J. S. Woodsworth, Labor M.P. Scathingly Denounces Natural Resources Policy.

LABOR GAINS

Canadian Press Despatch.
Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 17—"It simply means that we fiv Brithut are actually owned by the United States," declared J. S. Woodsworth, M.P. Labor member for Winnipeg North, discussing the natural resources problems at the Labor church here Sunday. He made this declaration while discussing recent federal tion while discussing recent grants in pulpwood areas, stating that this was an "unjustifiable procedure; another industry being handed over to the Americans."

Mr. Woodsworth, who has just concluded a tour of the western provinces, discussed the coal mining sit-uation and the recent strike in Al-berta and declared the fundamental difficulty was over-development. Throughout the dominion, control of the national resources, mining rights have been granted in excess of the necessity of the case, and there were a number of companies producing coal with heavy overhead charges and no markets. He mentioned the fact that he had already on the order paper for next year the recommenda-tion that the mines should be controlled by the people rather than by private interests.

Mr. Woodsworth told of addressing several meetings of farmers in the west, and said the agriculturists had a great deal more sympathy for labor now than previously. Many of them had their farms heavily mortgaged and they were reduced practically to a state of serfdom.

Generally she is expected only to furnish such rooms as servants' rooms, kitchen quarters— the conventional parts of the house she does not pretend to be an interior decorator. But she has taste, has kept house herself and knows what people of various means, running various sized households, need.

In addition to this, she will supervise the cleaning of a house or apart-ment for rental, and will close or coen it. The whole thing is put in her hands, and the owner does not have to give it another thought until she walks in, or from the moment she walks out.

An Honorable Man Will Never Marry a Girl Just to Keep His Promise, for It Is Far More Cruel to Give Her a Loveless Marriage Than to Jilt Her.

The right to change your mind has always been one of the prerogatives of woman, and so no odium has attached itself to one of the fair sex when she jilted a lover. The world merely shrugged its shoulders and made some bromidic remark about the fickleness of woman, and let it go at that. Even the man accepted it as part of the fortunes of love and County W. C. T. U. Passes mended up his damaged heart as best he could.

But when a man breaks his engagement to marry a girl, it is a different matter. He is called a cad and accused of being dishonorable, and people pity the poor, forsaken victim of man's perfidy. and very often the aggrieved maiden brings suit for breach of

So, because of the public obliquy that attaches to a man's breaking an engagement to a woman, and because nearly all men are cowards where women are concerned, many a man goes to the altar with death in his heart, wishing that the clergyman was saying over him the burial service instead of the marriage service.

There are many tragic illustrations of this. The most common, perhaps, is that of the man who pledges himself to the girl in his little home town before he starts out into the world to seek his fortune. He is a young, unformed boy at the time and he thinks himself very much in love with the girl who is the village belle. But absence, and separation, and new interests, and a different environment all do their work in weaning him from her, in developing him, in changing him, in giving him new ideals, new tastes, new standards of what he wants in life

But the girl waits for him. He keeps her from marrying and settling herself in life, and although he has ceased to care for her. although she bores him, although he knows life with her will be nothing but an endurance test, while it might be a heaven on earth with some other woman, he feels in honor bound to go back and he hasn't the courage to hurt her. He hasn't the nerve to endure knowing what his old friends and neighbors will say of him. So he does hibited. what he thinks is the fine and heroic thing and marries her.

In reality, his honor is the quintessence of dishonor. His kindness is the refinement of cruelty. Instead of doing the right thing by the girl, he has done her the greatest wrong imaginable, and so far from respecting a man who fulfills a marriage engagement when it becomes an obligation and not a joy, we should heap our scorn upon him.

For the man who marries a woman from a sense of duty, and not because he loves her, does her the greatest injury that one human being can do another. He dooms her to a life of misery. He feeds her on husks. And no matter how kind and considerate he is to her, no matter how generous he is, her marriage will be a hell on earth to her. For no woman is so stupid as not to know the difference between a husband's loving her and merely tolerating her. There is no woman that cannot tell the difference between the kiss of passion and the kiss of duty; no woman who does not resent the patience that her husband gives her because he cannot give her love; no woman who does not writhe under the knowledge that her husband is happier away from her than with her, and that he dreads the coming home at night as a prisoner might the shutting of the jail doors upon him. In Barrie's story, Sentimental Tommy, who had all the intuitions of genius, would say to himself that under such-and-such conditions a man who loved his wife would kiss her, or stroke her hair, or put his arm about her, or say thus and so to her. And so he would show to the undesired Grizelle the delicate little attentions that a lover-husband would have done. But there are few Sentimental Tommies in real life, nor can many husbands keep up play-acting long and pretend a love they do not feel for their wives. Matrimony strips life to the bone, and it is not possible for either a husband or wife to deceive the other about his or her real senti-No matter how hard a man tries to be a good husband, he cannot be a loving husband unless his heart is filled with affection

Therefore, an conorable man will break an engagement at the very church door if he changes his mind at the last minute, because he will not marry a woman without loving her. And an honorable woman lets him go because she would not have a husband on sufferance.

There were a score of questions a man of perspicuity would now have asked, not one of which appears to have occurred to the knight of Arwenack. upon no doubt it was sheer curiosity as to what further extravagances Rosamund might yet have it in her mind to utter.

"This man has suffered," she told him, and was not put off by the hard laugh with which he mocked the statement, "God alone knows what he has suffered in body and in soul for sins which he never committed. Much of that suffering came to him through me, I know today that he did not murder Peter. today that he did not murder Peter. I know that but for a disloyal act of mine he would be in a posiact of mine he would be in a position incontestably to prove it without the aid of any man. I know that he was carried off, kidnapped, before ever he could clear himself of the accusation, and that, as a consequence, no life remained him but the life of a renegade, which he chose. Mine was the chief fault. And I must make amends. Spare him to me! If you love me.

He recoiled. Being a man of position and importance: quick, fearless and vindictive of temperament (and also, it would seem, extremely fortunate), it had never happened to him in all his life to be so uncompromisingly and frankly judged. She was by no means the first to account him a fool, but she was certainly the first to call him one to his face, and, whilst to the general it might have proved her extreme sanity, to him it was no more than the culminating proof of her mental dis-

He's all fussed up over the Londoners, who, he thinks, will just about set the pace in the "Big Five." They set a fast enough pace for "Ole Lightnin'" for the first few days, but he has just about caught up with them now, and fans who have watched the workouts catch many glimpses of the form which made Prodger one of the most popular players who ever donned a London sweater and made him a start in the monied ranks.

PRO COACHES.

The N. O. H. A. has decided to have pro coaches for another year and then by the time they have gradually gotten used to the idea of barring them, then the paid mentors are to 'op it. There are plenty of fans who think coaching in hockey is more or less applesauce. The result of coaching may not be so apparent in hockey as in some games which have slower system of play. But it's been proven just as necessary.

Local fans had a look-see at the results of coaching in the case of the Galt team. They came here a mediocre intermediate team, individually, four years ago, put out the Alerts and went on to an intermediate championship. Percy Lesuer taught them a system of play that took them much farther than their ability ever would. That system developed such players as Himes, George Watts and Oliver, some of whom looked good last year in the concerted jump of the Big Four teams to senior ranks. Some of the Lesuer system will be noted in Galt's play this year and probably long after the original Galt champs are through, bits of that particular style will still linger around.

ROBBING BRITAIN.

Agents of several of the big soccer teams in the United States are again scouring the Old Land in search of talent. The talent will not be hard to find; the difficulty lies in players getting their release from the club for which they have signed. Detroit has a representative in Scotland at present, while Tom Muirhead, former Glasgow Rangers' half-back, has returned to the "second city of the empire," ostensibly for the purpose of bringing back to the U.S. A. two players with international reputation. Muirhead plays for Boston. Football is certainly coming into its own ecross the line. The clubs over there appear to have almost unlimited wealth behind them, and money talks louder than any agent.

BETTER TEAM WINS

Canadian Press Despatch Toronto, Nov. 16.—One of the best games of the local senior season to watch was the closing engagement of the interprovincial union, in which the Argonauts shattered the hopes of the home brew Ottawa aggregation to the the double blue for second place in the standing by inflicting a 12 to 6 defeat on the eastern invaders. Ottawa with two successive victories to their credit over the Montreal squad were in a position to climb up to the second perch with the scullers, and they were confident they could do so, but on the play of Saturday there was no doubt as to which was the better team.

The Oarsmen deserved a greater marg in in the final score to give a correct, indication of the play, but the margin of a converted touchdown kept interest sustained to the last. The game was witnessed by one of the smallest crowds of the year, but those who were faithful to the fall sport saw an excellent game of the open play variety. There were numerous smashes at the line, but there were also lots of attempts to round the ends and to advance the ball by the aerial route, and all these tended to give the spectators almost a continual view of the ball.

22--0. Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Nov. 15.—Three touchdowns, a dropkick, a rouge, a deadline kick and two converts sang a total of 22—0 for the S. T. C. I. in an exhibition game here Saturday against the Galt C. I.

The home team was in every way superior, suffering no serious setbacks. Their line held well, and their end runs made large gains. Vaughan, Medcalf and Udell made large gains, the first two on plunges, and the latter, who played only one quarter on account of his shoulder, by sheer head work in evading the visiting tacklers. In the estimation of Buster Reid, the referee, the S. T. C. I. squad was the best lineup of school players he had ever seen on the grid.

It Is Ottawa's Fight.

It has remained for the city council and board of commerce of Detroit to lodge one of the strongest protests against Chicago stealing water bank $130,000. from the great lakes.

Detroit charges that Chicago had no sanitary be worse than its predecessor. problem that had not been faced by every large city on the American continent, and that exactly the same scientific methods were open to that city as have been employed elsewhere.

The result has been a lowering of the lake levels to such an extent that shipping is suffering a loss of $3,000,000 per year.

One thing is certain-Chicago is going to make a desperate fight to hang on to the plunder ful accomplishment; your playing is evidence of it has stolen. When a thief secures a valuable article he naturally turns all his energies to keeping the rightful owner from regaining possession, and that is exactly what will happen, and is happening, in this case. Chicago has an army of legal talent ready now to spike down her claim on the ground of sanitary necessity; she has engineers ready to state the case, and they know their piece well before the performance before the supreme court of United States opens.

The protest from Detroit is helpful, but it is not primarily the battle of Detroit. Detroit has living. a grievance against Chicago, but Ottawa has a broken contract with Washington, and it is a clear-cut issue between the capitals of these two countries. Ottawa has no jurisdiction over Chicago, but Washington has, and if effective action is to be taken it must be bacause Washington is made to realize the force and insistence of the demands, not simply the protests, of Ottawa should make it perfectly clear to Washington that an international treaty has been smashed, and that a city over which Washington has control, and for whose actions Washington alone can be held responsible, has driven its horse and wagon over obligations that form the basis of good faith between United States and Canada.

THOUGHTS ON PRAYING.

Oh! it may be we're not praying.
When a lot of words we're saying;
As in whispers, or in yelling.
We conceive to God we're telling
Things we think we need.
Tho' we stand, or tho' we're kneeling.
We may lack a passive feeling;
And when words we're glibly saying,
We may simply be portraying
Selfishness and greed.

We are vain and we're short-sighted: Oft our pray'rs are self-indited: So if these are those we're pouring, And the will of God ignoring. And our deepest need; Tho' we may be daily pleading Perfect love will be unheeding;

But, if we are truly praying, Tho' no words at all we're saying. Father's ear will heed. London, Nov. 14.

Genesee was murdered, and the circumstances of his death are similar to those surrounding the murder of Joe Baytolzae, whose remains were found on the mountain near Albion Falls a week ago. Revenge is believed to be the motive in both cases. Genesee, it is expected, was friendly with the police. A change belt containing about $5 was found on Genesee's body. Examination showed that he had been brutally treated. A rope was wrapped around his neck five times. There was a bullet hole through his wrist, and one eye was either gouged out or blown out by a bullet fired at close range. A towel was used to strangle him, and there was evidence of a blow being struck on the head by a blunt instrument. In the Baytoizae case the head of the victim was severed from the body.

RED ROSE ORANGE PEKOE THE · BUILDING · OF · THE · DOMINION of the Canadian Pacific at Winniper DO YOU KNOW ... In the months of September, October and November, 1923, the amount of grain inspected in Canadian Pacific cars at Winnipeg was 145 million bushels. The total inspected at Winnipeg, during that period, was 238 million bushels—68 million more than all the grain inspected at Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago put together.

The Grain Centre of the Empire

HE start of Winnipeg's rapid growth to the proud position she occupies today, dates from the laying of the first rails across Canada by the Canadian Pacific.

From the very first development of that great grain empire, when the riches of the prairies were first uncovered, Winnipeg, midway on the highway between the oceans, became the distributing centre and the grain market of the West.

Many years ago the Canadian Pacific showed their faith in Winnipeg's future by building then the Royal Alexandra, one of Canada's largest and finest hotels.

Measure Winnipeg's importance in the world of commerce by the miles of trackage required for her growing trade.

The Canadian Pacific yards at Winnipeg, consisting of 303 miles of track, are the largest in the world! Supplementing the terminals are the extensive Canadian Pacific car and locomotive shops covering an area of 143 acres.

This is a gauge, truly, of the magnitude of the Western empire of which Winnipeg is the centre. It explains the massive structures that house Winnipeg's great mercantile firms and the industrial plants that have sprung up to serve the growing population of the plains.

Yet Winnipeg's strength lies not in her piles of concrete and steel, but in the men that guide her business affairs. Winnipeg shows an enterprise in business and aggressiveness in merchandising that is an example for the world.

This beautifully fanciful story was born of a poet's dream in Araby and made into an entrancing reality by Douglas Fairbanks.

It breathes the spirit of imaginary worlds where the unusual is usual, the impossible is possible, and Romance and Adventure are Life, Itself.

Breaking Glass No Fire Alarm

Man Forgets To Pull Hook, Scolds Department.

Flames leaping from a hot air register prompted a Talbot street resident to run to the corner fire alarm box, break the glass, according to directions, and open the door.

He then returned to his house and quenched the blaze by pouring buckets of water down the register. But the fire department failed to arrive.
"What's the matter with you fel lows?" he asked a fireman at the central hall over telephone 15 min-utes after the fire had been extinguished. "I, just turned in an alarm and there has been no response." "No alarm has been received here," the fireman replied. "Are you sure you turned it in properly?" The man described the manner in which he had sent the alarm.

"You forgot to pull the hook inside the door of the alarm box," the fireman informed him.

"Another objection offered, con-cluded Dr. MacGregor, " is that min-isters do not have to pledge them-selves to anything." Before a man can begin to study for the ministry in accordance with the requirements of the basis of union, he must be rec-ommended by the session or congre-gation to which he belongs. He must be examined by Presbytery before he goes to college, and at the end of every year of his college course. He must be licensed to preach by pres-bytery and recommended to the conerence for ordination. Dr. Mackenzie-Naughton, of Owen Sound, Conducts Morning and Evening Services.

Timely and practical were the nessages delivered yesterday at the fist anniversary of St. James' Anglican church, South London, by Rev. J. D. Mackenzie-Naughton, D.D., of Owen Sound Dr Mackenzie-Naughton declared in his morning sermon on the subject. "All Grace Abounding," that until the Christians of today get into more personal touch and knowledge of God, as had the Christians of the Victorian age, there would be little power in that Christianity.

'Knowledge and real intimacy with God can not be secured over night or in a hurry," said the speak-er, "it is the fruit of daily systematic communion with Him and the ifting up of our hearts to Him. But. vith that knowledge, comes power o overcome the difficulties of life. which will thereby be greatly sweet

Victory Over Sin.

"Christians should abound in victory over sin. At the time of bap-tism Christians renounced sin in its three sources-the world, the flesh and the devil, and at the time of confirmation that yow is renewed. Victory over sin is possible since God has willed that man should triumph

"Christians should abound in the growth of holiness," pursued Dr. Mackenzie-Naughton. Holiness is not much thought of these days. The modern mind shrinks from holiness as being a saint, something unattainable or else someone sancti-monious and beneath our contempt. Holiness, however, is important, since without holiness, no man can see God. Holiness on God's part has been defined as 'the glorious fullness of His moral excellence.' That, of ourse, means God's separation from verything evil and His consecration o everything pure. Our holiness lies n sharing God's holiness and that. is not impossible or unattainble, since God has willed it for us.

All Should Work. "Every Christian ought to be a abounding There are many Christian service. today who go to church and worship and adore God, who are doing nothing in His service. your share of that work."

In the evening Dr. MackenzieNaughton spoke on "The Sure Foundation." wno, incidentally, is only the second rector the congregation has had since its organization in 1873.

wishes. He does not pretend to be a master of individuals or classes, but rather an experienced public servant of all the people. It has not been and never will be his purpose to cater to any "iron-bound ring" or self-selected committee of citizens. In answer, however, to innumerable requests from one end of the city to the other, he now offers himself again for the mayoralty of London. This is not a last-minute decision, but the result of mature judgment, based on experience and backed by a pledge to the following program of unfinished civic business:

Still further reduction of the tax rate.

Attention to the industrial site and the accomplishment of its purpose for the accommodation of factories.

Still greater initiative in the systematizing of the fire department.

Development of the Western University.

Further improvements in market conditions.

Additional improvements in Western Fair.

A real effort to get a Winter Fair.

Renewed activity towards building a new hotel. The great transportation problem.

Pavements to be laid, including the completion of the Wellington road, Quebec street, Brydges street, Wharncliffe road, Oxford street west, Oxford street east, Langarth street, Horton street, Edward street and many other pavements.

Continuance of the improved lighting system.

The perplexing problems of unemployment.

Street traffic regulations for safety.

Tunnel at Victoria Hospital.

More improvements in West London. Continuance of equitable assessment.

The further co-ordination of the various departments under the control of the City Council.

Standardization of civic salaries.
