SELECT STORY.

When a Man's Single
BY JAMES M. BARRIE.

CHAPTER VI.—Continued.

Having loved his face, he opened his box and produced from it two neckties, which he looked at for a long time before he could make up his mind which to wear. Then he changed his boots. When he had brushed his hat he remembered with anxiety some one on the "Mirror" having asked him why he wore it so far back on his head. He tilted it forward, and carefully examined the effect in the looking-glass. Then, forgetting that the sounds from the kitchen betokened the approach of breakfast, he hurried out of the house.

It was a frosty morning, and already the streets were alive; but Rob looked at no one. For women in the abstract he now felt an unaccountable pity, because they were all so very unlike Mary Abinger. He had grown so much in the night that the Rob Angus of the day before seemed but an acquaintance of his youth.

He was inside the grounds of Dome Castle again before he realized that he had no longer a right to be there. By fits and starts he remembered not to soil his boots. He might have been stopped at the lodge, but at present it had no tenant. A year before, Colonel Abinger had realized that he could not keep both a horse and a lodge-keeper, and that he would keep neither if his daughter did not part with her maid. He yielded to Miss Abinger's entreaties, and kept the horse.

Rob went on at a swinging pace till he turned an abrupt corner of the walk and saw Dome Castle standing before him. Then he started, and turned back hastily. This was not owing to his remembering that he was trespassing, but because he had seen a young lady coming down the steps. Rob had walked five miles without his breakfast to talk with Miss Abinger, and as soon as he saw her he fled.

When he came to himself he was so fearful of her seeing him that he hurried behind a tree, where he had the appearance of a burglar.

Mary Abinger came quickly up the avenue, unconscious that she was watched, and Rob discovered in a moment that after all the prettiest thing about her was the way she walked. She carried a little basket in her hand, and her dress was a blending of brown and yellow, with a great deal of fur about the throat. Rob, however, did not take the dress into account until she had passed him, when, no longer able to see her face, he gazed with delight after her.

Had Rob been a lady he would probably have come to the conclusion that the reason why Miss Abinger wore all that for instead of a jacket was because she knew it became her better. Perhaps it was. Even though a young lady has the satisfaction of feeling that her heart is now adamant, that is no excuse for her dressing badly. Rob's opinion was that it would matter very little what she wore, because some pictures look lovely in any frame; but that was a point on which he and Miss Abinger always differed. Only after long consideration had she come to the conclusion that the hat she was now wearing was undoubtedly the shape that suited her best, and even yet she was ready to spend time in thinking about other shapes. What would have seemed even more surprising to Rob was that she had made up her mind that one side of her face was better than the other side.

No mere man, however, could ever have told which was the better side of Miss Abinger's face. It was a face to stir the conscience of a good man, and make unworthy men keep their distance, for it spoke first of purity, which can never be present anywhere without being felt. All men are born with a craving to find it, and they never look for it but among women. The strength of the craving is the measure of a man's capacity to love, and without it love on his side would be impossible.

Mary Abinger was fragile because she was so sensitive. She carried everywhere a fear to hurt the feelings of others that was a bodkin at her heart. Men and women in general prefer to give and take. The keenness with which she felt necessitated the garment of reserve, which those who did not need it for themselves considered pride. Her weakness called for something to wrap it up. There were times when it pleased her to know that the disguise was effective, but not when it deceived persons she admired. The cynicism of "The Scorn of Scorns" was as much a cloak as her coldness, for she had an exquisite love of what is good and fine in life that idealized into heroes persons she knew or heard of as having a virtue. It would have been cruel to her to say that there are no heroes. When she found how little of the heroic there was in Sir Clement Downton she told herself that there are none, and sometimes other persons had made her repeat this saying. She seldom reasoned about things, however, unless her feelings had been wounded, and soon again she was dreaming of the heroic. Heroes are people to love, and Mary's idea of what love must be would have frightened some persons, for loving her. With most men affection for a woman is fed on her regard for them. Greatness in love is no more common than greatness in leading armies. Only the hundredth man does not prefer to dally where woman is easier to win; most finding the maids of honor a satisfactory substitute for the princess. So the boy in the street prefers two poor apples to a sound one. It may be the secret of England's greatness.

On this Christmas-day Mary Abinger came up the walk rapidly, scolding herself for ever having admired Sir Clement Downton. She did everything in the superlative degree, and so rather wondered that a thunder-bolt was not sent direct from above to kill him—as if there were thunder-bolts for every one. If we got our deserts, most of us would be knocked on the head with a broomstick.

When she was out of sight Rob's courage returned, and he remembered that he was there in the hope of speaking to her. He hurried up the walk after her, but when he neared her he fell back in alarm. His heart was beating violently. He asked himself in a quaver what it was that he had arranged to say first.

In her little basket Mary had Christmas presents for a few people, inhabitants of a knot of houses not far distant from the castle gates. They were her father's tenants, and he rather enjoyed their being unable to pay much rent, it made them so dependent. Had Rob seen how she was received in some of these cottages, how she sat talking merrily with one bedridden old woman whom cheerfulness kept alive, and not gave a disabled veteran a packet of tobacco, but filled his pipe for him, so that he gallantly said he was reluctant to smoke it (trust an old man for gallantry), and even ate pieces of strange cakes to please her hostesses, he would often have thought of it afterwards. However, it would have been unnecessary prodigality to show him that, for his mind was filled with the incomparable manner in which she knocked at doors and smiled when she came out. Once she dropped her basket, and he could remember nothing so exquisite as her way of picking it up.

No other medicine in the world has ever offered such undoubted proof of merit. WHAT Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for others they will do for you, if given a fair trial.

From the Montreal, Ont. Monitor.
About two years ago the Monitor procured an interview with Mr. Peitch, of Peitch, in order to ascertain from his own lips if the reports were well founded that he attributed his most astonishing return to health to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. The result of the interview was published in the Monitor under the date of January 17th, 1896. Mr. Peitch's case was certainly one of the most extraordinary in the annals of medicine in Canada—most in the world. He had been ill for five years and in that time he consulted no less than six of the best physicians he could find, but none could give him the least relief. His limbs and body were puffed and bloated to such an extent that he could not get his clothes on, and for two years he had not dressed. He had lost the use of his limbs entirely. His flesh seemed to be dead, and pins could be stuck into various parts of his body without being felt or causing the slightest sensation. He could not move about and if he attempted to get up would fall and have to be lifted up. He was unable to open his mouth sufficiently to take a solid food, and had to be fed with a spoon like a child. The doctors said his trouble was spinal sclerosis, and that he could not possibly get better. He was in a wretched condition, and he was a member of the Canadian Mutual Life Association, and was under their rules entitled to disability insurance and made a claim for it. Two doctors, on behalf of the association, were sent to examine him, and they pronounced him incurable and permanently disabled and in accordance with their report he was paid a disability insurance of $1,650.00. This was about two years after his sickness began. For three years more he lingered in the condition above noted, utterly helpless, and a burden to himself and friends. He was then advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He had no hope that they would help him, but in his mind anything that afforded the prospect of even a slight relief. The first change noted in his condition after he began the use of the pills was a disposition to sweat freely. Then life began to return to his withered dead body, and from that time his progress towards recovery and activity was steady and certain. The publication of the interview, containing the facts above noted, created natural interest, not only in this section, but throughout Canada. That a man, whose limbs and body were all but dead, who had been examined by medical experts, and pronounced incurable and on a large disability claim, should afterwards be cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, was looked upon as a marvel. Many were skeptical; not so to the cure—for the fact that he was actively going about proved that—but they did not believe it until they had seen the case. In view of the doubts then expressed, the Monitor determined to watch the case closely, and first published, has again interviewed Mr. Peitch, with the result that we are in a position to say most emphatically that this remarkable cure has proved permanent. On being again questioned Mr. Peitch said: "You see those hands—the skin is now natural and elastic. Once they were hard and without sensation. You could pierce them with a pin and I would not feel it, and what is true of my hands is true of the rest of my body. Perhaps you have observed that I have now even ceased to use a cane, and can get about my business perfectly well. You may say there is absolutely no doubt as to my cure being permanent. Indeed I am in even better health than when I gave you the first interview." "Do you attribute your cure to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills?" asked the Monitor. "Unquestionably I do," was the reply. "Doctors had failed, as had also the numerous remedies recommended by my friends. Nothing I took had the slightest effect upon me until I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. To this wonderful medicine I owe my release from a living death. I have since recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to many of my friends, and the verdict is in their favor. I shall always bless the day I was induced to take them." The above are the chief statements made by Mr. Peitch in this latest interview, and the Monitor may remark, from a long acquaintance with him, that we consider his statements absolutely true and reliable. He has no interest to serve other than a desire to recommend the medicine that has done so much for him, and we feel sure that if any sufferer will write Mr. Peitch, enclosing a stamp for reply, he will endorse all the statements made above. Mr. Peitch's remarkable recovery leaves no doubt of the wonderful curative powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and it seems reasonable to infer that they will do for others what they have done for him—restore health and vitality. The check at the head of this article is a fac simile of the one by which Mr. Peitch's disability claim was paid and is given in further corroboration of his statements.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., DEC. 3, 1897.

Editorial Notes.

The Ontario legislature was opened on Tuesday in the presence of Lord and Lady Aberdeen.

A correspondent writing to the Truro News refers to Wolfville as the "fairest village of Evangeline's Valley."

The Presbyterian body of the United States are undertaking to raise a fund of $20,000,000 to endow a University at Denver, Colorado, on the same lines as Harvard, Yale and the University of Chicago.

The provincial conservative party of Manitoba drew the first blood under the leadership of Hugh John Macdonald on the 25th, when they captured the constituency of Turtle Mountain from Greenway.

Writs have been issued which fix the date of the bye-election in Nicolet as Dec. 21st. The constituency was carried at the federal election by Mr. Bolvert (Conservative) whose death has caused the vacancy.

We want to add a hundred names to our list of subscribers before the first of the new year. Will not our friends help us by showing the paper to their friends and asking them to subscribe now and get the paper until the end of 1898.

The injustice to which a newspaper is sometimes subjected was brought prominently to our minds this week, when we ascertained that a subscriber who has not paid for his paper for over ten years kindly gives the reading of the paper weekly to four of his neighbors.

In a recent speech in Birmingham devoted to international politics, Mr. Chamberlain announced that the Imperial Government intended to devote the greater part of the coming parliamentary session to the discussion and perfection of a measure granting local government to Ireland.

In a speech at Stratroy the Hon. Ed. Blake intimated a desire to return to Canadian politics. His utterance has aroused much excitement in Ireland, where he is accused of deserting the sinking ship. It is scarcely likely however that he intends immediate abandonment of the Irish cause.

Annapolis common council has decided to make some important improvements in that town. Among other changes will be a complete sewerage system. An expert from Boston, Mr. Hodgson, has been engaged to make a survey. It is said that the system can be put in for the sum of $20,000. An electric plant by which the town can run its own lighting was also recommended at a cost of $12,000.

The town of Parrboro is bound to go to the front. At a meeting of the ratepayers on Monday evening it was resolved to apply to the legislature at the next session for power to issue debentures for $21,500 on the credit of the town. Eight thousand of this amount is to pay off the school bonds, $1,500 to finish the new school house now nearly completed, $8,000 to put in and equip an electric light plant, and $4,000 to build and thoroughly fit up an engine house for the fire company.

The bye-election in Toronto Centre on Tuesday for the purpose of filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Lounsbury, resulted in the return of the liberal candidate by a majority of 278. Though it was first thought that the candidature of Mr. Bertram, who is one of the most influential manufacturers in Ontario, would not be opposed, the conservatives a few days before the election nominated Mr. Howland and a most exciting contest followed. Mr. Bertram believes in a permanent protective tariff and in preferential trade with Great Britain.

A Library in Itself.

Few people are able to buy as many books as they would like, yet it is possible without them to keep in touch with all the leaders of literature, as well as to follow the world's progress in every department of science and industry. The Youth's Companion already provides the means for more than half a million households—at an expense to each of $1.75 a year. Every issue of the Companion gives as much reading matter as a 12mo book of 175 pages, and the Companion comes every week. The quality of its contents is shown by the announcement for 1898, which promises contributions next year from the Hon. Speaker Reed, Rudyard Kipling, W. E. Gladstone, Capt. A. T. Mahan, Mary E. Wilkins, W. D. Howells, Lieutenant Peary, the Marquis of Dufferin, Senator Hoar, Justin McCarthy and more than two hundred other eminent men and women.

All new subscribers for 1898 will receive the Companion's gold-embossed calendar, beautifully printed in twelve colors, and the paper will also be sent free from the time the subscription is received until January, 1898, and then for a full year until January, 1899. A handsome illustrated prospectus of the volume for 1898 will be sent to any one addressing The Youth's Companion, 295 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass.

Is there any wonder that there is such a rush for the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal? To look at any single issue of that famous paper tells the whole story of its wondrous success. Every page, every column of the whole one hundred and twenty-eight of them, is brimful of matter of intense interest. Well may all Canada take pride in the success of such a paper as the Family Herald and Weekly Star.

The Intercollegiate Y. M. C. A.

The eighth intercollegiate Y. M. C. A. convention of the maritime provinces, which was in session here last week, was a most successful gathering. The first meeting was held in College Hall on Thursday evening. Mr. I. A. Corbett, president of the Acadia Y. M. C. A., and Dr. Trotter, president of the University, welcomed the delegates. Fraser G. Marshall brought greetings from the maritime committee, and D. H. Davy from the international committee. After the welcome, B. J. Poole, of Mt. Allison; H. G. McNaughton, of the University of New Brunswick; and H. B. Read, of Dalhousie, replied for their respective colleges. The following delegates were present: From the U. of N. B., H. G. McNaughton, S. L. Doye, T. M. Baldwin, W. H. Clawson, W. C. Keirstead; from Dalhousie, H. B. Read, W. A. Ross, J. G. Colquhoun, W. C. Messenger, W. McQueen, F. Vance, G. E. Forbes, A. J. H. Anderson, J. A. Ferguson, J. A. Morrison Kennedy; from Mount Allison, B. J. Poole, H. C. Clegg, S. J. Young, L. M. Curran; also D. A. Davy, secretary of the international committee, and F. G. Marshall, secretary of the maritime committee.

Friday morning's session was presided by a brief but spirited devotional exercise, led by B. J. Poole, after which the convention proceeded to devote a few moments to the transaction of the necessary business. After the appointment of certain committees the programme was taken up and the first paper was read by Stanley J. Young, of Mount Allison, on the subject: "Importance of Intercollegiate Fellowship." This paper proved very helpful and was brim full of valuable points. D. A. Davy was then called on to give an address on "Points to be emphasized this year in the Missionary Department of the Association." The speaker said: Prayer is what is needed, but not only prayer for missions. We need to work. You cannot divorce prayer from work. The two must go together. Again, study along missionary lines is needed. In order to conduct missionary meetings successfully we need time, brains, pains and prayer. Mr. Davy strongly urged the different colleges to send at least one delegate each to the missionary convention to be held in Cleveland, Ohio, from February 23rd to 25th, 1898. Following Mr. Davy's address a paper was read by H. C. Clegg, of Mount Allison, and his subject was "The Relation of the College to the Evangelization of the World." He spoke first of the need of evangelization and secondly of the influential positions held by college men and the great good resulting from their efforts in the evangelization of the world. After a discussion of this very excellent paper Rev. P. M. Macdonald gave a stirring address on missions. The speaker said: We were the most Christian when we were the most missionary. What we need is more of the spirit of Paul, who considered himself a debtor to the whole world. We are debtors, first, because we have what the world has not; second, because we have received from what is now the heathen world our Christianity. He said that there were three things for us to do in the light of this, viz: to give money, pure lives and prayer. We are responsible because the sins of the so-called Christian world are being carried to heathen lands, and on account of this Christ's name is dishonored. It is our duty to give money and send the men and pray in order that the people may get a correct idea of what Christianity really is. Many other points were emphasized in his address relative to missionary work, and all felt a keener interest in the work after his earnest words.

Friday afternoon's session was presided by a short social service led by H. B. Read, after which the following programme was taken up: George K. McNaughton, of U. N. B., presented a paper on personal work. The speaker said that it would not come to them, Christ, we must take Christ to them. There is no better time for personal work than when men are at college. The Christian is about the only Bible the majority of people read anyway, and for this reason we must be thoroughly converted, before we can convert others. This paper evoked a lively discussion, as it was one of vital importance to college men. Fraser G. Marshall then laid the claims of the association before the convention and by his earnest words did not fail to create a deeper interest in the work of the association in these provinces. Friday evening's session opened with I. A. Corbett as chairman. Rev. Dr. Trotter then gave an analysis of the book of Acts. The concise way in which he dealt with this analysis called forth much admiration and proved very beneficial to all present. Then followed a very practical and soul-stirring address on the subject, "The Relation of the Holy Spirit to the Settlement of the Peculiar Problems of College Life," by Rev. J. H. McDonald. On Saturday morning a short devotional service was held, led by H. G. McNaughton, after which papers were given by W. H. Selgwick on "The Importance of Bible Study to the Life of the Association"; W. A. Ross, on "How to Study the Bible"; P. M. Gordon, on "The Christian in Athletics"; and Prof. E. W. Sawyer on "Temptation as Related to the Christian Life." All these papers were of profound interest and elicited a large amount of helpful discussion. Saturday evening's session opened by a song service. Then an analysis of the book of Jonah was given by Dr. A. W.

Sawyer. After speaking of the different ways in which the book could be analyzed, he showed that there was a continual thread of thought running through it. It is didactic missionary. It is the great missionary book of the Old Testament. The grand truth shown is that God hates sin, but that he loves the sinner. God hates sin everywhere, but God is merciful toward all men. The lesson of Jonah is the lesson for us all. Go preach my Gospel, is the command given to the church in half-hearted and disobedient, it will be banished and punished as Jonah was.

After the analysis, Rev. G. J. Bond, of Halifax, was introduced by the president of the Convention and made an excellent address which will long be remembered by those who were so fortunate as to be present. On Sunday the closing services of the convention were held. At 9 o'clock, when the students gathered together in the old chapel at Acadia, it seemed as if the sun of righteousness was shining into the hearts of all, dispelling the clouds of darkness and sin, and giving new glimpses of Jesus Christ. The leader of the service, D. A. Davy, read the first chapter of James, and took for his subject "Consecration. Many earnest prayers were offered, thanking God for his blessing upon the Convention and asking Him for the continuance of his favor, not only in the services of the day, but also that as the students dispersed to their different colleges the inspiration received at this Convention might go with them, making them greater powers for good than ever before.

At 11 o'clock the members of the Acadia Y. M. C. A. and the delegates marched into the Baptist church and occupied seats reserved for them at the front. Rev. G. J. Bond read the Scriptures and offered prayer. Rev. E. M. Keirstead, D. D., preached a sermon of rare eloquence and power from John 17, 8th and 18th verses. It was specially adapted to the varied needs of the Christian students. A divine message and a divine mission were emphasized, divine will in origin, but in communication. This divine message does not come to us by induction, but direct from God, the Eternal One. It is unfolded freely to the life of the world and is to be given to others. As to the divine mission, it is not necessary that we surrender ourselves to Jesus Christ; then it is our duty to give ourselves to our fellow-men.

In the afternoon a mass meeting was held, and the leader, Fraser G. Marshall, gave a very inspiring and helpful address from John 12-32, on the power of Christ. Afterwards the meeting was thrown open for all, and many earnest testimonies were given to the contrasting and drawing power of Christ in individual lives. In the evening a farewell service was held in the Baptist church. D. A. Davy, the principal speaker of the evening took for his subject "The Crowning Work of the Association," which he showed to be the bringing of the students to Christ. How are we to do it? The answer is: By personal work. There are three reasons why personal work should be done. 1, Because the Master demands it; 2, Because Christ has given the example; 3, Because of the great results that follow. The kind of men needed are those with large hearts, clean lives, Bible men, praying men and men baptized with the Holy Spirit. The speaker urged the necessity of pure lives in order to be successful personal workers.

The service throughout was very impressive. Miss Burgess, president of the Y. M. C. A. of Acadia, briefly related the work of that organization, and showed that it had gained much prominence during the three years of its existence. At the close of the service all Y. M. C. A. men, with hands joined, formed a circle around the church and sang the association hymn, "Blest be the Tie that Binds."

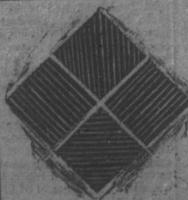

Among the different branches of Y. M. C. A. work the college movement is by no means the least. Over eleven years ago the Maritime Intercollegiate convention was organized at Acadia. Since that time it has been held once at U. N. B., twice at Mt. Allison, twice at Dalhousie and three times at Acadia. The statistics gathered from the different associations show a marked advance in all the departments of the work. It has been shown quite conclusively that the convention is a great source of profit and power in the development of the religious life in the different colleges.

The key note of the convention was prayer, and all who attended could not help but realize that power in the meetings and in their own lives. The convention meets next year with the Y. M. C. A. of the University of New Brunswick.

Great Music Offer.

Acadia Seminary Entertainments.

The first recital by the students of Acadia Seminary will be given in Alameda Hall, Friday evening, December 3d, at 7.45. The Seminary offers for the school year a course of four recitals, three to be given by the pupils, one, by the teachers. Great care is being taken to make these entertainments of high order with regard to both literary and musical work. A course ticket may be procured from the principal of the Seminary. This ticket, admitting to each recital, is marked at 50 cents. Tickets for several evenings will be sold as follows: Teachers' recital, 25 cents; pupils' recitals, 15 cents each. The patronage of the friends of the Seminary is earnestly solicited. The receipts from the recitals are expended for the library or for much needed apparatus in the class rooms. A present, an effort is being made to increase the number of the school library. Funds are gratefully needed. Will not the public aid in promoting a work so important and so far reaching in influence?

Bargains for Newspaper Readers.

We present to readers of the ACADIAN an opportunity to secure that great world's paper, The Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, with its superb premium picture, at a considerable reduction. We do this to enable our own subscribers to have a considerable money saving. The Family Herald and Weekly Star needs no description. It is known throughout the world. It circulates widely in every part of the British Empire and Australasia. The Family Herald and Weekly Star is an enormous value for the subscription price of one dollar. The Family Herald is not in competition with the ACADIAN but goes with it as the great universal paper, read by the ACADIAN in every part of the continent. There goes with the Family Herald this autumn to all yearly subscribers, a beautiful premium picture, entitled "The Fall from the Nest," pronounced by all the known judges as a magnificent picture, a picture that tells a touching story. Readers of the ACADIAN $1.75 and will receive The Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, and the ACADIAN. This offer is limited as to time, and cannot be together with the premium, accepted after the offer is withdrawn. Address: Publishers The ACADIAN.

A fairly large audience spent a very enjoyable evening at the recital given by the teachers of Acadia Seminary in Odd-fellow Hall, on Wednesday evening. Mrs Wallace's violin music as usual was warmly applauded and her third number was encored. Miss Hall displayed most skill in the selection, "The Scholar of the Empire"; although the Scholer of the Empire, when their reminiscences are "When Father Carves the Duck" seemed to greatly please the audience. What Miss Barker lacked in strength she made up in ease of stage and in her voice. The correct and judicious playing of Miss O'Key, accompanist, added greatly to the pleasure of the programme. One is yourself, the other is your money. Now in the Overcoats we are showing there are three things—the third being that indefinable something that distinguishes them from the common herds of Overcoats.

YOU, YOURSELF

Have admired some coats more than others. Those you did admire had a certain snap about them—they were swell, swaggy, smart, there was dash and crispness in their make up.

Such a Coat not only distinguishes itself, but also the man who wears it.

Such is the kind you want and the kind we want to show you.

Minards Liniment the Lumberman's Friend. When a woman is particularly pleasant to a man he never knows whether it is because she likes him or does it to torment some man she likes better.

Junior Partner—Why do you wish to pay the new typewriter so much more than we have? The other one I shall half as much.

Senior Partner—But if you have eyes you can surely see that she's a blighted sight prettier!

Keep Minards Liniment in the House. The following rather ambiguous advertisement appeared in the "Personal" column of a weekly newspaper.

To test the purity of water, there has been found no better or simpler way than to fill a clean bottle three-fourths full of water to be tested, and dissolve in the water half a teaspoonful of the purest sugar-loaf or granulated, well covered cork the bottle and place it in a warm position for two days.

Customer—That was splendid indeed powder you sold me the other day, Mr. Oilman. Mr. Oilman (with justifiable pride)—Yes, I think it's pretty good—the best in the trade.

A surgeon who is often absent-minded was dining at the house of a friend. "Doctor," said the lady of the house, "as you are so clever with the knife, will you cut my hair?"

These well known gentlemen all used that they were cured by MINARDS LINIMENT.

THE KANSAS CITY PRESBYTERY recently held its regular fall session at Raymore, Missouri, and unanimously adopted the following:

Resolved, That the Kansas City Presbytery views with alarm the rapid, and yet natural declension of those in authority at Princeton University, in the manner of their attitude upon the liquor question, as evidenced by the fact that shortly after using wine and intoxicating liquors at their banquet it was found that some of those in high positions connected with such institution of learning, are sponsors for the legalizing of the sale of intoxicating liquors to the student and public in general.

"That while it is not our province to censure anyone, yet we do declare it to be altogether inconsistent for any one, professing the name of Christ, to in any manner whatever countenance, aid or encourage the traffic in intoxicating liquors, and we would especially emphasize the fact and truth promulgated by our General Assembly, that every position, whether in private life, in the home circle, in the political arena or wherever a Christian may be placed, the only consistent attitude for him to assume is one of open hostility to that traffic.

An Irishman, on being asked which one of the crowd he thought the devil would take first, if he should happen among them, promptly replied: "Me, sir."

"And why do you think he would take you, Pat?" "Because he's shure of the rest of ye, sir."

Several doctors treated me, and I was a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital, Hamilton. I obtained no relief from medical treatment. The doctors said unless I had the ovary taken away I could not be cured.

I used Windsor Salt, and I am thankful your valuable medicine cured me. I feel like a new woman, and I would like all sufferers to know just what this great medicine has done for me.
