

NO PARTICULARS YET REGARDING LT. MOWAT

Official Telegram Gives No Particulars.—Report of Previous Wound

No further particulars have been received in reference to the wounding of Lt. G. A. Mowat other than the cable published last week, which stated the injury as to the foot.

The official statement was as follows:—

Ottawa, April 22nd.
Mrs. M. M. Mowat, Campbellton.

Sincerely regret to inform you Lt. Godfrey Alden Mowat officially reported admitted to No. 14 General Hospital, Boulogne, April 19th. Bomb wound, severe. Will send further particulars when received.

ADJUTANT GENERAL.
Many unfounded rumors have been going the rounds.

One of the Malcolm boys saw Lt. Mowat just before he left for England. At that time Lt. Mowat was at the dressing station having a slight wound in the side dressed. This was on the 4th of April, so it appears that the latter report is of a second and more serious wound.

FARM NEWS AND NOTES

Sow good seed and reap good crops. Sow weeds and reap weeds.

Now all hands together for a bigger and cleaner crop in 1916!

The spring equinox is past and spring begins in earnest. Are you ready?

Canada must produce more. To do it more manure is necessary. This means more live stock. All of it should be high class.

From obscure beginning in eastern New York the chestnut blight has swept into 19 states, doing damage estimated at close upon $50,000,000.

The school teacher, proficient in every way, rarely is well enough paid. The one not numbered in the proficient class is overpaid at any price.

Canada must be prepared for the military fight now at its hottest, but also must be ready for hard, commercial and readjustment battles to come.

Germany is using large numbers of her prisoners of war to increase agricultural production, and her crop of 1915 was in no small measure the product of this forced labor.

If the surplus horses have not been sold make them do a part of the spring work. The Government cannot keep you from working them if sales have been prevented.

It is amusing to read some of the changed opinions of city men regarding farm work. They now think it is "very hard," after being invited to spend their summer vacations on the farm.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" THE MARVELLOUS FRUIT MEDICINE

Has Relieved More Cases of Stomach, Liver, Blood, Kidney and Skin Trouble Than Any Other Medicine

THOUSANDS OWE THEIR GOOD HEALTH TO IT

Made From The Juices of Apples, Oranges, Figs and Prunes Combined With Tonics and Antiseptics.

"Fruit-a-tives" means health. In years to come, people will look back to the discovery of "Fruit-a-tives" and wonder how they ever managed to get along without these wonderful tablets, made from fruit juices.

"Fruit-a-tives" is excellent for Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Sour Stomach. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only certain remedy that will correct chronic Constipation and Liver trouble.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest Kidney Remedy in the world and many people have testified to its value in severe cases of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Pain in the Back, Impure Blood, Headaches, Neuralgia, Pimples, Itches and other Skin Troubles.

"Fruit-a-tives" has been one of the great successes of the century and the sales are enormous, both in Canada and the United States. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 20c. At all dealers, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

There are some figures in the report of the Commission on the High Cost of Living which should be significant enough to prove to the city man who grumbles: "The farmer is the only man making any money these days," that the farmer gets mighty small returns compared with those of some city business men.

Some of our military authorities still persist that no Canadian industry will be short of labor if 500,000 men go to the war, and some go so far as to make it a million, but none of these are called upon to work 200 acres of land alone this year. And we believe other basic industries than agriculture already feel the effects of promiscuous recruiting.

An efficient yet simple remedy to prevent a cow from kicking over the milk pail is to tie a three-quarter inch rope tightly around the cow's body directly in front of the hips. If the cow tries to life her foot it causes the muscles to enlarge and the rope to tighten, with such uncomfortable feelings that she will soon stop the practice. After using the rope for a few milkings the habit will be broken entirely.

SOCIETY FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS.
Returned soldiers of Fredericton have formed a society called "The European War Veterans association." They suggest that returned members in other towns form similar associations in their towns and become affiliated with the Fredericton society.

WAR HERO HOME, WOUNDED, BUT HE'S GOING RIGHT BACK

Canadian Youth Tell How Skeletons of Foes Still Lie Locked in Death Grip in France—Was Eored by a "Dum-Dum"—Warm Praise for Col. McAvity of the 16th.

(New York Sun)

Vaughan I. M. Henshaw, of Canada's 26th Battalion, the "Fighting Twenty-sixth," is back from the war with a limp and a smile.

Wounded in France—so desperately wounded indeed, that he was borne to three hospitals before a surgeon was found who saw the slenderest chance of saving him, and his grave was dug while he lay under the knife—Private Henshaw was not the least damaged in spirit. He is going to return to the front.

Struck by a dum-dum bullet which miraculously was deflected on a rib instead of driving on through the heart, he was badly torn up. Four operations were necessary, in the final one of which, lasting an hour and a quarter, he was weak to receive anaesthetics. Twice all hope for his life was given up. Notwithstanding this, he said today, while his brown eye rested upon his caller as steadily as if on the sight of a rifle:

"Oh, yes, I'm going over to Halifax to get my commission. I've started in to this thing, and I'm going to see it through."

Of such, it appears, is the stuff of the "Fighting Twenty-sixth." Private Henshaw, 20 years old, and stocky, broad-shouldered and weather-beaten, in spite of his months in the hospital, with hair of reddish bronze, is the younger son of Capt. H. A. Henshaw of the steamship Pastores, and commodore of the United Fruit Company's line. His older brother, 22, is now with the Canadian forces in England.

Mrs. Henshaw went across when her sons sailed for the war and was on hand to help nurse Vaughan back from a wrisp of 80 pounds to something nearer to his normal 150. When he was able to travel she brought him to Port Limon, Costa Rica, where the two joined Capt. Henshaw on the Pastores. All three are now at the Martinique.

What is in "No Man's Land." Among the extraordinary things young Henshaw has to recount is that, in that indescribably desolate "No Man's Land" where the trenches and buried bodies are still piled up from the very beginning of the war. Though many remain locked in the death grip they are nothing but bones and remnants of clothing now.

One foggy day, when he with trench mates ventured out for a look around they found a letter on a dead French officer written eighteen months before. It was addressed to his wife and in sending his love to his children it spoke of another expected child which—if a boy—he besought her to bring up as an officer of France.

On the body of a German officer they found another letter which described their "triumphant march" and declared that the Germans would enter Paris within a few days.

The Fighting 26th.
This is Mr. Henshaw's story: "As a private in the Twenty-sixth Battalion of the Canadian Overseas Force, I left St. John on June 18, 1915. We remained in camp in England till September, and were then sent to the continent. I was in France two months. "Ours was the first battalion of the Canadian second division to attack the Germans. We drove them out of a mine crater one day. That was all we set out to do, but it was hard to hold the fellows in; they wanted to chase the Germans clear back to their own trenches. Major Brown directed the attack. He was a cool one, let me tell you. He went out between the lines in a pair of carpet slippers, a cardigan jacket, a cane and no hat, and took charge of things as undisturbed as if nothing were happening.

In the Trenches.
"While I was there it was raining most of the time. We had hip boots but the water in the trenches came higher than that. I've slept in water with nothing but my head sticking out. "But the rats were worse than the Germans and bothered us more. "The men back from the first line had good dry dugouts, and the spirits were excellent. There was always something to laugh at. The Canadians were a reckless and independent lot and had a very warm place in the French heart.

Chatham World: It appears by a statement of Col. P. A. Guthrie in the Legislature on a question of privilege the other day, that Mr. Chappelle, who had a $1,200 contract for laying concrete pavement around the House of Assembly, paid $75 on an election note as his contribution for having been given the contract. Our Government friends in Fredericton are washing their dirty linen with a vengeance. Mr. Harry Blair is now to be heard from.

Couldn't Hold Them Down.

"But the English found the Canadians rather hard to hold down. They are just like Americans—in fact we had a number of Americans with us.

"I remember one of our fellows one day walked straight across to the German first line. Of course it was a fool thing to do. When he got there he waved his hand and sang out to us, 'Nobody home!' As a matter of fact the trench was empty except for a small working party, and he turned around and walked back.

Saxons and Prussians Different
"We found a great difference between the Germans. The Saxons were our good 'friends.' It got so that they would not fire a shot unless we did. "You no shoot, Canadians, we no shoot," they said. They learned some of our songs and used to sing them.

"It was a different matter with the Prussians. As soon as they came on they started a rapid fire right off and kept it up. We did likewise—and then some.

"But we and the Germans used to yell back and forth what we would do to each other, though we could always shut them up when we told them that we'd give them a bayonet charge. "As for the people around there, why the Belgians, for instance, don't pay any more attention to a shell now than you do to a street car. Two old women were making bread, and a shell went in one window and out another. They merely turned their heads to see where it went. When a shell knocks down one part of the house they move into another part.

"Our food was good and plenty. Often we'd throw a can of bully beef over to the Germans and ask them if they wanted something to eat. Our health was excellent and sanitation was always the first thing looked after. I do not remember a single case of sickness where a man had to go to the hospital.

Col. McAvity Just Like a Father.
"Col. J. L. McAvity of St. John, our Colonel, was just like a father to his men. He used to go to the hospitals and talk to the wounded and looked after everybody in the same way.

"How did I come to get wounded? Well, the trench was full of water and I jumped up on the parapet—simply wasn't thinking what I was doing or about anything in particular. And they got me—a bullet, a dum-dum bullet went through my left arm and entered my side below the tenth rib, passed through the lung, took out the spleen and went on into the abdomen. They carried me to two hospitals—I was just dimly conscious—and they only shook their heads.

"At the third hospital a young surgeon, Dr. Mullaly, who wasn't more than 26 years old, thought he'd experiment with me. After the first operation they put me in bed, but they performed three more operations, and the last I was on the table for an hour and fifteen minutes without an anaesthetic, too weak to have one. But I pulled through.

Again Ready for Grave.
"After forty-two days in the hospital they took me across the Channel. On the first night in England they gave up all hope for me again. I was examined by the King's surgeon and by Sir Wm. Wainwright, and there was a good deal of talk about my case in England.

"There is one thing I want to say for the boys over there, and that is that the contributions of tobacco and other articles from the United States and Canada were well distributed and that we were very grateful indeed to the American people, as well as our own, for all that they did.

"As for the rest, we are all very confident of victory; and when the time comes to go through we know that we can and will go through—with a clean sweep."

REMARKABLE INTERVIEW

WITH F. B. CARVELL
"Both Canada's Political Parties
Must Be Born Again or Perish"

(Ottawa Free Press)
Arthur Hawkes' contribution to the Toronto Star weekly a very remarkable interview with Mr. F. B. Carvell, M. P., "commonly called the official executioner of the Liberal party, which presents that gentleman in an entirely new light. So candid is Mr. Carvell about his own party's shortcomings that if the statements had been credited to any other Liberal many of us would have expected Mr. Carvell to read that man out of the Liberal party. "I am going to try to dissect him," writes Mr. Hawkes, "because I respect him, in conquest of prejudices against him which even respect cannot wholly overcome." The article is in part printed below:

If Mr. Carvell is anything of a minister of regeneration it is because he begins by admitting facts for which the Conservatives of New Brunswick are only partially responsible. That is the remarkable thing about Mr. Carvell. He uses many of the methods of the partisanship he assails, and he is using them against the record and disgraces of his own party as courageously as he is against the other party, well knowing that the cynic will say it is easy to repent in hungry opposition. Here is a political phenomenon, which honest men all over the country may blessedly heed. If any apostolically-inclined Liberal is curious to know anything about the side effects of the publication of this article let him enquire whether it is produced without mutilation in the New Brunswick and Nova Scotia Liberal papers.

That suggestion comes to Mr. Carvell's answer to a question. "Do you suppose," I asked, "that people will believe that the wickedness of which you speak has sprung up in New Brunswick since Hazen defeated Robinson in the election of 1908? Do you suppose they are so simple as to think that the Liberal party is not to blame as well as the Conservative party?" Mr. Carvell laughed out loud. "Why, my dear fellow," was his answer, "of course we are to blame. I am to blame, and that admission is at the very beginning of our fight for better conditions. I'm not a bit proud of everything I've stood for in the Liberal party."

"And you are not afraid to make that admission public?" I asked. "Not at all," was the reply. "The people are not fools. They know that political corruption cannot attain the dimensions that it now has in this country as a monopoly of one party. The crooked partisans have been fooling themselves while they have thought they have been fooling only the people. We are to blame—of course we are."

"In Ottawa as well as Fredericton?"

"I did. Most certainly."

"Now," Mr. Carvell went on, "I am fifty-three years old. I came here by way of the New Brunswick Legislature, with ideas of practical politics founded on what was the regular thing down there, when I was a much younger man. Nearly forty years ago, Mr. Blair, a Liberal, became Premier of New Brunswick. He was a very able man, and what is called a very practical politician. He thought the principal thing was to hold on to office. So he began a policy of taking the other fellows into his cabinet. Conservatives who went in with him came to call themselves Liberals. Local administration was an affair of handling natural resources. Money was plentiful. Government jobs meant ready money. The Dominion sphere was a larger provincial sphere, when it came to elections. The electorate came to regard citizenship as first and foremost a matter of getting something from or through the government. Patronage became the great weapon of political success. It is today."

ONE-FIFTH OFFICE HUNGRY
"Would it surprise you to hear that a fifth of our electorate looks for a government job as the necessary sequel to the exercise of the franchise? You know what Rhodes told them at the Forum last Sunday night, about the political morals of the Maritime Provinces?"

"I had heard something about it, but asked Mr. Carvell for his size up. "Well," he said, "Rhodes is the Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, and a fine fellow. His town is Amherst, near the New Brunswick-Nova Scotia border. He showed how the member of Parliament is beset by patronage hunters. He gets an average of a dozen letters a day, asking for jobs. Rhodes told it straight out that some of the churches are as corrupt as the worst heeled that you can imagine."

"I didn't hear of that," I said. "It surely cannot be true." "Rhodes knows what he is talking about," replied Mr. Carvell. "Did you never hear of the election bazaar?"

"Well, Rhodes says that when the election is coming a church will get up a bazaar at which the absorbing feature is a contest between the rival candidates. Five cents buys the right to cast one vote. You can buy as many votes as you like. The candidates are expected to look after the contests, and if you don't buy numerously you are in wrong with the church."

"The money changers in the temple," I hazarded.
PARSON AND THE LAWYER.
"Yes," he said, "if you want to put it that way. Rhodes produced to the Forum correspondence to prove his statement that a minister of the Gospel went to a member of Parliament, who is also a lawyer, for advice on some matter of importance to himself. The lawyer expended quite a little money on the service, and in the end sent a bill for thirty dollars. The minister replied quite indignantly, saying that the legal services were being rendered in return for political support. "Good-night!" I said.

"Good-night!" said Mr. Carvell. "I should think so. Then Rhodes told of a church board that wanted a bell with which to call the people to worship. The cost would be fifty dollars. The board wrote to the candidate, saying that if he supplied the fifty dollars he would get their votes and interest."

"Did they quote to him the apostle's declaration, 'Our citizenship is in heaven'?" I asked.

"I guess not—not just then," was the answer. "Now, what are you to do against conditions like that? The only thing is to be absolutely frank about them, fight them to the end, and to reach the end by going for the root of the trouble."

"Which is?"

"Patronage all the time and all the way."

"But haven't you got to have a new spirit in the people, which can't come by merely taking away the fruit of the present evil spirit?"

PARTIES MUST BE BORN AGAIN
"That's exactly what we have got to get after. The parties must be born again or they will be destroyed. I have not been so encouraged for a long time as I was at a convention we had in New Brunswick a couple of months ago. A couple of hundred of us got together and laid down a platform aimed at the master evil. The spirit of the convention was what surprised me. The fellows are sick and sore at the present situation, and they are going out to remedy it. We mean business. What are you doing in Ontario. You are not perfect there, are you?"

"There are imperfections in Ontario," said I, "though as I have never belonged to any party organization I can't tell you what they are."

"From Ottawa it seems as if there is a great opportunity for the Liberal party in Ontario to be born again," said Mr. Carvell. "Ontario is as populous as Denmark. It has only fourteen Liberals out of eighty-six. We may not get the right perspective of Ontario Liberalism from the Maritime Provinces, but it seems to us that there is about as much fighting power among our friends in the biggest province of all—well, I can't tell you how much we should rejoice to see a Liberalism as bold as it used to be. What is the matter, anyway?"

"Search me," said I. "By the way, can you tell me how it is that you moved in the public accounts committee for the papers in Toronto harbor improvements contracts and inquiries? Why didn't an Ontario member do it?"

"Search me," said Mr. Carvell. "Perhaps you can tell me why we fellows down East have to do practically all the work on the public accounts committee."

"You are expert at it," said I. "Look at what you have been able to do in developing public sentiment for inquiry into the shells contracts."

A cold smile spread itself around the big cigar that had just taken the place of a pipe. "There are interesting things behind the Toronto harbor contracts," he said, "that I am afraid we won't have time enough to inquire into this session."

It would be worth something to know just what figures are behind that cold smile.

THE CANDID FRIEND.

Yes, in Ottawa, as well as in Fredericton," said he, "and I along with the rest of them. Do you think we can have as good a public life in this country as the country deserves; do you think the Liberal party can become worthy of its name and have worthy of its opportunity, if it hides its head in the sand, and pretends that up to our duty when we were in power?"

"Say," I said, "but you are the candid friend of the Liberal party."

"Why shouldn't I be?" he asked. "I don't believe in keeping all my candor for the other fellows."

The Toronto News does not tire of calling you a member of the old Liberal blockers' brigade, and it throws doubt upon your bona fides towards the national interest now. Do you admit that there was a blockers' brigade?"

PLAYED DOWN TO THEM.
"Not an organized one, but no doubt some blocking."

"We were wrong in our attitude. We found certain standards in operation, under a Liberal government, as they had been under the Conservative government, and we played down to them, as we ought not to have done. There's no question about that, among ourselves. Then what would be the use of professing to believe that there's any question about it in intelligent opinion outside, which is really anxious for Canada to be served? As a party we failed in our duty, and if we don't act very differently in the future we shall not only fail, but we shall go out of business, and deserve to give way to more courageous people who are not afraid of their own convictions."

I have heard many men talk in my time, but this was certainly the frankest politician in Canada as far as my ears could tell, and I told him so.

He softened immediately. "I'll tell you how it is," he went on. "I'm a Liberal. I believe with all my soul in the principles which made the fight for responsible government successful. Every time I read of what has been accomplished by the men who have fought against special privilege and for measures which have raised the dignity of the average man, and have opened to him more widely the door of service of the state, I am grateful for the work I did, and I feel that it would be worth while to help carry their work a little farther ahead, in accordance with the needs of this twentieth century."

PAST POLITICS LIKE CHAFF.
"The war is thrusting our country into difficulties which make all our past politics seem like so much chaff before the wind. If we don't get something better than we have been accustomed to we shall not be worthy of a little of the sacrifices that our soldiers are making on our behalf. Don't you agree with me?"

I did. Most certainly.

"Now," Mr. Carvell went on, "I am fifty-three years old. I came here by way of the New Brunswick Legislature, with ideas of practical politics founded on what was the regular thing down there, when I was a much younger man. It would be worth something to know just what figures are behind that cold smile.

A DEATH-CARRYING GAS
A century or so ago Lord Dundonald discovered an agent by which the wholesale destruction of enemy soldiers could be accomplished in war. He communicated his new knowledge to the British Government of the day but the precise nature of his discovery has ever since remained a secret save to the military and naval authorities of the United Kingdom. The popular assumption, however, is that Lord Dundonald discovered a gas which would carry death wherever it spread.

German barbarity in the present war has brought the suggestion that the Dundonald discovery be put to use by the Allies. So far, however, there is no indication that the suggestion will be followed. But that a death-carrying gas is at the disposal of the Allies there is no doubt, whatever the Dundonald discovery may have been. Such a gas has been discovered by Monsieur Turpin, a noted French chemist, from whom it takes its name, turpentine. Experiments with turpentine have shown that it kills instantly the living objects which come within a certain radius. It does not torture but simply suffices life. No wonder that German soldiers are described as living in terror lest gas fumes which roll across a battle-field may be the fumes of turpentine. No wonder if they curse the leaders who first forced them to use gas themselves and so to provoke reprisals.

Turpentine would add new horror to war. All men would shudder at thought of its use. But none will deny that the nation which forced war upon the world, ravished Belgium, and has practised incredible barbarities upon wounded and helpless men and women soldiers deserves no mercy. If its soldiers are killed by turpentine they will at least not suffer the agonies which soldiers of the Allies have been forced to bear by the torturing poison gas of the Huns.

PARLIAMENTARY RULE
Parliamentary Law is one of those few ancient things which have come down to modern days without having been voted out of existence as obsolete and useless. It had its first origin in the Wittemot, the "wise men's" assembly of our ancient Saxon forefathers. Here every free man might speak and none might object. The floods of oratory were stemmed only by the fact that in those days, deeds spoke not only louder than words, but much more often.

With the coming of the Normans in 1066, the Wittemot became the assembly of the barons. The commons were utterly ignored until Simon de Montfort in 1265, summoned to his parliament two knights from every shire, two townsmen from every borough. Edward I, after he had defeated and slain De Montfort, adopted his wisdom and fashioned his parliament on the pattern which his enemy had drawn. From that model, with but little change, there has grown the institution which meets at Westminster to make the laws and transact the business of a mighty empire. From that parliament is modelled the smaller institution which governs our Dominion, and the still smaller one which governs our province.

With this growth of parliamentary institutions, has grown up a set of rules for the government of debate, and of parliamentary procedure, intricate as the caste laws of India, or the Jewish law of the temple. Probably there are not five men, certainly not a dozen, in the British Isles today, who will boast of knowing and understanding all the laws, by or otherwise, which govern the conduct of the venerable institution at Westminster.

Fortunately, although parliamentary law has become the governing rule of nearly every deliberative body, we are not obliged to enter into the niceties of its construction. We adopt a few general rules, and I suppose if the fine points ever came to issue, they too would be settled according to custom and usage.

I need not enter here on the benefits of being governed by Parliamentary usage. They were too thoroughly discussed at a former meeting to need any argument in their support.

I therefore pass on to the points which are most frequently in discussion. While parliamentary rule is not as binding and unalterable as the laws of the Medes and Persians, there is no doubt remaining that it is speedy, convenient, and in a sense, self-imposed on every body such as this. The presiding officer is paramount authority in most cases. By electing this officer, the society chooses their own tyrant, and it is only the voice of the society which can outweigh his or her ruling. Here it may not be amiss to quote from the Constitution as to some of the duties of your own particular presiding officer as defined in your constitution. See Y. B. p. 101. It shall be the duty of the President to call to order and open the meetings; to announce the business before the meeting in the order in which it is to be acted upon; to put to vote questions that have been regularly moved and seconded, and to announce the results; to preserve order and to decide, when referred to all points of order and practice which may arise; and so on.

As for the order of business, it is generally established by each society for itself. Ours is to be found at the end of the model constitution; and since this constitution is alterable by the society, we have departed from it in one item, the second. We call the name of every member instead of the officers only. The point of procedure I wished you to notice is this. This order of business can be changed, by the simple expedient of the President or any other member asking consent. A member of course can make a motion, but this is not necessary, unless objection is made. It is one of the cases where silence gives consent.

Now, as to debate. I am sure you must have often noticed in the minutes "—and after discussion, it was moved,—". This is wrong. No question can be properly debated until it is moved, and it is in the presiding officer's discretion to check, or if you like it better, choke off the discussion without a motion. After the vote is taken, and the motion declared carried or not carried, the only way to re-open the discussion is by a direct motion to rescind.

The motion being then before the meeting, there is only one limit to the amount of discussion. Each member can only speak once, excepting the mover and seconder. If Mrs. — has a new thought in connection with the matter, she must be dumb unless she asks and obtains permission. This permission, notice, cannot be given by the chair, although Mrs. — addressed the chair to obtain it. The chair must obtain it from the meeting, and if a majority is opposed, Mrs. — must hold her tongue, and resolve in future to think all her thoughts before speaking any.

Now, there are certain motions which are not debatable. A motion to adjourn, simply to adjourn, is one. If the motion includes any other point such as time or place of a future meeting, it then becomes debatable.

Another motion which may not be spoken to, is the motion to close the debate, or as it is technically put, to move the previous question. If the debate seems to be wandering over all land and the deep sea, any member can end it. She rises and on receiving recognition from the chair, simply says "Madam President, I move the previous question." This requires no seconder. The President says "The previous question is moved. Those in favor will say Yea. Contrary-minded, Nay." The motion being carried, the original motion must be instantly put, and voted upon. If the previous question is lost, the debate is resumed. A clear case of majority rule.

A third motion which is not debatable is the objection to discussion. If any matter is introduced which seems likely to do nothing but make trouble, any member with the courage of her convictions, can throttle it at the outset by the simple statement, "Madame President, I object to this matter being discussed."

There are three more points of procedure upon which I wish to touch. There are three items of business which are constantly in evidence at our meetings. We are continually hearing reports; our corresponding secretary receives frequent communications; and our secretary or treasurer occasionally receives a bill. Now the correct form of procedure with each of these is slightly different from the others.

The report of superintendent, or committee, or treasurer, etc., is read or given. If no course of action is requested or recommended by it, it is in order to move open the way for discussion, and when carried that it be received. This disposes of it finally. If it recommends any action, the proper motion is that it be received and adopted. This if carried, binds the society to the course of action recommended by the report, and as before, affords an opportunity for discussion.

The communication is dealt with in a slightly different manner. It may or may not ask for action on the part of the society. But whether or not, the motion required is always the same. That it be received and placed on file. This opens the way for discussion, and binds to no action whatever. As the matter introduced is generally new to most of the members, this method has the advantage of giving them time to think, and at the close of the discussion, when the motion to receive has been put and carried, someone is usually ready with a motion on the contents, if one is required.

As for the bill, either it is correct, or not. If there is no objection, the motion is a simple matter of form that it be approved, and an order drawn on the treasurer for the amount. If any member thinks there is an error, she should call attention to it, and be ready with a motion that a committee be appointed to examine into the error. Also, she must not be surprised or doubtful at finding herself the convener of this committee.

I have touched briefly on these points of order, choosing what I thought were the most important. The cardinal principle underlying the whole is Fairplay and free speech for all. The main advantage is the increase in the order in which it is to be acted upon; to put to vote questions that have been regularly moved and seconded, and to announce the results; to preserve order and to decide, when referred to all points of order and practice which may arise; and so on.

As for the order of business, it is generally established by each society for itself. FAREWELL ADDRESS TO MRS. GLENNIE

Members of the Soldiers Comfort Association Make Presentation

On Thursday evening last the Soldiers Comfort Association met at the home of Mrs. L. G. Pinaut, about thirty members being present. As it was expected that this would probably be the last time that our Vice President, Mrs. Glennie, would be present with the Association, previous to leaving for St. John's, Nfld., before proceeding with the regular business, the Society took the opportunity of presenting her with a mahogany and silver tray as a small token of their appreciation and good will, after which all joined in singing "For She's a jolly good fellow". Ice cream and cake were served by Mrs. Pinaut.

Dear Mrs. Glennie—
It is with mingled feelings that we, your fellow members of the S. C. A., are gathered here this evening. While we rejoice with you in your husband's promotion, our hearts are sad with the thoughts of your departure from our midst. We trust that the relations between you and the people of the ancient colony may be as happy and delightful as ours have been. We know that our loss will be their gain. As Sunday School worker, neighbour, friend and committee woman you have proved yourself loyal and efficient. We cannot begin to show our appreciation of you, but wish you to accept this tray as a reminder of the old days in Campbellton, especially those spent in Patriotic work.

Signed on behalf of the Association,
MRS. W. H. MILLER,
MRS. S. S. HARRISON,
MRS. H. E. MANN.

GRAND DISPLAY AT SUBWAY STONE

Many favorable comments were passed on the exhibit of P. E. Sheppard & Co.'s windows and store interior on Good Friday last. The windows exhibiting the latest garments for the Easter and summer trade, including dainty neckwear, kid gloves, blouses, etc. Displayed on a form in the centre of window near Water St., was one of the latest models of Belgian Blue Crepe de Chine gowns. The interior of the store was a fashion show in every detail, representing all the latest fashions in ready-to-wear garments for the spring and summer trade. In the evening when the store was illuminated the effect was most pleasing.

One more point in regard to motions. It sometimes occurs that a motion is made, and it afterwards transpires that the matter could be dealt with in another way. If the motion has not been voted upon it can be withdrawn by the mover with the consent of the seconder. If it has been already carried, a formal motion to rescind action is necessary.

There are three more points of procedure upon which I wish to touch. There are three items of business which are constantly in evidence at our meetings. We are continually hearing reports; our corresponding secretary receives frequent communications; and our secretary or treasurer occasionally receives a bill. HOW THE VICTORIA CROSS WAS WON

Inspiring Story of Daniel Laidlaw, the Gallant Piper of Loos

My regiment was in the great attack which the Allies made on the Germans at the Battle of Loos, said Piper Laidlaw, of the King's Own Scottish Borderers, in describing the deed which won for him the Victoria Cross.

We were in the front trenches, and from behind us the guns of our artillery sent shells flying over our heads and bursting with terrific force in the enemy's lines.

The German guns thundered in return and before long, in the dim light of the early morning, we could see clouds of their deadly gas floating towards us.

The Poison Gas

None of us had any previous experience of the poisonous fumes, and though happily they had lost a good deal of their strength by the time they reached us, our noses and eyes were soon smarting.

Before we had time to recover, the order was given to charge.

"Come on, you chaps," I shouted, leaping to the top of the parapet. I was an old soldier and realized perhaps better than my comrades the importance of being prompt to obey.

But to my surprise, no one followed; the effect of the gas on them was evidently more serious than it had been on me. Had I better get back into the trench?

The Skirl o' the Pipes

Then I thought of my pipes, which, of course, I had with me. If I played some of the old familiar tunes, my comrades must surely rally.

Slinging the pipes into position, I started pacing up and down along the top of the parapet; the one I chose was "The Braes o' Mar."

As you will understand, I was a good mark for the Germans, who were only some 80 to 100 yards from us. Their bullets were bursting all about. Providence certainly was on my side, for I never even got a scratch.

For five minutes or so I paced the parapet so that all could hear the skirling of the pipes.

My music had the effect I expected. One by one I saw the bayonets appearing above the parapet, then heads, and soon there was a regular rush of men from the trenches.

The pipes had rallied them! "Blue Bonnets" as Men Charged

As soon as my officer, Lieutenant Young, appeared, I struck up "Blue Bonnets Over the Border" and off we went at the head of the charge.

Perhaps it was rather a silly thing to keep on playing, as I wanted all my breath for running; but I knew how my music had rallied my comrades before, and I thought they'd have better heart for the work before them if they could still hear the skirl of the bagpipes.

On we went, and almost before we knew it, we had cleared the first German trench.

Out of it again, and well on the way to the second we were, when a sharp burst close to Lieutenant Young and myself.

Down we fell, with several others beside us, while the rest of the battalion rushed on, bayonets fixed. There was to be no quarter for the Germans.

When I had recovered sufficiently from my fall, I sat up and looked about me—my ankle was too painful for me to rise.

To my great grief, close beside me Lieutenant Young lay mortally wounded, while I could see scores of my comrades either dead or dying on every hand. And my precious pipes, too, they were shattered and useless.

As I lay there helpless, I thought how lucky I was to have escaped with my life. But I wondered how long it would be before I was picked up.

Hours of Agony

The hours dragged along painfully, slowly. My ankle was throbbing violently, and I couldn't do anything to relieve it.

In the distance I could still see the fighting, and I could only hope that our men would prove victorious, for I heard many tales of the cruel way in which the enemy treated the wounded.

If only my pipes had been in going order, I should have had something to take my thoughts off myself.

Would help ever come?

It was 8 o'clock in the morning when I received my wound, and now, at 3 in the afternoon, no relief was in sight. The darkness would soon be here, and if I were not found before then, I should have to spend the night in the open.

At last, just before 4, I could see the stretch-bearers coming into view, and in no time it seemed I was at the dressing station, where they told me my ankle had been hit in 7 places. No wonder it pained me!

I expect to have to return to the trenches again before very long, but I shall leave my Victoria Cross in safe hands.

When the war is over, you may be sure that it will be my most precious possession, together with my bagpipes, which my commanding officer has had repaired for me.

Increased efficiency in the despatch of business. And I trust you will pardon your chair if she wields the gavel with more authority and decision in the future than in the past, and strive to recollect that it is "all for the good of the order."

HEAVY TRAFFIC ON Q. O. RY.

On account of the difficulty of securing steamers or vessels to load pulp at Chandler, a very large quantity of pulp is being shipped by rail to U. S. points. As much as three trains a day are said to be going up to Matapedia. This is exceedingly heavy traffic for the Quebec Oriental.

SUMMER QUARTERS OF TROOPS

It is understood, the Moncton Times says, that word has been received by the various battalions throughout the province to the effect that no troops will be quartered in New Brunswick this summer. The Nova Scotia Highland Brigade will likely be quartered at Aldershot. Unofficial reports in St. John say the 104th and 115th Battalions will go to Valcartier in a few weeks.

PRESENTATION TO MR. GLENNIE

A number of the members of the Campbellton Curling Club met at the Club rooms last Thursday evening and enjoyed a "Smoker" in honor of Mr. G. Glennie, who has been transferred to the management of the Bank of Nova Scotia, St. John's, Nfld. During the evening His Honor Judge MacLachy in a neat address, presented Mr. Glennie on behalf of members of the club, with a handsome salmon fishing rod. Mr. Glennie, although taken completely by surprise, feelingly replied.

LEAVING WELL ENOUGH ALONE

London, April 24.—The scheme which was reported under consideration four months ago, whereby the Canadian military authorities would assume control of the canteens at all Canadian camps in England, has been abandoned. The chief obstacle was the objection raised by the traders to the military playing the same role.

CENSORSHIP OFF

The public will be glad to learn that the censorship on letters, passing to and fro between Canada and the United States, has been removed dating from the 19th instant. The postal authorities are now engaged in clearing up matter which had accumulated to that date.

CHILD BURNED TO DEATH

A sad and fatal fire took place at Beresford, Gloucester county last week, in which a young son of Alfred Boudreau, school teacher at that place, lost his life. Shortly before seven o'clock Mrs. Boudreau rose, and having occasion to go outside was startled to see the house in flames on her return. An alarm was quickly raised and Mr. Boudreau succeeded in getting six of his children to safety, but the seventh, a boy of five, was asleep down stairs, and although every effort was made to reach him, it was impossible to do so, and he was burned to death.

EASTER UNCOMMONLY LATE THIS YEAR

Eleven years ago, Easter fell on April 23, the same as this year, and it will not come again so late until 1943. Then it will fall on April 25, and will mark the most advanced Easter during the whole stretch of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. It will not fall due again on April 23 until the year 2,000. The festival is fixed by decree of the Council of Nice for the Sunday immediately following the fourteenth day of the new moon which happens on or first after the vernal equinox. Under this calculation, Easter cannot occur earlier than March 22 nor later than April 25.

LIQUOR ADVERTISING

The prohibition bill now before the Legislature makes it unlawful for any newspaper in this province to publish liquor advertisements. The section of the bill dealing with the matter is as follows:

(38) That no person shall, upon any vehicle of transportation, or at any public place or resort, or upon any sign or billboard, or upon any circulars, posters, price lists, newspapers, periodicals or otherwise, within the limits of this province, advertise liquor or advertise the manufacture, sale, keeping for sale or furnishing of liquor, or the person from whom, or place where, or the price of which, or the method by which liquor may be obtained. And that no person shall circulate or publish, sell or offer for sale, any newspaper, periodical, or other written or printed matter in which an advertisement in this section specified shall appear, or for any owner or occupant to permit any sign or billboard containing such advertisement to remain upon his premises, or to circulate any price lists, order blanks, or other matter for the purpose of inducing or securing orders for liquor, no matter where located.

The penalty for such offence is a fine of not less than $20 nor more than $80 for the first offence, not less than $25 nor more than $100 for the second offence, and imprisonment not less than two months nor more than five months for the third offence.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try It! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glitters with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine. Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots (anish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

THE FAMILY QUARREL
The smoke of battle is rising over the Capital. Colonel Percy Guthrie to "save his face" opened up in the Legislature last week, in the matter of the take-off of $75.00 in the small contract for laying down asphalt sidewalk in the neighborhood of the Parliament Buildings. Observe—a takeoff of $75.00 for some one in a small contract of that nature. How much would the take-off amount to in the building of a bridge or railroad? It appears that the take-off was offered to Mr. Blair, the efficient Secretary, whom the Honorable John Morrisey was so proud of, and for whom, he declared he would go into private life, if need be, and evidently the need is there. But Mr. Blair evidently did not trouble himself with such small sums.
"Take it," Mr. Blair says, "and apply it to that party note"—and it was forsooth done at once. Why not, when Mr. Blair said so? All this came out in connection with Colonel Guthrie's speech, who said that he did not want to be spoken of as one who would put restraint on any one who wished to speak concerning these matters. Dr.
Price of Moncton and Mr. Woods of Kings, feeling uneasy got into the mess in an attempt to appear "clean" of graft charges. B. Franklin Smith, of potato fame, considering that the debate was bordering on dangerous ground for him—"snappishly," as the Gleaner says, rose to a point of order which was not allowed. Fathers Murray and Baxter sat in perfect silence during this outbreak in the circle of the beloved family and never reprimanded their innocent charges—no, not once. The Gleaner, the Government fed organ, even took a little hand in the row it appears, as in its next issue it referred to possible graft and of the need of changed conditions in the handling of public business.

How does the public regard this spectacle of a Legislature spending its time in "Scrapping" one with another over matters of graft among themselves. The excuse for this must be the fact that there is a prevailing sense of wrong-doing among the members of the Legislature. There is an awakening of the moral sense of the community and men are learning more of ethical conditions and are dissatisfied with affairs as are being disclosed.
Is it not the part of wisdom for the whole body politic to take a hand in the matter and demand a "cleaning house" in the New Brunswick Legislature?

Chief of Police Hughes is about to quit not only the office of Chief of Police, but is about to bid good-bye to the Town as one of its citizens. Chief Hughes, whatever he has done and whatever he has failed to do, has placed a standard of efficiency away and above that of all other of Campbellton police chiefs. A perfectly sober man, a man unacquainted with the taking of bribes, has thus laid down a platform of police chief ethics that will be demanded of his successors, and a requirement that it be improved upon.

SAWDUST
Doesn't Campbellton begin to think that we ought to chase ourselves out of bed an hour earlier by putting the clock ahead? We are not behind other Towns and Cities in important things, and getting up early is important.

Whose business is it to ask owners of lots to remove old iron, old boxes, manure heaps, and "old row" generally, from the neighborhood of our streets? Business sense, sanitary and even "horse sense" demand the cleaning up of front and back waste lots.

There are some provisions in our laws regulating the handling of automobiles and they should be looked up and put in force. The skill of children in handling these may be apparent, but their judgment is not so apparent as to prevent expense and sorrow—the law should be enforced.

Blair, "Honest John's" honest
Secretary has been dismissed by order of Council. What for? Why doesn't he demand a Royal Commission or seek for the nomination for the House of Commons from York or Carleton, or at least some form of white-washing.

One section of the new prohibitory act will make it illegal to carry liquor advertisements in newspapers. What will some of our contemporaries do?
Some newspapers (?) devote a whole page to liquor ads.

We wonder if that famous brand of "Patriotic Potatoes" would not be a good quality for farmers to purchase.
Certainly the discoverer or promoter of these famous potatoes found them profitable and money makers. But they have such long—tales—
Members Price and Woods will find that they have not anything now on Colonel Guthrie. The Colonel did his part like a man and will continue to fulfill the duties of a man after having been brought face to face with issues such as his traducers never can understand.

Mr. J. L. Stewart, M. P. P., has arrived in Fredericton in time to add to the Government's numerous troubles.
The Commander's friends, who are legion, will be pleased to know that he is steadily recovering his health. He made his first appearance in the House today and was cordially welcomed.
The Commander may be expected to warm things up during the dying hours of the session.

BRITISH AVIATORS

DESTROY CAMP

London, April 25—Eight British aeroplanes bombed the hostile camp at Qastis, in Egypt, near the Suez canal, it was announced officially today. The camp was destroyed, and the hostile troops, the aviators reported, apparently began to withdraw from that district.

CANADIANS IN FIERCE FIGHTING

For Possession of Half a Trench and Half a Crater.—Drove Out the Germans

London, April 27.—Never since the famous charge into the orchard at Festubert has there been such fierce fighting. Three times the Germans had gained a portion of half a trench and half a crater which they were defending, but each time they have been driven out. Six officers, including the popular Capt. Donald McGibbon, who was killed, were the casualties. Many men went down, but happily most of them were but slightly wounded. An officer in another battalion which came to the rescue gives me the story:
"The Hun artillery opened up a tremendous bombardment late Thursday afternoon. The men scrambled into hastily constructed dugouts, which afforded slight shelter, but so churned up is the ground in this part that these soon crumbled in. Several officers were buried for a time, but when dug out half suffocated they refused to go back to the dressing station and fought on.

It was a moral certainty that the Huns were going to attack and an emergency call brought several extra machine guns. These were used to good advantage when the Huns appeared over the parapet and started stumbling toward their position. Scores of them went down. Others absolutely stood in the mud, but others still came on. I was told that three German regiments took part in the attack.

"One end of a trench which communicated with an old mine hole was lost for a brief time, but the Germans were holding it in spite of a hail of bombs which isolated a section. I found in some cases that Huns and Canadians were rolling round on broken parapets, fighting it out with fists, and so close together that the Canadians dare not fire at them.

"Three times the Germans gained a foothold, but were finally driven out and were followed up by part of a fresh battalion which came to the rescue and were driven behind the Germans' first trench."

A score of wounded prisoners who were taken were all of a fine type, and evidently picked for their desperate adventure, which was defeated.

In other parts of the Canadian section there is still heavy fighting, with shelling night and day. These attacks are so frequent now that it is really a large sized battle which is in progress.

Another Canadian officer who is on the staff tells me that the commanders have had an anxious time, but not as anxious as the grilling days a year ago.

PROROGATION END OF THE WEEK

10 CENT "CASCARETS"
IF BILIOUS OR COSTIVE

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They work while you sleep.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

BRITISH CHASED GERMAN DESTROYERS

All Enemy Vessels Appeared to Have Been Hit

London, April 26.—The Amsterdam correspondent of the Central News says that during the bombardment of Zeebrugge fire from the British warships was answered by three German destroyers. It is said these destroyers were driven into Zeebrugge harbour, and all appeared to have been hit.

LETTER FROM THE FRONT

Bramshott Camp,
Hants County, England
April 10th, 1916.

Dear Mother—
We arrived safe in England this morning, after a voyage of eight days, and a little excitement. We were chased by a German submarine, but we had four destroyers escorting us, and they soon took care of the submarine.

Our camp is about a mile or so from the nearest station and about forty miles from London. They charge ninety cents return for us, just about a cent a mile. It is quite funny to watch the fellows trying to count the English money, some of them can't manage it at all. I make out not to bad, but it don't take much counting to count my money.

Harold Montgomery is at Shorncliffe, about thirty or forty miles from us. He is still in England. I am going to try and see him, also Johnny Barrieau and Harry Murray, when they are off on furlough. I saw Emerson the night we sailed from the pier and he said he was going home on a visit.

I hope you are getting my cheques regular. There are quite a crowd of soldiers here, about twenty thousand. We came to dock at Liverpool, one of the largest seaports in the world.

We have great quarters here, the best yet. Today we are cleaning up, and I got some tables and benches and got the part my section sleeps in, fixed great. It is very warm here, almost like July and August over home.

I suppose Richards Mill will soon be starting up again. Is father still working? Is he going to work at the same job this summer, and how is Linton, is he able to work yet? Well, mother I guess I will close for this time, so Good Bye

From your loving son
LLOYD.

CHANGE IN BUSINESS

It is reported that the business stand of Mr. Paul Devereaux of Belle-dune has changed hands recently, being purchased by Messrs. Edgar Delphus and Norman Frenette who will also carry on a general store. Mr. Devereaux and family will remove to Campbellton where it is reported that Mr. Devereaux will take over the property of Mr. Joseph Duncan and conduct a general store. Possession of the property at Belle-dune will be transferred on the 1st of June. The Messrs. Frenette are well and favorably known here as prominent and rising young business men, and a large circle of friends will wish them every success in their new undertaking.

FIGHT TWO MILES FROM EARTH

German Aeroplane Brought Down

Paris, April 26.—A French aeroplane and a Zeppelin fought a duel at an altitude of 4,000 metres, off Zeebrugge yesterday. The aeroplane fired nine incendiary shells at the Zeppelin, which appears to have been damaged. The engagement, occurring more than two miles from the surface of the earth, was fought at three o'clock in the morning.

At the same time, another French aeroplane, armed with cannon, fired numerous projectiles on a German torpedo boat off Ostend.

A German aeroplane of the Fokker type was brought down in an aerial combat near Luneville, France.

BOXES ACKNOWLEDGED

The Tipperary Club are in receipt of letters from several of the Campbellton boys at the front, who have received parcels from the Club. A. E. G. McKenzie, Shirley Muirhead, J. W. Cantwell, Ed. Viney, Stewart Adams, Vane McDonald, Philip Theberge, Whitney Tope, Guy Luter, Lewis Annet, Bernie McLatchey, Fred Graham, R. J. Steeves, Ray Young, Milton Sargent, all write expressing appreciation at not being forgotten back home.

An interesting letter was received from B'dr. Gordon E. Turner, Duchess of Connaught Hospital, Cliveden, beautifully written with his left hand, his right arm having been lost by a shell explosion. He expects shortly to go to Woolwich Arsenal for a short course in gunnery, prior to coming back to Canada for instructing purposes.

Following is a letter received from Pte. J. E. Doherty, 26th Grenade Section, written March 25th.

"Received your lovely parcel and was pleased with it. I just got it in the right time. I had just been out of the trenches when the mail man came to our billet and called out my name, and sure enough—a parcel for me and from the Tipperary Club. Well, it shows that we are not forgotten yet. Well, my dear friends, we need all we can get to make us happy, because by spells we have it hard. Now last week we had a very hard week as you know, the weather is getting fine, and the Germans are getting very active. I was thinking myself the other day that the Germans are just like some kind of insects. During the cold weather they are half dead, but the fine weather brings them to life again. They certainly give us a warm reception. Last week we lost Harry Ferguson, our Machine Gun officer and our second Commander, Major Belyea. If they keep on there won't be any of us to go back and tell the tale. Still I suppose you know one Canadian is as good as ten Germans. As long as there will be one of us left we will never give in.

I thank you people ever so much for the parcel you sent me. I suppose you know a parcel from Campbellton is ten times better than if it came from any where else.
My best regards to you all,
(Sgd.) PTE. J. E. DOHERTY.
The Club would be glad to receive the addresses of any of our boys to whom parcels have not yet been sent.

GERMAN POWDER FACTORY

BLOWN UP AND MANY KILLED

Athens, via Paris, April 25.—A large German powder factory at Dedegatch was blown up, says a despatch from Salonika. The explosion killed a large number of persons, among them a grandson of Premier Radoslavoff of Bulgaria.

ANOTHER ZEPPELIN RAID OVER ENGLAND

Raiders Forced to Remain at Great Height Owing to Fire of Anti-Aircraft Guns

London, April 26.—The Zeppelins, which made a raid over the east coast last night, remained at a great height, probably because they were subject to violent fire from anti-aircraft guns. The raiders were favored by the darkness of the moonless night and the lightness of the wind, but were forced to flee after a short time.

A correspondent in a town of Essex County says a Zeppelin was picked up by a searchlight at the outskirts of the County, as it was sailing in a southerly direction. In a few minutes it was outlined against the sky by other searchlights. Then shrapnel began to burst around it from many directions. The Zeppelin climbed very high and hovered around for about ten minutes. Then it sailed eastward.

No bombs were dropped after the searchlights found it. The number of casualties and the extent of the damages caused by the raid have not yet been ascertained.

Local Druggist Repairs What Famous Surgeons Cannot Touch

Shattered nerves are beyond the reach of the Surgeon's knife. What will repair them? Dozens of people right here in your home town will bear testimony to this fact that Zoetic—the health tonic—has set them on their feet again. This famous combination of glycer-phosphates—the actual element of the human body—Cod Liver Oil and delicious tonic wine, supply the very elements that worn out nerves require. In a quiet way the action of Zoetic is truly marvellous. Without a trace of narcotic it induces sound sleep. And following that, better and better digestion. And following that, a final and complete rebuilding of the nervous system, drained of vitality. Two weeks' faithful use of it will convince you. Because you have been so often misled, expecting much and receiving little, we offer outright to refund the purchase price of Zoetic if at the end of two weeks you cannot report real progress toward better health. Start trying it to-day. Sold by Thomas Wran, Distributing Agent.

HUSBAND OBJECTS TO OPERATION

Wife Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Des Moines, Iowa.—"Four years ago I was very sick and my life was nearly spent. The doctors stated that I would never get well without an operation and that without it I would not live one year. My husband objected to any operation and got me some of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and commenced to get better and am now well, am stout and able to do my own housework. I can recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman who is sick and run down as a wonderful strength and health restorer. My husband says I would have been in my grave ere this if it had not been for your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. BLANCHE JEFFERSON, 703 Lyon St., Des Moines, Iowa.

Before submitting to a surgical operation it is wise to try to build up the female system and cure its derangements with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it has saved many women from surgical operations.

Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice—it will be confidential.

ARE YOU LIABLE

to accidents while at work? If so, you should carry a box of ZAM-BUK. In the workshop or factory, when an accident occurs, an immediate application of ZAM-BUK will save much suffering and consequent loss of time. There is nothing like ZAM-BUK for stopping pain, and being a strong antiseptic it destroys all germs and prevents wounds from festering.

Mr. J. Benson, an iron-worker, of Sheridan St., Brantford, Ont., says: "I am always getting bits of metal in my hands, which invariably begin to fester, and I apply ZAM-BUK. Needless to say, I am never without a box of ZAM-BUK."

Mr. Austin Finlayson, of Pak, Sask., writes: "While at work I cut my hand with a saw. Not thinking it serious, I neglected the cut until it became very sore and festered. I then applied ZAM-BUK which soon drew out the inflammation and healed the cut. Had I only applied ZAM-BUK in the first place, I would have been saved much pain and inconvenience."

ZAM-BUK is also best for eczema, ringworm, ulcers, old sores, blood-poisoning, boils, abscesses, piles and burns. All druggists 50c box, or ZAM-BUK Co., Toronto. Send 1c stamp for postage and we will send free trial box.

Miss R. McDonald of Nouvelle is working in Mr. T. J. Caldwell's store now.

The two Miss Munros of Gaspé spent a few days with Mrs. Gordon.

Mr. and Mrs. LeBreton of Bonaventure were here for a few days with their two children.

Miss I. Caldwell spent Easter with her sister Mrs. Price Dickie in Campbellton.

Mrs. (Dr.) Maguire is visiting in Valleyfield, Que. for a few weeks.

Pte. Ernest Wilson Astels of the 189th Battalion, New Carlisle, and cousin Pte. Herman Astels of same battalion, spent Easter holidays with friends and relatives in Port Daniel.

We are pleased to hear that Lance-Corporal Claude W. Hall of the 104th Battalion, has been promoted to the rank of Corporal.

BARACHOIS

The weather during the past week has been fine, but still very cold. Folks are pleased at having frosty nights to complete their hauling.

Pte. Alex. Joseph has been visiting at his home here on Sunday, 16th inst.

Mr. Milton Bisson left on Saturday, the 9th inst. for his home in Port Daniel, to the regret of his many friends.

Mr. Clem Chicotte, who has been employed during the past weeks hauling the lumber for his future home, has completed this task.

The many friends of Mr. S. Robertson will be interested to hear that he has enlisted for war, and is at present visiting at his home here before leaving for Valcartier, where he intends drilling.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie McKay of Seal Cove spent the week end here, registered at the "Pine" House.

Our local auto drivers, Mr. Francis McKay, proprietor of the Russell House and Mr. Element, mechanic, are anxiously awaiting the return of fine roads, as there are many pleasant excursions planned out.

Rev. J. G. C. Plourde, P. P., gave a very touching sermon on Sunday last, which we hope will be put to advantage by our young parishioners.

Miss Zon Brient left on Wednesday for her home in Donkestown, where she will spend the Easter holidays.

We are pleased to see that Miss A. M. Ste. Croix has recovered from her recent illness.

We all extend our deepest sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. C. McCallum, on the occasion of their little daughter's illness. She has our best wishes for a speedy recovery.

"SILVER BELL"

Mr. and Mrs. J. Camlot of Port Daniel and daughter Mildred, spent the week end here the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Romeril.

Mr. J. LeHeron spent the week end at Newnort.

Miss Bena Hayes spent Sunday at her home in Shigawake.

Mr. W. Scott of the B. N. S. spent Easter at his home in Cape Cove.

Mr. Jack Tequeme spent Sunday with friends at Newnort.

Miss Muriel Bisson spent the week end at her home in Port Daniel West.

Mr. J. E. Levesque spent a couple of days in Chandler this week.

Miss Nora Patterson of Haldimand, who is staying with her sister, Mrs. R. Patterson, visited her home last week. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Coffin are receiving congratulations on the arrival of two little baby girls at their home. Sergeant Sydney Annet was down around Gaspé recruiting.

Miss Eleanor Eden is the guest of Miss Ada Boyle.

GASCON

Pte. Lester Chedore, 132nd Overseas Battalion, C. E. F., spent his Easter holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Chedore at Gascons. He was warmly welcomed by all, as he seems to be quite a favorite here.

BONAVENTURE

A large delegation of brethren from nearby towns arrived here last Friday for the Easter meetings which were held in the Campbellton settlement back of this place. Among the members attending we noted Mr. George McLennan, Miss Effie Hardy, Mr. Stuart, Mrs. Clarence Burton, Mrs. Archie Tozer, Miss H. McColm, Mr. Jack McColm, Mrs. Ned Campbell, Mr. Wm. McColm and many others from New Richmond, Chaleurs and Black Cape. Many of the local members were at the station to greet the visiting brethren.

Mr. Thomas LeBreton returned on Saturday from Montreal, where he had been spending the past ten days.

Private Sherman Tozer of the 132nd Regiment and Private Clement Bernard of the 189th Regiment were in town to spend the Easter holidays with their parents.

Mr. Dan Boudreau and Mr. Alphonse Ferlatte left on Monday for New Carlisle, where they expect to enlist in the 189th Regiment.

Mr. Thomas Bare Caplan had a very narrow escape from drowning last Friday while returning from his fishing and hunting preserves on the upper Bonaventure River. The canoe, in which Mr. Caplan was, overturned in a dangerous rapid and it was with much difficulty that he was able to make shore.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas LeBreton left last Saturday for New Carlisle, where they spent Easter with Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell of that place.

Mr. R. N. LeBlanc recently purchased the mill formerly owned by the Little Bonaventure Lumber Company at Little Bonaventure.

We understand his drive is coming along successfully and that the mill is already in operation. He will manufacture long lumber and shingles, and has a planning mill in connection with the plant.

Mr. Arthur McAdam was in town Friday and Saturday in connection with the driving operations of the Bathurst Lumber Co. of this place. The Bonaventure river is free of ice and logs are already running down in goodly numbers. The Company will commence sawing on Monday, May 1st, this being about the earliest start they have ever made at this point.

A party of Easter excursionists past through here last Saturday en route to some point down the coast. We noticed among the party, Mr. James Campbell, Mr. Herbert D. L. McKenzie and Mr. McIntyre of New Richmond. Inasmuch as the New Richmond banker was among the party we assume their trip was of a business nature.

Captain Carno with Lieutenants Soucy and Murphy were in town last week on recruiting work. We believe there is plenty of good recruiting material in Bonaventure, although in the past we have been somewhat neglected by recruiting officers. We hope in the future they will be more active as we are not represented to the extent that we should be in the Overseas Service.

Mr. A. B. Gauthier was recently appointed Harbor Master for the port of Bonaventure.

BARACHOIS WEST

The weather has been lovely until today, when the boys are kept busy preparing for river driving, as they expect a heavy rain storm.

Miss Irene McCallum was the guest of Mrs. S. Bisson on Friday last.

Mrs. Alex. Robertson paid a visit to Mrs. M. Chicotte on Thursday the 6th inst.

Mr. Ellis, Sherbrook Co. manager and Mr. W. Chicotte, ship carpenter, will leave on Thursday, when he will begin repairing the "Avis".

Mr. R. Lemassure will lay the foundation of his new house on Wednesday the 19th inst.

SASKATCHEWAN M. P. P.'S ARE EXONERATED

Regina, Sask., April 24.—Four of the eight members of the Legislature who were charged with accepting bribes, were exonerated by the Royal Commission this afternoon, the commissioners agreeing that no evidence had been produced against them.

They are A. F. Totzke, Vonda; Hon. J. A. Sheppard, Moose Jaw county; J. Nolin, Athabasca, and Dr. C. Lochead, Gull Lake.

The names of the four were mentioned before the Sutherland committee of the Legislature, as men to whom Peterson said he had paid money in December, 1913, but their names were not mentioned before the Royal Commission.

Consider Purity in Paint in Preference to Price.

You wouldn't pay the regular price for Sugar that analyzed 10% of sand. You wouldn't pay "all wool" prices for cotton-and-wool clothing. Why should you pay your good money for impure Paint, when you can get

MARTIN-SENOUR "100% PURE" PAINT

We guarantee Martin-Senour "100% Pure" Paint (except a few dark shades that cannot be prepared from pure Lead and Zinc alone) to be 100% pure White Lead, pure Oxide of Zinc, pure Linseed Oil, pure Colors and Turpentine Dryer; and to be entirely free from adulteration or substitution; and sold subject to chemical analysis.

Every experienced Painter knows that the above formula is right. It is the standard of the paint world.

Production and Thrift

"GAIN or no gain the cause before the farmers of Canada is as clear as it was last year—they must produce abundantly in order to meet the demands that may be made, and I believe this to be especially true in regard to live stock, the supply of which must be particularly affected in this vast struggle."—HON. MARTIN BURRELL, Minister of Agriculture.

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENTS ARE BASED ON REPORTS CONTAINED IN "THE AGRICULTURAL WAR BOOK, 1916," PUBLISHED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, OTTAWA, ONT.

LIVE STOCK—The herds and flocks of Europe have been greatly reduced. When the war is over there will be a great demand for breeding stock. Canadian farmers should keep this in mind.

MEATS—In 1915 Great Britain imported 664,508 tons of beef, mutton and lamb, of which 364,245 tons came from without the Empire. Out of 430,420 tons of beef only 104,967 tons came from within the Empire.

The demands of the Allies for frozen beef, canned beef, bacon and hams will increase rather than diminish. Orders are coming to Canada. The decreasing tonnage space available will give Canada an advantage if we have the supplies.

WRITE TO THE DOMINION DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE AND TO YOUR PROVINCIAL DEPARTMENT FOR BULLETINS ON THESE SUBJECTS

Tens of thousands of Canada's food producers have enlisted and gone to the front. It is only fair to them that their home work shall be kept up as far as possible. The Empire needs all the food that we can produce in 1916.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little stomach, liver and bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or not abundantly, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

SERIOUS RIOT IN DUBLIN

London, April 25.—Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, announced in the House today that grave disturbances broke out in Dublin yesterday. He added that troops had been sent to the Irish capital and that the situation was now well in hand.

Mr. Birrell said that twelve persons had been killed before the disturbance was quelled.

THE GREY SWEATER GIRL

BY OCTAVE DEAN

Bryan Brownlee, poet, playwright and successful dramatist, had a streak of superstition about him that had been hard to keep in check by level-headed, practical Elizabeth, his wife. However, it was not pure superstition. He had an odd idea that when luck or chance threw anything in his way, it was his duty to make his life subject to that chance until the end in view was attained.

The thing that Elizabeth found hardest to keep down was his penchant for signs to be followed. He was always looking for something. Sometimes the signs were good (he got many a good plot for stories that way), but often they were bad, and Bryan was likely to go off at a tangent at any time.

Elizabeth stuck, by his dutifully, a good, solid anchor for this poor craft so often storm-tossed on the sea of imagination. She was a splendid help-mate for such a temperamental person, but not only that, for she had made his house a wonderful place to live in, even in days when acceptances were few and far between and she had had to do the cooking herself.

Then slowly but surely with good meals to nourish him and a devoted wife who even took the place of a business of his shoulders and who often sat up until the most unholiest hours, with coffee and sandwiches ready when he should stop writing—success had come and he had slowly mounted the ladder of fame.

But will you believe me when I tell you that after ten years of devotion on Elizabeth's part Bryan still had a doubt? He wondered if he had not made a mistake in marrying her. And this is why.

One day long ago, much after the same fashion a country maid writes her name on a newly-laid egg and ships it off to market, he wrote his name across the corner of a freshly-laundered silk handkerchief and below it the mystic letters "T. M. E. W." which meant something very sentimental—"To My Future Wife."

"I am going to let chance pick my wife for me," said he laying the white bit on the window ledge. "The wind will blow it off at a certain time—there begins a chance. And a dozen people will pass it by—chance again; and a girl will pick it up—still chance; for if the writing is hidden no one will touch it but if the writing is exposed only a woman would be observant enough and curious enough to read. The mysterious letters will impel her to take it home. And that's where I come in. I must watch and see who gets my handkerchief and follow her. Then comes chance again—she may be married, but I think not. When luck has played in my hands so far, she won't turn her back on me then. Here goes!"

And Bryan had watched the white thing flutter to the pavement, lie awhile, and finally lifted by a girl in a grey sweater, cap and scarf, who stuffed the handkerchief into her pocket after reading the name. He grabbed his hat and rushed to the street. He had not seen the girl's face but he was sure of finding her in clothes so easily identified.

However, at this point luck turned against him in spite of his predictions, and laughed loud and long for he couldn't find the girl in the grey sweater-cap and scarf.

The months went on and he married Elizabeth. He had grown up with Elizabeth, and had always liked his little neighbor, but her sensible, practical ways he had never associated with. He had picked out to himself a passionate, romantic creature as a proper mate for a poet.

Elizabeth was the first person he had gone with the secret of the handkerchief, but she could not help him to identify his own affinity. She had not laughed at the idea, but told him how futile it would be to find the girl he sought. "Girls don't look at advertisements," she said.

They had eventually drifted into marriage, first because Bryan discovered that she really did inspire him to work and second, because he found she was so pretty and entertaining that he liked to have her around. But always he had the feeling that he should have married the girl in grey. Not that he wasn't fond, very, very fond, of Elizabeth, but chance had meant it to be another way and something probably his own stupidity, had sent things wrong.

Now, for the first time in ten years, Elizabeth had to be away. Somebody was sick or dead, and Bryan, minus his companion, business manager and general comfort, was like a newly-decapitated fowl. At the end of three days he was beginning to realize what she was to him. He had never dreamed he could miss her so much, and he waited impatiently for a telegram saying she was coming home.

He thought of her engagement book in her desk. She would not mind him looking over it, and it might give him an idea of her return. But he could not find it. It was not in any of the pigeon holes or small drawers above. Perhaps the deeper drawer below would hold it. So he turned the key and pulled it open. He started back staring at though he had seen a ghost, for there on top of a few bundles of old letters lay a silk handkerchief with his name and mystic letters in the corner. Slowly he reached and touched it to see if it were real. Then he lifted it, staring with unbelief at the words.

"Ronny!" exclaimed a woman's voice in the doorway. "I'm so glad to get back! Why, Ronny, what's the matter, you look—oh, goodness did you find that stupid handkerchief after all? I wish I'd burnt it!"

"Elizabeth!" his face was radiant

CARRANZA TROOPS

ATTACK AMERICANS

Serious Clash in Which Several United States Soldiers Are Reported Killed

El Paso, April 24.—Early today the local police received a report that fighting had begun between Carranza and American forces at Satevo.

According to the police here, the information came from influential sources in Juarez. The police believe the report to be true. It was stated that several negro soldiers had been killed in the fighting.

At Fort Bliss nothing had been heard of the reported clash at Satevo. An immediate investigation was started.

THE NEED OF PRODUCTION

It must be plain to the most obtuse and unreasoning mind that twenty-four or twenty-five million of men cannot be withdrawn even from the swarming population of Europe without effecting a huge reduction in the produce of labour and of the soil. Women may in a measure supply the places of men, but it must be remembered that women have also their sphere in the economies of life. Therefore in taking them to the land they are being taken, in the main, from other employment. Consequently, if for every man who goes to fight there was a woman to take his place in agriculture or other industry there would still be a production not only in labour but in production. At the present time 400,000 women are being called for to take the place of 250,000 British soldiers recruited from farm work.

Hence it is clear that no matter what steps may be taken, either during the war or after the war, there must be an enormous shortage of the requirements across the Atlantic for many years to come. And that shortage for a period subsequent to the declaration of peace will be as keen as at any time during the gigantic struggle. With the normal scramble for existence resumed there will be less immediate government control—in other words there will be less systematic regulation of supplies. To meet the huge demands that must succeed extra consumption, tremendously less production and immensely greater wastage, there will be abundant use not for one year's bountiful crops, but for similar blessings during a score of successive years. Where and how can this assured demand be met? There is but one answer to the dual question—by the undevastated countries and by redoubled efforts at production in those countries.

That Canada is not the only country that has not had its resources in large part exhausted or destroyed, is true; but there is plenty of reason to believe that the nations of Europe not engaged in the war, have been drawn upon to the utmost by those so engaged; hence when the time comes all eyes will be turned from east to west for succour. Canada, being the nearest to the great centre of demand, will, of necessity, apart from sentimental reasons, be the first looked to and will have the greatest opportunity. The bogey of released Russian harvests has been on parade since the war commenced but Russia, with twelve or fifteen million men called to arms, largely of the peasant class, has suffered and is suffering, like the rest. She, too, will need reorganizing, rejuvenating and regenerating. Hence, while for a few months after the outbreak of hostilities, there may have been something to be expected from the release of stores of wheat and other grain from Odessa and other Black Sea ports, there is nothing available now and there may be little in the next decade. Hence, Canada's role is plain—to go on producing, to go on garnering and storing, if necessary, in the sure and certain hope of ultimate profit and prosperity. The never was a time, and gamboling never will be another time, when we were more urgently called upon to produce, in increased quantities, not alone all articles of food, but every article that enters into the industrial life of peoples.

and he clasped her to him as though he would never let her go. "You were the grey-sweater girl and you never told me."

"Well—what if I didn't? Are you glad to see me because I'm the grey-sweater girl or because I'm me?"

"Both, dearest. Chance has certainly been good to me. To think that all these years I've been married to the one girl in the world meant for me. But why didn't you tell me?"

"If you must know I will tell you, Ronny. Sit down and be sensible. Suppose I had told! Your gambling instinct, that fatal part of you that depends upon superstition and chance, would have been a million times worse. I didn't dare tell you."

Once alone in her own room, his wife marched straight to the mirror and looked herself in the eyes. "Am I any different since I've acted a lie?" she asked the wholesome reflection which confronted her. "How could I tell him that the dream-maker's girl found the handkerchief on her way to our home and gave it to me? But I'll let him think what he likes now. It'll make him happier and it won't hurt him to love me even more than he has in the past."

UNEARTH RELICS OF BRITISH FORCE IN NEW YORK

Discover Huts Occupied by Troops After the Battle of Washington Heights

New York, April 24.—Forty-five huts erected and tenanted in 1776 by the American army under General William Heath and by the British and Hessian troops who drove the Americans from Manhattan Island in the Battle of Washington Heights, have been unearthed at Broadway and 203rd street, near the old Erckman mansion. The site is soon to be turned over to the city as an historical park.

The huts occupied first by Americans and then by the British and Hessian troops, were composed in part of bricks, stood in three rows and contained many relics, including English and Hessian coins, a set of dice fashioned from musket bullets, quartz arrow-heads and broken china.

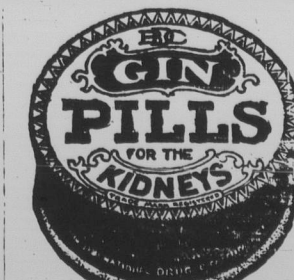

Buttons and belt buckles of the seventeenth Leicestershire Foot, Fourteenth Buffs, including English Guards, 23rd Welsh Fusiliers, two Black Watch regiments and an Inniskilling regiment, were found.

Some of the huts will be reconstructed in the park.
