B. LOVERIN,

The Choir Concert The concert held under the auspices on Friday evening drew a very large audience, representative of all denominations and containing lovers of music om far and near. The programme was indeed a most attractive one, and the performance fulfilled all that it promised. Under the direction of Mr. E. S. Clow, the choir has rendered most acceptable service in the church, and the many fine voices it contains, in their various parts, have obtained more than a local name and fame. The members of the choir give freely their time and talents, and the recognition they received on Friday eyening must have been very gratifying. In their anthems on this occasion they had the assistance of Rev. George and Mr. R. Stafford of Westport (tenor) and Mr. R. Hanna of Delta and Mr. James Thompson of Brockville (bass). The effect was grand beyond anything, we think, before heard in Athens, and the only regrett uttered was that such a of sweet, inspiring music should be confined to such a small auditorium. Mr. Sim Manhardt surprised and delighted his friends by giving a trombone solo that involved considerable triple tonguing, and his faultless singing brought forth a vigorous encore. The vocal solos by Mrs. S. C. A. Lamb and Mr. James Thompson were warmly received, and their artistic rendering met with a just appreciation. The quartettes and quintette, in which Mrs. Lamb, Miss M. Wiltse, Messrs. Rev. George and R. Stafford, Thompson and Clow took part, were exceptionally fine, being balanced so that the harmony was beautifully sweet and clear. A duet, "Anchored," by the Messrs. Stafford served to display to advantage their fine voices, and was one of the gems of the evening. The literary part of the programme was given by Miss Irene Mallory, and that talented young lady never appeared to better advantage in Athens. She was particularly happy in her dialect numbers, and her boy impersonations, given as encores, elecited rounds of applause. The whole entertainment was an unqualified success, and the financial results, tco, must have been quite satisfactory.

THE BULLIS MILL BURNED

On Friday morning last fire completely destroyed the grist and saw mill of Mr. S. Y. Bullis, situated a halfmile east of Athens. The fire was discovered about 3 a.m., but it had then made such headway that saving anything from the mill was out of the question. When Mr. Bullis and Mr. Stewart, who live near by, were aroused the roof was about ready to fall; all the sheeting had been burned away, and the fire roaring through the skeleton of heavy timbers presented a grand and terrible sight.

A messenger came to Athens and gave the alarm, but a large number failed to hear the bell. The engine was run down and did good service in preventing the spread of the fire Fortunately, a south wind was blowing which carried the clouds of sparks up the creek. Several times fire started in adjoining buildings, but was promptly extinguished. The fringe of trees along the roadway proved an effectual protection to Mr. Bullis' effectual protection to Mr. Bullis' residential property. hood of $15,000, and the insurance $5,000. The mill was fitted with double boilers and engines and had water-power for part of the season. The machinery for gristing, sawing, cheese box making, etc., was most complete, and a full staff of men were employed on contract and custom work. A large stock of logs lay in the yard, and in the building there was considerable finished stock and goods in process of manufacture. Within the last two years, the mill building had been thoroughly overhauled and covered with a new metal roof. Following the purchase of that mill, Mr. Bullis had moved considerable of the machinery from the Athens mill there, and this also is lost.

This week teams are engaged in drawing logs to the Athens mill, which is being rapidly fitted up for business. The destroyed mill was erected about sixty years ago by the late. Joseph Slack. In 1869 it was pur-In 1869 it was pur chased by the Saunders family and by them successfully conducted until the death of the late J. B. Saunders, when it passed into the possession of Mr. Bullis. The loss to Mr. Bullis is, of course, heavy, but with characteristic pluck and enterprise he is bravely facing the situation, and in his efforts he has the sympathy and best wishes of a host of friends.

The I. O. O. F. at Church

The anniversary services of the I. O. O. F., as is usual in Athens, ook the form of atten service, and in addition to the local nembers several were present Delta and other points. Mr. R. I. Stevens of Delta was marshall for the day, and he had the pleasure of lining up about sixty of the brethren. The narch to Christ Church was creditably performed, and on arriving they were comfortably seated. In addition, there was a large attendance of townspeople generally, so the auditorium was filled to overflowing. Following the beautiful ritualistic service, the rector, Rev. R. B. Patterson, M.A., delivered a most impressive and appropriate discourse on the motto of the order-Friendship, Love, and Truth-finding an appropriate text for each link of the chain in Eph. 4: 25; Gal. 5:13; Cor. 5:14. He presented the brotherhood man in a new and strong light, and pointed out clearly the interdependence of all. Societies were commendable and enduring only to the extent that in precept and practice they conformed to the divine original—the brotherhood of Christ. The whole discourse was most clear and logical, and was listened to very attentively by the the large congregation

On returning to the lodge room, a hearty vote of thanks was passed to the rector for his able discourse and to the choir for their excellent service of song. Local and visiting brethren delivered short addresses, appropriate to the occasion, and the meeting closed in regular form.

The Message of the Risen Christ-Rev. 1: 10-20

Commentarty.-1. John receives a message (vs. 10, 11). 10. In the Spirit -Under the influence of the Spirit, the Lord's day-"The day made sacred to all Christians for all time by the resurrection of Jesus from the dead. It was the day of ligh tand salvation." John arrived in Patmos late Saturday evening, spent the night in prayer, and with the opening Sunday morning the glorified Saviour opened heaven to his vision. Why is our Sabbath the first day of the week? We see here the aposof the week? We see here the apos-tles kept the first day and, because of its sanctity, called it the Lord's day."-Godbey. Behind me, etc.—This was the first intimation of the presence of Jesus who spoke with a voice like a trumphet. Alpha and Omega—Omitted in R. These are the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet. This is a figurative expression, used to show that Christ was the "source and the consummation" of all things. He is from eternity to eternity. What thou seest—The prophetic vision that was revealed to him on that Lord's day. Write—What if John had not written? The command to write is given twelve times in the Apocalypse.—Vincent. A book — A parchment roll. "Ancient books were made of papyrus, or from the prepared skins of animals and rolled upon a roll-er." Seven churches—"Seven" denotes "Doubtless there wee hunlreds of churches in Asia Minor at that The reason why seven only are mentioned is because the church is the bride of Christ, and seven is the hanctified number always representing Christ. Four represents humanity, as man is the king of the world, specified by the cardinal points, North, South, East and West. Three repesents divinity-Father, Son and Holy Ghost. Christ is both man and God; therefore, seven symbolizes Christ. These seven churches successively represent the visible church from the apostolic age till the Lord comes."—Godbey. Being in the Spirit is having the outer world shut out, and the inner life taken full possession of by the Holy Ghost, so that you may constantly commune with the Lord. Christ lived always thus, "in the Spirit." Many always thus, "in the Spirit." Many things tend to prevent Christians from living in the Spirit on the Lord's Day, but none more than the Sunday newspaper. Dr. Buckley puts this forcibly, when he says, "To many it seems that as the chief part of the work on a Sunas the chief part of the work on a Sun-day paper is done on Saturday, it is not therefore any more harm to read the Sunday than the Monday issue. But the purchase of the paper, and the reading of it seem to us among the least of evils. It is the introduction of the same tone of thought and the consideration of the same class of interests on the Lord's Day as on the other days, which s the chief evil. Instead of having one day free from the cares and interests which ocupy us through the week, we have the same thoughts and the same interests; and the Sabbath is deprived of its uplifting power by the pre-occupation of the mind with its accustomed routine. And the delicate spirit of devotion is not easily retained after an account of the latest political crisis, or doors and windows, and brought the furni-the last murder. In Overbrook, where Mayor Weaver lives, 1,500 men who had been attending the mass meeting marched to his house and sang My Country, Tis of Thee. The gas lease steal and practically all other matters have been swallowed up, however, by this amazing uprising that has come like a thunderbolt against the organization led by Israel Durham, that for fifteen years has held absolute sway in the city, controlled every office, spent every nearly of the city's money and every penny of the city's money and produced a majority ranging from 125, 000 to 200,000 at each election. The City Hall during the impeachment proceedings will be guarded at every side and entrance by police, with orders from the ring to break up the crowds at any cost. Inside the corridors and Council chambers will be packed by guards and

It is a new revolution in Philadelphia, r, rather, a new civil war. Rioting began in earnest to-night. A ob of three thousand men besieged the ouse of Walter T. Sykes, a member of the Select Council who voted for the gas steal last Thursday. " Sykes, we want you!" they cried. Assured that he was not at home, the mob moved on to his big automobile-works. They surrounded it and guarded every entrance. Then they yelled for the ncilman to come out. Trembling and white with fear, he finally appeared. Then under threats of killing him and burning down his plant they made him swear with uplifted hand to support the Mayor in the veto of the gas lease.

Subsequently an attempt was made to hum down the bouse of Randall Morburn down the house of Randall Morgan, Vice-President of the United Gas climatic conditions expect good results. Country remittances are reported fairly, satisfactory.

Winnipez advices say: There has been less activity to the trade of the past week. Collections are still slow. The most important factor in the business outlook is the wheat crop, and as in this connection everything appears exceedingly satisfactory. Dry goods and groceries have a quiet tone, while there is a fair movement in hardware goods. Outdoor industries an exceedingly active and labor is plentiful.

Victoria and Vancouver advices say: Business throughout the coast is satisfactory. There is a good demand from the interior for all lines of goods, and the sorting trade in all lines is active. The Provincial tax on commercial rivareliers, instituted a short time ago, is coming in for considerable criticism, and there is talk of an attempt being made to have it repealed. Canners are making preparations for a big pack of salmon. Collections are generally fair to good. The shipping trade is active and there is a heavy movement of goods along the coast. Hamilton advices to Bradstreet's say the general condition of trade there continues satisfactory. While the volume of wholesale business is not large, there is nothing in the way of unseasonable dailness to complain of. Softsag, orders are for a fair distribution of lines. Collections are moderately good. All lines of industry continue busily engaged and there is a fair tone to retait trade throughout the city.

Reports from London say: There has been little change in the business situation during the properties and hardware are meeting with a good wholesale demand, and there is continued activity among the manifacturers.

"Tell us some more about the South Seas and the wreck, Mr. Vane," he says, presently, and Vernon Vane good-naturedly complies.

It does not amount to much-his re cital—but somehow he manages to bring before them, as readily as if he were painting a picture, the incidents of a long voyage, the strange birds and fly-ing fish, the low-lying islands and their inhabitants, and the terrible storm that sent their vacht scudding on to the reef and destruction; it is not much; he does not mention himself more than once or twice, but the boy lies motionless, wrap-ned in a delightful away to and to are ped in a delightful awe; and Jeanne-well, Jeanne silently watches the hand-some face, and drinks in the low, deep music of the voice with the thirsty greediness of her young heart.

Everything about this stranger, lying so cozily and naturally at her feet, with his head resting on his arm, and his dark eyes, now glancing into hers, is strange and wonderful. The feeling that came over her last night when he played that sweet music, takes pos sion of her now, when suddenly he stops, and says:

"But I am tiring you?"

She starts with an unwonted dash of color in her beautiful face, and says, shyly: "No-no! I was listening. Please

"All right," says Vane, turning to his sail, and presently, with a masterful sweep, Jeanne brings the Nancy Bell around, and they pass swiftly into the sheltered nook. Sheltered nook. Vernon Vale lowers the sail, seizes the hawser, and jumping into the shallow water, draws the boat onto the sand. Hal hands out a suggestive-looking basket, and then Jeanne, standing on tip toe, prepares to leap, but a strong hand is laid on her own laid on her own.

"You will get your feet wet," says

Vernon Vane; "and this is not the sum-

Jeanne laughs as she spreads a small cloth on the pebbles.

"Hal apears to be trying his hand at "Hal apears to be trying his hand at the pirate and smuggling business in real earnest," said Vernon Vane. "Yes, I'll take some pie, though the re-ceiver is as bad as the thief."

Jeanne also vouchsafes to share Hal's spoils, and presently the seagulls look down wonderingly at these three young people who can sit and eat their lunch eon in the open air, as if it were really Hal is not the only one who is hungry nd a fashionable belle would have look ed at Jeanne's hearty lunch with won-der and envy. But there is no London belle here. He, lying against a rock, does watch her covertly vatches her with enjoyment and admira tion which are something more than ar-tistic. Upon him falls the spell of which he was conscious last night. Is it her beauty, that moves him so, or her inno were to go back to that world which e has foresworn, forget her? As he asks himself the question, Hal lays down the knife and fork, and looks

"We must be going," says Jeanne, looking up at the sky, which has been gradually

"Jump on my back, Hal," says Vernon Vane, and he deposits the boy on the bow and comes back for Jeanne. Jeanne looks at him and then at the water.

"I will carry you," he says.
She hesitates a moment, then he lifts her as easily as if she were a child, and lightly down.

Then he pushes the boat into the deep water, and climbs into her as she glides; and they set off for home.

It has been easy work running, but

It has been easy work running, but they have to tack now, and the sail flaps backwards and forwards as the wind catches her. Jeanne's hands grasp the helm more firmly, and her eyes are gravely set upon the cliff. She does not once look toward Vernor Vane, until a sudden gust blows the sail straight against the mast, and nearly sweeps the boat to the water's edge; then she says, quietly:

"There's going to be a storm."

"There's going to be a storm."
Vernon Vane looks up at the suddenly darkening sky and onds.

"You know the coast?" he says.
"Yes," says Jeanne, pushing back her hat and grasping the helm; "once we round the point we run before the wind."

There is no hesitation in her voice, and certainly no fear, though even while she has been speaking the sea has grown has been speaking, the sea has grown lumpier and shows its foam-teeth, and the Nancy Bell heels over to the water's edge.

"Now we shall see her go!" exclaims Hal, excitedly. "Jeanne will show Mr. Vanc what the Nancy Bell can do!" "Sit quiet," says Jeanne, "Mr. Vane does not want to swim back to the cliffs."

The warning is not altogether unnecessary, for every moment the wind grows more fierce and the sky more threaten-

Now, indeed, the Nancy Belle cleaves through the water, riding over the crest ed waves and splitting the foam into two hissing, angry currents. Suddenly a big drop of rain falls into Vane's pipe; it is the commencement of the shower. the rain comes darkness, and then both are swept away by a sudden gust of wind, which reveals the cliffs frowning before them. "Take care!" says Jeanne, "shorter Straight on her course rushes the Nancy Bell, watched by anxious eyes from the shore, which strive to get a glimpse at Jeanne, and marvel at missing her from her place. It is the first time Jeanne had flinched from her post. What ails her? Is it fear that caused her hands to slip from the helm—that forces her to sit so meekly where he bade her?

Is it fear? Jeanne cannot tell. Before her the cliffs loom as if in a dream; all she feels is the warm, firm, yet tender grasp of the strong arm-all she hears above the wind is the musical

It is three weeks since the Nancy Bell ran into the cliffs with the wind howling after her, and the spring—the the real spring-has come with soft steps

Three weeks is not a lengthy period in one's life, and yet Jeanne is changed. She is nore silent even than of old, and more dreamy, and the wistful, questioning eyes, which visited her face for the firs time when Vernon Vane played that song without words, is upon it now.

THE CODLING WORM: of sheets, and he has to live on OF THE APPLE. By Prof. Lochhead.)

rather trying to the eyes.

In this magnificent apartment are collected the Lambton family and their guests, to wit, the Honorable Mr. Fitzjames, Mr. Bell, Jeanne and Hal, and lastly, none other than Vernon Vane.

How it has come to pass that he is here, leaning against a carved mantel piece and listening to Maud Lambton's falsetto, he himself would have been puzzeled to explain.

The codling worm is the cause of greater loss of the apple industry than any other insect. The extent of the loss to Ontario alone runs up every year into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, and into the millions in the United States, all because the remedies which have discovered by the entomologists, have not been applied by the apple-growers.

While there is but no brood of the covered by the entomologists, have not been applied by the apple-growers. While there is but one brood of the codling moth east and north of Toronto, there are two broods west and south of the same place. The different stages of the same place. The different stages of this insect pest should be familiar to the apple grower, for only with this knowledge can he apply his remedies intelligently. The life story may be stat-ed concisely as follows: The insect win-ters over as a caterpillar in a cocoon in some pracected place, and in early June some protected place, and in early June when the blossoms are falling from the apple the adult winged moths appear. The females deposit their eggs on the leaves and you've formed fruit. In about laves and newly formed fruit. In about ten days the caterpillars escape from the eggs and a few days later enter the apples, usually at the calyx end. The worm remains inside the apple about 20 days, after which it comes out to spin a cocon within which it lives until spring if there is but one brood, but only about two weeks if there are two broods in a season. The second brood of moths appear about the end of July or the beginning of August; then eggs are again mother that have taken their place is the vocabulary of everyday life. In the insect world the most striking confirmation to the Darwinian theory is to be found, because the hunter and the hunted have uncostously contrived incredibly subtle articles for outwitting each other." Mr. Kaempfrert demonstrates the motives for which these tactics are employed. One method whereby the weak may escape the strong is in protective simulation of their surroundings. "So exact is the protective resemblance that even the protective resemblance that even the catocala discovery that the vocabulary of everyday life. In the insect world the most striking confirmation to the Darwinian theory is to be found, because the hunter and the hunted have unconsciously contrived incredibly subtle articles for outwitting each other." Mr. Kaempfrert demonstrates the motives for which these tactics are employed. One method whereby the weak may escape the surroundings. "So exact is the protective resemblance that even the truncation of their surroundings." So exact is the protective resemblance that even the truncation of their surroundings. "So exact is the protective resemblance that even the truncation of the most of the place leaves and newly formed fruit. In about pear about the end of July or the beginning of August; then eggs are again deposited, and the worms which hatch from these eggs enter the developed apples about the middle of August, leaving them again in September to make cocoons within which to spend the winter.

With our knowledge of these facts, we are able to state quite definitely, the best times to apply remedies. The plan is to poison the worms with Paris Green or some other arsenic mixture before they enter the fruit. The trees should be sprayed (1) a few days after the blossoms fall; and (2) about the middle of August, for the second brood of larvae. An additional spraying ten days or two weeks after the first will, in most cases be productive of much in most cases be productive of much good. It is advisable, of course, to use the arsenic mixture along with Bordeaux to control the apple , scab fungus at the same time that the codling moth is being threatened. For the scab two additional sprayings are necessary—one betional sprayings are necessary-one before blossoming and one in July.

The Bordeaux-Paris green mixture is prepared according to the following formula

20 gallons of water in a barrel, and in another barrel the lime is slacked care-fully and 10 to 15 gallons of water are added to make a milk of lime. Then the contents of the two barrels are poured into the spray barrel through a strainer. Finally the Paris green is made into

The practice of banding trees is commendable, but everything taken into account is more expensive than spraying, and is moreover, actually harmful unless the bands are examined and the larvae destroyed every ten days or two weeks during the latter half of June and all of July.

Every fruit grower should acknowledge the value of such birds as the Chickadee, Downy Woodpecker, Nuthatch, Bluebird, Swallows, Wren and Song Sparrows in checking the increase of the codling moth and other injurious insects, for without them fruit could scarcely be grown. Encourage the birds, there fore, to come about the orchards by keeping the gun at a distance, and by punishing the robber of birds' nests.

Many a defenceless insect resorts to the expediens of terrifying its enemies by its likeness to a dangerous animal or by suddenly assuming a horrible aspect.

The most successful terror-inspiring masker is probably the "hickory-horned devil," a perfectly harmles caterpillar of the Royal Persimmon moth of our Southern States, but so fiercely threatening in appearance that it enjoys an envisible reputation for deadliness. Its green body, often half a foot in length, is capped by a vivid orange crown, which on the approach of an enemy is ominously shaken in a way that makes a rattle-snake seem lambilke in comprison. These wonderful species of insects, it has been stated, are all of them products of the struggle for existence. Mr. Kaempflert concludes: "If all insects were permitted to live the world would be devastated by them. It happens, however, that their enemies likewise multiply in geometrical ratio, so that a proper balance is maintained. So numerous are these enemies, and so powerful, that sometimes the quest of food is anything but successful. The food of one beetle is consumed by another, rain and wind, cold and heat, kill many butterflies; in a word, premature death falls upon a creature in a thousand and one ways. Although the offspring always outnumber their parents, yet the number of living insects, thanks to birds and beasts of prey, remains fairly constant." Many a defenceless insect resorts to the

SAFETY FOR CHILDREN.

Mothers should never give their litle ones a medicine that they do not ow to be absolutely safe and harms. All so-called soothing medicines contain poisonous opiates that stupefy the helpless little one without curing its silments. Babv's Own Tablets is the illments. Baby's Own Tablets is the only medicine for infants and young hildren that gives the mother a posi children that gives the mother a posi-tive guarantee that it contains no opiate or harmful drug. Milton L. Hersey, M. Sc., McGill University, has analyzed these tablets and says: "I hereby cer-tify that I have made a careful analysis of Baby's Own Tablets, which I per Montreal, and the said analysis has failed to detect the presence of any opiate or narcotic in them." This means that mothers can give their little ones these Tablets with an assurance that they will do good—that they cannot possibly do harm. The Tablets cure indigestion colc, constipation, diarrhoea, simple fever, eething troubles and all minor ailments. rding your Zutoo Tablets I beg to say: I have been a sufferer from head-ache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all, of the so-called "cures" on the market, till warned by my physician to discontinue their use on account of their bad effects on the heart. Some ce my attention was called to our Zutoo Tablets and I have been us ing them ever since with the most grati-fying results. I find they cure a "sick" or "nervous" headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effect. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from head-ache and they never failto give quick re-lef. I find them a good remedy for "sour" stomach as well as headache. I always carry them in my grip on the road and would not be without them at any cost.

RUSSIA DEFEATED

The battle between the navies of Russia and Japan, so long expected, took place on Saturday and Sunday last in the straits of Corea. No details of the horrors that attended this greatest sea-fight in the world's history have vet been given out; only this is known—Russia has suffered a terrible defeat. Thirteen of her war vessels have been sunk or captured and 3,000 of her men made prisoners. Japan's fleet came out of the engagement practically unharmed. With the captured Russian ships added to his such a final demonstration of Japan's might. The lesson of Saturday will not be disregarded. To save his throne, already tottering, Nicholas must make peace.

I. O. F. MEETING

There was a good attendance of nembers of the Independent Order of Foresters at the meeting held in their lodge room on Thursday evening last and under the presidency of Chief Ranger G. F. Donnelley an interesting session was held. It is intended that a grand Forestic demonstration shall be held in Brockville during the month of August, and this meeting was held in furtherance of that event. After stating the object of the meetng, the chairman introduced Mr. J. Davidson, D.S.C.R., who delivered most interesting and practical address on 'he subject of Fraternal nsurance. He decribed the growth of the I.O.F. and detailed in convince ing terms the facts and figures that have contributed to its wonderful Under a wise, progressive iministration it has extended to many lands, and under sound, careful, enconomical management its financialresources have kept pace with its growth, until to day its surplus, all safely invested, is rapidly approach as $10,000,000. The I.O.F. does not offer a "cheap" insurance. It is lowpriced when compared with straight line companies, but it is not cheap in the sense that it pretends to give something for nothing. The actuaries ave decided that it costs a certain sum per year to carry a $1,000 risk. exclusive of the cost of management, and any society that drops below that figure must of necessity fail. Some others will surely follow. Mr. Davidson made no reference to any Canadian ociety, but referred to societies in the U. S. which had been obliged to increase their rates and had suffered greatly in consequence. The I. O. F. had never raised its rates on members,

Mr. John Bowman, Supreme Lecturer, followed with a truly eloquent address on the principl Forestry, and impressed all with his masterly presentation of the subject. As a fitting close to his speech, he read S. W. Fair's poem on fraternity, and in this centre of declamation his fine elecution was duly appreciated. On invitation, the Rev. I. N. Beckstedt spoke briefly and well in endorsation of the principle of fra-ternal insurance, and closed by asking particulars as to the Brockville demoncaptured Russian ships added to his strength, the Japanese Admiral, if the necessity arises, can sweep the Baltic itself and let the people of St. Peters burg hear the thunder of his guns. It was expected that this court would obtain as many members as possible before the meeting, and as an inducement the cost of admission had been reduced to $2.00 (which includes the medical examination fee)

The character of the meeting on Thursday evening was most encouraging and inspiring, and at its close a number of names were given the secretary as probable members.

At 'the request of a number of members, present, the Chief Ranger announced that a special meeting of Court Athens would be held on the evening of the second Friday in June for the benefit of candidates membership and to arrange for the annual attendance at divine service.

PUBLIC HOUSE TRUSTS

The debate in the senate on public house trusts, and Earl Grey's public and private utterances, are doing just what our English friends feared, viz. bringing this scheme for the control of the drink traffic before the Canadian people. We think the following pre-sentation of the case ought to put a We think the following prequietus upon any attempt to establish, on Canadian soil, such form of license.

Just about the time Earl Grey anded in Canada, "The British Na tional Temperance Federation" pub-lished a manifesto addressed to "The Temperance Organizations of Canada." The Federation embraces thirty three temperance societies in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, and includes the large bulk of the working forces of this great reform. Let the manifesto speak for itself :-

"Dear Friends,-We hear with deep regret of a disposition on the part of some in Ontario to favor the creation of a Public Liquor Monopoly, whereby philanthropic, religious people may be induced to join in the setting up of a so called "Reformed Public-house Trust System"; or, in the creation of a State, or Municipal or other Public Monopoly in or for the sale of Intoxicating drinks — whereby the entire community become implicated in the Liquor Traffic under the idea of improving its conditions and perhaps of applying part of its profits to counter man with £5,000 a year, and his fin-ancial affinity, the bachelor, with £500 a year—are certainly the poorest people in London; but there is another class who, without being as poor, live through-out their lives in what is known as 'em-barrassed circumstances.' This is a duke or similar personage with £50,000 a ear. Is there a man in London more abitually or hopelessly unable to pu his hand on a ten-pound note without defrauding somebody? His palaces in England, Scotland and Ireland, and famhouse in London, must each have a regiment of servants, with a house keeper to look after them, and an army corps of gardeners, farm hands, and estate office clerks, with bailiffs, head gardeners, and estate agents over them, and a firm of solicitors in command. The man wants a secretary, his wife wants another; they may not want, but they both have a yacht, motors and hotel bills on the Riviera, and at Claridge's while the family house in London is shut up. And once every two or three years comes a bill for structural repairs to one of the country palaces, the total of which would buy a moderately comfortable country house in any cheap part of England. What is to be done? Clearly it is impossible that a great and respectable institution can be thrust out of sight, and can live on, alive but buried, for another century or two, while public attention devotes atself exclusively to tramways and penny steamers for the million, and improving the morals of Shoreditch." Mr. Cooper favors the idea of taking a leaf out of the book of democratic France or America, where the lordly people who are not lords are treated with all consideration. It is not a very hopeful solution, but the hint is worth noting.

DOGS ON THE POLICE FORCE.

Important Auxiliary of the Department in Philadelphia.

The Philadelphia police are using dogs as helpers in their work. They have found that the famous St. Bernard dogs can be easily trained to discover unconscious men in alleyways or doorways or under wagons, who, because of drink are succumbing to the cold and if left uncared for would soon be beyond recov-

Returning to his master the dog spec ily gives the policeman to understand that he is needed, by dragging at his coat until he follows him to the place where the unfortunate man is lying. And not until the latter has been transferred to the ambulance or the patrol wagon will the dog give his attention to other things.
With their marvelously keen scent

these dogs are quick to detect the smell of fire, and therefore it has been easy to teach them to give warning to the police whenever they ferret out the pre-sence of an incipient conflagration. One dog, named Rex, has discovered no less than five fires before a sign of smoke than five lifes before a sign of smake had revealed the danger to the waveliman. Discovered thus early, while still in a smoldering condition, the fire westerably quenched and thousands of dollars worth of property thereby saved. The St. Bernard dogs are also effective in the recovery of tot children.

The dog police auxiliary has net yet been officially recognized in Philadelphia, but it is nevertheless a very effi-cient branch of the service. The demonstration of the ability of the dogs and the interests of public safety may lead in the future to the use of the St. Bernards in other cities and towns as ad uncts to the police force.—The World of How Bridge Began.

The advent of the game of Bridge to London, was on this wise. One afternoon the customary rubber of whist was being played at the Portland Club, which has long been recognized as the headquarters of scientific card games. Among the players was Lord Brougham, who had recently re turned from the south of Europe. When it came his turn to deal he omitted to turn up the last trump card, placing it face. came his turn to deal he omitted to turn up the last trump card, placing it face downward on his own pack, and his opponents claimed a misdeal, in accordance with the laws of the game. He apologized to his partner, saying, "I am very sorry, but I forgot that I was not playing bridge." "Bridge," said the others, "what is bridge?" To which he replied that it was by far the best card game ever invented. After the rubber was over some one suggested that Lord was over some one suggested that Lord Brougham should show them this won-derful game, which he at once proceeded to de, and from that day onward bridge was an established fact at the Portland

Club. From the oPrtland it very soo travelled to the Turf Club, where it met with a still greater welcofe than at the Portland; after this it spread to other clubs, and wherever it was once introduced it was welcomed with open arms as a delightfuul change from the stereo-travel with dear of precise formulae ut typed methods and precise formulae of scientific whist. It was some years before bridge became popular in country houses and before ladies discovered that it was a game eminently suited to their capabilities, but when once the discov-ery was made it spread like wildfire, until at the present day it is played in all societies and by all classes, and it is quite the exception nowadays to find any one who is not a bridge player of some sort.—Saturday Review, London.

SHUEING AN OX.

A handful of North Carolina Farmers tood in a field. They had convened to shoe an ox.

When the big, fat, docile ox was led When the big, fat, docile ox was led before them they took ropes and awkwardly lassoed his fore legs. Then they drew the ropes taut and the ox fell, with a mournful bellow, on his side. They slipped a kind of yoke over his neck, and on either end of the yoke a heavy farmer sat to hold him down. "Taut, now, boys; dead taut!" shouted the smith. The other farmers pulled their ropes The other farmers pulled their ropes tighter and the smith coaxed and pushed the ox till he got him over on his back. It is only a step from spring to summer. By the time people have accommodated themselves to the change from the rigors of winter to the balmy weeks that follow they begin to think of the country, the mountains and the seashore. These ruddy old Norman farmers understand economy to a finesse, he says. It is the secret of their wealth. New Rule as to Half Fare.

(Harper's Weekly.) (Harper's Weekly.)

A novel and somewhat scientific method has recently been devised for the railways of Switzerland, owned by the Government to determine the half-fare limit for children. Instead of an age limit, which has been the custom hitherto, a standard of height is to be employed, and a gauge and scale will be placed at each ticket office, so that the agent can tell at a glance whether the child requires a full fare. It is assumed that this is an equitable method of doing away with considerable imposition on the railroads, while at the same time children of small size who are above the legal age would be correspondingly benefited.

Major Carnegy Killed by a Blow of Its

The Indian mail to hand brings us vivid and pathetic details of the death of Major Carnegy during the Ilon-shoating exploit in the Gir forest district. The major, of course, was the political officer of the viceroy, and the expedition had been arranged by Lord almington on the site of the ilon hunt prepared for Lord Curzon five years ago, but never fulfilled. It is believed there are sixty or seventy lions in the Gir, and the major, having spent the past couple of years in the vicinity, knew the Junagadh better than any one. On march a tracker arrived who had been attacked by a lion while riding into camp, and while he dropped his weapons and escaped, it was only by abandoning his pony and seeing the animal carried off.

The "shoot" was divided into three parties, with the major in the second, and it entered the jungle to a depth of about ten miles. The major and his two friends, Mr. du Boulay and Captain Foljambe, selected a tree each ranging along a nullah, and the two later, fired at a fine lion, wounding him high in the right shoulder. The major also hit a lioness. The natives also fired their old-fashioned guns, and it was thought safe to descend the trees for a consultation and search for the wounded quarry. The Roness appeared and ran for ashikari, but the major fired and dropped her dead. Then there was a pause for drinks and the party commenced to follow the lion's trail down the nullah for a mile or so. Now nad then the me ascended trees to keep a lookout, and at last the party came into a clearance, with waist-high grass instead of trees. Paw.

Suddenly there was a roar and the lion dashed out, making straight for the major, who fired one snot, just grazing the beast. Simultaneously there was a struggling cloud of dust, in which the natives say they saw the lion beat the major down with a blow of his paw. Captain Foljambe fired, Mr. du Boulay ran up and fired point blank at the lion's heart, a native fired into its hind quarters, while others clubbed it with a rifle butt and swords. He must have died instantaneously. The dead body was carried on a charpoy by torchlight and conveyed back to Rajkote by special train, and the shock caused by the news throughout the Junagadah district was intensely felt.

It is added that the lion measured eleven feet from tip to tail. The others shot were two lions rather less, and a lioness (the major's) of nine feet.—Pall Mall Gazette.

ACTS AS HOTEL INTRODUCER.

Many a bright young woman is spend ing the summer at seaside and mountain ing the summer at seaside and mountain resorts and making money there. She is the summer hotei introducr. It is no new occupation, but more women than ever are holding such places this season simply because there are more places open to them. New hotels are being built all the time, and the men who put their money in them don't leave anything undone to make their places as popular as possible. opular as possible.
That is where a clever, bright woman makes herself generally useful. If she is an agreeable person—and she must be if she wants to be successful—there are great possibilities in her place. She watches for new arrivals and tries to make them comfortable.

Her first duty is to introduce them to the other boarders. That is her chief duty. Every one who goes to a summe hotel knows that the first few days af hotel knows that the first few days after arrival are not very pleasant unless you know someone there. A man manages to worry along, but a woman is likely to be lonesome until someone formally introduces her.

Once the ice is broken things go along smoothly. When there are no newcomers to make comfortable, the girl introducer can find plenty to do. She can suggest games to pass away the time, on the piazza, and she can get up trips to interesting points. She acts as a sort of guide to the hotel. If she can play the piano or sing she makes herself more valuable. valuable.

Such a young woman greatly increases the popularity of a summer hotel, and has her own vacation for nothing. When the season ends she comes back to town, and may possibly have a little bank account to show for her summer occupa-

Why Women Are Pretty.

According to an English specialist who has made a careful study of the subject the reason why women are better looking than men is because they are more ndolent and are not called upon to us their brains as much as men arc. Hard intellectual work and assiduous attention to business, he says, are harmful so far to business, he says, are narmful so far as physical beauty is concerned.

As proof that his theory is correct he points to the Zaros, whose home is in British India. Among them women hold the place which in other countries is occupied by men. The Zaro woman manages the affairs of state, goes into business on her own secount and does not ness on her own account and does not wait for a proposal of marriage, but pro-poses herself; whereas the Zaro man has nothing to do but cook the meals and look after his children. The natural result, says the scientist, is that the men of this singular tribe are very pretty and the women are unusually plain.

Corruption in American Cities.

(New Orleans ricayune.) (New Orleans racayune.)

The political corruption of cities in the United States is the most striking feature of the American system of Government. The greatest numbers of voters in our cities are respectable citizens, highly esteemed and believed to be upright and honest in every way, and yet too often the men who are elected to office are tricksters, jobbers and wholly corrupt; nevertheless, they are elected by these same worthy citizens, either by votes cast outright by them or by failing to vote, and thereby silently consenting to such election.

He considers it possible that news to the effect that the two fleets have met may be received any day. Admiral Avellan reaffims the official denial of the reports that Rojestvensky has broken down and asked to be relieved. Avellan says Rojestvensky sent detailed reports of the condition of his own health and of the health of the crews of his ships. The constant tension and hard work of the past months bave been a great strain on the Admiral's health.

the Great Lakes was suggested years ago, and a plan was devised for the dredging of a channel 1,000 feet or more wide. This was abandoned, as more wide. This was abandoned, as it was shown that in case of big storms, ships would be blown out of the channel into shallow water. It was then suggested that the Niagara be dammed, thereby raising the water of the lakes to any height desired. This met with general favor until it was discovered that if the waters were raised to any great extent hundreds of square miles of Canadian land would be submerged. Diplomatic negotiations were then entered into and the present International Deep Waterways Commission was the result. The American members of the commission are Gen. Oswald H. Ernets. Mystery of Paul Iones

A curious bit of history concerning Paul Jones is brought to light by a correspondent apropos to General Horace Porter's recont discovery in Paris of the old admiral's body. When Paul Jones died in Paris, in 1792, says the correspondent, Jones' mother was still living in her native village of Kirkbean, near Dumfries, Scotland, and about a year later, at her request and expense his best living in the part of the Two friends who were with Jeffries in the yacht clung to the side, but Jeffries was carried out into the lake and drowned before help could be given him. Doats were sent to the assistance of the others, and they were saved.

Dumfries, Scotland, and about a year later, at her request and expense, his body was thipped there, buried in the kirkyard, and his grave marked by a simple slab carved which is real name—John Paul. Who was deceived, wonders the correspondent—"the mother receiving the body of her son a few months after his death or the patriotic searcher of 100 years later?"
