to tell you," whispered Claisie, as I descended the stairs. I went to Mr. Capel's office.

"You may consider me no longer your client. I'm going to plunge head-long into matrimony," I said on entering.

"Without seeing Miss Brooke? I hear she has arrived, and was on the point of visiting her."

I laughed, but he evidently did not like the ringing, careless tone of my merriment; it sounded like a funeral knell to his cherished hope of still retaining the position of legal adviser to a millionaire.

I went to my hotel, dressed, and then returned to Mrs. Grantham's. I was sitting in the gloaming of evening on a sofa, with my arm around my darling, ruminating the words I had taken amid Heidelberg's ruins.

The slant crimson rays of the setting sun were streaming across the room, glinting on the golden tresses of my love, till they shone like a nimbus of glory, and I was gazing, spell-bound by her beauty, when the door opened, and Mr. Capel appeared on the threshold.

"Pardon my intrusion, Miss Brooke; the servant told me you were alone," he said, and then stopped, mute with astonishment, on seeing me.

"This is Miss Brooke, but my intended, Miss Grantham. Permit me to introduce you Claisie. This is my lawyer, Mr. Capel," I said.

They bowed to each other.—Mr. Capel with most mystified expression gazed at the girl, who, I had taken amid Heidelberg's ruins. The slant crimson rays of the setting sun were streaming across the room...

"Am I dreaming, Miss Brooke?" he said at last. "I ought to have told you before, Harold. I meant to have told you just now. Mrs. Grantham is not my aunt—only a friend I was travelling with. She wished me to pass as her niece on our journeys but my real name is Brooke. Can you forgive me not having told this to you?" he said.

The whole truth flashed upon me at once. Could I forgive her, indeed? Why, I covered her rosy cheeks with kisses then, bringing tears to the eyes of the lawyer by the warmth with which I grasped his hand.

"Why, Claisie, darling, you are my own cousin—the identical one that Uncle John ordered me to marry, and whom I pictured to myself a fat, dairy-maid sort of girl!" I cried in glee.

"I don't know whether to put that construction on it or not," replied Claisie, archly. "It is also true that he was willing to surrender that estate rather than marry his cousin—and I am that cousin."

I replied by again covering her blushing face with kisses. It was not till years had elapsed, and Lockhart and the pretty widow were married, and were on a visit to our happy home, that I learned that it was all a put-up job on the part of the lawyer, Lockhart, the widow and Claisie.

They were afraid I would be as great a fool as my brother had been, as they took care that Claisie's should be that fact.

"EMBRIC STORM.—A most destructive wind and rain storm visited Kansas city between one and two o'clock last Sunday morning. The wind blew sixty miles per hour. The rain fell was heavy and the lightning terrific. The city presented a frightful spectacle. Not a single square in town was free from the streets in every quarter were strewn with signs and awnings, limbs of trees, roofs and debris of all kinds. Scarcely an exposed chimney being blown down, roofs taken off and in many cases houses being ruined. Among the more serious losses were the iron bridge between the city and Armourville, three spans of which were carried away. Street railroad stables, court house and Coot's office house lost their roofs. All the hotels were more or less damaged and business houses and dwellings in every part of the city suffered. The total loss will amount to $200,000. Information from the surrounding country shows the storm was pretty general, and that nearly all kinds of property.

It was in the smoking car on the New York Central. There was one chap who was blustering a great deal and telling of how many deeds he had fought, and he hid him self a small man reading a magazine.

"Sir," said the big man, as he wheeled around, "what would you do if challenged?" "Refuse," was the quiet reply. "Ah! I thought as much. Refuse and be branded a coward! What if a gentleman offered you the choice of a duel or a public horse-whipping—then what?" "I'd take the whipping."

Election Cards. To the Electors of the County of Northumberland: GENTLEMEN: I shall again be a Candidate for election to the Representation of the County in the Local Assembly.

My political course shall be as consistent in the future as in the past, and my endeavours shall always be to advance the interests of the Province, and the County of Northumberland in particular.

I have the honor to be, Gentlemen, Yours, faithfully, E. HUTCHISON. June 1, 1882.

Election Card. To the Electors of the County of Northumberland: GENTLEMEN:—On the 23rd of June next you will be called upon to elect four members to represent you in the Local Assembly.

Having had the honor of being your Representative for eight years, I will again be a Candidate for your suffrages. You can judge by my public acts in and out of Assembly, if I am worthy of your confidence for another term.

If again returned I will use my best endeavors to abolish the Legislative Council and do away with the expenses of Government House. I will advocate more economy and efficiency in all the public Departments of the Government and many other reforms much needed in the Province.

I will look after and secure for our boys-roads and bridges their full share of the public monies appropriated for that purpose and will assist with my best efforts the construction of the Miramichi Valley Railroad and a bridge at Nelson. All measures introduced for the good of the Province generally shall (after due consideration) have my support, independent of party.

I will see as many of you as I can before the Election and will then more fully explain my views on public matters. Hoping I may still merit your support, I am, Gentlemen, Your Obedient Servant, T. F. GILLESPIE. Chatham, May 27th, 1882.

CARD. To the Electors of the County of Northumberland: At the earnest solicitation of a large number of the electors of this County I have consented to allow myself to be put in nomination as a Candidate for your suffrages at the approaching election for the Local Assembly of the Province.

I am strongly opposed to the present Administration and will, if elected, use my best endeavors to replace them with men who will pay more regard to economy and other needed reforms of administration. Should I be elected, I shall do all in my power to promote the best interests of the Province in general as well as of the County of Northumberland.

I have the honor to be, faithfully yours, JOHN P. BURCHILL. Nelson, May 31st, 1882.

Election Card. To the Electors of the County of Northumberland: GENTLEMEN:—At the solicitation of a large number of your body who, like myself, are opposed to the administration of the present Local Government, I have determined to allow myself to be placed in nomination for the representation of the County in the House of Assembly.

I pledge myself, if elected, to assist in removing the present Government from office, in order that it may be replaced by a body of men who shall address themselves more earnestly and honestly than they have done to needed reforms of administration.

I shall also use my best endeavors to promote, in every way possible, the interests of the Province in general and those of the County of Northumberland in particular. I have the honor to be, faithfully yours, THOMAS TROY. Douglastown, May 31st, 1882.

CARD. To the Electors of the County of Northumberland: GENTLEMEN:—At the approaching Election I will be a Candidate for the Representation of the County in the House of Assembly.

Should you honor me, by Election, it shall be my aim to advance the interests of the Province and of this County, to the best of my ability. I am, Gentlemen, Your Obed. Servt. W. A. PARK. Newcastle, 25th May, 1882.

Notice. The subscriber, having purchased the interest formerly owned by Dr. James Davidson, in the premises situate at King Street, in the City of Chatham, N. B., is pleased to announce that he has taken possession of the same, and will give particular attention to the business of the premises. Chatham, Sep. 26th, 1881. WILLIAM TROY
