BRITISH TAKE FOUR TRENCHES IN ATTACK; ABILE TO HOUD THERES

London, Aug. 14—A British official statement issued tonight tells of the latest offensive by the British troops between La Bassee and Arras. It reads as follows:

"Yesterday afternoon, after a bombardment, we attacked the enemy's trenches, under cover of a cloud of smoke and gas from a point about 600 yards southwest of Hulluch to the Hohenzellern redoubt. We gained about 1,000 yards of trenches just south and west of Hulluch, but were unable to maintain our position there, owing to the enemy's shell fire.

"Southwest of St. Elie we prepared and held the enemy's trench behind the Varmelles-Hulluch road, and the southwestern edge of the quarties, both inclusive. We also captured a trench on the northwest side of the forest. We captured the main trench of the Hohenzollern redoubt, but the enemy is still in two communicating trenches between the

NAVAL FIGHT REPORTED IN GULF OF FINLAND.

Stockholm, via London, Oct. 15, 3.09 a .m.—The Aftenbladet's frontier correspondent says a naval fight has occurred near Porkala in the Gulf of Finland. One cruiser is reported to have been sunk and another heavily damaged.

The correspondent adds that a Zeppelin has raided the Finnish coast, causing fires.

Porkala is a peninsula in the Gulf of Finland, twenty miles southest of Helsingfors, and about 200 miles west of Petrograd. While mention is made in the despatch from Stockholm as to the nationity of the vessels engaged, it is presumed that if a sea battle has ken place it was between Russian and German warships.

The Gulf of Finland, off Porkala, is the most northerly point here fighting in the world-war is reported to have taken place.

"An enemy seroplane was brought down by one of our machines to the north of the station. It fell within the German lines to the north of Bucy-Le-Long."

The French premier, M. Viviani, had more cheering news for the Allied countries when, in the French senate, he expressed the belief that "the Allies can count on Italian co-operation in the Balkans."

The Casualty List.

Sampton and Woolwich Bombarded? Berlin, Oct. 14, via Sayville—An official report given out today by the German admiralty regarding the Zeppelin raid on London, says that in addition to dropping tiombs on the English capital the waterworks at Hampton and the town of Woolwich, where there is a great arsenal, were heavily bombarded. Great fires are reported to have followed the explosion of the Zeppelin bombs. The text of the admiralty's statement follows:

have begun an offensive in the Dardanelles, to keep the Turks busy. The Russians are continuing their attacks in Galicia, in an effort to clear the Austrians from the Roumanian frontier and prevent them from sending any further reinforcements against Serbia.

In fact, there appears to be a general attack on all the German fronts. The British and French, Berlin relates, have attacked in Flanders and Champagne, while the German official report of the campaign in Russia is a record of counter attacks against the Russians, who are endeavoring to regain the initiative.

Even the Belgian coast is not excepted, British monitors again having bombarded the German position along this coast. British submarines in the Baltic sb far have sunk ten German ore-carrying steamers and have completely paralyzed the ore trade between Sweden and Germany. This has caused some dissatisfaction in Sweden, and it is charged that two steamers were sunk within Swedish territorial waters. But the British assert that they have been studiously observing international laws, and have been sinking only German steamers.

New Campaign Based on Principles of Sound Strategy, Says Sir Edward Grey-Russian Troops to Co-operate When Available - Serbia, as All Other Allies, Fighting for National Existence.

London, Oct, 14-The diplomatic rather than the military side of the situ tion was the subject of Sir Edward Giey's eagerly-awaited statement relative to the Balkan situation which he delivered today to a crowded house of commons. Sir Edward announced that the co-operation of Russian troops in the Balkans enabled us to secure a policy of union.

"We were given to understand in the course of the negotiations that except with regard to Thrace the Central Powers had offered to Bulgaria more to secure her neutrality than the allies could in fairness offer. The promises which induced Bulgaria to declare war were given by the Central Powers at the expense of her neighbors and without any corresponding advantage to them.

It is the policy of bringing about a Balkan was that the sovereigns and remments of Germany, Austria-Hungery and Bulgaria—the sovereigns and governments—have succeeded in carrying into effect. We were given to unstand that in order to secure a Balkan union there were certain concessions derstand that in order to secure a Balkan union there were certain concessions Bulgaria would require, especially in Thrace and Macedonia.

"The Allies were ready to do all in their power to secure these for Bulgaria, but to obtain the consent of Serbia and Greece it was an essential preliminary that Bulgaria take sides with the Allies against Turkey. In other words, if Bulgaria was to realize her hopes and aspirations she must co-operate in a common cause in which the hopes and aspirations of other neighboring states

In his zemarks, Sir Edward Grey alluding to Serbia, praised the skill and courage with which she turned upon her foes and had driven them out of her country as one of the outstanding features of the war. Once again, he said, the crisis was upon Serbia and she was meeting it with the same splendid courage.

Through Greek territory alone could assistance be sent to Serbia, continued the foreign secretary, and that this assistance was welcome was sufficiently proved by the reception accorded the allied troops. Great Britain was giving Serbia all the help in its power freely and unconditionally.

"In view of the treaty between Greece and Serbia," said the foreign secretary, "how can there be any other attitude on the part of Greece towards the assistance offered though her to Serbia?

"The military measures adopted to meet the requirements of the new situation, are the subject of continuous attention by the military authorities of the Allies and they will be taken in close consultation with each other. It is not my province to make a public disclosure of the military plans, and I can only say I believe they will be based on the principles of sound strategy."

"Serbia is fighting for her national existence and with her the struggle is just now intense and acute, but the struggle is one and the issue is one, in whatever theatre of war lighting is taking place.

"All the Allies are lighting for national existence and for all who are lighting the same issues arise. It is a light for the right to live, not under the shadow of Prussian militarism which does not observe the ordinary rules of humanity in war, and to leave us free from the menace of oppression."

CARRY WAR THROUGH TO DEFINITE VICTORY.

Premier Asquith in the house of commons declined to grant a day for de-bate on Sir Edward Grey's statement on the Balkan situation. In the house of lords the Marquis of Crewe made a statement similar to that of the foreign sec-retary and concluded:

retary and concluded:

"This attack on Serbis will only make sterner and flercer the determination of the Allies to carry the war through to a definite victory at whatever cost. Nothing has occurred in any part of the world to weaken that resolution, and we will maintain it."

we will maintain it."

During the discussion which followed the Marquis of Crewe's statement, Viscount Milner suggested the withdrawal of the troops from Gallipoli and their transfer to some other theatre of war.

Lord Lansdowne, in reply, said it was impossible for any member of the government to give an undertaking that the troops would continue in the Dardanelles operations or would be withdrawn from them. It would be unpatriotic and improper, he said, to sorce the government to make a fuller disclosure of the operations in which the country is engaged.

The present situation, he declared, was a grave and critical one; there were new developments and new factors, in addition to the entrance of Bulgaria into the struggle. The attitude of Greece at the present moment had not been quite fully defined, and that was another factor in the calculations.

FREEDOM OF SEAS CAN WAIT.

Sir Arthur Markham, who suspects the statement of Foreign Secretary Grey that "the freedom of the seas may be a proper subject of discussion and agreement between nations after the war," shows a desire for revival of the Declartation of London, raised the question again today in the commons.

Lord Robert Cecil, parliamentary under-secretary for foreign affairs replied; "The opinion of Foreign Secretary Grey and myself is that the whole question of international agreements and how they can be made worth anything in the future may reasonably form the subject of discussion between nations after the war, in the light of experience gained and reflections suggested by the way in which the war originated and the methods whereby our enemies conducted it on land and sea."

The change from housework to the few outdoor rounds needed to feed and care for the hens seems to make he inside work of the home move along somewhat more smoothly.

Too many women spend all their hours indoors, missing the mental and physical help that the outer air and sunshine will give. I know more than one woman who states that her return to health dates from the time she began to work outside with her poultry. One woman told me three years ago that she had unade 22 per cent profit during her first year with poultry, and in that fime had regained her health. When he had been fourteen months off the port Nelson received a vote of thanks from the city of London for his skill and perseverance in preventing the enemy fleet from putting to sea. "I beg to inform your Lordship," he replied to the Lord Mayor, "that the port of Toulon has never been blockaded by mequite the reverse. Every opportunity has been offered the enemy to put to sea, for it is there we hope to realize the hopes and expectations of our country."

British troops in western Africs have captured more German territory. Stiff fighting has been going on there for months and many individual deeds of bravery on the part of the Allied soldiers have been reported to the War Office.

The Empire is facing the gravest-crisis in its history. Those who are free to enlist ought to do so at once; those who are prevented from going to the front must give liberally to the patriotic funds. Our duty is plain. Let no one shigk it.

The Bulgarian minister of war would have the world believe that Bulgaria was forced by the Allied Powers to take up arms against them. The Kaiser made a make the septiment of the hopes and expectations of our country. The first that blast and burn; For all the tears of blood we sow She waits the rich return. Part of this incomparable wine "would then have the heart's blood of that immortal hero, and this thought would make him happy during the remainder of his life." Nelson accepted six bottles only. The Bulgarian minister of war would have the world believe that Bulgaria was years of age, traveled forty miles with the Bible of his parish church to ask Nelson to write his name on the fly-leaf. He called him the saviour of the Christian world. It would be interesting to know how that signature has farrd in these straing times.

Woodstock, N. B., Oct. 12—Elections for county councillors in four parishes was held today. All the other parishes went by acclamation. In the parish of Woodstock a three cornered fight was on. Charles W. Clark, a new man, was elected at the head of the poll with a vote of 166. Coun. Moxan was second with 148, and Coun. Colwell third, with 119. Moxan and Colwell have represented the parish for some time, always polling a big vote, but on this occasion Clark proved the stronger candidate.

There was plenty of excitement during the day, but the election was carried on quietly. Coun. Clark resides in Upper Woodstock, and is one of the firm of Nelles & Clark, very extensive potato buyers. He is a pronounced Liberal, while both his opponents are leading Tories.

In the election in the parish of Brighton the vote stood: Fred Smith, 288; E. D. Morgan, 214; Frank Hagerman, 209. Smith and Morgan are both Conservatives.

German Officer's Heroism.

I had a German officer sitting where you are, said the driver of "Flartley." He was frightfully wounded, so that I had to put one arm around his neck to keep him from slipping, while I held the steering wheel with the other hand. My chum offered him a piece of bread, but he shook his head and said, "The ment line it with the others—all lin a fearful famished state—he ate ravenously. I think that was fine of him. . . I shall never forget the awful condition of the wounded. I shiver when I think of it all now. But we helped to save their lives, and I'm glad of that.

The spirit of the men is shown by one of their adventures in the early days when a lorry was hopelessly broken down near the enemy's lines. Some gunners passed and shouted out: "There are thirty-five minutes between you and the enemy. You'd better hurry up, boys. We're the rear guard."

One of the main reasons assigned for the retirement of the foreign minister at this time is that he is suffering greatly from fatigue, fullminating in a recent sick spell and amounting to nervous exhaustion which has resulted from the burden of anisticies in directing France's foreign policy.

Mrs. Celia Steeves, aged 28, and Miss Beulah Currie, aged 20, sisters of Skowhegan, have left for Chouteau, Mont, where they intend to take up a claim and become ranchers.

NOISES AT FRONT RECALL FAMILIAR SOUNDS HEARD ALONG ST. JOHN RIVER

Sergt. Allen Otty, of Gagetown, Writes of Life in Trenches With Draft From 55th

Machine Guns Like Motor Boats, New German Shells Like the "Whistler" Duck-Gathering Walnut Harvest Under Difficulties-"Lonely" in the Front Trenches.

The following letter from Sergeant Allen Otty, of Gagetown, who went wer with the Reinforcement Company from the 55th battallon, and is now with the 1st battalion, tells of life under fire, and is not without amusing

My dear Folks at Home—

We have just come back from the living line for our first rest and am dropping you a few lines to let you know I am well, as are also all the boys from the home town.

We are holding out in a bunch of oaks, and overhead a steady stream of shells from both sides kind of breaks the monotony, after our rather lonely time in the front line. As I write, a Taube is getting a plaster of some two hundred shells. It's rather interesting to watch, and not many get away.

We all got here safely, after various journeys by boat, tail and toute march. The whole country from here back looks exactly like the Dykeman intervale, combined with Grand Lake meadows, and is dotted with rulned villages and crumbling farm houses. In every village the church seems to be the mark, and they are now mainly a broken mass of masonry. Not one has a spire, and the towers are all picked on he corners. It's wonderful, though, to note the prosperity of the country under existing circumstances. Farmers harvest and plough, while shells burst a adjacent fields, and the women travel along the roads with their market baskets, as if nothing unusual was going on.

The night before we went into the trenches, we slept under a perfect starlight sky, with the moon almost at the full. It was very cold during the night, and I woke up twice. While so, I could hear the roar of big guns, and see the star shells and flarers not so very far away, while the nifles sounded like someone dropping shot in a milkpan. Then the machine guns would clatter at some point where no doubt they had seen a party out repairing the parapet. About five in the morning we turned out, and breakfasted near a small lire, where a big "dixie" of tea is always ready. DEATH FOR THE BULL MOOSE.

All hands then donned the skeleton outlit, which contains our rations for riv-eight hours, entreaching tools, and enough ammunition to decimate all a bull moote in Queens county. Over this outlit we hung by shoulder-raps a knapsack containing all our arthly belongings. At the invitation of a officer in charge of the party—who, by the way, is a lieutenant from Sus-x—I called the roll to be sure all were present. After a march of a certain night, two p.m. saw us lunching in a deep wood where shells screamed over-add and stray bullets sipped through the leaves or whined away skyward, after striking the beach limbs.

I remember we all had a small tin of jam that day, and the way the cases ascended was remarkable to hear. I investigated, and found that the asps had discovered it. Those wasps are the torment of our lives here, and at the cause of more profanity than bullets are. We also have mice, and a rats are as big as musquash, and then, there are other "animals" which there us—especially about 4 a.m., when they must be changing guard, or someting. After we had rested at this point for a few hours, we got issued with thous, and also got a bunch of tobacco and cigarettes sent out by the Montreal

By perfect moonlight we moved by a path to our communication trenches. On the way, we passed many graves of former comrades, marked by a simple white, wooden cross. On one was a water bottle, and on the felt cover a deep slash showed where the bullet had traveled to its mark.

We were all greeted cheerfully by those whom we were relieving, and we all marvelled greatly at the general aspect, which was not a bit like what we should be

Now, here I wish to say a word about the Frenchman. He is certi-Now, here I wish to say a word about the Frenchman. He is certainly some artist,—the way he decorates the interior of his dugout with pictures from the Daily Mirror and cigarette cards, the cooking of his meals over a fire about as big as your fist, and the hundred and one ingenious devices of convenience he has invented. I have never seen his equal anywhere,—the soldierly look, clean chin and bright buttons has long since departed, and he can "carry on" with an outfit you could put in your pocket. The only person I can recollect anyway like him was an old chap I used to hunt with up on Portobello,—he had the art laid down on very nearly the same lines. had the art laid down on very nearly the same lines.

"HERE LIES A FAITHFUL FRIEND."

"It's very amusing to see some of the obects the Tommy rigs up in idle hours. On top of one dugout I saw a complete wireless station. It was all there, even to the lattice-work towers. Another place, I saw on top of a burst sand bag, a grave in miniature, while on a cross three inches high, was inscribed an epitaph to "Souris"—a mouse, who had been a faithful comrade in the front line for many weeks, and had been found dead in a mess-tin. No doubt the mixture in that particular tin had overcome him, as some of the new hands line for many weeks, and had been found dead in a mess-tin. No doubt the mixture in that particular tin had overcome him, as some of the new hands aren't just what you would call chefs.

The shells overhead make all kinds of hellish noises, and the boys have them all named for the sound they make. Some of the names are familiar to you, as Jack Johnsons and coal boxes, while the latest additions are a "freight" and a "whiz-bang." When that invention of the devil, a machine gun, starts, all the St. John boys say, "There's someone away up river for Sunday,"—as they sound like a Perfection with the muffler off. There's another kind of shell I want to mention,—it makes a noise like that old whistler duck that files down river just outside your decoys. All night long it's steady roar of rifletire, and just before daylight, or when it's almost light enough to see, we get from the other side what we call "The Morning Hate,"—when all along the line they set up a hellish fusilade. Then it's quite quiet till about 4 a. m.

A couple of amusing incidents occurred a few days ago. About noon, the Germans decided that a certain old house, which, by the way, was only a house from the window-sills down, was harboring an English maxim, and they placed a few well-directed shots along the cellar wall. "One result" was that a flying brick fell into a mixture one of the boys was cooking. All hands had gathered around in anticipation of a savory meal, when they viewed the wreckage of that meal horrid discord just "poisoned" the air.

There is a walnut tree growing up through the S. M's dugout and we boys had longingly viewed the lusclous fruit for some days. Just before dark one night we decided to take a chance, and got a long pole to beat down some of it. During the ensuing excitement of gathering the harvest, two of the boys got up on top of the dugout to get some of thenuts which had dropped on the roof. Of course they were in full view of theenemy, and talk about a fusilade of explosive bullets! Luckily, no one washit.

AN IRISHM

AN IRISHMEN'S HUMOR

I looked in a dugout a few nights ago, and in it was a comrade with his shirt spread on the floor. He was on his knees, and was holding a queer little insect between his thumb and finger, and blowing smoke on it and saying, "Now, damn yez, I have yez with yer respirator off." Needless to say, he was Irish.

Well, I can't tell you where we are, for the censor won't allow it, but we are all having a big time. All the Gagetown boys are together, who came in this bunch and we are all in the best of health and spirits. The other boys, who this bunch and we are all in the best of health and spirits. The other boys, who came out first are not far from us, and in about ten or twelve days we can get over to see them. I was called away just now by one of the boys, who said someone wanted to see me out at the road. I went out and there was Babbitt. He looks line and fit and is as red as a brick. We had a big pow wow right there on the road and exchanged all we knew, and were shortly joined by Edwards, Ashburne and Murray. So the world isn't so large, after all, is it?

Well, this has been quite a long letter, but I thought you would like to know how we carry on. These socks you sent are sure some gift, and I appreciate them so much. I will be on the lookout for those larrigans, as they are in A1 rig for this work. My address now is No. 444,007, Sergt. Allen Otty, I Platoon, I Company, ist. Battalion, Ist. Brigade, C. E. Cases of typhoid fever around the city are on the increase. This disease usually makes its appearance in the fall months, and this year is no exception. So far it has not assumed anything like the proportions of an epidemic. The number of cases reported annually has decreased noticeably during recent years owing to the greater precautions taken and also on account of the enforced introduction of modern sanitary arrangements.
