CHAPTER XVI.

Perplexity.

'On the contrary,' he replied, 'I should be sorry to leave America just yet. I have, therefore, decided to remain a little longer,' and his eyes sought the face of Maggie, who, in her joyful surprise, dropped the knife with which she was helping herself to butter, while Anna, Jeffrey, quite as much astonished, upset her coffee, exclaiming: 'Not going home! What has changed your mind?'

Mr. Carrollton made her no direct reply, and she continued her breakfast in no very amiable mood; while Maggie, too much overjoyed to eat, managed, ere long, to find an excuse for leaving the table. Mr. Carrollton wished to do everything honourably, and so he decided to say nothing to Mag of the cause of this sudden change in his plan until Henry Warner's answer was received, as she should then feel free to act as she felt. His resolution, however, was more easily made than kept, and during the succeeding weeks, by actions, if not by words, he more than once told Maggie Miller how much she was beloved; and Maggie, trembling with fear lest the cup of happiness just within her grasp should be rudely dashed aside, waited impatiently for the letter which was to set her free. But weeks went by, and Maggie's heart grew sick with hope deferred, for there came to her no message from the distant Cuban shore where, in another chapter, we will for a moment go.

CHAPTER XVIII.
BROTHER AND SISTER.

Brightly shone the moonlight on the sunny side of Cuba, dancing lightly on the wave, resting softly on the orange groves, and stealing gently through the casement into the room where a young girl lay, whiter far than the flowers strewn upon her pillow. From the commencement of the voyage, Rose had drooped, growing weaker every day, until at last all who looked upon her felt that the home of which she talked so much would never again be gladdened by her presence. Very tenderly Henry Warner nursed her, bearing her often in his arms upon the vessel's deck, where she could breathe the fresh morning air as it came rippling o'er the sea. But neither ocean breeze nor yet the fragrant breath of Florida's aromatic bowers, where for a time they stopped, had power to rouse her; and when at last Havana was reached, she laid her weary head upon her pillow, whispering to no one of the love which was wearing her life away. With untold anguish at their hearts, both her aunt and Henry watched her; the latter shrinking ever from the thoughts of losing one who seemed a part of his very life.

SICK DAUGHTER NOW WELL

Mrs. C. Cole Tells How Her Daughter was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Fitchville, Ohio. "I take great pleasure in writing to thank you for what your medicine has done for my daughter. Before taking your medicine she was all run down, suffered from pains in her side, could not walk but a short distance at a time, and had severe pains in head and limbs. She came very near having nervous prostration. She had begun to cough a good deal and seemed melancholy by spells. She tried two doctors but got little help. "I cannot find words to express my gratefulness for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for my daughter. She feels and looks like another girl since taking it, and I shall always feel that I owe you a great debt. "You can use this letter for the benefit of others if you wish, as I shall always recommend your medicines for female troubles."—Mrs. C. COLE, Fitchville, Ohio.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Young Girls, Heed This Advice.
Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should immediately seek restoration to health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

H.P. SAUCE
At Lunch Time make a point of trying H.P. Sauce, you will be delighted with the new and delicious flavour, quite different from ordinary sauces.

"I cannot give you up, Rose. I cannot live without you," he said, when once she talked to him of death. "You are all the world to me," and laying his head upon her pillow he wept as men will sometimes weep over their first great sorrow.

"Don't, Henry," she said, laying her tiny hand upon his hair: "Maggie will comfort you when I am gone. She will talk to you of me, standing at my grave, for, Henry, you must not leave me here alone. You must carry me home and bury me in dear old Leominster, where my childhood was passed, and where I learned to love you so much, oh, so much!"

There was a mournful pathos in the tone with which the last words were uttered, but Henry Warner did not understand it, and covering the little, blue-veined hand with kisses, he promised that her grave should be made at the foot of the garden in their far-off home, where the sunset light fell softly, and the moonbeams gently shone. That evening Henry sat alone by Rose, who had fallen into a disturbed slumber. For a time he took no notice of the disconnected words she uttered in her dreams, but drew near, and bending low, listened with mingled emotions of joy, sorrow and surprise to a secret which, waking, she would never have told to him, above all others. She loved him—not as a sister loves, and now, as he stood by her, with the knowledge thrilling every nerve, he remembered many long scenes, where, but for his blindness, he would have seen how every pulsation of her heart throbbled alone for him whose hand was plighted to another, and that other no unworthy rival. Beautiful, very beautiful, was the shadowy form which, at that moment, seemed standing at his side, and his heart went out toward her as the one above all others to be his bride.

"Had I known it sooner," he thought, "known it before I met the peerless Mag, I might have taken Rose to my bosom and loved her, it may be, with a deeper love than that I feel for Maggie Miller, for Rose is everything to me. She has made and keeps me what I am, and how can I let her die, when I have the power to save her?"

There was a movement upon the pillow. Rose was waking, and as her soft blue eyes unclosed and looked up in his face he wound his arms round her, kissing her lips, as never before he had kissed her. She was not his sister now—the veil was torn away—a new feeling had been awakened, and as days and weeks went by there gradually crept in between him and Maggie Miller a new love—even a love for the fair-haired Rose, to whom he was kinder, if possible, than he had been before, though he seldom kissed her lips or caressed her in any way.

"It would be wrong," he said, "a wrong to himself—a wrong to her—and a wrong to Maggie Miller, to whom his troth was plighted," and he did not wish it otherwise, he thought; though insensibly there came over him a wish that Maggie herself might weary of the engagement and seek to break it. "Not that he loved her the less," he reasoned, "but that he pitied Rose the more."

In this manner time passed on, until at last there came to him Maggie's letter, which had been a long time on the sea.

"I expected it," he thought, as he finished reading it, and though conscious for a moment of a feeling of disappointment, the letter brought him far more pleasure than pain.

Of Arthur Carrollton no mention had been made, but he readily guessed the truth; and, thinking 'it is well,' he laid the letter aside and went back to Rose, deciding to say nothing to her then. He would wait until his own feelings were more perfectly defined. So a week went by, and again, as he had often done before, he sat with her alone in the still night, watched her as she slept, and thinking how beautiful she was, with her golden hair shading her childish face, her long eyelashes resting on her cheek, and her little hands folded meekly upon her bosom.

"She is too beautiful to die," he murmured, pressing a kiss upon her lips. This act awoke her, and, turning towards him, she said: "Was I dreaming, Henry, or did you kiss me as you used to do?"

"Not dreaming, Rose," he answered; then, rather hurriedly, he added: "I have a letter from Maggie Miller, and ere I answer it I would read it to you. Can you hear it now?"

"Yes, yes," she whispered faintly, "read it to me, Henry;" and, turning her face away, she listened, while he read that Maggie Miller, grown weary of her troth, asked a release from her engagement.

He finished reading, and then waited in silence to hear what Rose would say. But for a time she did not speak. All hope for herself had long since died away, and now she experienced only sorrow for Henry's disappointment.

"My poor brother," she said, at last, turning her face toward him and taking his hand in hers, "I am sorry for you—to lose us both, Maggie and me. What will you do?"

"Rose," he said, bending so low that his brown locks mingled with the yellow tresses of her hair, "Rose, I do not regret Maggie Miller's decision, neither do I blame her for it. She is a noble, true-hearted girl, and so long as I live I shall esteem her highly; but I, too, have changed—have learned to love another. Will you sanction this new love, dear Rose? Will you say that it is right?"

The white lids closed wearily over the eyes of blue, but they could not keep back the tears which rolled down her face, as she answered, somewhat sadly: "Who is it, Henry?"

There was another moment of silence, and then he whispered in her ear: "People call her Rose; I once called her sister; but my heart now, claims her for something nearer. My Rose," he continued, "shall it be? Will you live for my sake? Will you be my wife?"

The shock was too sudden—too great, and neither on that night, nor yet the succeeding day, had Rose the power to answer. But as the dew of heaven is to the parched and dying flower, so were these words of love to her, imparting at once new life and strength, making her, as it were, another creature. The question asked that night so unexpectedly was answered at last; and then, with almost perfect happiness at her heart, she, too, added a few lines to the letter which Henry sent to Maggie Miller, over whose pathway, hitherto so bright, a fearful shadow was falling.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Peddler.

It was a rainy April day—a day which precluded all outdoor exercise, and Hagar Warren, from the window of her cabin, watched in vain for the coming of Maggie Miller. It was now more than a week since she had been there, for both Arthur Carrollton and herself had accompanied the disappointed Anna Jeffrey to New York, going with her on board the vessel which was to take her from a country she so affected to dislike. "I dare say you'll be Maggie somebody else ere I meet you again," she said to Maggie, at parting, and Mr. Carrollton, on her journey home, found it hard to keep from asking her if for the "somebody else" she would substitute his name and so be "Maggie Carrollton."

This, however, he did not do; but his attentions were so marked, and his manner toward her so affectionate that there Hillsdale was reached there was in Maggie's mind no longer a doubt as to the nature of his feelings toward her. Arrived at home, he kept her constantly at his side, while Hagar, who was suffering from a slight attack of rheumatism, and could not go up to the stone house, waited and watched, thinking herself almost willing to be teased for the secret, if she could once more hear the sound of Maggie's voice. The secret, however, had been forgotten in the exciting scenes through which Maggie had passed since first she learned of its existence; and it was

In Dread of Something

You can scarcely tell what—it may be Hysteria, Insanity, Nervous Collapse.

You can only throw off this depression when the nerve cells are restored to health by such a remedy as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Your digestive system has failed to supply proper nourishment to the nerves and you are compelled to seek aid from other sources.

It will take some patience and persistent treatment, but there is no way by which you can so certainly restore health and vigor as by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The best time to restore the nervous system is long before such a critical condition is reached. Such symptoms as sleeplessness, headache, nervous indigestion, muscular weakness, loss of energy, failure of memory and power of concentration, irritability, and discouragement tell of a failure of the nervous system and warn you of the approach of serious trouble. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 8 boxes for $2.50; all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

now a long, long time since she had mentioned it to Hagar, who each day grew more and more determined never to reveal it. "My life is almost ended," she thought, "and the secret shall go with me to my grave. Margaret will be happier without it, and it shall not be revealed." Thus she reasoned on that rainy afternoon, when she sat waiting for Maggie, who, she heard, had returned the day before. Slowly the hours dragged on, and the night shadows fell at last upon the forest trees, creeping into the corners of Hagar's room, resting upon the hearthstone, falling upon the window pane, creeping up the wall, and affecting Hagar with a nameless fear of some impending evil. This fear not even the flickering flame of the lamp, which she lighted at last, and placed upon the mantel, was able to dispel, for the shadows grew darker, folding themselves around her heart, until she covered her eyes with her hands, lest some goblin should spring into life before her.

One Way to Make a Boy Tidy

BY RUTH CAMERON.

Mark, the boy who is the subject of the story.

Two mothers were comparing notes in the habits of their respective sons. Said one mother with a sigh: "Oh, I do wish Phillip were as tidy as your boy. I never saw anything neater than your boy's room. And those dainty curtains and that nice rug. I shouldn't any more dare have things like that in Phillip's room. They'd be ruined in no time. Why Phillip—"

For several minutes the other mother listened to a category of Phillip's sins of untidiness—how he tracked mud into his room, put his feet upon the chairs, kept his bureau perpetually littered, his shoes scattered about the room and his clothes draped over the furniture. Finally, at a slight pause, she managed to put in, "Mark used to be just like that."

"Why I thought he was naturally orderly."

"He certainly was not. His room used to be such a sight that I dreaded to go into it. I'd lecture him almost every day, but it didn't do the slightest good."

Well, what on earth did you do then?"

Mark's mother smiled. "You know you just spoke of the dainty curtains and nice rugs in Mark's room," she said. "Well, they are a part of the secret. You thought I put them there because Mark was neat and careful. As a matter of fact, it's more the other way round. He is neat and careful because they are there."

"You see, I went up into my boy's room one morning to clean up after he had gone to school, and it was in such a state of disorder that I was really discouraged. 'He ought to live in the barn instead of the house,' I said to myself. And then, as I cleaned it, somehow I got to thinking, and I looked around the room and realized it wasn't so unlike a barn either. I had had the girls' room papered twice since his was done because I thought a boy didn't care. And yet, that paper was dirty and faded and altogether hideous. Instead of the pretty hangings like the rest of the house, I had put cheap sash curtains in his room. The carpet was threadbare, the furniture was cheap and old. In fact, I realized that there was really nothing to inspire the boy with a desire to keep the place neat and tidy.

"My husband and I had a conference that night, and the next day I started to make Mark's room as pretty as the girls'. And positively it hurt me to see how pleased he was. You see, I had always been foolish enough to think that boys didn't care. Well, to make a long story short, Mark lives up to his room now just as he lived down to it before. Of course the change didn't come all at once—that was four years ago—but you can see it's pretty complete now."

"Yes, I've certainly learned that the best way to develop responsibility and pride in children is to give them something to be responsible and proud about. It is no more work than fretting and scolding all the time, and is certainly a more pleasant method and one that brings more results."

"I wonder," said Phillip's mother dubiously, "if that would ever work with Phillip?"

"With Phillip's very good way to find out," said the wiser lady briskly.

Where cross the lines of forty north and fifty-four west
 There rolls a wild and greedy sea
 With death upon its crest.
 No stone or wreath from human hands
 Will ever mark the spot
 Where fifteen hundred men went down.
 But Manhood perished not.

Old Ocean takes but little heed
 Of human tears or woe.
 No shafts adorn the ocean graves.
 Nor weeping willows grow.
 Nor is there need of marble slab
 To keep in mind the spot
 Where noble men went down to death
 But Manhood perished not!

Those men who looked on death and smiled,
 And trod the crumbling deck,
 Have lived much more than precious lives.
 From out that awful wreck,
 Though countless joys and hopes and fears,
 Were scattered at a breath,
 'Tis something that the name of Man
 Did not go down to death.

'Tis not an easy thing to die,
 E'en in the open air,
 Twelve hundred miles from home and friends,
 In a shroud of black despair
 A wreath to crown the brow of man,
 And hide a former blot
 Will ever blossom o'er the waves
 When Manhood perished not.

Why Have "Nerves"?

This is the reason why women have "nerves." When thoughts begin to grow cloudy and uncertain, impulses lag and the warnings of pain and distress are sent like flying messages throughout limbs and frame, straightway, nine times in ten, a woman will lay the cause of the trouble to some defect at the point where she first felt it. Is it a headache, a backache, a sensation of irritability or twitching and uncontrollable nervousness, something must be wrong with the head or back, a woman naturally says, but all the time the real trouble very often centers in the womanly organs. In nine cases out of ten the seat of the difficulty is here, and a woman should take rational treatment for its cure. The local disorder and inflammation of the delicate special organs of the sex should be treated steadily and systematically.

Dr. Pierce, during a long period of practice, found that a prescription made from medicinal extracts of native roots, without the use of alcohol, relieved over 90 per cent. of such cases. After using this remedy for many years in his private practice he put it up in form of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that would make it easily procurable, and it can be had at any store where medicines are handled.

Mrs. LILA B. HAWKINS, of Zeus, Va., writes: "I had been failing in health for two years—most of the time was not able to attend to my household duties. Female weakness was my trouble and I was getting very bad but, thanks to Doctor Pierce's medicines, I am well and strong again. I took only three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' and used the 'Lotion Tablets.' I have nothing but praise for Doctor Pierce's wonderful medicines."

Household Notes.

Potato balls which are sauted in butter after being boiled are delicious. They should be served with a generous sprinkling of minced parsley.

To make Dutch toast take slices of very stale or hard bread and toast the same in the oven until brown. Dip the slices in boiling water and set in the oven again until as crisp as desired. This is excellent, and a good way to utilize hard bread.

When washing new gingham dresses wash also some spare pieces of the material used, and make a practice of giving these pieces a frequent washing. Then, when mending time comes, any patching that has to be done will hardly be noticed.

If you have an old rubber raincoat that is no longer in use, cut the bottom off and make a plain large bag with a draw-string to hold clothes-line and pins. If it should, by mistake, be left out all night, they will not be exposed to the weather.

Pneumonia from a Cold

PNEUMONIA is second only to consumption in the number of deaths which it causes, and like consumption always has its beginning with a cold.

Cold in the head, fever and chills, a cough which gradually becomes dry and more painful in the chest, rapid difficult breathing, feelings of exhaustion and depression—these are symptoms of pneumonia.

You can prevent and cure pneumonia by the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, the greatest of all treatments for the throat and lungs.

The only safe way is to regard every cold as serious. By frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine you can quickly break up the cold and guard against dangerous developments. 25 cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmondson Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

No Indigestion or Sick Stomach

Gas, Heartburn, Dyspepsia and all misery in Stomach vanishes.

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—maybe you call it indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangle and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas, or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

Marconi Manager on Cape Race Station.

Mr. A. E. Roach, manager of the Montreal Marconi Wireless Station, when seen regarding the action that the Newfoundland Government is said to propose taking in regard to the Titanic disaster, stated that, in his opinion, the Newfoundland authorities have forgotten that although the wireless station situated on Cape Race on Newfoundland land, it is the property of the Canadian Government and that they communicated only with the Canadian authorities.

Of course, said Mr. Roach, all the Marconi operators are under oath not to divulge any information from messages received, and that while there were no doubt a number of private messages received by the operator at Cape Race, most of the time was taken up in receiving the names of the survivors. The officials at Cape Race were instructed to give information to the Associated Press of New York and also to communicate with the Newfoundland, as well as the Canadian Government.

The Titanic, said Mr. Roach, was in communication with the Cape Race station, as was the Carpathia and other smaller ships. "However, as far as I can make out, the steamer Virginian, when she was in communication with Cape Race was very probably somewhere between the station and the sinking ship, and as her apparatus is only of medium strength the farther she steamed towards the scene of the disaster, the farther she got out of communication with our station at Cape Race, he added.

SECCOTINE!

FOR STICKING EVERYTHING.

In patent pin-stopper tubes, Vest Pocket Size, 10 cents.

Large Size Tubes, 20 cents

SECCOTINE is an intensely strong adhesive for joining new or factory surfaces in wood, leather, iron, delf, paper, pasteboard, cloth, glass, ivory, bone, etc., etc.

It is unequalled for office use. Being immensely stronger than gums or pastes, a much smaller quantity is required. It replaces glues and cements in the manufacture of small fancy articles.

The general uses of SECCOTINE are too numerous to mention.

A tube goes a very long way, it requires no heating or other preparation; keeps for years, and is always liquid and ready. It sticks, binds and cements all articles of all materials.

Strike Against the P. & O.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, To-Day.
The threatened strike against the Peninsular and Oriental S. S. Co. has been referred to the national executive of the Transport Workers Federation. Yesterday the officers of the National Sailors' and Firemen's Union and of ships' cooks and stewards called out the men in the employment of the Company.

Leslie Grossmith Made Good.

It is seldom that we have been visited by a musician and entertainer of Mr. Grossmith's ability. To keep an audience amused and entertained for two hours is a one man performance that takes some doing. Mr. Grossmith however, accomplished this at the College Hall last night. His programme was good, distinctly so, particularly his treatment of the beautiful Sonata, whilst his imitations and burlesques were splendid, and kept his audience convulsed with laughter. His humour is infectious and he gets his audience with him from the very start. His rendition of Harry Fragson's "Paper-Bag Cookery" was delightfully amusing, as was also the musical illustration entitled "An Adelphe Melodrama." These two were perhaps the best of the humorous items on the first half of the programme. Of the second half, Mr. Grossmith's own composition, "A Policeman's Story," and "The Burlesque Pianoforte Solo" were undoubtedly the best, and this does not mean that the other numbers were not good, for they were.

Altogether the audience, which was a fair sized one, were well repaid for their attendance, and on his next appearance Mr. Grossmith should be greeted by a bumper house.

A Titanic Claim.

Another incident in connection with the loss of the Titanic which will bring some degree of comfort to the afflicted widow, and bring home to many the wisdom of providing against the uncertain, is the fact that Mrs. Frank H. Mayberry, of Moose Jaw, Sask., whose husband lost his life on the Titanic, was totally unaware of her husband having taken out a ten thousand dollar policy prior to their going to England, and in her favor. It was only through the efforts of the company in locating Mrs. Mayberry that she was first made aware of the fact that ten thousand dollars was lying to her credit at the head office of the Railway Passengers' Assurance Company at 64 Cornhill, London, Eng. This is only one of the many losses now being paid by the company as a result of the above disaster.

The fact that the Railway Passengers has paid out over thirty-two millions in claims, and that ample funds are provided for such catastrophes, aptly illustrates the importance of insuring in a company granting adequate security to meet such contingencies. HENRY C. DONNELLY, Agent for Newfoundland, may 7, 11.

Boy Breaks His Wrist.

Yesterday afternoon a nasty accident occurred to Master Herbert Voisey, son of Mr. Edward Voisey, of Cabot Street. While jumping from one boat to another at R. G. Rendell & Co's, wharf he fell and broke his left wrist. The boy, who is quite young, cried piteously with pain, and was assisted home by his companions. Dr. Tait was called and after giving him necessary attention ordered him to hospital. That institution is now so full that the lad could not get immediate aid but was treated as quickly as possible under the circumstances.

The Barbers Organize.

A few days ago the various barbers in the city served their employers with notices containing a request for increased wages, and last night thirty of them met in a West End building when it was decided to form a Barbers' Union. The employees will be asked by the union to close every evening at 6 p.m. except the eve of holidays and also to close at 10.30 on Saturday nights. The wage question will be discussed at a meeting next week.

Slur Resented.

The crew of the Kite are indignant at the slur thrown at them by a contemporary. They say that though they are St. John's men they are no vaudeville crowd neither are they "picnickers," and when it came to the push they were on the pans as quickly as their fathers. Jollity and light-heartedness was in evidence, inseparable from names like Walsh, McGrath and Quinn, but no shirking or cowardice, nor had the captain to do anything but command. The men of the Kite proved themselves when in the "old tub" of the fleet they succeeded as they did. The "smarty" who wrote the screed might have met some of these men yet.—Com.

The Suppression of Opium.

Special Evening Telegram. SHANGHAI, To-Day.

A circular telegram from General Li Yuen Heng, Vice-President of the Chinese Republic, concerning the suppression of opium in China, is given great prominence in the native press. Li Yuen Heng begins the circular with reference to the action of the Ngan Hwei Provincial Assembly, which urged the President of the Republic and the Cabinet Minister to press forward negotiations with foreign powers for a revision of treaties in view of a stoppage of the importation and transit of opium into the interior of China. Li Yuen Heng points out the suppression of opium includes three main undertakings: first, the prohibition of its importation and transportation; second, the suppression of its cultivation; third, the suppression of opium smoking. He calls on officials and assemblies of people in all the provinces of China to consummate the action of the Provincial Assembly of Ngan Hwei by doing their utmost in their several degrees to further campaign.

Prescription 'A.'

Is the one and only genuine preparation that cures Indigestion and Dyspepsia in all its forms.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear a person say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache. I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing."

I often have a pain in the pit of the stomach after eating, that is (if I am able to eat). My heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion, and I am just as tired when rising in the morning (even worse) than when retiring at night. I often awake in my sleep and imagine that I am going to suffocate, and very often afraid to go to sleep again. I have to take particular good care of what food I eat. All these symptoms make my life not worth living.

So, why do you insist on suffering from all these unnecessary symptoms when STAFFORD'S "Prescription 'A.'" will do the work.

This genuine preparation is manufactured by DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, St. John's, Nfld.

Price, small size, 25 cents, postage 5 cents extra. Large size, 50 cents, postage 10 cents extra.

Concert This Evening

Mr. A. H. Allen's fifth annual concert will be given in the Methodist College Hall this evening. Judging from the programme which we have seen, it promises to be the best of the many excellent concerts given by Mr. Allen during the past five years. Amongst the names of those taking part we notice Miss Amy Cornick and Miss Pittman in pianoforte solos; Mr. Alex. Mews in cello solo; the band in some dainty dance music; and vocal numbers by Miss Mollie Fitzpatrick, Miss Emily O'Reilly and Mr. H. H. Goodridge. Miss O'Reilly, who is a pupil of Mr. Allen's, will make her first appearance before a St. John's audience in songs by Brahms and Ernest Walker. Mr. Allen will play the sonata "Pathétique" by Beethoven.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I notice in the account given of that street car accident to the late Mr. Murphy, all praise has been given to Mr. Roach for first aid rendered. While I have no desire to discount any work done by Mr. Roach, I think it only fair to state that it was Mr. Harry B. Thompson of T. Murdoch & Co., who happened to be on the car at the time of the accident, who rendered "First Aid." Mr. Roach arriving later, and with Mr. Thompson did all that could be done until the arrival of the doctor.

Thanking you for space to insert this.

Yours sincerely,
"FIRST AID."

Salvaging Sunken Quids.

Getting Gold From Sunken Ships Like the Oceana is a Perilous Undertaking.

The loss of the P. and O. liner, the Oceana with its cargo of gold to the value of £750,000 is going to provide the small and select band of professional divers with the chance of a lifetime. The underwriters at Lloyd's who insured this valuable cargo at the rate of 15s. for every £100, intend to make a big effort to recover the fortune for which they are now responsible.

The Oceana lies about 85 feet under water, and the difficulties will be enormous, for at that depth the pressure upon the human body is tremendous, and it will tax the best of divers to remain below for any length of time.

Divers are very well paid, usually receiving besides a fixed salary a percentage on all the money and valuable things they recover. A few years ago a ship called Alphonso XII. sank to a depth of 162 feet off Point Gando, Grand Canary. It contained over £100,000 in Spanish coins, and it was resolved to try and recover the bullion.

Accordingly, two famous divers—Alexander Lambert and David Tester—were engaged by the underwriters to proceed to the Grand Canary and attempt the salvage. Lambert's terms were £40 a month, and 5 per cent. commission on what he recovered; Tester, as the junior, received £20 and 2 1/2 per cent.

TWO HOURS A DAY'S WORK.

Not many divers would have attempted to do what these two men accomplished. One hundred and sixty-two feet below the sea it was almost impossible to keep alive, the pressure upon each square inch of the body being nearly seventy pounds.

But Lambert and Tester worked away like heroes, and they had the satisfaction of bringing the sum of £90,000 to the surface. When the accounts were made up, a cheque for £4,000 was handed to Lambert as his share, and Tester got the tidy little sum of £1,200. This was, of course, in addition to their monthly salaries.

It should be remembered that divers never work more than about a couple of hours a day, but in that time they accomplished more really hard work than the eight-hour a day person above ground.

Divers have their adventures, of course. When the ship Hamillo Mitchell sank with a cargo of £50,000 specie at Leuconna Rock, near Shanghai, the news quickly spread, and a pirate ship for miles round, prepared to descend upon the buried treasure.

Two Liverpool divers were sent for, as the depth to which the ship had sunk—156 feet—was beyond the ability of all but experts. The two men—Ridyard and Penk—spent an exciting time.

Nearly Killed by Chinese Pirates.

Once they were working on the submerged ship when they were interrupted by a flotilla of 200 Chinese pirate junks. Only with the greatest difficulty and luck did they escape with their lives, crawling away from under the very prows of the pirate ships, and disappearing to the accompaniment of much rifle fire. They returned in due course and went on with their work, eventually saving from the ship the sum of £40,000.

Some time afterwards the balance of £10,000 was recovered. Ridyard and Penk were paid a large salary and received a commission. At 5 per cent. the latter would represent a clear £1,000 to each man.

If the divers engaged on the salvaging of the Oceana succeed in recovering the bullion they will achieve a record, and, incidentally, earn a small fortune for themselves. Divers do not always go down to look for gold. Twenty years ago the Government of France engaged a man to descend 80 feet to look for the body of a man said to have been murdered by the captain of the lost vessel. Under the sea he found the body and the captain was guillotined, but the strangest thing about it was the diver and the murdered man happened to be brothers.

The sinking of the Maine—which led to the Spanish-American war—brought divers into great prominence, as both sides engaged experts to prove their case. Spain said the Maine was not blown up by any outside influence, and declared that the catastrophe was due to internal combustion.

America contradicted this, and, as we know, went to war. A year or so later it was proved beyond all doubt that the Spaniards were correct. And thus another war must be added to the long list of wars based on misunderstanding.

CAPT. BULL SCORING.—Capt. Bull as a rule in his little ship accounts for a good many whales. He has for his fare up to date three sulphur bottoms and a fin back. Whales south are as usual scarce.

GEORGE KNOWLING.

Tim Shannahan on Theatre-Goers.

We sighed and sobbed, we almost wept, we talked to Mary Joe, at night we lashed and never slept for "we'd no place to go." No O'ra House was in our town, and we never saw a play, and grandma spoke quite gibbly of a bright and happy day when "Healey's troupe" it struck the town and men walked on a rope. So Kieley heeded it to the States, his bosom full of hope; he brought a first class company, now no one sighs to-day, but the folks that talked of opera, why they don't go to the play.

Neptune Brings the Key.

The s.s. Neptune, Capt. Bob Bartlett, reached port last night from the Gulf seal fishery, hauling for 2,500 young and 1,500 old seals. She is the last of the fleet to return and bring in the key. In the early part of the voyage the ship was gripped in the ice for a month and consequently missed the young harp. When she got clear Capt. Bartlett headed his ship for the Mesatany Islands, where he struck the hoods and managed to secure a saving trip out of the patch. The Neptune's seals are exceptionally large. The captain and crew are all well but are glad to be home again.

LONDON, May 8.
Augustus Birrell was the star speaker in to-day's debate on the Home Rule Bill. He declared the establishment of a strong executive in Ireland was the only cure for the ills that country suffered from. It would prove the pulse of the whole machine, while its absence was the real source of all the weakness and troubles before and after the union. There were, he said, tens of thousands among the Irish capable of undertaking heavy responsibilities, as was proved by the way they carried on the government of local boards. In giving the Commons information on the subject of Ireland, he was, he said, merely a gramophone, transmitting from the reports of local commissioners. He believed that the fears of Ulster uprising were groundless, and it would be found that Catholics and Protestants could work together for the common good.

He will be charged with the arrangement of a final settlement of the Bagdad Railway problem, and with the economic partition of the Portuguese colonies in East and West Africa between Germany and Britain, by means of which these countries will be enabled to develop commercially its respective sphere under the Portuguese flag, since Portugal is unwilling to sell the territory which it possesses in these regions.

As the bunker was empty, it was found that the bulkhead had been damaged by fire.

The Nation's Mothers.

We know what the Nation's Mothers Have done for the wide, wide world, But what have the Nations in honour Done for this priceless pearl— A spotless and faithful Mother? All men, whether mighty or small, Are born of a woman. Surely That woman is honored by all!

Let us gather from city and hamlet, Regardless of color or creed; At last we may stand united, At last on one subject agreed. The sacred memory of mother Will circle the heart of the earth. Draw man to man as his brother And give to all Nations new birth.

On her condition dependeth The safety of country and home. How well she fulfills her mission Lies not on her soul, but your own. Is she sweetly loved and tended In her travail, her Calvary's brow, In an anguish, second only To her Saviour's?—Answer thou.

For know ye not in the plastic New-life which renders her in twain, Be it pleasure, pain or sorrow, You give her—comes back again, Be careful then when she suffers To love her, protect and cheer. Offences must come, but woe to the man, Who brings to his mother a tear.

God counts them, whether in travail Or later she struggles alone, To instill in her child high emotions, Though often bereft of her own. Too long the stigma has rested Where least it deserved to be, Shrinking childhood, often because Man would not wait with thee.

But once when a Nation arouses To understand these laws and fulfill, From out of the blindness and darkness Where long we stood so still, A mother neglected and loveless, Will be found in no Christian land, And then from her loins will spring indeed A perfect and kingly man.

All hail to the Nations mother! All hail to her knights brave and true! God hasten the day of her crowning! God bless them for what they will do! She asks but the love of her children, The heart of her husband — and then, Holding them close through all sorrows Be with them where joys never end! L. S. Lee.

Premonitions and Omens

Of the Titanic Disaster as Told by London Papers—Cancelled His Passage on Account of a Dream.

How strangely imagination may anticipate history has seldom been more remarkably shown than in the disaster to the Titanic. The London Daily Mail after giving the already published incident that Captain Smith at dinner had remarked "If the largest liner in the world goes down, I shall go with her," and that she had made a bad start in having a narrow escape from colliding with the New York, has the following:—

Reference to Old Moore and Zadkiel's Almanacs recall to mind the fact that the eclipse, the greatest this country has seen for fifty-three years, followed within a few hours of the Titanic disaster. The former sage writes for mid-April shipping: "Shipping affairs will be disordered. This country is threatened with disaster." Zadkiel writes: "There will be depression in New York."

Providential Late Arrival.

Six firemen who had been signed on reached the quayside at Southampton last Wednesday in time to see the last gangway removed, and they are now congratulating themselves on having missed the boat.

An M. P.'s Escape.

Mr. Norman Craig, K. C., M. P., who booked a passage in the Titanic, had actually packed his luggage, but decided at the last moment not to make the journey. "I had no other conscious reason," he stated, "except that in view of the political situation I thought it better to remain at home. I had a providential escape."

"Something Going to Happen."

An extraordinary story of a passenger's premonition of coming disaster to the Titanic is related by a well-known solicitor. "Barely a day before the Titanic sailed," he said, "a wealthy business man came to me and considerably surprised me by asking if I could consent to be a guardian to his two little boys. I naturally asked him what he meant and he replied: "To-morrow I and my wife are sailing on the Titanic. I cannot tell why, but I feel that something is going to happen, and that we shall never see our children again up to the present," continued the solicitor. "Neither his name, nor that of his wife, appear among the saved." Two other apparently well-authenticated cases of premonition of the disaster are related. One man who sailed from Southampton, said to be a fireman named Coffey, having a grave, indefinable misgiving, left the boat at Queenstown. Another, a steward, is stated to have told his wife before his departure that he wished he had not signed on.

Omen of a Broken Table.

Press representatives who inspected the Titanic prior to her departure from Southampton, communicates the following incident which occurred at the official luncheon on board:—The tables were laid in the centre of one of the rooms, and just previous to the few short speeches that were delivered one of the tables collapsed. This was much commented upon, the hope being expressed that no mishap would happen to the mammoth liner after she left port.

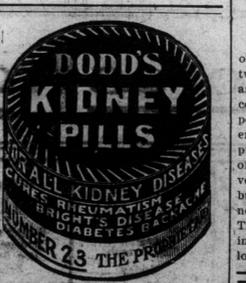

Saved by a Dream.

A confession that a dream prevented him from sailing in the Titanic was made by the Hon. J. C. Middleton, vice-president of the Akron Canton Railway of Ohio. Mr. Middleton told the dream to his friends ten days before the tragedy, and this fact is vouched for by several well-known people one of whom gave Mr. Middleton a signed "affidavit" to that effect.

Mr. Middleton says: "I booked a cabin in the Titanic on March 23rd. I felt unaccountably depressed at the time, and on April 3rd I dreamed that I saw the Titanic capsized in mid-ocean and a lot of the passengers struggling in the water. The following night I dreamt exactly the same dream. The next day I told my wife and several of my friends, and afterwards on receiving cable advice from America that my business did not necessitate my crossing at once, I decided to cancel my passage."

Methodist Official Figures Show Big Majority For Proposed Union Basis.

Official figures of the Methodist vote on the proposed organic union between the Presbyterian, Methodist, and Congregational Churches being compiled to-day show that the proportional vote stands at between seven and eight to one for union on the proposed basis. Over ninety per cent. of the quarterly official boards have voted in favor of the amalgamation, but the proportional individual vote is not more than ten to one for union. The members and adherents are voting about the same, casting eight ballots for, to every one against.

Cameron's Mills, Kent Co., N.B., May 8. They have used them and they testify by their own experience that Dodd's Kidney Pills are all that is claimed for them. Everywhere you go you find this confidence. It is expressed in this village by Mrs. Joseph P. Dalgle.

"I have great confidence in Dodd's Kidney Pills," she says. "Six boxes cured me of my Kidney Disease."

All over the Province you find people who have been cured of Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, Diabetes, Backache, or some other form of Kidney Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills. You cannot find a case in which they have been given a fair trial that the results have not been beneficial.

SOCRATES.

BY H. L. RANN.

Socrates was an Athenian philosopher who was born in 470 B. C. He does not appear to have any first name, but was familiarly known around Athens as "Soc." This was evidently a misnomer, as he never wore socks of any kind, being the original sockless statesman. Even when he became a member of the Athenian senate, Socrates used to rise up in his bare feet and denounce the pork barrel and the silver and barbers bill, and he is the only senator on record who never plastered his constituency with public buildings and radish seeds. Socrates' first great sorrow was his marriage to Xanthippe, who was one of the hippest females known to profane or sacred history. Xanthippe had a very rugged and porcine vocabulary, and she would stand in the front door, and throw it at Socrates until he turned in at the postoffice. Socrates was also handicapped by being the father of two pin-headed sons who didn't know whether they were going or coming. Despite these drawbacks Socrates became a great teacher, and was the first man in Athens to let his mind run around without any hindrances on. People used to sit at Socrates' feet, at a more or less respectful distance, and drink in his juicy essays on corruption in the senate. Socrates was opposed to corruption in any form, and was elected to the senate a number of times without the aid of a campaign cigar. The Old Guard in the senate did not like Socrates, and whenever he got up to say something about them which they did not care to hear they would retire to the cloak room and utter baleful and impious remarks. After making several efforts to persuade Socrates to come in and be good, the Old Guard advised him that there would be no objection to committing suicide by drinking a pint of hemlock, a very bitter and uneasy beverage which had embalmed everybody it mingled with. Socrates was not a drinking man, but after showing up the Old Guard in a vitriolic speech he sat down on the court house steps, wrapped one dimpled foot carefully about the other and quaffed the fatal dose with Spartan courage. It has taken some time for Socrates to obtain recognition, but he is now conceded to have been the only man of his times whose mind refused to run on a trolley.

Wonderful Things Builders Can For You Nowdays.

The up-to-date builder no longer builds you a house. He pours out for you. Bricks, mortar, wheelbarrows, and scaffolding will fetch a fancy price from curio collectors.

You don't think? Well, listen. I know that concrete has lately taken the place of bricks and wood in all the bigger buildings. You often noticed the great steel pillars and beams being set in position before the building is "masked" with stone and made beautiful, and you are probably aware that concrete is "poured" into this steel framework to make the sides and flooring of the building.

Well, the scientists have just heard the builder one stage forward. Instead of "pasting" the concrete on the framework, using countermoulds, wheelbarrows and countless hours they have simply suggested that the steel framework should be made in the form of a mould, and that the cement should be poured into the mould from above.

A sort of tower is erected on the top of which a great cistern is placed.

Rambling Notes for 1911

BY I. C. MORRIS.

CHAPTER X. AT GRATE'S COVE AND OLD PER- LICAN.

No better index can be given of the prosperity or otherwise of a town than that which is imparted by the style and condition of its dwellings. Upon this basis we formed our conclusions as to the condition of the people at the above places, and if neatness and cleanliness are what they appear to be, then the people of Old Perlican and Grate's Cove are both independent and comfortable. In both these localities the spacious flat-roofed house has taken the place of the old-timed saddle roofed buildings, and an all round improvement has set in.

The greater number of the buildings are nicely painted, and this feature alone is quite an acquisition to the value and appearance of the property. During our stay the weather was very fine, and the gardens and fields were seen at their best and the whole scene was one that seemed typical and ideal of Newfoundland. Who would not be happy under such conditions? Who would not be healthy in such a locality? and who would not feel that life was worth living? Certainly none who were in the right place; certainly none who see in things a "power divine." We were in the presence of quiet and contentment; the noise and rattle of the city disturbed us not. We seemed to have gotten closer to our own hearts, because we had gotten closer to the heart of Nature. We seemed to see ourselves, and learn more of the true meaning of our being. The air was vitalizing and the sea breeze cooling, and there was such an absence of the "rush" so noticeable in city life, that one wondered why so many people left such surroundings and took up their abode in the crowded metropolis or congested city block.

Among the unusual things that we saw at Old Perlican was a man with very long hair. We enquired who he was but those whom we asked did not know, as he did not belong to that particular locality. The man's face had a fine expression. He was driving a horse attached to a car load of plowed and tugged board. It was early morning when we met him. At a glance we saw that his hair was well kept and that it was not of anything of a careless nature that its length was due. From his appearance and manner I decided that he was of some religious order, and that from conviction and principle he thus wore his hair. On further enquiry I found that my surmising was correct, and that the gentleman in question was one who had devoted himself to an outside religious life, and being well read in the history of the early church, and in that of the early fathers, he had made a choice to follow their pattern. He belonged to Job's Cove, and we understand that he is a very useful man in that settlement.

We may not meet him again; but if he is devoting his life to the betterment of those around him, and to the common good of his fellow man, and if he has found in a religious life that which is "the pearl of great price," and if he is really paying the toll that such a life demands, and in all has learned the lesson of controlling himself and is endeavouring to lead men higher than themselves, then we take off our hat to him, and ask him to shake hands. His way may not be as mine, and his ideal of religious life may differ from others, but if his principles are correct, and his motive sincere, then we join hands with him and say "how are you, brother."

A little later in the day we paid a visit to the graveyard and there beheld the monuments of those who pioneered Old Perlican. In a shady nook we noticed three stones, and although over half a century's suns had shone upon some of them, the names were very familiar to us. One was in memory of Mrs. Fox, wife of the late Rev. Thomas Fox, of saintly memory, and who is, himself, interred at Topsail. Another is to the memory of the Rev. Mr. Geatz, who, at the early age of twenty-nine finished his ministry. The other is in memory of Rev. Mr. Bryant. "Far from the world's ignoble strife" they rest. Their work is their best monument, for when all else fails, and even the marble slab falls to the ground and we cease to have a place among the annals or records of the times, then that which we have done for the good of others is somewhere bringing forth fruit.

Great Castings for Aquitania.

Stern Frame and Rudder Weight 130 Tons—Rudder Itself Fifty Tons.

London, April 29.—A consignment remarkable in its unusual dimensions and abnormal weight was successfully handled by the North-Eastern Railway Company yesterday. It consisted of the cast steel stern frames and brackets manufactured by the Darlington Forge Company, for the Aquitania, the Cunard Company's new 50,000 ton trans-Atlantic steamer, now being built at Clydebank.

These castings are among the largest ever constructed in the history of ship building. The stern frame and rudder alone, in a completed condition, weigh 130 tons, while the main stern post weighs 50 tons, and the rudder itself 70 tons.

Although the stern frame was lowered upon a specially designed trolley wagon, its dimensions were of such exceptional size as to exceed considerably the British railway loading gauge.

It was found impracticable to transport the castings by railway from Darlington to Glasgow, and the only alternative was to convey them to Middlesborough, to be shipped there by special steamer to Clydebank.

Gave $5,000,000 to a College, and Died in a Sanitarium Comparatively Poor.

Chicago, April 27.—Dr. Daniel Kimball Pearson, 92 years old, who in recent years gave more than $5,000,000 to small colleges chiefly in the Middle West, died early to-day in a sanitarium comparatively a poor man. Pneumonia was the cause. For several days he has been sinking; a patient in an institution where he maintained himself on an income of $5,000 a year paid him by a college to which he had contributed $250,000 on the condition that he would be given 2 per cent. of that amount for the remainder of his life. It was Dr. Pearson who declared that "Giving away money is a greater sport than baseball and more fun than any other form of entertainment." His death defeated his often expressed expectation that he would live 100 years.

Not Salts, Oil or Pills, but Cascarets.

No odds how sick your Stomach; how hard your head aches or how Bilious—Cascarets make you feel great.

You men and women who somehow can't feel right—who have an almost daily headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse and regulate the stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—no good—never gripe or sicken.

The Passing of Spring.

By WALT MASON.

The gentle season goes its gait, and soon will vanish from our ken; then summer, with its heat and straight, will broil the panting sons of men. The heat will soak us day and night, and man will cuss it as he fries; and all the doctors will unite to tell us how to swat the flies. I try to be a cheerful Jay, but I confess, with downcast face, I hate to see the spring go 'way, and sizzling summer take its place. I always multiply my sins beneath the burning summer skies, when health department bulletins inform us how to swat the flies. I try to be an optimist, but even cheerful hearts grow sore; last year I slew a scientist who left a pamphlet at my door explaining that I am to blame whenever a human being dies because I shun the swatting game and don't exterminate the flies. A bard can take his lyre and sing with emphasis and fiery zest, concerning harmonies of spring, the babbling brooks and all the rest; but poets never take their harps to sing that time of brazen skies, when all the scientific sharps are telling how to swat the flies.

You have often noticed the great steel pillars and beams being set in position before the building is "masked" with stone and made beautiful, and you are probably aware that concrete is "pasted" into this steel framework to make the sides and flooring of the building.

Well, the scientists have just helped the builder one stage forward. Instead of "pasting" the concrete on to the framework, using countless wheelbarrows and countless hods, they have simply suggested that the steel framework should be made in the form of a mould, and that the cement should be poured into this mould from above.

A sort of tower is erected on the top of which a great cistern is placed.

In this cistern the concrete is mixed and then conducted by pipes to the various parts of the steel mould so as to form the base, walls, and floor of the building.

There are two overwhelming advantages in "pouring" houses instead of building them. One, that "pouring" is ever so much cheaper owing to the immense saving of labour in carting the cement about in wheelbarrows. Just look at the figures. It costs from 2s. 6d. to 4s. 2d. per yard to build a house of steel and cement, while it only costs from 7s. 6d. to 1s. 1d. per yard to pour one.

Secondly, the "poured" house is ever so much better than the built one. In building, the cement often "sets" before it has been properly applied. This frequently means that the cement will sooner or later crack. But in pouring there is obviously no risk of this.

Poured Houses Will Not be Ugly. These two qualities—cheapness and durability—will make "house-pouring" the method of the future. Already in California, where the system originated, there are many large buildings, including bridges, dams, and churches, which have all been "poured."

Of course, the method is still in its experimental stage. The promoters expect shortly to be able to pour out a house complete with all its fittings. Bath-tubs, washstands, mantels, and mouldings will all be made of concrete when the inventors have more experience in the making of moulds.

The concrete houses will not be ugly. It is possible to stain the walls and fittings to almost any shade of colour, and the surface of the cement can be polished to look like wood or marble.

As far as beauty is concerned, the all-concrete "poured" house will be able to give points to the present built one, while the solid material advantages will greatly exceed those we enjoy to-day.

They cannot for example, be destroyed by fire. Tenants will therefore have no need to keep up their fire insurance premiums. And when it comes to cleaning, all the "poured" house tenant will need to do is to move out his furniture and carpets and turn on the hose.—P.V.

The Scotch Negro

A Scotchman landed in Canada not long ago. The very first morning he walked abroad he met a coal-black negro. It happened that the negro had been born in the Highland district of Scotland and had spent the greater part of his life there. Naturally, he had a burr on his tongue. "Hey, mannie," said the pink Scotchman, "can ye no tell me whic'er I'll find the kirk?"

The darky took him by the arm and led him to the corner. "Go richt up to yon wee hoose and turn to ye're richt, and gang up the hill," said he.

The fresh importation from Scotland looked at him in horror. "And are ye from Scotland, mon?" he asked.

"Richt ye are," said the darky. "Aberdeen's ma name."

"And, h'oo lang have ye been here?" "About two year," said the darky.

"Lord save us and keep us!" said the new arrival. "Whaur can I get the boat for Edinboro?"—Exchange.
