HIGH SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT

A Highly Successful and Enjoyable Function—Great Gathering of Former Pupils and of Friends of the School.

The weather on Friday evening last and for several days preceding that date was anything but favorable for the annual commencement exercises of the Athens High School, but notwithstanding this the perennial popularity of this event proved sufficient to fill to repletion the lecture room of the school with pupils, graduates of former years, and well wishers of the school in all parts of the county. Every seat in the hall was occupied, many stood throughout the proceedings, and fine weather would certainly have presented to the staff a problem difficult of solution. The hall was tastefully decorated with flags and presented quite a festive appearance. On the platform were Rev. Provost Macklem of Trinity University, Toronto, His Honor Judge McDonald of Brockville, Rev. Mr. Philp of Elgin, Rev. Mr. Leach of Lansdowne, Rural Dean Wright, Rev. G. N. Simmons, and Rev. E. W. Crane.

In the unavoidable absence through illness of Mr. M. J. Connolly, the duties of chairman were ably discharged by Mr. A. E. Donovan.

The H. S. Glee Club opened the programme with the stirring patriotic song, "Men of the North," in which Master Campbell Ross took the solo and a well-balanced chorus of students sang the refrain.

The honor of valedictorian had been conferred upon Mr. Harold B. Blanchard of Malorytown and the important duty of the office was ably discharged in a not too lengthy farewell. All connected with the school life of the students was highly commended as something that they would part from with regret and ever remember with pleasure. The faithful and efficient work of the teaching staff was referred to with gratitude, the people of Athens were thanked for their uniform kindness, a touching reference was made to the illness of their class-mate, Miss Rachel Thompson of Yonge and a fond farewell and brave words for the future closed one of the best valedictories recorded in the annals of A.H.S. commencements.

The address by Provost Street Macklem of Trinity University, Toronto, on "Reminiscences of Cambridge" was both interesting and instructive. The Provost adopted a conversational style that was very pleasing and, being himself a Canadian, his address dealt with such details and salient features of student life in that great institution of learning as would be of particular interest to his hearers. For hundreds of years Cambridge had been approaching its present degree of perfection, and while it would probably be many years before Canada could possess such an institution, the Provost said that he and his co-workers in Toronto were endeavoring to make of Trinity a worthy imitator of the great English university.

The singing of Miss Mabel De Guerre of Belleville was heard with great pleasure by the large audience. She has a charming stage presence and a well trained voice, clear and sweet, without the faintest suggestion of weakness, and her songs well deserved the rapturous applause with which each was greeted. The fair singer graciously responded to the encores.

The primary object of a commencement is, of course, the presentation of diplomas and certificates to the successful students. This event is a kind of harvest home for the teaching staff, and never before did Athens' teachers have greater cause for self-gratulation over the abundant fruitage that followed their year's labors in the pedagogic vineyard. In every department the passes indicated that effective work was being done; indeed, the number of passes in the highest form is such as places the school in this particular first among all the high schools of the province and gives it third place in competition with the collegiate institutes. An idea of the work accomplished can best be understood, perhaps, by a consideration of the following summary:

Art School Certificates—8 full and 139 part.
Part I. Metric—31.
Part I. Second Class—27.
R. M. C. Metric—2.
Part II. Metric—18.
Full Second Class—31.
Senior Metric—(part) 2.

The crowded state of the hall prevented the great number of students entitled to Art School honors being called to the platform and only those taking full certificates received this distinction. In presenting to them their certificates, Rev. G. N. Simmons made a very neat speech in which he exhorted them to further develop their artistic talents and dwell upon the refining, elevating influence of art in all walks of life.

The Knowlton prize, won by Miss Elber Good, was presented by Rev. E. W. Crane; the Cornell medal, won by Miss Laura J. Berney, was presented by Rev. Rural Dean Wright; and the Graham medal, won by Miss Nellie M. Philp, was presented by Rev. Mr. Leach of Lansdowne. An appropriate address in each case accompanied the presentation. When the long double line of graduates assembled on the platform they were roundly applauded. His Honor Judge McDonald presented them with their diplomas and in doing so he delivered a short address that was full of hope and encouragement for the graduates and contained good sound advice. He spoke of the Farmersville grammar school of forty years ago and of the sacrifices made by the pioneers of that day in establishing and maintaining it. The duty of their descendants was plain. The necessity for the higher education afforded by the high school was never greater than now and instead of seeking relief from its support all should unite in elevating the educational standard and maintaining the efficiency of the school. To the graduating class, soon to become themselves teachers, he commended as a guiding principle, Loyalty. The graduates should be loyal to their alma mater and loyal to themselves, the latter manifested by an honest, faithful, conscientious regard for their work as teachers. Loyal to pupils by a correct mode and manner of teaching. Loyal to Canada and therefore to the Queen, by teaching such measure of liberality as will assist in making of the diverse elements constituting Canada's population a homogeneous whole. To remedy what was apparently one of the growing evils of the present day, he advised them to teach courtesy, good manners, respect for elders and all in authority.

During the evening, Principal Massey duly acknowledged the kind words spoken respecting the efficient work of the school during last year and spoke in the highest terms of his assistants on the staff. He announced that the Cornell and Graham medals would be continued next year.

Mrs. A. E. Donovan and Miss Annie Ross presided at the piano during the evening as accompanists. God Save the Queen, most heartily sung, brought this pleasant and in many respects memorable gathering to a close.

FORD—HALLADAY.

(From the DeLoraine Times.)

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Halladay, North Cavers street, on the evening of Thursday, November 1st, when their only daughter, Effie V. was united in marriage to Horace Ford by Rev. Thomas Lawson. The bride was supported through the trying ordeal by Miss Mabel Turnbull of Hartney, while H. H. Halladay, brother of the bride, ably supported the groom. The bride looked lovely in a dress of cream cashmere trimmed with white silk and betroune net and carried a magnificent shower bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid was tastily attired in a dress of organdie trimmed with white lace and chiffon and carried a beautiful bouquet of pink roses. The wedding march was played by Mrs. J. E. Lappman.

After the ceremony which took place at 7.30 the guests to the number of about fifty adjourned to the dining room where full justice was done to tempting viands, with which the large tables were covered. Mr. Lawson then proposed the health of the bride which was responded to by the groom in a witty speech after which a number of speeches were made by W. R. David, W. P. McKim, S. Y. Ballis, T. H. Evans, Wm. Temple and others. The remainder of the evening was spent with music and songs after which the happy couple left amid a shower of rice and old shoes for their new home on South Mountain street.

The numerous and costly presents amply testified to the popularity of the bride who has been prominently connected with the work of the Methodist church here and also the groom who is a member of the contracting firm of Laird & Ford.

THE ECONOMIC FEED COOKER

A grand Success

Read what Practical Pig-raisers Say About It!

James Loucks, Yonge Front, says: "I know that I have saved fully 25 per cent by feeding cooked roots to my pigs last fall."

Wm. Byers, Prescott Road, says: "I fed 60 pigs last fall on cooked roots and saved my bacon; although prices were low, I made some money on them. The only trouble was the Cooker was too small (40 gals)—had to cook several batches a day."

Israel Stevens, Delta, says: "The Economic Feed Cooker is a grand thing, but the 40 gal. size is too small for to feed a large herd of pigs."

In order to meet the demand for the large size, I have procured patterns and am prepared to furnish them to order up to 100 gals. These Cookers are made with grate-bars and ash-pit below. The fire-box can be lined with brick, ensuring safety and economy of fuel. I also make the No. 40, same as last season.

Ontario. In Ontario the Government sustained a reverse, especially in the western portions of Province, which heretofore have been almost solidly Liberal. The returns at the time of writing indicate the election of 51 Conservatives and 37 Liberals, leaving the constituencies of Nipissing and Algoma still to be polled. The list of losses, it would seem, totals 22 in this Province and involves the disappearance from Parliament for a time of many well known Ontario members, Mr. James McMullen, Dr. Lanierkin and Mr. William Gibson are the most notable members who have been defeated. Others in the last Liberal contingent from this Province who sought re-election and will not have seats in the next Parliament are Mr. Wood, of Hamilton; Mr. Joseph Featherston, of Peel; Mr. McEligh, of South Victoria; Mr. Duncan Graham, of North Ontario; Mr. Hurley, of East Hastings; Mr. John Fraser, of East Lambton; Mr. Valentine Ritz, of North Middlesex; Mr. Sempie, of Centre Wellington; and Mr. Frank T. Frost, of North Leeds, and Grenville. Mr. Stubbis, Independent, who gave a general support to the Government, was rejected in Cardwell. On the other hand, the Liberals gained nine seats in the Province formerly held by Conservatives. The following are the gains and losses—thrown into the surf. Three of them were carried to the shore, where they were enabled to hold on and were saved by Eustace McLean and Second Officer Murphy and two women passengers were drawn back by the undertow. The next wave threw the McDonald girl high and dry on the shore, but Murphy was hurled against a boulder and instantly killed. The others were not seen again. Those who were saved sustained only slight injuries.

Capt. Smith made the following statement to-night: "We left St. John at 11 o'clock on Friday morning. The weather was not at all bad. The sea in fact was very smooth to Petite Passage. I saw Capt. Harding, who said he was thinking of putting into Yarmouth before reaching Petite Passage, but about half an hour before reaching there the weather looked dark with indications of the wind blowing to the northwest, and he concluded to try to reach Yarmouth. At the time we reached Cape St. Mary's it was blowing strong, but the ship made fairly good weather, although the wind was about five miles from Cape St. Mary's light. After falling his position, Capt. Harding decided to run for the harbor, but found it impossible to get the ship before the wind, although he used every endeavor to do so. The ship was low making water and we began to jettison cargo.

After emptying several casks of kerosene oil to smooth the waters and as the water continued to gain we decided to take to the boats. This was about 11 o'clock this morning. After getting two boats out on the port side we placed all the women, three in number, in the first boat, and in five minutes after the boats had cleared the steamer she gradually settled down on the port side and disappeared. I saw steam escaping, but if there was an explosion of boilers I was so engrossed with my boat that I did not notice it. The fires in one boiler had been out for two hours, having been put out by rising water in the hold.

There were no signs of confusion, everything was orderly, and there was no excitement whatever. Capt. Harding and all the officers did their duty to the last. The captain assisted us in getting our boat away, and the last I saw of him he was scrambling on the fall attempting to put her into the water. Capt. Harding's conduct was seamanship throughout.

After the steamer foundered we were driven to the shore by the terrific gale, and landed at Pembroke, about four miles away, in a very heavy surf, our boat being broken to atoms in landing. Murphy, the second mate, and two lady passengers were drowned. We never saw or heard them after the sea receded. Those who were saved were thrown upon the beach, and it was only by a miracle that we escaped the fate of the other three. It was after a severe struggle that we gained a place of safety. The cook and the stewardess received slight injuries in landing. The last we saw of the other boat she had apparently filled with water and we fear there is no hope of her occupants being saved. Several of those remaining in the steamer had life belts on, but I fear there is no possibility of any of them being saved. They could not have lived long enough in the raging sea to get to land. After reaching a house we were furnished with dry clothing, and all, except the stewardess, were brought to Yarmouth.

Third Officer's Story. James E. Flemming, the City of Monticello's third officer, made the following statement: "After leaving St. John yesterday morning the wind was blowing quite strong, but the boat made good time. After passing through Petite Passage it looked as if the wind would head to the northwest, but about 9 o'clock it breezed up from the south. About 10 o'clock on Friday night one sea boarded us and carried away the starboard part of the forward section, apparently doing small damage. The ship was then laboring heavily, but was making good weather. In the night she began to leak. This morning at about 8 o'clock she became unmanageable. Everything possible for the safety of the ship and crew was done, but to no purpose. The port fire went out about 10 o'clock and shortly afterwards Capt. Harding ordered the boats to be manned. The second officer, the quartermaster, Captain Smith, the stewardess and two women, one colored, and myself left in her. Very little difficulty was experienced in getting the boat away from the ship. The port forward boat was also lowered, but filled before it was got away from the ship. I saw men struggling in the water with life belts on, but it was impossible to render them any assistance. I cannot say whether any other boats were lowered. In about three minutes after we left the ship she keeled over on her port side, broke in two and went down, bow first. Just before she sank I saw people clinging to the windward rail.

Capt. Harding's Fine Conduct. The last I saw of Capt. Harding he was getting out the port quarter boat. He was perfectly cool throughout and gave his orders in that mild tone with which we were so familiar. He did his utmost to save the passengers and crew when it became evident that the ship could live no longer. No possible blame can be attached to the captain. He was caught under conditions which could not have been foreseen. There were about seven passengers aboard, don't know who they were.

After the ship sank we scudded for the land. The small boat made splendid weather till we reached the breakers. As near as I can tell the boat pitched upon the beach. I think Second Mate Murphy was killed when the boat struck. The two ladies were drowned or killed. The remaining cool and calm in the boat did just as we told them by trying no signs of fear. The next I knew I came up under the boat, and was then washed out from under it. The second mate I was washed ashore. I saw a rock and happened to get hold of the stewardess's life belt. The surging sea washed me up and left me dry and we got ashore before the next sea broke. The boat where we landed was very low with the sea running very high, breaking with terrific force. It was only by the hand of Providence we escaped. We walked over a house, a distance of 200 yards, where we were kindly aided and then driven to town. It is just impossible for any of the 33 persons in the boat or on the steamer could have escaped, she sank so quickly.
