the causes of abnormal stupidity and go hand in hand with poor talents, surely parents and school boards will see to it that these causes of imperfect work, wasted effort and failure to have adequate returns for legitimate expenditure, are so nothing of the effect upon the future progress of the country, will as far as possible be removed.

The following table shows that these defects are not imaginary:

Table of Physical Record of Children in New York City from March 27th to December 23rd, 1905.

Number of children examined	85,332
Number of cases of diseased adenoids	3,283
Number of cases of diseased cervical glands	14,214
Number of cases of diseased parotid glands	3,047
Number of cases of chorea	738
Number of cases of cardiac disease	895
Number of cases of pulmonary disease	600
Number of cases of skin disease	989
Number of cases of deformity of spine	485
Number of cases of deformity of chest	401
Number of cases of defective vision	16,394
Number of cases of defective hearing	1,296
Number of cases of defective nasal breathing	6,182
Number of cases of defective teeth	18,182
Number of cases of hypertrophied tonsils	689
Number of cases of hypertrophied adenoids	8,347
Number of cases of posterior nasal growths	5,119
Number of cases of defective mentality	1,210
Number of cases where treatment was necessary	33,851

Children are frequently troublesome and inattentive owing to over-exposure and over-fatigue. They are restless owing to the approach of some nervous trouble, as hysteria, St. Vitus's dance, or epilepsy. Needless to say that many teachers have neither the knowledge nor experience to enable them to deal wisely with such cases. They are intent upon the intellectual progress of the child and view him from that standpoint alone. It often requires the wise counsel of a quiet, tactful, medical expert, who views schools and school work from an entirely different outlook, to keep the teacher from doing much permanent injury to such pupils.

A thorough medical inspection dealing with the physical nature of the child will greatly improve the pathological conditions of childhood. It will tend to arrest and remove the evils of excessive brain work and long confinement, with deficient rest and sleep, together with a dietary improperly selected, poorly prepared, and inadequate to the nutrition of the growing child. It may be added that where medical inspection has been introduced, the well-to-do parents not only welcome it and act on the suggestions of the health inspector, but show their gratitude by writing letters of thanks as well.

THE METHODS OF EXAMINATION.

The child undergoes a physical examination when making application for permit to first enter school. Then visitation is made on the part of the medical inspector at regular intervals and specially when called upon by the teacher.

The inspector sometimes gives a series of lectures to the teachers on signs and symptoms of the more frequently occurring diseases among school children and in this way they keep a closer watch of pathological conditions existing among the children.

It is the duty of the medical inspector on finding a child in possession of some disease or condition requiring treatment to notify the parents and have the family Physician look into the same in this way preventing any professional friction.

If this system has proved so much service in other cities would it not be practicable to have the same adopted by the city of Saint John. We certainly ought to appreciate the fact that the generation of children entering school today should be a strong, hardy and well educated one, and if you would pardon me I would make bold to offer a suggestion as to how this matter might be carried out in our city. There are many cities throughout Canada and the United States who have what is known as a city physician. The exact duties of such an official I am not particularly familiar with, but I should imagine that one of such duties might be the medical inspection of public schools. There could be added a number of others such as coroner's physician, police and gaol surgeon, sanitary inspector of school buildings and other properties which are in the possession of the city, and no doubt such an official could attend to some of the city's poor, thus relieving the regular practitioners of some of the charity work which they are of necessity called upon to do.

The salary of such an official should be a generous one. Thus warranting the selection of the best man procurable. I sincerely believe it would be money most wisely invested on the part of our city and municipality.

The following resolutions touching the subject discussed in Dr. Roberts' paper were unanimously adopted by the Medical Society at its annual meeting—

Whereas the question of "Medical Inspection of Public Schools" has been receiving the attention of the cities and towns of almost every country in Europe, and in many of the States of the American Union, the Argentine Republic and now in quite a number of the cities throughout Canada, and Whereas the object of all school education is to develop the best type of the individual citizen—the best mentally, the best morally and the best physically.

And Whereas it is impossible to rear such a type of citizen without the strongest physical basis, namely: a strong, healthy body.

And Whereas statistics prove positively that of the multitude of children applying for permits for admission to public schools each year, there are between fifty and seventy-five per cent of same who have certain abnormal or diseased conditions, which if neglected, cripple the child for the successful prosecution of his school work to say nothing of the impairment of his future career, and in many instances result in premature death.

And Whereas had a careful medical inspection of such children been made the greater percentage of them might have been rescued from such conditions, and developed into strong, robust and hardy citizens, and whereas the same children, if neglected, are an expense to the country or nation a stronger and harder race.

And Whereas compelling children to attend school without permanent injury to themselves and their families, and endangering the lives of others we feel that it is our duty as guardians of the public health of the city to state that we are in the best interests of the citizens of Saint John to have compulsory medical inspection of schools.

And Be It Further Resolved that we petition the board of education of the province to have the law of compulsory medical inspection of schools in the province amended so that it shall be compulsory for all children of the age of six years and upwards to have a medical examination before being admitted to school.

And Be It Further Resolved that we petition the board of education of the province to have the law of compulsory medical inspection of schools in the province amended so that it shall be compulsory for all children of the age of six years and upwards to have a medical examination before being admitted to school.

CANADA TO WELCOME TWO ROYAL PRINCES

Duke D'Abruzzi of Italy and Prince Fushimi of Japan Will Be Here in a Few Weeks.

Ottawa, May 31.—The Duke D'Abruzzi will arrive at Quebec with the fleet of Italian warships he commands, about June 30, and will begin a tour of the principal cities of Canada. This means that Canada will have two royal foreign guests at one time, for the Prince Fushimi of Japan, will be receiving the hospitality of Vancouver when the Duke D'Abruzzi is being entertained in Quebec.

While the Italian prince is not coming to Canada on an official mission such as that on which he went to the United States, where he represented Italy, at the Jamestown exhibition, he is a personage of sufficient importance for any country to treat with a good deal of ceremony, particularly when he comes with a guard or warships. Therefore wherever he goes in Canada he will be received as the member of the royal family of Italy and as the representative of that country with which Canada would be glad to have improved commercial relations. Unless he signifies his desire for a quiet life he will be received with as much ceremony as Prince Fushimi.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system of circulation through the mucous surfaces, such ointments should never be used except on the most desperate cases, and then, as the damage they do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them, Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only safe remedy. It is made by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., and contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Unless he signifies his desire for a quiet life he will be received with as much ceremony as Prince Fushimi.

THE INCREASE IS ACCEPTED

I. C. R. Machinists Satisfied With Offer of Management.

Moncton, May 31.—A basis of agreement has been reached between I. C. R. machinists and General Manager Pottinger and Mechanical Superintendent Joughin. The management made a further offer of compromise in the matter of increase, asked for by the machinists and the same has been accepted subject to the ratification of Deputy Minister Butler. The increases agreed upon are as follows:

Machinists now receiving fifteen cents are increased to twenty per hour.

Men receiving twenty are advanced to twenty-four cents.

Twenty-four cent men are advanced to twenty-seven, and those receiving twenty-seven now increased to twenty-nine.

The increase takes place from the first of last April.

General Manager Pottinger, who left last night for Montreal, is to accompany Prince Fushimi in his tour of Canada on the trip through Ontario cities, leaving him at Toronto.

THE BAD BOYS AND THE "KID JUDGE" OF DENVER

to the Editor of the Times: Sir—Some of us have read with interest and a recognition of the right thing the methods of Judge Lindsey of Denver in his juvenile court. It makes one warm up into admiration for the man, who has sympathy, insight, a clear head and good judgment. That this is, perhaps, a rare combination is a reflection upon us as a community if we cannot furnish some approach to it. If Denver has it, St. John has at least encouragement to look for it. These methods are the only ones. The punishment in which one recognizes justice and feels at the same time an impulse toward better things, a softening of the heart coupled with a courage to overcome evil—this is the only true reason for correction.

His success in getting a gang of boy thieves into court after the police had given them up. Why, the little rats fairly swarm up there. But his success is no mystery to any one who watches him in the court-room. The county court of the city and county of Denver is a probate court, with jurisdiction in certain other cases. And every second Saturday it sits as a juvenile court—"Lindsey's Sunday-School" the police from the bench to a camp-chair on a low platform. Beside him, keeping a record of the cases, sits Mrs. Gregory, a probation officer. Two other probation officers and one or two truant officers are in the room, but there is no policeman, and no officer of any sort in uniform. Teachers and principals from the ward schools are present in force to advise and explain. For the rest, there are one hundred and fifty boys—the few girls come on another day, most of them between the ages of eight and fourteen, sitting in camp-chairs and swinging their feet. It is a clean crowd, though it wasn't so originally. Judge Lindsey found a room in the basement where the engineer stored his oil. He had it emptied and cemented, and water pipes put in. Now the boys crowd there for shower-baths before going into court. These probations are required to appear every second Saturday with a report from the teacher of the ward school. "The boys from the Webster School," calls the Judge, and half a dozen little chaps crowd forward about him, ragged, perhaps, but clean.

THE "KID JUDGE" OF DENVER.

By Henry J. Haskell

A Denver school inspector recently sent a boy to the blackboard to write three proper names.

"If you like," replied the inspector.

"George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Ben B. Lindsey."

Colorado thinks its juvenile laws the best in the union. They are. They provide for the paroling of young offenders and for compulsory school attendance; they prohibit child labor and the confinement of children under fourteen years of age in jails, and they penalize contributory delinquency on the part of parents and other adults. The capital city, moreover, maintains an admirable detention school, where delinquent children may be sent temporarily. Besides, there is a state industrial school for boys at Golden, and for girls at Morrison. But the chief factor in the Colorado situation is not the laws, but the personality behind them. For this short, slight, bushy man of thirty-five, in the frock coat, with the keen eyes and the soft voice, has his finger on every troublesome boy in the city, and under his wise management the leaders of the "gangs" have been transformed into pillars of the law.

Early in the court's history the street railway company was having trouble from boys who were demolishing cars and smashing windows. Officers finally caught seven and took them to the juvenile court. Now, Judge Lindsey never asks one boy to "tell on" another. "Snitching," as the street calls it, is against the ethics of the gang, and the Judge assumes that a boy's sense of honor is as sacred as a man's.

"I don't want you to tell on the other fellows," he said to the seven, "but you get them to come into court tomorrow, and I'll give them a square deal."

The next day they returned alone. The other boys were frightened, they reported, but they believed, if the Judge would write them a letter, they would come.

"All right," he said, "What shall I say?"

"Begin," replied one, with the evident intention of refusing a charge already brought against him. "No kid has snitched, but if you'll come the Judge'll give you a square deal."

One day or two later fifty-two boys crowded into his chambers. He explained the character of their offense, and then organized a Little Citizens' League to maintain order in the neighborhood.

"Now, we're not going to have any more policemen out there," he said to the League. "I've told the company that I'll be responsible for their having no more trouble. I'm depending on you, now. You won't throw me down boys, will you?"

"You bet we won't," Judge, they shouted. And they didn't.

"I don't see how he does it," said a Denver man, after recounting Judge Lindsey's story.

PROPER MEDICINE FOR THE BLOOD

Drives Away That Tired Feeling; Makes You Feel Brisk.

To every one is sure to come that tired, exhausted feeling.

When the blood is weak, thin and debilitated, circulation is slow, and in consequence the system is congested with poisons and wastes that should be driven off.

The sensible person acts on the teachings of experience and cleanses his system with a course of Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butter.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills are more certain to quickly cure. Convenient to take, just one pill at bedtime; safe, because entirely vegetable; infallible, because proved by thousands that Dr. Hamilton's Pills act upon you in a few days.

From Chebeque, N. S., comes the following from Mrs. W. A. Reynolds: "A year ago my health began to fail. I lost appetite, became nervous and sleepless. My weight ran down, I became thin, hollow checked, and had black rings under my eyes. I really felt as if the charm of life had left me and when spring time arrived I was in the 'Blues.' I read of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and got five boxes at once."

"Within a month my appetite and color were good. I gained strength and felt like a new woman. New life and vigor returned, and my friends scarcely knew me. A medicine that will do this should be in every home."

Good health means much to you. Success and happiness depend upon it. The maintenance and source of health is found in Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, or by boxes for $1.00, at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

Assistant Commissioner of Patents.

(By Lucille Meyer.)

Bennington eyed with approval the trim little figure that whisked into the door next to his as he sallied forth for the evening newspaper.

Any one would have been an improvement upon the dominating woman who had been the previous occupant of that flat. He wished his mother were home again, that he might coax her to call next door and see if there were anything she could do to help the newcomer. He wished his mother were home, anyhow. He was tired of camping out by himself, and taking his choice between a restaurant dinner or a tin of soup at home.

He did not begrudge the Mater the little vacation trip. She deserved it after the long winter spent in making him comfortable, but it was lonesome work keeping house by himself.

He got the paper and climbed the stairs again, but his expression changed in an instant. The girl next door stood there in the soft dusk, and it seemed to him that she was even prettier than he had thought from his first fleeting glimpse.

"Is your wife at home?" he asked, with a timid smile.

Bennington shook his head. "I'm sorry," he laughed, "but I'm all out of wives at present. Never had one, for that matter."

"Excuse me," she said with a blush, "I wanted to see if I might borrow some butter. I forgot to get some, and I am so tired getting settled that it seems such a long way down all these stairs."

"I'll see if we've got any," he said promptly, though he ate crackers with his morning coffee to save the trouble of keeping ice and butter and things. It was hard enough to bother about keeping the coffee filled, without remembering about ice every other morning.

He came back in a moment. "Mother's all out," he said glibly, "but we're expecting some things from the grocery's. When they come I'll bring some in. How much do you want? A pound, or a half pound?"

"Half a pound," she laughed. "Just a little."

"Mother'll send it in when it comes," he promised, and the smile she gave him as she retired to her own side simply repaid him for the trouble of putting on his shoes again and climbing down three flights of stairs.

With an excess of caution he imitated the dumb-waiter whistle, and then laboriously pulled the creaking abomination up stairs before he rapped on her door and handed in his purchase. He felt that the small grating had been closely bought at the price of a leg, or frisk, or whatever they called it, and went on to sit in the kitchen fire escape, where he might hear the girl singing as she worked in her own kitchen.

Later in the evening she leaned out to her dish towel to dry and smile pleasantly at him as she saw him there smoking. He made some comment about the weather, and presently she was chatting as pleasantly as if they were old friends.

She was from the country, she said, and was going to state to ride and smile and try to do something with her painting. She had come on ahead to get a home for her mother, who would join her in the fall.

After that she fell into the habit of gossiping in the evenings as she sat on the fire escape. Several times she came to borrow something, and no matter how tired he was, there was always the excuse that the groceries did not come, and a trip to the corner store.

It was much easier to get what she wanted than it was to get rid of what she returned. There was at times an mournfully regarded three separate pats of butter melting on the tube, to say nothing of a couple of pounds of flour, some coffee and three loaves of bread.

It was almost as hard to get rid of the stuff as it was to invent new excuses for his mother. He could see that she regarded the unseen woman as a chaperone, and he invested his mother with half a dozen maidens, from the most beautiful to the ugliest, when the girl explained that she had called during the day and had found the old lady out.

All through the long summer weeks they made the fire escape their roof garden, and long before September he had fallen so deeply in love that only the necessity for presenting his mother had him back from a proposal.

Then came the evening when he returned from the office to find the doors of the two flats open. There were voices in the front room, and as he entered the tiny private hall a burst of laughter halted him.

"I kept borrowing little things all summer," the girl was saying. "I wonder whether she'll get them."

"From the corner," his mother answered, and there was another burst of laughter.

"I don't care," protested the girl. "He's a dear! Lots of men would have let me go to the store myself."

Bennington went back to the door and slammed it. Then he went into the parlor to welcome his mother, and to learn that she and the girl's mother were old schoolmates. The two mothers beamed approvingly upon him, but the girl slipped behind the door.

He found her later, on the fire escape, and there were explanations, while the girl looked straight ahead.

"It was very good of you," she said, softly, "and very thoughtful of you to keep up that fiction about your mother. It made it so easy for me. But it was hard on you to yet you go all the way down stairs for anything I wanted."

"I wish I could always buy your groceries for you," he said, taking her hand.

"The girl did not try to withdraw it.

"You may," she said, simply, as she raised her face to his.

His Invisible Mother

(By Lucille Meyer.)

Bennington eyed with approval the trim little figure that whisked into the door next to his as he sallied forth for the evening newspaper.

Any one would have been an improvement upon the dominating woman who had been the previous occupant of that flat. He wished his mother were home again, that he might coax her to call next door and see if there were anything she could do to help the newcomer. He wished his mother were home, anyhow. He was tired of camping out by himself, and taking his choice between a restaurant dinner or a tin of soup at home.

He did not begrudge the Mater the little vacation trip. She deserved it after the long winter spent in making him comfortable, but it was lonesome work keeping house by himself.

He got the paper and climbed the stairs again, but his expression changed in an instant. The girl next door stood there in the soft dusk, and it seemed to him that she was even prettier than he had thought from his first fleeting glimpse.

"Is your wife at home?" he asked, with a timid smile.

Bennington shook his head. "I'm sorry," he laughed, "but I'm all out of wives at present. Never had one, for that matter."

"Excuse me," she said with a blush, "I wanted to see if I might borrow some butter. I forgot to get some, and I am so tired getting settled that it seems such a long way down all these stairs."

"I'll see if we've got any," he said promptly, though he ate crackers with his morning coffee to save the trouble of keeping ice and butter and things. It was hard enough to bother about keeping the coffee filled, without remembering about ice every other morning.

He came back in a moment. "Mother's all out," he said glibly, "but we're expecting some things from the grocery's. When they come I'll bring some in. How much do you want? A pound, or a half pound?"

"Half a pound," she laughed. "Just a little."

"Mother'll send it in when it comes," he promised, and the smile she gave him as she retired to her own side simply repaid him for the trouble of putting on his shoes again and climbing down three flights of stairs.

With an excess of caution he imitated the dumb-waiter whistle, and then laboriously pulled the creaking abomination up stairs before he rapped on her door and handed in his purchase. He felt that the small grating had been closely bought at the price of a leg, or frisk, or whatever they called it, and went on to sit in the kitchen fire escape, where he might hear the girl singing as she worked in her own kitchen.

Later in the evening she leaned out to her dish towel to dry and smile pleasantly at him as she saw him there smoking. He made some comment about the weather, and presently she was chatting as pleasantly as if they were old friends.

She was from the country, she said, and was going to state to ride and smile and try to do something with her painting. She had come on ahead to get a home for her mother, who would join her in the fall.

After that she fell into the habit of gossiping in the evenings as she sat on the fire escape. Several times she came to borrow something, and no matter how tired he was, there was always the excuse that the groceries did not come, and a trip to the corner store.

It was much easier to get what she wanted than it was to get rid of what she returned. There was at times an mournfully regarded three separate pats of butter melting on the tube, to say nothing of a couple of pounds of flour, some coffee and three loaves of bread.

It was almost as hard to get rid of the stuff as it was to invent new excuses for his mother. He could see that she regarded the unseen woman as a chaperone, and he invested his mother with half a dozen maidens, from the most beautiful to the ugliest, when the girl explained that she had called during the day and had found the old lady out.

E. C. BILLINGS

NEW YORK, May 30.—Cornelius C. Billings, who will become assistant commissioner of patents on June 1 by appointment of the president, was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in the class of 1888, having entered the academy from Vermont in 1882.

He was honorably discharged from the navy June 20, 1888, his final graduation under provisions of the act of congress approved August 1882, but served as ensign in the Spanish-American war. Mr. Billings entered the United States patent office as an assistant examiner in 1889, and has been advanced steadily in his walk of life.

He has been successively law clerk, examiner of interferences and examiner in chief. It is generally accepted that his appointment is a strong one and will materially aid to the successful administration of the patent office.

His successful career in his chosen profession of patent law has reflected great credit upon his alma mater and is another testimonial to the fine training which the academy gives, and additional proof, if any were needed, that her graduates are not only fine officers and men, but capable of successful careers in any walk of life.

story of the purchase of the extras. The prisoner and his companion were released on probation, with instructions to appear at the chambers the next week for a private talk. The four boys involved in the window-smashing had been questioned by police and probation officers in vain. They didn't break the window, and they knew nothing about it. Fearful, yet defiant, they faced the Judge, and began repeating their denials. He set the leader on his knees, and a little kindly talk brought out the facts. The boy who really threw the stone was to be persuaded to come in and talk with the Judge, and the gang went to pay for the window.

The boys are encouraged to regard the court as their friend. One day, in the midst of litigation involving an estate worth more than a million dollars, a youngster, with a bundle of newspapers under his arm, burst into the room, shouting: "Judge, I want an injunction!"

The attorney were shocked and the hearing started to put the boy out. "Hold on," said Judge Lindsey; "a live boy is worth more than a dead man's millions. We'll adjourn court for five minutes and hear what he has to say."

The lad explained that a "fly cop" had just come on the beat, and because he was jumping on cars to sell papers, had driven him from the corner which had been his business stand for several years. He was being run out of business by a "fly cop" who was jumping on cars to sell papers, had driven him from the corner which had been his business stand for several years. He was being run out of business by a "fly cop" who was jumping on cars to sell papers, had driven him from the corner which had been his business stand for several years.

"I know, I can depend on you, Johnny can't I?"

"You can depend on me, Johnny can't I?"

"That's right. That's the way to talk. You'll bring 'em back' next time, won't you?"

"I'll try."

"Sure, you will"—slapping him on the back. "You're my kind, Johnny. Now don't forget."

So they pass in a long procession, each one called by name and greeted with a handshake or a slap on the back; those who have done well encouraged by the exclamation, "Bully" for you, Linder." "Fine; that's out of sight," the few less fortunate braced to do better with "I'm mighty sorry to hear that, Tom." "Oh, pahaw, that'll do." "Say, you won't throw me down, Skippy."

Sometimes a boy's physical condition attracts the judge's attention. "Son, why don't you like to go to school?" he asks one with a long tummy record, drawing the boy to his side.

"I have had headaches," is the reply. The judge looks him over carefully. "Is his mother here? Oh, yes. Well, have you ever had George's eyes examined? No? Come around to chambers tonight and I'll give you a note to Dr. Smith."

Many such cases occur. The most remarkable, perhaps, is one the Denver almanac proposes to report at length to the profession. A boy who was an m-r and unruly that both parents and teachers had given him up became tractable and happy under the care of the physician whom Judge Lindsey called in when he learned that in early childhood the lad had had epileptic fits.

The school-teacher at the juvenile court's faithful allies. They have learned that the truant is under special temptation to petty thieving. Each teacher has a list of the boys on probation. If one fails to appear at morning roll-call the fact is telephoned to the juvenile court office within ten minutes and the case is at once investigated by a probation officer.

After the school cases are disposed of, the complaints of a more serious character are heard. At a recent session of the court after Judge Lindsey had been out of town for five weeks and the docket had been accumulating, only two criminal charges were brought, and those were for minor offenses. Two boys were charged with robbing a drunken man of a bottle of beer and a small sum of money, and four others were accused of implicating in the breaking of a suburban merchant's window.

"Well, Isaac, how was it?" said the judge to one of the first two. "I took the bottle, Judge, but I didn't take any money."

"Honor bright?"

"Yes, Judge."

"Well, I believe you, Isaac. I believe the cop was mistaken about the money. Where did you get it?"

"It was only a dollar twenty-two, Judge. I made it selling thirty extras."

"All right. Just wait a few minutes over there. But we can't have any more robbing of drunks. That was wrong, wasn't it?"

"Yes, Judge."

"And you're going to cut it out, and the drinking, too? We aren't going to have to send you to Golden?"

The boy promised, and later a messenger sent by the court to the newspaper office returned with confirmation of the

PAIN IN BACK AND KIDNEYS.

People often say, "How are we to know when the kidneys are out of order?"

The location of the kidneys, close as it is to the small of the back, which is not affected materially by other organs, renders the detection of kidney trouble a simple matter.

The note of warning comes from the back. Backache is the signal sent out by the kidneys the minute they become overworked. Those who heed the warning when it first comes, usually have but little trouble. The danger lies in delay. A few doses of taken in time, often save years of suffering, and in many cases life itself.

They stimulate the action of the kidneys, enabling them to perform their duty perfectly.

Miss S. C. P. Egan, Secaucus, N. J., writes: "I had the most terrible pain in my back and kidneys. It was so bad I had to lie in bed for several days. I had several doctors attend me, but they could not find the cause of my trouble. I had a bottle of Doan's Kidney Pills, and found out about your remarkable remedy. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me. I don't think they have an equal for kidney trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box or boxes for $1.00 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Grand Falls, N. J."

Grand Falls News.

Grand Falls, N. B., May 30.—Thomas Bell, while working at a planer yesterday in Burgess & Davis' woodworking factory, got his arm caught in the machine and was badly cut near the shoulder. The wound is a severe one, but it will not, it is said, be necessary to amputate the arm. Joseph McVey, of Joseph McVey & Son, the contractor for the new Catholic church, is here, and the contract will be signed in a few days. The contractors have the option to use freestone or concrete blocks in the erection of the church. The church, which will be 60x120 feet with a tower 135 feet in height, will be one of the largest, if not the largest, church in the maritime provinces. The contract price for finishing the exterior of the building is $21,425.

Skin Disease is Blood Disease

"Fruit-a-tives" clean the blood of all impurities and clear the complexion.

Pimples and Blotches—Redness—Boils—Eczema and other inflammations of the skin—mean impure blood.

A person with a bad complexion always suffers from poor digestion—non-action of the bowels (or Constipation) and often the kidneys are weak.

These unhealthy organs cannot rid the system of the waste matter. It is this waste—taken up by the blood and carried to the skin—that ruins the complexion.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure all skin troubles because they cure the kidneys and bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" cause the eliminating organs to do their proper share of the work of ridding the system of waste. This purifies the blood—and instantly the pimples and blotches disappear, and the complexion clears.

"Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices, intensified, and combined with valuable tonics and antiseptics. They are without doubt the greatest blood purifier in the world. 50c. a box—6 for $2.50. At all druggists.

LATE LOCALS

A meeting of the Tinsmiths' Union will be held in Brynman's Hall on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

The friends of David Stewart of 11 Elliott Row are glad to learn that he is able to be out again after a severe illness from rheumatism.

The N. B. Southern Railway will hereafter have their passenger station at the head of the west side foresh. This building is owned by the C. P. R. and this arrangement also shows a close alliance between the two companies.

Rev. J. W. Keirstead, the new pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist church, who will preach at both services on Sunday, has arrived in the city with his family and will occupy the house at the corner of Brindley and Waterford streets, where his predecessor, Rev. Mr. Stackhouse, resided.

Thirteen deaths were reported at the board of health office during the present week, as follows: Paralysis, two; consumption, two; bronchitis, tuberculosis, brain tumor, pelvic abscess, softening of the brain, bronchial asthma, heart and liver disease, accidentally drowned, malignant tumor of the pelvis, one each.

Truant Officer McMan and Dr. Bridges express themselves as highly pleased with the manner Judge Ritchie dealt with the cases of truancy that were before him a week ago. Mr. McMan states that the moral effect will be good in the majority of cases. He says that one of the truants arrested last Saturday will probably have to be re-arrested, and for this class of boys Dr. Bridges expresses the opinion that the city will eventually have to provide parental or industrial schools where truants who prove incorrigible may be kept.

SMALL BOYS IN THE COURT

Several Boys Charged With Disorderly Conduct Before Judge Ritchie.

Both parents and small boys got a few pointers from Judge Ritchie this morning when John McElroy, Glover Bennett, Frank Bennett and Joseph Rodgers—none of them over sixteen years old—were in court as members of a disorderly crowd on the corner of St. James and German streets on Sunday, May 28. McElroy had been playing ball on the day in question. The others denied the charges against them, and all were severely lectured. His honor pointed out to the youngsters that there was a penalty for scratching the paint on fences, and told them that they could be fined $8 if they shouted in the street or rang door bells.

MR. SPENCER'S POEMS

Editor Times: Sir—Your suggestion that the poems of H. L. Spencer should be collected and published ought to meet with a hearty response. I asked him several years ago where I could get a copy of his poems and he told me with a characteristic remark: "That there was no book in poetry"—and no book had ever been published. I was very much surprised. His poem alone "The City of Sleep," should give sale to hundreds of copies of his collected poetry, to those whose dead are sleeping in Fernhill.

WEDDED EARLY THIS MORNING

Archibald C. L. Tapley and Miss Grace Estabrook Married at 6 O'clock Today.

A wedding that is of particular interest to members of the staff of the Evening Times took place this morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Estabrook, 54 Elliott Row, when their youngest daughter, Miss E. Grace Estabrook, was united in marriage to Archibald Coombs Lowell Tapley, business manager of the Times. The ceremony was performed at 6 o'clock by the Rev. W. W. McMaster, pastor of Germain street Baptist church, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride, who wore a gown of white bridal silk, trimmed with rose point lace, and carried a bouquet of bridal carnations. Little Miss Margaret Deacon Candall, of Moncton, acted as flower girl. She was dressed in the same muslin and carried a basket of flowers. The groom was supported by his brother, G. Harvey Tapley, and the bride was given away by her father.

At the conclusion of the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Tapley left on the steamer Prince Rupert for a tour through the Annapolis Valley, during which they will attend the closing exercises at Wolfville. The formal decorations of the room where the ceremony was held were in white and green, consisting of palms and blooming plants. The dining table was prettily decorated with pink flowers and smilax.

That the young couple have a host of friends and well wishers was amply shown by the large array of handsome and costly presents of every description that was sent to them.

In the Times office yesterday Mr. Tapley was summoned before a gathering of the members of the various branches of the staff, and A. M. Beilings, the editor of the paper, read an address, evidently prepared, at least in part, by the New Reporter, which was presented to Mr. Tapley.

The business manager was welcomed to the ranks of the benedictus and given an expression of the good wishes from the assembled party, to which he made a fitting reply. The staff sent a buffet to Mr. Tapley's future residence, 134 Douglas avenue, to which the bride and groom will go on their return home.

Among the guests who attended the wedding from outside the city were Mrs. W. H. Crandall and daughter, Miss Margaret Crandall, of Moncton; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Dickson and Miss Frances Dickson of Hillsboro; Mrs. C. D. Williams of Beaubien, Y. P., and Miss Bertha Wilkins, of Peterboro, New Hampshire.

ARTILLERY MARCH OUT

Three Hundred Men in Line at March Out Last Night.

3rd Regiment Canadian Artillery, took place last night and 300 men were in line under the command of Major Baxter. Headed by the regiment's band the men marched down the foot of King street to King street East, where the men were put through a number of movements in company and half company drill. The band played a few selections and the regiment marched back to Market Square, where Major Baxter addressed the men complimenting them on their fine appearance. The companies were then handed over to their officers.

The Artillery Band played well last night and now has about 40 members. It is in charge of Messrs. Honsman and McNeil. The band's concert will be held in the opera house June 14th, and a fine programme is being arranged. Harry McCaskey will be heard in a number of vocal selections.

SERIOUS FIRE LAST EVENING

Building at Corner of City Road and Brindley Street Burned.

About 9:45 last night an alarm from box 412 announced a fire in the house owned by Mrs. Susan Case on the corner of Delhi street and City Road. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it apparently started in the cellar and had made good headway before the alarm was sounded.

In the house resided Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Briggs and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Addison, down stairs, and on the upper flat lived Mr. and Mrs. Isaac S. Mann and Mrs. Case. By the fire all four families lost everything, except Mrs. Case, who saved a few trifling articles. She carries a small amount of insurance with Messrs. White & Calkin, but the other three families have none.

When the fire broke out Mrs. Addison had just time to catch up her year-and-a-half-old child and run to the house of a neighbor. Mr. and Mrs. Briggs were in north end at the time and hurrying home found all their belongings ruined.

A FISHERMAN ROBBED.

Fred Ford Relieved of His Watch, Ring and Money.

Fred Ford of the United States who has been fishing at Ludgate Lake, was sandbagged and robbed while returning to camp last night. He was discovered in an unconscious condition by a young man named Brown, who was wheeling on the Ludgate Lake road.

The robbers took from Ford a gold watch, worth $100, a valuable diamond ring, and $24 (two ten dollar bills and two twos).

Last night two detectives were searching in the vicinity of the camp occupied by Ford and his companion. When Ford was revived he was taken back to camp.

Mrs. T. T. Landry, of Memramook, who has been the guest of Mrs. J. J. Bradley, Paddock street, left last night for Baltimore to be present at the commencement in the Johns Hopkins University on June 11, when her son, Aubrey, will take the degree of Ph. D.

LADIES of St. John, we confidently assure you of most remarkable values in these new, stylish garments. The situation is a unique one in the history of our business—two phenomenally cold and backward Spring months, a raw blustery almost wintry approach to Summer, which naturally has had a serious effect on the sale of made-up wearables. The conditions, as is universally conceded, are without parallel in modern years and along with other branches of trade our business has of course, felt the influence of this unseasonableness. Therefore, in order to average sales, so as to clear out our stock at once, we offer Costumes, Jackets, Coats, etc., at such striking reductions that no lady in need of such will hesitate to make a quick selection. No fear of dissatisfaction, it's our exquisite Spring and Summer goods we offer: nothing passe or defective.

- SMART AND MODISH COSTUMES, $16.00 to $30.00; JACKETS AND LONG COATS, 5.75 to 8.75; CHILDREN'S REEFERS, 2.50 to 4.00; MISSES' COATS, 5.00 to 8.00.
