MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DISTEMPER.

WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER XI.

"That fellow sticks close enough to her apron-strings—eh, Ned? He'd be better at his forge. He's going to the bad, it strikes me."

"Eh? Why?" I asked. The handsome, sulky young blacksmith was no favorite of mine; but I did like pretty, pert little Lotty, and, in common with all Whittlesford, I believed that, in spite of her saucy flirting ways, the girl was fond of him. "What makes you think that?" I said.

"I go by signs," Dizarte replied, brushing some specks of jalap-powder off his black coat-sleeve with his large red silk handkerchief. "The man isn't at his work three days a week, and he spends most of his time at the Cap and Bells. Besides, the young fool was mixed up in that blessed poaching affair up at Roxborough last evening. He'll be caught one of these times, as sure as he has a head upon his shoulders, and that will settle him. He ought to have the sense to know it."

I assented, thinking that the mercenary would "settle" him so far as the Wayside Cottage was concerned, if it chanced to reach madame's ears. "He used to be pretty steady, too," I said.

"Yes, I know, until a few months ago. It is that saucy little puss of a girl who is to blame for it at bottom, I verily believe. It seems that he can't rest without keeping her within sight. We can see White's shanty from here, you know, and I never go out or come in without stumbling over Flood, either on the common or under the hedge, sinking about somewhere. Last night, for instance, I was called out to the rectory—Mrs. Deeping had some new fad on—and it was late when I got back—past twelve—and there, at the gate, I stumbled over the man again. Brought my heart into my mouth! I wondered who it was."

"What! Lying down outside the gate at that time of night?" I ejaculated.

"Crouching down, at any rate."

"I wonder what on earth for?"

"Goodness knows, unless he is cracked!" Dizarte said, moving away from the window. "All I know is that there he was. Queer—eh?"

"Queer?" I echoed. "Why, he must be going off his head."

"If he is, I hope he'll choose some other place than outside my garden gate," said the doctor, dismissing the subject of Phil Flood and his eccentricities coolly enough. "What brings you here, Ned? Nothing wrong at Chavasse, I hope?"

"No," I told him; but I had strolled over hoping to see Yorke. Dizarte opened his little gray eyes at me.

"Yorke? Why, he's not here, my good fellow! He was off by the first train this morning."

"Oh!" I echoed, astonished. "Off where?"

"Why, to Paris! Didn't he tell you last night that he was going?"

"Not a syllable," I returned, feeling lazed. "Paris? What has he gone here for?"

"Faith, that's more than I can tell you," said Dizarte, with a laugh; "for he didn't tell me. Something to do with his sister, I believe. At any rate he came in upon me this morning before I was out of bed, and in a fluster and said he must go, and that he would be back in a week. Confoundingly awkward it is just now, with so much sickness about, and without no ice too; but I let the boy go, of course. Wonder he didn't tell you!"

"I'm going to have a bit of lunch before I start; will you stay?"

But I declined the lunch, and, bidding Dizarte good-morning, turned out of the Redpots gates a good deal more puzzled than when I had turned in at them. That this sudden flight of Roger to Paris had something to do with mademoiselle I did not doubt for an instant; the question was, what?

And the question remained unanswered, for, although I brooded anxiously over the whole affair until Nat declared laughingly that I was in love and suggested the Lady Idonia Clyde the Earl of Roxborough's elderly and reckless daughter, as the probable subject of my young affections, I could come to no satisfactory conclusion; nor did the course of events at Chavasse help me. Mlle. Valdini had not only won madame's good will, but was clever enough to keep it, and in fact had ingratiated herself with almost everybody in Whittlesford in whose way she came. It is true that I did not like her, and that Miss Nat was in a state of more or less open rebellion, while Alice Deeping refused altogether to give in to the suave graces of the governess; but I think that we three were the only exceptions to the general rule. Madame declared that as a teacher she was simply perfect, while Nat herself poutingly admitted that mademoiselle somehow made her learn without any trouble at all. In fact, mademoiselle soon became a necessity at Chavasse. She helped madame with the accounts, she gave an eye to the housekeeping—the indignation of poor old Batterlin—she chaperoned Nat whenever it was necessary, she played for us in the evening, she wrote some of madame's letters, and she never by any chance made the slightest reference to Roger Yorke.

He had come back from his visit to Paris, looking fagged, worried, and out of sorts, and old Dizarte had declared, with many a sly chuckle, that he must have been keeping it up at a fine pace. Whatever he had done or left undone there, it is certain that he uttered not a word about it, good, bad or indifferent. And somehow I had never found exactly the right time to speak to him of the interview in the Lady's Walk. In fact, I was trying to forget it, and to argue myself into the belief that after all it was no business of mine. To me, and to all, so far as I could see, he was much the same as ever; but there was a gloom and an uneasiness about him at times altogether new in debonair Roger, though these grew less marked as the weeks went by.

Old Dizarte had a nasty touch of gout as the weather grew colder, and was forced to lie up; and this was one reason why Yorke came less often to Chavasse just at this time. And although I often saw them meet, I never caught a second passionate glance from his blue eyes at the little dusky face of Natalie Orme, and began to tell myself that I had made a mistake in putting Roger Yorke down as the victim to the fascinations of the little lady.

The weather had grown cold, November was half over, and the trees in the park were almost bare, when a bit of news ruffled the serenity of Whittlesford—the engagement of Alice Deeping to Major Constable. The rector came in one day to luncheon and told us the news—and uncommonly delighted and excited about it he seemed to be.

"Yes, I am very pleased," he said, in reply to madame's congratulations. "Very pleased. It is a good match for Alice, very good. The major is well-born and well off, and a great favorite of mine. He is a man to whom any father might be glad to give his daughter."

"Indeed I am sure of it," madame answered, in her most cordial tones, and I congratulate you and Mrs. Deeping, most heartily. Major Constable is a great favorite of mine also. You must give Alice my best love, and all her we shall expect her here to-morrow to be congratulated in due form."

This was said as the rector shook hands before leaving. I followed him to the hall, to help him on with his coat. Whether I looked solemn or not, I do not know; but he asked me what I was looking so glum about, and if I was jealous.

"Yes, awfully," I returned, laughing at the notion. "Tell Alice she has broken my heart. I say, though—"

"I'll tell you what I was thinking, sir. Major Constable is a jolly nice fellow and I like him very much; but it is awkward about his arm."

"Ah, so it is!" said the rector, his little round face clouding a little. "The very thing I said."

"What does Alice say?"

"Ally!" he laughed. "Oh, she said that she had always found her two hands rather prone to get into mischief and poke themselves into other people's pies, and that, when they had the work of three to do, they might contrive to keep out of pickle! He's very fond of him, bless her! Good-bye, Ned. I'll give her your message."

Turning back into the dining-room, thought at first that it was empty, and was about to leave it again, when I found like a stifled sob caught my ear. There was Nat curled up in one of the big window-seats, her black eyes swimming in tears. This sight was so extraordinary that for a moment I stared in open-mouthed amazement. "Why, Nat, my dear little girl, what on earth is the matter?"

"Nothing!" She tossed her curly head, and gave a queer little hysterical sound between a sob and a laugh. "I don't know what I am crying for, unless it is that I am cracked. For goodness' sake, Ned, don't stand staring at one in that moon-struck way! Your eyes are positively goggling!"

Judging from these remarks that the young woman's temper was slightly heated, I averted my eyes, and stared industriously at nothing until her own were dried and her handkerchief was restored to her pocket. Then ventured to say, with a becoming amount of meek interrogation—

"Well, Nat?"

"I am very glad, Ned," she said softly.

"Oh, is that what you cried for?"

"Pooh, you goose! Are you going up to the rectory this afternoon?"

"I hadn't thought of it. I will, if you will come too."

"I can't. I must practice that song that madame wants me to sing to-morrow evening"—there was to be a dinner-party, rather a special affair—but I wish you would go. Say everything nice from me to Alice, won't you?"

I said I would, not displeased with the task for I had nothing to do, as it happened. Besides, I wanted to procure some gut for fishing at Bover's too, and so took myself to the rectory willingly, not without a touch of curiosity as to how Roger Yorke would take the news, and wondering if there had been any truth in the suspicion of Whittlesford that he was really in love with Alice Deeping. I hoped not.

Sirs,—I have used your MINARD'S LINIMENT for the past 25 years and whilst I have occasionally used other liniments I can safely say that I have never used any equal to yours.

If rubbed between the hands and inhaled frequently, it will never fail to cure cold in the head in twenty-four hours.

It is also Best for bruises, sprains, etc.

Yours truly,

On Second Thought.

What has become of the old-fashioned father who whipped his son when the latter disobeyed him?

If you can carry a mattress upstairs, you can take that as an indication that you are in good physical condition.

Speaking of leisure time, it is the player in three-handed billiard game who has it.

It is also well to remember that the fact that the world's champion heavyweight is a black man is no reflection on you.

No man may be said to be generally unknown unless he has been suggested for the Vice-Presidency.

For a young man the most difficult task is that of attempting to live up to a smart father.

A woman can do it with a hairpin, but a man needs a chest of carpenter's tools.

It is also well to remember that the man's excellent reputation is the result of unremitting industry, and not because of any exhibition of superior intelligence.

Eph Wiley says the women would get on better with the men if they used more velvet and less sandpaper.

As one interested in the ethics of sartorial art, we desire to ask why the man who puts the high school horse through its paces invariably dresses the act in evening clothes?

In Winter Time USE BEAVER BOARD!

If your new home is ready for walls and ceilings, or if you have some remodelling to do, don't wait for spring to plaster, but use BEAVER BOARD right now. BEAVER BOARD takes the place of lath and plaster: it may be decorated at once with paint in oil or water color and the house can be occupied at once.

BEAVER BOARD will not crack and never needs replacing. It is used for every class of building—home, store, office, &c., wherever you want durable, artistic, sanitary walls and ceilings.

We will show you how you can use BEAVER BOARD for your building or remodelling. Call, write or telephone.

ed as if she had spent at least two hours getting the effect, told me that she is always called at ten minutes to seven. "How can you ever do it?" I asked. "I couldn't," she said, "if it weren't that I get everything ready the night before. Just before I go to bed I see that everything I am to use from my undervest to my gloves and veil are where I can lay my hands on them instantly. Whatever stock I am to wear I put beside my waist, and if I am to have a clean ruche I sew it in. Then if I have any papers or samples or anything that I want to take to town the next day, I put them in my handbag with a clean handkerchief. So you see, everything is ready for me, and it doesn't take me half the time it would if I had to stop and hunt for things. And yet you would scarcely believe how short a time it takes me to get these things ready the night before.

The average housewife realizes that it is better to set the table for breakfast the night before—the time it takes to do it then is not to be compared with the impetus it gives her on her morning's task.

The wise housewives apply this principle to many other tasks, and learn to make their work easier by getting things ready in advance when possible.

And not only be wise, housewives either.

WOMAN'S WISDOM.

The worried mother wakes up to hear her baby's heavy breathing—a little cough—perhaps the croup or whooping cough. She does not want to send for the doctor when perhaps the trouble does not amount to much. Finally she thinks of that medical book her father gave her, The Common Sense Medical Adviser, by R. V. Pierce, M. D. She says "just the thing to find out what is the matter with the little dear." Two million households in this country own one—and it's to be had for only 31c. in stamps—1,000 pages in splendid cloth binding. A good family adviser in any emergency. It is for either sex. This is what many women write Dr. Pierce—in respect to his "Favorite Prescription," a remedy which has made thousands of melancholy and miserable women cheerful and happy, by curing the painful womanly diseases which undermine a woman's health and strength.

"My desire is to write a few lines to let you know what your valuable medicine has done for me," writes Mrs. Margaret Zimmerman, of 323 S. Benton Street, Baltimore, Md. "Before the stock came to our house I was a very sick woman. I wrote you for advice which was kindly given and which made me a different woman in a short time. After taking the first bottle of 'Favorite Prescription' I began improving so that I hardly knew I was in such a condition. I did my own housework—washing and ironing, cooking, sewing, and the worst of all nursed three children who had whooping cough. I hardly knew of the advent ten minutes before—so easy was it. The baby is as fat as a butter-ball. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best medicine for any woman to take when in this condition. I recommend it to all my friends."

Competency or Penury?

Statistics Show That at Sixty-Five Only Three Men out of Every Hundred own Property—Remainder Depend on Earnings and Assistance.

In the Christmas Number of The Prudential Bulletin the statement is made based on the Mercantile Agency Reports, that only three men out of every hundred in the United States and Canada own any property at sixty-five years of age.

"Man's average life is like a hill—the upward journey is usually one of production, and on the other side it is either competency or penury. The upward part of this hill is the profitable period of a man's life. It is a period in which he either makes his money or gets well launched into doing so. It is a period in which his finest powers are developed. Mercantile Agency reports show that at the age of 45, 83 per cent. of the business men in the country are to-day than of necessities to-morrow. We do not seem to be able to get it into our consciousness that it is possible for us to be in penury 20 or 25 years from now.

"Now take a glance at the other side. From 45 to 65 the man is going down. This is, in a sense, the age of losses. Statistics show that at the age of 65, 79 per cent. of the men in this country are dependent on their daily earnings or on their children for support. It hardly seems possible, does it? But it is an actual fact. There are two reasons for this. One is that we are a "happy-go-lucky" nation, thinking more of pleasures and luxuries into ventures that he would not have dreamed of doing before. Hard-headed, shrewd men, with the keenest of judgment—men who would never dream of speculating, have their judgment warped during this period, thus causing the large number of failures you see recounted daily in the Dun and Bradstreet news items. Are not these facts pregnant with meaning, and do they not point a warning to each of us?

"Does it not become imperative in the face of facts of this kind that we change our "happy-go-lucky" methods of living and at least lay by a sum that will provide for our old age? Luxuries may not be needed then, but comfort is, and the thought of dependence on others should make us shudder."

Certainly Ends Stomach Misery.

"Pape's Diapepsin" cures Heartburn, Gas, Sourness and Indigestion in five minutes.

Sour, gassy, upset stomach, indigestion, heartburn, dyspepsia: when the food you eat ferments into gases and stubborn lumps; your head aches and you feel sick and miserable, that's when you realize the magic in Pape's Diapepsin. It makes such misery vanish in five minutes.

If your stomach is in a continuous revolt—if you can't get it regulated, please, for your sake, try Diapepsin. It's so needless to have a bad stomach—make your next meal a favorite food meal, then take a Little Diapepsin. There will not be any distress—eat without fear. "It's because Pape's Diapepsin "really does" regulate weak, out-of-order stomachs that gives it its millions of sales annually.

Get a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. It is the quickest, surest stomach relief and cure known. It acts almost like magic—it is scientific, harmless and pleasant preparation which truly belongs to every home.

an electric light being fitted into the interior. The strength of the suction pull and of the light depends, too, upon the area of the body to be treated. The palm of the hand, of course, will stand greater pressure and more heat than will the face. The action of the suction cup alone is twofold: it draws from the skin impurities characteristic of certain not uncommon skin diseases; and furthermore, it draws the blood to the surface, the blood picks up waste matter that the suction does not get and carries it to the various excretory organs, such as the liver, kidneys and lungs, where in one form and another it is eliminated from the body. It also brings to the diseased part substances for building up new tissues and healing the wound. The circulation of the blood in the diseased area is especially stimulated by successively applying and withdrawing the suction cup.

In addition to the effects of the suction the remarkably stimulating effects of heat are introduced. The small lamp with the cup dilates the blood-vessels which lie near the surface of the body, allowing a greater volume of blood to reach the affected part, and also accelerating the flow of the blood stream. The heat rays find the skin in an especially receptive condition, for the suction opens the pores of the skin in a remarkable manner; and the push of the body surface toward the lamp serves to drive the rays into the interior of the skin.

TORONTO, Jan. 19.
For the first time for the past forty years, the Humber River has broken up after once freezing in mid-winter.

MONTREAL, Jan. 19.
Following the high level temperature of 46 degrees Fahrenheit, and a minimum register of 35 degrees, Friday was the warmest January day for eight years. Spring-like weather continues in Montreal. A record early opening of the harbor is prophesied by shipping men.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 19.
The Minister of the Interior, has issued the report of an engagement between the Turkish and Greek fleets between the Islands of Tenedos and Lemnos, lasting several hours. According to this official announcement there were heavy losses on both sides. The Turkish fleet returned safely to the Dardanelles, and the wounded are being brought to Constantinople. It is not known here whether this report refers to an engagement on Saturday, or whether the engagement would be renewed on Sunday.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.
Electric fans are buzzing in the offices here; mosquitoes are in New Jersey; Vermont is snowless; blue birds and robins are flying in Virginia; apple trees are budding in Maryland; out-door baseball practice is continuing in Philadelphia; and dandelion is being picked in many places. All the reports attest an unusually mild winter in the East. To-day is one of the warmest January days ever experienced. The Hudson River is being navigated at a later date than at any time since 1810, when Robert Fulton was running his steamer between New York and Albany, as late as January 20th. It is customary to close the river for navigation on Dec. 15th. Even in Maine most of the lakes and rivers are open, but the ice companies are still hoping for two weeks of zero weather.

LONDON, Jan. 19.
The Porte's decision to call the National Assembly on Tuesday, to consider the Balkan situation, probably heralds further concessions on the part of Turkey, concessions which could not be yielded by the Cabinet without risking its fall. In any case the Balkan delegates in London do not believe that the Porte's reply to the joint note of the Powers will be such a flat refusal as foreshadowed from Constantinople. Yesterday's despatches reported that the Turkish Government had reached a decision not to cede Adrianople or the Aegean Islands, but was willing to enter into negotiations respecting those Islands some distance from the Dardanelles. If Turkey's answer is unsatisfactory the Allies, in deference to Europe, will ask the Powers whether they have the means to compel Turkey to comply with their wishes. If not, the Allies will carry out the plan already announced, leading to a resumption of the war. In such event the Allies will regard all concessions made heretofore for the sake of peace, either to Turkey or the Powers, as void. Thus they will not recognize the undertaking consenting to an autonomous Albania, or the promise of Serbia or Montenegro to retire from the Adriatic. Questioned as to the possibility in the case of Austria employing force, one of the delegates said to-day—"We shall see whether the Triple Entente, and especially Russia, will permit such action on the part of Austria. If we are forced to fight another war, the cost of which is nearly $1,000,000 daily, we will not abandon the territories already occupied, unless driven out by force. That would mean a European war. If Austria were permitted to march on Belgrade and to bombard her troops on the Adriatic, and we were crushed, we should prefer to become Austrian, rather than to belong to the Slav race, when our mother, Russia, lacks the force or the will to protect us.

'Twas a Famous Victory

THE PLOT THAT FAILED.

Fight Around Flag — Threatening Letter—Coaker Was to Receive Worse

Fate Than Bond's at Western Bay

if He Visited Bay Roberts.

He Went, He Saw, He CONQUERED

We have heard frequently of the great doings north of the Fishermen's Protective Union. We have published messages from towns in Trinity Bay and Bonavista, telling of the great turn-out of people, banners, flags, the firing of guns and the applause of great bodies of fishermen, both in procession and at meetings. We had seen the procession of seafarers under the auspices of the Union in St. John's last Spring, but before Thursday we had never an opportunity of realizing fully how the F.P.U. movement has captured the hearts and heads of the fishermen. Here is a district which has returned a Tory member with unflinching regularity and the main events of Thursday took place in what has hitherto been the Hot Bed of Toryism.

At Brigus station, the band of that old town was at the station with some delegates and members who entrained for Clarke's Beach. The band played airs of welcome, and cheered for Coaker, and there was some firing of guns. When the train drew up alongside of the platform at Clarke's Beach, it was seen that elaborate preparations for a great day had been made. About a hundred F.P.U. crowded there, all in holiday attire, and almost to a man wearing handsome F. P. U. sashes. Many of them also wore guernseys with Union badges, and also had their coats decorated with Union buttons. The men cheered for Coaker and Lloyd in a way that could be heard a mile away, and fired off guns. They then lined up two and two and with three carriages in the procession, banners and flags, commenced a march of some four miles or so to Port de Grave. On the Fishermen's Hall and a number of houses, flags were flying, and at points along the route to Noseworthy's guns were fired and the men cheered for Coaker and Lloyd. From this point all along the route, through the dock to the Turning Road, entering Barened, almost every house and the men who were not in the parade fired guns as the parade passed and cheered the visitors and the Union. At this a parade of some hundreds of men from Barened, Port de Grave, Ship Cove, Blomedon and Hibbs' Cove, met the Clarke's Beach procession with the Port de Grave band. They opened their ranks and the Clarke's Beach procession passed through amidst cheers and hearty words of welcome. It was seen that this parade was also as profusely decorated with banners, flags and emblems of the F.P.U. as the Beach visitors. Barened gave a hearty greeting to Coaker and Lloyd and even more hearty was the welcome of Port de Grave. The whole place

Had Its Flag Hoisted

Was Decorated with Flags.

Barened had an arch laid on a structure of longers and planks. Port de Grave had two and one made of a caplin seine. Strings of flags were stretched across the street in both places and mottoes as "The F.P.U. forever." "The President of the F.P.U." "Sink or Swim with Coaker" could be read at intervals, while cheers were given frequently and taken up right along the procession, which was the length of Water Street from the Fishermen's Institute to Bowring Bros. premises. Many men also crossed the Arms in boat from Cupids and Burnt Head. At Port de was derisively pointed out to the visitors. This is a huge truncated prism of concrete, hollow inside, the second of its kind here. The other has disappeared, but that's another story. The one we saw was resting on the sloping beach. Some wag has painted on it Morris's Monument, to the huge enjoyment of people along the whole ridge. It is pointed out to all as a concrete example of the botchery and bungling of the Tory political apprentices of the Morris brand. It has been left there high and dry for the past two years, and the story of the other concrete block tells the reason. After the first block had been launched and towed to the place it was to be sunk and formed into a pier which should outlast the cliffs around it, it was filled with rocks and beach stones and sunk. When the first heavy sea came up, the

Morris Monument

Whole Structure Went to Pieces

and the fragments of the concrete casing and its rubble interior was washing into the little shallow anchorage for schooners that the harbor had hitherto provided. The people were immediately up in arms and objected strenuously fearing that the same course was followed with the same block, the little anchorage that was left would be absolutely lost and there the huge blocks remains to this day as a monument to passers-by of the incompetency of the Tory political apprentices. Thousands of dollars of the hard earned money wrung from the fishermen have been wasted and the result is worse than useless, as the bit of anchorage that fishermen had here is well nigh spoiled. We have already pointed out that there have been Tory members representing this district for twenty years continuously, and the Tory forts were Clarke's Beach, Barened and Port de Grave. But what a change! For everything we have been describing from the railway station to the Morris Monument took place in the Tory strongholds. The parade proceeded on its way to the Angle and a stop was made there to allow a funeral cortege to approach the churchyard on the hill above, while the people paid a silent tribute of respect to the mortal remains of her who was being interred. Then the procession proceeded to Ship Cove, and after staying there a little time, turned on their steps and made for the Orange Hall at Port de Grave. A notable feature of the parade which met us at Barened, was a procession of boys wearing the regalia of the who were cheerily greeted and felt the importance of the occasion as well as the oldest man in the parade. And the old fathers of the settlement were there too and as hearty in their welcome as the youngest in the crowd, nor were the women folks absent.

They gathered on the side of the road and at the doors of the houses and gave a winsome greeting to the visitors. The Hall was speedily filled. An address of welcome was read by the Chairman, Mr. Samuel Eford, which was loudly endorsed by the crowded house. President Coaker and Mr. Lloyd responded in short speeches, and the rafters rang with which greeted them and the points they scored. Mr. Coaker and Mr. Lloyd were then taken to Mr. John Mugford's, who with his good wife had provided right well for them during their stay. Many of the other visitors to the old town were supplied by the provident housewives of the settlement with a good tea. Two hours later, at six o'clock, the hall was packed as full as it could be with a crowd of some five hundred men most of whom had been parading the better part of the time and these men stood there till ten o'clock, when they dispersed to allow the session of the District Council to be held. During these four hours, the fishermen listened with the closest attention and favored the speakers with rousing cheers as point by point was made, argument was advanced, and hits were scored. There is not the slightest doubt in our mind that the hearts and heads of the fishermen are in this Union movement. Mr. Coaker has struck a chord of popular feeling, which is being responded to by the fishermen with their Whole Heart and Soul.

the Mighty Applause

They feel that they can come into their own and secure a square deal by the strength of united effort, directed intelligently, and they are determined to exercise their power might, to turn out Morris, and are anxious that Sir Robert Bond shall undertake the formation of a Government on a policy which they will heartily support. Mr. George Hampton is the candidate the fishermen of the district have selected to represent them. We shall have more to say about the meeting itself in our next articles. But we cannot close without emphasizing Mr. Coaker. "Let any of his supporters present tell Sir Edward Morris this will be the last Tory Government and his Government will be turned out next fall." This sentiment was repeated and met with the full approval of the large body of voters present. We cannot close without a word of commendation for the excellent music rendered in the parade and at the meeting by the Port de Grave band.

Here are some of the mottoes we read on the arches and strings of flags and decorations:

"The F.P.U. for Ever."

"Sink or Swim with Coaker."
"King George on the Throne
We honor and own
And the memory of Coaker for ever."

On Friday morning, the F.P.U. District Council session, was resumed and Mr. George Hampton selected as the standard bearer for the Union at the next election.

PARADE TO BAY ROBERTS FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

At 2 p.m., 100 men at Port de Grave assembled for a parade to Bay Roberts, where Messrs. Coaker and Lloyd had been invited. The parade started promptly with banners and flags and headed by the Port de Grave band. Along the route the men cheered for Coaker and Lloyd and the Union. They were accompanied by half a dozen joy guns, which were fired off at intervals. They were received with cheers and joy guns as they passed through the settlement at Barened. When the Port de Grave procession was going down the hill towards Black Duck Pond, a big parade of Bay Roberts men was seen on the Beach, who greeted the advent of the visitors with great cheering and a Continuous Fusillade of Joy Guns.

On the beach, the President of the F.P.U. and Mr. Lloyd were introduced to the Bay Roberts men. The platter then headed the procession, Messrs. Coaker and Lloyd followed in different carriages, and behind them came the Port de Grave men. All along the road there was great cheering for the visitors and the Firing of Hundreds of Charges.

Opposite the road from Coley's Point south a body of some dozen men were stationed who cheered for Morris. The response was prompt from hundreds of throats who cheered for the Union and Coaker. As the parade passed in the cheering and firing from the roadside, from the gardens and houses continued. Opposite the Coley's Point road there was a small body of men, apparently Piccotts, who kept silence as far as we observed. At the turn at Riverhead there was another small knot of men who did not cheer. But the firing and cheering for the visitors never ceased. Between this point and Piccott's house, the

Superior Merit Alone

Can win the approbation of those accustomed to the luxuries of life. Their approval is not lightly given. The unstinted praise accorded OLD HOME TEA by tea-drinkers of this class clearly proves its vast superiority.

Made from the finest, purest and most carefully selected teas, OLD HOME is precisely what a perfect tea should be—full flavored, rich and exquisitely mild.

the seventies, who had not been known for a generation to be out with a gun, told Capt. Eli Dawe he was out to welcome the visitors. It was time to turn out the Morris and Piccott crowd. Up to this point, i.e., near Piccott's house, there had been no sign whatever of hostility. For the four miles of parading from Clarke's Beach station to Ship Cove on the Thursday; from Port de Grave along the three or four miles of road to Piccott's house in the middle of Bay Roberts, there was not a sign of disorder. The drums of our ears were ringing with the shouts and shots of welcome. But here a scene took place which will for ever disgrace the Piccott heels who are responsible for it.

DISGRACEFUL SCENE.—F.P.U. ATTACKED.—UNION JACK TORN DOWN.—FLAG STAFF BROKEN.—FLAG TRAMPLED IN MUD.

THE PLOT THAT FAILED!

The parade of Bay Roberts men passed along unmolested. Immediately the carriage with Coaker and some officers in it, was passing a concerted rush was made, some men seized the horse and stopped the carriage. The Piccott gang formed a cordon across the street, many of them flushed and staggering with alcohol. They shouted out crying "Coaker shall go no further." They cried to one another to turn him back, and drive him out of Bay Roberts. There was a rush at the carriage. Others rushed at the

Here and There.

The plot failed.

Coaker and Lloyd won out. The Union triumphed.

Piccott's stronghold has been reduced.

A score of the Piccott gang stamped Lloyd down. But 1,000 Bay Roberts men gave Lloyd a great hearing without an interruption; once to a short speech near Klondyke; once to a long speech near the station; and a third time on the station platform.

The Bay Roberts Council is holding an investigation into the attack on F. P. U. and on the flag and on the interrupters in the hall.

A record was made in the numbers who formed the branch at Bay Roberts. Watch it grow.

Organized ruffianism in Bay Roberts has been put down. The day of rum is done. And 'Twas a famous victory.

The watchword of Bay Roberts is "Three Liberals for Harbor Grace District next time."

It was great. We would not have missed the scenes of enthusiasm along the Port de Grave ridge and at Bay Roberts on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, for anything. It was an eye-opener. It split the doom of the Morris Government. The gang of Tory hoodlums are a sorry crowd now. They did not show up on Saturday. The outrage on the Union Jack has incensed the good people of Bay Roberts, and more will be heard of it.

'Twas a Famous Victory!

Union flag and the Union Jack, which were being carried just ahead of Coaker's carriage. We saw both flags torn down and thrown on the ground. The staff of the Union Jack was broken. Rev. Mr. Whitehouse came out of his house quite near and called on the men to keep the Union Jack flying. Rev. Mr. Grimes, who was passing, protested against the "downing" of the Union Jack. The Bay Roberts men clear of the small gang of plotters, were incensed at the sight. Their blood boiled. They rushed to the rescue of the Union Jack. They lifted the flag of the Empire in triumph to the sky and the torn flag on the broken pole was floating high in the air and waved once more triumphantly in the breeze, guarded by a stalwart body of Bay Roberts men. The F.P.U. flag was then rescued and put aloft in triumph and guarded by a body of Union men and sympathizers of Bay Roberts and Port de Grave. Coaker sat quietly in his carriage, cool, collected and courageous. In his very quietness during them to assault the President of the Fishermen's Union, Lloyd, who was in a carriage, immediately behind Coaker, jumped out and rushed into the throng and cried out: "Put him far enough boys," and they responded with a will. The gang were rushed. Lloyd got into Coaker's carriage and sat beside Coaker and the parade started again and proceeded down the harbor amid tremendous shouts of triumph and "Ho."

Greeting of Guns and Ringing applause which never ceased for the next half mile. The parade stopped opposite to the Methodist Church. It had been intended to disband in this part of the harbor. But as the right to the freedom of the road had been attacked by the Piccott gang, it was determined to march back and cover the ground once more to vindicate the right of the public to parade unmolested by a gang of Tory political boogymen, and disturbers of the peace. Scores and scores of men from down the harbor who had not been in the procession, joined it, and the mighty mass of sympathizers re-traced their steps cheering and shouting victory as they passed the historic spot, where the assault had been made, and where the great plot had been frustrated to down the Union movement, not only in Bay Roberts but throughout the north. At Klondyke the parade was disbanded after short speeches from Coaker and Lloyd, and the announcement of a meeting in the Orange Hall at 8 p.m. The rights of free men and the honor of the flag had been vindicated. Bay Roberts was a seething cauldron of excitement and sensation. Never had there been so warm a welcome. Never had there been such a parade. Never had there been such an outrage perpetrated on the Old Flag as by the drunken Tory hoodlums who attacked the procession. Tories in their scores then and there denounced the outrage. Then and there said they would never support a Morris or Tory Government again. The incident has killed the Tory Government in Conception Bay. By seven o'clock the Hall was "chained" with people. Every available inch was taken up. Throngs could not find room. Hundreds went home as there was no room for them, but a score of Piccott heeleders were packed in one spot.

Determined to Break up Meeting.

At seven Coaker commenced the meeting. A score of howlers shouted him down to the disgust of the thousand present. The National Anthem was sung. In announcing the close of the meeting, Coaker said he had the names of those preventing him using the hall and would have Morine over to prosecute and would hold the meeting before he left Bay Roberts. The hoodlums then capitulated and allowed him to speak on Entomism. At eight o'clock, Lloyd arrived knowing nothing of this. A large crowd was outside who jammed the approaches outside and the entrance. The packed throng good-naturedly allowed him to go through, although they were packed like herring in a barrel. Before he went in he was advised not to go as the Piccott gang meant to prevent him speaking. But he went. Coaker was speaking and had been speaking an hour and continued speaking amid sundry interruptions till nine o'clock. He then introduced Lloyd who spoke for a quarter of an hour. Then the gang kept up continued shouts and stamping for five minutes longer and he continued speaking through it and sat down. At the end cheers were called for Lloyd and thousand throats responded. While the cheer called for Piccott met only with response from the knot of interrupters. An attempt was made to prevent Coaker having the hall to enroll members. This failed and

GREAT RECEPTION.

Special Evening Telegram.

WESTERN BAY.

Via Carbonear, To-day.
President Coaker arrived here on Saturday evening at 6.30 from Carbonear, having left Bay Roberts in the afternoon by train. The District Council Convention was sitting at the Orange Hall and the President at once entered and briefly addressed the Convention which then closed. As soon as it was known that the President had arrived volleys of musketry belched forth their welcome which was maintained until the public meeting opened at 8. The meeting opened, the hall being crowded. A. G. Hudson, the District Chairman, presided. The President at once took the platform amidst cheers and clapping of hands that made the building shake. For two hours he held the large audience spellbound. His remarks were cheered continually and he took a vote by show of hands upon several of the Union's proposals which received the unanimous support of the audience. At ten he had but half finished his address, and Sunday was near at hand and he had a local council meeting to hold that night. The audience wanted him to proceed further. There was no denying their request. He asked all who wanted more to raise their hands; the whole audience responded. To satisfy the unanimous wish of the people he consented to return to Western Bay in two weeks and give them another address. After two hours dealing with subjects he had not spoken about at the meeting, the hall shook with the token of appreciation in the form of cheers and clapping tendered the speaker for his promise to deliver another address. The enthusiasm of the meeting was wonderful, nothing like it was ever seen here before. The audience arose and sang the National Anthem. The President and Union were cheered and non-union men dispersed and Council meeting was then opened. There are no opponents of Coaker here, and scores of non-union toilers will respond to the call. We have heard Mr. Coaker several times before, this was his third public meeting here, but the last exceeded all others. The slogan is "Sink or swim with Coaker." The Union platform is, "What we Tories want, the President will be at Scilly Cove to-night."

appointed, Mr. Bradbury being elected Chairman. The next day another parade was held of Bay Roberts harbor people alone. Near the railway station 1,000 people assembled, and Coaker and Lloyd addressed the throng. Lloyd spoke for over half an hour and closed only as the train was entering the station. He spoke amidst continuous applause. There was not a solitary interruption to either the speeches of Lloyd or Coaker. Coaker read an anonymous letter he had received in St. John's from Bay Roberts, threatening him with a worse fate than had befallen Bond at last election at Western Bay. He handed the letter over to the Bay Roberts Council for investigation. He called on them to turn out the Morris Government and the response was loud and deafening. Lloyd denounced the Government in the strongest terms. At the end of his speech, cheers were given for the F.P.U., Coaker, Lloyd, the Liberal Party and the President.

Sir Robert Bond, Which Shook the heavens. Lloyd was asked to address the crowd again on the platform and received deafening applause. Coaker was given a grand send-off as the train steamed off for Carbonear with him. Lloyd remained behind. The parade was re-formed and marched down to Water Street, where half went up the harbor and half down the harbor. The procession was as long as Prescott Street. There was great cheering and the fuillade of suns, which began in the early morning and continued until the parade disbanded. The Piccottite gang were not in evidence. There was not the slightest disorder. Bay Roberts was completely captured. Hundreds of old-time Tories have turned against the Government. The Tory stronghold is captured. There never has been such a turn-over in the history of Bay Roberts. The plot to down the Union has failed miserably, and the Morris Party will have no show either in Harbor Grace District, nor in Port de Grave. It was the greatest glow Toryism has ever received in Conception Bay. To-morrow we shall have more to tell our readers about the Bay Roberts Victory.

Winter, North Below Zero.
The winter north is one of the severest on record. Capt. Kean of the Prospero says that the weather is the coldest in the history of the oldest inhabitants of the different places. He also reports that the heavy Arctic ice north is some of the thickest and heaviest he ever saw, and extends well out to sea. At Coachman's Cove, Englee and Conche the thermometer registered 22 below zero; Griquet 24 below and St. Anthony 29 below. When the Prospero was at these places the people engaged removing the freights were badly frostitten, despite the fact that they were well wrapped up. At St. Anthony the coastal boat was jammed in the harbor, and it was only after four hours of butting that she freed herself. Capt. Kean was speaking to Dr. Grenfell, who told him that for several days previously the mercury continuously stood below zero, the coldest in his experience.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mr. J. Duff and family wish to thank their many kind friends who sent wreaths and flowers to adorn the casket of their dearly beloved mother, and also those who otherwise helped and sympathized with them in their sad bereavement.—adv't.

Big Fire To-Day

This morning fire broke out in the residence of Mr. Moses Myers, on Alandale Road. At 6.50 an alarm from box 225 was sent in and the East End and Central Fire Brigades hastily responded, the latter company reaching the scene first. The firemen discovered the fire to have originated in the pantry, annexed to the kitchen and in the western end of the dwelling but how it got there seems mysterious. Immediately the firemen started to fight the flames which were issuing from the building. Fanned by a strong W.N.W. breeze the blaze was reaching serious proportions and for a while indications were that a conflagration would ensue and that that section of the city would be wiped out. At the outset the fire-fighters were hampered in their work considerably. For some reason or other the full force of water could not be had. But this was not the only drawback. The wind was blowing with such violence that it would not allow the firemen to stand up a ladder so as they could ascend the roof and get fair play at the fire. The firemen, however, despite their adversities fought faithfully and well. They soon had three streams of water playing on the burning building and in less than an hour had the fire under control. At this juncture it was learned that the dwelling next door occupied by Dr. Stafford had caught. A blaze was just starting here issuing from the living room and the firemen giving it their attention quickly extinguished it. At 8.30 all danger had passed and at 8.40 the "all out" signal was sounded.

DAMAGE DONE.

Dr. Stafford's house was only slightly injured but his furniture was partially destroyed by the fire and was to the extent of about $3,000 and $2,000 worth of furniture. The total damage done was considerable but is covered by insurance.

Nineteenth Year of Publication.

The Daily Mail Year Book.

Those who require a book of ready reference on all matters of general interest should secure a copy of the Daily Mail Year Book for 1913. This little book is a model of concise and accurate information. It may best be described as a topical encyclopaedia in miniature within its covers; facts and figures innumerable are presented in such a convenient manner that we can turn up in a second the subject on which enlightenment is desired, with the certainty of finding all necessary particulars, special articles on leading questions of the day, written by acknowledged authorities on the subjects dealt with, and over one thousand biographies of prominent people, the noteworthy features of the new Year Book. Its scope is practically unlimited, its outlook is strictly impartial, and it is an invaluable aid in keeping abreast of the times. No one should be without a copy. Only 17c. Post-paid, 19c.

CONSTANTINOPLE, To-Day.
The Government has decided to convene a National Assembly on Tuesday in order to take the Balkan situation under consideration. A serious quarrel occurred recently on board the Turkish warships in the Dardanelles between some officers who were anxious to fight the Greeks and others who considered the Turkish fleet was no match for the Greek fleet. Blows were exchanged before the quarrel was settled. Fifteen officers were wounded. Terrible trouble arose through the circulation of a manifesto signed by women of Turkey, suggesting the forts should sink the Turkish warships whose spirited officers always fled at the approach of the Greek fleet. It was because of this slur that Hamidiss made an adventurous cruise to Syria.

OPORTO, To-Day.
Forty-three lives were lost from the Lamport and Holt liner Veronesse near Leixoes on Thursday during a heavy gale. There were 234 persons aboard the vessel—142 passengers, crew, 92. Of these 191 were saved. Five persons died aboard steamer from exposure, 33 swept off by seas or perished while being transferred ashore by life lines.

Memory Schools.

A blessing on those modern schools in which we mortals find a way, by means of simple rules, to keep our facts in mind. The man who cannot recollect his front side from his rear, may get his latitude correct by taking lessons here. His mind becomes a filing case in which he stores away the helpful facts, each in its place, for use some future day. And men who once were failures rank have learned to nail the scads; they're presidents of trust and bank—according to the ads. Schools do a noble work, indeed, we're deeply in their debt; and now a school we greatly need to teach us to forget. We poison all our pleasures here; we keep old woes in mind, and nurse stale grudges by the year, which should be left behind. We worry over divers stakes we vainly tried to win; we brood upon our ancient breaks when we should blithely grin. This little life is speeding fast; the spectres of the past go hang or bump the bumps. O'er vanished things, like dreary fools, we fuss and fume and fret; and so I say we need some schools to teach us to forget.

At $35,000 Too Much.

The advice which Sydney Smith gave to Lord Murray on the subject of diet was probably sound. "If you wish for anything like happiness in the fifth act of life," he wrote, "eat and drink one-half of what you could eat and drink. Did I ever tell you my calculations about eating and drinking? Having ascertained the weight of what I could live upon so as to preserve health and strength, and what I did live upon, I found that between ten and seventy years of age I had eaten and drunk forty-four horse-wagon loads of meat and drink more than would have preserved me in life and health; the value of this mass of nourishment I consider to be worth $35,000 sterling. It occurred to me that I must, by my voracity, have starved to death fully 100 persons. This is a frightful calculation, but irresistibly true."

How she Knew.

Appropos of the servant maid difficulty I heard a good story the other day. The wife of a very well known Irish official was in want of another nurse, and among those who applied for the position was a good-natured looking girl of about seventeen. "You tell me," said the official's wife, "that you are very fond of children, that is all very well in its way, but do you understand anything about the duties of a nursery?" "Yis, mum," was the reply. "Sure, I used to be a child wanst meself."—London Tatler.

A Mystery Near Boston.

Body of Woman Found Near Roadside.
Malden, Mass., Jan. 2.—The body of a woman found yesterday beside the road near Holy Cross Cemetery in the Linden section of this city was identified to-day as that of Mildred Donovan, of Revere, Mass. Medical Examiner Thomas M. Darell, of Somerville, after performing an autopsy with the assistance of Medical Examiner William D. Swan, of Cambridge, and Professor William F. Whitney, of Harvard Medical School, declined to sign a death certificate, and none of the three physicians would make public any opinion as to the cause of death.

Aside from a broken nose and abrasions on the face, no marks of violence were found, and the police were uncertain whether the woman was murdered or died as a result of accident or illness. Her face lay in a pool of blood. There was indication that she had been dragged through the grass from the highway, a short distance, and from the appearance of automobile tracks near by, the police think she was brought to the place in a motor car. The autopsy showed that she had been dead about eight hours when found early this afternoon.

The identification was made by the girl's stepfather, Frank Menard, foreman of a milk company in Revere.

King George Dictates Private Correspondence to His Daughter.

Princess Mary, who is at present paying a visit with the Queen to the Dowager Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Sterlitz, at Neu Sterlitz, a pretty old-fashioned little town, some sixty miles from Berlin, is having her first taste of continental life—part of the necessary arduous preparation for a throne.

For all the young members of the British Royal Family the upbringing is at all times of the most exacting character, but as the only daughter of the King, particular care has been taken that Princess Mary should be equipped as befits an English princess.

Queen Mary, knowing the responsibilities of queenship, is aware that the education of her daughter, who will probably one day fill a European throne, is too vital for any mistake to be made, and in consequence Princess Mary's career has been mapped out with painstaking care.

Princess Mary began her schooling at the age of four together with her brothers in the royal schoolroom. This continued up till three years ago when the question was discussed whether Princess Mary should go to boarding-school; but it was finally decided that it would be best for her to continue her studies at home under special tutors.

Like her brothers she has been brought up from infancy to speak French and German, and in addition she has a very good knowledge of Latin, Greek and Italian. It would scarcely be imagined, however, that typewriting would enter into a royal curriculum. As a matter of fact, Princess Mary has had lessons on a machine, and is now an expert typist. This last little item of education was an idea of her own. She was very anxious to assist the Queen in attending to the huge batches of correspondence which reach the royal residences each day, and it is now said that not only the Queen, but King George also dictates private letters for his daughter to type.

As everyone knows, Queen Mary is a great lover of home life, and in pursuance of this fondness has brought her daughter up to a practical knowledge of all domestic affairs, which are necessary for the proper personal control of a household. The young princess has been taught needlework, and is quite proficient in the art of cooking.

In addition, Princess Mary is a very fair all round sportswoman, and although angling is one of her favorite outdoor pastimes, she also follows the hounds and can handle a gun.

In short, although her royal highness is necessarily restricted in her actions, she is always very happy, and well fitted for the great part she is destined to play in years to come.

What I Saw at Devine's

Great Change of Business Sale.

(By a Spectator.)

January month is not generally supposed to be a busy month along Water Street—nor is it now if we make one or two exceptions. For all that, last week was certainly an interesting time at Devine's. Walking down town in the early part of the week I was surprised to notice crowds of people flocking at express rate to Devine's Great Change of Business Sale, and it awakened my curiosity so much I had to go in and see what it was, all about.

WHAT I SAW.

The first sight that greets the shopper as he or she enters is a large sign which says that a "Genuine Sale is now in force." Piled high, piece upon piece, on a side counter, is an enormous bulk of Flannelette, perhaps in all some three or four hundred pieces—in Pink, Cream, White and Striped effects—splendid quality goods at from 7c. per yard up; and no doubt for anyone who wants Flannelette it is a great time to get it cheap.

On a large table in the centre of the store, around which an eager army of lady shoppers clustered, some marvellous bargains of Dress Goods Ends were being offered, and were going at what seemed to me very low prices indeed.

But the great attraction was the Whitewear section, where hundreds of dainty Children's Dresses, Corset Covers, 50c. Blouses, Princess Skirts, Embroideries, etc., were displayed. Moving a little farther on towards the centre of the store, Boys' Suits and Overcoats are on sale, and are reduced down to cost in price to clear all out. These goods are great value, and whoever gets them no doubt will get a bargain. They seem to be going fast.

Of course, as a man, what interested me most was men's apparel, for I wanted a good suit at a low price. In these days, when the cost of living is so high, I find that it is too much of a grind to be giving $20.00 to $25.00 for tailor-made suits, so I thought of an American Cut Readymade. I was not disappointed, for here to my heart's delight were dozens of up-to-date Readymade American Cut Suits at half price. My purchase at $10.00 filled the bill and fitted me in every respect as well as suits I had been in the habit of paying $20.00 for.

Another great bargain is the Blankets, and no doubt shrewd housekeepers are not slow in taking advantage of the good value offering.

THE HELP.

This feature struck me very forcibly. As I entered it was not difficult to see that this well trained staff are ever on the alert to give courtesy and attention to every customer, whether he is a man with a million or a man with a dollar. They spare no pains in showing one through the whole stock and pointing out the bargains in every department. One feels at home and no way embarrassed when looking for any article.

THE STORE.

Particularly pleasing is the fact that all the goods are displayed on the first floor. There are no steep stairways to mount, consequently there is no getting out of breath following sales' help around. Everything is completely ordered for the customer's convenience.

THE CROWD.

All the week immense crowds thronged this busy centre, and as the days went on the numbers seemed to swell, until Saturday night it was almost impossible to gain admittance. Every inch of space in the rear of the store was covered with busy buyers, and in front the congestion was so great that the doors could scarcely be opened. Before leaving I asked the Manager a few questions, as follows:—

Did you expect such a crowd as this when you started? Well, he said, if these prices don't bring a crowd there is no use in a Genuine Sale.

How long do you expect to continue this sale? All January, he replied, until every article is sold right out.

What do you intend doing? I asked. My plans are all laid for a change of business, he said, but I prefer waiting a short time before giving details to the public.

Before closing let me say that the bargains are the best I've ever seen, and anybody who has a dollar to spend in Dry Goods, they cannot do better than go to the

The Outport News Message.

Special to Evening Telegram.
CHANNEL, Saturday Evening.
The Outport news compiler having finished boasting the Premier's political peregrinations around Conception Bay, now turns his attention to the Reids and gives them a pat on the back for their able efforts in keeping the railway line across country open during the past week. Yesterday's despatch contains the information that the steamer Home will bring freight from Port aux Basques, and Solway from North Sydney, thus relieving the tie up caused by destruction of railway bridge. So far as the Home's load of freight goes it will not relieve the freight congestion any, but the main point which the booster overlooks is the fact that people in the Straits of Belle Isle are still waiting for their winter supplies which should have been to them long ago. How they are going to get them now troubles Sir Edward Morris not a whit, so long as he can picnic around making fine speeches in hope to win back a lost cause. Ever since the tie up, during which time the West Coast has received no mails from St. John's, the Bruce and Invermore have been making regular trips from Port aux Basques to North Sydney and return, presumably to qualify for the trip subsidy, only it is quite possible that the Premier omitted telling the people of Bay Roberts and Spaniard's Bay of this.

Jan. 2nd, 1913.

Dear Sir, I will certainly report to you. The glasses that you fitted for me several months ago give me great satisfaction and I say from my heart with all sincerity that I would not part with my glasses for ten times what they cost. For several years I could not make out a person's features at the shortest distance away, so you can imagine how near-sighted I was and I feel very thankful that I met you at the Hotel at Twillingate, and had my eyes tested, and got glasses from you. What a difference a suitable glass makes to the eye. I can now easily see anything at an ordinary distance. I can certainly say that you are a noble and practical man in your optical business. Every one whom you treated at Twillingate is quite satisfied with your glasses. I confidently recommend every one with afflicted eyes to use your glasses. I remain,

Yours sincerely,

New Pilot Boats

New pilot boats are now being provided for the pilots of this port. Shipwright H. S. Butler is now about to build two which will be 33 feet long and made of the best material. These will be fitted with powerful motors which will give them a speed of 10 knots. They will be good rough weather craft and no matter how fiercely Old Boreas blows they will be able to make port and do their work without danger to their crews.

Propsero Returns From The Northward

The S. S. Propsero, Capt. A. Kean, arrived back from northern ports at 2 p.m. yesterday. The passage was a tedious one. The ship owing to heavy ice conditions only got as far as Belle Isle and all the freight she had for Labrador points in the Straits was brought back. In endeavouring to get around the Island the heavy Arctic ice pressed in, the Propsero became jammed and but for the 'swell' that raged driving the ice off the land it is possible she would be ice-bound yet. Coming south adverse conditions were encountered and much difficulty was had landing mails and passengers. The steamer brought for here a large freight and the following passengers:—Messrs. J. J. Collins, P. Marcean, J. M. Jackman, T. M. Martin, F. Oakley, S. J. Blackler, J. Wells, M. Bouzan, E. B. Sainsbury, Yetman, Coleridge, Reader, Bugden, Morris, R. W. Prescott, M. Ryan, J. Sinnott, D. Saturdays Accident.

A man named Churchill, a reservist on H. M. S. Calypso was the victim of an accident Saturday night. He was driving to his home in Portugal Cove when suddenly the sleigh striking a gulch gave a lurch and the occupant was thrown out face downward, as a result Churchill's jaw bone on the left side of the face was badly fractured. He was picked up and driven hurriedly to the General Hospital where every attention was given him and where he will have to remain for some time yet.

Stricken With Hemorrhages.

As Mr. Nicholas Power, brother of Mr. Peter Power, of Murphy's West End barber store, was proceeding down New Gower Street, a couple of nights ago he felt the ground unsteady and had to be driven home. He was afflicted with hemorrhage of the lungs and lost a large quantity of blood. He was still in being attended by Dr. O'Connell and is dangerously ill.

More Smallpox.

On Saturday evening Dr. Brehm was apprised that another case of smallpox was discovered at Broad Cove, a young man named Peter Squires, having the ailment. The disease is mild, he is doing well and the necessary precautions have been taken.

Shall We Know Each Other There?

When we hear the music ringing
Through the bright celestial dome,
When sweet angel voices ring,
Gladly bid us welcome home,
To the land of ancient story,
Where the spirit knows no care;
In the land of light and glory,
Shall we know each other there?

When the holy angels meet us,
As we go to join their band,
Shall we know the friends that greet us,
In the glorious spirit land?
Shall we see the dark eyes shining
On us as in days of yore?
Shall we feel their dear arms twining
Fondly round us as before?

Yes, my earthborn soul rejoices,
And my weary heart grows light;
For the thrilling angel voices
And the angel faces bright,
That shall welcome us in Heaven,
Are the loved of long ago,
And to them 'tis kindly given
Thus their mortal friends to know.

Oh! ye weary ones and lost ones,
* Droop not, faint not, by the way;
Ye shall join the loved and lost ones
In the land of perfect day.
Harp-strings, touched by angel fingers
Murmur in my raptured ear;
Evermore their sweet tones linger,
We shall know each other there.

NO REPORT.—Up to midnight there was no news of the Solway leaving Sydney. It is likely, however, she sailed for here last evening. She has a full cargo.

WOMAN'S WORK is never done. So runs the proverb. But with Sunlight Soap as a helper the wash is quickly over. Dirt flies before Sunlight Soap like the morning mist before the rising sun.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

TRY THE SUNLIGHT WAY.

The Finishing School

BY H. L. RANN.

The finishing school is an expensive institution where tall, raw boned girls are sandpapered down until they can be shelled with culture in the form of the French classics, the high hand-shake, the Richmond, Virginia, accent, and two Chopin etudes, after which they are allowed to return home and spring a dazzling relay of tube gowns.

All of our best finishing schools are located in the far east, where people have plenty of time to read Balzac and learn the turkey trot.

They are always presided over by some stern spinster who has accumulated more culture than coin and who teaches the girls how to make salad dressing and divinity fudge, which they carry home with them and inflict upon their parents after a girl has graduated from the domestic science department of a finishing school, she can turn out every thing in the line of food except ham and eggs, boiled potatoes and salt-raising bread.

When the parents of an uneasy daughter discover that she is not likely to graduate from the Eighth grade unless her father can get elected to the school board, she is sent to a tide-water finishing school and doped with the dead languages and other stimulants. She is taught the proper use of the napkin ring, how to eat grapefruit without wearing smoked glasses, and the art of modulating the voice so that she cannot be heard in the next block. She is also taught the difference between Schumann-Heink and Shakespeare and otherwise toned up.

Note Of Thanks,

Rev. C. A. and Mrs. Whitmarsh wish to express their deep sense of appreciation of the many touching expressions of sympathy which have reached them in their great sorrow, from friends in the city as well as the members of their own church. They also desire to place on record their sincere thanks to the following friends who by sending wreaths, or showing sympathy in other practical ways, made it easier to bear the blow which has come so suddenly and heavily upon them:—Mrs. H. J. Woods and daughters, Cochrane St. Church Officials, Cochrane St. Sunday School. The young ladies of the Teachers' Training Class, Mrs. Capt. John Goobrie, and the members of the Cochrane St. Choir.—adv't 11

Read Interesting Paper

At the meeting of the Current Events Club held Saturday evening, there was a large attendance. A paper read by Miss Campbell, who studied at Edinburgh, was of absorbing interest to all present. It dealt with the treatment of tuberculosis by Dr. Phillips, a famous physician of that city, and showed the utility and great benefit to sufferers from this disease which the doctor's treatment affords. Teas were served after the reading.

One Dose Relieves a Cold--No Quinine

Pape's Cold Compound cures colds and grippe in a few hours.

You can surely end Grippe and break up the most severe cold either in head, chest, back, stomach or limbs, by taking a dose of Pape's Cold Compound every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken.

It promptly relieves the most miserable headache, dullness, head and stuff, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, mucous catarrhal discharges, running of the nose, soreness, and rheumatic twinges.

Take this wonderful Compound directed, without interference with your usual duties and with the knowledge that there is nothing else in the world, which will cure your cold or end Grippe misery so promptly and without any other assistance or after-effects as a 25-cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which drugist can supply—accept no substitute—contains no quinine—relief in every home. Tastes nice.

Cross Country Service Resumed

The cross-country train service interrupted by the carrying away of the bridge over Leach's Brook has been resumed, and the train which left here Wednesday crossed over the trestle there at noon yesterday and went on to Port aux Basques. No express was despatched last evening but that which left here Saturday evening goes on to Port aux Basques. The express with the Bruce's and Invermore's mails which left Port aux Basques on Saturday should arrive here to-day.
