KEPT DOG IN CELLAR TO DODGE TAX

A (Simconian's) Attempt to Camouflage Canine Failed

OTHER SIMCOE NEWS

(From our own Correspondent)
 Simcoe, July 31.—Edward Taylor, of Queen St. North, paid dog tax $10, and costs $5.10, at the conclusion of the hearing of a charge preferred against him for harboring a dog without paying the civic tax. The animal was a splendid Scotch collie, female, and had been kept in the cellar for a long time. It may now run at large by day. T. J. Aear was present to plead for the accused, and this item would add a little to the outlay over the canine.

Odd Ends of News
 Monday night's storm was insignificant at the water front.
 Chief Canning was out with a sheet of subpoenas yesterday morning.

Pay your taxes to-day, you may forget to-morrow, and then the add 4 percentage will be upon you. To-morrow is the last day to pay your taxes; your big patriotic contribution is indicated.

The fellow who argues that working in Canada and living at home is equivalent to soldiering in France and living on the battlefield, and who makes a comparison of the pay received by this man, with the allowance to that and his dependents, is not putting much premium on the value of the man who goes to the front, on his privations, on the privations and suspended anxiety of his family at home. The comparison is unfair.

The last load of the 1918 crop of factory peas passed over the scales yesterday.

Residents who find that the sparrows are destroying the corn tassels in the gardens before the pollen tips, have nothing to say at present about the nest pest.

 Kindly remember that Simcoe has a Board of Trade which has a committee to look after telephone and kindred public services. Fire Chief Kendall, made ten successive attempts to get central about four o'clock yesterday morning. He had got a connection some five minutes previously, but could not get it taken down when through talking and desiring to get in another call. And the heartless fellow gave it up and turned into bed without going up to the exchange to ascertain whether the operator had collapsed after the original connection.

Brantford Man Fined For Leaving a Car Standing

From Our Own Correspondent.
 Port Dover, July 30.—Lorne Abbey, of Brantford, paid a $50 fine for leaving a car standing on the highway. The car was owned by Fred Haskett, of St. Williams. With two other Simconians he attended the dance here and left the car standing on Clinton street, without lights. Abbey gave his name as John Williams. The chief pursued the usual course to prove up, and traced the car to St.

DEFINED STATUS OF ALL MEMBERS

G. W. V. A. Limits Entrance Requirements to Service in France or England

LONG DISCUSSION

Western Delegates Favor Association of Men Actually in War Areas

Toronto, July 31.—Membership in the Great War Veterans' Association, by the Dominion convention meeting in the Technical School, is limited to men who have seen service in England and France, with provision for exceptional cases and for preserving the status of present members of the association not included in the category of men who have been overseas.

The decision was made after a lengthy debate, which commenced on Monday afternoon, when resolutions were suspended to allow the introduction of a motion by Vice-President James Robinson of Vancouver to confine the membership to men who have seen actual fighting service. They were described as "France men." The debate was broken to allow the introduction of the report of the committee selected to deal with the status of Mr. J. J. Shanahan, second vice-president.

Three Different Principles

During the debate resolutions embodying three principles came before the convention. One was to limit the membership to men who had been in France, a second to men who had been in England and France, and a third to throw the membership open to men who had enlisted in the C.E.F., even if they had never left Canada. When the convention closed its morning session yesterday they were turned over to Major A. T. Hunter of Toronto, chairman of the Constitution Committee.

Ontario and West Disagree

A vote was taken upon the three principles outlined in the resolutions. Sixty delegates, principally from Ontario, voted for the "wide open" policy, 102 stood for the compromise, and 35, including the Winnipeg delegation, cast their vote for "France only" principle.

The delegates were asked to present any suggestions regarding the status of members who will be affected by the decision of those cases that might be termed exceptional. They will be considered when the committee presents its report on Friday.

About 15 per cent, according to one estimate of the membership of the association comes under the association's membership class. The secretary stated that he had issued of his office in Ottawa 3,000 associate membership badges.

Mr. Shanahan's Standing.
 A debate occurred over the standing of Mr. J. J. Shanahan, an anti-mosquito toward Mr. Shanahan was due to his attitude of last winter toward certain groups of the association, which he described as rebellious. He followed his attack by an effort to form another association while still the second Vice-President of the Dominion G.W.V.A. He presented his dues to a local branch. The committee reported that as he "had not paid his dues, and had admitted that he was no longer a member of the association, his standing was for the convention to pass upon."

The convention submitted itself to the ruling of the President. Delegate Maclean of Regina said that the convention was to correct past mistakes and build a firm foundation for the future. It was not to deal with squabbles of a local nature. A vote was taken, and Mr. Shanahan remained a member of the convention.

Urged British System
 Colonel Pidgeon of Ottawa, when the committee upon procedure presented its report, suggested an amendment whereby the vote upon questions at the national convention would be taken under the British trade unions. Each delegate to the convention would be accredited with the votes of the fully paid-up members of his local body.

To illustrate the unfairness of the present system I shall submit figures from the report of the Secretary. He says that there are 19,136 paid-up members in Canada; there are in Ontario 7,693. Now, Ontario sends to this convention 94 delegates and the rest of the Dominion 34. The vote of each man should be based upon the strength of the organization.

tion he represents. Some say "No, I will guarantee that they are men who come from the affected localities."
 He was supported by Mr. J. J. Shanahan because of the firmness and justice of the system suggested. It was pointed out that Toronto, with 2,267 paid-up members, had 17 delegates and Winnipeg with 3,270 members, was allowed 10.
 President was asked for. Eighty-eight voted against the amendment and 58 for it.

Postmen's Strike Up.
 When the convention opened its afternoon session Secretary Stewart read a telegram from Hon. Mr. Doherty relative to the postmen's strike. It was a copy of the message which he had sent to the Calgary Board of Trade. A message was also read from Vancouver, which read: "That in direct opposition to the declared policy of the Government, strikebreakers who are not returned soldiers are being used in Vancouver postoffice. The strikers are many of them returned men." Delegate Dyson, Calgary, declared that he could not allow the communication to pass, as it was a matter of vital importance to Labor.

"This is not a Labor meeting. The Government has done all possible to avoid a strike," said Delegate Jarvis of Ottawa, who deprecated the idea of strikes in wartime, although they had occurred in the United States and in Canada, and in spite of the fact that members of the G.W.V.A. were affected.

Protect the Soldier.
 Delegate Harold Meredith, Toronto, pointed out that it was for the association to protect the returned soldier. The Government knew in plenty of time to avoid the trouble. It should make use of its powers of order in Council to right the wrong.
 President Furney ruled the discussion out of order. Delegate Dyson of Calgary had it made clear that the matter would come up at a later date.

CROSSED THE OURC UNDER DIFFICULTY

American Troops Effected Crossing Despite German Fire

With the American army on the Alsace-Marne front, Monday, July 29, the crossing of the Ourcq river was effected by the Americans on Sunday in brilliant style in the face of great difficulties, the Germans having destroyed the bridges and placed their artillery and machine guns in adjacent positions to resist the attempts of a passage. American forces had planned to cross the Ourcq before daylight on Sunday but the German heavy artillery held the slopes leading to the river under fire which continued all night. The Americans repeatedly started to advance during the night, but as often were held back by the fire of the enemy machine guns and heavier pieces.

During one of the jabs in the German firing, Captain Allen of Omaha, Neb., worked his men up to the center of a field, the slopes of which led to the Ourcq. Just then the Germans resumed their fire and Huff and his men dug in and held the trench until daylight.

Choosing an opportunity moment Huff's men dashed to the river and waded across. They immediately went after the machine guns on a bank of the river and destroyed them. The fire which they opened on the enemy nest at this point was so intense that the Germans raised the white flag. Anticipating an attack by the Americans, the Germans rushed up, only to be opened upon again by the machine guns.

Twelve Germans were killed and nine captured in this operation.

Washington, July 30.—Severe fighting resulting from heavy counter-attacks by fresh enemy troops beyond the line of the Ourcq, was reported in General Romberg's communiqué of yesterday, received today at the War Department.

"Beyond the line of the Ourcq heavy counter-attacks made by fresh troops of the enemy have resulted in severe fighting. Several taken by our troops yesterday, after having changed hands nine times, remains in our possession."
 With the American Army on the Alsace-Marne front, July 30.—(By The Associated Press).—(1 p.m.) Under fire from the enemy only slightly less than that of yesterday, the Americans on the front north of the Ourcq held on to their positions this morning, and even advanced a little toward the road from Serlinges to Serzy.

Repeated efforts by the enemy to dislodge the Americans, were futile. On the Americans left the French are moving forward. To the right the lines are holding steady.

ORDERED TO REPORT ON EVE OF MARRIAGE

Rev. S. W. Hann, Appointed Chaplain, Has to Ask Bride to Defer the Ceremony

Windsor, July 20.—Volunteering four years ago to serve as Chaplain with Canadian forces in France Rev. S. W. Hann, who was recently appointed pastor of Sandwich Methodist Church, did not receive orders to report for duty until yesterday—the eve of his marriage to a Toronto young woman.

Rev. Mr. Hann, when the official message from the Militia Department was pushed into his hands telling him to report for duty, had just finished making arrangements to purchase furniture for his new home in Sandwich. He left for Toronto this afternoon, according to Rev. H. A. Graham, Chairman of Windsor District of the Methodist Church, to induce his prospective bride to defer the ceremony until he returns from France.

The minister will report at Peta-wawa Camp, to be attached to an artillery unit. He came to Sandwich from Toronto a month ago.

SITUATION TO-DAY

By the Associated Press

In spite of the tremendous efforts put forth by the Germans to check the relentless pressure of the Allies north of the Ourcq river, to-day the German positions there in grave danger. French, British and American fighting their way forward to the east of Fere-en-Tardenois, have driven a wedge into the enemy's line and seem to be in a position to compel a hurried retreat from Ronchères and St. Gemme, at the extreme bottom of the salient between Soissons and Rheims.

The Allied line to-day runs south from Soissons to Grand Rezy, and then it begins to turn to the east. It passes just north of Fere-en-Tardenois and continues to the apex of the wedge at the village of Neules, where it turns sharply towards Ronchères. The Allies advance in this region seems to have played them in a dominating position.

All around the salient there has been a continual battle during the past two days with the Germans launching repeated counter attacks against the Allied lines. They have all failed and the Allies have gained important ground at vital points.

Immediately south of Soissons and west of Rheims the German lines are strongly held, but enemy efforts to improve his position in the latter region have been thrown down. There now seems to be little doubt that the Germans will retreat to the Vesle river as soon as possible, any possibility of making a stand north of the Ourcq being seemingly gone.

Against the new British positions at Merris, in the Lys salient where the Germans were driven back on Tuesday there has been a heavy bombardment.

General von Eichelborn, the German dictator in Ukraine, has been assassinated at Kiev. It is stated that the situation in the new republic is extremely critical, and that many arrests have been made.

BOYS SOFTBALL LEAGUE WINDS UP

The Y. M. C. A. softball league season was brought to a close last evening at the meeting of the executive committee when the following report was presented by the secretary and adopted:

The boys' city softball league was formed at a meeting held June 14th, 1918, when officers were elected, league by-laws adopted and playing schedules drawn up. Six teams entered the league as follows: Beaver, Bluebirds, Beavers, Wasps, Patrons, and W. B. Brant; and the schedule was so arranged that each team would meet every other team twice, giving each team 10 games, a total of 20 for the league. The schedule called for two playing nights per week, and it speaks well for the faithfulness and enthusiasm of the players that there were only 5 postponed games in the season, three for weather conditions, one by mutual agreement of teams, and one for lack of an umpire.

There were five defaulted games in all, West Brant team being chiefly responsible through defaulting their last four games after winning three out of six games played. Patrons defaulted their final game against the Bluebirds.

With two games defaulted to them the Bluebirds have gone through the season without defeat, and stand undisputed champions of the league, with the Beavers second with seven wins and three losses.

Through the kindness of local business men interested in the league the winners will receive individual awards in the form of handsome watch fobs. The second team will receive the bat and ball presented to the league by the President.

The secretary's report would not be complete without recognition of the faithful services of the umpires, Messrs. Coleman, L. Whitaker, G. Whitaker, J. Coy and Johnston, to whose unflinching effort much of the league's success is due.

All of which is respectfully submitted, A. W. Geddes, secretary. It was decided to hold an evening of sports in the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday, Aug. 14th, when the awards will be presented.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

TO PUT IN EFFECT DRAFT TREATY NOW

Order-in-Council Enforcing Amended Document Expected Today

OTTAWA, July 31.—Steps will be taken at once by the Government to bring into operation the treaty between Great Britain and the United States, which provides for the application of compulsory military service laws to Canadians and other British subjects residing in the United States and to American citizens living in Canada.

When the treaty was first drawn, an order in Council approving its terms, was passed by the Government here. It has since been amended in some respects. It is, therefore, understood that an order bringing the treaty as amended into force in Canada will be passed, probably to-day.

The treaty briefly deals with American citizens between the ages of 21 and 31 both inclusive, living in Canada, and Canadians, 20 to 44 years old in the United States. There would seem to be a discrepancy in respect of the ages of men affected.

In point of fact, however, the treaty at the outset operates only with respect to British subjects in the United States between 21 and 30 who have not declared their intention to become naturalized, and British subjects who have declared their intention to become naturalized and are under orders to register under the draft law of the United States within 60 days from July 31.

Men who fall within the classes covered by the treaty are given 60 days from July 31 to return to their own countries. Those who fail to return home within the period become liable for service under the draft law of the country in which they are.

One task which will have to be undertaken by both the Canadian and the United States Governments will be the provision of tribunals to hear claims for exemption.

Canadians in the United States covered by the treaty wish to remain there in civilian capacities technically would have to secure exemption through the British Ambassador at Washington. It will be necessary, however, to provide machinery for passing upon their claims. Similar provision will have to be made for the hearing of applications for exemption by United States citizens who wish to remain in Canada.

There have been varying estimates of the number of Canadians in the United States who will be affected by the treaty. A Washington dispatch puts the figure at 40,000. An official here on the other hand, expressed the opinion that the treaty would result in the return to Canada of more than 100,000 men of military age.

Canada was represented in the negotiation of the treaty last winter by E. L. Newcombe, K.C., Deputy Minister of Justice, and Col. C. S. McInnes, Assistant Adjutant-General at Militia Headquarters.

SEE SCOTLAND VIA THE RED TRIANGLE Canadian Soldiers in Old Land Enjoyed Y.M.C.A. Tour

"I guess you haven't got any house wrecking companies in Scotland!" The speaker was an unassuming soldier. He had been gazing at the venerable pile of Edinburgh Castle from the window of the Y.M.C.A. on Prince's street, where he was spending a brief furlough.

He was one of a party of 60 Canadians who had journeyed north to have a glimpse of the country of their forefathers. Captain Finland, Canadian Y.M.C.A. officer in Edinburgh, had met them at the station and distributed them amongst the Overseas Club, the Y.M.C.A., and creditable lodgings.

A feature of the work for the large number of Canadians touring Scotland on leave is the Y.M.C.A. Hospitality League, an organization of hostesses throughout the country who open their doors to the men from overseas. Food difficulties and the servant problem have combined to curtail somewhat the generosity of the league hitherto, but these problems having abated to a certain extent, an ever-increasing number of soldiers are being entertained. Men direct from the front prize above everything else this opportunity of tasting once more of the joys of the domestic life, of sharing the solace of the pipe of peace and settling down in a comfy seat by the window or fireside.

Nearly 60 per cent of the men going on leave visit Scotland, and Captain Finland has linked up with all the local Y.M.C.A.'s from Greenock to John O'Groats, so that any soldier who desires it may enjoy a furlough of organized sight-seeing, social pleasures and entertainment.

It is found that a large majority of Canadians desire an insight into agricultural methods, and these are sent to the best farms in the Lothians, Fifeshire and Aberdeenshire. The aim throughout of Captain Finland and his staff of assistants and guides is to ensure that the individual need of each man shall be met as far as possible, and that all may enjoy a clean, wholesome, helpful time during the brief leave period.

Read carefully the advertising of Dollar Day merchants in to-night's Courier. Pick out your own particular bargain and shop early Thursday.

MORE WATER POWER TO BE DEVELOPED AT NIAGARA FALLS

New Project May Produce 1,000,000 Additional Horsepower A BIG UNDETAKEING

Buffalo, N. Y., July 31.—One of the greatest water developing projects of the world is being planned at Niagara Falls, Ont., on the Canadian side of the river. It contemplates an immediate production of 300,000 electrical horsepower or equal to approximately one-half the present rated development on both sides of the river, and it may expand to 1,000,000 horse power.

Actual work on the new channel was begun recently by the Ontario Hydro Commission. There were ceremonies and the launching of the work was virtually unknown to the general public. The channel will encircle the city of Niagara above the city of Niagara Falls, Ont., running from the Welland River, a tributary of the Niagara above the cataract, to the escarpment below Queenston heights. The power house will be located on the river level almost at the foot of Brock's monument.

The channel is the first one planned to get the full benefit of the difference in level between Lakes Erie and Ontario, approximately 100 feet. The old companies, with penstocks located close to the foot of the cataract get a head of about 200 feet.

The additional 100 feet head, it is estimated, will make it possible to develop the 1,000,000 horsepower with the same flow of water required to develop 100,000 horsepower at the falls.

While the units under construction for the power house are being produced only 300,000 horsepower, the canal itself will be built to allow a future flow of water capable of producing this volume.

The Ontario Hydro Commission is a Provincial body appointed by the Ontario government to distribute power to Ontario municipalities within a radius of 200 miles of the Falls. At low water a large part of the current generated on the Canadian side formerly exported and distributed by an American corporation, has been cut off. Canadian power for Canadian industries has been the motto of Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the commission, and conditions have brought a speedier application of the policy than had been expected.

To replace the Canadian current thus lost, a canal generating plant has been built here with an ultimate capacity of 140,000 horsepower. Steam plants and water plants far down the state have been drawn upon to keep Buffalo factories going. Part of the current from the new hydro plant will be available for American industries, but only those engaged in war work, Sir Adam Beck has announced.

Under the treaty between Canada, Great Britain and the United States the diversion of water on the Canadian side is limited to 37,000 cubic feet a second. This limit on the American side is 26,000.

Canada already has authorized the diversion of all but 6,000 cubic feet of her allotment. Under special war permits the American companies are also within a few hundred feet of their limit.

The new channel will carry off about 10,000 cubic feet of water a second. This will necessitate some modification of the allowances to the other Canadian companies unless the treaty is modified. This has led to suggestions of consolidation of all the Canadian companies and the 1,000,000 horsepower development.

Over 13,000 orders to report have been sent out to men between the ages of 20 and 26, but the registrar could not say exactly what number had answered the call.

THE MODERN WAY TO HAIR BEAUTY

Velnor, Exquisite New Shampoo, Adds Lustre and Loveliness

Hairdressers and beauty specialists have proved that proper shampooing is necessary even for the most beautiful hair. For it keeps the scalp clean and healthy, removes grease and dust, restores lustre and loveliness. To those who have little time or money to spare for visiting the hairdresser regularly, Velnor, this new shampoo, just introduced, will be a delight. It makes a home course in shampooing simple, effective and inexpensive.

Velnor is a novelty among shampoos. It is a new step, a new creation. Most drug stores and hairdressers sell it in pretty boudoir cartons, mauve and green in color, containing six individual sachets. The shampoo is in powder form—delightfully soft, silk-like and fine, and possessing an elusive fragrance. Dispersed in warm water, one sachet of Velnor makes a half tumblerful of pure concentrated shampooing liquid.

Used properly, this Velnor shampooing liquid is a wonderful aid to hair loveliness. It cleanses the hair and rubs in a little Velnor with the finger tips. Do this, not with the idea of getting a good lather, but to remove dust and grease. Rubse out the lather. Now apply Velnor freely—you'll find the deep, copious lather comes instantly.

The six individual Velnor sachets enable one to have a shampoo that is always fresh and concentrated. One sachet alone makes more than is contained in a whole bottle of ordinary liquid shampoo. In all, the boudoir carton (costing only 50c) makes up a neat and beautiful set of splendid shampooing liquid.

A few prisoners remained in our hands. "In the Brenta Valley the enemy launched an attack in force against our line in Cornoue. After brisk hand-to-hand fighting, the enemy was forced to retire, losing machine guns and flame projectors. A few prisoners remained in our hands. "Five hostile planes have been brought down."

READY FOR PEACE? HA, HA!

By Courier Leased Wire. Amsterdam, July 30.—"We are ready to conclude an honorable peace as soon as our opponents renounce their hostile plans aiming at our destruction or repression," said Baron von Hussarek, Austrian Premier, in presenting his cabinet to the Upper House of the Austrian Parliament in Vienna, Austria, today. He added, according to the despatch, that so far, as the Central powers are concerned, the war is a defensive one.

"So long as our opponents take the standpoint of one-sided 'détention,'" he said, "there is nothing for us but to continue the war and carry on so vigorously that it will be shortened."

THE SITUATION.

The German defence is stiffening and the military critics seem to think that the Allied counter-stroke has now just about accomplished all that can be expected of it. Even so it would be exceedingly hard to over-value the results attained. The all confident Hun in his renewed attempt to reach Paris has not only once more been efficiently blocked, but in addition he has been taught to realize that under Eoch the Allied forces are acting in an effective unison which will at once jeopardize any of his future offensives. In fact, it is said that Ludendorff is about to fall back on defensive tactics instead of carrying the fighting to his opponents.

All of the Allied forces continue to show splendid stamina and confidence. The Americans' fierce fighting and the possession of Serre changed nine times before they were successful in holding the place. The Allies are retaining all ground in spite of fierce counter-strokes. British aviators successfully bombed five cities on the Rhine.

THE DROPPING OF BASKBALL.

The world has already been given many evidences of the fact that Uncle Sam, once he took his coat off, has jumped into the war with most notable vigor. In the mobilization of men, in the conserving of food, in the launching of ships, in the extension of agricultural production, in the speeding up of munition supplies, in money advanced the other allies, in fact, in all directions the story is the same of a whole-hearted and effective determination to do his share and that without the slightest stint. It is to be doubted, however, whether any one thing has brought home more forcibly the purpose of the nation to cut out all non-essentials which stand in the way of war effort, than the edict with regard to professional ball players. The game has been the time honored idol of all classes and of both sexes. It is a notorious fact that the average American would rather watch sport from a grand stand than take part himself and diamonds have been entrenched in his heart as much as the other kind in the desires of the fair sex. The standing of the clubs and the accomplishments of individual players are about the first thing to be looked at in the papers during the season and as for the outcome of the world's series, well the interest has always transcended anything either in the heavens above or the earth beneath. With the millions of men available for the colors outside of the professional players some had an idea that they would escape draft orders to help at the front, or in production. Not so. The husky twirlers and stick artists must get into line with the rest and the American people, while they heave a sigh of regret, are patriotic enough to feel and say that it is the only proper course.

THE G. W. V. A.

The men entitled to be enrolled in the above organization will exercise a great voice in the future affairs of the Dominion, and so they should. They have offered life itself on behalf of this Commonwealth, the Empire and the cause of human liberty, and their views are entitled to, and should receive respect. At the same time, as pointed out by Col. Purney, on the opening day of their annual gathering, they must take a broad view of matters and not allow disgruntled individuals—they can be found in every walk of life—to compromise the aims in hand. An illustration of how some men can run amuck was, for instance, afforded not long ago by the language applied to members of the Y. M. C. A. as "hypocrites," and so on. The G. W. V. A. is too big and too worthy a movement to tolerate individual attacks like that. In the Old Land, the National Federation of Discharged and Demobilized Sailors and Soldiers is a tantamount institution, and their aims are thus defined:

1. The award of pensions on the basis of disability and restoration to pre-war positions.
2. Rehabilitation of demobilized men in civilian life.
3. The absolute security of widows and mothers apart from any earning capacity.
4. Thoroughgoing and efficient training of disabled men, with protection against wage exploitation when trained.

5. Abolition of income tax on pensions.
6. Some method of securing larger contributions from wealth which has been protected by them, and especially from those who have profited by the war.
7. A diplomacy in future that he can understand and accept responsibility for.
8. Houses that are houses.
9. Wages above the poverty line as a minimum.
10. Better conditions of work and a larger share in its direction.

There is much of sense in the above, and aims to which all can heartily subscribe.

The Canadian returned soldiers, as a body have not only earned the right to be heard, but also to have their influence felt, and their representative officials should, and no doubt will see to it, that the worthy movement is kept upon a proper and high minded plane.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

German civilians will have to hand over their surplus trousers to the authorities. That ought to please the small boys of the Fatherland.

France is to increase the pay of her fighters. That is well but no more cash can ever measure up to what the world owes them.

The British Government is about to ask for the biggest war vote yet $700,000,000 and that will only finance the war to the end of October. John Bull however will make this further dip into his capacious breeches pocket without a murmur.

It has been ordered that only brown sugar may be sold in Detroit. This will compensate for the loss of the brown taste the morning after previously scheduled.

Your Problems Solved.

Anxious One—If you love God and your fellows and manifest it by your life, you need have no anxiety. If you have failed in this ideal life and intend to live it, you are still on the rock of safety.

Conscience—What one understands the functions of conscience it is readily seen that it is never wrong. Conscience prompts us to do what we think we ought to do. It is true, that it may tell us to do today what it will forbid to-morrow, but in this there is no change in the attitude of conscience; the change is in the judgment. The judgment changes with new evidence. For example, a man takes his oath that he saw John Brown at 10 p.m. and he has no doubt that it is the truth, but John Brown was 500 miles away at the time. It was against his interest to testify that he saw John Brown, but as a man of truth he swore to his own hurt. Had he testified that he had not seen John Brown, he would have violated his conscience and been a liar, notwithstanding that he would have unwittingly testified to the actual fact. Conscience is a moral, not an intellectual guide.

 Paris, July 29.—American non-coms are no longer to wear their corporal and sergeant chevrons on both arms as heretofore, but will sport them on the right sleeve only. There is some discussion as to the precise reason for the new order, whether a saving of chevrons is intended, or whether it is to prevent the non-coms from being gradually covered with stripes altogether.

VETERAN OF CHAUTAUQUA

Delivers a Most Elegant and Inspiring Address

His Subject Was "If I Could Live My Life Over Again"

Yesterday afternoon in the Chautauque tent the Royal Dragons band held sway. It is a capable organization, interspersing vocal numbers between the musical selections, and doing both in an efficient and entertaining manner. At higher than the band rendered another enjoyable program; and Colonel Geo. W. Bain, the eloquent Kentuckian, who has been a feature of Chautauque entertainments for over thirty years, gave an inspiring address. He is now in his 77th year, but despite his advanced age, retains a vigorous platform presence and a clear and forcible delivery. He mixed the humorous with the pathetic in a most entertaining way, interspersed with sound advice and common sense. His opening remark, as he stepped forward to address an audience which just about filled the centre seats, was:

"I can address a small number just as well as a large; in fact the most successful and beneficial speaker I ever made in my life was to one person."

"If I could live my life over again," was his subject, and he said in part:

"There are some things in my life I would not change. If I had it to live over, I would be brought up in the country as I was and I would begin early to seek my calling in life. Half of life's failures are because boys do not find what they are fitted for. If it is true that ever since creation shot its shuttle through chaos, design has marked the course of every golden thread, then every one is designed to fit a certain place in life."

Describing life as a test of character, the eloquent Kentuckian referred to ex-President Roosevelt, not sulking in his tent when his offer to take an army to France was turned down. "His four sons volunteered. One has been killed, another wounded and two are on the firing line. His eldest daughter, Alice, gave her fine home to the Red Cross service, his youngest daughter, Edith, has given over the sea, his son-in-law and daughter-in-law are both at the front. He, himself, is using pen and tongue to quicken the pulse of patriotism. All honor to the Roosevelt family," he continued.

"This war is not an unmitigated evil. It has blessings as well as horrors. Out of great disasters come great lessons. The partition wall between the rich and poor is crumbling down. Young women, who three years ago could dance from the last dance to the next dinner, are now standing side by side with girls from factories and shops in Red Cross service. The banker's son and the blacksmith's boy are banking together and the blacksmith's boy falls wounded in No Man's Land the banker's son will go out after his pal."

"England and the United States are realizations that they are allied in their aims, that which they are divided. The United States has put aside distorted prejudice and seen how from her mother came her language and laws, how England's navy has protected our Monroe doctrine; how when the German fleet entered Manila Bay, England's fleet anchored between and said in substance to Germany, 'You touch my runaway daughter, Columbia and I'll touch you.'"

"I rejoice that the United States is rewarding England by sending more than a million men to help destroy the mad-dog of Europe, and we can ask no better record of our soldiers than Canada's brave sons have made."

"Your flag and my flag will never go down in defeat before a tyrant who knows no respect for honor, no respect for the virtue of womanhood."

"There have been reverses, and may be more, but after Bull Run comes Appomattox, after Calvary comes Pentecost, and after the Kaiser and militarism come King George, Lloyd George, Woodrow Wilson and triumphant democracy."

The Value of Character.
 In closing the Colonel said he regretted that Brantford had not received the introduction of the Chautauque circuit in the same ardent manner as other Ontario centres. The system was one not alone of high-class entertainment but also of valuable instruction especially to the young and also for the adults. Any community was always the better for the annual Chautauque influence, and he sincerely hoped that Brantfordites would not make the mistake of becoming left off the itinerary.

The program this afternoon and to-night is the Tschakowsky quartette of Boston assisted by Mme. Bernia Farmer, Prima Donna.

Margaret Carrett's Husband

By JANE PHELPS

CHAPTER CXX
A Bitter Fight With Self
 Just the thought of the coming of the other woman was a shock. Had I not turned over a new leaf, this thought would have shaken me out of my smug complacency, my preconceived idea that only my way was the right way.

I had only a few months in which to make good my determination to hold fast to mine own. Our children, healthy happy youngsters occupied a great deal of my attention, demanded much of my time and strength in spite of the fact that Nellie was both competent and willing. When I thought of the task I had set myself the shortness of the time left in which to accomplish it; I grew sick and faint with fear.

In those days a prayer was often on my lips. The prayer that I might not fail, Mrs. Farnsworth, Eleanor as had come to call her, had proved a real friend to me. She and John Kendall had become fast friends, Bob said he was sure it would make a great deal in spite of the fact that she spent much time at our house. Usually Bob would be at home, but occasionally when he remained in town they would come over and sit with me.

I had followed Elsie's advice and given several small affairs to which I had been invited. I began to realize what it meant to smile when one's heart is breaking; to pretend not to notice the little evidences of Bob's feeling for this Other Woman which no effort of his could quite hide. But I never abated a jot in my determination to win him, and so in this also I religiously lived up to what I had promised Elsie.

I was always nicely dressed; many times exquisitely. Yet unless it was for some special occasion, or that the gown was very unusual, Bob did not notice my appearance. I tried, oh how I tried to break down the barrier that had grown up between us. I tried to be loving and gentle all ways. I did not realize, I could not that love once dead never can be brought back to life. So I went on and on blindly trying to coax the little god of love to return.

All this time Elsie tried to encourage me; tried to make me think I would surely show Bob that his place was with me.

"By the end of the year, you'll laugh at your tears," she said once when we talked together.

Then one night there came confirmation strong. Bob had been out a great deal in the evening, either at dinner, or had remained in town. Unless we had an engagement or were entertaining, he rarely spent an evening with me as much as possible, yet feared to overdo it.

One night he had intended to go to town, and some people came in, and it was impossible for him to get away without appearing rude, a thing Bob never did. But he excused himself for a moment and went upstairs. Then he rang for a messenger. When the boy came, Bob stepped outside the door and closed it before he spoke to him. When he returned to the living room, all constraint was gone from his manner, and he entered into an evening of music and cards with his usual zest.

When our guests went, Bob put on his hat and coat and said he would walk a ways and stretch himself before he retired. He did not ask me to go along, and I did not offer to. Instead I went immediately upstairs. Bob had left a light in his room. I opened the door intending to put out as he might be gone some time, when in front of his desk on the floor I noticed a piece of paper. I picked it up, straightened it out and read:

"Dear One: I cannot come to you to-night. Unexpected guests—here followed a blot, evidently made after the note was finished, so causing him to write another, but below the blot I read again: 'I fold my love and send it with this, Bob.'"

There was no address. Nothing to show to whom the note was sent; for whom it was intended. I turned cold as ice. It was true then that Bob cared for some one else. I replaced the note on the floor, crumpled as I had found it, and crept softly down the stairs. Bob never must know I had seen it.

He came in whistling after a few moments and seemed surprised to find me still down stairs. I bent over my book and when he asked if I were going to sit up all night I answered:

"Perhaps! this book is very interesting."

"Good night, then. I am going to turn in at once. It is nearly one o'clock."

As he left the room the book slipped from my hands to the floor. I heard him move around overhead; and then all suddenly the words of the note came before me as plainly as if I still held the bit of blotted paper in my hand.

"I fold my love and send it with this, Bob."

Suddenly something seemed to snap. Everything grew dark around me. I tried to get up to my room. Half way up the stairs I lost consciousness. The next thing I knew Bob and Nellie were bending over me, Nellie with a bottle of smelling salts. Bob saying nothing, but looking anxious and puzzled as he went to the door as he might be gone some time.

STRIKE END.

By Courier Leased Wire.

London, July 21.—The strike of the munition workers, caused by the order-in-council placing an embargo on skilled labor is definitely ended. Official reports received from Coventry yesterday show that not only the absentees returned to work, but they are hastening operations in the hope of making good the time lost by the strike.

Mrs. Harold Gibbs and little one of Walkerville, are visiting relatives in town.

Local News

MADE TRIPS

The local motor ambulance made several trips this evening to prove its worth to the city.

STANDARD HOMES

Two building permits were issued yesterday to Schultz Bros. Ltd., for the erection of two brick dwellings, 23 ft. by 26 ft., at Nos. 86 and 88 Waterloo street, estimated to cost $2000 each.

BUILDING PERMIT

At the city engineer's office this morning a building permit was issued to Joseph Goodwin, 24 Lawrence street, for the construction of a frame garage, 8 ft. by 12 ft., to cost $40.

POLICE COURT

The dove of peace hovered over the precincts of the Queen street court of justice this morning. There was no court, all the cases being laid over for enlargement.

SPEEDERS, BEWARE

Motor speed artists had better throw sand in their gear boxes and remove their spark plugs or keep out of sight of Brantford's speed cops. Eric Avon, the new Meca of Barney Oldfields, is declared under a curtain of fire by those who were stopped last night.

PICNIC TO DOVER

Well over three hundred children and adults crowded aboard the waiting cars at the L. E. & N. station on the joint excursion to Park and Calvary Baptist Sunday schools to Port Dover. Ideal weather favored the trip, and a merry afternoon of water was enjoyed by the excursionists.

MORE LITERATURE TAKEN

With the aid of a ladder, the police last night effected an entrance through a window into the quarters of the Russian club rooms in the Devoon building, Dalhousie street, and there seized a further supply of alleged seditious literature, similar to that obtained in the raid on the Mechanics' hall Monday night. Startling developments are expected when the six foreigners arrested appear in court on Tuesday next.

GIRLS WANTED FOR CANNING

National service workers are required by the Ontario Government Employment Bureau for fruit and vegetable canning during August, September and October. An order has been received from a canner at Port Dalhousie for 75 girls to prepare tomatoes for canning. To fill this order girls are still required to work after August 25. Already a number of university and leaved girls have expressed a desire to go to this camp. The longer the girls can stay the better. The canner will give a minimum wage of $1.50 per day, and there will probably be a bonus for the best workers. The camp is about five minutes from the lake. The girls will live in a house and tents. There is electric light in the house and a bath.

ONE BAILED OUT

Paul Moroz, one of the six Socialists who were rounded up by the police in the raid instituted on Monday evening last, was allowed out on bail to-day, while the rest of the sextette are confined in the county jail.

WEST BRANTS LOST

In a one hour game of football last night at the Agricultural Park, the East Brants team defeated the West Brants 2-0. The West Brants though having no practice this year, showed the other team several intricacies of play. A return game will be played at Mohawk Park next Tuesday at 7:30.

TWILIGHT MEET

Indications this afternoon were that to-night's twilight athletic meet at Agricultural park would set a record for attendance. This series of meets has taken on wonderfully throughout the city, and director George Mosley, Al. John Hill and the other officials in charge are receiving well deserved encomiums for their enterprise.

SERIAL ENDS

Courier readers who have become interested in the serial story "Margaret Garrett's Husband"—and there are few who have not—will perhaps regret to learn that the story is now nearing a close, and will end in two weeks' time. The Courier, however, has already secured exclusive rights to "The Wife," another story by Jane Phelps, which will become a daily feature in place of "Margaret Garrett's Husband," and will likely prove equally popular.

ALSIKE CROP GOOD

Back to the land is the slogan and who would not go back when crops of alsike are averaging seventy-five dollars to the acre. One farmer from Grandis township delivered one load of alsike to Douglas & Roy yesterday, netting him $700. Alsike is a bumper crop this year, averaging about 8 bushels to the acre. One farmer obtained 38 bushels of seven and a half acres. The quality in most cases is exceptionally fine. With crops like this the farmers will have to employ a staff to look after their interests.

SHOULD PROVE HUMMER

Friday night's game between the local Semi-Pros and the Atheniums of Toronto should prove to be the best of the season. The Atheniums team is the best team in Toronto, having just won the first series in the semi-pro league. The locals will present their strongest line-up. Mitchell will be at short and Flint will do the pitching. These two star pitchers along with Gray an outfielder, have been engaged for the remainder of the season. The usual band concert will follow the game. The local Semi-Pros will play in Hamilton to-night. Mitchell will pitch for Brantford and Carter for Hamilton.

A telegram was received from the Jersey City team of the International League, asking for a morning and an afternoon game on Civic Holiday. Owing to the lack of grounds the games can not be played, but the management of the Semi-Pros will have the Toronto team here for a twilight game later in the season.

HONEY CROP POOR

Upon the authority of a well-known apiarist, it is stated that the Ontario honey crop this year will not in any degree equal the normal demand. The unfortunate condition being attributable to the heavy losses in bees sustained through the severe cold of last winter. A buyer for a Toronto wholesale house has lately been through the western Ontario districts, purchasing all available honey stocks. His firm has already secured six carloads in the face of keen competition by other trade buyers.

CARDS FOR SAMMIES

More than a few citizens are asking themselves why no official recognition has been taken of the proposal so frequently brought forward during the past few weeks, to distribute Brantford picture post cards ready stamped, among train loads of American soldiers passing through the city. The cards would be a gift which would be appreciated by the Sammies, the cost would be trivial, and the cards would carry the name and fame of the Telephone City to all parts of America. It is felt by the higher the Board of Trade or the Women's Patriotic League should take up the matter.

DRAFT TRAINS

In pursuance of the British-American convention for drafting Americans of military age resident in the United Kingdom notices have been given citizens desiring to return to the U. S. for service that they must make their own arrangements to leave before September 29. If they fail to leave by that date they become liable to be drafted by the British army without right of appeal. An American may enlist in the American forces by applying to a British recruiting officer.

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS

A decrease of $4,876,264 in the customs receipts of the Dominion for the first four months of the fiscal year, as compared with the period in 1917, is shown by the monthly statement issued from the Customs Department to-day. For the four months ending to-day, the total receipts were $66,072,983, while on July 31, 1917, they were $60,949,847. The July decrease as compared with July, 1917, is $684,663. During July, 1917, the customs receipts totalled $14,269,648, while for July in the present year the total was $13,584,930.

MERCHANTS GO TO DOVER

Trained and Untrained Singers Enlivened the Motor Trip

This afternoon the Dollar Day merchants are spending the half holiday at Port Dover, having left the city shortly after 1 o'clock. Banners decorated the automobiles, and in each car song sheets were distributed. It was the intention of the committee to have a trained singer in each car to lead, but owing to the supply falling short of the demand, and residents along the road to Dover report by phone that weird sounds were heard as the string of cars passed through. The dust of the ride will be washed out in the lake this afternoon, and a fish dinner will be eaten before the party returns this evening.

CLOTHING ALLOWANCE INCREASED

Toronto, July 31.—President Purney announced when the G.W.V.A. convention opened this morning that the second vice-president Shaanahan, who was yesterday found by the convention to be ineligible to continue on the executive, owing to not being a member of a local branch, had withdrawn from the sessions, although it was decided yesterday that he might remain.

The President read a telegram from the militia department to Comrade Goulma, M.P.P., stating that, dating from April 1, 1918, the clothing allowance to soldiers on discharge would be $35, instead of $7 formerly.

A discussion as to whether public sympathy was with the G.W.V.A. was precipitated by Comrade Murrell. He did not think the public was showing the consideration and feeling that was due of the returned men.

Comrades Fry and Harris were sure that Comrade Murrell was mistaken. There was no doubt of the loyalty of the public.

Comrade McIntosh said: "We returned soldiers must be careful or we will alienate public sympathy by ingratitude."

The convention this morning did not get started until 10:30 owing to a conference on the question of representation. At 10:30 the convention went into committee of the whole to discuss the matter.

NO PEACE OVERTURES
By Courier Leased Wire
London, July 31.—Speaking in the House of Commons to-day, Foreign Secretary A. J. Balfour said that no enemy government had approached the Entente Allies regarding negotiations for peace. Despatches from Amsterdam July 14th quoted the Socialist newspaper "Vorwarts" of Berlin as stating that Germany had made suggestions, which the Vorwarts considered was a reasonable peace proposal, reported that the principal of self-determination of peoples was a Balkan question be settled at the conference table, wanted freedom of the seas and declared that the settlement of the colonies be based on the status quo ante bellum.

INVESTIGATES EXAM. RESULTS

Hon. Dr. Cody is Satisfied That Fair Chance Was Given to All Candidates

Although results of the Upper School examination for entrance into the Faculties of Education at Toronto and Queen's Universities were only published on Monday morning, many appeals are already being received by the Registrar's Branch of the Department, according to the Minister of Education, Hon. Dr. H. J. Cody. These appeals are coming in, notwithstanding the statement of the Department in announcing the results that "the answer papers of each candidate whose marks would appear to justify an appeal have been already re-read." A fee of $2 is charged for appeals entered before September 1. After that date and up to and including September 10, after which no further appeals will be entertained, a fee of $5 is charged.

Criticisms levied at the Department by teachers and pupils in different parts of the Province have created the "automobile" thoroughly into the whole system of setting and examining the papers which had been carried out for many years past. "I am convinced that every opportunity is given to the pupils and that the officials in charge of the work are most considerate of the students," Dr. Cody said yesterday.

While it may have been possible several years ago for the teacher who set the examination paper to put too much of his own personality into the questions, this is no longer possible, Dr. Cody said in explaining the system. The official who sets the paper examines and after the paper is drafted it is submitted to a board, which carefully goes over it. In some instances the papers are re-read by a staff of clerks, who are ready the man who sets the paper goes over it with the chief examiners, explains the sort of answer he expects, and these are drawn up by the examiners. The chief examiners. There is no chance of a child being plucked because the examiner makes a mistake in adding the marks, for these additions are all checked over by a staff of clerks. Each mistake is kept count of and if an examiner makes too many errors he is not appointed another year.

Leeway to Ten Marks.
"No child is plucked because he is one mark below the required standard on one subject," Dr. Cody said. A leeway of about ten marks is allowed. Contrary to the opinion of many people that the principal's recommendations concerning the work of the student during the term are not considered, Dr. Cody said these reports are consulted in every case most carefully where the child has failed to attain the required number of marks. If any doubt still exists after doing this, the chief examiner re-reads the paper himself on which the pupil has failed to secure the required number of marks. This all takes place before the results of the examinations are announced.

Appeals received now are considered by the Registrar's Department. Should it be found necessary to re-read a paper this is done, the fee charged defraying the expense. Dr. Cody is also enquiring into the statement that one of the questions on the high school entrance paper was too stiff for public school pupils.

SUES ROSS RIFLE CO.

CHAUFFEUR FACES SERIOUS CHARGE

Two Women Lost Their Lives in Motor Truck Accident

FIVE MEN ARRESTED
Driver Gave Himself Up—Will be Charged With Manslaughter

Toronto, Wednesday July 31st.—Matthew Donnan, a chauffeur for the Collins Cartage Company, who lives in Crompton Place, was taken into custody last night on a charge of manslaughter. His arrest was the result of the bad motor accident at the corner of St. Clair Avenue and Dufferin Street on Monday night, when an auto-truck, which he is alleged to have driven, dashed over the sidewalk and ran down Mrs. Allen Bursey and Mrs. Nellie Morea, of Ashburnham Avenue. Mrs. Bursey was almost instantly killed, while Mrs. Morea was so badly injured that she died in the Western Hospital yesterday morning.

Besides Donnan four others who were riding in the truck at the time of the accident were also gathered in by the police during the day. They are held as material witnesses and are as follows: Frank Churley, aged 24 of Essex Avenue; Arthur Crampton, aged 21, of Yarmouth Road; Basil Mulloy, aged 18, of Markham St. and John McCormahan, aged 15, of Brunswick Avenue. Donnan is 22 years of age.

During last night, and all yesterday the police searched vainly for Donnan. Shortly before 10 o'clock Detective Guthrie and Dawn were walking along Queen Street, after visiting the place where they discovered he had spent the night following the accident. They were standing on a corner of an intersecting street, when a man walked over and told them that he had come to give himself up. He said that his name was Donnan. He was removed to Ossington Avenue Station, where he is now held in custody.

A.G. LUDLOW STANDS BY HIS WORDS

Assessor George Ludlow this morning made the retort courteous to the Mayor's statement of yesterday in regard to the reported waste of food at Mohawk Park on Saturday.

Assessor Ludlow made the following statement:
I wish to congratulate the city officials who had charge of the municipal picnic held in Mohawk Park on Saturday last. The idea was quite in accordance with my views. The wives and children of our brave soldiers, who are fighting for our cause in Flanders and France deserve every possible means at our disposal to help them bear their sacrifice which they have made and are still making. In regard to my remarks which, the Mayor characterized as untrue, it was done for no other purpose than to remind the children that nothing should be wasted in the shape of food and that every effort should be made in order to conserve the food, which is used at this present time for our brave soldiers in the trenches and in the present time. I would not dispute Mayor MacBride's statement that he was at the park on Sunday morning at 8 o'clock and did not see any food on the ground. Nevertheless it was there, and when I made the statement that I gathered up twelve quarts of bunns at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon the citizens of Brantford know it to be true, as they know that I do not make statements unless they are absolutely true.

Nuptial Notes

HOUSE—FARROW.
A quiet wedding took place in Brant Avenue church at one o'clock this afternoon, when the Rev. J. D. Fitzpatrick united in marriage Alice Farrow, daughter of Mrs. A. Farrow and Percy H. House, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. House. The bridal couple were unattended, and leave to-night for their wedding trip.

Members of the Polish colony of St. Catharines openly repudiated the action of the gathering of Russians called a week ago by the local Soviet of Russia workers and peasant Deputies.

Coroner Young last night opened an inquest into the death of Mrs. Bursey, who was 40 years of age and was born in Brighton, Eng. She is survived by four sons, three of whom are overseas, while the other is a returned man, and one daughter who lives in Owen Sound. A pathetic feature of the case is that her daughter arrived in the city yesterday morning to spend her vacation and was informed of the tragedy upon her arrival at the station.

Mrs. Nellie Morea was 38 years of age and had been in ill-health for some time, only recently leaving the hospital. She suffered internal injuries and a fracture of the skull and lived only a few hours after the accident. Her husband, Edward Morea, is nearly prostrated with grief.

YANKS FOUGHT AGAINST ODDS

Were at a Disadvantage During German Attack Yesterday

By Courier Leased Wire

London, July 30.—Describing the attack of the fourth guard division on the Americans, who are now organizing their line after their victory, Reuter's correspondent with the American army, telegraphing Monday, says the Americans were at a disadvantage in fighting numbers in this fighting.

"There was no holding the crack, fresh picked divisions of the guards as it came down the hill," he said. "The Americans had to give ground to weight of the numbers and fought back step by step through Serry down to the Oureu. They were very far from done with, however, and before the Germans realized it they had been forced to yield ground and were pushed clear through the village."

"That was the beginning of a desperate struggle, which continued all day. Each side in turn had possession of the valley until the evening, when the Americans swept the Germans from the ruins and then up the hill, broke another counter-attack of the guards and remained victorious on a field where the enemy's dead actually lay in heaps."

The piles of German dead were all the more noticeable, the correspondent adds, since the Guards came into the fight with complete brand new equipment, as if they had turned out for parade before the Emperor.

Foe May Not Hold Vesle Line.

London, July 30.—(Via Reuter's Agency).—The capture of the formidable butte of Chalmont, which it was once expected that the Germans would be able to hold, shows that the German retreat has by no means ended and it is now doubtful if the enemy will be able to hold the Vesle line, for the Allied pressure on the two pivots of defence south of Soissons and south of Rheims, is increasing. Mention of the Scots at Buzancy, south of Soissons, is interesting as showing that the British are now engaged on the western as well as the eastern side of the salient. Should these pivotal positions go in there is still the possibility of the retreat becoming a disaster, therefore, the Germans are desperately defending the triangular position between Soissons, Oulchy and Aisne, which General Mangin is hammering from the west, while General DeGoutte is advancing northward from Fere, endeavoring to turn it.

There has been heavy fighting near Buzancy, five miles south of Soissons, and also in Plesster Wood, about five miles further south. In this latter locality 45 prisoners were taken, belonging to three divisions of the enemy now engaged in the Marne salient. There are 71 such divisions, of which ten belong to the northern army of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria. The enemy's withdrawal is reported still orderly, while military opinion in London discounts the possibility of rounding up of Germans in the salient.

BURGLARS MADE HAUL.

By Courier Leased Wire

St. Catharines, Ont., July 30.—Burglars, who are believed to have operated in one or more automobiles, entered two stores at Thorold last night and carried off goods valued at $1,000. C. R. Steadman's jewelry store was broken into and about $700 taken in watches and jewelry. Over $200 worth of goods were taken from ex-Mayor McManning's general store. The cash register was also cleared of all change. Entrance was gained in both stores by cutting the locks with a sharp instrument.

The burglars made a complete getaway. About three miles west of St. Catharines a disabled overturned auto from Hamilton was found in a ditch this morning. In the car and scattered along the road were found a trunk and a number of articles.

Book-Borrowers

Citra Holland, writing in Chambers' Journal on the above subject, says that few people save the librarians of large public or "lending" libraries, have any idea of the vagaries of many who borrow books. An example is given of a lady subscriber to a lending library who threatened to withdraw her subscription because she found in the catalogue some books by a popular lady novelist to whom she appeared to have taken a violent dislike.

It was quite useless to explain that the novelist in question was one of the most popular "circulating" authors. All she said was, "I so detest the woman and all her works that it is a great source of annoyance to me to find her books staring me in the face whenever I come to the library; and unless I am assured that this shall not happen in future, I shall not only withhold my subscription, but shall do what I can to get my friends to follow my example." It is, of course, needless to say that proprietors refused to ban the books in question, and Miss ———'s books are still upon the shelves.

Instances are given as to curious articles found in books when they are returned.

One of the most expensive book-markers ever discovered was that found recently in a copy of one of Mr. Max Pemberton's romances. On going through the book in the usual way the librarian came across a narrow slip of paper folded lengthwise, and upon this being opened it proved to be a cheque for no less than $5500, drawn by a company in payment of dividends. Needless to say, it was at once sent by a messenger to the gentleman, a well-known Park Lane South African, who had been so careless, and who, by the way, was not a little astonished to receive it. A day or two after a note of thanks was received from him in which he said that he had not even discovered the loss of a cheque.

Some years ago a well-known Cabinet Minister, who was not unknown for absent-mindedness, placed in the pages of a book which he was reading a small piece of newspaper containing the "heads" of a most important political negotiation. If it had not been found by a person of discretion, a secret of some importance would doubtless have made its way prematurely into the public press.

CANADIAN MARU RAN ASHORE

Big Steamer With Valuable Silk Cargo in Serious Situation PASSENGERS SAFE

Victoria, July 31.—While feeling her way through a dense fog early yesterday morning the Osaka Shushin Kaisha liner Canada Maru, Captain Y. Yamamoto, drove ashore at the entrance to the Straits of Juan de Fuca on the American side. The exact location where the liner struck was one mile to the south of Cape Flattery. The big vessel piled on the reefs with considerable force, and is taking water in Nos. 1 and 2 holds.

That the position of the Canada Maru is serious is indicated in the following wireless message flashed to the coast stations and delivered to the local agents, R. P. Rithet & Company:

"Canada Maru went ashore in dense fog at 9 o'clock this morning, one mile south of Cape Flattery. Taking water in Nos. 1 and 2 holds."

serious. Despatch boat to take off passengers.

No Loss of Life

Immediately upon the news of the stranding being learned the Osaka Shushin Kaisha agents made arrangements for despatching the salvage steamer Salvor, and the British Columbia Salvage Company's vessel left early to-day for use scene of the wreck. It is expected to arrive alongside the Canada Maru about nine o'clock to-night. The Canadian naval patrol steamer Galliano and the United States life-saving steamer St. Thomas have been rushed to the assistance of the steamer. Wireless reports late to-day announced that all the passengers had been safely taken off and there was no loss of life.

Valuable Silk Cargo

In its cargo is a silk shipment valued at $2,000,000. It is thought the passengers may be rescued by boat's from a lightship located only five miles away from the scene of the disaster. The Canada Maru was bound in from Yokohama and Kobe.

HUNS SPENT MILLIONS IN U. S. USELESSLY

Statement of George S. Viereck, Editor of the Former Fatherland

New York, July 31.—"That the German Government spent $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 for propaganda in this country and got nothing for it," was a declaration by George S. Viereck, alleged pro-German publicist, in testimony given at the inquiry here into Teuton activities in the United States.

Viereck, who as editor of the former Fatherland, attended conferences of German officials and propaganda representatives in this city in the early years of the European war, favored purchase of important newspapers in all large American cities, according to a statement today by Deputy Attorney General Becker.

As a witness in the investigation being conducted by the Attorney General's office at the request of the Department of Justice, Viereck declared that, if a string of influential newspapers had been bought with German money, "we could have arranged that America would never have entered the war."

LUDENDORFF MAN WHO PLANNED CAMPAIGNS FOR VON HINDENBURG

The Real Brains of the German Army—Brute Force Does Not Appeal to Him so Much as Strategy and Intrigue—Ludendorff Plans, Hindenburg Does the Execution

Whether Hindenburg is dead, as so many reports insist is a matter of small moment to the allies, who now pretty thoroughly understand that Hindenburg is not the brains of the German army in a sense he is a figure-head, like the Crown Prince, although a man of vastly greater gifts. Nevertheless to merely study the man's face is to be convinced that behind that bullet-head, does not reside the intellectual power of directing the military effort of Germany. Hindenburg might be a good general for a single army, the science of manoeuvring half a dozen armies is not his. His reputation was made against the Russians, half-armed, and betrayed as we know them to have been. Even then it is understood that the campaign was planned by Ludendorff and merely executed by Hindenburg.

AN ENIGMA. M. Pouvourville says that Ludendorff is an enigma not merely to men who like the French writers have met him only a few times, but to those most closely associated with him. He is even an enigma to himself, as he has observed more than once. While Hindenburg attends banquets, receives honors and issues commands and messages Ludendorff is locked in his private office bending over maps and logarithmic tables, planning the battles that later in Hindenburg will be credited with the success of the war.

ESPRONAGE AND INTRIGUE. To vanquish by sheer brute force does not satisfy Ludendorff. To him the most interesting thing is to fool his adversary to set traps for him. He is credited with not only the military successes that Germany has achieved, but with the various propaganda that have preceded these successes and paved the way for them. He delights in espionage and intrigue. The French writer says, "The purport of propaganda in the East, the defeatist propaganda in the West, millions laded from banks, libels and treasonous pacifist literature missions for the most corrupt men and the most alluring women ultra-patriotic enthusiasm, ferment, distraction and rupture among neutrals all have emanated from the brain of Ludendorff, and hither their results are all returned and registered. For him the affair on the Isonzo was not merely a battle of shock; it comprised intrigue, betrayal, forgery, false orders of the day and every other vile thing that was necessary to bring about the desired object."

Connie Mack's Talks To His Players Make a Real Guide To Game

Answers of Tall Pilot to Queries in Skull Practice Would be Treat to Baseball Students

Ira Thomas, who caught for the White Elephants when they were the baseball monarchs of the world, thinks it a shame that Connie Mack's talks with his players cannot be preserved for the benefit of posterity. The Tall Tactician for years has been having what the athletes term "skull practice" each morning at the hotels when the athletes are on the road or at the club house when they are at home.

"These talks," declares Thomas, who started as American League career with the New York Yankees under Clark Grant and finished it with the Athletics under Mack, "helped me to start out of the non-Connie picked up, helped to win pennants and helped to win world's championships."

"In my opinion Mack is a marvel, and that also is the opinion of every man who ever worked for him. I don't think you'll ever find any one who played either at Columbia Park or Shibe Park under Mack who doesn't say that Connie was the best leader he ever worked for."

"I guess in 1907 Eddie did a little thing that was a good thing for me," says Grover's question to me. "Well, I'll tell you what I ought to do, said Grover. I ought to get out of this car, pick up a few pebbles and throw them around second base so that the bats will round like I have been accustomed to having them banded."

HULL WOMAN HAS GAINED 28 POUNDS

Improvement of Mrs. McCann is Talk of Entire Neighborhood

"My wife has actually gained twenty eight pounds by taking Taniae and her wonderful improvement is the talk of all the neighborhood," was the remarkable statement made by John McCann of 197 Laval Street, Hull, recently. Mr. McCann has lived in Hull all his life and is well known.

"Yes, sir, I can say for a fact," he continued, "my wife hasn't been in such good health before in seven years. She had been in a badly run-down condition for about that long and gradually got worse in spite of all she could do. She had no appetite, seldom ate any breakfast, and very little at any time. She was so nervous she couldn't sleep well, and so weak she could hardly get about the house, much less do any of her work. It seemed like she would almost die at times with sick headaches. She looked pale and giddy and had fallen off in weight from one hundred and twenty-eight pounds to one hundred and ten."

"I had seen Taniae so highly recommended that I finally got a bottle for her and I have never seen such a wonderful improvement in anyone. Soon after she commenced taking it she began to pick up and look better. She has taken five bottles now, and she has not only gotten back to her old weight of one hundred and twenty-eight pounds, but she is actually going ten pounds above that, as she now weighs one hundred and thirty-eight. Her appetite is splendid and she's never bothered with nervous headaches or dizziness any more. She does all her housework besides taking care of five children and never complains of feeling tired. We are both simply delighted over the way Taniae has built her up and we never miss a chance to boost it. Our neighbors have been astonished over the results and they all tell her she looks like a different person."

Taniae is sold in Brantford by Robertson Drug Store, in Paris by Appa Ltd., in Mt. Vernon by A. Tompkins, in Midlandport by William Peckie, in Chubbanga by Neil McPhaden.

The woman says, "I THINK CEDRIC MENTIONED THE ABSURD SUM OF SOMETHING LIKE $1,000 PER FIGURE!" The man says, "ABSURD IS RIGHT?"

FILM LETS.

When Mme. Nazimova went South recently to produce a Gypsy play, her director was obliged to send a hurry call to the studio for a gypsy camp and some gypsy costumes. Although a large band of gypsies was encamped on the outskirts of St. Augustine, where the exteriors of the production were taken, their equipment could not be used. Romance has gone out of the gypsy life, which has lost its picturesque qualities.

Director Baker found in his horror that gypsies travel now by automobile. No longer do they steal things they use gasoline, instead, and have never been known to buy it. The modern gypsy enjoys luxuries. No longer do the gypsies wear the picturesque colored sashes, into which a knife is thrust. They wear suits of the kind known as "dollar down and dollar a week."

He was so filled with admiration for himself that he forgot all about her and let her fall off a wire twelve feet to the ground; hit on her elbow and cheek and narrowly escaped being killed.

Recently a canvass was made of the Goldwyn Studio for the purpose of learning what war-time sacrifices were being made by the stars. This is the result: "Mabel Normand has given up the Sunday parties so well known in filmdom's smart set. She sees her friends of course, but quietly. Mary Gardner wears only artificial flowers, never a real one, and her room at the Ritz-Carlton are without the roses she adores. Mae Marsh is most conscientious in carrying out her resolutions. For nearly a year she has omitted sugar from her tea and coffee, and she does not touch candy. Her sister, Marguerite Marsh, a great letter writer, uses the plainest stationery, without wax or monogram. Madge Kennedy also curtails her consumption of expensive writing paper.

The Royal Air Force will not migrate to the Southern States this winter, Gen. Hoare stated emphatically yesterday, and he also pointed out that recruiting for cadets for the Royal Air Force would be resumed next month. Exercises building operations are now under way at Camp Borden, Armour Heights, Leaside, Deseronto and Beamsville, and with this accommodation there will be no necessity of winter quarters. The officer commanding stated that a number of cadets recruited this fall would depend entirely upon the demand for pilots in England.

The Avro airplane is to replace the Curtiss machines for training purposes in Canada. The Avro machine is the one with which cadets finish their courses in England at present and is said to have twice the speed of a Curtiss machine in addition to being a lighter machine and easier to handle. This change will mean that the various camps will have to have their equipment changed, but the plant will not have to be changed in Toronto except that different engines will be installed.

"New Type of Plane," considered it an absolute certainty that mails would be carried by that method. Airplanes are not yet, however, developed for commercial purposes, but it is his opinion that the prices will come down with a rush

THIRTY THOUSAND CANS OF PEAS A DAY

Output of One Factory in Durham County—Others Equally Busy

Cobourg, July 30.—Canning factories in the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham are scenes of busy activity. Canning has been extensively carried on for the past few weeks. The peas crop is an excellent one, the best that has been known for years in this local-ity. At the local factory, some 70 employees are engaged, including a number of women who are called to service in order to obviate the necessity of bringing in foreign labor, and to aid in food conservation.

The factories in East Northumberland are equally busy.

GERMAN COLONISTS DISTRUST RUSSIA

Place No Faith in Protection Offered by the Soviet Government.

Associated Press.—"There is no Amsterdam, July 31.—There is not a single German colonist in Russia who places the smallest faith in the Russian government. Our minds are made up. If Germany does not protect us with a strong hand there is only one way out, namely, to emigrate to the United States or Canada."

This is the statement of Pastor Johannes Schlenning who has come to Berlin representing the interests of so-called "Volga Germans," a farming colony of seven hundred thousand persons established along that river.

After the Brest-Litovsk treaty, Schlenning returned from 3 years' banishment in Siberia and made himself spokesman of two million German settlers spread over different regions of Russia.

According to his statement, the colonists were incorporated in the Russian army, first sent to the Russo-German front, and then some three hundred thousand were transferred to the Caucasus. There they underwent terrible sufferings, their lands were divided, and they had their properties confiscated, were reduced to beggary and the Bolsheviks completed their ruin.

Volga colonists now ask to be assisted back to Germany, or permitted to settle in the Baltic provinces. Failing this they intend to emigrate to America, declares Schlenning, who has phrased the German government a protest filled with peculiar difficulties.

ADMIRAL DAVID BEATTY

What supplies are needed for the millions upon millions who fight for the Entente? Yet this Sudan campaign was a practical school for some of the men of prominence to-day. The line "well-oiled military machine," Lord Kitchener is gone, but not before his mind had been at work on this problem of our times.

The Sudan of Egypt to-day is General Beatty's command. He was a Chief Intelligence Officer, who made it his business to know every thing. "He is the type of the learned soldier," says Stevens. "If he had not chosen to be chief of the Intelligence Department of the Egyptian army he might have been Professor of Oriental languages at Oxford. He will learn any language you like to name in three months. As for that mysterious child of lies, the Arab, Col. Wingate can converse with him for hours."

Who made a reconnaissance along the banks of the Atbara for eighteen miles? None other than Binbashi Haig, whose name is tolerably familiar in this war. Who commanded the river gunboat Falta, and supported a fighting group of forty men in a skirmish with 1,000 dervishes? None other than Lieut. Beatty, R.N., who is quoting as saying: "It is all right. We're doing 'em proper." He might repeat the same fervent sentiment as he walks his quarter-deck to-day, commander of the Grand Fleet, and bearer of appalling responsibilities.

Truly it pays to re-read Mr. Stevens. Take this statement by a Black South African warrior: "We are like the English. We are not afraid," and consider the author's commentary: "Utterly fearless themselves, savages, brought up to think death in battle the natural lot of man, far preferable to defeat or disgrace, they have lived with British officers and British sergeants through years of war and pestilence, and have never seen any sign that these are not as contemptuous of death as themselves. They have never seen a Britisher show fear."

Yet for twenty years, heedless of this and other testimony, Germany thought that Britishers were decadent towards, unable and unwilling to fight. All this time Binbashi Haig and Lieut. Beatty, R.N., were training for the leadership of a United Service embracing seven or eight million men!

Extremes. Gladness—A soldier going home on a furlough. Sadness—The same soldier coming back. Madness—The soldier who watches him.

His Job. Lady—So you are on a submarine. How interesting! And what do you do, my man? Sailor—I run for'ard, mum, an' tips 'em up when we want to dive.

One Sure Thing. "How do you get to Easy street, anyhow?" "Well, I can tell you this much, young man. You just reach it through Looter's lane."

The advertisements of the Dollar Day merchants in this issue of The Courier make interesting reading. If you're wise you'll study them.

A DUD DAY

(By Lieut. K. N. Colville.)
It was a dull, hazy day and the morning mist looked like prolonging itself into an afternoon fog. But little chance though there was that he would see anything Brownsmith must go forward to his O. P. and sit there in the hope that the veil obscuring the enemy's lines might lift, it only for a moment and give him a glimpse of a working party or transport moving on one of the roads or perhaps the flash of a gun. He took advantage, however, of the 'dud' weather, to have breakfast in peace and at a relatively Christian hour; then he summoned his telephonist and set out for the ridge two thousand yards or a little more in front of them, from which he kept his daylong watch. The linesmen had already been out and reported the line intact, and there had been no shelling in its neighborhood recently, so Brownsmith did not trouble to follow it, but took the most direct route to his destination.

It was not pleasant or a cheering walk. Most of the ground consisted of shell-holes, and all the rest was greasy mud. Tangles of barbed wire, many of the strands half buried in the mud and projecting just enough to puncture your boots or trip you up, crossed the track at a dozen points; and too many of the shell holes were inhabited by gruesome remains, while the water that lay in the bottom of the holes though red really with rust, was horribly reminiscent of the thicker liquid.

But Brownsmith and his attendants were used to all that and neither the humanitarian aesthetic nor physical drawbacks, particularly worried them. Suddenly with a most alarming 'whoosh' a shell descended beside them. The telephonist, who remarked afterwards that it sounded as though it were sliding barbed wire; Brownsmith, a little down his back, went down on his stomach in the middle of a patch of barbed wire; Brownsmith, a little in front was less precipitate, but he ducked none the less. The shell, with a solid 'plop' went to earth in the mud a dozen yards behind them without a bursting—a most fortunate 'dud'.

But even this little incident and the subsequent arrival in the neighborhood of other shells of the same breed (though none fell anything like to close) did not seriously disturb their equanimity, and they reached the O. P. contented enough. The O. P. was entered from an oblique service disused trench, by means of a short tunnel and when you got in to it you found yourself in a square hole, deep enough to stand upright, in, with a couple of sheets of iron overhead topped by a couple of feet of soil. On a level with the eyes was a slot, the whole width of the little chamber, that went right through into the eastward slope of the ridge.

Brownsmith dropped into the trench and waded through a foot of mud and a foot of water to the mouth of the tunnel. The tunnel sloped downwards, and to keep the water in the trench out of it, a wooden sill had been fixed across reaching higher than the water level went to reach. But to-day a chance shell had blown in the side of the trench and dammed it, so that the water had risen above the sill and poured into the tunnel and the chamber beyond.

Brownsmith paused. He could, if he chose connect up his telephone outside and sit in the open to observe, but unfortunately the observer would be visible, always supposing the mist lifted and either party could see anything at all. That was dangerous not so much because he was likely to get shelled (which he, individually, was not) but because it might give away his precious O. P. He decided, therefore, to go inside. He had trench-waders on, rubber cver boots, reaching well up to the thigh, and he hoped to get through dry foot. Inside, there were planks which he could rig up a kind of a platform above the water-level. In he went the water half way up his thighs, and groped carefully along sounding the channel with a stick. All seemed well, he knew that at the end of the ground rose slightly, and he was just congratulating himself on winning through when one foot went down into a hole, and the ice cold water poured in over his boot tops. He sprang forward to extricate himself and in so doing soured his other leg. Finally, he reached his O. P. with both boots full of cold water and the prospect of a seven or eight hour vigil in that chilly condition.

The telephonist, being a wise man as well as a short one had stopped outside. There Brownsmith joined him directing him to connect up his instrument and stay in the trench, while he himself climbed removed his boots and long stockings and hung them on some broken poles to dry, and then ran up and down in his bare legs on the cold muddy ground to keep warm.

The mist though it shrouded him from the enemy was not at all good for drying clothes, but it was improving. The sun peered through, the Kaiser, he abused the Mess cook,

When, finally the time arrived for him to go home, he waited and for darkness and a dry path but plunged recklessly down the tunnel and carried many pints of its water back with him. The death of friends the wounding of himself, the loss of the whole corps front could hardly have so embittered him as had that day's eventual routine.

MOHAWK CHIEFTAINS WAIT ON MINISTER

Clad in Indian Costume, They Present Protest on Registration

Treaties With Six Nations Brought Into Evidence—No Decision

Ottawa, July 31.—Clad in Indian costume, two Mohawk chiefs from the Grand River Reserve, came to Ottawa yesterday to place before Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, their objections to registering under the national registration plan. They bore with them pictured reproductions of the wampum belts recording the treaties between Great Britain and the Six Nations. The document was adorned by pictures of an Englishman and an Indian united by a chain and by two parallel lines interpreted as an indication that the whites and the Indians, although allied, were yet independent nations, living side by side under their own laws and under the protection of the Sovereign.

The chiefs said that, if the Governor-General, at the outbreak of war had brought a message from the King they would have convened the warriors of their nation. They did not think registration necessary, however, and they argued that it would be a surrender of their rights. The Minister of Justice endeavored to show his visitors that registration would not involve any sacrifice of rights and privileges. His visitors departed without further expression of opinion.

Nothing has been left undone by the Italians to show the Americans how much their presence in Italy is appreciated.

MAY SHORTLY REMOVE BACON RESTRICTIONS

Vast Supplies Now Overseas—Production Enormous on This Continent

Ottawa, July 30.—The Evening Citizen to-day published the following:

The Citizen understands on high authority that the restrictions on the use of bacon and hog products in Canada are on the point of being removed as a result of cable advices from England. Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Agriculture, when spoken to about the report this afternoon, preferred to make no statement at present but intimated that the matter is before the Food Board for consideration. Chairman Thomas is out of the city.

There are immense supplies of bacon overseas, and already the restrictions on the use of this luxury have been removed in Great Britain. The production this year, both in the United States and Canada, is enormous.

Removal of the restriction, therefore is to be anticipated in the immediate future. Whether the situation will have the effect of diminishing the high price remains to be seen, but as the figures which prevail have been justified by needs of the war, and as such needs are now well met, there would appear to be little reason for the excessive prices continuing.

He felt as he had never felt before, the war was vile and unfitting. Christ-looking very sickly, and Brownsmith could presently see the opposite side of the valley and the white scars that marked the enemy trenches. He must now keep it under observation and also must keep himself and his drying clothes out of sight. There was nothing for it but to leave his boots and stockings in the trench squeeze himself, with great difficulty in at the window and sit inside on a plank with his feet dangling in the cold water, shouting down the trench to his orderly when he wanted anything telephoned.

The mist presently lifted entirely, and Brownsmith saw little likelihood of being able to set out again by the window till after dark. His feet were numb and he pulled them up and tried to crouch on the plank above water level. Then he got cramped and he swore. The orderly mishearing him, shouted that he couldn't catch what he said. He swore again for a return of mist or fog. At last, he tucked his breeches up as high as they would go, waded into the tunnel and got his waders from the orderly who came as far as he dared the other way. The boots made things a little better but not much for their insides were far from dry yet later he got his stockings but they were not much comfort either.

When, finally the time arrived for him to go home, he waited and for darkness and a dry path but plunged recklessly down the tunnel and carried many pints of its water back with him. The death of friends the wounding of himself, the loss of the whole corps front could hardly have so embittered him as had that day's eventual routine.

Unaggerated Fishing

button. Having passed through much brush on my way to the pool I knew the net was going to require care in getting ready for use. Having hooked a fish I very calmly bethought myself first of how to land him; so I plucked the net, and the button came, to the consternation of my suspenders.

Now my fish gave the one pound pull and the two pound bite all right. He also was there with the scheduled weight of rush. Things looked good for him to keep up the first scale, too, out when it came to the five pound bend—the gut broke and I went home to the hotel.

Next morning with the bright sunlight just tipping the eastern slopes of Mount Rundle and lesser peaks, I went alone up river. Here and there and everywhere I dropped the seductive fly in the rising glacial food with no results.

"Damn!" I remarked. "My line fell slack and unhooked for into swift water and I looked up the river for some better seeming point. 'Bang!' Something hit my rod like an express train, and like an express train the fly ran out and out. Aghast I stood and merely checked. Something was on. Out went the line straight across the swift water; then I saw a large black streak break far out in the edge of white water. Once, twice, three times the fish took the air and the reel kept singing all the time. He sounded he rushed, he drove upstream and then zig-zagged down. Again and again he broke, two feet clear of the current. Forty yards of line was out and I had but five left, so I hopelessly checked tight, deciding that if he was going to break my lead it was no use worrying. But lead, rod, line and hook held, and the fish swung down on the surface, mouth open and gasping. There was brush all around, and no space to either work up or down. The full sweep of the river roared by with no restful eddies. More hopelessly still I reeled in, his troutship putting up frequent but lessening barriers. Finally he was done and I tried the new landing net. Please be to cord and rod and hook and gut the net worked! As the line slackened the hook dropped out, but there was the fish; three pounds of sparkling, spotted cutthroat trout, twenty-three inches long.

There was no more fishing. I went home satisfied. The gentle reader will note that even this story ends in the usual way with the big fish safely netted.

C. V. K.

YOU should read this story. Usually a fishing tale is deep waters for most people to wade through; but this one deals with dry land, mountains and ripples. So you see it is different from the ordinary tale where the young hero goes forth with a tenuous outfit and catches the giant trout of the deep still pool for whom anglers from all parts of the world had cast in profane vain. It is all right to tell about lying on one's stomach with the face against the water, watching the flies to learn what kind the trout were eating. It is all right to then walk to the fishing outfit, sit down and bring forth an inexhaustible supply of flies from which one selects the very duplicate of the insect the trout like at that particular instant. And it is fine to tell how the angler cast his delicate lure on the end of his silken thread, dropping it lightly as a skimming insect on the very swirl of water where the big trout lay hungrily waiting. Then the whir of the reel and the three-hour fight, ending in the thrill of victory which comes when a well-manipulated landing net encompasses the exhausted fish.

It makes good stuff; but many fishermen know more of broken leads, snagged hooks and snappy little eight-ouncers. I am undertaking to tell about a real fishing trip.

They told me I would get good fishing at Banff, so I took the Canadian Pacific westbound out of Calgary and went. On board I noticed an elderly person whose physical idiosyncrasies included the lean, leathery, brown characteristics of westernism. He eyed me and my outfit; he edged closer and he spoke of tobacco and rain. He accepted my pouch, filled his pipe-bowl, tamped it with a horny thumb, cast a weather-eye on the approaching mountain peaks, and predicted sunshine. Then he mentioned fishing.

It was not what it used to be he declared between tobacco clouds. He remembered when seven or ten or fifty casts meant seven or ten or fifty rises of the biggest, blingiest most vigorous fish that ever lived; all cutthroats, none less than a pound and a half, many exceeding five pounds each. "Them days was real fishin'! An' them fish were game fighters. He minded one ole fellow what everyone had tried to git. This fish was granddaddy of all of them, and he lived in a deep hole beside a perpendicular rock. He tuk ever' bit uh bait that anybody cast, but when he found himself hooked he jest naturally run to this here wall of flat rock an' rubbed his nose agin' th' stone, wearin' out th' gut on freem' himself." But my informant, being more canny and wise than other fishermen of his day, befooled the giant trout by not using gut. He tuk uh hunk uh fine steel wire, jointed it with swivels and hooked the monster. Then Zam! The fish was so astonished that he did not wiggle an inch of his twelve-pound body until he felt himself on the grass above the gravel bar. But those days were over and one did not catch any more big fish. Eventually I reached Banff, and was told to fish either up the Spray or up the Bow. They added that the waters were rising and fish would not be hungry, but again I might succeed. With weapons rigged I went up the Bow to a promising place I was told about. It had deep water with big eddies and a nice back-drift, a few big rocks, and a submerged ledge just below the feeding rapids above the pool. Fine. Feverishly and eagerly I cast. Then steadily and doggedly. Then slowly and sulkily. Then, glory! The line went out. I had a nine inch fish. Much cheered I went on casting. The sun went down, the sky began to darken, the mountains stood black against the dimming azure. I flagged in my efforts. I sat on a log and let the line drag. B-2-2 went the reel. A fish flashed in the rapids.

Having a new landing net I was very anxious to try it. It was the kind that fastens to a hook on a belt and comes off with the flick of a hand whenever necessary. I had no hook and had buttoned it on my suspenders.
