CHAPTER XIII.

Invitations were sent to him from the friends of Lord Deane, Scotch moors were placed at his disposal to shoot over, and peers and peeresses extended a hand of welcome to him. John Bardon said to himself that he had conquered at last all the difficulties that had beset his path.

Did all this bring him any happiness? He asked himself that question over and over again, but the answer was always "No."

An invitation came from the Duke of Norton, who was distantly related to Lord Deane, asking Mr. and Lady Avic Bardon to spend a week at Norton House; and they accepted it. Norton House was near the town of Oldbury, and the Queen's Own (Lancers) were at present stationed in the town. The Queen's Own considered themselves, and were considered by others, the finest cavalry regiment in the service. The officers were all well born, and they prided themselves on the fact that no parvenu held a commission amongst them. The colonel was one of the royal princes, the major was the son of a peer, and amongst the other officers were three heirs to titles; so that the regiment had some little ground for considering itself select. John Bardon had met two of the officers at Norton House, Major the Honorable Charles Hope and Captain the Honorable Berkeley Vane, and he was delighted to find himself in such good society. The officers of the Queen's Own made no inquiries about him; he was known to be rich, was the husband of Lord Deane's daughter, and the guest of the Duke of Norton, and they welcomed him with open arms. He was invited one day, with the Duke of Norton, to a grand dinner at the barracks. While he was alone with the major and Captain Vane, one of the lieutenants entered the room and threw himself into a chair.

"The regiment will go to the dogs," he said. "What do you think? I have heard on good authority—so good that it cannot be doubted—that Lieutenant

Allan Rennie Osburn is not as we have supposed him to be, one of the Osburns of Broome, but the son—positively the son of a draper who made a large fortune in Elmora in Kent—a vast fortune, I believe, for he speculated and was very lucky. To think that, of all the regiments in the service, he should join ours!

"The son of a draper?" said Major Hope. "I hope it is not so bad as that. The son of a man who has sold yards of tape and rolls of flannel! It must be an error."

"It is the truth," sighed the lieutenant; "and there ought to be a stir made about it. It was bad enough when young Hynton joined, but this is a thousand times worse."

John Bardon listened in silence, and wondered, if they thought so little of a tradesman's son, what they would say of him, whose father had once wheeled a barrow.

"It is well they do not know it," he said to himself. "If they did, even the Duke of Norton could not save me."

Some other officers dropped in, all on the same errand, to know if the news was true. The outspoken contempt for anything but their own class astonished John Bardon.

Lieutenant Osburn was well educated, brave, generous, frank, and charming in manner, but he was the son of a draper. In return for services rendered during an election by his father, Lord Rawson, the member returned, had taken an interest in the draper's only son. He had advised Allan to enter the army, for which he had a great love, and had helped him to obtain a commission in the Queen's Own Lancers. At first he was received with open arms, for his fellow-officers thought that he was one of the Osburns of Broome, and he was very reticent about his family.

"Where does your father live, and what is the name of your place?" he had been asked by one of the junior officers.

"My father is dead, and I have no place at present," said Osburn, which somewhat discomfited the questioner.

John Bardon listened in wonder to the conversation that was going on. The speakers had nothing but praise for Lieutenant Osburn personally; they told John Bardon that the lieutenant was one of the most promising young officers in the service; they added, however, that it was impossible that they could associate with a shopkeeper's son. It was eventually agreed that they should avoid him as much as possible, speak to him only when necessary, and shut him out of their private amusements—"Send him to Coventry," as Major Hope expressed it; then he would of course exchange into some other regiment, where the officers were not so select or particular. They did not seem to doubt that he would do this at once when he found what the feeling of the regiment was; and Lord Bardon was curious to see the man who was so highly rated for his personal ability, yet scorned for his birth.

"It is a pity," said Major Hope; "for, to my mind, Lieutenant Allan Osburn is one of the handsomest fellows in her majesty's service. But a draper's son! What could have induced him to join our regiment?"

"I know he is the bravest man we have; and that is saying a great deal," observed Captain Vane. "I have seen him do things which required seeing to believe; he does not know what fear is. Still one must draw the line somewhere."

"He must go," said Major Hope; "but, honestly speaking, I should not like to be the one to tell him so."

More and more John Bardon wondered what kind of man this was to whom all spoke with praise, yet who was declined as an associate. He was curious to see him. It so happened that a few minutes later he was crossing the barrack-square to look at the new library for the use of the soldiers, when Major Hope drew his attention to a young man who was standing watching one of the troopers trying to manage a refractory horse.

"Look at that man," said the Major. John Bardon looked, and beheld one of the handsomest men he had ever seen—a man who carried himself with ease and grace, who had a tall erect figure, a broad chest, and magnificent shoulders. His complexion was dark, and he had keen dark eyes, a proud mouth, and a noble brow.

"Who do you think that is?" asked Major Hope; and John Bardon smiled.

"If I judged from appearances, I should take him to be the ruler of a kingdom. What a magnificent fellow!"

"Yes; you do not often see a finer-looking soldier; he looks every inch a king. Who would believe that he was the son of a draper?"

John Bardon looked up with eager interest.

"Is this," he added, "the gentleman of whom you have been speaking?"

"Yes; that is Lieutenant Osburn," replied the major.

"He looks much more like a gentleman than any of those who decline to associate with him," thought John Bardon.

His heart warmed to the man whom they were seeking to humble; for he himself had been slighted and treated with contempt on account of his lowly birth, and he knew well how hard it was to bear.

"I wonder," he said to himself, "if ever he will suffer as I have suffered." And he resolved, so far as he could, to befriend Allan Osburn.

The major nodded coolly as he passed his comrade, and Allan returned the salute with quite as much pride as it was given.

"There will be a scene at the dinner table," remarked Major Hope. "I am almost glad that the duke will not be here."

For a messenger had been sent from Norton House to say that his grace was detained at home on most pressing business, and that he would not be able to keep his appointment; so that there was no stranger present at the dinner except John Bardon.

The mess-room was a fine lofty apartment. The table glittered with plate and crystal; and there was an air of luxury and comfort about the place which pleased the master of Hyne Court, who, as he said, liked "to see things done well." He could not help admiring the aristocratic-looking men seated at the table; but Lieutenant Allan Osburn was by far the most handsome and distinguished-looking man there.

Next Twenty-Four Hours Will Decide.

Turkish Arrogance Upsets Conference—Peace or War Now in the Balance—Bluenose Wins First Race in Elimination Tests.

ANOTHER HALT.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 8. There has again been a halt in armistice negotiations at Mudania. Two of the three members of each of the Allied delegations returned to Constantinople this evening. One of the delegates said: "We have returned to confer with the High Commissioners because the final Paris instructions have not yet reached Mudania. We shall return to Mudania to-night." In the course of the afternoon Gen. Harjation demanded of Ismet Pasha that the Turks withdraw their forces from the neutral zone near Ismid. Unless this was done, he declared, he might be obliged to make a demonstration on both flanks of the Turkish forces.

The immediate suspension of ferry boats on the Bosphorus has been ordered by the British. A diplomat in close touch with the Mudania Conference expressed the belief tonight that the next twenty-four hours shall spell peace or war. "If Ismet continues his arrogant attitude and insists perpetually in seeking to upset the negotiations, the Conference must cease in its efforts for peace," he declared. The British Admiral in command has issued an order that, beginning tomorrow, no vessel, steam, sail, or otherwise, will be permitted to move out of the Bosphorus between six o'clock in the evening and seven in the morning.

FRANCE WARNS GREECE.
LONDON, Oct. 8. A Reuter despatch from Athens dated Saturday, says the Greek Government has received a severe warning from France against the despatch of reinforcements to Thrace.

ANOTHER VIOLATION.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 8. Turkish infantry and cavalry, it is announced, have violated the neutral zone around Ismid. This is the first violation of the zone protecting Constantinople on the Asiatic front. The Turks have not, however, yet advanced far enough to come into contact with British troops in the outskirts of Constantinople.

THE GIANTS AGAIN CHAMPIONS.
NEW YORK, Oct. 8. The Giants are once more baseball champions of the world. They reached the pinnacle for the second successive year in a furious uphill battle this afternoon that flung the Yankees to defeat, five to three.

A BLUENOSE VICTORY.
HALIFAX, Oct. 8. Blanketed by her three rivals at the start, relegated from first to last position at the first buoy, when she took the wrong course, left more than two minutes behind when she overtook the second mark, and dented thereafter the windward work which was regarded as her hope, the Lunenburg fishing schooner Bluenose proved herself down wind as well as by it, and came home a winner by more than six minutes in Saturday's first race for the Nova Scotia fleet championship. If Angus Walters brings his vessel in winner on Monday the Bluenose will go to Gloucester to defend the title as International champion.

AGREE TO EVACUATION OF THE GREEK ISLANDS.
ATHENS, Oct. 8. The Greek Government has instructed its delegate at the Mudania Conference to accept decisions which may be unanimously agreed upon by Allied representatives. This action was taken following the receipt of advices from former Premier Venizelos that Eastern Thrace must be considered lost to Greece. Greece will endeavor to secure two months to permit the evacuation of the army and Greek civilian population, which is estimated to aggregate two hundred thousand. Probably another three hundred thousand Greeks and Armenians will leave Constantinople for Greece, which will make more crushing the problem of a country which is already burdened by refugees.

Football Reminiscences.

By ONLOOKER.

24th LEAGUE MATCH.
Star vs. Terra Nova; Result: Star 6 Goals; Terra Nova 0. Played on Llewellyn Place, Aug. 17, 1922.

We are now within a week of the last of the season and still keen interest in football is being manifested, as evidenced by the big muster of spectators which greeted the above teams last evening. The match, of course, was considered important, from the fact of the Terra Nova's having made that surprising draw against the hitherto invincibles of the season—the C.E.I. The following were the players last evening:—

STAR:—Gaul, English, R. Power, Collins, Marshall, J. Vinicombe, Brophy, Brownrigg, E. Power, Ryan, Gordon.

TERRA NOVA:—Parsons, N. Vinicombe, Kent, Marshall, Gemmill, W. Soper, Dowden, Snow Pike, T. Soper, Easterbrook.

The Terra Novas played downhill first half, and for some 10 minutes play was fairly even; but it was early apparent that the Stars were the stronger team; and some 15 minutes from the start, from some good combination, Ned Power got possession and shot into the net for the first time. A corner was taken by the Stars, which was not availed of, then a corner to each side with like results. Stars now raided the western goal end but were driven back by the Black and White backs—Marshall and Vinicombe shining—and T.N.'s with Pike in the van made an onslaught on Gaul's etatdel, only to be sent back to the other end. With the Stars pressing half time came—score 1 nothing, in favor of Star.

On resuming play, the Stars righted matters downhill, and a chance of beating Parsons was lost by shooting past. Then another run and a goal, just saved by Nix Vinicombe conceding a corner. This was well placed but cleared brilliantly by Terra; and eventually shot over. After a few minutes of even exchange, a lively bit of play took place, in which some good work was put in on both sides, the outcome being a second goal for the Stars, put in by Ryan. Two corners in succession fell to the Stars, then after some hustling play a third goal—Ryan again doing the needful. Terra Nova's then came away, right from the centre, and when getting well up on Gaul play was suspended for a minute or two—Collins of the Star having collided with the fence. Shortly after, Ned Power landed the ball in the net, 4 for the Stars, and it was too dark now to distinguish the players or locate the ball anywhere, but play ranged round Parsons right up till time was called, other two goals being put in by the Stars and the match ending: Star 6 goals; Terra Novas 0.

Referee—F. Maynard.
Linesmen—A. McKay and J. Larkin.

NOTES ON THE GAME.

The match, especially the 2nd half, was simply a picnic for the Stars who outplayed their opponents in every department of the game.

It could not be called a brilliant game, the ball being too often over the touch lines, but some good individual play was put in on both sides. Power, Gordon, and Ryan shone in front. Vinicombe (Star) played the whole half-back line, being the most energetic man on the ground, and English and E. Power were very safe backs.

Pike was the luminary of the defeated forwards. But had no chance through lack of support. Aleck Marshall and Gemmill as half backs played a fine game, and the backs, N. Vinicombe and Kent, put up a rattling defence, only, to our mind, making the mistake of getting too far ahead.

Parsons' goal was good, and had no chance of saving the last 3 goals at all.
Matches should positively be started at 8 p.m. sharp now, a fact fairly in evidence last evening.

Movies in Newfoundland

AMERICAN PRODUCTIONS ABOUT 80 PER CENT. OF THOSE SHOWN.

Washington, Sept. 23. — Const. Benedict, St. John's, N.F., reports to the Department of Commerce that the market in Newfoundland for motion picture films of the United States production is excellent, though limited mostly to St. John's, the only municipality. It is estimated that about 80 per cent. are American, the remainder being Canadian, excepting an English production occasionally.

As a Newfoundland audience consists of mixed classes differing in tastes, types of pictures must be varied; and often two or three distinct types are presented at the same show. It may open with a travelogue, news film or serial, then the principal picture, which may be a melodrama or Western subject, and this followed by a short comedy. Good, clean, heart stories bordering on the melodrama seem very successful. Complex and sex-problem pictures are not desirable. All pictures must have the approval of the local Censor Board before being exhibited.

The shows are generally given in the evening, each lasting one and three-quarters or two hours, this arrangement sometimes being altered when an eight or more reel picture would be shown but once. In the afternoon the shorter pictures are shown twice and the principal one but once.—Baltimore Sun.

Identified As The Thrasher Shark.

The strange fish that have been recently seen in Conception Bay by fishermen are in every way likely to be the Killer, locally known as the Thrasher, says the Harbor Grace Standard. Although some fishermen who have seen that fish often do not incline to that opinion. The back, head and tail of the fish have only been seen, and so the men could not rightly decide the question. As far as the size, color and movements of the strange fish so they are more like unto the Thrasher than any other known denizen of the deep.

"AT HOME."—Mrs. E. Fox will be "At Home" on Wednesday and Thursday afternoon, at 27 Queen's Road.—oct5,11

Kirkpatrick Wins.

IN INTER-TOWN TENNIS SINGLES.

The third round in the Hambling-Kirkpatrick games was held at the Court at Bay Roberts on Friday afternoon last. The games were ordinary friendly ones arranged by the local clubs to see some really good play and foster interest in the sport. In the two former games both had a win so this one was in the nature of play-off, and as such occasioned a great amount of interest. This contest was the best of the three, some first-class tennis being played by both contestants, and proved most instructive. A large number of spectators were present from Carbonear, Harbor Grace and North River, while the fans at Bay Roberts turned up in force. Mr. Kirkpatrick was the winner, securing three straight sets with the score standing at 6-3, 8-6, 6-4. In the evening a dance was being held in the Cable Hall by the Bay Roberts folks, a return dance to one given by the operators from Heart's Content, who are temporarily stationed at Bay Roberts, and an invitation was extended to the visitors. A most enjoyable evening was spent, and the visitors left for their respective homes by motor after midnight.—Hr. Grace Standard, Oct. 6.

Keep Tuesday and Friday night's open for your Dancing Lessons in Supper Room, C.C.C. Hall, at 8.30 o'clock. DONNA LAMB.—oct6,21

The two forts of Medjedeh and Chemlik, one mile apart, between them fifty or sixty comparatively modern houses and some twelve hundred houses in varying stages of ruin and dilapidation—bearing silent testimony of the skill of our naval gunners in 1915—and you have the town of Chanak, which bids fair to become an important place during the next few days.

The Sandjak of Chanak (i.e. the neutral Dardanelles zone) extends to the southwest as far as the town of Ezine, until lately occupied by Greek troops, but now occupied by the advance guards of Kemal.

SPECULATION.

Sometimes I murmur and repine, and all my life seems sad and sour, for every time I buy a mine it fizzles out in half an hour. Oh, some grow rich by digging gold or tin or pewter from the earth, and all the stocks and shares they hold are things of an increasing worth. But when I buy up mining shares production in a minute stops; the mine has joined the other mines, the bottom from the venture drops. All round me wealthy men reside, they made their bundles out of oil; in pomp and panoply they ride they needn't buckle down to toil. I've heard them as they talked and chatted, their fortunes never know a hitch; it seems to be an easy graft to deal in oil and so get rich. But when that sort of thing I'd try, and buy a well with hard-earned yen, in half a day that well goes dry, and I am busted once again. Some grievous lesson I have learned, but not for long a lesson sticks; throughout my pilgrimage

I've yearned to blow myself for gilded bricks. Some day, I think, a brick will prove to be of pure and yellow gold; as down the poorhouse road. I move, this famous belief I hold. Some day my wells will turn out grease, and I'll have diamonds on my hat; some day my swans will all be geese, my goat will be a Maltese cat.

The hip-length belted or bloused coat of fur is smart for street wear.

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. A touch stops the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in a colorless clear liquid (one drop does it) and in extra thin plaster. The action is the same.

(From Saturday's Trade Review.)

Fogo, 1520 qts. to Halifax. By schr. Davy, 14 Morris from T. Tracy, St. Anthony, 3,500 qts. to Exeter. By S. S. Aras, 15,892 qts. to Gibraltar from various shippers. Twillington to Gibraltar. By S.S. Posledon from W. Webb & Sons, Rencontre, 2,500 to Oporto. By schr. Lella from T. Lefeuve, Burin, 1,455 qts. to Halifax. By schr. G. Tibbo from S. Tibbo & Sons, Grand Bank, 4,527 qts. to Oporto. By schr. Frank R. Forsay, from S. Harris & Sons, Grand Bank, 5,000 qts. to Oporto. By schr. Amnoldo from G. M. Barr, Spencer's Cove, 4,332 qts. to Oporto. By schr. Harding, West St. Modeste, 3,200 qts. to Halifax. Total 100,918 qts.

From St. John's—By schr. Eliza Rodway, from Jas. Baird, Ltd., 1706 qts. to Barbadoes. By S.S. Nevils, 2,021 qts. from Harvey & Co. to Alicante and Naples. By S.S. Digby to Liverpool from various shippers, 2,247 qts., and by S.S. Rosalind to New York for transshipment to West Indies, 8,186 qts. Grand total from St. John's, Ouports, and Labrador for the week, 136,060 quintals.

Cod Oil—The price of common cod oil is holding up well at $122.50 to $125.00 per ton for the British and American markets. S.S. Digby took out 3,447 gallons to Liverpool last trip, and S.S. Rosalind 16,499 gallons, to New York. The superiority of Newfoundland oil is splendidly vindicated by the determined fight put up by the American tanning interests to have it placed on the free list.

Cod Liver Oil—The markets abroad are showing a little activity compared with the long ten months quiet spell. S.S. Digby took away 2,775 gallons, to Liverpool this week and the S.S. Rosalind 750 gallons to New York. Wholesale Druggists are making enquiries preparatory to laying in winter stocks and there is a better demand at $23 to $25 a barrel.

Flour—There was a marked scarcity of flour in the market this week until the arrival of the S.S. Manoa. This is caused by the importers holding off waiting for flour to settle at its lowest price. With the arrival of larger supplies of new wheat at the mills in Canada prices are getting easier but wheat will continue to fluctuate till there is some definite settlement in the near east war situation. The local price of flour of good brands declined from $8.75 to $8.50 per barrel this week. December wheat touched 94 and a half at Winnipeg Thursday, while Chicago hung around 106. The S.S. Manoa brought in about 10,000 barrels Thursday but owing to the brisk demand there will be quickly absorbed and there is likely to be a scarcity with the coming of the cold weather.

Pork—The price on ribs advanced $1.50 a barrel this week in the United States market. Other brands are also up and boneless is 50 cents per barrel from the low point. Local quotations to-day represent only the cost of importation viz: Ham Butt $32. Fat Back and S. C. Clear $28.75; Grocers Family Mess $28, and Spare Ribs $24.75. The total imports to St. John's to date are about 14,500 barrels. The S.S. Canadian Sapper brought in 377 barrels. The S. S. Digby 102. This puts the total on a level with the corresponding period last year.

Beef—According to the Customs figures furnished The Trade Review from that Department, the imports of barreled beef to St. John's seem to be 10,000 barrels short of last year to date. The United States market seems to be a shade stronger and heavy ordering of supplies for the fall trade is now going on so that the disparity in the imports in favor of last year will likely be reduced considerably during the next two months. The St. John's wholesale prices are the same as last week viz: Bos Flank $21.50, Extra Family $20.75, Family Special $17.75, N.Y. Boneless $17, Chicago Boneless $16.25.

Molasses—The old molasses is practically cleaned up at Barbadoes and attention will henceforth be concentrated on the new crop. The Annie L. Warren has left Barbadoes for St. Kitt's but the Port Union, Little Princess and Cecil Junior are still there presumably seeking cargoes. The total imports to St. John's will be about 10,000 puncheons which will be barely enough to supply requirements for the next six months. The probability is that there will be a scarcity next winter. The local quotations are unchanged viz: 80c. per gallon for fancy wholesale, 70c. for choice in puncheons, 72c. in tierces and 75c. in barrels.

Sugar—The market is advancing. Refiners in New York wired here this week twice informing dealers of two advances totaling 20 cents per 100 pounds from the point and advising importers to contract without delay for their "end of the year" supplies. The local wholesale quotation which was $11.35 per 100 lbs. Tuesday of this week will no doubt soon be affected upwards by the recent foreign advance which is no doubt caused by the new Fordney Tariff.

Potatoes—The prudent farmers who take no chances on the possibility of an early frost began harvesting their potatoes this week. Generally the local crop is good, the potatoes being sound and dry but at the same time there are complaints from a good many farmers that the full growth of the tubers was not attained owing to too long continuance of dry weather in August and up to September 20th. The potatoes are therefore smaller than the average. The local price is $2.50 to $3.00 per barrel according to quality. No imported in the market.

Apples—The local market is now well stocked with "gravensteins" selling at $5.25 per barrel for Nos. 1 and 2 and $4.75 for Domestic and $4.50 for No. 3. Onions selling at $5. per case grapes $6.50 a keg. Oranges scarce. A few cases arrived on the Belvernon. Price, $10.50 a case for California stock.

Hay—The first considerable imports of hay for the season began this week when the S. S. Canadian Sapper on the Montreal and Charlottetown route brought in 550 bales followed by the S. S. Manoa on Thursday with 716 bales. The Canadian market is now overstocked with the results of the record hay crop. Dealers who are interested in the export trade say that the prices they are offering are the rock bottom for the season. The ordering of fall and winter requirements is becoming active in consequence of this and the realization that freight conditions are at their best now. The local price is $35 per ton for No. 2.

Oats—The market is getting strong and an advance of two cents per bushel took place this week. The S.S. Canadian Sapper brought in 2032 sacks this week from Montreal and Charlottetown, and the S. S. Manoa also brought large consignments. It is probable that the lowest point was reached the last week of September when white oats were $3.55 in the local market and mixed $3.45 per sack 4 bushels.

Brazil Celebrates.

This greatest South American country is celebrating its centennial of independence by a magnificent exposition in Rio de Janeiro. Brazil is almost square in form and is immense, its extreme length being 2,665 miles, with a breadth of 2,588 miles, with an comprises nearly one-half of South America, and in the Western Hemisphere it is exceeded in size by the area of 3,113,890 square miles. It comprises nearly one-half of South America, and in the Western Hemisphere is only exceeded in size by the United States and British America.

It is said that Brazil contains more fertile land than any other country on earth, and offers to industry and civilization the best opportunities for development that are known at the present time. The three great systems of the Amazon, La Plata and Sao Francisco, supplying excellent water power, and constituting great interior avenues for commercial navigation.

In its mountain districts are vast mineral deposits, the central plains and those along the coast possess great fertility of soil, and immense forests await the touch of civilized arts.

Brazil was discovered by the Portuguese in 1500 and settlement effected in 1530. The Indian natives were very unfriendly and hampered development. A colony was established at Rio de Janeiro in 1567. The royal family of Portugal, the house of Braganca, was expelled from Portugal by the French in 1688, and took refuge in Brazil, under whose guidance the country made marked progress and development. The eldest son of the King declared Brazil independent and was crowned emperor as Dom Pedro I, in 1822. This event is now being celebrated.

The constitution was adopted in 1825. After some years opposition arose to the reign of Dom Pedro and he voluntarily abdicated in 1831 in favor of his eldest son and returned to Portugal. After a regency of nine years, the sun, now 15, was crowned as Dom Pedro II, who reigned successfully for 48 years when a revolution broke out and he was dethroned on Nov. 15, 1889. The country then became a republic without bloodshed, and the government was entirely re-constructed and reorganized largely after the pattern of the United States. Great progress in all directions has been made in recent years. The language of the country is Portuguese. There are twenty states in the Republic. Several of them, especially in the south are becoming populated by Europeans, large colonies of Germans being prominent in the movement. The population is considerably over twenty millions. Rio de Janeiro, the capital, is located on a beautiful bay, and has one of the finest harbors in the world. Other cities of importance are San Paulo, Santos, Pernambuco, Para, Campos, Belem, Bahia, Maranhao, Pelotas, and Ceara.

The full-skirted frock reaches the ankle, but the straight, one-piece dress just escapes the ankle bone.

TOO SERIOUS MINDED. "To withstand steadfastly the allurements of life, yet pass no censure on those who yield to them, denotes a gentle breadth of character far removed from the complacent self esteem of the ungodly."—Agnes Repplier. What a strain it is to see a great deal of a person who is too serious minded! It is a fine thing to be responsible, to be a good citizen, to have strong principles and a high sense of honor.

Life is Earnest But— It is a misfortune to let one's sense of the serious-side of life so dominate one that one is always in deadly earnest, always talking about serious things, never able to relax and forget for a short while that life is real, life is earnest and the grave is merely a gateway into a life which is still more real and earnest, and uninteresting. People who take themselves and their principles too seriously are always in danger of bringing the principles they care so much about into disrepute through the antagonism their over seriousness sets in action. Nothing does more harm to Christianity than a sour pious Christian. It is human nature to react from any excess to the other extreme. Like the Pharisee. And then, too, the serious minded

A Distinguished Composer.

Sir Hubert Parry, who died at Rushington, near Worthing on October 7th, 1918, was born in 1848 at Bourne-mouth, and educated at Eton and Oxford. He took his Mus. Bacc. at the age of 18. His publications cover a wide range from "Studies of the Great Composers," to a "Summary of Musical History," while his works rank him as one of the greatest of English composers. He composed the music to the coronation anthem for the Coronation of King Edward VII, the Te Deum for the Coronation of King George V, and various classical plays, including several of the best known of Aristophanes comedies. During the war his only work of interest produced by him was "The Cavalry of the Sea," a choral composition. He took a prominent part in all work of relief for distressed musicians. Sir Hubert was Professor of music at Oxford from 1889 to 1908, and was director of the Royal College of Music. He married in 1872 Lady Elizabeth Maud Herbert, sister of the Earl of Pembroke, and left two daughters, one of whom married Mr. A. Ponsonby, who succeeded the late Sir H. Campbell Bannerman as M.P. for the Strickland Burghs. Mr. Frankel Green's is also a son-in-law. Sir Hubert's death marked the end of most interesting and important epoch in the development of British music. He was a great master of massive musical effect and a composer of the very loftiest ideals. His austerity occasionally made critics underestimate the value of musical charm. This quality in him justified the title sometimes bestowed on him of the English Brahms just as his mastery of counterpoint earned for him the name of the English Bach. It may be safely prophesied that much of his music will live and his "Job" and "Blest Pair of Sirens" with its Miltonic business of idea will have an honorable place in the literature of the age.

Fads and Fashions.

Allover pin tucking is attractive for a coat-dress of navy Polart twill. Very smart is the long close-fitting sleeve that flares above the cuff. With velvet is combined muslin enriched with silk and metal embroidery. In the new silks and velvets Chinese and Persian designs are prominent. Alternating rows of gold and silver lace trim an evening gown of gold tissue.

The "Egypt" Judgment.

The Court of Enquiry which sat to determine the placing of the blame for the loss of the P. & O. steamer "Egypt," and the accompanying loss of life due to collision with the French steamer "Saina," delivered a judgment which has caused a good deal of comment. The certificate of the master was suspended for six months, not for any fault of navigation, but because, in the opinion of the court, everything was not done that should have been done for the saving of life after the collision occurred. The owners of the vessel also came in for censure, on account of not having seen that proper boat drill was carried out before the vessel sailed. After the collision took place, it was but a very short time until the vessel took such a severe list that it was impossible to launch the boats on the starboard side. The vessel's crew outside of the officers consisted of Lascars and Goanese, the latter being mostly in the steward's department. There seems to be no doubt that confusion set in among a number of these men, and this undoubtedly handicapped the officers very considerably in their efforts to get the boats away and the passengers into them.

The general opinion is that the court was unduly severe in suspending the master's certificate, and in censuring the chief officer. On the evidence as given in the enquiry, there seems little doubt to the on-looker that both these gentlemen did their best under very difficult circumstances, and truly upheld the traditions of the British seaman. We have often wondered how the gentlemen who sit as judges on these enquiries would show up if they were themselves placed in the position of those they are passing judgment on. The atmosphere of a court of enquiry is very far removed from the atmosphere that prevails on the deck of a crowded ship when death is imminent, and there are numbers of people present to whom the sea is a terror at any time. With darkness prevailing, a crew gone wild with fright, and a crowd of terror-stricken passengers, the responsibility devolving on the shoulders of the one or two superior officers of the ship is a terrible one.

There was no question of the bravery of either the captain or chief officer, the finding of the court being based on the fact that the crew did not know their boat stations, and that the watertight doors were not properly handled. The suspension of the captain's certificate is a much more serious matter than would appear from the mere statement that the period of suspension is six months. It means that the unfortunate captain is a marked man in the office of every underwriter for all time to come, and his prospects of getting a command after the suspension is worked out, are very slim.—Canadian Shipping.

The Author of "Don Quixote."

Miguel (Michael) de Cervantes Saavedra was born at Alcalá in Spain a few days before the 9th Oct. 1547. The exact date is not known, but he was baptised on the 9th. His father was a surgeon in poor circumstances, and young Cervantes went to school at Madrid. He took service in the household of Cardinal Acquaviva, and went with him to Italy, where he enlisted in the Papal army and served against the Turks. At the battle of Lepanto, in which the Christians totally defeated the Turks, Cervantes was twice wounded. On recovery from his wounds he served in several campaigns and saw more fighting. In 1576 he was given command of a regiment for the Low Countries, but while voyaging thither, his ship was captured by an Algerine pirate and all hands were sold as slaves in Algiers. Cervantes had three masters in succession, first a Greek, then a Venetian, and then the Dey of Sultan. All three were very cruel and, as Cervantes was continually trying to escape, they made him suffer severely. After five years of bondage he was ransomed by his relatives. On his return to Spain he resumed for a time the profession of a soldier. He then married, and leaving the army, took up various occupations, all of which proved unprofitable, so that he was frequently thrown into prison for debt. Then he took to literature and

Just Folks BY EDGAR A. GUEST. THE NEEDED TRAINING. He never praised his country, never spoke one word of love To the son who walked beside him of The starry flag above, He never gave a reason to the youngster at his side For devotion to his nation or her heroes who had died. He talked a brand of honor that is wanted in the town, And he talked of making money and a fortune's fair renown, But he never took his hat off when the Starry flag went by, And he'd hear his nation's anthem with a bored and weary sigh. He voted—yes, he voted, but he did it with a sneer, And he belittled in office with the ship of state to steer, He called them politicians, and the look upon his face Seemed to tell the little fellow that his government was base. We must teach them love of country, We must tell the little chaps There is more within our borders than is printed on the maps, If our nation is to prosper and our glory's not to die We must teach the young to love it, and must tell the reason why.
