CHAPTER XVI.

On the contrary, it would leave her an appreciable trifle to the good. Rupert was thoughtful beyond his sex. What an excellent husband he would make poor Sydney! Mrs. Alwyn felt quite a glow of regard for him, pleasant fellow that he was! She took his arm affectionately, with "That would do! That would do!" "amply," she was on the point of saying, but substituted, "as I should contrive it." There was no need to arm Rupert with the notion that he was acting very liberally. She preferred the obligation to rest with her. So she concluded, "And I will arrange that other point, Rupert, and take pains to settle it speedily, as you wish."

"Thanks, very much." It took a load off his mind, and he could add with quite a cool air, "Of course you see why it is so desirable."

"Perfectly" ("Hang it, I hope not! thought the gentleman.") "And now if we are to dine at eight, I think I time, we went indoors, Rupert."

He took off his straw hat with, "Then au revoir, mamma!"—and profoundly contented with the compact just concluded, went gayly into the house, up to his own room three steps at a time, singing "Love in the eyes sits playing" so lustily over his quarter of an hour's dressing that the perched sparrows outside had a chance of beauty-sleep till he had descended to the drawing-room in the evening garb which, is he might believe the testimony of many mirrors invested him with his most gentlemanly and attractive exterior.

"Sydney not come!" he said, impatiently, on entering, and Leonora the one occupant of the apartment, replied, rather sarcastically—for though all this exaltation of Sydney was needful means to a desirable end, she was getting thoroughly tired of it—"No, actually not here yet, poor poor Rupert. So you must wait a little longer before you can verify the charming ditty you have been waking up the echoes with so melodiously."

"Laughing at me!" said Mr. Villiers, seating himself by his faithful cousin. The characteristics of kinship were strong between these two. He could play upon her moods as readily as she upon her cottage piano. "And when she knows how keenly sensitive I am to feminine ridicule. Cruel, very! But, Norah, my dear—pardon!"—as the young lady stiffened her rounded figure warningly—"I should say 'my dear Norah,' that's correct enough for cousins, isn't it?—remember two can indulge in these playful pleasantries. Permit me to inquire who may be the 'te' associated with the 'mo' in the strains I had the happiness of listening to just now. Such impassioned vocalization signifies something individual, not general. Benignly enlighten me, dear coz."

"Nonsense!" said Leonora, a smile belying a frown.

"Now had that 'te' anything to do with a clerical act of nobility? A gentleman in a soft wide-awake, who walked up from the village with you this morning?"

involved five minutes' conversation, deliberation, and blushes!"

"Really, Rupert, this is intolerable! If I had known you were playing the spy—"

"Hard names, hard names, young people! Now what's amiss?" This was Mrs. Alwyn's question as she came rustling in.

"Nothing very bad, Aunt Helen. Only Leonora perversely declines to tell me what absorbed her and Mr. Duvesne this morning. And I consider that, as a near relative, I ought to know it."

"Then, most inquisitive of men," cried Leonora, her mother listening carefully, while pretending to laugh, "hear and believe! Mr. Duvesne was asking my opinion about the hangings of a room."

"Innocent enough," said Mrs. Alwyn.

"That depends, Aunt Helen. What room, Cousin Norah?"

"Curiosity—your name is Rupert Villiers!" cried the young lady, nothing loathing to be pushed to the extremity of confession. "It was a—morning-room; the pretty west one you noticed, mamma, when the rectory was building. Mr. Duvesne's study is just the opposite side of the vestibule."

"Eh! Et lui! H'm! 'Pour moi—our toi!' hummed Mr. Villiers, mischievously. "And what color wished 'he,' and what color counseled you, Cousin Norah?"

"Rupert, you are too absurd. Mr. Duvesne fancied pale pink, but I aid at once that would go very badly with—"

"Squirrel-colored hair!" audaciously flicking at her much-be-curled tresses.

"Pshaw! With the yellow-red of sunset, Mr. Villiers. They mix most horribly. So I suggested pale blue, and Mr. Duvesne—"

"Coincided, of course! And right you are, Norah. Blue for you blondes you know, all the world over!"

"Mamma, silence him! Tell him such badinage is very vulgar. It must be put a stop to. Positively I can't listen to it any longer!" cried Leonora, getting up with a maidenly display of affront.

"Well, here comes something to re-lease you," said Mrs. Alwyn. "I heard wheels turning in at the gate, think."

Instantly Mr. Villiers was out and into the hall. His aunt followed more leisurely. Leonora was deserted with a suspicious pout on her full lips and keen desire burning within her that er time to command such devoted lacry might be nigh.

The spirit of fun animating Mr. Villiers the minute before was put to the right-about as he hastened to the porch, first to assist Sydney in descending from the cab which had brought her home. His attitude was erection for the occasion; a mixture of tender deference and lover-like impatience calculated to set the stamp of surrender to himself on the "impressionable" nature of his nearly betrothed. But whether absence had had its proverbial effect, and whether the wonder-working little god were enthroned in his lady's eyes, the anxious gentleman was unable at once to judge. Sydney kept her glance nervously averted. Nor would she suffer him, as he desired, to clasp her fingers for a moment in the porch.

Instead, she loosed his arm, and went quickly to her mother, meeting her cool, self-contained welcome with a tremulous embrace that held un-speakable depth of deprecation and emotion. So monstrous to the girl's generous instincts had seemed the harsh judgment of her mother's do-ings to which her first passionate outburst of humiliated pain had driven her, that now, as cheek lay to cheek, she felt a very Judas, yet, somehow, sorrier for her mother than herself—her mother, after all!

Mrs. Alwyn was quick to mark dis-turbing signs, which she set down to weariness.

"I was very wrong," she said, "to let you take that journey in three days. You are tired, Sydney?"

"Dreadfully."

"You did not rest as you ought the day between."

"Rest! Oh, no, mamma."

The notion was so grotesque. Coming atop the long strain of cheerfulness kept up perforce before Mrs. Dacie, it fetched for answer a little cry, half laughter, near tears. A single soft syllable would have plunged Sydney into the yet unknown regions of hysteria. But from such weakness her mother's promptitude shielded her.

"Ah! you are like all young people—not to be trusted out alone. Here, Phillips, take Miss Alwyn's bag up stairs, and help her to dress. Posting about in this way, you have had no regular meals, of course. Be quick down to dinner, my dear. We waited for you."

"Must I come—?" Sydney began.

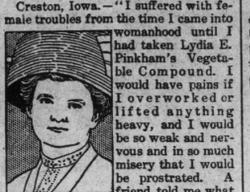

"Most certainly you must," Mrs. Alwyn broke in. And, conscious that she must spend no strength on skirmishes, but save all for the battle royal close upon her, Sydney gave in; wearily changed traveling-clothes for a dress that matched her pale face, and re-appeared to endure the ceremonial of four courses, with the best semblance of appetite she could command.

But it was not a successful dinner. Leonora at one end of the table, looked, as she felt, petulant. Mrs. Alwyn, having made careless inquiry for Mrs. Dacie, dropped the journey and its object altogether, bestowing her spare minutes in lady-like vituperation of the Hedyngham fishmonger, who had sent an inferior cut of salmon to that ordered.

Finds Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Creston, Iowa.—"I suffered with female troubles from the time I came into womanhood until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A friend told me what your medicine had done for her and I tried it. It made me strong and healthy and our home is now happy with a baby boy. I am very glad that I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and do all I can to recommend it."—Mrs. A. B. BOSCAMP, 504 E. Howard Street, Creston, Iowa.

300% increase in the power of the "soldier" cells that defend the body—after feeding on Virol

Striking Evidence

An elaborate series of investigations recently conducted at a well-known sanatorium has definitely proved that the addition of Virol to the diet exercises a remarkable influence on the action of the white cells of the blood, which protect the body against germs. The experiments showed there was a distinct and progressive increase in the functional activity of the white cells in proportion to the number of weeks the patient

BEFORE FEEDING ON VIROL. Photograph of the blood under a most powerful microscope, showing that the rod-like germs have not been attacked by the "soldier" cells.

AFTER FEEDING ON VIROL. Photograph of the blood under a most powerful microscope, showing that the "soldier" cells have absorbed nearly all the germs, which they then destroy.

After twelve weeks' Virol diet, the power of the white cells of the blood to destroy the germs was four times as great as that of the average blood of those who had not been fed on Virol.

The infinitesimal "soldier" cells of the blood that defend you die by millions in your body daily; millions of new ones have to take their place. Virol is made of the particular kinds of foods, beginning with bone-marrow, that feed the blood-making bones and glands, thus providing the body with healthy blood crammed with "soldier" cells. Everyone—man, woman and child—especially those who are delicate, wasting or run down, should therefore take Virol. Feed babies and young children on Virol; they are subject to so many ills from which these "soldier" cells alone can defend them.

A Great Mistake.

By RUTH CAMERON.

One of the greatest mistakes of my life is not to have kept a scrap book.
What we read means a great deal to most of us. We find our own d u m b thoughts expressed as we should have liked to express them had we the gift of speech. We find new vistas of thought; we find scraps of philosophy that influence our lives, and bits of poetry that feed our souls.
Now some of these things we find in books, either books that we are fortunate enough to own, or books that we have borrowed from a friend or a library and cannot afford to possess.
But I do not think I should exaggerate if I said that at least half of the printed words that strike fire from our hearts we find in the magazines and newspapers. And these we may have to keep without any expense if we will only take the trouble to wield a pair of shears for half a minute.
How strange that so few people will take that much pains.
Something about South America came up in a conversation the other day and the other party said, "There, that reminds me of a story about South America that I saw while ago in a magazine. Did you read it? I tell you it was great. It illustrates just what we were saying. 'I'll try and find it for you.'"
But of course he forgot to hunt it up and when he remembered the magazine was not to be found.

The echo of a bit of poetry I read in a magazine has been haunting me for months, but I can't remember which publication it was in, and as our old magazines were given away during my absence on a journey I have no way to locate it. When I saw it I meant to save it, but no scrap book was waiting for it and so I didn't. And now I'd gladly pay the price of a whole volume of poems for that one. Incidentally perhaps some of my reader friends can tell me where to find it. The last and only line I can remember was "if you were kneeling at my feet, I'd neither stay nor care."
A friend of mine has kept scrap books since her childhood. She has perhaps twenty or thirty of them. They are not so large as the old-fashioned scrap books and hence can stand up in her book case like ordinary books. Some contain poems and scraps of philosophy. One particularly interesting book is filled with likenesses.
We frequently see pictures in newspapers and magazines that remind us of some friend, but when we come to show the likeness to that friend we can't find it. This woman has kept all these likenesses and they make a most interesting volume in her set of scrap books.
I notice that she consults the two bookcases that hold her scrap books much more often than she does the other ten which are filled with ordinary books.
Several times I have started scrap books and grown weary in well doing. But it is never too late to mend. Tomorrow I'm going to start a new one. Will you join me?

Patagonia.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Sitwash."

Patagonia is the name given to the tail of South America which is about as useful as the "tail" of a porterhouse steak. It is a little larger than the State of Texas and is not overcrowded. Although it has been settled for almost 400 years there is still room for the newcomer to edge in and take up a valley or country or congressional district for a door yard.
The population has never been accurately counted because the census enumerators generally wore out a pair of shoes between each house and abandoned the job in disgust, but it is believed that if the Patagonians were to rally as one man they would be sufficiently numerous to make a fair-sized audience at a big league baseball game.
Patagonia is usually supposed to be the home of giant savages who eat the rash visitor in a careless and casual manner. This has given the country a bad name and nobody uses it for a summer resort though the temperature seldom goes above eighty. There are savages in Patagonia, but four hundred years of contact with civilized people has been too hard on them and they only number about 100. As the country is 1,500 miles long by 800 miles wide it would not be hard to dodge these people even if they were not so busy dodging the white man.
Patagonia was formed by nature in an extravagant and careless mood. She scattered mountains over half of it and debris over much of the remainder. Half of the country is only fit to be sold at long range to restless farmers by eloquent land agents and why American real estate men have not seized the golden opportunity to pick this stuff up at one cent an acre, payable in installments, and sell it for fine wheat and orchard land is a mystery. It is so unlike them.

Patagonia belongs mostly to Argentina and can be reached by dropping overboard on the way to Cape Horn and swimming ashore—though there are a few railroads in the northern part. It is a dreary fizzle as a country and the hardy settlers who are trying to make it boom are as lonely as an ex-republican boss in Congress.

Situation in Mexico

Special to the Evening Telegram.
WASHINGTON, April 22.
The German ship Ypiranga docked at Vera Cruz to-day. American marines took charge of 2,000,000 rounds of ammunition and 250 field guns, which the ship was carrying for Huerta.

HAVANA, April 22.
Ten thousand boxes of ammunition and 25 machine guns consigned to the Federal Commander at Vera Cruz, have been removed from the steamer Monterey, by orders from New York. This consignment will be deposited in the government powder magazines.

LAREDO, Texas, April 22.
Garrett, the United States Consul at Nuevo Laredo, in Mexico, to-day served warnings upon all Americans remaining in the district about Nuevo Laredo to cross into the States at once. Garrett urged them to sacrifice their belongings and make speed.

WASHINGTON, April 22.
"I am sorry, terribly sorry," were President Wilson's first words, when the news of loss of life at the taking of Vera Cruz first reached him. Today the President was sad and disheartened. As he walked to his office, his head bowed, his face was a study in deep feeling and gravity.

WASHINGTON, April 22.
Reinforcements from Rear-Admiral Badger's fleet landed to-day at Vera Cruz under the guns of the American warships to render aid in taking the entire city of Vera Cruz, according to official advices to the Navy Department. The consul reported to-day to the State department that 150 Mexicans were killed and wounded yesterday at Vera Cruz.

VERA CRUZ, April 22.
Landing parties from vessels of the American fleet, under Rear-Admiral Badger, were greeted with quite general firing from snipers, when the boats approached the shores at 4.30 this morning. Mexican sharpshooters occupied the roofs of houses in the central part of the city and were able to fire down upon the American marines and bluejackets as they neared land from the vessels lying off shore.

VERA CRUZ, April 22.
General Maas, Commander of the Port, and most of his soldiers have disappeared. It is reported that they have fled to Soledad Town to the northwest of Vera Cruz, where the Mexican and Inter-oceanic railroad effect a junction. The American marines are maintaining possession without taking any further offensive action. "Fire only when you are fired upon," is the order that has been issued to the United States marines and sailors.

WASHINGTON, April 22.
General Huerta has handed Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Charge d'Affaires at Mexico City, his passports, and recalled Senor Algara, the Mexican Charge at Washington, according to high authority. This act breaks off diplomatic relations between the two countries. Senor Algara said at the Embassy to-day that he had received several messages from his government, which indicated that he might be recalled at any moment, but he had not been ordered to ask for his passports. He looked for such order to come at any time, he said. Secretary Bryan, denies that O'Shaughnessy has been asked by Huerta to leave Mexico.

Saint George's Day Patron Saint of England.

A PAPER BY W. H. GOODLAND.

It probably matters very little to Irishmen whether the 17th of March is the date of the birth or death of St. Patrick (the example of the Saint's life being of great importance) they fittingly observe the day. The Shamrock is worn, parades and other festivities are held, and so the Irish Saint's memory is ever green!

November 30th is the Feast Day of St. Andrew, and—

"The bonny Scot, whereso'er he be,
Loves the Thistle's purple bloom;
St. Andrew's Day he ne'er forgets
Nor will till the crack of doom!"

It is worthy of note too that our Welsh fellow-citizens celebrated last St. David's Day (March 1st) religiously and socially. On this day the Leek is worn by Welshmen as a token of their nationality—the custom originating from the circumstance of their having put leeks into their hats and caps as a distinguishing mark between themselves and the Saxons—whom they defeated in battle.

To-day (April 23rd) is St. George's Day, but its non-observance is not peculiar to Newfoundland. What the Shamrock is to the Irish, the Thistle to the Scotch, or the Leek to the Welsh, so the Rose is to the English. But it is more! While it is Nature's own tribute to England; owing to its beauty and fragrance—it is held in universal esteem. It is true our climate is unpropitious for its growth; but in sunnier climes all over the world to-day Englishmen will wear the rose in honour of their Patron Saint, while with much snow on some of our country roads we certainly have cause to envy those of whom the poet sings:

"All nature smiles on St. George's Day,
For the Spring is by then confest,
And the grass grows green with an emerald sheen
While the song birds sing their best.
Then here's to the loveliest flower that grows
And may St. George's Day
Find it worn by all, to help recall
Their homeland blithe and gay—
Where the hedge rows teem with the pale pink flowers
While the lark sings up above,
And the violets grow on the mossy bank
And all nature breathes peace and love!

While it is true that some have doubted the very existence of St. George, it is equally true that many have claimed him as their own, and there seems little doubt that there really was a Christian Soldier named George of Cappadocia who did great things for his fellow believers—and suffered martyrdom about the year she received the paternal blessing and was led to the gates of the city, and when she had issued forth they were closed against her.

As the doomed maiden, clad in her beautiful white robes went out, she saw a noble knight, mounted on a beautiful horse, approaching her, who, reining up enquired whither she was going. She told him, and he cried at once that he would save her. Viewing this as an impossibility, she urged St. George to flee for his own life, before the dragon should see her. "God forbid," said he, "that I should fly; I will kill the dragon."

At last the monster came forth from the Marsh, and spreading his great wings, flew heavily towards the two. St. George dashed upon the enemy, making the sign of the cross, and after a brief struggle, he drove his lance through the body of the monster, pinning it to the ground, and so rescued the Princess, and finally restored her to her father. We need not stop to consider the joy of the King or seeing his daughter. The dragon was not dead, but St. George had bound it with the girdle of the Princess' robe and brought it along with them. And on the promise of the King and his people to become converted to Christianity, the dragon was killed before them, and St. George went on his way rejoicing.

In due course the slayer of the dragon rose to high rank in the Roman army under the Emperor Diocletian, but when that ruler began the fresh persecutions of the Christians, it is said that St. George endeavoured to plead for them. Finding he could do nothing of any avail, he resigned all his appointments, refusing to serve against his fellow-believers. So enraged was he, that he tore down the Imperial proclamation from the gates of the temple in the city of Nicomedia and trampled it under his feet. As a matter of course he was arrested, and notwithstanding that he was put to the most inhuman tortures, he refused to recant, and was executed April 23rd, A.D. 303.

The story of St. George and the Dragon is supposed to be but a comparatively modern form of the old myth, which is common to every branch of the Aryan family, of the Sun-god, whose rays dispel all evil, whilst the recumbent maiden is said to be typical of the conversion of some city to Christianity, it having been customary amongst the Greeks to personify their towns and provinces by a female form.

However this may be, the story of St. George's gallant rescue of the King's daughter took a firm hold upon the popular imagination, and no legend of the Saint is more generally believed, despite the fact that it was omitted from the reformed Roman Calendar at the end of the Fifteenth Century.

St. George is supposed to have been buried at Palestine, and a Church built over his tomb by Constantine, who also erected one in his honour at Constantinople. Hence the name of St. George given to the Hellespont. A great impulse was given to the cult of the warrior Saint during the Crusades, when he is said to have appeared first to Godfrey de Bouillon, and later to Richard I., on the eve of battle, in each case securing victory to the Christians.

He was henceforth venerated as the Patron Saint of England. His fete day was kept as a public holiday, and when, in 1334 the most noble Order of the Garter was founded by Edward III., the name of St. George succeeded that of Virgin, amongst those in whose honour it was instituted. Later the Order became known as that of St. George. An effigy of the young soldier slaying the dragon is part of the insignia of the knights, and they meet every year on the eve of his festival in the chapel named after him at Windsor.

The red cross of St. George is the basis of the Union Jack, which united with the crosses of St. Andrew and St. Patrick make up the old bit of bunting—

"The flag that's braved a thousand years
The battle and the breeze."
St. George is not only the Patron Saint of England where nearly two hundred churches are dedicated to him, but his effigy is stamped on the gold coinage of Constantinople, of Antioch, and of a very great number of Continental cities. He is held in high honour by the Knights of the great Teutonic Order of Chivalry, founded in the twelfth century. Military men of several European countries appeal to him for aid. He is supposed to give special attention to the interests of archers, and is one of the fourteen auxiliary Saints of Germany, where he is generally classed with St. Eustace. In France and elsewhere he is affectionately spoken of and highly esteemed.

When introduced amongst other Saints in devotional pictures, St. George may be easily recognized by the ideal beauty of his face and figure, and by his complete suit of armor, which is sometimes that of a Roman soldier, but more often that of a mediaeval Knight. He generally holds a lance from which sometimes floats a banner bearing a red cross. In one hand, and rests the other on the hilt of his sword, whilst the vanquished dragon is constantly seen lying at his feet.

In early representations of the fight with the terrible beast, it was usual to introduce a young girl kneeling near, awaiting the issue of the conflict; but as time went on she was omitted, except in some few Byzantine and later pictures, when the struggle became a purely symbolic one between the powers of good and evil.

The story of St. George and his legendary conflicts may be pursued at much greater length. The combat with crocodiles and lions; the loading with chains and casting into a dungeon, and the danger to which he was exposed through the treachery of the Black King of Morocco, Almidor, who was a suitor for the hand of the Princess whom the hero so gallantly rescued, these may at some future time form the subject of another paper. In the meantime the story, though mythical, is not only helpful but full of inspiration, as we have seen a universal suffering, not alone confined to the poor, but in which a King also shared, owing to the threatened destruction of his daughter; and how this was overcome by a deed of bravery and chivalry. And what we have to remember is this: that there are as many dragons to fight to-day as in the days of St. George. They wear a different aspect, it is true, but the contests with them are no less strenuous. So—

"We'll drink to this day, whether at home or away,
And the chivalrous Knight, St. George,
Who flew to the help of the captive maid, and took her from dragon's jaws;
There are dragons yet to be conquered
There are captives yet to set free,
And the deeds that were done by this doughty knight
May be done by you and me!"

The Message of St. George's Day.

Amidst the mythical and legendary statements, so numerous, that have gathered about the name of St. George of Cappadocia, two or three things may be accepted: First that he became a soldier and rose rapidly in his profession; Second that he embraced Christianity and died a martyr for his faith.

From the first of these we may infer that he was a brave and manly type of man; and from the second, that he had strong religious convictions and the courage to stand by them to the death.

The message from his life needed to-day is not so much that of manliness; the world is not lacking in that respect. But, perhaps, of strong religious convictions there is not a super-abundance. We have religious opinions to spare; but as far as religious convictions and the courage to stand by them, that is not so evident.

As to-day then we think of the patron Saint of England, whose blood-red cross adorns the flag of "a vaster Empire than has been," let us learn from him to live, and if necessary to die for the faith once delivered to the saints.

Saint George for England.

By ROSE M. GREENE, Bell Isl. Y.M.C. Hall Mother England! Dear Britain! Why brighter looms thy smile to-day? That dewy emblem in thy hand is fondled by some memory yet. That memory? See a dragon slain. And at the conqueror's feet he lies Till from the past a voice again "St. George for Merrie England!" cries.

Wreath memory with the thoughts we feel,
Fair thoughts of love—brave war-like love—
Whose echoes from Time's caverns atonal
To where truth's voice still sounds above,
Weave fables of hope, of faith and prayer,
And wreath the morning's dawning hour;
And to God's sunrise bright and fair,
Unfurled our flag in all its power.

Stepped deep in honour, nation meet!
How proudly waves "Red, White and Blue"
So full of triumph's happy rest,
The flag which binds our souls to thee.
Oh! may we give to England's need
Our faith, our courage and our fame,
Ne'er make the heart of Britain beat
For Britons' tears or Britons' shame.

But see her as we love her most
To chivalry and victory born;
No ill-won fame; no unjust boast!
But only truth's her brow adorn.
See England as we ever may Till from our eyes life's light depart
St. George's England and to-day
The same true England of our hearts.

THURSDAY, April 23, 1914.

The Spirit of St. George.

To-day is St. George's Day. It is the anniversary of the patron Saint of England. St. George is emblematic of the spirit which succors distress and faces and fights gigantic evils with courage and capacity. During the present month many deeds of chivalry and kindness have come to the light of day from our city, our outposts, our kinsmen abroad, that the spirit of St. George animates our people to do the utmost to those now in trouble and distress from the disasters which befall the crews of the Newfoundland and Southern Cross, and it is well to associate it with the spirit of the patron Saint of the senior kingdom of our Empire. But while we may ponder with just pride over this noble quality, it should call to our mind a duty which the legend of St. George enforces. St. George was a fighter. He faced a gigantic dragon. He fought it. He killed it. This of course is emblematic of a spirit which faces almost invincible evil, fights them and overcomes them. We in Newfoundland have a dragon to face and fight and overcome. It is the dragon which devoured 251 of our brave seafarers. We must face it with courage, with all the resources of our mind, with all weapons that knowledge can forge, with all the enactment that a wise legislature may pass, and with all the provisions that the experience of the owners, captains, officers and men of our seafaring venture may suggest. The task is worthy of a St. George. It is worthy of a nation of St. George's. The dragon has exacted an enormous toll in human life. Who is able for it? Answer ye who are animated with the spirit of St. George.

Cable News.

Special to the Evening Telegram. LONDON, To-day.

The White paper report promised by Asquith, covering the recent military movement in Ulster was issued last night and makes further startling disclosures. It is divided into three parts, covering correspondence between the War Office and Sir Arthur Paget and other officials relating to the movements of troops, communications between the Admiralty and the fleet, also statement by Paget giving detailed account of an interview with the principal officers. In this statement the Commander-in-Chief for Ireland admits that he alone is responsible for the misunderstanding which arose. The correspondence shows that instructions were issued by the Admiralty to the Vice Admiral commanding the third battle squadron to proceed to Lamlash March 19, but according to the Premier's statement in the Commons this order was given without his knowledge and was countermanded. The Dublin correspondent of the Morning Post asserts that Paget's resignation is imminent. The Times' military correspondent says that Paget's position has been much shaken by the Ulster Unionist Council, although it is understood that the accuracy of certain parts of the statement is denied by Paget's staff. The general impression is that the statement is substantially correct. There is a natural ground for suspicion, adds the correspondent, that such vast development of naval and military forces as that arranged against Ulster should have been arranged on the basis of verbal instruction only. The Cabinet are clearly making great effort to retain him in office, but the general Commander-in-Chief in Ireland will probably realize that in order to make his own position tenable his version of his speeches to officers must be given to the public without delay.

Strikers' War.

Special to Evening Telegram. TRINIDAD, To-day.

Special to Evening Telegram. TRINIDAD, To-day.

Three men, two women and a baby are reported to be entombed in a burning mine. Several mining camps were destroyed, others are riddled with bullets. Less than 200 militiamen and a company of guards are confronting an army of strikers, coal miners, estimated by strike leaders at more than four hundred. This was the situation when sunset on the third day in the Southern Colorado labor war. A party of militiamen hastily sent from Ludlow in steel cars and reinforced the guards and after fierce fighting, the strikers were driven back. The entire entire enlistment of State militia, including all branches of the service, are ordered to mobilize at the two armories in Denver to-night to await further orders for service in the Trinidad strike district.

McMurdo's Store News

THURSDAY, April 23, '14.

Zylex Ointment has won an honorable place for itself among remedies for skin troubles. We have heard some surprising stories of what it has done in cases of eczema, scurvy, old sores and piles. Skin diseases are notoriously hard to cure, but the percentage of successful cases is with Zylex a very high one, and we are justified in recommending it to even those who suffer from chronic troubles of this kind. Not a little of the success of Zylex is due to the excellent qualities of Zylex Soap used in connection with the Ointment. The action of the one backs up that of the other. The result is in many instances great relief, and in some a complete cure. Price (Ointment), 50c. a box; Soap, 25c. a cake.

MacFadden's Trouble at Rossley's

The funniest of all Irish farce comedies will be presented to-night at the old reliable show shop, Tommy Levene's Tabloid Stock Company, with present, "MacFadden's Troubles," featuring the most popular comedian, Felix Martin. Here's where Felix shines. The funny little Irishman will show up great in his comedy. There is lots of dancing and lots of fun. There are also four of the finest films ever presented—all new and never seen here before—presenting the finest motion picture artists in the world to-day. Rossley has added another newly imported appliance to his already perfect machine, making it the very latest and only machine of its kind this side of the Atlantic.

Wedding Bells.

MAHER-GARLAND.

The R. C. Cathedral was the scene of a very pretty and quiet wedding yesterday afternoon when Mr. J. P. Maher, of the Nfld. Trading Co., and Miss Sadie Garland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Garland, Bond Street, were united in Holy Matrimony by the Right Rev. Monsignor Roche.

The bride was attended by her sisters, Misses Priscilla and May, while Mr. J. J. Mahoney did the honors of best man.

The bride and groom were the recipients of numerous presents from their friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Maher are spending their honeymoon at Donovan's Hotel, Topsail Head, and after their return to the city will take up their residence at 115 Pleasant Street.

Praise for Capt. Connors.

Special Evening Telegram. ST. MARY'S.

The ease and comfort with which the people of St. Mary's proper are experiencing since Capt. Connors took charge of the Portia is certainly worthy of comment. He arrived here at nine o'clock this morning, called at public wharf, as is usual with him since taking charge, and landed over three hundred packages in about an hour, which otherwise would mean four or five hours to land in boats, owing to the fact that the wharf is thus giving the public the needful satisfaction which a man of this capacity assures.

Here and There.

WEATHER.—It is calm and dull up the country to-day with the temperature ranging from 20 to 40 above.

BRUCE PASSENGERS.—The Bruce arrived at Port aux Basques at 7.35 a.m. to-day with the following passengers in saloon: H. R. Chambers, A. Ravanagh, S. B. Kesner, T. B. Darby, Miss M. Ross, H. F. Harvey and J. Ford.

A CORRECTION.—In an account of the Star of the Sea Card Tournament in yesterday's issue of the Telegram, the name of Mr. Rodgers should have appeared as winner of the first prize. Mr. Abbott was the third prize winner, and gave the same to the committee as previously stated.

REIDS' BOATS.—The Bruce arrived at Port aux Basques at 7.35 a.m. to-day. The Elbie has not been reported since Tuesday owing to line interruption. The Gloucester left Port aux Basques at 4.30 a.m. to-day. The Linrose arrived at North Sydney at 6.30 p.m. yesterday.

LOCAL DELAYED.—The local from Carbonear, due here at noon, to-day, is delayed by the detouring of a special freight train, which left here last night at 8.30, taking about 100 sealers to their homes. As a result the incoming local will not arrive until about 4.30 this afternoon.

St. George's Day.

ST. GEORGE. The tutelary Saint of England, adopted by Edward III. The dragon which he is said to have slain symbolises the powers of evil over which he is credited with having triumphed.

SHAKESPEARE born 1564; died 1616. England's greatest poet and dramatist. It was character and the development of character that interested him; and it is by his prolific creation, not of stage copies, but of men and women, that he has established his position as the supreme poet and interpreter of human life.

WORDSWORTH died 1850, aged 80. One of the most inspired of all British bards. In 1802 he married his cousin, Mary Hutchinson and the two with the poet's sister formed an ideal poetic household. Here he carried out his creed of "plain living and high thinking" and produced some of the purest and noblest poetry in the language. As an interpreter of nature in her many moods he stands unrivalled.

But the age of virtuous politics is past, And we are deep in that of cold pretence. Patriots are grown too shrewd to be sincere, And we too wise to trust them. —Cowper.

Requiem Mass.

On Tuesday morning at Torbay, Solemn Requiem Office and Mass was held for the repose of the soul of Peter, which includes Pouch Cove, by the sealing disaster. The celebrant of the Mass was the Rev. T. J. Gough with Rev. Father Pippy and Rev. Fr. Rawlin as Deacon and sub-deacon. There were also present Rt. Rev. Mons. Roche, Fathers McDermott and McGrath. Before giving the final absolution, Mons. Roche referred in sympathetic terms to the recent disaster, especially of the Parish of Torbay, and an army of strikers are confronting an army of strikers, coal miners, estimated by strike leaders at more than four hundred. This was the situation when sunset on the third day in the Southern Colorado labor war. A party of militiamen hastily sent from Ludlow in steel cars and reinforced the guards and after fierce fighting, the strikers were driven back. The entire enlistment of State militia, including all branches of the service, are ordered to mobilize at the two armories in Denver to-night to await further orders for service in the Trinidad strike district.

Why?

Some of our friends have asked us why we handle the 5 Star Trade Mark line of Shoes in preference to others.

Well, we'll tell you.

In the first place the Brown's 5 Star Trade Mark is more complete than any other. For instance we have Men's White House Shoes in "Bench Work," "President Quality" and "Nation's Quality." For women we have "White House," "Mansion" and "Usona" Shoes. For boys and girls the "Buster Brown" line. Brown's Shoes are—

Distinctive in Style,
Comfort in Fit,
Superior in Finish,
Unexcelled in Wear.

We are now showing Ladies' Low Shoes in Button and Laced styles; also in one, two, three, four and five strap Shoes in all leathers. Prices: $1.50, $2.00, $2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00 up.

If you want to see and talk Good Shoes, our time is yours.

Just a Little Bit of Green.

At The Crescent.

Shakespeare's great play, Macbeth, attracted large audiences at the Crescent Picture Palace last night and needless to say the historical subject surpassed expectations.

Mr. Sydney Earnshaw, the vocalist, rendered in a very pleasing manner "Just a Little Bit of Green." Three other good ditties followed: "The Woman and the Law" was a particularly strong duet in which Pearl White and Chester Barnett, two favorites, are seen at their best.

The same bill is repeated again this afternoon and night. On Friday and Saturday the big feature, a strong drama: "The Spill."

Post Office Matters.

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir—Please allow me space in your paper to make a few remarks concerning a letter which I saw in your paper of March 24th. One would think after reading that letter, if he were not sure, that the statements are exaggerated; that we, as a people, were treated badly by the postmistress. I claim, sir, that the mail has been given out after six o'clock on Saturday and before eight on Monday morning. When the boat comes during office hours, I don't think anyone need wait half an hour for their mail, for it is opened as soon as possible after arrival. The postmistress cannot keep the steamer waiting for re-pplies, but a law should be made for the boat to stay here at least an hour.
 I hope the writer didn't stretch his imagination concerning that sick friend. We have a telegraph office here and if a friend of mine was seriously ill I would expect to get a message to that effect, while the office is open on Sunday or at any other time.
 If we got daily mails I contend that some would want to get or post mail on Sunday. In my opinion if such as the one who wrote the letter I refer to, and signed his name "Birchy Hill," were to consider that Sunday work ought to be stopped altogether, he would see that it would be just as ungodly and unlawful to commit little sins (white ones) as do worse things.

Are the postal officials sworn in to work on Sunday or at whatever hour a few people would suggest? No, they have their hours and can, if they wish, keep them. I wonder in what way did our friend think of anyone as a public servant? Servants are not animals to be ill-treated and abused. It is right that postage stamps should be kept on hand, sufficient to supply the demands of the people. When reading the letter of our friend, this matter of postage stamps was the only thing which I thought was of importance in the whole epistle. As for the operator being given charge of both departments, I for one (and there are others who will agree with me) would not wish such to happen. I have my reasons.
 The registration department of our post offices is a complete failure as it now stands. Why, Mr. Editor, since I came here, on September last, no less than four letters have been robbed-of-parts of their contents, and no less than $22.00 are now missing.
 This robbery does not concern the whole of our Island but somewhere between here and St. John's. We need, sir, one or two Mr. Cooker's to point out the wrongs of our public officials to the voters. I was in the city when the House opened and attended a few sessions, but would have been delighted to have been able to attend all. Trusting that everything will be satisfactorily dealt with, I remain, Yours truly,
 Not "Birchy Hill, but

Old Maids.

All girls should marry when they are a n. There's ought more useful than a man.
 A husband has some faults, no doubt, and yet
 he's good to have about; and she who doesn't get a mate will wish
 she had one, soon or late. That girl is off her base, I fear, who plans to have a high career, who sidesteps vows and wedding rings to follow after abstract things, I know so many ancient maids who in professions, arts or trades have tried to cut a manlike swath, and old age finds them in the broth. A loneliness, as of the tomb, enshrouds the spinsters in its gloom; the jim crow honors they have won they'd sell at seven cents a ton. Their sun is sinking in the West, and they, unloved and uncared, must envy, as they bleakly roam, the girl with her husband, hearth and home. Get married, then, Jemima dear; don't fiddle with a cheap career. Select a man who's true and good, whose head is not composed of wood, a man who's sound in wind and limb, then round him up and marry him. Oh, rush him to the altar rail, nor heed his protest or his wail.
 "This is," you'll say, when he's been won, "the best day's work I've ever done."

Divorced Life

By Helen Hesson Fuenlis

A Call for Help

Time had torn ragged holes in the supply of funds which Frank had turned over to her upon their separation. More than once she had already regretted her high and altruistic attitude in making no alimony claims. Why shouldn't she have made an effort to secure alimony? Had she not wished this two best years of her life to her husband, years in which she might have devoted herself to acquiring an earning power, or achieved a far better marriage?

But what was done, was done, and like every other human being she had to face facts as they were, instead of pondering over what might have been. To-day, after she had paid her week's boarding house bill in advance, and a dry cleaner's bill on delivery of one of her suits, she summoned the courage to take an inventory of her remaining resources. Her bank book showed a balance of $21.48, and her purse revealed a scant three dollars.

In an ever increasing state of desperation, she had made the rounds of offices which advertised in the newspapers for help, and always to find herself woefully lacking in any of the details of practical ability for which business men are willing to pay salaries. Short-hand, typewriting, and accounting were closed books to her, and she had neither the funds nor the ambition to take up these studies. All about her ears buzzed and whirled the business activities of the city, and no place was she able to find an opening where meagre and inexperienced services might prove of worth. She had applied for a score of places, lining up with streams of girls and women who had records and references to offer the busier of labor. She had grown sick of the quest, disgusted with herself, and weary of soul.

This was her frame of mind when she sat down to write to her brother Wellington, a real estate dealer. It was her first letter to him since obtaining her divorce.

She wrote him thus:
"Dear Brother: I should have written you long ago, but somehow, I haven't had the courage to do so. I don't think I ever even hinted in previous letters to you that I was having any domestic difficulties. It isn't right after all that you've done for me, to withhold the truth any longer. Frank and I are divorced. I couldn't stand his conduct any longer, and decided to do what I thought was best. I shan't attempt to tell you any of the details. The bare fact must suffice.

"Due to the fact that we were probably both miserable managers, a lot of the furniture and things were returned to the dealers, whom we hadn't succeeded in paying. I asked for alimony, and the $250 which I received from Frank when we separated is about gone. I have looked high and low for work, but haven't found anything yet. I've been as economical as I possibly could, and have bought nothing that I simply didn't need. I was nearly in rags and had to have a few clothes.

"Wellington," Marian wrote, "can you lend me a little money?"

"I dislike to ask it, Wellington, but if you could see your way clear to loan me a little money to tide me over the immediate future until I can find work of some kind, I'd appreciate it immensely. I know you're under heavy expense, with the baby and all, and don't want you to send me a cent if it's going to inconvenience you particularly. I feel that I shall be able to develop a real earning power along some line very soon, and I intend to repay you for everything you have done for me. Here's a great big kiss to you all. Don't hate me for what I've done. A divorce was positively the only way out, and I hope you're not going to feel that I've disgraced you."
"Yours,
"Marian."

Children's Scalp Sores are Healed by Zam-Buk

Mothers are well aware how frequently children contract scalp sores, ringworm, etc., at school. Some little sufferer is sent to school with a sore of this nature. At play the children change caps, and right there the infection is spread—the damage done. Some children are particularly liable to scalp sores, etc., and often these break out with annoying frequency. Such a case was that of the daughter of Mrs. Albert Gaudin, of 485 Amherst St., Montreal. Mrs. Gaudin says: "My little three-year-old daughter suffered frequently from scalp disease, and try as we would, we could not rid the little one of this. We tried everything we could think of, but failed to effect a cure, until we were advised to try Zam-Buk. This balm seemed entirely different to anything we had ever tried before, and from first applying it there was a marked improvement. The sores became less inflamed and less irritable. After a few days, they ceased to trouble the child; and in less than a fortnight from the first commencing with Zam-Buk they were completely healed. In view of these facts I feel it my duty to let mothers know how beneficial Zam-Buk is."

There is no doubt that for scalp sores, ringworm, ulcers, abscesses, cold cracks, chapped hands, frostbite, and similar sores, Zam-Buk is absolutely without equal. It is just as good for piles, varicose sores, poisoned wounds, cuts, burns and scalds. Rubbed well in over the affected part, it cures rheumatism, sciatica, etc., etc., and rubbed into the chest it relieves the tightness and feeling of weight due to contracting a bad cold. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse imitations.

Graphic Film of Scott's Fate.

The Casino Has a Most Timely Feature for Next Week.

The management of the Casino Theatre announce that they have secured the rights of presenting to the St. John's public the pictorial production of Capt. Scott's ill-fated expedition to the South Pole.

Considerable interest will be centered in the exhibition of a subject—the intensity and realism of which will come to us with striking force. Newfoundlanders generally will witness such a picture with genuine understanding, and the film with its graphic description of the Antarctic Expedition from the date of the sailing of the s.s. Terra Nova until the close of this pathetic polar tragedy, contains a thrill in every foot, a heart throb in every section for the brave British lads who succumbed to exposure and starvation in their effort to win distinction for their country.

"Nerviline" Cures Cramps End Misery Instantly

NO REMEDY SO SPEEDY OR EFFICIENT.

A real cramp cure? Yes, a real one—in a twinkling the cramp is a dead one, and the last squirm is over, once you get a stiff dose of Nerviline on the inside.

This isn't mere talk—it's a solid truthful fact. No other remedy—not a single one—will cure cramps so quickly and harmlessly as Nerviline. It hits the spot in a jiffy and saves a heap of misery.

"Last Saturday night my stomach felt like an infernal machine," writes T. P. Granger from Hartford. "I was awakened from a sound sleep and found myself suffering the worst kind of torture. I was so doubled up I could hardly cross the room. I had used Nerviline before for the same thing and took a real good dose. Once I felt the warm, soothing sensation of Nerviline in my stomach, I knew I was all right. It finished the cramps—just one single dose."
Sickness at night is rendered a nightmare of the past if Nerviline is handy. It may be carache, toothache or cramps. Nerviline in every case will cure at once and save calling the doctor. Nerviline is a family physician in itself. The large 50c. family size bottle, of course, is most economical. Small trial size costs a quarter. All dealers sell Nerviline.

Codfishery Late in Starting

The present unfavorable spring weather is seriously handicapping fishermen from making preparations for the codfishery. In various sections of the coast including St. John's, repairs to stages, flakes, boats, nets, etc., have been impeded in consequence of the prevailing backward weather. It looks as if operations will not be in full swing before the middle of June.

Last Night's Nickel a Beauty.

Nickel patrons turned out in force last evening and were pleased with the excellent programme. Each picture was highly interesting and was shown in the Nickel's splendid style. "The Battle of Bloody Ford," which opened the programme, is a thrilling two-reel war picture by the Kalem Co. The scenes are sensational, and it ranks as one of the finest stories ever told by the movies. It deals with a fierce encounter of the Civil War. "Master and Man" is a social drama of the greatest merit. It tells of a burglar who is reclaimed by a sport and he repays his master by taking the blame of his mistress's thefts. Everyone was delighted with this story. San Xavier Mission at Tucson, Arizona, gave a vivid illustration of the home and the good work carried on by the Sisters of Mercy. Mr. McCarthy sang a pretty Irish song, "The Lass from County Mayo" in a very creditable manner, and Miss Gardner repeated her novelty song, "How long have you been married?" The pictures will be repeated this evening.

Unauthorized.

Mr. P. Walsh, of H.M. Customs, informs us that a little girl called at his home on Bannerman Street yesterday soliciting subscriptions for the Disasters' Fund. When asked by Mr. Walsh by whom she was authorized to collect, she said she was collecting for the Nuns of the Mercy Convent. Mr. Walsh made inquiries and was informed by the Sisters that no such collection was being made by them.

We know who he will buy it for? But will he buy it from? Hundreds of Engagements and Weddings are sealed yearly in Newfoundland with Trappell's Solid Gold Rings. Hundreds of friendships and tokens of affection to sweetheart, wife, mother, sister and friend are embodied in lasting emblems with Trappell's Rings, the popularity of which is based upon their quality, finish and variety and beauty of design. Rings for men, women, baby and miss for every occasion. Gem Rings, Clustered Rings, Signal Rings, Birthday Rings. Should you have a desire to get a ring of such design as you may create yourself or that you had seen somebody else wear, just take your design to Trappell; there is nothing impossible along these lines for his talented workmen. A splendid assortment of unset stones can be seen if your design calls for a Gem Ring. Ask to be shown the new White Sapphires. They are hard and brilliant like diamonds, so much so that they puzzle experts.—ap20.tf

St. Bonaventure's Prize Debate

The annual Prize Debate by the pupils of St. Bon's College, was held at the Aula Maxima yesterday afternoon. The subject for discussion was "Resolved that a Republic is a better form of government than a Limited Monarchy." Rt. Rev. Mons. Roche presided, and the following students took part in the debate: H. Knight, W. Brown and N. Duchemin for the affirmative, and G. Badcock, William McGrath and Wilfred McGrath for the negative. The subject elicited many practical speeches that would do credit to debaters of more mature years. All the debaters showed a deep study of the question, and the arguments brought forward proved them to be quite conversant with political history. The jury consisting of Rev. Mons. Roche, Revs. Dr. Greene, Fr. Sears, Fr. Pippy, Fr. McCarthy, Bros. Ryan and Kennedy, Messrs. V. P. Burke and C. Hutton gave a verdict in favor of the side supporting the Limited Monarchy. Mr. N. Duchemin was selected as the best debater and was awarded the gold medal offered for the one gaining that distinction.

THE GREATER QUESTION

At this season of the year for Farmers with up-to-date ideas is, what are the best means to use to get the best returns from the land.
Fertilizers must be used liberally if large returns are looked for. There are several good chemical fertilizers which may be recommended, but Sulphate of Ammonia has been proved to give the best returns, and is the most valuable and economical source of Nitrogen for agricultural purposes.
For vegetables, grass and all leafy crops, about one and a half cwt. per acre is the best quantity to use, and this should be applied when the plant is making its growth, as well as before sowing the seed.
If a liquid manure is preferred, a ¼ oz. of Sulphate to one gallon of water should be used, and applied once a week for a month. This quantity should not be exceeded.
It is a good plan to reduce the Sulphate to a fine powder, and mix with four or more times its own bulk, for the purpose of diluting the manure, which is very powerful.
For potatoes the following mixture is strongly recommended:
40 lbs. Superphosphate.
25 lbs. Fine bone meal.
10 lbs. Carbonate of Magnesia.
15 lbs. Sulphate of Potash.
21 lbs. SULPHATE OF AMMONIA.
1 cwt.
Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to 43 square yards.
The use of Carbonate of Magnesia, in conjunction with Sulphate of Ammonia, is of great importance in potato culture.
For turnips use the following:—
66 lbs. Superphosphate.
13 lbs. Fine bone meal.
13 lbs. Sulphate of Potash.
20 lbs. Sulphate of Ammonia.
1 cwt.
Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to square yards.
Sulphate of Ammonia of excellent quality is now made by the St. John's Gas Light Company, and may be obtained on very reasonable terms.
Full particulars may be obtained at the Gas Works, or at the Board of Trade Building. Ask for special booklet on the use of Sulphate, it will be found of great value in securing the heaviest crops.

WASHINGTON, To-day.
The news that even the Constitutionalist's chief regarded the seizure of Vera Cruz by American naval forces as an act of hostility on the Mexican nation fell like a bombshell on official circles to-night, President Wilson especially disclaimed any hostility of the American people, particularly Gen. Huerta as the object of American operations for offences at Tampico and elsewhere against the American flag, consequently the Washington Government hoped the Constitutionalist would remain silent and not interject themselves in the imbroglio. The Carranza letter, however, confirms the fears of many officials that the Constitutionalist will side with Huerta.

Sees Menace
In White Bread

The eminent scientist—Prof. Le Talle, of Paris, recently made a remarkable statement regarding food conditions in France. It is even more applicable to this country—he said:

"France has changed an essential of her nourishment. White bread is made more and more starchy, and is less and less nourishing. The rich products which are extracted go to feed the pigs. The baker now utilizes only fifty per cent of the wheat elements, whereas fifty years ago he utilized eighty-five per cent.

The "rich products" referred to, which are "extracted" from wheat, are the mineral elements—phosphate of potash, iron, sodium, etc. These elements are absolutely essential to proper nutrition of body, nerves and brain, yet they are nearly all thrown out by millers just to make the flour look white and pretty!

The lack of these invaluable phosphates is one of the chief causes of nervous prostration, dullness, languor, constipation and other ills—big and little.

Grape-Nuts
FOOD

all the "rich products" of wheat and barley, from which the food is made, are retained.

A regular ration of Grape-Nuts is not only a delicious part of the meal, but admirably supplies the mineral salts which the ordinary diet often lacks.

LONDON GOSSIP.

THAT FERCE LIGHT THAT BEATS UPON A THRONE.

The fierce light that beats upon a throne is apt to throw into strong relief the doings of all within its circle, as well as those of the actual occupant of the seat of honor. I learn that the Prince of Wales has just fallen within its range, and that Mrs. Grundy is sadly vexed by what is revealed. A foreign newspaper paragraph stated that His Royal Highness tried on a pair of ski shoes in Norway and attempted a run in them. The paragraph reproduced here looks harmless enough, but for the fact that the essay is said to have been made on a Sunday. The Court was forthwith deluged with letters of inquiry and protest. The fact, I am told, is that the trial of ski-ing was made on Monday, March 30th, and that the inquirer who is so anxious about the Prince's record as a Saboteur has worried himself needlessly. But the fact remains that the doings of persons in high places are keenly watched by some people and that to avoid giving even the appearance of offence is by no means easy.

HERKOMER AND HIS HOBBIES.

The late Sir Hubert Herkomer came over to England when he was a little boy, but he never ceased to be Bavarian in heart and temperament. He postponed being naturalized until an arrangement could be made that would enable him to retain his Bavarian nationality also. He was, I believe, the only instance of such dual citizenship, for he was both a German subject and a British subject. One has only to glance at Herkomer's "Southern Germany" to see what affection he had for his native place. He was the presiding genius of the beautiful medieval walled town of Landsberg. Not far outside the walls of Landsberg is the Herkomer home, built by his father and grandfather, literally with their own hands, for they were typical Bavarian peasant artisan-artists, the father a wood-carver, the grandfather a smith. The late Sir Hubert carried on the family task and finished it. But it was in temperament that he was most characteristically Bavarian—tireless, thorough, full of energy and enthusiasms, artistic to the finger-tips, and ever trying some new thing. The last new thing to attract him was cine photography, and for some time he had been making his own films at Bushey, just outside London. Over twenty years ago he was endeavoring to reform theatrical scenery and the art of production generally. He was before his time, and, though many of his ideas were perhaps "cranky," many of them have since been adopted by Gordon Craig and Professor Reinhardt. His Bavarian enthusiasm was shown in his twenty-one years of devoted work for a right education at his famous school at Bushey.

DUAL CITIZENSHIPS.

Although as indicated above the late Sir Hubert Herkomer was the only man who possessed both English and German nationality at once, it has been possible since January 1, for other Germans in this country also to acquire this curious double citizenship. On that date there came into force the new German nationality law. Hitherto a German ceased automatically to be a German after ten years' residence abroad unless he took the trouble to register himself periodically at a consulate. Now German nationality sticks to him until he definitely renounces it. Indeed, clause 25 of the new law allows a German resident to acquire a new nationality and at the same time to retain his own if he applies beforehand through a German Consul, for the written permission of his own Government. The idea, of course, is that the foreign nationality in such a case is acquired solely for business convenience or some such reason, and does not constitute a repudiation of German nationality. Germans are a fatherland-loving, home-loving folk and it is highly probable that ten or twenty years hence we shall have in this country quite a large class of these double citizens, a sort of international "marines."

THE EIFFEL TOWER'S BIRTHDAY.

I do not suppose that anyone nowadays regards the Eiffel Tower as an eyesore. On the contrary, the people of Paris, who on April 2 celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the structure, look upon it as one of the beauties of their city, and are almost as proud of this graceful pinnacle and its steel-lace-work as of the massive grandeur of the Arc de L'Étoile. Yet twenty-five years ago the leading artists and literary men of France denounced the tower as a monstrosity and an offence to Paris. To this day it remains one of the engineering marvels of the world. It is a miracle of lightness, for its total weight is less than 800 tons. A rather vivid illustration of it is given in one of the Paris papers. Suppose by some miracle that the Eiffel Tower were diminished to one-thousandth of its present size. It would then be about 18 inches high and about 7 inches broad at the base, and it would weigh about as much as a sheet of newspaper. A valid objection against the Eiffel Tower used to be its utter uselessness; but wireless telegraphy has now completely justified it. It is not merely the ideal wireless station, but the wireless timepiece of a hemisphere. Meteorology and physicists have found its height invaluable for experiments in air resistance and with falling bodies, and have on occasion even used it as a sort of gigantic thermometer.

GOVERNMENT AND SHIPPING SUBSIDIES.

A question which has a vital bearing on the shipping of the British Empire is one more raised by the storm issued on April 2 of all sums payable out of the Exchequer of the United Kingdom in the year 1912-13 in respect of steamship subsidies for foreign and colonial services. At the last Imperial Conference it will be remembered a resolution was passed affirming the desirability of taking steps to prevent unfair competition with British ships by foreign subsidized ships, and to secure for the former equal trading advantages with their foreign rivals. Mr. Buxton, at representing the Board of Trade, explained that it was against the policy of this country to subsidize British shipping except under peculiar circumstances, but that the Government were naturally desirous of doing everything possible to secure equality of opportunity for British ships. Careful enquiries in official quarters have failed to elicit information of any action having been taken by the Government to give effect to the wishes of the conference.

ENGLAND THE LAND OF CHEAP BOOKS.

Evidently England is going to make a very good show at the book exhibition this summer at Leipzig. In typography and design we are still, perhaps, in a position of inferiority— all events as against the more famous French and German publishers—in cheapness of book production quality for quality, we are at present unrivalled. Anyone who has travelled on the Continent in recent years will have observed the prominent show in the booksellers' windows of French and German towns of finely printed, elegantly bound, and low priced reprints of French and German classics issued by a well known publishing-house in England, but in the languages of the countries where they are sold. Despite the high tariffs, this firm finds no difficulty in competing successfully with French and German publishers on their own ground and with their own literature. The success of the reprint and cheap novel in this country and America is almost incredible. It is said that the total sales of the Everypenny series of reprints, for example amounts to no less than fourteen millions. The sixpenny and sevenpenny novel reprints in cloth covers, I believe, actually knocking out the popular monthly magazines in this country.

Where Responsibility Lies

No matter how large, or how small a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial must be recorded in the Office. An order is received at the Office—its history is recorded in the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands in loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland. April 17.

"Cascarets" Always Straighten You Up

If Costive, Headache, Bilious, Stomach Sour, Breath Bad—Clean your Liver and Bowels.

Get a 10-cent box now. You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, foul taste, foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have headache and feel worn out.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil?

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular, and head clear for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

Marine Disasters? Inquiry.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

PATRICK J. BARKLEY (sworn), examined by Hutchings, K.C.—I was Marconi operator on Florizel at the end of this year. I now produce all messages received and sent by me from March 31st to April 2nd, and marked "P.J.B." from 1 to 9, from and to the Stephano. Message marked "P.J.B.10" to Bowring Bros. from captain of Florizel, sent 11.06 local time, April 2nd, reads: "Fear terrible disaster, Newfoundland's crew caught out in last blizzard. Stephano and Bellaventure sent men searching. Bellaventure found 50 men dead and lying; ice terribly tight; we are helpless to render any assistance as yet, but will proceed to her assistance first opportunity; will keep you advised to best of my ability; would advise you to intercede keep land office open during night until search completed. Both father and myself in terrible way. Wee, poor fellow, in awful state. This is where wireless would have saved catastrophe if on all ships." Messages marked "P.J.B. 1 to 9" are same as produced yesterday by operator of the Stephano. My messages are recorded by local time. The only thing I remember passing between operator of Stephano and myself by way of conversation, or March 31st, was at request of Capt. Florizel, who asked me to say to the Stephano's captain, "You look after our men and the Newfoundland's, I will take care of yours." Previous to this, in answer to the Stephano, I replied, "We have all but one watch on board." I can't remember what time these conversations took place. To Dr. Lloyd—I don't remember the weather conditions of Tuesday, March 31st, except about 5.30 when I went down to supper, when it was very stormy. The words, "and the Newfoundland's" were left out of Capt. A. Keen's evidence as to the message, "You look after my men. I will look after yours." I don't know how far we were from the Stephano when this message was sent. My log now produced, shows that I went off duty at 1.40 p.m. on March 31st, until 4 p.m. At 4.30 my log shows "All quiet," no ships working wireless. At 5 p.m. "all quiet," 5.40 p.m. Bell Island and Fogo working, nothing doing with our ship. 6.30 p.m. Nascope calling Cape Race; 7.07 p.m. sent message to Stephano, marked "P.J.B." At 7.19 sent message to Fogo, received one. At 8 p.m. received message from Stephano, marked "P.J.B. 12" gave "good-night" at 10 p.m. the Adventure, Nascope and Bellaventure were working; as soon as they were finished I gave "good-night" to all ships. The official log makes no record of conversations. Capt. Joe Keen, on the night of 31st March, expressed uneasiness to me about the Newfoundland's crew. The chief engineer told me that the captain showed anxiety as to the Newfoundland's crew, going to him in the mess room at 2 a.m. on Wednesday.

The hearing was adjourned at 5.30 until this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferers and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected. An insurance policy with Percie Johnson would provide for you this desired security and at small expense. Have you enough insurance?—April 17.
